"8……The courts must, while evaluating evidence, remain alive to the fact that in a case of rape, no self-respecting woman would come forward in a court just to make a humiliating statement against her honour such as is involved in the commission of rape on her. In cases involving sexual molestation, supposed considerations which have no material effect on the veracity of the prosecution case or even discrepancies in the statement of the prosecutrix should not, unless the discrepancies are such which are of fatal nature, be allowed to throw out an otherwise reliable prosecution case. The inherent bashfulness of the females and the tendency to conceal outrage of sexual aggression are factors which the courts should not overlook. The testimony of the victim in such cases is vital and unless there are compelling reasons which necessitate looking for corroboration of her statement, the courts should find no difficulty to act on the testimony of a victim of sexual assault alone to convict an accused where her testimony inspires confidence and is found to be reliable. Seeking corroboration of her statement before relying upon the same, as a rule, in such cases amounts to adding insult to injury. Why should the evidence of a girl or a woman who complains of rape or sexual molestation, be viewed with doubt, disbelief or suspicion? The court while appreciating the evidence of a prosecutrix may look for some assurance of her statement to satisfy its judicial conscience, since she is a witness who is interested in the outcome of the charge levelled by her, but there is no requirement of law to insist upon corroboration of her statement to base conviction of an accused. The evidence of a victim of sexual assault stands almost on a par with the evidence of an injured witness and to an extent is even more reliable. Just as a witness who has sustained some injury in the occurrence, which is not found to be self-inflicted, is considered to be a good witness in the sense that he is least likely to shield the real culprit, the evidence of a victim of a sexual offence is entitled to great weight, absence of corroboration notwithstanding. Corroborative evidence is not an imperative component of judicial credence in every case of rape. Corroboration as a condition for judicial reliance on the testimony of the prosecutrix is not a requirement of law but a guidance of prudence under given circumstances. It must not be overlooked that a woman or a girl subjected to sexual assault is not an accomplice to the crime but is a victim of another person's lust and it is improper and undesirable to test her evidence with a certain amount of suspicion, treating her as if she were an accomplice. Inferences have to be drawn from a given set of facts and circumstances with realistic diversity and not dead uniformity lest that type of rigidity in the shape of rule of law is introduced through a new form of testimonial tyranny making justice a casualty. Courts cannot cling to a fossil formula and insist upon corroboration even if, taken as a whole, the case spoken of by the victim of sex crime strikes the judicial mind as probable." (emphasis in original)

Thus, while absence of injuries or absence of raising alarm or delay in FIR may not by itself be enough to disbelieve the version of prosecutrix in view of the statutory presumption under Section 114A of the Evidence Act but if such statement has inherent infirmities, creating doubt about its veracity, the same may not be acted upon. We are conscious of the sensitivity with which heinous offence under Section 376, IPC has to be treated but in the present case the circumstances taken as a whole create doubt about the correctness of the prosecution version. We are, thus, of the opinion that a case is made out for giving benefit of doubt to the accused."

31. In Golla Yelugu Govindu vs. State of Andhra Pradesh (2008) 16 SCC 769, the Apex Court has held as under:-

"11. 6.Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (in short the 'Evidence Act') does not prescribe any particular age as a determinative factor to treat a witness to be a competent one. On the contrary, Section 118 of the Evidence Act envisages that all persons shall be competent to testify, unless the Court considers that they are prevented from understanding the questions put to them or from giving rational answers to these questions, because of tender years, extreme old age, disease- whether of mind, or any other cause of the same kind. A child of tender age can be allowed to testify if he has intellectual capacity to understand questions and give rational answers thereto. This position was concisely stated by Brewer J in Wheeler v. United States (159 U.S. 523). The evidence of a child witness is not required to be rejected per se; but the Court as a rule of prudence considers such evidence with close scrutiny and only on being convinced about the quality thereof and reliability can record conviction, based thereon. (See Surya Narayana v. State of Karnataka (2001 (1) Supreme 1).

32. Accordingly, in view of discussion held above and the ratio laid down in the abovementioned cases, while upholding the judgment passed by the learned trial Court, we dismiss the appeal filed by the appellant being devoid of any merit. Pending application(s), if any, also stands disposed of.

For the Appellant: Mr. Parmod Thakur, Additional Advocate General.

For the Respondents: Mr. Anoop Chitkara, Advocate, for respondent No. 1.
Mr. Naresh Kaul, Advocate, for respondents No.2 and 3.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Justice Rajiv Sharma, Judge

This appeal is instituted against Judgment dated 29.7.2011 rendered by the learned Special Judge, Kangra at Dharamshala (HP) in Corruption Case No. 3-N/2006, whereby the respondents-accused (hereinafter referred to as 'accused' for convenience sake), who were charged with and tried for the commission of offence under Sections 120-B, 408, 420, 467, 468, 471, 201 read with Section 120-B IPC and under Sections 7 and 13(1)(c) read with Section 13(2) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, have been acquitted.

2. Case of the prosecution, in a nutshell, is that the accused Vijay Singh was appointed as Secretary, Cooperative Agricultural Society, Khajjan, during the year 1992-93 and he was holding and maintaining the entire record of the society including accounts and cash of the society. Vijay, in the month of October, 1992 prepared four pronotes in the pronote register Ext. PW-1/A-2 in favour of Suram Singh, Prem Singh (Ext. PW-2/F), Chattar Singh (Ext. PW-2/G) and Darshan Singh (Ext. PW-2/H), each amounting to Rs.4,000/-, in which the loanees and the sureties were identified by accused Krishan Chand and Pancham Chand amongst others. Charan Singh, a founding member of the Cooperative Agricultural Society, Khajjan, came to know about the preparation of forged pronotes in the name of aforesaid persons. He inquired from accused Vijay about the pronote and money of the society. Charan Singh thereafter made a report against accused to the Assistant Registrar Cooperative Societies. Harnam Singh (PW-2) was entrusted with the inquiry by Assistant Registrar Cooperative Societies on 20.8.2002. He scrutinized the record of the society i.e. ledger Ext. PW-1/A-1. Harnam Singh PW-2 found that accused Vijay had advanced the loan on the pronotes to the aforesaid persons mentioned in the pronote and these loans were shown to have been recovered after a period of one year and interest of Rs.225/- each was shown to have been charged. Vijay made entry showing that the loan had been repaid. PW-2 Harnam Singh submitted report Ext. PW-2/A to Assistant Registrar Cooperative Societies, Nurpur. On the basis of report, FIR Ext. PW-22/B was registered. Vijay was removed from the post of Secretary, Cooperative Agricultural Society, Khajjan and one Sukhdev Sharma (PW-18) took over the charge of Cooperative Agricultural Society, Khajjan from Inspector Gurbachan Singh. It is further alleged that as per audit note Ext. PW-1/C, society was having funds of Rs.53,000/- approximately but despite this, no amount was given in the charge to Sukhdev Sharma, which was due against Vijay. As such, no cash-in-hand was received by him. Sukhdev Sharma, after assuming charge of Secretary, had not received any proceedings book for the period prior to his joining which was maintained by the Secretary in which day-to-day proceedings were recorded relating to loan etc. Sukhdev Sharma, thereafter opened a new proceedings book Ext. PW-2/B-1 and mentioned about taking over charge and articles/items/documents which he had received/not received in the proceedings dated 28.10.1994 (Ext. PW-18/A). PW-18 Sukhdev Sharma after functioning as Secretary handed over the charge in 2002 to Mukta Sharma, Inspector, Inspector, Co-operative Societies and recorded handing over and taking over of the said fact in Ext.PW-2/B-1. During investigation, it was found that the loanees as mentioned in pronotes were non-existent in the area of Gram Panchayat Oundh. Accused Vijay Singh made a statement Ext. PW-2/C during the inquiry, confessing the misappropriation of amount and the circumstances under which it was done. Specimen handwriting and signatures of accused Vijay, Pancham Chand and Kishan Chand were taken before the Executive Magistrate, Sant Ram (PW-4). Signatures of Man Singh (PW-8) and Dhian Chand were also obtained before the Executive Magistrate, Sant Ram (PW-4). Specimen handwritings of Karam Chand (PW-13) and Vakil Singh (PW-12) were also obtained before PW-5 Raj Krishan, Executive Magistrate, Nurpur. Dhian Singh, Man Singh and Vakil Singh had not signed the pronotes. The admitted handwriting contained in the register was got compared from PW-23 Visheswar Sharma. He submitted his report, Ext. PX. Matter was investigated. Challan was put up in the Court after completing all the codal formalities.

3. Prosecution examined as many as twenty three witnesses to prove its case against accused. Accused were examined under Section 313 of Criminal Procedure Code. Accused stated that they were innocent. Accused were acquitted as noticed above. Hence, this appeal.

4. Mr. Parmod Thakur, Additional Advocate General, has vehemently argued that the prosecution has proved its case against the accused.

5. Mr. Anup Chitkara and Mr. Naresh Kaul, Advocates, appearing for the respective respondents, have supported judgment dated 29.7.2011.

6. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and also gone through the record carefully.

7. PW-1 Mukta Sharma, the then Inspector, Co-operative Societies, Nurpur testified that the society was closed in the year 2002. Sukhdev Sharma was the Secretary of Cooperative Agricultural Society during her tenure. In the year 2002, Sukhdev Sharma deposited record of the society with her as the society was not functioning. She kept the record in safe custody. She had produced record of Khata Bahi Ext. PW-1/A-1, pronote register Ext. PW-1/A-2, Cash book Ext. PW-1/A-3 and another cash book with effect from 6.5.1966 to 31.3.2002, Ext. PW-1/A-4, which was taken into possession vide seizure memo Ext. PW-1/A. Audit report is Ext. PW-1/C-1 and order of Assistant Registrar Cooperative Societies is Mark A1. However, in her cross-examination, she could not narrate as to who had handed over charge to Sukhdev Sharma. Embezzlement came to the notice of the Society in the year 1993.

He admitted that the Secretary works on the direction of the members and he has no independent power. He admitted that till the time money is not deposited in the Bank, it is supposed to be with the cashier. Self stated that Vijay has admitted that he was having Rs.16,900/- approximately. 9. Manohar Lal, PW-3 was posted as Inspector Audit. He has handed over record Mark B1, Mark B2 and Mark B3 and inquiry report Ext. PW-2/A. Statements of witnesses were recorded vide Ext. PW-2/B. Documents were taken into possession vide Ext. PW-3/B. He has explained that the work of society is undertaken by Secretary and in this connection Secretary makes entries in the cash book. Secretary deposits money in the Bank. In his cross-examination, he admitted that the cash remains with the cashier though cashier will get the cash if handed over by the Secretary.

10. PW-4 Sant Ram, Executive Magistrate has obtained the specimen signatures of Vijay on 10.8.2004 and also of Pancham Chand, Kishan Chand, Dhian Chand and Man Singh. In his cross-examination, he could not mention any of the provision of CrPC, under which he could obtain specimen signatures of the accused.

11. PW-5 Dhian Singh testified that he has not taken any amount from the society. He has not stood surety as per pronote Ext. PW-2/H. He was declared hostile and cross-examined by the learned Public Prosecutor. He has stated that his specimen signatures were taken by the Tehsildar. In his cross-examination by learned defence Counsel he has testified that pronote Ext. PW-2/H does not contain name of his father.

12. PW-6 Beli Ram was member of the Cooperative Society from 1992 to 1996. He deposed that at the that time, Kishan was Pradhan of the Cooperative Agricultural Society and Charan Singh was the Up Pradhan, Jiwan Kumar was Cashier , Sain Deen, Hoshiar Singh and Babu Ram were members. Vijay was Secretary. He has not stood surety for any person. He used to take ration from the society and Vijay used to obtain his thumb impression on record. His thumb impression was obtained on Ext. PW-2/E. He did not know Suram Singh son of Mohar singh, PremSingh son of Sohan Singh, Chattar Singh son of Pritam Chand, Darshan Singh son of Jagat Ram. They were not the residents of his Panchayat. In his cross-examination, by the learned defence Counsel, he has deposed that the loan is sanctioned by the Pradhan and Secretary of the Society, which is entered in the proceedings. He denied that in the pronote, President, vice President and Members put their signatures. He could not say whether at the time of sanctioning of loan, by the society, he, President and the members had signed the pronote.

13. PW-7 Charan Singh was member of Cooperative Agricultural Society, Khajjan from 1991 to 1996-97. Accused Vijay was Secretary of the society. Accused Vijay prepared forged Tamsak in 1992-93, which were in the names of Suram Singh, Chattar Singh etc. Pronotes were not prepared in their presence. Accused had obtained thumb impressions of illiterate persons. They had inquired about fake persons but no record was found in the Gram Panchayat. There was no money in the account of the society. Matter was reported to the Assistant Registrar Cooperative Societies. When report was made against accused, he made entry that the loan had been repaid. PW-2 Harnam Singh also recorded his statement. He specifically admitted that other members have signed Ext. PW-2/H. He also admitted that when any pronote is prepared it is signed by Pradhan and other members of the Committee. In his cross-examination, he has admitted that in his report, there is reference about pronotes and regarding forging the pronotes regarding cash-in-hand. According to him, proceedings book, cash book were not available at the time of inquiry. Therefore, he could not properly conduct the inquiry. He admitted that pronotes were sanctioned by Pradhan and Members. He had also mentioned in the inquiry report that recoveries are not effected from Secretary, then recoveries are effected from members of the Committee. All the decisions are taken by the executive committee of the society, which are entered into the proceedings book and then implemented by the Secretary.

17. PW-12 Vakil Singh testified that he was not a member of Cooperative Agricultural Society, Khajjan. He was member of Agricultural Society Sadwan. His specimen signatures were obtained by the Tehsildar Nurpur.

18. PW-13 Karam Chand claimed that he was a member of Cooperative Agricultural Society, Khajjan. However, he never stood surety to any person. He did not know Prem Singh. His specimen signatures were taken by Tehsildar Nurpur.

19. PW-16 Roshan Deen testified that he was Pradhan of Aund Panchayat some 13-14 years ago. He has seen Ext. PW-2/D which was issued by him that there was no person in the name of Suram Singh, Prem Singh or Chattar Singh and Darshan Singh.

20. PW-17 Manohar Lal testified that he issued certificate Ext. PW-17/A mentioning that Suram Singh, Prem Singh Chattar Singh or Darshan Singh were not the residents of his village.

21. PW-18 Sukhdev Sharma is another material witness. He remained Secretary of the Cooperative Agricultural Society, Khajjan from 26.10.1994 to 31.3.2002. He has taken charge from Inspector Gurbachan Singh. He handed over charge in 2002 to Mukta Sharma, qua which entry was made in Ext. PW-2/B-1 at Page No. 183. He has admitted that he has not mentioned about amount of Rs.53,000/- was due from Vijay. He had seen the pronote in dispute signed by Kishan Singh Pradhan, Charan Singh Up Pradhan, Jeewan Kumar Cashier and Karam Chand, member of the society. He could identify their signatures.

22. PW-22 Jodha Mal has investigated the case. FIR Ext. 22/ was registered. He has taken into possession register of the Khata Bahi, Tamsak and register of Rokar Bahi. There were produced by Mukta Sharma, PW-1. He has also taken into possession record, inquiry conducted with respect to audit note and charge of Secretary. Vijay handed over charge to Krishan Singh on 7.6.1993, vide Ext. DA. He also seized certificate issued by Gram Panchayat Secretary, Ext. PW-17/A. He has admitted that pronotes were prepared in October, 1992 and case was registered in July, 2003. He has admitted in his cross-examination that the salesman, Secretary and Cashier are under the control of Inspector and higher officers of the Cooperation Department. He has not secured any evidence regarding entrustment of Rs.16,900/-. He has also admitted that at the time of advancement of loan by the Society, resolution is passed by the Executive body of the society and thereafter, it is entered in the proceedings book. He has admitted that President Krishan Chand, Nageen Chand, Beli Ram have signed and sanctioned the loan vide Ext. PW-2/G and similarly in all other three *Tamsak*s, the President and other executive members have signed and sanctioned the loan. He further admitted that he has not challaned the said members of the executive committee in the present case. He has admitted that Jiwan Kumar was Cashier of the society at the relevant time but he has not interrogated him in the investigation.

23. Cooperative Agricultural Society, Khajjan is a registered society. Shri Chararn Singh reported the matter to the Assistant Registrar Cooperative Societies. Inquiry was entrusted to Harnam Singh, PW-2. His report is Ext. PW-2/A. FIR Ext. PW-22/A was registered. Matter was investigated by PW-22 Inspector Jodha Mal. Documents were taken into possession. Admitted signatures and handwritings of accused and others were taken by PW-4 Sant Ram and PW-9 Raj Krishan, Tehsildar. It has come on record that Jiwan Kumar was the cashier of the society at the relevant time. PW-22 Inspector Jodha Mal admitted that Jiwan Kumar was not interrogated during investigation. Prosecution has not placed on record constitution of the society and its bye-laws to prove that who was handling the cash. It was necessary for the prosecution to prove duties of Secretary. PW-2 Harnam Singh who has conducted inquiry and prepared report Ext. PW-2/A has also admitted that the cashier was also working in the society and he was supposed to deal with the cash. Prosecution has not led any evidence who was entrusted the duties of cashier. Police has not even associated Jiwan Kumar, Cashier during the investigation. Specimen handwritings and signatures of the accused and others who were cited as witnesses in the case, have been obtained by PW-4 Sant Ram and PW-9 Raj Krishan during the course of investigation. Admitted handwriting and signatures of accused could not be obtained during the course of investigation as held in AIR 1980 SC 791. It was necessary for the prosecution to prove that cash was entrusted to Vijay. Proof of entrustment of money is a sine qua non. Thus, the charge of breach of trust has not been established against Vijay. Moreover, even Jiwan Kumar was cashier. It was necessary for the prosecution to prove that the Secretary used to look after cash as per its constitution. Jiwan Kumar was material witness to state whether it was Secretary who was entrusted with cash.

24. There is sufficient material on record that loans were sanctioned by the executive committee of the society. PW-2 Harnam Singh has also not deposed in whose presence, statement of accused Vijay Ext. PW-2/A was recorded. There is no evidence that the statement was made by accused Vijay voluntarily.

25. PW-5 Dhian Singh claimed that his father's name was not written in the pronote and there was another person by the same name. Similarly, Man Singh has claimed that his father's name was not mentioned in the Tamsak and there was another person by that name. PW-13 Karam Singh has denied that he stood surety in any pronote. In case there were other persons in the village by the same name, IO should have ascertained the same to find out whether persons mentioned in the pronote were not available in the village. Persons who were examined as sureties, claimed that there were other persons of their names in the village.

26. PW-2 Harnam Singh has admitted that at the time of advancement of loan by the society, resolution is passed by the executive committee of the society and it is entered in the proceedings book.

27. There is no evidence that the proceedings have been destroyed by the accused. prosecution has failed to prove that the accused has forged entry in the pronote register and embezzled Rs.16,900.80 and other accused have connived with him. IO should have associated the members of the society during investigation. Proceedings register was neither produced nor the members of the executive committee were examined. Moreover, their specimen handwritings were also not obtained. Pronotes were signed by the members of the executive committee. Thus, it can not be said that these were forged.

28. It is reiterated that prosecution has failed to prove that Vijay being secretary of Cooperative Agricultural Society, Khajjan being a public servant entered into criminal conspiracy with co-accused Kishan Chand and Pancham Chand by forging false pronotes and after that used such forged pronotes to be genuine documents for the purpose of cheating. Prosecution has thus failed to prove case against the accused Vijay under Sections 120-B, 408, 420, 467, 468, 471 and 201 IPC and Sections 13(1)(c) punishable under Section 13(2) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 and against co-accused under Sections 120-B, 408, 420, 467, 468, 471 and 201 IPC.

29. Moreover, the view taken by the learned trial Court can not be said to be perverse. There is no occasion for this Court to interfere with the well reasoned judgment of the learned trial Court.

30. Accordingly, there is no merit in the present appeal and the same is dismissed, so also the pending applications, if any. Bail bonds of accused are discharged.

(Para-12 and 13)

For the Appellant : Mr. Suneel Awasthi, Advocate.
For the Respondents : Mr. Hamender Chandel, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Rajiv Sharma, Judge

This Regular Second Appeal has been instituted against judgment and decree dated 1.3.2008 rendered by the learned District Judge, Shimla in Civil Appeal no. 62-S/13 of 2007.

2. "Key facts" necessary for the adjudication of the present appeal are that appellant-plaintiff (hereinafter referred to as 'plaintiff' for convenience sake) filed a suit for recovery of Rs.3,32,417/-, against the respondents-defendants (hereinafter referred to as 'defendants' for convenience sake). Case of the plaintiff is that the defendants issued an auction notice for the car parking-cum-commercial complex on Cart Road, near High Court of HP, Shimla to be held on 9.12.2002, at 11 AM and as per the terms and conditions, bidder was required to pay 20% of the bid amount at the fall of hammer and earnest money of the successful bidder was to be adjusted against the 20% amount and balance was to be paid within 7 days from the issuance of allotment letter or with the interest @ 15% per annum within next 30 days. It is further averred that the defendants constructed three parking floors in the aforesaid building i.e. top floor on the main road (Circular Road) and two floors below the same. According to the plaintiff, he had been assured that at least 80-100 vehicles could be accommodated in the parking lot in the fourth floor and therefore, plaintiff was induced to make a bid for Rs.13.50 Lakh. Parking, for which, plaintiff had made bid was in the fourth floor and two floors above said fourth floor were having greater capacity to accommodate vehicles which were easily accessible from Circular road but this facility was not available for the fourth floor and access to fourth floor was not easy. He was assured that access would be taken care of and before area is handed over for commercial use, same would be made easily accessible and approachable. It is further averred that approach to fourth floor was by taking U turn on circular road which was quite impossible due to congestion on the road. However, despite all these disadvantages, plaintiff made aforesaid bid but subsequently came to know that fifth floor had a greater area and better access which was auctioned only for Rs.9.50 Lakh. Not only this, fourth floor parking area could accommodate only 40 vehicles and even if said parking area was fully occupied throughout the year, it was not possible to recover the bid amount. Area available for parking was only 920 square metres. Plaintiff was asked to deposit Rs.2,71,000/- However, possession of the parking lot i.e. fourth floor was never given to the plaintiff despite assurances and rather the defendants remained in possession throughout of the said parking area. It is further averred that various representations were made for delivering the possession but in vain. On 13.12.2002, defendants were apprised that the area is being used by them during peak season and parking has not been completed and construction material was lying there. Plaintiff issued a notice on 13.12.2002 to the defendants requesting to reduce the bid money. Vide letters dated 26.12.2002, plaintiff was apprised that bid money can not be reduced and in case he failed to sign papers, earnest money would be forfeited. He was informed vide letter dated 10.9.2003, that as per conditions No. 2 and 14, 20% of the amount i.e. Rs.2,71,000/- has been forfeited. According to the plaintiff, amount of Rs.2,71,000/- was wrongly forfeited since possession was never delivered.

3. Suit was contested by the defendants. Defendants admitted auction notice dated 9.12.2002. Plaintiff was apprised that in the event of highest bidder, failing to deposit the balance amount within 30 days, the bid shall be cancelled and 20% of the bid amount deposited would be forfeited and that the period of payment of the balance amount was not seven days but was four weeks. It is denied that the plaintiff had been assured about particular number of vehicles to be accommodated in the parking lot claiming that plaintiff after visiting the spot had seen space and only thereafter had offered highest bid of Rs.13.55 Lakh and not Rs.13.50 Lakh for the fourth floor. It was averred that fourth floor was accessible from main road like 5th and 6th floor. It was averred that the plaintiff had inspected the area of 5th and 6th floors and only then had offered bid for 4th floor. Plaintiff was informed vide letter dated 10.9.2003 that an amount of Rs.2,71,000/- has been forfeited as per terms and conditions of the auction notice as he had failed to take possession of car parking and sign the papers. It is further averred that all the representations were replied by them.

4. Replication was filed by the plaintiff. Issues were framed by the learned Civil Judge (Senior Division) on 28.7.2007. He decreed the suit on 31.8.2007. Defendants filed an appeal. Appeal was allowed on 1.3.2008 by the learned District Judge, Shimla. Hence, this Regular Second Appeal.

5. The Regular Second Appeal was admitted on 16.6.2008, on the following substantial question of law:

> "whether the learned Appellate Court has totally misread and misconstrued the documents Exts. PW-1/A & PW-1/D?."

6. Mr. Suneel Awasthi, Advocate has supported the judgment and decree dated 31.8.2007 passed by the learned Civil Judge (Senior Division). On the other hand, Mr. Hamender Chandel, Advocate, has supported the judgment and decree dated 1.3.2008 passed by the learned District Judge, Shimla.

7. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and also gone through the record carefully.

8. Plaintiff has appeared as PW-1. According to him, auction was held on 9.12.2002 for the car parking on fourth floor. He had deposited Rs.2.00 lakh before the auction vide Ext. PW-1/B. He had been made to understand that 100 vehicles could be accommodated in each floor. He had made bid for Rs.13.50 Lakh as per Ext. PW-1/A. Fifth and sixth floors had been auctioned for Rs.9.50 Lakh. Approach to the parking lot was not easy. He visited the office of Municipal Corporation, Shimla for possession. However, no officer was present on 1.1.2003. He has made representations to the defendants. In his cross-examination, he has admitted that he has carefully gone through the terms and conditions of the auction notice. He denied the suggestion that the work of the fourth floor was complete. He has admitted that he was asked vide Ext. PW-1/D to execute the lease deed.

9. PW-2 Sukh Ram testified that the defendants assured that the possession would be delivered on 1.1.2003, though the possession was not delivered. Construction material was lying on the spot. he has accompanied the plaintiff on 1.1.2003 to take possession of parking lot. None of the officials of Municipal Corporation, Shimla was present.

10. DW-1 Jagdish Chand testified that the plaintiff has made highest bid of Rs.13.55 Lakh for the parking lot in fourth floor. He has signed the bid-sheet. Plaintiff and others had seen the spot and only thereafter they had participated in the auction. Plaintiff had deposited Rs.2.00 lakh as earnest money vide receipts Exts. PW-1/B and PW-1/C. Plaintiff was asked to take possession vide Ext. PW-1/D. He has also deposed that terms and conditions were read over and plaintiff has failed to deposit the balance amount within 30 days.

11. Plaintiff has also issued notice Ext. PW-1/A to the defendants to consider his claim to reduce the bid money. It is not in dispute that the plaintiff made the highest bid of Rs.13.50 Lakh. He has deposited Rs. 2,71,000/- as per Ext. PW-1/S. It is also admitted case that the plaintiff has not deposited the balance amount, though made several representations to the defendants. Plaintiff has admitted that he has gone through the terms and conditions of tender notice. DW-1 Jagdish Chand has deposed that the parties have been apprised of the terms and conditions.

12. Mr. Suneel Awasthi, Advocate, has relied upon the statement made by DW-1 Jagdish Chand that there was no condition that 20% of the total bid amount will be forfeited. It is evident from a plain reading of clause 2 of the Notice Inviting Tender that the bidder was required to deposit 20% of the bid amount at the fall of hammer. Earnest money by the successful bidder was to be adjusted against 20% of the balance amount to be paid within seven days from the issuance of allotment or within 30 days with interest @ 15% per annum. Parties were put to notice that in case bidder fails to deposit the amount within 30 days, with interest, bid shall be cancelled and 20% of the total bid amount will be forfeited. Plaintiff has made bid of Rs.13.50 Lakh but has failed to deposit the amount within 30 days with interest and thus bid was liable to be cancelled and 20% of the bid amount was to be forfeited. All the terms and conditions are to be read harmoniously. Statement of DW-1 could not be dehors the terms and conditions of the Notice Inviting Tender. Learned District Judge has correctly appreciated the oral and documentary evidence. The substantial question of law is answered accordingly.

13. Thus there is no illegality or perversity in the judgment and decree passed by the District Judge below where a sum of Rs.2,71,000/- has been forfeited strictly as per clause 2.

14. Accordingly, in view of the discussion and analysis made hereinabove, there is no merit in the appeal and the same is dismissed. Pending application(s), if any, also stand disposed of. No costs.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Ajay Mohan Goel, Judge.

This appeal has been filed by the appellants-plaintiffs against the judgment and decree passed by the Court of learned District Judge, Sirmaur District at Nahan, in Civil Appeal No. 59/1 of 2002 dated 03.01.2005, vide which, learned Appellate Court, while upholding the judgment and decree passed by the Court of learned Civil Judge (Jr. Divn.) Rajgarh, Camp at Sarahan, District Sirmour, in Civil Suit No. 59 of 2002 dated 19.12.2003, dismissed the appeal so filed against the same.

2. This appeal was admitted on 04.08.2006 on the following substantial question of law:

"Whether the two Courts below have not appreciated the evidence, particularly the entries in the copies of the Jamabandis, while dealing with the plea of the plaintiffs that there had been their Abadi on the suit land for more than thirty years and thus they had acquired titled by prescription?"

3. On 05.08.2016, on an application filed by the appellants, it was agreed that the appeal shall also be heard on following substantial questions of law:

"Whether the findings of the court below are perverse, based on misreading of oral and documentary evidence and particularly the pleadings of the parties and the document of PW-2/A?

Whether in view of the fact that ejectment proceedings were only against Beni Prashad?

Whether the oral sale was permissible when TPA was not applicable to the H.P. and it only applied after 1970 and the courts have rightly held that the property earlier in the name of His Highness Sirmaur and findings contrary to that there was oral sale, was not permissible was sustainable in the eyes of law?"

4. Brief facts necessary for the adjudication of this case are that the appellants-plaintiffs (hereinafter referred to as 'plaintiffs') filed a suit for declaration and injunction on the ground that the suit land in issue was earlier recorded in Jamabandi Misal Haquiat 1987-88 Samvat i.e. Christen era 1931-32 in the ownership of Sarkar Daulatmadar i.e. His Highness, Sirmaur and possession of Mahkma District Board. His Highness, Sirmaur, invited people from different places for the purpose of developing Sarahan village as town and in this process, Jadon alongwith others, came to Sarahan and approached His Highness to purchase the suit land from His Highness. According to the plaintiffs, His Highness sold the suit land in favour of Jadon by way of an oral sale and Jadon constructed a building on the said land i.e. Khasra No. 326 min. After the death of Jadon, he was succeeded by his representatives (sons) Banarsi Dass, Munna Lal and Ram Swarup. Banarsi Dass died issueless and Munna Lal and Ram Swarup succeeded him. After the death of Munna Lal, he was succeeded by his widow Smt. Krishna and after the death of Ram Swarup, he was succeeded by his widow Shakuntla Devi, sons Surender Prakash, Prem Chand and daughters Prem Lata, Raj Rani and Shyam Lal. Further as per the plaintiffs, the successors became absolute owners in possession of Khasra No. 326 min. on which building was constructed before settlement. Further as per the plaintiffs, by way of a private partition, abovementioned persons separated their shares and became absolute owners in possession of Khasra No. 326 min. old and 1005 new, situated in village Sarahan Kalan, Tehsil Pachhad, District Sirmaur, H.P. Thereafter, vide sale deed No. 88, dated 14.8.1978, Shakuntla and others sold the land alongwith building in favour of Manmohan s/o Beni Prashad for a sale consideration of Rs. 35,00/- which sale deed was duly registered by Sub Registrar, Pachhad. On the basis of this sale deed, Manmohan became absolute owner in possession of Khasra No. 326 min old and 1005 new, measuring 57.25 sq. meter. After the death of Manmohan, plaintiffs No. 1 to 3 being sons and widow of Manmohan, succeeded him. It was further the case of the plaintiffs that Manmohan Garg had constructed a double storeyed building on the suit land and when the land in issue was purchased by him he had also purchased alongwith the land two rooms, one kitchen, courtyard and a latrine. It was further the case of the plaintiffs that there was an adjoining house of Sumer Chand, son of Pyare Lal which was purchased by plaintiff No. 4 vide sale deed dated 16.7.1948. According to plaintiffs, entries in Jamabandi showing the State of Himachal Pradesh as owner of the suit land were illegal, inoperative void and were not binding on the rights of the Plaintiffs No. 1 to 3. According to the plaintiffs, Beni Prashad and Manmohan Garg were owners in possession of different parcels of land but in the recent settlement, the lands owned and possessed by them separately, were shown as joint, which was illegal and wrong. Further as per the plaintiffs, is it was proved by the defendant that the plaintiffs were not owners in possession of the suit land then the plaintiffs had become owner in possession of suit land by virtue of adverse possession. On these bases, it was prayed that they had become owners in possession of the suit land and defendants had no right, title or interest on the suit land. On these pleadings, the plaintiffs have prayed for the following reliefs:

> "a) That the plaintiffs No. 1 to 3 are owners in possession of the land comprised in Khara Khatauni No. 201 Min/448 min Khasra No. 326 old and 1005 new by way of sale deed situated in village Sarahan Kalan, Tehsil Pachhad, District Sirmour, H.P.
> b) That in the alternative the plaintiffs No. 1 to 3 are owner in possession of the land comprised in Khata Khatauni No. 201 min/488 min Khasra No. 326 old and 1005 new vide recent settlement situated in village Sarahan Kalan Tehsil Pachhad, District Sirmour, H.P. by way of adverse possession.
>
> c) That the entries in revenue papers showing the defendant as owner in possession of the land comprised in Khata Khatauni No. 201 min/488 min Khasra No. 326 old and 1005 bnew situated in village Sarahan Kalan, Tehsil Pachhad, District Sirmaur, H.P. is illegal, inoperative and void and is not binding on the rights of the plaintiffs.
>
> d) That the order passed by the settlement Collector Shimla in the case titled as state V/S Beni Prashad passed on 6.4.2002 is illegal, void, inoperative and is not binding on the rights of the plaintiffs.
> e) That the decree permanent injunction restraining the defendants from dispossessing of the plaintiffs in the land comprising situated in village Sarahan Kalan Tehsil Pachhad, Distt. Sirmour, H.P. through himself through his agent servant or assignee or through any manner what so ever may kindly be passed in favour of the plaintiffs and against the defendants with cost of suit."

5. In the written statement, which was filed on behalf of State, it was averred that the plaintiffs had come up with a false story just to grab the government land which they had encroached during settlement and from which they had been ordered to be legally ejected. According to the defendant-State, Khasra No. 326 was recorded to be owned by Sarkar Daulatmandar and it continued to be as such and there was no entry in the revenue record regarding sale to Jadon and had there been any such sale, same would have been reported to the revenue authorities and entries should have been incorporated in the revenue record. As such, as per State, Jadon was not owner of the suit land and there was no question of inheritance or possession of suit land by his legal representatives. It was also averred that during recent settlement, plaintiff No. 4, Beni Prashad was found in unauthorized possession of Khasra No. 326 min old measuring 71 sq. meters which had been given new Khasra No. 1000 and accordingly ejectment proceedings had been initiated against plaintiff No. 4. Remaining averments made in the plaint were also denied and it was reiterated that the suit land was owned by State of Himachal Pradesh and whereas earlier it was in the ownership of Sakar Daulatmandar and in the possession of Mahkma District Board, later on as per Jamabandi for the year 1960-61, suit land was in possession of Territorial Council, Himachal Pradesh and same was recorded as 'gair mumkin abadi uftada'. It was further stated in the written statement that during recent settlement, plaintiff No. 4 was found in unauthorized possession of the suit land and plaintiff had come up with a false story just to grab the government land. It was further mentioned in the written statement that when encroachment made by Beni Prashad was found during recent settlement, same was reported to the authorities and after giving him due opportunity of hearing, Settlement Officer had passed valid and legal order thereupon which was binding on the plaintiffs, which had attained finality. On these grounds, claim of the plaintiffs was denied by the defendants.

6. On the basis of pleadings of the parties, learned trial Court framed the following issues:-

"1. Whether the suit land was earlier in the ownership of Sarkar Daulatmandar i.e. His Highness Sirmaur and possession of Mehkma Distt. Board, as alleged? OPP.

2. Whether Sh. Jadon the predecessor-in-interest of the plaintiff had purchased the suit land through oral sale from His Highness Sirmaur, as alleged, if so its effect? OPP.

3. Whether Smt. Shakuntla etc sold the land alongwith building in favour of Manmohan S/o Sh. Beni Prashad by registered sale deed, as alleged? OPP.

4. Whether the plaintiffs are entitled to the alternative of adverse possession, as alleged? OPP.

5. Whether the revenue entry in favour of defendant as owner in possession of suit land is illegal, as alleged? OPP

6. Whether order passed by Settlement Collector Shimla Dt. 6.4.02 is illegal, void and without jurisdiction, as alleged? OPP

7. Whether the plaintiffs are entitled to the relief of permanent injunction, as alleged? OPD.

8. Whether the suit is not maintainable? OPD.

9. Whether this court has no jurisdiction to try the present suit, as alleged? OPD.

10. Whether the plaintiffs are estopped to file the present suit by their own act and conduct, as alleged? OPD.

11. Whether the suit is bad for want of notice u/s 80 CPC, as alleged? OPD.

12. Relief."

7. On the basis of evidence produced on record by the parties, the following findings were returned by the learned trial Court on the issues so framed:-

"Issue No.1 : Yes.
Issue No. 2 : No.
Issue No. 3 : No.
Issue No.4 : No.
Issue No.5 : No.
Issue No.6 : No.
Issue No. 7 : Yes.
Issue No. 8 : No.
Issue No. 9 : No.
Issue No. 10 :No.

Issue No. 11 :No.

Relief :Suit partly decreed as per operative part of the judgment."

8. Accordingly, the suit filed by the plaintiffs was partly decreed by learned trial Court by passing a decree for permanent injunction in favour of plaintiffs and against the defendant, restraining the defendant from forcibly dispossessing the plaintiffs, from suit land till they were evicted in due course of law. Rest of the suit was dismissed.

9. Feeling aggrieved by the said judgment passed by the learned trial Court, the plaintiffs filed an appeal and the learned Appellate Court, vide judgment and decree dated 03.01.2005, while upholding the judgment and decree passed by learned trial Court, dismissed the appeal so filed by the plaintiffs.

10. Mr. Rajnish K. Lal, learned counsel appearing for the appellants has argued that the judgments and decrees passed by both the learned Courts below are not sustainable in law as both the learned Courts below had erred in not appreciating that the suit land was purchased by Jadon by way of oral sale which was permissible in law, from the original owner of the land i.e. His Highness, Sirmaur and after the death of Jadon, the suit land was succeeded by Banarasi Dass, Munna Lal and Ram Swarup, from whom the property devolved upon the predecessor in interest of plaintiffs No. 1 to 3 on 14.08.1978 by way of a sale deed. Learned counsel for the appellants further submitted that it stood proved from the record that Ram Swarup was succeeded by Shakuntla, Surender Prakash, Prem Chand, Prem Lata, Raj Rani and Shyam Lata and they had sold the suit land in favour of Manmohan i.e. predecessor in interest of plaintiffs No. 1 to 3. It was further contended by learned counsel for the appellants that even otherwise the findings which were returned by both the learned Courts below were totally perverse as the true intent of Ext. PW2/A was not appreciated by both the learned Courts below and this aspect of the matter was not appreciated by both the learned Court below that as the ejectment proceedings had been initiated only against Beni Prashad, other plaintiffs could not be made to suffer and put to loss on account of and in the process of ejectment proceedings in which they were not even a party. He also argued that both the learned Courts below erred in not accepting the alternative plea of adverse possession as it stood proved on record that appellants had perfected their title by way of adverse possession. On these bases, it was urged by learned counsel for the appellants that judgments and decrees passed by both the learned Courts below were perverse and not sustainable in law.

11. Mr. V.S. Chauhan, learned Additional Advocate General, on the other hand, argued that there was neither any perversity not any infirmity with the findings which were returned by both the learned Courts below because plaintiffs had miserably failed to prove that any sale, oral or otherwise, took place by virtue of which, Jadon became owner of the suit land. Mr. Chauhan further argued that the findings returned by both the learned Courts below to the effect that no sale as was alleged by plaintiffs was ever proved on record and that the plaintiffs were encroachers on the suit land, were based on material produced on record. Mr. Chauhan further argued that even otherwise whether or not sale was entered into between Jadon and His Highness of Sirmaur was a question of fact which stood decided concurrently against the appellants by both the learned Courts below and the findings so returned by both the learned Courts below did not warrant any interference in the second appeal. Mr. Chauhan further argued that there was not even an iota of evidence on record to substantiate that Jadon had purchased any property from His Highness Sirmaur by way of any oral sale as was the case put forth by the plaintiffs. According to Mr. Chauhan, the edifice of the case of the plaintiffs was so called oral sale qua the suit land between Jadon and His Highness, Sirmaur and when the plaintiffs had failed to prove that any such sale took place, the findings which were returned by both the learned Courts below holding that the plaintiff were nothing but encroachers over the suit land were the correct finding. According to Mr. Chauhan, there was no mis-appreciation or misreading of any document on record including Ext. PW2/A. He further argued that contention of learned counsel for the appellants that persons not party in the ejectment proceedings could not be made to suffer on account of a proceeding which was only initiated against Beni Prashad was also without any merit because the judgment passed by learned trial Court very clearly and categorically mentioned that the plaintiffs can be evicted from the suit land only in due process of law and the said judgment, duly protected the interests of plaintiffs. Mr. Chauhan also argued that the findings returned by both the learned Courts below to the effect that plaintiffs had failed to prove that they had become the owners of the suit land by way of adverse possession also calls for no interference because plaintiffs had failed to prove that their possession of suit land was open, peaceful and hostile as to the knowledge of real owners. On these bases, it was argued by Mr. Chauhan that there was no merit in the appeal and the same be dismissed.

12. Learned Counsel for the private respondents supported the case of appellants.

13. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and I have also gone through the records of the case as well as the judgments passed by both the learned Courts below.

14. A perusal of the issues framed by learned trial Court demonstrates that there was a specific issue framed by learned trial Court whether Jadon had purchased the suit land through an oral sale from His Highness, Sirmaur or not. It was held by learned trial Court on the basis of evidence produced on record that there was nothing on record which showed that Jadon had purchased suit land from His Highness Sirmaur. Learned trial Court held that there was no convincing evidence on record to substantiate that Banarasi Dass, Munna Lal and Ram Swarup had succeeded Jadon after his death. It was further held by the learned trial Court that the contention of the plaintiffs that in a partition proceedings between Krishna Devi and Shakuntla, suit land came to the share of Shakuntla, was also not substantiated from any material on record as no partition whatsoever was reflected in any revenue record. It was further held by the learned trial Court that Ext. PW2/A in fact reflected Shakuntla Devi, a power of attorney holder of others, having sold the suit property in favour of Manmohan Singh son of Beni Prashad. This sale deed was shown to be executed on 14.08.1978 and registered on the same date. Learned trial Court held that a perusal of the sale deed demonstrated that there were no particulars of khasra numbers mentioned in the same qua the property which purportedly was the subject matter of sale in favour of Manmohan. It was further held by learned trial Court that it was the admitted position that said sale deed was never incorporated in any revenue record. Learned trial Court further held that seller reflected in the sale deed was in fact not recorded either in the column of ownership or in the possession of suit land and title of Shakuntla, Surinder Prakash, Prem Chand, Prem Lata, Raj Rani and Shyam Lata was nowhere recorded in the revenue record. It was further held by learned trial Court on the basis of documents on record that as far as revenue records were concerned, long standing entries appearing in the same reflected the Government of Himachal Pradesh as recorded owner of the suit land though in the latest revenue records, in the column of possession, there was entry qua illegal possession recorded as "Mukhtlif Kabjan Najayaj". Accordingly, it was concluded by learned trial Court that it could not be proved by the plaintiffs that Jadon had in fact purchased the suit land by way of an oral sale and he was succeeded by Banarasi Dass, Munna Lal and Ram Swarup etc. Learned trial Court further held that it was not established that the suit land was inherited by Shakuntla, Surender Prakash, Prem Chand, Prem Lata, Raj Rani and Shyam Lata after the death of Ram Swarup or that at the time of execution of sale deed dated 14.8.1978 by Shakuntla etc in favour of Manmohan Singh son of Sh. Beni Prashad, said Shakuntla etc. were owner in possession of the suit land. Thus, it was held by learned trial Court that title of Jado and Ram Swarup was not established on record and hence question of inheritance of title by Shakuntla thereof does not arise. It was further held by learned trial Court that Kaka Ram, Reader of Tehsildar Pachhad, who had entered the witness box as DW1 had deposed that as per record at case file No. 4/88 received on 6.4.2002, Patwari had made report of encroachment and Kanungo had also made report in this regard and notice under Section 163 of the H.P. Land Revenue Act had been issued to plaintiff No. 4. Learned trial Court further held that in the said proceedings, after the issuance of notice under Section 163 of said Act, warrant of ejectment under Section 163 of the H.P. Land Revenue Act had also been issued by the competent authority for the ejectment of plaintiff No. 4. It was further held by learned trial Court that DW1 had stated that the proceedings which had been initiated against plaintiff No. 4 under Section 163 of the H.P. Land Revenue Act were attended by Beni Prashad as well as his sons. DW2 Piar Chand, Kanungo also corroborated the case of defendant. It was further held by learned trial Court that there was no convincing ground to infer that possession of plaintiffs over the suit land ripened into ownership by way of adverse possession. On these bases, learned trial Court while rejecting the other reliefs claimed by plaintiffs, partly decreed the suit restraining the defendant from forcibly dispossessing the plaintiffs from the suit property except in due course of law.

15. Learned Appellate Court while affirming the findings so returned by learned trial Court held that the plaintiffs were not able to make out any case for interference. It was held by learned Appellate Court that the contention of the plaintiffs with regard to their title based on sale deed was not proved by them. Learned Appellate Court held that a perusal of sale deed Ext. PW2/A demonstrated that there was not even a fleeting reference as to the suit property in the so called sale deed. It was further held by learned Appellate Court that Kaka Ram, Registration Clerk, who had entered the witness box to testify Ext. DW2/A admited that there was no mention of khasra numbers in the said sale deed. Learned Appellate Court also held that Ext. PW2/A also did not reveal as to whether the house in issue was forming part of suit property which was sold by her to the plaintiffs. It was also held that revenue records categorically demonstrated that defendant was recorded as owner in possession of the suit property, however, in bandobast settlement, plaintiff No. 4 and his sons were shown in joint possession of Khasra No. 1005/1, measuring 54.25 sq. meters to the extent of half share each and plaintiff No. 4 was shown in exclusive possession of Khasra No. 1006, measuring 21.38 Sq. meters, whereas in earlier revenue records, right from samvat 2001-02 till 1968-69, defendant was recorded in possession of the suit land. It was further held that it was for the first time, the entry in the column of possession of suit property comprised in Khasra No. 1005 was "Mukhtlif Kabjan Najayaj", which entry continued up to settlement. Learned Appellate Court also held that there was no document of sale pertaining to the purchase of house from Sumer Chand by plaintiff No. 4 nor there was any mutation etc. recorded in this regard. Learned Appellate Court also held that plaintiff No. 4 had not stepped into witness box in support of contention of purchase of said property from Sumer Chand. On these bases, it was held by the learned Appellate Court that the findings to the effect that plaintiffs had not been able to make out a case for ownership and possession of the suit property could not be faulted with. Learned Appellate Court has upheld the findings of the learned trial Court to the effect that plaintiffs could not demonstrate that they had perfected their title on the suit property by way of adverse possession. It was held by learned Appellate Court that plaintiffs were claiming their title on the basis of sale deed which though could not be proved and it was enjoined upon them to show as to since when they started proclaiming their adverse or hostile title or since when they had animus to possess suit property adversely in denial of the title of the true owner i.e. defendant-State. On these bases, the appeal so filed by the plaintiffs was dismissed by learned Appellate Court.

16. In my considered view, the findings, which had been returned by both the learned Courts below holding that there was no material on record from which it can be inferred that the suit property was ever purchased by Jadon from His Highness of Sirmaur, by way of oral sale, are correct findings. Case to the effect that Jadon had become owner of the suit property by way of an oral sale was put forth and propounded by the plaintiffs and obviously the onus to prove the same was on the plaintiffs. In fact, the entire edifice of the case of the plaintiffs was this oral sale of the suit land by His Highness Sirmaur in favour of Jadon. However, as has been rightly held by both the learned Courts below, plaintiffs miserably failed to prove that any oral sale was entered into between Jadon and his Highness, Sirmaur, as was the case put forth by plaintiffs. There is no revenue entry to this effect that Jadon had become owner of the suit property by virtue of oral sale entered into by him with His Highness, Sirmaur. In this view of the matter, the subsequent findings returned by both the learned Courts below to the effect that the plaintiffs could not prove on record that the suit property was subsequently inherited by the successor in interest of Jadon and from one of such successor in interest, the same was legally purchased by late Shri Manmohan, the predecessor in interest of plaintiffs cannot be faulted with. During the course of arguments, learned counsel for the appellant could not point out as to what was the material on record produced by the plaintiffs from which it could be inferred that the findings returned by both the learned Courts below to this effect were either perverse or erroneous. Learned counsel appearing for the appellants could not draw the attention of this Court to any of the documents on record from which it could be inferred that the persons from whom the suit property was purchased vide sale deed dated 14.8.1978 by Shri Manmohan, were owners in possession of the suit property and had any valid title over the same. In this view of the matter, it is reiterated that the findings returned by the learned Courts below that the plaintiffs had miserably failed to prove on record that the suit property was purchased by Jadon by way of an oral sale from His Highness and subsequently the same was inherited by his successors in interest are correct findings. Similarly, the findings returned by both the learned Court below to the effect that plaintiffs could not prove on record that they had perfected their title on the suit property by way of adverse possession also cannot be faulted with.

17. The theory of adverse possession is that an adverse possession allows a trespasser, a person guilty of tort or even crime in the eyes of law to gain legally title of land, which he has illegally possessed for 12 years or 30 years in the case of Government land.

18. Incidentally, the appellants before this Court were the plaintiffs who had filed a suit for seeking declaration to the effect that they be declared owner in possession of the suit property as they had perfected the said title by way of adverse possession. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Gurdwara Sahib Vs. Gram Panchayat Village Sirthala and another, (2014) 1 Supreme Court Cases 669 has held as under:-

> "There cannot be any quarrel to this extent that the judgments of the courts below are correct and without any blemish. Even if the plaintiff is found to be in adverse possession, it cannot seek a declaration to the effect that such adverse possession has matured into ownership. Only if proceedings are filed against the appellant and the appellant is arrayed as defendant that it can use this adverse possession as a shield/defence."

19. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Chatti Konati Rao and others Vs. Palle Venkata Subba Rao, (2010) 14 Supreme Court Cases 316, has held:-

> "12. ..... What is adverse possession, on whom the burden of proof lie, the approach of the court towards such plea etc. have been the subject matter of decision in a large number of cases. In the case of T. Anjanappa v. Somalingappa, it has been held that mere possession however long does not necessarily mean that it is adverse to the true owner and the classical requirement of acquisition of title by adverse possession is that such possessions are in denial of the true owner's title. Relevant passage of the aforesaid judgment reads as follows: (SCC p. 577, para 20)
> "20. It is well-recognized proposition in law that mere possession however long does not necessarily mean that it is adverse to the true owner. Adverse possession really means the hostile possession which is expressly or impliedly in denial of title of the true owner and in order to constitute adverse possession the possession proved must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent so as to show that it is adverse to the true owner. The classical requirements of acquisition of title by adverse possession are that such possession in denial of the true owner's title must be peaceful, open and continuous. The possession must be open and hostile enough to be capable of being known by the parties interested in the property, though it is not necessary that there should be evidence of the adverse possessor actually informing the real owner of the former's hostile action."
> 13. What facts are required to prove adverse possession have succinctly been enunciated by this Court in the case of Karnataka Board of Wakf vs. Government of India and Ors. It has also been observed that a person pleading adverse possession has no equities in his favour and since such a person is trying to defeat the rights of the true owner, it is for him to clearly plead and establish necessary facts to establish his adverse possession. SCC para 11 of the judgment which is relevant for the purpose reads as follows : (SCC p. 785)

"11. In the eye of the law, an owner would be deemed to be in possession of a property so long as there is no intrusion. Non-use of the property by the owner even for a long time won't affect his title. But the position will be altered when another person takes possession of the property and asserts a right over it. Adverse possession is a hostile possession by clearly asserting hostile title in denial of the title of the true owner. It is a well-settled principle that a party claiming adverse possession must prove that his possession is "nec vi, nec clam, nec precario", that is, peaceful, open and continuous. The possession must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent to show that their possession is adverse to the true owner. It must start with a wrongful disposition of the rightful owner and be actual, visible, exclusive, hostile and continued over the statutory period. (See S.M. Karim v. Bibi Sakina, Parsinni v. Sukhi and D.N. Venkatarayappa v. State of Karnataka. Physical fact of exclusive possession and the animus possidendi to hold as owner in exclusion to the actual owner are the most important factors that are to be accounted in cases of this nature. Plea of adverse possession is not a pure question of law but a blended one of fact and law. Therefore, a person who claims adverse possession should show: (a) on what date he came into possession, (b) what was the nature of his possession, (c) whether the factum of possession was known to the other party, (d) how long his possession has continued, and (e) his possession was open and undisturbed. A person pleading adverse possession has no equities in his favour. Since he is trying to defeat the rights of the true owner, it is for him to clearly plead and establish all facts necessary to establish his adverse possession. (Mahesh Chand Sharma (Dr.) v. Raj Kumari Sharma.)"

14. In view of the several authorities of this Court, few whereof have been referred above, what can safely be said that mere possession however long does not necessarily mean that it is adverse to the true owner. It means hostile possession which is expressly or impliedly in denial of the title of the true owner and in order to constitute adverse possession the possession must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent so as to show that it is adverse to the true owner. The possession must be open and hostile enough so that it is known by the parties interested in the property. The plaintiff is bound to prove his title as also possession within 12 years and once the plaintiff proves his title, the burden shifts on the defendant to establish that he has perfected his title by adverse possession. Claim by adverse possession has two basic elements i.e. the possession of the defendant should be adverse to the plaintiff and the defendant must continue to remain in possession for a period of 12 years thereafter.

15. Animus possidendi as is well known a requisite ingredient of adverse possession. Mere possession does not ripen into possessory title until possessor holds property adverse to the title of the true owner for the said purpose. The person who claims adverse possession is required to establish the date on which he came in possession, nature of possession, the factum of possession, knowledge to the true owner, duration of possession and possession was open and undisturbed. A person pleading adverse possession has no equities in his favour as he is trying to defeat the rights of the true owner and, hence, it is for him to clearly plead and establish all facts necessary to establish adverse possession. The courts always take unkind view towards statutes of limitation overriding property rights. Plea of adverse possession is not a pure question of law but a blended one of fact and law."

20. Accordingly, applying these principles to the facts of the present case, I am of the considered view that appellants have miserably failed to demonstrate that they were either in possession of the suit land for more than required number of years as alleged and that their alleged possession was open, peaceful and hostile as against the true owner.

21. From the material on record it cannot be said that both the learned Courts below have misread or mis-appreciated the evidence produced on record including the jamabandis and other revenue records nor it can be said that the findings recorded by both the learned Courts below were perverse or were a result of misreading of documentary evidence produced on record including Ext. PW2/A. It is pertinent to take note of the fact that it is not as if both the learned Courts below held that though plaintiffs were able to prove that Jadon had purchased the suit land by way of an oral sale, however, oral sale was not permissible in law. The clear and categorical findings returned by both the learned Courts below are to the effect that the plaintiffs had failed to prove that any sale transaction took place between Jadon and His Highness, Sirmaur either oral or otherwise. The contention of the learned counsel appearing for the appellants that both the learned Courts below have failed to appreciate that in the proceedings which had been initiated under Section 163 of the H.P. Land Revenue Act against plaintiff No. 4, all the plaintiffs could not be harassed is also misconceived because learned trial Court itself has given protection to the plaintiffs to the effect that they shall not be dispossessed from the suit land forcibly except in due process of law.

22. Therefore, in view of the above discussion, there is no merit in the present appeal. The substantial questions of law are answered accordingly.

The appeal is dismissed with costs, so also pending miscellaneous application(s), if any.

For petitioner : Mr. Sunil Chaudhary, Advocate
For non-petitioner : Mr. M. L. Chauhan, Addl. A. G. with Mr. R. K. Sharma, Dy. A.G.

The following order of the Court was delivered:

P.S. Rana, Judge.

Present petition is filed under Section 439 Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 for grant of bail in FIR No.162/2015 dated 26.09.2015 registered under Sections 498-A, 306 read with Section 34 IPC in Police Station Barmana Distt. Bilaspur (H. P.).

Brief facts of the case:

2. It is alleged that deceased Nahid aged 26 years was married with co-accused Ishan Khan in the month of February 2015. It is further alleged that deceased Nahid was posted in Animal Husbandry department Devli. It is alleged that on 26.09.2015 deceased Nahid aged 26 years telephoned her brother that accused persons committed cruelty upon deceased in her matrimonial house and abeted the deceased to commit suicide. It is alleged that deceased also written suicide note. It is alleged that deceased Nahid jumped from the bridge on 26.09.2015 and committed suicide at Slappar bridge and her dead body was recovered on 05.10.2015. On the basis of FIR investigation was conducted and charge sheet was filed against accused persons under Sections 498-A, 306 read with Section 34 IPC. Accused persons are facing trial which is under process before learned Trial Court as of today and listed for prosecution evidence.

3. Response filed on behalf of State of Himachal Pradesh. Court heard learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner and learned Deputy Advocate General appearing on behalf of non-petitioner and Court also perused the entire record carefully.

4. Following points arise for determination:

(1) Whether bail application filed by petitioner is liable to be accepted as mentioned in memorandum of grounds of bail application?

(2) Final Order.

Findings upon Point No.1 with reasons.

5. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that female co-accused have been released on bail and on the concept of parity co-accused Anil Khan be also released on bail is rejected being devoid of any force for reasons hereinafter mentioned. It is well settled law that there is special provision for bail relating to minor accused under age of 16 years, woman accused, sick or infirm accused as per proviso of clause of Section 437 Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 relating to non-bailable criminal offences punishable with death or imprisonment for life. Female co-accused were released on bail as per special provision of bail relating to female co-accused. It was held in case reported in AIR 1957 Rajasthan page 10 title Mt. Choti vs. State that special treatment of women and children in bail matter is not inconsistent with Article 15 of Constitution of India. Hence it is held that in view of above stated facts concept of parity will not apply to male accused namely Anil Khan in the present case.

6. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that petitioner is innocent and petitioner did not commit any criminal offence as alleged by the prosecution and on this ground bail application be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for reasons hereinafter mentioned. Fact whether petitioner committed criminal offence or not is complicated issue of facts. Same will be decided by learned Trial Court after giving due opportunity to prosecution and accused to lead evidence in support of their case. It is not expedient in the ends of justice to give judicial findings relating to innocence of petitioner at this stage of the case unless opportunity is granted to prosecution and accused to lead evidence in support of their case. Judicial findings relating to absence of mens rea on the part of petitioner or actus reus cannot be given at this stage of the case being complicated questions of facts. Judicial findings relating to absence of mens rea or actus reus will be given by learned Trial Court after giving due opportunity to both parties to lead evidence in support of their case.

7. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that any condition imposed by the Court will be binding upon petitioner and on this ground bail application be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for reasons hereinafter mentioned. Allegations against the petitioner are very heinous and grave in nature relating to criminal offence punishable under Section 306 IPC. At the time of granting bail following factors should be considered: (1) Nature and seriousness of offence. (2) Character of evidence. (3) Circumstances peculiar to the accused. (4) Reasonable possibility of presence of accused in trial or investigation. (5) Reasonable apprehension of witnesses being tampered with. (6) Larger interest of the public or State. See AIR 1978 SC 179 title Gurcharan Singh and others Vs. State (Delhi Administration. Also see AIR 1962 SC 253 title The State Vs. Captain Jagjit Singh. Also see 2010 (14) SCC 496 title Prasanta Kumar Sarkar Vs. Ashish Chatterjee and another.

8. Submission of learned Additional Advocate General appearing on behalf of State that trial is under process before competent Court of law and criminal case has been listed for prosecution evidence and if petitioner is released on bail at this stage then petitioner will threat or induce the prosecution witnesses is accepted for reasons hereinafter mentioned. There is apprehension in the mind of the Court that if petitioner is released on bail at this stage then petitioner would induce or threat the prosecution witnesses. Court is of the opinion that in view of gravity of offence and in the interest of general public and State it is not expedient in the ends of justice to release the petitioner on bail at this stage of the case. Point No.1 is answered in negative.

Point No.2 (Final order).

9. In view of my findings on point No.1 above bail application filed by petitioner under Section 439 Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 is dismissed. Observations will not effect merits of case in any manner and will be strictly confined for disposal of bail application. However learned Trial Court will dispose of case expeditiously because male accused persons are in judicial custody. Cr.MP(M) No.899/2016 is disposed of. Pending application if any also disposed of.

(Para-18)

For the Appellants : Mr. Surinder Saklani, Advocate.
For the Respondent : Mr. Umesh Kanwar, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Rajiv Sharma, Judge

This Regular Second Appeal has been instituted against judgment and decree dated 7.5.2015 rendered by the learned Additional District Judge, Ghumarwin, District Bilaspur, Himachal Pradesh in Civil Appeal No. 80/13 of 2014.

2. "Key facts" necessary for the adjudication of the present appeal are that appellants-plaintiffs (hereinafter referred to as 'plaintiffs' for convenience sake) filed a suit for declaration and for permanent prohibitory injunction against the respondent-defendant (hereinafter referred to as 'defendant' for convenience sake). According to the averments made in the plaint, plaintiffs were owners-in-possession to the extent of 5/6 shares measuring 9-19 Bigha compromised in Khasra Nos. 113, 187, 191, 206, 229 Kita -5 Khata/Khatauni No. 25/31 situate in village Talwara, Pargna Tiun, Tehsil Ghumarwin, District Bilaspur, on the basis of natural succession after the death of Shankar being class-1 legal heirs. Declaration was sought to the effect that mutation No. 529 dated 16.3.1985 regarding the estate of deceased Shankar attested in favour of deceased husband of defendant on the basis of some illegal document and subsequent revenue entries on the basis of said mutation were wrong, illegal, null and void. Consequential relief of permanent prohibitory injunction to restrain the defendant from dispossessing the plaintiffs from the suit land, alienating, creating charge or changing the nature of the suit land was also prayed for. In the alternative, the plaintiffs had sought possession of the suit land in case they were dispossessed from suit land during the pendency of the suit. It was prayed that plaintiff No. 1 was widow and plaintiffs No.2 to 5 were the daughters of deceased Shankar. Defendant was widow of deceased Vijay Kumar, who was the brother of plaintiffs No.2 to 5 and only son of plaintiff No.1 and deceased Shankar. Shankar was owner of suit land. He had died intestate on 11.3.1984 and they being class-1 legal heirs of deceased Shankar had inherited the suit land to the extent of 5/6 shares measuring 9-19 Bigha. Husband of defendant died on 30.8.2005 and after his death defendant on 10.7.2006 had threatened to dispose off the suit land claiming that she was the only successor to the suit land after the death of her husband. Plaintiffs came to know that mutation No. 529 had been attested in favour of husband of defendant on the basis of some document dated 23.2.1984. The mutation was alleged to be illegal, wrong, null and void as no Will was ever executed by deceased Shankar.

3. Suit was contested by the defendant. She pleaded that after the death of her husband Vijay Kumar, she and plaintiff No.1 were co-owners in joint possession of the suit land to the extent of half share each because Vijay Kumar was the sole owner in possession of the suit land on the basis of Will duly executed in his favour by Late Shankar on 23.2.1984.

4. Plaintiffs filed replication. Issues were framed by the learned Civil Judge (Junior Division) on 22.7.2010. He dismissed suit on 31.10.2014. Plaintiffs filed an appeal before the learned Additional District Judge, Ghumarwin. He dismissed the appeal on 7.5.2015. Hence, this Regular Second Appeal.

5. The present Regular Second Appeal was admitted on 28.6.2016, on the following substantial questions of law:

> "1. Whether the impugned mutation No. 529 dated 16.3.85 qua estate of Shankar Dass is apparently wrong and illegal, attested purportedly on the basis of will, where as there is no Will supporting the mutation hence, judgments & decrees passed by both the learned Courts below stand vitiated?
> 2. Whether in the absence of any legal document conveying the title to one and all natural heirs are entitled for succession to the estate of their father contrary findings returned by both the courts below stands vitiated?

3. Whether without the production and proof of the alleged Will, inference of exclusion of natural heirs is untenable?"

6. Mr. Surinder Saklani, Advocate, on the basis of substantial questions of law framed has vehemently argued that mutation No. 529 dated 16.3.85 was illegal. Defendant neither produced nor proved Will dated 23.2.1984, on the basis of which Mutation No. 529 dated 16.3.1984 was attested.

7. Mr. Umesh Kanwar, Advocate, has supported the judgments and decrees passed by the learned Courts below.

8. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and also gone through the record carefully.

9. Since all the substantial questions of law are interconnected and interlinked, the same are taken together for determination to avoid repetition of discussion of evidence.

10. Plaintiff has appeared as PW-1. She has led her evidence by filing affidavit Ext. PW-1/A. She has proved copy of Jamabandi Ext. PW-1/B, copy of mutation Ext. PW-1/C and death certificate of Vijay Kumar Ext. PW-1/D. In her cross-examination, she deposed that Vijay Kumar died seven years ago. She feigned ignorance that after the death of her husband, mutation of his property was entered in favour of Vijay Kumar on 16.3.1985. She was not aware about the Will executed by her husband in favour of her son Vijay Kumar on 23.2.1984. She denied the suggestion that she was called to Kuthera by Tehsildar Ghumarwin regarding inheritance of property of her husband. She admitted that in the year 1984 Sh. Bali Ram was President of her Gram Panchayat. She expressed inability to state if no objection was raised by her daughters Satya Devi and Fullan Devi before Assistant Collector 2nd Grade, qua attestation of impugned mutation in favour of her son. She admitted that she never raised any objection regarding the inheritance of the property of her husband till the death of her son. She admitted that she filed the present suit when defendant threatened to dispose of the suit land. She denied that she had concealed the original Will.

11. PW-2 Smt. Neelam Kumari has corroborated the statement of PW-1.

12. PW-3 Brij Lal has deposed by way of affidavit Ext. PW-3/A that on 20.8.2006, the defendant came to village Talwara alongwith her relatives and expressed her intention to dispose of her share in the suit land. In his cross-examination, he deposed that Shankar was his uncle. He feigned ignorance qua the fact that mutation of the estate of Late Shankar was attested by Assistant Collector 2nd Grade at Kuthera on 6.6.1984 and during mutation proceedings, plaintiff, her daughters and her son Vijay Kumar used to appear before Assistant Collector 2nd Grade. He feigned ignorance about any Will executed by Shankar.

13. Defendant has appeared as DW-1. She has led her evidence by filing affidavit Ext. DW-1/A. She was married to Vijay Kumar in 2005. At that time, sisters of Vijay Kumar were already married. Her husband died three months after her marriage. She had seen the Will in favour of her husband. Names of her mother-in-law and her husband were mentioned in the Will. She denied the suggestion that no will was ever executed by Late Shankar in favour of her late husband.

14. Narayan Singh has appeared as DW-2. He deposed hat he was Field Kanungo of Kuthera Circle in the year 1984-85 and at that time, Lokender Singh Chauhan was Tehsildar, Ghumarwin. Mutation No. 529 regarding inheritance of Shankar was entered by Patwari Bhag Singh. Mutation was compared by him after scrutinizing the Will. He has admitted his signatures on mutation Ext. DW-2/A.

15. Longu Ram has appeared as DW-3. He deposed that he was Numberdar of Village Talwara and Late Shankar and Late Vijay were known to him. Will was produced by Vijay Kumar for mutation before Tehsildar. He admitted his signatures on the mutation.

16. DW-4 Hemraj has produced the original mutation.

17. DW-5 Sh. Lokender Singh Chauhan, has deposed that he was Naib Tehsildar Jhandutta from November 1984 to October, 1985. Mutation No. 529 regarding inheritance of Late Shankar was attested by him on the basis of an unregistered Will on 16.3.1985 (six. 16.2.1985). Will was produced by wife of deceased, Smt. Brahmi Devi, who was identified by Numberdar Sh. Longu Ram. Will was executed by Shankar in favour of his son Vijay Kumar. Will was read over to the plaintiff No.1 and at that time, daughters of Brahmi Devi (plaintiff) namely Satya and Fullan Devi were also present. He proved the certified copy of mutation (Ext. DW-2/A/Ext. PW-1/D). Mutation was attested by him at Kuthera. He has called all the legal heirs of Shankar but only Brahmi Devi (plaintiff No.1) and daughters Satya Devi and Fullan Devi appeared before him.

18. Will is dated 23.2.1984. DW-2 Narayan Singh, Field Kanungo and DW-5 Lokender Singh Chauhan specifically testified that they had seen the Will of Shankar executed in favour of Vijay Kumar. DW-2 Narayan Singh has testified that mutation No. 529 regarding inheritance of Shankar was entered by Patwari Bhag Singh. DW-5 Lokender Singh Chauhan as noticed herein above stated that he attested the mutation No. 529 on the basis of unregistered Will on 16.3.1985 (sic. 16.2.1985) executed by Shankar. Contents of Will were also read over to Brahmi Devi. Brahmi Devi and her daughters, Satya and Fullan were also present at the time of attestation of the mutation. Unregistered Will was produced on 6.6.1984 before the Assistant Collector 2nd Grade. Matter was adjourned to 2.2.1985 for hearing objections and arguments. Legal heirs of late Shankar Smt. Satya Devi and Smt. Fullan Devi appeared and gave their no objection for attestation of mutation. Thereafter, on 16.2.1985, plaintiff Brahmi Devi again appeared before Assistant Collector 2nd Grade for attestation of mutation and gave her no objection for attestation of mutation. It is in these circumstances, mutation was attested on 16.3.1985 by PW-5 Lokender Singh Chauhan. Defendant has also moved an application under Section 65 of Indian Evidence Act, to prove Will. As noticed above, DW-2 Narayan Singh and DW-5 Lokender Singh Chauhan, have stated that the Will of deceased Shankar was seen by them and mutation No. 529 was attested on 16.3.1985 on the basis of Will executed by Shankar in favour of his son. Both of them are public servants. Their testimony has rightly been accepted by the learned Courts below. Bavita Devi (defendant)never came in possession of the Will. She lost her husband three months after the marriage. Courts below have rightly come to the conclusion that the Will always remained in the custody of plaintiff No. 1 Brahmi Devi. It was not the case of the plaintiffs that the Will was the outcome of fraud or undue influence. Plaintiff No.1 has admitted in her statement that she has challenged inheritance after the death of her son.

19. The substantial questions of law are answered accordingly.

20. Accordingly, in view of the discussion and analysis made hereinabove, the present appeal is devoid of merit and the same is dismissed. Pending application(s), if any, also stand disposed of. No costs.

Hemaji Waghaji Jat vs. Bhikhabhai Khengarbhai Harijan and ors., (2009) 16 SCC 517
Tribhuvanshankar vs. Amrutlal, (2014) 2 SCC 788

For the petitioner: Mr. Sanjeev Kuthiala, Advocate.
For the respondents: Mr. Neeraj K. Sharma, Dy. AG.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Justice Rajiv Sharma, J.

This petition is instituted against the order Annexure P-4 dated 4.8.2014, rendered in case No. 58/K/2007-08 by the learned Collector-cum-Assistant Conservator of Forests, Parvati Forest Division, Distt. Kullu, H.P. and order dated 23.12.2015 rendered in case No. 279/2014 by the learned Divisional Commissioner, Mandi, H.P.

2. "Key facts" necessary for the adjudication of this petition are that the petitioner applied vide application No. 0132021 dated 22.7.2002 for regularization of encroachment made by her on Government/Forest land. The Patwari concerned visited the spot and prepared spot map dated 3.8.2002. During spot inspection the Patwari concerned noticed that the petitioner has erected a Khokha over the encroached land which was Banjar unmeasured land. Since the encroachment was found to be on the forest land, as such the application of the petitioner along with the relevant papers was forwarded to DFO Kullu. Thereafter, notice under Section 4(1) of the H.P. Public Premises and Land (Eviction and Rent Recovery) Act, 1971 was issued to the petitioner. She filed reply to the same.

3. PW-1 Dayal Singh, Halqua Patwari Sosan testified that he received the application for regularization from the petitioner. He measured the land on the spot. He prepared missal of encroachment on 3.8.2002 and submitted to Halqua Kanungo.

4. PW-2 Mohar Singh Halqua Kanungo has admitted that he has received the application form of the petitioner for regularization.

5. The petitioner has appeared as DW-1 before the Collector-cum-Assistant Conservator of Forests. She has admitted categorically that she has constructed residential house on the suit land by encroaching upon the forest land since 1971.

6. The Collector-cum-Assistant Conservator of Forests ordered the eviction of the petitioner vide order dated 4.8.2014. The petitioner filed an appeal before the learned Divisional Commissioner, Mandi bearing No. 279/2014. He dismissed the same on 23.12.2015.

7. Mr. Sanjeev Kuthiala, Advocate, has vehemently argued that the land in question was not demarcated in accordance with law. However, the fact of the matter is that identification of the land was not in issue since the petitioner has herself admitted to be encroacher and submitted an application for regularization of the encroachment made by her in Manikaran K-III, UPF Tehsil Bhuntar, Distt. Kullu, H.P. Mr. Kuthiala, Advocate has also argued that the land was Phati Abadi and not forest land. However, no tangible evidence has been led by the petitioner that it was Phati Abadi and not forest land. The petitioner has taken contradictory stand in her application submitted for regularization of the encroached land. She came in possession of the land in the year 1991. However, in the reply filed by the petitioner before the Collector-cum-Asstt. Conservator of Forests, she stated that she came into possession from the year 1971. The petitioner has miserably failed to prove the plea of adverse possession. The petitioner has failed to prove the factum of possession over the suit land hostile to that of true owner i.e. the State Government.

8. Their lordships of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Hemaji Waghaji Jat vs. Bhikhabhai Khengarbhai Harijan and ors., reported in (2009) 16 SCC 517, have held that the law of adverse possession which ousts an owner on the basis of inaction within limitation is irrational, illogical and wholly disproportionate. The law as it exists is extremely harsh for the true owner and a windfall for a dishonest person who had illegally taken possession of the property of the true owner. The law ought not to benefit a person who in a clandestine manner takes possession of the property of the owner in contravention of law. This in substance would mean that the law gives seal of approval to the illegal action or activities of a rank trespasser or who had wrongfully taken possession of the property of the true owner. The law should not place premium on dishonesty by legitimizing possession of a rank trespasser and compelling the owner to loose its possession only because of his inaction in taking back the possession within limitation. It has been held as under:

> "32. Before parting with this case, we deem it appropriate to observe that the law of adverse possession which ousts an owner on the basis of inaction within limitation is irrational, illogical and wholly disproportionate. The law as it exists is extremely harsh for the true owner and a windfall for a dishonest person who had illegally taken possession of the property of the true owner. The law ought not to benefit a person who in a clandestine manner takes possession of the property of the owner in contravention of law. This in substance would mean that the law gives seal of approval to the illegal action or activities of a rank trespasser or who had wrongfully taken possession of the property of the true owner.
> 33. We fail to comprehend why the law should place premium on dishonesty by legitimizing possession of a rank trespasser and compelling the owner to loose its possession only because of his inaction in taking back the possession within limitation."

9. Their lordships of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Tribhuvanshankar vs. Amrutlal, reported in (2014) 2 SCC 788, have held that a possession or user or permissive possession does not remotely come near the spectrum of adverse possession. Possession to be adverse has to be actual, open, notorious, exclusive and continuous for the requisite frame of time as provided in law so that the possessor perfects his title by adverse possession. Their lordships further held that the jurisdiction of Rent Controller/Court under the Rent Control Act should be limited to existence of landlord-tenant relationship. The question of plaintiffs' title based on his purchase of suit property or adverse possession thereof by defendant is beyond the scope of enquiry in eviction suit under Rent Control Act. There is difference in exercise of jurisdiction when the civil court deals with a lis relating to eviction brought before it under the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 where the equitable relief under Order 7 Rule 7 CPC could be granted and under any special enactment pertaining to eviction on specified grounds. The sine qua non for granting the relief in the suit for eviction under the Rent Control Act is that between the plaintiffs and defendant the relationship of "landlord and tenant" should exist. The scope of the enquiry before the Courts is limited. It has been held as under:

> "25. The Court posed a question whether on the facts and in the circumstances of the case the High Court was right in law holding that an equitable decree for eviction of the defendant could be passed under Order VII Rule 7 of the Civil Procedure Code and remanding the case to the first appellate court for recording its finding on the question of title of the parties to the suit premises and for passing an equitable decree for eviction against the defendant if the plaintiffs were found to have title thereto. Answering the question the learned Judges proceeded to state thus:
> > "7. It is evident that while dealing with the suit of the plaintiffs for eviction of the defendant from the suit premises under clauses (c) and (d) of sub-section (1) of Section 11 of the Act, courts including the High Court were exercising jurisdiction under the Act which is a special enactment. The sine qua non for granting the relief in the suit, under the Act, is that between the plaintiffs and the defendant the relationship of "landlord and tenant" should exist. The scope of the enquiry before the courts was limited to the question: as to whether the grounds for eviction of the defendant have been made out under the Act. The question of title of the parties to the suit premises is not relevant having regard to the width of the definition of the terms "landlord" and "tenant" in clauses (f) and (h), respectively, of Section 2 of the Act."

26. In course of deliberation, the two-Judge Bench distinguished the authorities in Firm Sriniwas Ram Kumar v. Mahabir Prasad[8] and Bhagwati Prasad (supra) by observing thus: -

"15. These are cases where the courts which tried the suits were ordinary civil courts having jurisdiction to grant alternative relief and pass decree under Order VII Rule 7. A Court of Rent Controller having limited jurisdiction to try suits on grounds specified in the special Act obviously does not have jurisdiction of the ordinary civil court and therefore cannot pass a decree for eviction of the defendant on a ground other than the one specified in the Act. If, however, the alternative relief is permissible within the ambit of the Act, the position would be different."

27. Thereafter, the learned Judges proceeded to express thus:

"16. In this case the reason for denial of the relief to the plaintiffs by the trial court and the appellate court is that the very foundation of the suit, namely, the plaintiffs are the landlords and the defendant is the tenant, has been concurrently found to be not established. In any event inquiry into title of the plaintiffs is beyond the scope of the court exercising jurisdiction under the Act. That being the position the impugned order of the High Court remanding the case to the first appellate court for recording finding on the question of title of the parties, is unwarranted and unsustainable. Further, as pointed out above, in such a case the provisions of Order VII Rule 7 are not attracted."

28. At this juncture, we may fruitfully refer to the principles stated in Dr. Ranbir Singh v. Asharfi Lal[9]. In the said case the Court was dealing with the case instituted by the landlord under Rajasthan Premises (Control of Rent and Eviction) Act, 1950 for eviction of the tenant who had disputed the title and the High Court had decided the judgment and decree of the courts below and dismissed the suit of the plaintiff seeking eviction. While adverting to the issue of title the Court ruled that in a case where a plaintiff institutes a suit for eviction of his tenant based on the relationship of the landlord and tenant, the scope of the suit is very much limited in which a question of title cannot be gone into because the suit of the plaintiff would be dismissed even if he succeeds in proving his title but fails to establish the privity of contract of tenancy. In a suit for eviction based on such relationship the Court has only to decide whether the defendant is the tenant of the plaintiff or not, though the question of title if disputed, may incidentally be gone into, in connection with the primary question for determining the main question about the relationship between the litigating parties.

29. In the said case the learned Judges referred to the authority in LIC v. India Automobiles & Co.[10] wherein the Court had observed that:

"9. ..... in a suit for eviction between the landlord and tenant, the Court will take only a prima facie decision on the collateral issue as to whether the applicant was landlord. If the Court finds existence of relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties it will have to pass a decree in accordance with law. It was further observed therein that all that the Court has to do is to satisfy itself that the person seeking eviction is a landlord, who has prima facie right to receive the rent of the property in question. In order to decide whether denial of landlord's title by the tenant is bona fide the Court may have to go into tenant's contention on the issue but the Court is not to decide the question of title finally as the Court has to see whether the tenant's denial of title of the landlord is bona fide in the circumstances of the case."

30. On a seemly analysis of the principle stated in the aforesaid authorities, it is quite vivid that there is a difference in exercise of jurisdiction when the civil court deals with a lis relating to eviction brought before it under the provisions of Transfer of Property Act and under any special enactment pertaining to eviction on specified grounds. Needless to say, this court has cautiously added that if alternative relief is permissible within the ambit of the Act, the position would be different. That apart, the Court can decide the issue of title if a tenant disputes the same and the only purpose is to see whether the denial of title of the landlord by the tenant is bona fide in the circumstances of the case. We respectfully concur with the aforesaid view and we have no hesitation in holding that the dictum laid down in Bhagwati Prasad (supra) and Bishwanath Agarwalla (supra) are distinguishable, for in the said cases the suits were filed under the Transfer of Property Act where the equitable relief under Order VII Rule 7 could be granted.

31 . At this juncture, we are obliged to state that it would depend upon the Scheme of the Actwhether an alternative relief is permissible under the Act. In Rajendra Tiwari's case the learned Judges, taking into consideration the width of the definition of the "landlord" and "tenant" under the Bihar Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction) Control Act, 1982, had expressed the opinion. The dictionary clause under the Act, with which we are concerned herein, uses similar expression. Thus, a limited enquiry pertaining to the status of the parties, i.e., relationship of landlord and tenant could have been undertaken. Once a finding was recorded that there was no relationship of landlord and tenant under the Scheme of the Act, there was no necessity to enter into an enquiry with regard to the title of the plaintiff based on the sale deed or the title of the defendant as put forth by way of assertion of long possession. Similarly, the learned appellate Judge while upholding the finding of the learned trial Judge that there was no relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties, there was no warrant to reappreciate the evidence to overturn any other conclusion. The High Court is justified to the extent that no equitable relief could be granted in a suit instituted under the Act. But, it has committed an illegality by affirming the judgment and decree passed by the learned trial Judge because by such affirmation the defendant becomes the owner of the premises by acquisition of title by prescription. When such an enquiry could not have been entered upon and no finding could have been recorded and, in fact, the High Court has correctly not dwelled upon it, the impugned judgment to that extent is vulnerable and accordingly we set aside the said affirmation.

34. The conception of adverse possession fundamentally contemplates a hostile possession by which there is a denial of title of the true owner. By virtue of remaining in possession the possessor takes an adverse stance to the title of the true owner. In fact, he disputes the same. A mere possession or user or permissive possession does not remotely come near the spectrum of adverse possession. Possession to be adverse has to be actual, open, notorious, exclusive and continuous for the requisite frame of time as provided in law so that the possessor perfects his title by adverse possession. It has been held in Secy. Of State for India In Council v. Debendra Lal Khan[11] that the ordinary classical requirement of adverse possession is that it should be nec vi, nec clam, nec precario.

37. It is to be borne in mind that adverse possession, as a right, does not come in aid solely on the base that the owner loses his right to reclaim the property because of his willful neglect but also on account of the possessor's constant positive intent to remain in possession. It has been held in P.T. Munichikkanna Reddy and others v. Revamma and others[14]."

10. In the instant case also, the jurisdiction of the Collector-cum-Assistant Conservator of Forests, is limited.

11. Accordingly, there is no perversity in the order dated 4.8.2014, rendered in case No. 58/K/2007-08 passed by the learned Collector-cum-Assistant Conservator of Forests, Parvati Forest Division, Distt. Kullu, H.P. and order dated 23.12.2015 rendered in case No. 279/2014 by the learned Divisional Commissioner, Mandi, H.P.

12. Consequently, there is no merit in this petition, the same is dismissed so also the pending application(s), if any.

For the petitioner. : Mr. R.L. Sood, Senior Advocate, with Mr. Sanjeev Kumar, Advocate.
For the respondent : Mr. V.S. Chauhan, Addl. AG with Ms. Parul Negi, Dy. AG.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Ajay Mohan Goel, Judge

By way this revision petition, the petitioner has prayed for the following relief:

"It is, therefore, prayed that the judgment of conviction and order of sentence passed by the learned trial Court be set-aside and the appellant may please be acquitted of all the changes by way of acceptance of this appeal, in the interest of justice."

2. The case of the prosecution was that through accused Ashok Kumar Chaudhary Government of Himachal Pradesh received a copy of order dated 25.09.2002 purportedly passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India alongwith a letter from Rashtrpati Bhawan, New Delhi, whereby accused Ashok Kumar Chaudhary was recommended as appointee to the post of Joint Secretary to the Government of Himachal Pradesh. Letter of recommendation for appointment was signed by accused Surender Singh Bhatia as authorized signatory and accused Jogesh Kumar Gomber (present petitioner) as authorized signatory. Further as per the prosecution, accused Ashok Kumar Chaudhary visited the office of Shri B.S. Nanta, Special Secretary to the Government of Himachal Pradesh in connection with his appointment many times. He also visited other high officials in this regard. However, as there was no intimation to the State Government regarding so called orders passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, prima facie, the entire episode was found to be suspicious and accordingly Shri Subhash Negi, the then Secretary (Personnel), to the government of Himachal Pradesh telephonically contacted Rashtrpati Bhawan, New Delhi and it was gathered that no such recommendation was ever made in favour of accused Ashok Kumar Chaudhary for being appointed as Joint Secretary. According to the prosecution, accused Ashok Kumar Chaudhary alongwith other co-accused including the present petitioner connived with each other and forged documents in order to cheat the State Government so that accused Ashok Kumar Chaudhary be appointed as Joint Secretary to the Government of Himachal Pradesh.

3. On the basis of complaint lodged by Special Secretary to the Government of H.P., FIR was registered against the accused persons and investigation was carried out. After the completion of the investigation, challan was filed in the Court and as a prima-facie case was found against the accused, accordingly, they were charged for offences punishable under Sections 419, 466, 468, 471 and 120B of the Indian Penal Code (for short 'IPC') to which they pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

4. Learned trial Court held that the prosecution was able to substantiate the guilt of accused Ashok Kumar Chaudhary and the present petitioner while acquitting accused S.S. Bhatia. Learned trial Court convicted Ashok Kumar Chaudhary and the petitioner for offences punishable under Sections 120B, 419, 466, 468 and 471 of IPC and sentenced the petitioner alongwith Ashok Kumar Chaudhary to suffer rigorous imprisonment for a period of two years and fine in the sum of Rs. 1,000/- each for offence punishable under Section 120-B of IPC. Learned trial Court further sentenced both the convicts to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of two years and fine in the sum of Rs. 1,000/- each for offence punishable under Section 419 of IPC, rigorous imprisonment for a period of two years and fine of Rs. 1,000/- each for offence punishable under Section 466 of IPC, rigorous imprisonment for a period of two years and fine of Rs. 1,000/- each for offence punishable under Section 468 of IPC and rigorous imprisonment for a period of two years and fine of Rs. 1,000/- each for offence punishable under Section 471 of IPC.

5. The judgment passed by the learned trial Court was challenged by the petitioner before the learned Appellate Court and learned Appellate Court, vide judgment dated 28.06.2007, dismissed the appeal so filed by the petitioner and upheld the judgment of conviction passed against him by the learned trial Court.

6. Mr. R.L. Sood, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioner has argued that the judgments of conviction passed against the present petitioner by both the learned Courts below were perverse and not sustainable either on fact or on law. Mr. Sood argued that the findings of conviction returned by learned trial Court and upheld by learned Appellate Court were not borne out from the records of the case and both the learned Courts below in fact miserably failed to appreciate that the prosecution was not able to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt against the petitioner, hence, conviction of petitioner had resulted in travesty of justice. Mr. Sood, vehemently argued that it was a fit case where this Court should exercise its revisional jurisdiction because the perversity in the findings returned by the learned Courts below against the petitioner was writ large. According to Mr. Sood, both the learned Courts below failed to appreciate that the prosecution did not produce an iota of evidence on record to substantiate that the petitioner herein had hatched any criminal conspiracy with Ashok Kumar Chaudhary for commission of offences for which he had been convicted. As per Mr. Sood, the petitioner deserved acquittal on this count alone. He further argued that even otherwise both the judgments passed by learned Courts below were perverse because both the learned Courts below failed to appreciate that there was no material on record to link the petitioner with the commission of the alleged offence. Mr. Sood, further argued that there was no evidence on record that petitioner either was known to accused A.K. Chaudhary or that he had entered into a criminal conspiracy with accused A.K. Chaudahry and in furtherance of the same, he had forged any document. Mr. Sood further argued that none of the prosecution witnesses pointed towards complicity of the petitioner in the crime committed. It was further argued by Mr. Sood that both the learned Courts below erred in relying upon unsubstantiated and uncorroborated evidence of the handwriting expert without appreciating that the opinion of a handwriting expert even otherwise was only a corroborative piece of evidence and conviction cannot solely be based on it.

7. On the other hand, Mr. V.S. Chauhan, learned Additional Advocate General argued that keeping in view the fact that both learned Courts below had held that the petitioner was guilty of the offences charged against him, the judgment of conviction so passed by learned Courts below did not warrant any interference in exercise of the revisional jurisdiction by this Court. Therefore, he submitted that as there was no merit in the revision petition, the same be dismissed.

8. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and also gone through the records of the case as well as the judgments passed by both the Courts below.

9. Before proceeding in the matter, it is relevant to take note of what is the scope of revisional jurisdiction of this Court. It is settled law that the scope of revisional jurisdiction of this Court does not extend to re-appreciation of evidence. It has been held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court that the High Court in exercise of its revisional power can interfere only if the findings of the Court whose decision is sought to be revised is shown to be perverse or untenable in law or is grossly erroneous or glaringly unreasonable or where the decision is based on no material or where the material facts are wholly ignored or where judicial discretion is exercised arbitrarily or capriciously. It has been held by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Sanjaysinh Ramrao Chavan Versus Dattatray Gulabrao Phalke and Others, (2015) 3 Supreme Court Cases 123, that unmerited and underseved prosecution is an infringement of guarantee under Article 21 of the Constitution of India. In this case, Hon'ble Supreme Court has further held that the purpose of revision jurisdiction is to preserve the power in the Court to do justice in cases of criminal jurisprudence.

10. In the backdrop of the scope of scope of revisional jurisdiction of this Court, hereinafter this Court shall deal with the respective contentions of the parties.

11. In order to prove its case, prosecution examined 15 witnesses and this Court shall now refer to the testimony of material prosecution witnesses.

12. HC Jai Prakash entered the witness box as PW1 and deposed that he had brought the requisitioned record regarding FIR registered against accused A.K. Chaudhary at Preetvihar Police Station.

13. Sh. Ashok Kumar, HC, Crime Branch, State CID, entered the witness box as PW2 and he deposed about the search which was carried out in the house of A.K. Chaudhary in Model Town, Yamuna Nagar.

14. Ms. Seema entered the witness box as PW3 and stated that she was working in the STD of the petitioner in Moti Nagar, Delhi. This witness did not support the case of prosecution and was declared as hostile witness. In her cross examination by the State, this witness stated that she used to work in the shop alone. She admitted it to be correct that during day time, record used to be with her. This witness denied that documents mark 7-1 to mark 7-5 were handed over to police by her. She stated that she was working with J.K. Gomber for the last one year. In her cross examination on behalf of accused A.K. Chaudhary, this witness stated that she did not know A.K. Chaudhary, nor had he ever come to the shop of the petitioner in her presence.

15. Mr. Raj Mohan Singh entered the witness box as PW4 and he stated that he works as a Chemist in Yamuna Nagar. As per his testimony, accused A.K. Chaudhary used to reside behind his house. In his entire testimony, this witness has not stated, either in his examination in chief or in cross examination, that he knew the petitioner or recognized him. Another very important aspect of the matter is that in the cross examination, this witness stated that he knew accused S.S. Bahtia who was a Lawyer, practicing on the taxation side.

16. Rasif Ahmad entered the witness box as PW5. He stated that the petitioner was running STD shop which was adjacent to his shop. As per him, when he went to the shop of petitioner, police was already there and he signed Ext. PW7/A on their asking. He denied that any document was taken into possession in his presence. He was also declared as hostile as he did not support the case of prosecution.

17. Mr. Harbans Lal entered the witness box as PW6. As per the case of prosecution, this witness was associated during the course of investigation, however, he did not corroborate the case of prosecution and was declared as a hostile witness.

18. PW7 ASI Chanchal Singh deposed that he was posted in Police Station East, Shimla at the relevant time and that on the basis of statement of Shri B.S. Nanta recorded under Section 154 of Code of Criminal Procedure, he lodged FIR Ext. PW7/A.

19. PW8 Dy. S.P. Swarn Singh has interalia deposed about the preparation of supplementary challan and filing of the same in the Court.

20. PW9 Satish Kumar deposed that in the year 2005 he was posted in State CID and he had deposited the case property at FSL, Junga.

21. PW10 Sheel Kumar deposed that from February, 2006, he was posted in Chanakyapuri Police Station as MHC and he had brought FIR register of Police Station Chanakyapuri. He further stated that FIR 94/03, dated 03.04.2003 under Section 420, 467, 468 and 471 of IPC was registered only against accused Ashok Chaudhary.

22. Mr. B.S. Nanta entered the witness as PW-11 and he deposed that from April 2002 to August 2003, he remained posted as Special Secretary to the Government of Himachal Pradesh. He deposed qua the factum of accused A.K. Chaudhary having come to his office in October 2002 and having presented before him a letter addressed from the office of President of India to the effect that the said accused be appointed against the post of Joint Secretary. This witness also stated that the letter which purportedly had come from the President of India's office was signed by S.S. Bhatia and J.K. Gomber as authorized signatory. This witness also stated that as there was doubt about the veracity of the said communication, accordingly, it was inquired as to whether any such kind of communication had been addressed from Rashtrapati Bhawan which query revealed that no such communication in fact had been issued by Rashtrapati Bhawan and on these bases, case was registered on the ground that all the accused i.e. A.K. Chaudhary, S.S. Bahtia and J.K. Gomber, by entering into a criminal conspiracy, had created forged documents with the intent of cheating, to have appointed A.K. Chaudhary, as Joint Secretary to the Government of Himachal Pradesh.

23. Mr. Subhash Chand Negi, entered the witness box as PW12. He deposed that in the year 2002-03, he was serving as Commissioner-cum-Secretary to the Government of Himachal Pradesh, when accused A.K. Chaudhary, first took appointment from him on telephone and intimated that he was to join as Joint Secretary, as per the directions of Hon'ble Supreme Court and communication issued by Rashtrapati Bhawan. He further deposed about the factum of accused A.K. Chaudhary having come to Shimla and the facilities extended to him and A.K. Chaudhary producing with communication addressed by Rashtrapati Bhawan to him which was subsequently found to be incorrect. In his cross examination this witness deposed that he did not make any inquiry about the documents in issue from J.K. Gomber or S.S. Bhatia. He also stated that he was not aware as to what J.K. Gomber and S.S. Bahtia do in life and he also stated that petitioner and S.S. Bhatia never visited his office.

24. Mr. Satish Mathur, Director, President's Secretariat, New Delhi, entered the witness box as PW13 and deposed that Rashtrapati Secretariat received letter Ext. P-2 from Secretary, Personnel, Government of Himachal Pradesh, dated 01.11.2002, to which it was responded that no directions/recommendations to the Government of Himachal Pradesh, as alleged by accused A.K. Chaudhary, were ever issued. He also stated that there were no authorized signatories or additional authorized signatories of President of India as alleged by accused A.K. Chaudhary. In his cross examination, this witness stated that signatures on Ext. P-1, Ext. P-10 and Ext. P-11 were not got investigated by their office. He admitted it to be correct that S.S. Bhatia and J.K. Gomber were not known to him. He stated that he cannot say that signatures of S.S. Bhatia and J.K. Gomber were forged.

25. Mr. Visheshwar Sharma, Scientific Officer, State Forensic Science Laboratory, Junga, entered the witness box as PW14. This witness proved on record the signatures of the signatories including the accused on the allegedly forged documents. In his cross examination on behalf of present petitioner, this witness stated that they had prepared photo enlargement but the same were not sent with the report. He also stated that no chemical test was done. He also admitted that in the age of computer, possibility of scanning cannot be ruled out. This witness further deposed that they had not used the water for spreading the ink as the same was destructive technique. He admitted that they had not reported whether the questioned signatures of the present petitioner were by fountain pen or by ball point pen. Another very important aspect of the matter is that this witness admitted it to be correct in his cross examination that the admitted signatures Ext. PW12/A-12 and PW12/A-13 were carbon signatures. His exact testimony in this regard is mentioned herein below:

> "It is correct that the admitted signatures in Ext. PW12/A-12 and PW12/A-13 are carbon signature."

26. Investigating Officer Virender Kalia entered the witness box as PW15. A perusal of testimony of this witnesses demonstrates that he has stated in his cross examination on behalf of the petitioner that he had recorded the statements of only two officials of the Rashtrapati Bhawan. He also admitted it to be correct that neither did he visit the Ministry of Justice, Law and Company Affairs in course of investigation of this case nor he collected any material in this regard. He also admitted in his cross examination that petitioner never met him in Delhi nor he ever confronted the petitioner with his alleged signatures. He further admitted it to be correct that the present petitioner had a shop of communication, however, he stated that he was not aware of the fact that as to whether or not his telephone number and fax number were written outside the shop or not. He further admitted it to be correct that he did not conduct any investigation from the office of Joint Secretary, Government of India, pertaining to the documents in issue. He also admitted it to be correct that he acted against S.S. Bahtia and the present petitioner only because their names were written on the documents. He admitted it to be correct that in this regard he neither interrogated the present petitioner nor did he ever show the documents in issue to the petitioner. In his cross examination, he further stated that he could not tell as to whether the signatures of the present petitioner were original or scanned.

27. It is evident and clear from the perusal of the testimony of prosecution witnesses that PW11 and PW12 respectively have nowhere stated that the petitioner either came to Shimla or he visited their respective offices with accused A.K. Chaudhary. PW3, PW5 and PW6, who as per prosecution were independent witnesses, have not supported the case of prosecution. PW4, Raj Mohan Singh has nowhere stated that he ever saw the present petitioner with A.K. Chaudhary. The FIRs, which have been exhibited by the prosecution, did not contain the name of the present petitioner and the witnesses who have proved these FIRs, clearly stated that only person named in these FIRs was A.K. Chaudhary.

28. From the above facts one thing is very apparent and clear that no material was produced on record by the prosecution linking the present petitioner with A.K. Chaudhary. The factum of accused A.K. Chaudhary having produced some communication, purportedly issued by Rashtrapati Bhawan, which were purportedly signed by the present petitioner as authorized signatory does not ipso facto prove that the present petitioner hatched any criminal conspiracy with accused A.K. Chaudhary and in furtherance of same, forged documents were prepared to play fraud upon the Government of Himachal Pradesh. Independent witnesses associated in this regard by the prosecution have not supported its case. Though these witnesses have been subjected to extensive cross examination by the prosecution, however, nothing could be elucidated from their cross examination to further the cause of the prosecution. There is not an iota of evidence adduced by the prosecution on record to prove that in fact petitioner hatched any criminal conspiracy with A.K. Chaudhary and it was a result of such criminal conspiracy that forged documents were prepared which were purportedly signed by present petitioner in his capacity as authorized signatory. There is no evidence on record which either links the present petitioner with accused A.K. Chaudhary or from which it can be inferred that petitioner and A.K. Chaudhary had in fact connived and conspired to commit the offences for which present petitioner has been convicted. Another important aspect of the matter is that S.S. Bhatia, who was also one of the accused and against whom allegations were similar as against the petitioner, stood acquitted by learned trial Court. Therefore, also it is not understood as to how learned trial Court convicted the present petitioner for commission of offences under Sections 419, 466, 468, 471 and 120-B of IPC, when on the same set of evidence, other co-accused S.S. Bhatia was acquitted by it.

29. In the present case, the findings which have been returned by learned trial Court while convicting the present accused for commission of offences punishable under Sections 419, 466, 468, 471 and 120-B of IPC, are not borne out from the records of the present case thus findings returned are glaringly unreasonable.

30. PW15, the IO of the case, in his cross examination has admitted that he never confronted the petitioner with his alleged signatures. Testimony of this witness has been totally ignored by the learned Courts below which has already been discussed by me in detail above.

31. Both the learned Courts below while convicting the petitioner erred in not appreciating that it was thus apparent from the record that material prosecution witnesses had admitted that the petitioner was in fact never confronted with his alleged signatures on the alleged forged documents.

32. As far as the testimony of PW12, Visheshwar Sharma, Scientific Officer is concerned, this witness has admitted in his cross examination that admitted signatures of the present petitioner were, in fact, carbon signatures. In other words, the so called expert has not examined the signatures of present petitioner on the alleged forged documents with original admitted signature of the present petitioner because as per the admission of this expert, the alleged admitted signatures which were made available to him were carbon copy signatures only. It is settled law that opinion of handwriting expert is a weak kind of evidence and is only corroborative in nature. Neither the prosecution could link the present petitioner with A.K. Chaudhary or the offences allegedly committed and in the absence of same, accused could not have been be convicted solely on the basis of testimony of a handwriting expert.

33. Not only this, it has not been appreciated by the learned Courts below that the ground on which the Handwriting Expert purportedly formed his opinion to the effect that the forged signatures were those of the present petitioner were not mentioned in the report of the expert. This is more so when the expert has himself admitted in the Court that he applied no chemical or water test. Even otherwise as I have already discussed above, the report of a handwriting expert is only corroborative evidence and in the absence of there being other substantive cogent material on record to prove the guilt of a person, an accused cannot be convicted on the basis of the report of a handwriting expert.

34. It has been held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Magan Bihari Lal v. The State of Punjab, 1977 Cri. L.J. 711 that it is now well settled that expert opinion must always be received with great caution and perhaps none so with more caution than the opinion of a handwriting expert. Hon'ble Supreme Court further held that there is a profusion of precedential authority which holds that it is unsafe to base a conviction solely on expert opinion without substantial corroboration and that this rule has been universally acted upon and it has almost become a rule of law.

35. It has been held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Jagmal Singh Yadav Versus Aimaduddin Ahmed Khan, 1994 Supp (2) Supreme Court Cases 308:

> "We have examined the opinions given by the two experts. Even if we agree with the High Court that the opinion expressed by Shri Sarwate is more convincing than that of Shri Kapur, it would not be possible for us to hold that the signatures on Ex. PW 1/9 are of the appellant. It is settled proposition of law that the charge of corrupt practice against a returned candidate has to be proved like a criminal charge and unless there is cogent evidence to take the case beyond reasonable doubt the election cannot be set aside. Maurya (DW 20) having been proved wholly unreliable witness, the source of the letter Ex. PW 1/9 becomes highly tainted and as such doubtful. It is no doubt correct that the signatures on the letter Ex. PW 1/9 have to be proved independently and irrespective of the source from which the document is produced but keeping in view the totality of the circumstances in this case it would be difficult for us to hold the charge proved against the appellant only on the testimony of the handwriting expert.

36. In Alamgir Versus State (NCT, Delhi), (2003) 1 Supreme Court Cases 21, Hon'ble Supreme Court while reiterating the aforesaid legal position held that handwriting expert opinion simply corroborates the circumstantial evidence.

37. In Fakhruddin v. The State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1967 Supreme Court 1326, Hon'ble Supreme Court held:

> " Evidence of the identity of handwriting receives treatment in three sections of the Indian Evidence Act. They are Sections 45, 47 and 73. Handwriting may be proved on admission of the writer, by the evidence of some witness in whose presence he wrote. This is direct evidence and it is is available the evidence of any other kind is rendered unnecessary. The evidence Act also makes relevant the opinion of a handwriting expert (S.45) or of one who is said to have written a particular writing. Thus besides direct evidence which is of course the best method of proof, the law makes relevant two other modes. A writing may be proved to be in the handwriting of a particular individual by the evidence of a person familiar with the handwriting of that individual or by the testimony of an expert competent to the comparison of handwritings on a scientific basis. A third method (S. 73) is comparison by the Court with a writing made in the presence of the Court or admitted or proved to be the writing of the person.

Both under S. 45 and S. 47 the evidence is an opinion, in the former by a scientific comparison and in the latter on the basis of familiarity resulting from frequent observations and experience. In either case the Court must satisfy itself by such means as are open that the opinion may be acted upon. One such means open to the Court is to apply its own observation to the admitted or proved writings and to compare them with the disputed one, not to become an handwriting expert in the one case and to appraise the value of the opinion in the other case. This comparison depends on an analysis of the characteristics in the admitted or proved writings and the finding of the same characteristics in large measure in the disputed writing. In this way the opinion of the deponent whether expert or other is subjected to scrutiny and although relevant to start with becomes probative. Where an expert's opinion is given, the Court must see for itself and with the assistance of the expert come to its own conclusion whether it can be safely be held that the two writings are by the same person. This is not to say that the Court must play the role of an expert but to say that the Court may accept the fact proved only when it has satisfied itself on its own observation that it is safe to accept the opinion whether of the expert or other witness."

38. Thus, in view of the above settled legal position, in my considered view, both the learned Courts below failed to appreciate that the conviction of the petitioner could not have been based on the opinion of the handwriting expert in the absence of there being any other substantive evidence available on record to substantiate that the alleged signatures on the forged documents were that of the petitioner only and he had entered into criminal conspiracy with A.K. Chaudhary to forge the documents.

39. It is settled law that criminal conspiracy is an agreement between two or more persons to do or cause to be done an illegal act or a legal act by illegal means. The offence of criminal conspiracy consists in meeting of minds of two or more persons for agreeing to do or caused to be done an illegal act or legal act by illegal means and the performance of an act in terms thereof. In order to establish a charge of conspiracy knowledge about the indulgence in either an illegal act or a legal act by illegal means is necessary. Thus, it is manifest that the meeting of minds of two or more persons for doing an illegal act or a legal act by illegal means is sine qua non of the criminal conspiracy. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Kehar Singh and Ors. V. State (Delhi Administration), (1988) 2 SCC 609 has held:

"The gist of the offence of conspiracy then lies, not in doing the act, or effecting the purpose for which the conspiracy is formed, nor in attempting to do them, nor in inciting others to do them, but in the forming of the scheme or agreement between the parties. Agreement is essential. Mere knowledge, or even discussion, of the plan is not, per se, enough."

40. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of Maharashtra and Ors. V. Som Nath Thapa and Ors. (1996) 4 SCC 659 has held that to establish a charge of conspiracy knowledge about indulgence in either an illegal act or a legal act by illegal means is necessary. None for the above ingredients have been proved by the prosecution against the petitioner in the present case.

41. Therefore, in view of above discussion, in my considered view, learned trial Court, in fact erred in convicting the present petitioner for commission of offences punishable under Sections 419, 466, 468, 471 and 120-B of IPC and the findings which have been returned in this regard by learned trial Court are in fact not borne out from the records of the case. Even the findings returned in the judgment passed by learned Appellate Court in appeal so filed by the present petitioner are not sustainable. Learned Appellate Court also failed to appreciate that there was no link evidence produced on record by the prosecution, linking the present petitioner with the commission of offences, for which he was charged. Learned Appellate Court concluded that the documents on which purported signatures of the present petitioner existed representing himself to be additional authorized signatory on behalf of President of India were prepared by him without appreciating that this document was neither produced by the present petitioner nor prosecution had placed on record anything from which it could be deduced or inferred that said document was prepared by present petitioner for A.K. Chaudhary and purported signature on the same were those of present petitioner.

42. Therefore, in my considered view, there is merit in the contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner that the findings conviction against present petitioner returned by the learned trial Court are perverse and there is infirmity in the same because the findings so recorded are not borne out from the records of the case and even the learned Appellate Court erred in not appreciating this very important aspect of the matter.

Accordingly, the present petition is allowed and the judgment of conviction passed against the present petitioner by learned trial Court in Cr. Case No. 122/2 of 2006/2005, dated 31.01.2007, is quashed and set aside so is the judgment passed in appeal by the learned Appellate Court in Criminal Appeal No. 12-S/10 of 2007, dated 28.06.2007. Fine amount, if any, deposited by the petitioner, is ordered to be released to him. Pending miscellaneous application(s), if any, also stand disposed of.

C. Revision No. 110 of 2005.
Reserved on: 7.9.2016.
Decided on: 8.9.2016.

Specific Relief Act, 1963- Section 6- Plaintiffs filed a civil suit for restoration of the possession and for permanent prohibitory injunction for restraining the defendants from using any portion of the cabin by making additions and alterations- it was pleaded that plaintiffs were put in possession – plaintiff No. 1 had gone out of station and when he returned, he found that locks were changed- suit was dismissed by the trial Court- held, that plaintiff had not disclosed the name of the employee who had told him about the possession- plaintiff No. 3 had left the country- FIR was registered after 6 days – trial Court had rightly come to the conclusion that plaintiff No. 3 had delivered the possession and it was not a case of forcible dispossession- petition dismissed. (Para- 7 to 10)

For the petitioners: Mr. R.K.Bawa, Sr. Advocate with Mr. Jeevesh Sharma, Advocate.
For the respondents: Mr. Neeraj Gupta, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Justice Rajiv Sharma, J.

This petition is instituted against the judgment and decree dated 24.5.2005, rendered by the learned Civil Judge (Sr. Divn.), Shimla, H.P. in case No. 38/1 of 2004/2001.

2. "Key facts" necessary for the adjudication of this petition are that the petitioners-plaintiffs (hereinafter referred to as the plaintiffs) have filed a suit for restoration of possession under Section 6 of the Specific Reliefs Act, 1963, of rear cabin portion of Shop No. 25, measuring 60 sq. feet situated at Lakkar Bazar, Shimla, described as "ABCD" in the plan and also for permanent prohibitory injunction restraining the defendants from using any portion of the cabin by making additions and alterations changing its nature. According to the averments made in the plaint, defendant No. 1 was co-owner of the premises known as Shop No. 25, Lakkar Bazar Shimla and defendant No. 1 constructed a cabin measuring approximately 7 ft. by 8 ft. and 6 inches in the back portion of the shop. On 10.2.1998, the plaintiffs have entered into an agreement with defendant No. 1 whereby defendant No. 1 had agreed to let out the rear portion of the shop to the plaintiff-firm through its partners i.e. plaintiffs No. 2 & 3 on monthly rent of Rs. 2000/-. The plaintiffs were enjoying the continuous and peaceful possession of the premises since February, 1998 and running a business of Media Marketing, Tour and Travels and Financing in the premises. Fax machine, computer, television, music system etc. were also installed in the premises. The plaintiffs instituted a civil suit for injunction bearing case No. 15/1 of 2001 on 19.1.2001 in the Court of learned Senior Sub Judge, Shimla along with an application under Order 39 Rules 1 & 2 CPC. The plaintiffs withdrew the suit on 20.1.2001. Plaintiff-Manvir Singh was out of station and when he visited Shop No. 25, he was shocked to note that defendant No. 1 had changed the locks of outer shutter on 24.2.2001 in the mid night. On enquiry from the employees employed by the plaintiff, it revealed that defendant No. 1 along with his wife and other unknown persons forcibly and unlawfully entered in the rear cabin portion of Shop No. 25 by opening the lock with duplicate key. The furniture lying in the Cabin was also unlawfully removed. FIR No. 51/2001 dated 2.3.2001 was registered in the Police Station. It is also averred that defendant No. 1 unlawfully entered into the lease agreement with defendants No. 2 & 3 in respect of entire Shop No. 25, including rear cabin portion of Shop No. 25 after illegally dispossessing the plaintiffs from the premises. The defendants were thus liable to restore the possession of the rear cabin portion of Shop No. 25. The plaintiffs have also been deprived of the income and mesne profits of the business at the rate of Rs. 500/- per day w.e.f. 2.3.2001. The defendants were liable to be evicted from the rear cabin portion of Shop No. 25 and possession be restored to the plaintiffs.

3. The suit was contested by the defendants. Defendant No. 1 filed separate written statement. Defendants No. 2 & 3 filed a joint written statement. Defendant No. 1 admitted himself to be co-owner of the suit property. It was claimed that the premises were let out for fixed period of 11 months to plaintiffs No. 2 & 3 as joint and composite tenancy. The defendant No. 1 received rent of the premises only for one month. He did not receive any rent after the initial payment of Rs. 2,000/-. In December, 2000, plaintiff No. 3, namely Charanjit Singh voluntarily surrendered the tenancy in favour of defendant No. 1 on his behalf and on behalf of plaintiff No. 2. The plaintiffs had not paid any rent and plaintiff No. 3 on his behalf and on behalf of remaining plaintiffs had agreed to leave possession in lieu of the arrears of rent. It is denied that defendant No. 1 had taken forcible possession of the suit property. Though, it is admitted that the premises were let out to defendants No. 2 & 3 as per agreement entered inter se defendant No. 1 and defendants No. 2 & 3. The case of defendant No. 1 was duly supported by defendants No. 2 & 3.

4. The plaintiffs filed separate replication to the written statements filed by the defendants. The issues were framed by the Civil Judge, Shimla on 1.6.2002. He dismissed the suit on 24.5.2005. Hence, this petition.

5. Mr. R.K.Bawa, Sr. Advocate has vehemently argued that his clients were in continuous and peaceful possession of the premises and were paying the rent regularly. The plaintiff No. 3 has never surrendered the tenancy rights in favour of defendant No. 1. The forcible possession of the premises could not be taken over by defendant No. 1. The Civil Suit filed by plaintiff No. 1 was withdrawn only on the assurance of the defendants. The learned trial Court below has misread, misconstrued and mis-appreciated the statements of the witnesses. He lastly contended that his clients were thus entitled for restoration of the possession. On the other hand, Mr. Neeraj Gupta, Advocate has supported the judgment of the trial Court dated 24.5.2005.

6. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and have also gone through the impugned judgment and records of the case carefully.

7. The rent agreement is dated 10.2.1998. It was executed between plaintiffs No. 2 & 3 in the individual capacity with defendant No. 1. The rent was to be paid on 10th of every month. According to the plaintiffs, the rent was regularly adjusted, thus no rent was paid by the plaintiffs. There was no clause for payment of advance rent as per agreement Ext. D-1. According to PW-5, Manvir Singh the rent was adjusted but he also claimed that the advance rent was paid. Defendant No. 1 has duly proved that plaintiffs were in arrears of rent. The rent was only paid for the month of February, 1998. According to the averments made in the plaint, the plaintiffs came to know from the employees that defendant No. 1 has taken forcible possession of the shop. The plaintiffs had neither disclosed the names of the employees employed by the plaintiffs nor cited them as witnesses.

8. PW-5, Manvir Singh deposed that he came back from marriage on 2.3.2001. According to the averments made in FIR Ext. PW-2/A, Manvir Singh came to know about the forcible taking over the possession of the shop from his relatives. The relatives, as referred to in FIR Ext. PW-2/A have not been examined by the plaintiffs. It has come on record that plaintiff No. 3, namely, Charanjit Singh has left the country. According to PW-6 ASI Sohan Lal, who investigated FIR Ext. PW-2/A, Charanjit Singh used to conduct business in the shop. According to PW-6 ASI Sohan Lal, neither fax machine nor computer etc. were kept in the suit property which were allegedly stated to have been removed by defendant No. 1. The defendants have led evidence that Charanjit Singh used to sit in the cabin and not PW-5, Manvir Singh. The plaintiffs have not led evidence that plaintiff No. 3 was doing any business other than operating from the Cabin.

9. In case the incident was witnessed by PW-7 Pritpal Singh, he should have also lodged the report with the police. The firm i.e. plaintiff No. 1 came into existence on 20.3.1999 and the rent agreement is dated 10.2.1998. PW-4 Paras Ram in his cross-examination has admitted that prior to 20.3.1999, there was no partnership firm. Charanjit Singh has not appeared as a witness. The incident has taken place on 24.2.2001 mid night. However, the FIR was registered after six days i.e. on 2.3.2001, though, the Police Station was in close proximity from the premises in question.

10. The learned trial Court has rightly come to the conclusion that it was not a case of forcible dispossession but plaintiff No. 3 had handed over the possession voluntarily to defendant No. 1 in lieu of arrears of rent.

11. Accordingly, there is no merit in this petition, the same is dismissed so also the pending application(s), if any.

For the Appellants : Mr. D.S. Nainta, Advocate.
For the Respondents : Mr. B.C. Verma, Advocate for R-1 to 3 and 6 to 8.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Rajiv Sharma, Judge

This Regular Second Appeal has been instituted against judgment and decree dated 21.2.2015 rendered by learned Additional District Judge-1, Shimla, camp at Rohru in Civil Appeal No. 10-R/13 of 2008.

2. "Key facts" necessary for the adjudication of the present appeal are that respondents-plaintiffs (hereinafter referred to as 'plaintiffs' for convenience sake) have filed a suit for declaration, possession and for permanent prohibitory injunction against the appellants-defendants and proforma defendants (hereinafter referred to as 'defendants' and 'proforma defendants', for convenience sake). According to the averments made in the plaint, Girja Nand who was father of plaintiff No.1 and proforma defendants and one Shiv Saran, were brothers. Similarly, Banasi Devi who was original plaintiff No.2 was sister of Girja Nand. Girja Nand, Shiv Saran and Banasi were owners-in-possession of land comprising of Khasra No. 276 measuring 6 Bigha 16 Biswas bearing Khewat No. 52/Khatauni No. 75, as per Jamabandi for the year 1978-79 (Ext. PW-1/F). Both, Girja Nand and Shiv Saran were owners to the extent of 7/18th share each, whereas Banasi was owner to the extent of 4/18th share. During the course of settlement, land comprising Khasra No. 276 was bifurcated into three Khasra Nos. 387, 387/1 and 390 as recorded in Misal Hakiat Bandobast for the year 1996 (Ext. PW-1/C). In the meanwhile, Girja Nand mortgaged his share in the suit land to one Gulab Singh, who was predecessor-in-interest of defendants No.1 to 4, for a consideration of Rs.1200/- and mutation No. 1663 was attested in this behalf. Shiv Saran, who was owner of 7/18th share of suit land, wrongly and illegally transferred in favour of defendants No. 1 to 3, 3 Bigha 9 Biswa of land i.e. 1 Bigha more than his share. In July, 1994, when plaintiff No.1 came to know about the mortgage of suit land in favour of Gulab Singh, who was predecessor-in-interest of defendants No. 1 to 4, he requested Gulab Singh to take the mortgage money and hand over the possession of the suit land to the extent of share of Girja Nand but to no avail. A revenue petition was filed before the Revenue Collector Rohru on 13.7.1994 for redemption of the land but during the pendency of the petition, Gulab Singh passed away and petition was dismissed because plaintiff could not ascertain the names of the legal representatives of Gulab Singh. Plaintiff No.2 was married and resided at Village Tikkari for more than 40 years and came to know about the factum of mortgage and possession of defendants No.1 to 3 as well as late Gulab Singh over the suit land only on 20.2.2004, when plaintiff No.1 informed her. Plaintiffs offered mortgage money to the defendants. It is also averred in the plaint that since Banasi Devi who was predecessor-in-interest of plaintiffs No.2 and 3, had never sold her share to the defendants No.1 to 3 or their predecessor-in-interest, hence she was entitled to take back the possession of the land from defendants No.1 to 4. It is in these circumstances that the suit was filed by the plaintiffs.

3. Suit was contested by the defendants. Relationship of plaintiffs and proforma defendants has not been disputed. Shiv Saran is stated to have sold land comprising Khasra No. 276/1 out of land comprising old Khasra No. 276 to the father of the replying defendants on 24.6.1983. During the settlement, this Khasra number was converted into new Khasra No. 387/1 and 390. According to them, previously the suit land was mortgaged to them by Girja Nand and mutation to this effect was attested on 18.2.1974.

4. Plaintiffs filed replication. Learned Civil Judge (Junior Division) framed issues on 2.11.2006. He partly allowed the suit. Plaintiffs were held to be entitled to redeem the share of suit land of Plaintiff No.1 and proforma defendants from the defendants No.1 to 4 on making payment of Rs.1200/- in favour of the defendants. Plaintiffs were directed to deposit the mortgage amount of Rs.1200/- before the Court within a period of two months from the date of passing of judgment and decree dated 25.2.2008. Defendants namely Sardar Singh and Ishwari Nand filed an appeal against judgment and decree dated 25.2.2008 before the Additional District Judge. He dismissed the appeal on 21.2.2015. Hence, this Regular Second Appeal.

5. The Regular Second Appeal was admitted on 20.6.2015, on the following substantial questions of law:

> "1. Whether the suit filed by the Plaintiffs for redemption of the suit land was not maintainable because as per their owner claim, their Petition for redemption of the suit land was dismissed by the Ld. Collector, Rohru for want of impleading legal representatives of late Sh. Gulab Singh on 13.7.1994.
> 2. Whether on the Principle of Resjudicata since proceeding for redemption was earlier dismissed by Collector Rohru, therefore, present suit was not maintainable.
>
> 3. Whether there are material admission on the part of the Respondents about the claim of Appellants, therefore, suit was required to be dismissed.
>
> 4. Whether the suit for redemption was barred by limitation because of transaction of mortgage has taken place between the mortgagor and mortgagee in the year 1967, and similarly since Sh. Shiv Saran has executed a sale Deed of his share out of the suit land, through a registered sale deed no. 146/83 on 24.6.1984, therefore, the present suit having been filed on 2.3.2004 was hopelessly barred by limitation.
> 5. Whether the suit as filed is not maintainable as the same being bad for mis joinder and non joinder of different causes of action and joinder and non joinder of necessary parties and the validity of sale deed dated 24.6.1984 and the claim of redemption could not be clubbed together.
> 6. Whether the findings are vitiated on account of misreading and misappreciation of the pleadings of the parties as well as oral and documentary evidence on record."

6. Mr. D.S. Nainta, Advocate, on the basis of substantial questions of law framed, has vehemently argued that the suit filed for redemption of suit land was not maintainable. He also contended that the suit was not filed within limitation. Suit was bad for mis-joinder and non-joinder. Suit was barred by the principle of res judicata since the Collector Rohru had also decided similar petition.

7. Mr. B.C. Verma, Advocate, appearing for respondents No.1 to 3 and 6 to 8, has supported the judgments and decrees passed by the learned Courts below.

8. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and also gone through the record carefully.

9. Since all the substantial questions of law are interconnected and interlinked, the same are taken together for determination to avoid repetition of discussion of evidence.

10. According to Rojnamcha Vakyati, Ext. PW-3/A, which was duly proved by PW-3 Shri Surat Ram, mortgage was made on 12.3.1974. Factum of mortgage of share of land by Girja Nand in favour of Gulab Singh on 12.3.1974 is proved on record. Mutation No. 1667 Ext. PW-1/D was attested on 16.3.1974. It is also evident from the copy of Misal Hakiyat for the year 1996, Ext. PW-1/C, copy of Jamabandi for the year 1997-98 Ext. PW-1/A that only the share of Girja Nand was mortgaged with Gulab Singh. According to the revenue record, possession of the share of land was also delivered to the predecessor-in-interest of the defendants namely Gulab Singh. Defendants have failed to prove their adverse possession over the suit land. It was necessary for them to prove the ingredients of adverse possession. Defendants have examined DW-2 Amar Sain, DW-3 Nirkhu Ram and DW-4 Dhanvir. However, these witnesses could not state Khasra numbers as well as Khata Khatauni numbers of the land in possession of the defendants. Witnesses have also failed to point out the exact date of commencement of possession of the defendants or their predecessor-in-interest Gulab Singh. Defendants have miserably failed to prove that land was mortgaged in the year 1967. It is reiterated that the plaintiffs have proved that the suit land was mortgaged on 12.3.1974. Instant suit was filed on 2.3.2004, i.e. within a period of thirty years. Plaintiffs have earlier filed a petition before Collector Rohru under HP Redemption of Mortgage Act. Learned trial Court has rightly observed that proceedings before the Collector were summary in nature thus the present suit for redemption of mortgage was maintainable. Defendants, moreover, have not objected in the written statement that the present suit was not maintainable. It is also made clear that during the course of proceedings before the Collector, Gulab Singh died and his legal heirs could not be brought on record. Plaintiffs were aggrieved primarily of the possession of the defendants over the suit land. It is, in these circumstances that suit was filed by the plaintiffs for redemption of mortgaged land, injunction and possession against the defendants. Present suit was not barred for mis-joinder of the causes of action. Suit was not barred under the principle of res judicata.

11. The substantial questions of law are answered accordingly.

12. Accordingly, in view of the discussion and analysis made hereinabove, the present appeal is devoid of merit and the same is dismissed. Pending application(s), if any, also stand disposed of. No costs.

Cr. Appeal No. 4276 of 2013
Decided on : 08.09.2016

Indian Penal Code, 1860- Section 376 and 506- Prosecutrix was subjected to forcible sexual intercourse by her brother-in-law during her stay at the house of her maternal grandmother – accused threatened to kill her in case of disclosure of incident to any person- prosecutrix was carrying eight months pregnancy- accused was tried and acquitted by the trial Court- held, in appeal that prosecutrix was more than 16 years of age at the time of incident- matter was reported to police belatedly without any satisfactory explanation- she had not disclosed the incident to her grandmother where she was residing and she continued to attend the school normally- this shows the consent on the part of the prosecutrix- trial Court had rightly acquitted the accused- appeal dismissed. (Para-9 to 14)

For the Appellant: Mr. Ramesh Thakur, Deputy Advocate General.
For the Respondent: Mr. Devinder K Sharma, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Sureshwar Thakur, Judge

The instant appeal stands directed against the impugned judgment of 19.2.2013 rendered by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Mandi, District Mandi, H.P. in Sessions trial No. 21 of 2010, whereby the learned trial Court acquitted the respondent (for short "accused") for the offences charged.

2. Brief facts of the case are that on 8.1.2010 an apposite FIR under Sections 376 and 506 of IPC stood registered by the prosecutrix against the accused alleging therein that she is 17 years of age and in the month of May, 2009 the accused i.e her "jija" subjected her to forcible sexual intercourse 7-8 times during her stay at the house of her maternal grandmother at village Sakroha. She further alleged that the accused also threatened her to do away with her life if she disclosed anything about it to anyone. It is further alleged by her that she is carrying about 8 month pregnancy owing to illicit intercourse with her by the accused. It is further alleged by her that the accused provided her medicine to get foetus aborted. After registration of the FIR the police agency conducted the investigation into the matter. On completion of all codal formalities and on conclusion of the investigation into the offence, allegedly committed by the accused challan was prepared and filed in the Court.

3. The accused stood charged by the learned trial Court for his committing offences punishable under Sections 376 and 506 of the Indian Penal Code to which he pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

4. In order to prove its case, the prosecution examined 15 witnesses. On closure of prosecution evidence, the statement of the accused under Section 313 of the Code of Criminal Procedure was recorded in which he claimed false implication. However he does not choose to lead evidence in defence.

5. On an appraisal of evidence on record, the learned trial Court returned findings of acquittal in favour of the accused.

6. The learned Deputy Advocate General has concertedly and vigorously contended qua the findings of acquittal recorded by the learned trial Court standing not based on a proper appreciation of evidence on record, rather, theirs standing sequelled by gross mis-appreciation of material on record. Hence, he contends qua the findings of acquittal being reversed by this Court in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction and theirs being replaced by findings of conviction.

8. This Court with the able assistance of the learned counsel for the parties has with studied care and incision, evaluated the entire evidence on record.

9. Qua the occurrence which took place in the month of May, 2009 an apposite FIR comprised in Ex.PW-1/A holding a narrative therein of the accused subjecting the prosecutrix to forcible sexual intercourse during the spell of her stay at the house of her maternal grand mother at Sakroha stood recorded on 8.1.2010. The accused is the 'Jija' of the prosecutrix. For determining the trite factum of the prosecutrix, at the time contemporaneous to hers standing subjected to forcible sexual intercourse, holding the relevant capacity to mete consent to his sexual overtures, an allusion to Ex. PW-7/C and PW-7/D is imperative wherewithin revelations stand encapsulated of the prosecutrix at the relevant time standing aged 16 years. Consequently, with the prosecutrix at the time contemporaneous to the alleged incident holding the relevant age besides the apposite capacity to mete consent to the accused for his holding her to coitus would not perse besides ipso-facto render the alleged sexual encounter which occurred inter-se both to be bereft of any penally inculpable mens rea unless evidence surges forth qua the prosecutrix while holding coitus with the accused hers meteing volitional consent to him. The meteing of volitional consent by the prosecutrix to the accused for the latter holding her to coitus would emanate only on a close and incisive perusal of her testimony.

10. The imminent factum of hers disclosing in the FIR of hers during the spell of her stay in the month of May, 2009 at the house of her maternal grandmother at Sakroha standing subjected thereat to forcible sexual intercourse by the accused whereas with belatedly lodging an apposite FIR qua the incident aforesaid on 8.1.2010 without hers purveying visibly a plausible explanation therein for the inordinate delay which has occurred since the alleged incident vis-à-vis the lodging of the aforesaid FIR qua it by her, gives amplifying vigor to a firm inference of the prosecutrix meteing volitional consent to the accused for his holding her to coitus.

11. Moreover with hers omitting to make an apt disclosure to her grandmother whereat she stood subjected to forcible sexual intercourse by the accused also hers clothes not suffering any tearings nor hers in quick spontaneity thereto asking for her medical examination standing conducted by the Doctor concerned for facilitating the latter to unearth the relevant fact qua hers resisting the sexual overtures of the accused rather hers continuing to attend school normally, is a visible pronouncement of hers volitionally consenting to the accused for his holding her to sexual intercourse.

12. Be that as it may, the prosecutrix delivered a male child who stands opined by the expert concerned to be the biological son of the accused and the biological son of the prosecutrix. Even during the entire course of the prosecutrix conceiving a baby in her womb also thereafter upto 8 months when the incident stood unraveled by her to the police station concerned she given the aforesaid protuberance of hers belly omitted to disclose the relevant incident to the police agency concerned nor her parents concerted to elicit from her qua the alleged incident throughout the course of her belly exemplifying a visible protuberance cumulatively hold a loud echoings of the prosecutrix while holding the relevant capacity to mete consent to the accused for his holding her to coitus hers meteing volitional consent to the accused.

13. A wholesome analysis of the evidence on record portrays that the appreciation of evidence as done by the learned trial Court does not suffer from any perversity and absurdity nor it can be said that the learned trial Court in recording findings of acquittal has committed any legal misdemeanor, in as much, as, its mis-appreciating the evidence on record or its omitting to appreciate relevant and admissible evidence. In aftermath this Court does not deem it fit and appropriate that the findings of acquittal recorded by the learned trial Court merit interference.

14. In view of the above discussion, we find no merit in this appeal, which is accordingly dismissed and the judgment of the learned trial Court is maintained and affirmed. Record of the learned trial Court be sent back forthwith.

State of H.P. ...Appellant.
Versus
Shiv Chand ...Respondent.

(Para-3 to 9)

For the Appellant: Mr. M.A. Khan, Additional A.G.
For the Respondent: Mr. N. S. Chandel, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Sureshwar Thakur, Judge (Oral).

This appeal is directed against the judgment, rendered on 5.8.2011, by the learned Sessions Judge, Kinnaur Sessions Division at Rampur Bushahr, H.P., in Sessions Trial No.26 of 2002/2010, whereby the appellant has been acquitted of the offence punishable under Sections 120-B, 363, 366, 368, IPC and under Section 6 of the Immoral Traffic (Prevention) Act, 1956 (hereinafter referred to as the Act).

2. The brief facts, of the case, are, that the accused, namely, Shiv Chand and Lalita Tamang, are alleged to have committed offences under Sections 363, 366, 368, 120-B of the Indian Penal Code and Section 6 of the Immoral Traffic (Prevention) Act, 1956 recorded, in, FIR No.16 of 2002, registered on 24.3.2002. However, accused Shiv Chand absconded and could not be apprehended. He was under orders rendered on 19.8.2003 declared a proclaimed offender. On accused Shiv Chand standing declared a proclaimed offender, the learned committal Court proceeded to, in the absence of accused Shiv Chand, on the Investigating Officer filing a report under Section 173 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, commit co-accused Lalita Tamang to face trial before the learned Sessions Judge, Kinnuar at Rampur qua hers allegedly committing offences under Sections 363, 366, 368, 120-B of the Indian Penal Code and Section 6 of the Immoral Traffic (Prevention) Act, 1956. She faced the ordeal of trial and on conclusion besides consummation of trial to which she stood subjected to, she was convicted and sentenced qua hers committing offences punishable under Sections 363, 366, 368, 120-B/34 of the IPC and under Section 6 of the Immoral Traffic (Prevention), Act, 1956. In the meantime, co-accused Shiv Chand was apprehended and produced for the first time on 06.8.2010 before the Learned Sessions Judge, Kinnaur Division, at, Rampur Bushahr. On apprehension and production of co-accused Shiv Chand, who during the trial of co-accused Lalita Tamang had remained under absconsion besides given his non-apprehension, during the entire criminal proceedings launched against co-accused Lalita Tamang, he , hence, stood not subjected to trial, obviously, on his apprehension and production on 26.8.2010 before the Court of the learned Sessions Judge, Kinnaur Division at Rampur Bushahr, the latter Court requisitioned the case file and fixed the case for framing of charge against him.

3. When the stage of recording of prosecution evidence arrived, co-accused Shiv Chand, on 28.2.2011, recorded, a, statement before the learned Sessions Judge to the effect that the statements of the prosecution witnesses as stood recorded, in his absence, be read against him in the same manner as if their respective examinations-in-chief, stood recorded in his absence. Given the statement of co-accused Shiv Chand, who, stood declared a proclaimed offender and in whose absence the statements of prosecution witnesses stood recorded wherewithin he portrayed his acquiescence qua theirs being read as evidence, constrained the learned Sessions Judge to acquit accused Shiv Chand.

4. Without going into the merits of this appeal, the moot point, which is to be decided is qua the procedure and exercise adopted by the learned Sessions Judge in proceeding to read the testimonies of prosecution witnesses, recorded during the trial of co-accused Lalita Tamang and in the absence of accused Shiv Cahnd, merely, on the basis of his acquiescence to the statements recorded in his absence, being read as evidence, comprises infraction of the procedure ordained by law. Consequently, it has to be determined whether the trial vis-à-vis Shiv Chand, stands vitiated, hence, necessitating or warranting interference by this Court with the impugned judgment rendered qua co-accused Shiv Chand, with a sequeling rendition of a direction for the remanding of the matter to the learned Sessions Judge, for the re-recording afresh of the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses.

5. In the face of co-accused Shiv Chand remaining under absconsion , hence, his standing declared a proclaimed offender on 15.3.2003 by the Committal Court, set afoot proceedings, for, the trial of the co-accused Lalita Tamang, even in the absence of co-accused Shiv Chand. Naturally and obviously, on completion of committal proceedings, vis-à-vis co-accused Lalita Tamang, the learned Sessions Judge, while adopting the procedure envisaged under Section 299 of the Cr.P.C., procedure whereof envisaged a contemplation qua permissibility of recording of evidence against co-accused standing/facing trial, even in the absence of co-accused Shiv Chand, given his standing declared a proclaimed offender, it hence proceeded to record evidence qua co-accused Lalita Tamang. Besides, the provisions aforesaid mandate, permissibility qua reading as evidence, the pre-recorded statements of prosecution witnesses, statements whereof stood recorded in the absence of the proclaimed offender, on occurrence of apprehension of the proclaimed offender, only in the event of (a) deponents being dead; (b) incapable of giving evidence; (c) being not found and (d) their presence being not procurable without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which under the circumstances of the case, appears to be unreasonable.

6. The provisions engrafted and ingrained in Section 299 of the Cr.P.C., besides the application and adoption of the provisions engrafted therein is also the fulcrum and nerve centre, to, test the legality of the procedure adopted by the learned Sessions Judge, in proceeding to, on appearance/production before him of co-accused Shiv Chand, to read such previously recorded prosecution evidence, merely on the strength of his statement, wherein he acquiesces qua the reading of prerecorded prosecution evidence, on reading whereof, it proceeded to record findings of acquittal qua co-accused Shiv Chand.

7. Co-accused Shiv Chand, recorded a statement on 28.2.2011, wherein, he, acquiesced qua the reading vis-a-vis him the testifications of the prosecution witnesses, comprised in their respective examinations-in-chief, testifications whereof stood recorded during the course of trial of co-accused Lalita Tamang. Therefore, the acquiescence of co-accused Shiv Chand, prodded the learned Sessions Judge, to rely upon the previously recorded testimonies of prosecution witnesses, comprised in their respective examinations-in-chief, thereupon it anvilled its findings of acquittal vis-a-vis co-accused Shiv Chand. However, to the considered mind of this Court, even though, the apposite acquiescence of co-accused Shiv Chand does not either trammel or fetter the jurisdiction of the learned Sessions Judge to proceed to, on the strength of the statement of co-accused Shiv Chand wherein he portrayed his acquiescence to the reading qua him the previously recorded depositions of prosecution witnesses, statements whereof stood recorded during the trial of co-accused Lalita Tamang, to, omit to record afresh the evidence of prosecution witnesses, unless, satisfaction stood recorded by the learned Sessions Judge, qua existence of exigencies and contingencies contemplated or envisaged under Section 299 of the Cr.P.C., besides only on its recording satisfaction qua proof of existence of such statutorily contemplated exigencies and contingencies, the learned trial Court could waive or abandon its jurisdiction, to recall for re-examination the prosecution witnesses. Further, even otherwise, there is no evidence on record displaying recording of satisfaction by the learned Court below qua evident existence of such contingencies or statutory exigencies, on existence whereof alone, the re-recording afresh of the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses could stand waived or abandoned by it, in as much, as, there is no evidence displaying the fact (a) deponents being dead; (b) incapable of giving evidence; (c) being not found and (d) their presence being not procurable, without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which under the circumstances of the case, appears to be unreasonable.

8. Consequently, the acquiescence of co-accused Shiv Chand, manifested in his statement and its reading, unraveling the fact of his conceding to the deposition of prosecution witnesses recorded during the course of trial of the co-accused Lalita Tamang, being readable against him, did not give leverage to the learned Sessions Judge, to, omit to per se, hence, draw satisfaction qua the evident existence of exigencies and contingencies, as, envisaged under Section 299 of the Cr.P.C. Rather, when on strict proof qua their existence, the learned Sessions Judge, could proceed to read the evidence of prosecution witnesses as stood previously recorded during the course of trial of Lalita Tamang, dehors the acquiescence of co-accused Shiv Chand, his, omitting to afford any reason for his countervailing or circumventing the provisions of Section 299 of the Cr.P.C., in as much, as, without eliciting proof or, hence his drawing satisfaction qua existence of exigencies and statutory contingencies, on whose proof alone, the learned Sessions Judge could proceed to read the evidence of the prosecution witnesses recorded during the trial of co-accused Lalita Tamang, as evidence against the co-accused Shiv Chand, on the latter's apprehension, contrarily his apposite waiver dependent upon the acquiescence of co-accused Shiv Chand whereupon he recorded findings of acquittal vis-a-vis Shiv Chand renders the entire judgment of acquittal recorded vis-a-vis co-accused Shiv Chand, hence, while anchored upon procedural infraction, to be wholly vitiated.

9. As a concomitant, for reiteration, the learned Sessions Judge, merely on the apposite acquiescence of co-accused Shiv Chand, without his recording satisfaction qua the existence of preponderant exigencies and contingencies displayed in Section 299 of the Cr. P. C., hence, proceeding to read the testimonies of prosecution witnesses, recorded during the course of trial of co-accused Lalita Tamang, as evidence against co-accused Shiv Chand, has caused a pervasive and deep infraction of the mandatory statutory provisions. It has also caused incalculable miscarriage of justice. Consequently, the trial stands vitiated and the judgment of acquittal recorded vis-a-vis co-accused Shiv Chand, necessitates, it, being set aside. The matter is remanded to the learned Sessions Judge, Kinnaur Division at Rampur Bhushahr for the re-recording afresh by him of prosecution evidence against co-accused Shiv Chand. It is loudly made clear that only and in case of satisfaction coming to be recorded by the learned Sessions Judge qua the availability or attainment besides accomplishment of the exigencies and contingencies stipulated in Section 299 of the Cr.P.C., would, he be empowered to proceed, to, read in evidence, the depositions and statements of prosecution witnesses, as stood previously recorded during the course of trial of co-accused Lalita Tamang. However, when, no, material on record displays such satisfaction being drawable by the learned Sessions Judge, it shall proceed to re-record afresh the evidence of prosecution witnesses. Accordingly, the appeal is allowed and judgment dated 5.8.2011 passed by the learned Session Judge is set aside and the case is remanded back for the re-recording afresh by him the statements/evidence of the prosecution witnesses, his keeping in mind the aforesaid directions. The learned trial Court is directed to complete the trial within six months from today.

For the respondents Mr. N. K. Thakur, Sr. Advocate with Ms. Jamuna Kumari, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Dharam Chand Chaudhary, J. (Oral)

State of Himachal Pradesh is in appeal before this Court. The complaint is that learned Special Judge, Fast Track Court, Una had erroneously acquitted the respondent, hereinafter referred to as 'the accused' of the charge under Section 15 of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985, hereinafter referred to as 'the NDPS Act' in short vide impugned judgment dated 13.9.2012 passed in Sessions trial No. 04-VII-2011.

2. It is seen that FIR No. 274/2010 dated 13.9.2010 Ext.PW1/B came to be registered against the accused in Police Station, Haroli, District Una under Section 15 of the NDPS Act with the allegations that on 13.9.2010 when a police party headed by PW22 HC Sanjay Kumar reached at his newly constructed house in village Nangal Khurd, Tehsil Haroli District Una at about 4:15 A.M. recovered two gunny bags whereas three plastic bags containing poppy husk and poppy straw (doda). In first gunny bag poppy husk weighing 45 KG and second plastic bag poppy husk weighing 25 kg, in third plastic bag poppy husk weighing 25 Kg, in fourth plastic bag poppy husk weighing 23kg and in fifth gunny bag poppy straw (doda) weighing 18 Kg was allegedly recovered from the exclusive and conscious possession of the accused.

3. The police party headed by PW22 HC Sanjay Kumar, HC Ramesh Chand, HHC Gurvir Singh PW2 and constable Ram Gopal PW1 left police station on patrol duty vide rapat Ext.PW7/A entered in rapat rojnamcha by PW7 LC Sudha Rani. In the early morning i.e. 13.9.2010 around 4:15 A.M. PW22 has received a secret information that the accused is dealing in the business of poppy husk and poppy straw by bringing the same from out side the State and that he has stacked poppy husk and poppy straw in his house at village Nangal Khurd. On the receipt of information, PW22 has prepared the Rukka Ext.PW1/A and it was sent to Police Station, Haroli through PW1 C. Ram Gopal around 4:25 A.M. On the basis of this document FIR Ext.PW1/B came to be registered in the police station. PW22 has also taken down in writing the secret information so received and reason of his belief Ext.PW16/A and it was sent to the Superintendent of Police Una through PW2 HC Gurbir Singh at 4:35 A.M. Around 4:40 A.M. he sought for additional police force from police Station, Haroli over telephone. On the basis thereof rapat Ext.PW12/A was entered in the rapat rojnamcha whereby HC Harish Kumar, HC Balbir Singh, HC Santosh Kumar, HHG/PC Vijay Kumar were deputed to the spot in Government vehicle driven by Constable-driver Vikas Kumar. They joined PW22 at link road leading to village Nangal Khurd. PW22 had also apprised them about the secret information he received and the purpose of laying raid. The Pradhan of the Gram Panchayat Smt. Krishna Devi, one Jagiri Ram PW3, Up Pradhan of the gram Panchayat and PW4 Badev Raj ward panch, ward panch Ram Krishan and Shadi Lal were also associated in the raiding party. They were also apprised of the purpose of raiding the house of the accused.

4. The police party when reached in the house of the accused at 7:10 A.M. he came out at his own. He was apprised about the propose to raid his house by PW22 in the presence of witnesses. Before entering inside the house each and every one gave their personal search to the accused. However, nothing incriminating recovered from them. It is thereafter the search of the house was conducted and five bags i.e. two jute bags and three plastic bags were recovered from the middle of a room of the house. The same were found containing poppy husk and poppy straw. HC Balbir Singh was deputed to bring weighing scale. The bags containing poppy husk and poppy straw were brought out to lobby of the house. PW5 Prakash Chand brought weighing equipments to the spot. The bags containing poppy husk and poppy straw were weighed turn by turn and found containing poppy husk and poppy straw as already pointed out at the outset. The I.O. thereafter has drawn samples mark PA-1 to PE-2 and sealed in parcel with seal 'J'. All the five bags were also sealed with the same seal. Columns 1 to 8 of NCB-I form Ext.PW8/A were filled up on the spot and facsimile of seal 'J' were also obtained thereon. The sample of seal Ext.PW3/B was also drawn separately and the seal after its use was handed over to Jagiri Lal PW3. The bags and sample parcels duly sealed were taken in possession vide seizure memo

Ext.PW3/A in the presence of PW Jagiri Lal and Baldev Raj PW4. A copy thereof was supplied to the accused and his signature obtained thereon. Site plan Ext.PW22/A was prepared by the I.O. The I.O. had also got clicked the photographs Ext.PX-1 and Ext.PX-2 from Rakesh Kumar PW6. This witness has also clicked the photographs Ext.PW6/A and Ext.PW6/B inside the room. In Ext.PW6/B and Ext.PX-1 and Ext.PX-2 the accused can also be seen standing. The statements of the witnesses including that of Prakash Chand, Jagiri Ram and Baldev Raj Ext.PW22/C, Ext.PW22/D and Ext.PW22/E respectively were recorded by the I.O. PW22.

5. The accused was arrested and the ground of arrest disclosed to him vide memo Ext.PW22/B. In order to prepare the inventory application Ext.PW21/A was filed in the Court of learned Judicial Magistrate Ist class. Court No. II, Una and the inventory peppered on the basis thereof. The Magistrate after preparing the inventory handed over the sealed bags vide order Ext.PW21/D to the police. PW16 ASI Surjeet Singh, Reader to Superintendent of Police Una has proved the report under Section 42(2) of the Act Ext.PW16/A and the special report Ext. PW16/B. PW10 Subhash Chand Kanungo had conducted the demarcation of the land bearing Khasra No. 448 over which the house of the accused from where recovery made vide demarcation report Ext.PW10/A. Rapat Ext.PW12/A, Ext.PW12/D, Ext.PW12/E and Ext.PW12/F were also entered in the rapat rojnamcha qua the investigation having taken place in this case. The case property was produced before ASI Ashok Kumar PW8 who after resealing the same with seal 'M' had deposited in the malkhanna. The case property was sent to Forensic Science Laboratory, Junga through Ashok Kumar. The report Ext.PW22/L was received from the Laboratory.

6. On the completion of investigation, the police has prepared the challan and filed in the Court. On hearing learned Public Prosecutor and also learned defence Counsel as well as going through the police report, learned Special Judge has prima-facie found a case under Section 15 of the NDPS Act made out against the accused. Charge against him was framed accordingly. The accused, however, pleaded not guilty to the charge and claimed trial.

7. In order to sustain the charge against the accused the prosecution has examined 22 witnesses in all. The material prosecution witnesses are PW3 Jagiri Ram, PW4 Baldev Raj and PW5 Prakash Chand. PWs 3 and 4 have not supported the prosecution case and as such were declared hostile. PW5 Prakash Chand no doubt has deposed that scale and weights were brought by him to the spot however not supported the rest of the prosecution case qua the recovered contraband weighed in his presence. He was also declared hostile. PW1 Ram Gopal is formal as he had carried Rukka Ext.PW1/A to the police station. PW5 Rakesh Kumar is photographer who has proved the photographs Ext.PX-1 and Ext.PX-2. PW7 LC Sudha Rani has proved the rapat Ext.PW7/A. PW10 Subhash Chand is Kaunungo and PW11 Joginder Kumar is Patwari, hence formal because they had given the demarcation report of the land bearing Khasra No. 448 vide Ext.PW10/A. The remaining prosecution witnesses PW8 ASI Ashok Kumar, PW9 HC Ramesh Chand, PW12 C. Balwinder, PW13 MHC Ashwani Kumar, PW14 HC Sukhpal, PW15 the then SHO S.S. Pathania, PW16 ASI Surjeet Singh, PW17 HC Harish Chander, PW18 HC Balbir Singh, PW19 C. Ashok Kumar, PW20 HC Vipan Kumar, PW21 Shri Yajuvinder Singh, the then Judicial Magistrate Ist Class, Court No. II, Una are also formal. The I.O. is PW22 HC Sanjay Kumar.

8. The accused was also examined under Section 313 of the Code of Criminal procedure and he has examined Dr. Kapil Sharma, Assistant Director and Assistant Chemical Examiner, NDPS Division, State Forensic Science Laboratory, Junga as DW1 in his defence.

9. Learned Special Judge on appreciation of oral as well as documentary evidence has concluded that no tangible evidence showing the recovery of the contraband i.e. poppy husk and poppy straw from the exclusive and conscious possession of the accused is not available on record. The prosecution was not found to have proved its case against the accused beyond all reasonable doubt. He as such was acquitted of the charge.

10. The impugned judgment has been challenged in this appeal on several grounds.

11. Learned Additional Advocate General has vehemently argued that the testimony of witnesses comprising independent as well as official fully establish the prosecution case that the poppy husk and poppy straw was recovered from the house of the accused, hence from his exclusive and physical possession. The findings to the contrary according to learned Additional Advocate General are based upon hypothesis conjectures and surmises. Learned trial Court has committed illegality in brushing aside the cogent and reliable evidence produced by the prosecution. Mr. Nainta has also emphasized that the link evidence is complete which also substantiate the prosecution case.

12. On the other hand, Mr. N.K. Thakur, learned senior Advocate assisted by Ms. Jamuna Kumari Advocate has argued that the independent witnesses namely PW3 Jagiri Ram, PW4 Baldev Raj and PW5 Prakash Chand have not supported the prosecution case and rather turned hostile. Their testimony contrary to that of the police official has caused major dent in the prosecution case. In view of such evidence available on record there emerge two possible views and in a case of this nature the view of the matter favouring the accused has rightly been taken in consideration by the trial Court. The recovery of the incriminating substance according to Mr. Thakur is not at all proved from the physical and conscious possession of the accused. Mr. Thakur while supporting the judgment under challenge has further argued that the appeal being devoid of merits deserves to be dismissed.

13. In a case of this nature the recovery of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substance from the exclusive and physical possession of the accused is sine qua non for recording findings of conviction against an offender booked under the Act. We may refer here the judgment of Bombay High Court in Rubyana alias Smita Sanjib Bali Vs. State of Maharashtra and others, 1996 Crl. L.J.148 which reads as follows:

> "The sine qua non for attracting the penal provisions, viz. Sections 20 and 21 of the N.D.P.S. Act, and Section 25 read with Section 7 of the Arms Act is that the appellant must be found in possession of the contrabands and the fire arms. The term "possession" is not defined in the N.D.P.S. Act. The term "possession" has been judicially construed to mean, in various decisions, as under :-
> > 'Possession implies dominion and consciousness in the mind of the person having dominion over an object that he has it and that he can exercise it. Possession must be conscious and intelligent possession and not merely the physical presence of the accused in proximity or even in close proximity to the object.
> (See in this connection Dula Singh v. Emperor, AIR 1928 Lahore 272 : (1928 (29) Cri LJ 481), Kuldip Chand v. Emperor, AIR 1934 Lahore 718 : (1935 (36) Cri LJ 300), Sunder Singh v. Emperor, AIR 1936 Lahore 738 : (1936 (37) Cri LJ 939), and Ram Charan v. Emperor, AIR 1933 All 437 : (1933 (34) Cri LJ 930)).
> The Apex Court in Supdt. and L.R. v. Anil Kumar Bhunja, (1979) 4 SCC 274 : (1979 Cri LJ 1390), observed that the test for determining "whether a person is in possession of anything is whether he is in general control of it." The Apex Court, after examining Salmond's jurisprudence and other earlier decisions rendered by the Court, observed thus (at pp 1392-93 of Cri LJ) :-
> > "13. 'Possession' is a polymorphous term which may have different meanings in different contexts. It is impossible to work out a completely logical and precise definition of 'possession' uniformally applicable to all situations in the contexts of all statutes. Dias and Hughes in their book on Jurisprudence say that if a topic ever suffered from too much theorising it is that of 'possession'. Much of this difficulty and confusion is (as pointed out in Salmond's Jurisprudence, 12th Ed. 1966) caused by the fact that possession is not purely a legal concept. 'Possession', implies a right and a fact; the right to enjoy annexed to the right of property and the fact of the real intention. It involves power of control and intent to control. (See Dias and Hughes, 11th Ed.)

14. According to Pollock and Wright, when a person is in such a relation to a thing that, so far as regards the thing, he can assume, exercise or resume manual control of it at pleasure, and so far as regards other persons, the thing is under the protection of his personal presence, or in or on a house or land occupied by him or in any receptacle belonging to him and under his control, he is in physical possession of the thing.

15. While recognising that 'possession' is not a purely legal concept but also a matter of fact, Salmond (12th Ed. page 52) describes 'possession, in fact", as a relationship between a person and a thing. According to the learned author the test for determining 'whether a person is in possession of anything is whether he is in general control of it'.

16. In Gunwantilal v. State of M.P. (1973) 1 SCR 508 : (1972 Cri LJ 1187), this Court while noting that the concept of possession is not easy to comprehend, held that, in the context of Section 25(a) of the Arms Act, 1959, the possession of a firearm must have, firstly, the element of consciousness or knowledge of that possession in the person charged with such offence, and secondly, he has either the actual physical possession of the firearm, or where he has not such physical possession, he has nonetheless a power or control over that weapon. It was further recognized that whether or not the accused had such control or dominion to constitute his possession of the firearm, is a question of fact depending on the facts of each case. In that connection, it was observed (at p. 1189 of Cri LJ) :

In any disputed question of possession, specific facts submitted or proved will alone establish the existence of the de facto relation of control or the dominion of the person over it necessary to determine whether that person was or was not in possession of the thing in question."

14. Now if coming to the evidence qua this aspect of the matter available on record admittedly the house from where the contraband allegedly poppy husk and poppy straw recovered has been shown in the photographs Ext.PX-1 and Ex.PX-2. It is a newly constructed house having no doors and windows as the same at the time of raid were not affixed. It is not even covered by boundary wall. In case the jamabandi Ext.PW22/G/Ext.PW11/B is concerned this house has been constructed over land bearing Khasra No. 448 situate in Muhal Theh, Mauja Nangal Khurd Tehsil Haroli District Una. Jamabandi Ext.PW22/G/Ext.PW11/B further reveal that besides accused Karnail Singh there are other co-sharers who are also in possession of the land over which the house in question has been constructed. The tatima of this land is Ext.PW11/A. The jamabandi Ext.PW11/B and tatima Ext.PW11/A even prepared by Joginder Kumar Patwari, Patwar Circle Nangal Khurd. This witness tells us in his cross-examination that the persons who were present at the time of preparation of tatima on the spot had also claimed the ownership of the suit land. Meaning thereby that there is no clinching and conclusive proof that the house in question belongs to accused Karnail Singh alone and none else. No other evidence is produced to show that it is accused Karnail Singh who had constructed the house in question and that the other co-sharers in the land over which the same is constructed have nothing to do therewith. The house is open from all sides and easily accessible to each and every one. The photographs of the house make it crystal clear that the same at that time was lying vacant and not occupied by any one. In this view of the matter, it cannot be said by any stretch of imagination that the contraband i.e. poppy husk and poppy straw was recovered from the house which belongs to the accused alone and none else. Therefore, the present is not a case where it can be said that the poppy husk and poppy straw is recovered from the exclusive and conscious possession of the accused.

15. The so called independent witnesses PW3 Jagiri Ram, PW4 Baldev Raj and PW5 Prakash Chand have not supported the prosecution case. PW3 Jagiri Ram tells us that though he was called by the police, however, residential house of accused Karnail Singh was not searched in his presence nor poppy husk or poppy straw recovered therefrom. Similarly, as per version of PW4 though he was called by the police to the house of Karnail Singh, however, they all left behind in the verandah whereas the police entered inside the room. Though, he said that bags Ext.P1 to Ext.P5 were recovered in his presence however, in the same breath expressed his ignorance in this regard as according to him bags of sand were also lying there. He, however, has denied the bags having been opened in his presence nor he had seen poppy husk and poppy straw in the bags. PW4 only tells us that on asking by police he has taken weighing scale and weights. He unloaded the weights and scale from the vehicle and did not see the bags of contraband nor the bags were weighed in his presence. True it is, that PW3 had been Up Pradhan of local Gram Panchayat and admit that he always signs documents after readings the contents thereof. The accused is resident of his village. In his cross-examination he admit the search of the house having been conducted in his presence and PW4 Baldev Raj however, denied the suggestion that contraband was recovered from middle room of the house. He has also denied the recovery of poppy husk and poppy straw in his presence in the manner as claimed by the prosecution. He has also denied that PW Prakash Chand had come to the spot with weight and scale. He has also denied that the contraband was weighed in his presence. He, however, admit his signature on the document. If the testimony of PW4 Baldev Raj in cross-examination is seen he claimed himself to be illiterate. However, admit that the documents of the panchayat proceedings he used to sign after getting it translated and reading out its contents for him by someone else. He has admitted his signature on the seizure memo. However, expressed his inability to identify as to in which bag poppy husk was kept and in which poppy straw as according to him the bags were already sealed by the police. He has denied the sampling and sealing process, however, weighing scale according to him was brought in his presence from the shop of PW Prakash Chand. He has denied that the contraband was collected in his presence. His signatures on the documents were taken in a khud (rivulet) at a distance of one K.M. from the house of accused. In his further cross-examination conducted by learned defence counsel it is admitted that he was not ward panch at that time and that 2-3 vehicles were standing out side the house of the accused at the relevant time. Some of police officials were in uniform and others were in civil dress. He admit that they were taking the bags from the vehicle inside the house.

16. If coming to the testimony of PW5 Prakash Chand in his cross-examination he admit the presence of PWs 3 and 4 on the spot, however, denied that the recovered poppy husk and poppy straw was weighed in his presence. He has also denied the sealing and sampling process.

17. It is seen from the testimonies of PWs 3,4 and 5 as discussed hereinabove that though they admit their presence in the house from where poppy husk and poppy straw was recovered and also that the documents bears their signatures however, according to them the contraband was not recovered from the house in their presence. They have also denied the sampling and sealing process. They have also denied the poppy husk and poppy straw having taken into possession in their presence.

18. If coming to the evidence as has come on record by way of the testimony of official witnesses, i.e. HC Ramesh Chand PW9, HC Harish Chander PW17, HC Balbir Singh PW18 and the I.O. PW22 HC Sanjay Kumar no doubt they all have supported the recovery of poppy husk and poppy straw in the manner as claimed by the prosecution as well as the sealing and sampling process, however, the testimony of the independent witnesses PWs 3 to 5 discussed hereinabove renders the statements of the official witnesses highly doubtful. The present, therefore, is a case where two version of the occurrence emerges on record. In a case of this nature the benefit of doubt is always given to the accused and not to the prosecution. Learned trial Court has, therefore, rightly concluded that the prosecution has failed to prove its case against the accused beyond all reasonable doubt.

19. The evidence as discussed hereinabove makes it crystal clear that the house in question is not in exclusive possession of the accused. The independent witnesses are not from the same locality. As a matter of fact, no one has been associated during the search and seizure belonging to that very locality where the house in question is situated. It is not the case of the prosecution that inspite of best efforts made by the I.O. no one from neighbourhood could be associated to witness the search and seizure and also prove that the house belongs to the accused alone and none else. Nothing tangible has also come on record to show that it is the accused who had kept the poppy husk and poppy straw in that house. On the other hand as per the admitted case of parties the house in question is without doors and windows and as such accessible to each and every one. In these circumstances, the only inescapable conclusion would have been that the prosecution has failed to prove its case against the accused beyond all reasonable doubt. The link evidence available on record is hardly of any help to the prosecution because the recovery of the contraband i.e. poppy husk and poppy straw is not at all proved from the exclusive and conscious possession of the accused. Being so, in our considered opinion, learned trial Court has rightly acquitted the accused of the charge on appreciation of the evidence available on record in its right perspective. The findings so recorded cannot be said to be legally and factually unsustainable. The judgment as such deserves to be affirmed.

20. In view of what has been said hereinabove, this appeal fails and the same is accordingly dismissed. Personal bond furnished by the accused shall stand cancelled and surety discharged.

Case referred:
Liaquat Ali vs. Amir Mohammad & ors., Latest HLJ 2016 (HP) 831

For the petitioner :Mr. Ajay Sharma, Advocate with Mr. Kishore Pundeer, Advocate.
For the respondent :Mr. N.K. Thakur, Sr. Advocate with Ms. Jamuna Kumari, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Dharam Chand Chaudhary, J. (Oral)

Order passed on 4.1.2013 in an application filed under Order 26 Rule 9 read with Section 151 of the Code of Civil Procedure in Execution RBJ No. 34/07/06 by learned Civil

Judge (Senior Division) Kangra at Dharamshala is under challenge in this petition on the grounds, inter alia, that since the proceedings under Order 21 Rule 11 and 32 of the Code of Civil Procedure with allegations of breach of decree by the respondent have been initiated by him, therefore, it was for him to have produced evidence to substantiate such allegations he levelled against the respondent.

2. Order dated 5.7.2004 Annexure P-1 passed in case No. 78/2003 titled Ved Prakash Vs. Mool Raj reveal that the suit filed by the petitioner herein was compromised and the parties were directed to maintain status quo qua the suit land till its partition under due process of law. The record reveal that the suit land now stands partitioned under due process of law and the parties are in possession of the land in their respective shares.

3. The petitioner, however, has initiated the proceedings (Execution RBJ No. 34/06/07) under Order 21 Rules 11 and 32 of the Code of Civil Procedure against the respondent on the ground that the path in existence and being used by him to have access to his cow shed has been blocked by the respondent by laying slate tiles and thereby trying to usurp more and more land over and above his share. The respondent, however, has denied the existence of any such path and came forward with the version that the applicant and his brother have another path to have access to their cow shed. On such pleadings of the parties learned trial Judge has framed the issues and also taken on record the evidence as produced by the parties on both sides.

4. The petitioner moved an application under Order 26 Rule 9 read with Section 151 of the Code of Civil Procedure with a prayer to allow local inspection to find out the so called blockade of the path by the respondent.

5. The application was contested and resisted by the respondent. Learned trial Court on appreciation of the pleadings of the parties and also the evidence produced as well as taking note of the submissions made by the Pradhan, Gram Panchayat RW3 that there exit a public path which is being used by the applicant and his brother to have access to their cow sheds and also that to allow the application at a stage when both parties have led evidence would amount to collection of evidence by the court in favour of a party to the lis which is not legally permissible has dismissed the application vide order under challenge in this Court.

6. It is worth mentioning that the complaint qua violation of compromise decree passed in the suit was brought to the Court by the petitioner in the petition under Order 21 Rules 11 and 32 of the Code of Civil Procedure. It was for him to have proved the existence of the so called path and the same having been now obstructed by the respondent. He has produced the evidence. The respondent has also produced the evidence. Therefore, allowing the local inspection at this stage would amount to collect evidence by the Court which is not legally permissible. In similar set of facts and circumstances, this Court has held as follows in Liaquat Ali vs. Amir Mohammad & ors., Latest HLJ 2016 (HP) 831 has held as under:-

> "4. Petitioner has assailed the aforesaid order on various grounds taken in the petition. Before proceeding to the merits of the matter, it needs to be reiterated that the object of local investigation is not to collect evidence, but to obtain such material, which from its peculiar nature, can be had only at the spot. The object of order 29 Rule 9 CPC is not to assist a party to collect evidence.
> 5. What is the measurement of the suit passage and whether the same has been obstructed or encroached upon are matters which were required to be proved by the petitioner by leading cogent and convincing evidence to this effect and, therefore, recourse to the appointment of Local commissioner for demarcating the suit land at this stage is impermissible as both the parties have led their evidence. Obviously the application now preferred by the petitioner is mischievous as the petitioner wants the court to collect evidence for him through the Local commissioner."

7. It is seen that the point in issue as brought to this Court in this petition is squarely covered against the petitioner by the ratio of the judgment supra. I, therefore, find no merit in this petition and the same is accordingly dismissed.

8. Pending application(s), if any, shall also stand dismissed and the interim order vacated.

9. The parties through learned Counsel representing them are directed to appear in the trial Court on 4.10.2016. The record be sent back forthwith so as to reach in the trial Court well before the date fixed.

10. With the above observations, the petition is accordingly disposed of.

Date of decision: 8th September, 2016

Code of Civil Procedure, 1908- Order 39 Rules 1 and 2- Plaintiffs filed a civil suit for declaration pleading that they are in joint possession of the suit land- suit land is coparcenery in which plaintiffs has a right by birth - defendant No. 1 had executed a gift deed in favour of defendants No. 2 and 5, which is illegal, null and void- suit was opposed by the defendants asserting that suit property was self acquired property of defendant No. 1- application was allowed by the trial Court- an appeal was filed, which was allowed- it was contended that documents proved on record that ancestral land of the parties was acquired for the construction of Bhakra Dam and the land was purchased from the proceeds of such acquisition- however, no such plea was made in the pleading of the parties- documents cannot be considered in absence of the pleadings - Appellate Court had rightly held that in absence of the pleadings, documents cannot be considered to establish the ancestral nature of the property- petition dismissed. Cases referred:
Ritesh Tewari & Anr. v. State of Uttar Pradesh & Ors., (2010) 10 SCC 677
Amar Singh v. Union of India and others (2011) 7 SCC 69

For the Petitioners : Mr.V.B.Verma, Advocate.
For the Respondents : Mr. Neeraj Gupta, Advocate, for respondents No. 1 to 4.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Tarlok Singh Chauhan, Judge (Oral)

This petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India takes exception to the judgment rendered by learned District Judge, Una, District Una, on 4.6.2016 in Civil Misc. Appeal No. 42/2015 whereby he set-aside the order of ad-interim injunction granted by learned Civil Judge (Jr. Division), Court No.1, Una, H.P. on 19.6.2015 in favour of the petitioners/plaintiffs.

2. The facts as necessary for determination of this lis are that the petitioners/plaintiffs filed a suit for declaration that they are co-owners in joint possession of the suit land and the same was held by respondent No.1as coparcenary property in which the petitioners have right by virtue of their birth in the family. The parties are Brahmins by caste and in matters of alienations they are governed by customary law. The defendant/respondent No.1 with ulterior motive illegally entered into sham transaction vide registered gift deeds in favour of defendants No. 2 to 5 vide Basika Nos. 25, 26 and 27 which are illegal, null and void, inoperative and ineffective against the rights of the petitioners/plaintiffs. The petitioners prayed for declaring the aforesaid gift deeds as illegal, null and void and by way of consequential relief, a prayer for injunction was made. Alongwith the suit, an application for temporary injunction was filed before the learned trial Court.

3. The respondents/defendants resisted and contested the suit as well as application by filing written statement and reply wherein it was categorically denied that the suit land was ancestral and coparcenary property in the hands of respondent No.1. According to the respondents, the suit land was self acquired property of respondent No.1 and as such, he was free to deal with the same in the manner he liked. The execution of the gift deeds was not denied, however, it was emphatically denied that these deeds were in any manner wrong, illegal, null and void as alleged.

4. The learned trial Court granted injunction in favour of the petitioners, against which order the respondents filed an appeal that has been allowed by learned District Judge, Una vide order dated 4.6.2016. It is this order which has been assailed in this petition.

5. It is vehemently argued by Mr. V.B.Verma, learned counsel for the petitioners that the impugned order under challenge is the result of misreading and misunderstanding of the facts inasmuch as the learned lower Appellate Court has failed to consider that the ancestral land of the parties was acquired by the State of Haryana for the construction of Bhakra Beas Dam on 9.10.1958 and the land under dispute was purchased by the predecessor-in-interest of the parties in the year 1959 out of the proceeds received by way of compensation in lieu of the aforesaid acquisition. It is also argued that though the relevant record was placed before the learned lower Appellate Court to substantiate this fact, but the same has virtually been ignored by the learned Court below.

I have heard learned counsel for the parties and gone through the records of the case carefully and meticulously.

6. The petitioners have placed on record the copy of the suit instituted by them and it would be evident from a perusal thereof that the pleas being put forth before this Court and the learned Courts below have in fact not been raised in the suit. When confronted with this, learned counsel for the petitioners would argue that there are number of documents placed on record which clearly prove beyond any doubt that the ancestral land of the parties was acquired for the construction of Bhakra Beas Dam and the land under dispute had been purchased from the proceeds of such acquisition.

7 I am afraid that such contention of the petitioners cannot be accepted as it is more than settled that the pleadings of the parties form the foundation of their case and it is not open for them to give up the case set up in the pleadings and propound a new and different case. The documents accompanying the plaint at best can be considered as evidence, that too, if proved in accordance with law. Therefore, in absence of pleadings, evidence, if any, produced by the parties cannot be considered. It needs no reiteration that no party can travel beyond its pleadings and no amount of evidence which is contrary to the pleadings of the parties can be looked into. Therefore, in such circumstances, it was necessary for the petitioners to have led proper foundation of their case in the pleadings itself.

8. As observed earlier, the case now being put forth by the petitioners is not even their pleaded case and, therefore, the learned lower Appellate Court committed no illegality or irregularity while making the following observations:

> "11. Admittedly, in the latest revenue record Sh. Ram Rakha, defendant No.1, has been recorded as absolute owner in possession of the suit land as is evident from the copy of jamabandi for the year 2011-12. There is not even an iota of evidence on record which prima-facie shows that the suit land had devolved upon Sh. Ram Rakha from his father or father's father by way of natural succession. On the other hand from the perusal of jamabandi for the year 1957-58 it is revealed that the suit land was owned by one Sh. Bhagat Ram and the same was purchased by Sh. Ram Rakha from him for consideration of Rs.9500/- regarding which the mutation No.333 was sanctioned on 20.4.1959. The plaintiffs have neither pleaded nor produced any prima facie evidence to show that this land was purchased by Sh. Ram Rakha from the award amount of his land acquired for construction of Bhakara Dam. The plaintiffs have also neither pleaded nor produced any prima-facie evidence to show that the land which was acquired for construction of Bhakara Dam was ancestral and coparcenary land in the hands of Sh. Ram Rakha qua the plaintiffs. Therefore, simply because the plaintiffs are grandsons of Sh. Ram Rakha would not make the suit land in his hands as ancestral and coparcenary without any evidence showing that the same was devolved upon him from his lineal male ancestors by way of natural succession or acquired from the joint family funds."

9. An action at law is not a game of chess, therefore, a litigant cannot prevaricate and take inconsistent positions. It is one of those fundamental principles of jurisprudence that litigants must observe total clarity and candour in their pleadings. (Vide: Ritesh Tewari & Anr. v. State of Uttar Pradesh & Ors., (2010) 10 SCC 677; and Amar Singh v. Union of India and others (2011) 7 SCC 69).

10. Having said so, I find no merit in this petition and the same is accordingly dismissed, so also the pending application(s), if any, leaving the parties to bear their own costs. Interim order granted on 17.6.2016 is vacated.

10. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that out of Court settlement executed between complainant and co-accused Ashish Bhuppal placed on record and on this ground present petition be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for the reasons hereinafter mentioned. Court has carefully perused the compromise deed dated 14.3.2016 executed between Dharam Chand complainant and co-accused Ashish Bhuppal. In present case valuation of stolen property is Rs.11000/-(Rupees eleven thousand). As per Section 320 of Code of Criminal Procedure compounding of criminal offence with permission of Court could be granted only when value of stolen property is not exceeding Rs.2000/- (Rupees two thousand). Theft of movable properties is increasing day by day during night period in the society. In order to curb theft of movable properties during night period it is not expedient in the ends of justice to allow the petition on the basis of out of Court settlement placed on record. It is well settled law that order of compounding criminal offence which are non-compoundable under statutory provision of Code of Criminal Procedure is improper. It is also well settled law that it is against public policy to compound a non-compoundable criminal offence. See AIR 2008 SCW 7865 title Ishwar Singh vs. State of M.P. See 1993 Cr.L.J. 3193 title Mohan Singh vs. State (FB) Rajasthan.

11. Judicial findings relating to absence of mensrea or actus reus cannot be given at this stage of case. Judicial findings relating to absence of mensrea or actus reus would be given by learned Trial Court during trial of case after giving due opportunity to both parties to prove their case. Point No. 1 is answered in negative.

Point No.2(Final Order)

12. In view of findings upon point No.1 petition filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C, is dismissed. Motor Vehicles Act, 1988- Section 166- Tribunal dismissed the claim petition after holding that accident had taken place due to the negligence of the deceased- respondent No. 1 had not driven the truck rashly and negligently at the relevant point of time- FIR was got registered against the deceased- a closure report was filed against him, which was accepted after hearing the complainant- claimants have to plead and prove that accident was outcome of the rash and negligent driving of the respondent No. 1, in which they failed, however, claimants are entitled to Rs. 50,000/- under no fault liability. (Para-5 to 7)

For the appellants: Mr.Jagdish Thakur, Advocate.

For the respondents: Mr.Tara Singh Chauhan, Advocate for respondents No.1 and 2.
Mr.Ratish Sharma, Advocate, for respondent No.3.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice(Oral)

This appeal is directed against the award, dated 8th December, 2010, passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal-II, Una, H.P., (for short, the Tribunal), in Claim Petition No.23 of 2008, titled Bholi Devi and others vs. Avtar Singh and others, whereby the claim petition, filed by the claimants, was dismissed, (for short the "impugned award").

2. Feeling aggrieved, the claimants filed the instant appeal.

3. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and gone through the record.

4. The Tribunal has dismissed the claim petition on the ground that the accident was the outcome of rash and negligent driving of deceased Ram Lal himself and that respondent No.1 Avtar Singh had not driven the truck rashly and negligently at the relevant point of time.

5. In order to ascertain whether the claim petition was rightly dismissed by the Tribunal, this Court vide order dated 17th June, 2016, directed the Police Agency to file case diary in regard to FIR No.178, dated 15th August, 2008, registered at Police Station, Amb, District Una, H.P., qua the accident in question. The concerned Agency filed the report (pages 21 to 44 of the appeal), which does disclose that FIR was registered against the deceased Ram Lal and closure report in terms of Section 173 of the Code of Criminal Procedure was filed before the court of competent jurisdiction, which was accepted on 10th April, 2009 after hearing the complainant.

6. The claimants have to plead and prove that the accident was the outcome of rash and negligent driving of the driver, namely, Avtar Singh respondent No.1, in which, in the given circumstances, they have failed.

7. At this stage, the learned counsel for the appellants stated that the appellants/claimants are entitled to compensation under Section 140 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (for shot, the Act), under the head no fault liability, which has not been awarded to them by the Tribunal. Accordingly, the appeal is disposed of by holding the claimants entitled to Rs.50,000/- under the head no fault liability. The insurer is directed to deposit the amount within a period of six weeks from today and on deposit, the amount be released in favour of the claimant Bholi Devi, through her bank account. In case the insurer fails to deposit the amount within the stipulated period, the amount shall carry interest at the rate of 7.5% per annum from today till deposit.

8. The appeal is disposed of and the impugned award is modified accordingly.

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988- Section 166- Tribunal held that accident had not taken place due to any negligence but due to inept handling of the vehicle by the mechanic or some inherent manufacturing defect existing in the vehicle- findings recorded by the Tribunal are not proper – claimants had specifically pleaded that deceased was travelling in the vehicle as conductor- one tyre of the vehicle was being repaired when another tyre burst- its rim hit the deceased, who sustained injuries – owner/insured and the driver have not denied these facts- strict proof is not required in the motor accident case, discrepancies in the pleadings cannot be made ground to dismiss the claim petition- Tribunal has to follow the principles of justice, equity and good conscience – deceased had sustained injuries out of the use of the motor vehicle- income of the deceased was claimed to be Rs. 8,000/- per month - by guess work, it can be safely held that deceased was not earning less than Rs. 4,000/- per month- 1/4th amount was to be deducted towards his personal expenses- thus, it can be held that claimants have lost source of dependency of Rs. 3,000/- per month- deceased was 29 years of age- multiplier of 16 is just and appropriate- compensation of Rs. 3,000 x 12 x 16= Rs. 5,76,000/- awarded towards loss of dependency- claimants are also entitled to Rs. 10,000/- each under the head loss of 'love and affection', 'loss of estate' and 'funeral expenses'- insurance was admitted and insurer is liable to indemnify the insured - claimants are entitled to compensation of Rs. 6,06,000/- with interest @ 7.5% per annum from the date of filing the claim petition till its realization. For the respondents: Ms. Seema Sood, Advocate, for respondent No. 1.

Nemo for respondents No. 2 and 3.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice.

The appellants-claimants have invoked the jurisdiction of this Court in terms of the mandate of Section 173 of the Motor Vehicle Act (for short "MV Act") and have questioned the award, dated 5th August, 2011, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal-I, Sirmaur District at Nahan, H.P. (for short "the Tribunal") in MAC Petition No. 66-MAC/2 of 2008, titled as Smt. Bimla Devi and others versus Shri Vijender Kumar and others, whereby the claim petition filed by the appellants-claimants came to be dismissed (for short "the impugned award").

2. In order to determine this appeal, it is necessary to give a brief resume of the case, the womb of which has given birth to the appeal in hand.

3. The appellants-claimants invoked the jurisdiction of the Tribunal by the medium of the claim petition for grant of compensation to the tune of ₹ 10,00,000/-, as per the break-ups given in the claim petition, on the ground that their sole bread earner, namely Shri Puran Singh @ Kaka, son of appellants-claimants No. 1 & 2, brother of appellant-claimant No. 3 and father of appellant-claimant No. 4, became victim of the accident arising out of use of the motor vehicle, i.e. truck, bearing registration No. HP-16-9135, on 28th July, 2005, at about 12.00 midnight at Kabir Petrol Pump near Zirakpur, Punjab.

4. It has been averred in the claim petition that when the deceased, who was 28 years of age at the time of the accident, was travelling in the offending vehicle as conductor and they reached at Kabir Petrol Pump Near Zirakpur, Punjab, the offending vehicle developed some defect and while its one of the tyres was being repaired, the another tyre of the said vehicle burst and its rim hit deceased-Puran Chand @ Kaka, who sustained injuries, was admitted in Government Medical College & Hospital, Sector-32, Chandigarh, where he succumbed to the said injuries on 30th July, 2005.

5. It has also been pleaded that deceased-Puran Chand @ Kaka was working as a conductor/labourer with the offending vehicle and was earning ₹ 8,000/- per month from all sources, i.e. as conductor/labourer, driver and agriculturist.

6. The claim petition was resisted by the owner-insured, driver and the insurer of the offending vehicle on the grounds taken in the respective memo of objections.

7. The owner-insured and the driver of the offending vehicle have filed the joint reply and admitted the factum of accident, death and cause of death of deceased-Puran Chand @ Kaka. They have also admitted that deceased-Puran Chand @ Kaka was working as a conductor with the offending vehicle.

8. On the pleadings of the parties, following issues came to be framed by the Tribunal on 21st March, 2009:

> "1. Whether Puran Chand died in the accident due to rash and negligent driving of truck No. HP-16-9135 by respondent No. 2 Madhi Ali on 28-7-2005 at about 12.00 midnight at place Kabir Petrol Pump near Zirakpur, as alleged? OPP
>
> 2. In case issue No. 1 is proved in affirmative, to what amount of compensation the petitioners are entitled to and from whom? OPP
>
> 3. Whether the petition is not maintainable in the present form, as alleged? OPR-3
>
> 4. Whether the driver of the vehicle in question did not possess a valid and effective driving licence at the time of accident, as alleged? OPR-3
>
> 5. Whether the vehicle in question was being plied in violation of the terms and conditions of the insurance policy and valid route permit, as alleged? OPR-3
>
> 6. Whether the petition has been filed by the petitioners in collusion with respondents No. 1 and 2, as alleged? OPR-3.

9. The appellants-claimants have examined Shri Hajara Singh as PW-1; Shri Anil Kumar PW-2; Shri Tota Ram as PW-3; HC Krishan Dutt as PW-4; Shri Chander Bose as PW-6; Shri Trilok Nath as PW-7 and one of the claimants, namely Smt. Bimla Devi, herself appeared in the witness box as PW-5.

10. The respondents have not led any evidence. However, driver, namely Shri Madi Ali Shah appeared in the witness box and has admitted that the deceased was working as a conductor with the offending vehicle at the time of the accident.

11. The Tribunal, after scanning the evidence, oral as well as documentary, held that the mishap was not on account of any negligence on the part of the owner and driver of the offending vehicle, but was on account of the inept handling of the vehicle by the mechanic or some inherent manufacturing defect existing in the vehicle and dismissed the claim petition in terms of the impugned award.

Issue No. 1:

12. The moot question is – whether the Tribunal has rightly determined issue No. 1 and dismissed the claim petition? The answer is in the negative for the reasons to be recorded hereinafter.

13. The appellants-claimants have specifically averred in the claim petition that at the time of the relevant point of time, deceased-Puran Chand @ Kaka was travelling in the offending vehicle as conductor and when they reached at Kabir Petrol Pump Near Zirakpur, Punjab, the offending vehicle developed some defect and while its one of the tyres was being repaired, the another tyre of the said vehicle burst and its rim hit deceased-Puran Chand @ Kaka, who sustained injuries and succumbed to the said injuries. The appellants-claimants have also led evidence to this effect.

14. The owner-insured and the driver of the offending vehicle have not denied the factum of employment of deceased-Puran Chand @ Kaka with the offending truck as conductor, cause of the injuries sustained by him which resulted into his death. It is also admitted fact that the offending vehicle was stationery for the purpose of repairing the tyre, as discussed hereinabove.

15. The owner-insured and insurer of the offending vehicle have not led any evidence in support of their pleadings/defence. Thus, the evidence led by the appellants-claimants has remained unrebutted and the owner-insured and the insurer have failed to prove their defence.

16. Thus, the question is – whether the claim petition was maintainable?

17. The compensation was to be granted under Section 166 of the MV Act for the following reasons:

18. The MV Act has gone through a sea change in the year 1994 and in terms of Sections 158 (6) and 166 (4) of the MV Act, the Tribunal can treat even a police report as a claim petition.

19. The purpose of granting compensation is just to ameliorate the sufferings of the victims of the motor vehicular accident and the niceties, hypertechnicalities, procedural wrangles and tangles and mystic maybes have no role to play and that should not be a ground to dismiss the claim petition and to defeat the rights of the claimants.

20. The same principle has been laid down by the Apex Court in the cases titled as N.K.V. Bros. (P.) Ltd. versus M. Karumai Ammal and others etc., reported in AIR 1980 Supreme Court 1354; Sohan Lal Passi versus P. Sesh Reddy and others, reported in AIR 1996 Supreme Court 2627; and Dulcina Fernandes and others versus Joaquim Xavier Cruz and another, reported in (2013) 10 Supreme Court Cases 646.

21. This Court has also laid down the same principle in a series of cases.

22. It is the duty of the Tribunal/Appellate Court to achieve the aim and object of the granting of compensation. The strict proof is not required and discrepancies or pleadings or loose pleadings cannot be made a ground to dismiss the claim petition. These proceedings are summary in nature, do not require strict compliance of the rules of evidence and pleadings. The Tribunal has to see that innocent victims do not suffer and it cannot wash its hands of the responsibility and duty by dismissing the claim petition. It is to be kept in mind by the Tribunal that it is dealing with a claim petition which is outcome of social welfare legislation.

23. It is well established principle of law that the Tribunal, while dealing with claim petition, has to keep in mind that it is outcome of a social legislation, has to follow the principles of justice, equity and good conscience and has to apply a more realistic, pragmatic and liberal approach.

24. The Apex Court in a case titled as Madan Gopal Kanodia versus Mamraj Maniram and others, reported in (1977) 1 Supreme Court Cases 669, held that the Courts should not scrutinize the pleadings with such meticulous care resulting in genuine claims being defeated on trivial grounds. It is apt to reproduce para 13 of the judgment herein:

> "13. ..... It is well-settled that pleadings are loosely drafted in the Courts and the Courts should not scrutinise the pleadings with such meticulous care so as to result in genuine claims being defeated on trivial grounds. In our opinion the finding of the High Court that there was wide gap between the pleadings and the proof is not at all borne out from the record of the present case."

25. Having glance of the above discussions, one comes to an inescapable conclusion that the deceased sustained injuries while one of the tyres of the offending vehicle burst and its rim hit the deceased. Thus, it is a case of accident arising 'out of use of motor vehicle'.

26. This Court was dealing with cases of similar nature in FAO No. 537 of 2008, titled as United India Insurance Company Ltd. Versus Sh. Talaru Ram and others, decided on 18th December, 2015, and FAO No. 465 of 2009, titled as Smt. Sharestha Devi and others versus Kishori Lal and others, decided on 1st July, 2016; and while relying upon various decisions rendered by the Apex Court, held that claim petition is maintainable.

27. The same question came up for consideration before the Hon'ble Karnataka High Court in a case titled as B. Fathima versus S.M. Umarabba & ors., reported in II (2007) ACC 613 (DB), wherein wooden logs were being unloaded from a lorry at a saw-mill, the rope tied as a grip to the said logs was untied negligently, due to which a wooden log fell on the deceased who was near the lorry for the purpose of unloading. It was held that the accident occurred when the lorry was in use, deceased was a third party and the insurer was saddled with liability.

28. The Hon'ble Kerala High Court in a case titled as Rajan versus John, reported in 2009 (2) T.A.C. 260 (Ker.), wherein the claimant sustained injury while unloading marble from a stationed truck, held that any accident arising during loading and unloading is an accident arising on account of use of vehicle and claim petition was maintainable.

29. The High Court of Jammu and Kashmir in the case titled as Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd., through its Senior Divisional Manager, Jammu versus Smt. Nirmala Devi and others, reported in 2009 (3) T.A.C. 684 (J&K) has laid down the same principle.

30. The Apex Court in the case titled as Mst. Param Pal Singh through father versus M/s National Insurance Co. and another, reported in 2013 AIR SCW 283, has recorded that a claim is maintainable for grant of compensation, if a driver while driving the vehicle for long distance and thereafter holding the vehicle, taking rest, has lost his life. The Apex Court has further held that the accident is an outcome of the use of motor vehicle and during the course of the employment. It is apt to reproduce para 27 of the judgment herein:

> "27. Applying the various principles laid down in the above decisions to the facts of this case, we can validly conclude that there was CASUAL CONNECTION to the death of the deceased with that of his employment as a truck driver. We cannot lose sight of the fact that a 45 years old driver meets with his unexpected death, may be due to heart failure while driving the vehicle from Delhi to a distant place called Nimiaghat near Jharkhand which is about 1152 kms. away from Delhi, would have definitely undergone grave strain and stress due to such long distance driving. The deceased being a professional heavy vehicle driver when undertakes the job of such driving as his regular avocation it can be safely held that such constant driving of heavy vehicle, being dependant solely upon his physical and mental resources and endurance, there was every reason to assume that the vocation of driving was a material contributory factor if not the sole cause that accelerated his unexpected death to occur which in all fairness should be held to be an untoward mishap in his life span. Such an 'untoward mishap' can therefore be reasonably described as an 'accident' as having been caused solely attirubutable to the nature of employment indulged in with his employer which was in the course of such employer's trade or business."

31. Having said so, it is held that deceased-Puran Chand @ Kaka died 'in the use of motor vehicle'.

32. Now, the question is – whether the claimants are entitled to compensation?

33. Admittedly, the deceased was working as a conductor with the offending vehicle. Thus, the claimants have a legal right to claim compensation in terms of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923 (for short "WC Act") because the deceased was conductor under employment of the owner-insured, insurer had to indemnify as per the terms and conditions contained in the Policy and the compensation was to be granted as per the Schedule attached with the said Act. Section 167 of the MV Act provides an option to lay a claim petition either before an authority under the WC Act or before the Tribunal. It is apt to reproduce Section 167 of the MV Act:

> "167. Option regarding claims for compensation in certain cases*.- Notwithstanding anything contained in the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923 (8 of 1923) where the death of, or bodily injury to, any person gives rise to a claim for compensation under this Act and also under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923, the person entitled to compensation may without prejudice to the provisions of Chapter X claim such compensation under either of those Acts but not under both."*

34. While going through the provisions of law, one comes to an inescapable conclusion that the claimants being the legal representatives of the employee-deceased, have two remedies to claim compensation and in terms of Section 167 of the MV Act, they can seek compensation at higher side. It is not disputed that the claimants are not legal representatives of the deceased and the dependants. Thus, the claimants are entitled to compensation.

35. Viewed thus, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issue No. 1 are set aside and is determined accordingly.

36. Before dealing with issue No. 2, I deem it proper to determine issues No. 3 to 6.

Issue No. 3:

37. It was for the respondents, i.e. the owner-insured, driver and insurer of the offending vehicle, to prove that the claim petition was not maintainable, have not led any evidence, thus, have failed to discharge the onus. In view of the findings returned on issue No. 1 (supra), the claim petition was maintainable. Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issue No. 3 are set aside and it is held that the claim petition was maintainable.

Issue No. 4:

38. It was for the insurer to plead and prove that the driver of the offending vehicle was not having a valid and effective driving licence to drive the same, has not led any evidence, thus, has failed to discharge the onus.

39. In the given facts and circumstances of the case, the question whether the driver of the offending vehicle was not having a valid and effective driving licence is irrelevant for the reason that at the relevant point of time, the driver was not driving the offending vehicle, but, the same was parked and stationary in order to get the vehicle repaired. The question of valid and effective driving licence has no connection with the death of the deceased. However, the driving licence is on the record as Ext. P-1, the perusal of which does disclose that the driver of the offending vehicle was having a valid and effective driving licence to drive the same at the relevant point of time. Thus, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issue No. 4 are set aside and the same is decided in favour of the driver and owner-insured and against the insurer.

Issue No. 5:

40. It was for the insurer to plead and prove that the offending vehicle was being plied in violation of the terms and conditions of the insurance policy and valid route permit and the owner-insured has committed willful breach. Though, it has been pleaded, that is why this issue came to be framed, but has not led any evidence to prove any breach, not to speak of willful breach, and has failed to discharge the onus. Thus, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issue No. 5 are set aside and the same is decided in favour of the owner-insured and against the insurer.

Issue No. 6:

41. The insurer has not led any evidence to prove that there was any collusion between the appellants-claimants and the owner-insured and driver of the offending vehicle. Thus, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issue No. 6 are set aside and the same is decided against the insurer.

Issue No. 2:

42. The appellants-claimants have pleaded that the monthly income of the deceased was ₹ 8,000/- per month. Admittedly, the deceased was working as a conductor. Thus, by guess work, it can be safely held that the deceased was earning not less than ₹ 4,000/- per month. One fourth is to be deducted towards his personal expenses keeping in view para 30 of the judgment rendered by the Apex Court in the case titled as Sarla Verma (Smt.) and others versus Delhi Transport Corporation and another, reported in AIR 2009 SC 3104 and upheld by a larger Bench of the Apex Court in the case titled as Reshma Kumari & others versus Madan Mohan and another, reported in 2013 AIR SCW 3120. Thus, it can be safely said and held that the claimants have lost source of dependency to the tune of ₹ 3,000/- per month.

43. The claimants have pleaded that the deceased was 28 years of age at the time of the accident. The perusal of the Parivar Register, Ext. PW-3/A, does disclose that the deceased was 29 years of age at relevant point of time.

44. The Apex Court in the case titled as Munna Lal Jain & another versus Vipin Kumar Sharma & others, reported in 2015 AIR SCW 3105, held that the multiplier has to be applied while keeping in view the age of the deceased.

45. In view of the law laid down by the Apex Court in Sarla Verma's case (supra) and upheld by a larger Bench of the Apex Court in Reshma Kumari's case (supra), and Munna Lal Jain's case (supra) read with Second Schedule appended with the MV Act, multiplier of '16' is just and appropriate even if the age of the deceased is taken as 29 years at the relevant point of time.

46. Having said so, the appellants-claimants are held entitled to compensation under the head 'loss of dependency' to the tune of ₹ 3,000/- x 12 x 16 = ₹ 5,76,000/-.

47. The appellants-claimants are also held entitled to compensation to the tune of ₹ 10,000/- each under the heads 'loss of love and affection' 'loss of estate' and 'funeral expenses'.

48. The question is – who is to be saddled with liability?

49. The factum of insurance is admitted. The offending vehicle was insured at the relevant point of time and the risk of employee was covered. Thus, the insurer was to be saddled with liability. Issue No. 2 is decided accordingly.

50. Having glance of the above discussions, the impugned award is set aside, the claim petition is granted, the appellants-claimants are held entitled to compensation to the tune of ₹ 5,76,000/- + ₹ 10,000/- + ₹ 10,000/- + ₹ 10,000/- = ₹ 6,06,000/- with interest @ 7.5% per annum from the date of the claim petition till its realization and the insurer is saddled with liability.

51. The insurer is directed to deposit the awarded amount before the Registry of this Court within eight weeks. On deposition, the same be released in favour of the claimants in equal shares through payee's account cheque or by depositing the same in their respective bank accounts. In case claimant No. 4 is minor, her share be deposited in Fixed Deposit for a period of five years.

52. The appeal is allowed accordingly.

53. Send down the records after placing copy of the judgment on the Tribunal's file.

For the respondents: Mr. Shrawan Dogra, Advocate General, Mr. Anup Rattan, Mr. Romesh Verma, Mr. Varun Chandel, Additional Advocate Generals and Mr. Kush Sharma, Deputy Advocate General.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Chander Bhusan Barowalia, Judge.

The present petition is maintained by the petitioner for directing the respondents to make reference under Section 18 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act') to the learned District Judge, Una, after setting aside the order passed by the Land Acquisition Collector, H.P.P.W.D., (North Zone) Kangra. Respondent No. 2 refused to make reference with respect to Award No. 20, dated 16.08.2007, qua the land alongwith trees of the petitioner in Village Bhadhori, Tehsil Haroli, District Una, H.P., for enhancing the compensation alongwith all consequential benefits available to the petitioner under the Act.

2. The petitioner pleaded that his father was owner of 14 kanals, 10 marlas of land, situate in Village Bhadhori, Tehsil Haroli, District Una, H.P., comprised in Khasra No. 352, measuring 0-13-80 hectares. As per the petitioner, for the purpose of setting up a tubewell, the State of Himachal Pradesh, through the officials of Irrigation and Public Health Department approached his father, who agreed for 5 marlas of land for setting up a tubewell. Thereafter, respondent No. 2 passed Award No. 20 on 16.08.2007 and the compensation was assessed without associating the petitioner or his father in the proceedings at any point of time and only in the month of September, 2008, the petitioner got the knowledge of the said award, when he was asked to receive the compensation. As per the petitioner, he showed his dissatisfaction about the award, being on the lesser side, as the compensation was not paid with respect to trees standing on the land.

3. It is further pleaded by the petitioner that he wrote letter dated 09.09.2008, but the same was not replied and subsequently the petitioner wrote letters on 13.10.2010, 25.04.2011 and 26.04.2011. When no compensation was paid to the petitioner, he moved a petition before the learned Land Acquisition Collector, H.P.P.W.D., (North Zone), Kangra, for making reference to learned District Judge, Una, and vide impugned order, the petition of the petitioner was dismissed by the Land Acquisition Collector, H.P.P.W.D. (North Zone), Kangra, hence the present petition.

4. Reply, on behalf of respondent No. 1, to the petition was filed and the replying respondent denied the contents of the petition. It is averred therein that an amount of Rs.1,13,029/- (rupees one lac thirteen thousand and twenty nine) was paid to the petitioner, Shri Gurbachan Singh, and other co-owner, Shri Parkash Singh, in equal shares. As none of them has objected to the award at the time of receipt of award amount, the present petition is not maintainable. It is further averred that at the time of passing of the award, the petitioner was present. As he was also present at the time of receiving the award amount in the year 2008, if any tree was uprooted he could have objected at that time, but he received the compensation alongwith other co-sharer without any protest.

5. The only question which arose for consideration and determination before this Court is whether the petition is maintainable after such a long delay?

6. It is admitted that the award was announced in the year 2007 and the petitioner alongwith his co-sharer received the amount in the year 2008 without any protest. He only after considerable delay tried to make vain attempts to get something more without any basis and foundation. The petition was presented before the learned Land Acquisition Collector, H.P.P.W.D (North Zone), Kangra, for enhancing the award amount, in 2013.

7. In the given circumstances, the petitioner has not explained the delay, which has crept in. It is apt to record herein that the other co-sharer has not questioned the adequacy of compensation nor sought any remedy. The petitioner has, in fact, tried to misuse the process of law only with an object to grab more money. It has also come in the petition that as the tubewell was being installed for the welfare of the local people, including the petitioner, for supplying the water for agriculture purpose, his father agreed for the acquisition of the land. Whether his father agreed for the acquisition or for giving the land for the welfare purpose is still a point which can only be answered, had the father of the petitioner been alive, but the respondents at their own paid handsome amount of compensation to the petitioner and other co-sharer. The petitioner after six years approached the Land Acquisition Collector, H.P.P.W.D (North Zone), Kangra, to make a reference to the Court of learned District Judge, Una, and the same was dismissed by the Land Acquisition Collector on 21.02.2014 and even thereafter he waited for more than two years to maintain the present petition before this Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

8. In our view the delay, in absence of plausible explanation, is not to be brushed aside cursorily. Our view is fortified by the decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court in R & M Trust vs. Koramangala Residents Vigilance Group and others, (2005) 3 Supreme Court Cases 91, wherein in para 34 of the judgment, the facet of delay is discussed as under:

> "34. There is no doubt that delay is very important factor while exercising extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the constitution. We cannot disturb the third party interest created on account of delay. Even otherwise also why should the Court come to the rescue of a person who is not vigilant of his rights?"

9. The question qua delay and laches has been aptly discussed by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Bhakra Beas Management Board vs. Kirshan Kumar Vij & another, AIR 2010 Supreme Court 3342, para 39 thereof is reproduced hereinbelow in extenso:

> "39. Yet, another question that draws our attention is with regard to delay and laches. In fact, respondent No. 1's petition deserved to be dismissed only on that ground but surprisingly the High Court overlooked that aspect of the matter and dealt with it in a rather casual and cursory manner. The appellant had categorically raised the ground of delay of over eight years in approaching the High Court for grant of the said relief. But the High Court has simply brushed it aside and condoned such an inordinate, long and unexplained delay in casual manner. Since, we have decided the matter on merits, thus it is not proper to make avoidable observations, except to say that the approach of the High Court was neither proper nor legal."

10. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of Jammu & Kashmir vs. R.K. Zalpuri and others, JT 2015 (9) SC 214, explicated that Courts have to remain alive to the nature of claim and unexplained delay by the writ petitioner. Apposite paras 26 to 28 of the judgment are reproduced hereunder for ready reference:

> "26. In the case at hand, the employee was dismissed from service in the year 1999, but he chose not to avail any departmental remedy. He woke up from his slumber to knock at the doors of the High court after a lapse of five years. The staleness of the claim remained stale and it could not have been allowed to rise like a phoenix by the writ Court.
> 27. The grievance agitated by the respondent did not deserve to be addressed on merits, for doctrine of delay and laches and already visited his claim like the chill of death which does not spare anyone even the one who fosters the idea and nurtures the attitude that he can sleep to avoid death and eventually proclaim "Deo gratias" 'thanks to God'.
> 28. Another aspect needs to be stated. A writ court while deciding a writ petition is required to remain alive to the nature of the claim and the unexplained delay on the part of the writ petitioner. Stale claims are not to be adjudicated unless non interference would cause grave injustice. The present case, nee less to emphasize, did not justify adjudicate. It deserved to be thrown overboard at the very threshold, for the writ petitioner had accepted the order of dismissal for half a decade and cultivated the feeling that he could freeze time and forever remain in the realm of constant present."

11. In yet another case the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Delhi Administration and Others vs. Kaushilya Thakur and another, AIR 2012 Supreme Court 2515, it has been held as under:

> "10. We have heard Shri H.P. Raval, learned Additional Solicitor General and Shri Rishikesh, learned counsel for respondent No. 1 and perused the record. In our view, the impugned order as also the one passed by the learned Single Judge are liable to be set aside because;
> (i) While granting relief to the husband of respondent No. 1, the learned Single Judge overlooked the fact that the writ petition had been filed after almost 4 years of the rejection of an application for allotment of 100 sq. yards plot made by Ranjodh Kumar Thakur. The fact that the writ petitioner made further representations could not be made a ground for ignoring the delay for more than 3 years, more so because in the subsequent communication the concerned authorities had merely indicated that the decision contained in the first letter would stand. It is trite to say that in exercise of the power under Article 226 of the Constitution, the High Court cannot entertain belated claims unless the petitioner offers tangible explanation State of M.P. v. Bhailal Bhai (1964) 6 SCR 261."

12. It has been held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Chennai Metropolitan Water Supply and Sewerage Board and others vs. T.T. Murali Babu, (2014) 4 Supreme Court Cases 108, after deliberating upon the whole conspectus of law, that delay cannot be brushed aside without any reason. Paras 13 to 17 of the judgment, being relevant, are extracted below for ready reference:

"13. First, we shall deal with the facet of delay. In Maharashtra SRTC v. Balwant Regular Motor Service, AIR 1969 SC 329, the Court referred to the principle that has been stated by Sir Barnes Peacock in Lindsay Petroleum Co. v. Hurd, (1874) LR 5 PC 221, which is as follows: (Balwant Regular Motor Service case, AIR 1969 SC 329, AIR pp. 33536, para 11)"

"11. .Now the doctrine of laches in Courts of Equity is not an arbitrary or a technical doctrine. Where it would be practically unjust to give a remedy, either because the party has, by his conduct, done that which might fairly be regarded as equivalent to a waiver of it, or where by his conduct and neglect he has, though perhaps not waiving that remedy, yet put the other party in a situation in which it would not be reasonable to place him if the remedy were afterwards to be asserted in either of these cases, lapse of time and delay are most material. But in every case, if an argument against relief, which otherwise would be just, is founded upon mere delay, that delay of course not amounting to a bar by any statute of limitations, the validity of that defence must be tried upon principles substantially equitable. Two circumstances, always important in such cases, are, the length of the delay and the nature of the acts done during the interval, which might affect either party and cause a balance of justice or injustice in taking the one course or the other, so far as relates to the remedy.' (Lindsay Petroleum Co. case, PC pp/ 239 40)"

14. In State of Maharashtra v. Digambar, (1995) 4 SCC 683, while dealing with exercise of power of the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution, the Court observed that:

(SCC p. 692, para 19)

"19. Power of the High Court to be exercised under Article 226 of the Constitution, if is discretionary, its exercise must be judicious and reasonable, admits of no controversy. It is for that reason, a person's entitlement for relief from a High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution, be it against the State or anybody else, even if is founded on the allegation of infringement of his legal right, has to necessarily depend upon unblameworthy conduct of the person seeking relief, and the court refuses to grant the discretionary relief to such person in exercise of such power, when he approaches it with unclean hands or blameworthy conduct."

15. In State of M.P. v. Nandlal Jaiswal, (1986) 4 SCC 566 : AIR 1987 SC 251, the Court observed that : (SCC p. 594, para 24)

" 24. .....it is well settled that power of the High Court to issue an appropriate writ under Article 226 of the Constitution is discretionary and the High Court in exercise of its discretion does not ordinarily assist the tardy and the indolent or the acquiescent and the lethargic."

It has been further stated therein that:

(Nandlal Jaiswal case, (1986) 4 SCC 566: AIR 1987 SC 251, SCC p. 594, para 24)"

"24. .....If there is inordinate delay on the part of the petitioner in filing a petition and such delay is not satisfactorily explained, the High Court may decline to intervene and grant relief in the exercise of its writ jurisdiction."

Emphasis was laid on the principle of delay and laches stating that resort to the extraordinary remedy under the writ jurisdiction at a belated stage is likely to cause confusion and public inconvenience and bring in injustice.

16. Thus, the doctrine of delay and laches should not be lightly brushed aside. A writ court is required to weigh the explanation offered and the acceptability of the same. The court should bear in mind that it is exercising an extraordinary and equitable jurisdiction. As a constitutional court it has a duty to protect the rights of the citizens but simultaneously it is to keep itself alive to the primary principle that when an aggrieved person, without adequate reason, approaches the court at his own leisure or pleasure, the Court would be under legal obligation to scrutinize whether the lis at a belated stage should be entertained or not. Be it noted, delay comes in the way of equity. In certain circumstances delay and laches may not be fatal but in most circumstances inordinate delay would only invite disaster for the litigant who knocks at the doors of the Court. Delay reflects inactivity and inaction on the part of a litigant – a litigant who has forgotten the basic norms, namely, "procrastination is the greatest thief of time" and second, law does not permit one to sleep and rise like a phoenix. Delay does bring in hazard and causes injury to the lis.

17. In the case at hand, though there has been four years' delay in approaching the court, yet the writ court chose not to address the same. It is the duty of the court to scrutinize whether such enormous delay is to be ignored without any justification. That apart, in the present case, such belated approach gains more significance as the respondent employee being absolutely careless to his duty and nurturing a lackadaisical attitude to the responsibility had remained unauthorisedly absent on the pretext of some kind of ill health. We repeat at the cost of repetition that remaining innocuously oblivious to such delay does not foster the cause of justice. On the contrary, it brings in injustice, for it is likely to affect others. Such delay may have impact on others' ripened rights and may unnecessarily drag others into litigation which in acceptable realm of probability, may have been treated to have attained finality. A court is not expected to give indulgence to such indolent persons who compete with 'Kumbhakarna' or for that matter 'Rip Van Winkle'. In our considered opinion, such delay does not deserve any indulgence and on the said ground alone the writ court should have thrown the petition overboard at the very threshold."

13. This Court in LPA No. 228 of 2012, HIMURJA and another vs. Bikram Singh, and other connected matters, decided on 17.05.2016, has held as under:

"23. The same principle has been laid down by this Court in LPA No. 48 of 2011, titled as Shri Satija Rajesh N versus State of Himachal Pradesh and others, decided on 26th August, 2014; LPA No. 150 of 2014, titled as Mr. Inderjit Kumar Dhir versus State of H.P. and others, decided on 17th September, 2014; LPA No. 107 of 2014, titled as Amit Attri and others versus Anil Verma and others, and other connected matters, decided on 3rd December, 2014; and LPA No. 270 of 2010, titled as Bhim Sen Sharma versus H.P. University and another, decided on 2nd May, 2016.

24. Having said so, it can be safely held that the mandate of Limitation Act cannot be given a slip by filing representations, that too, at belated stage."

14. In the instant case, as noticed above, the petitioner wrote four letters to the respondents qua his claim, but he did not prefer the petition before respondent No. 2 for six years, therefore, his claim has become time barred and now he cannot take advantage of communication exchanged inter se the petitioner and the respondents. In a like case, State of Tripura and others vs. Arabinda Chakraborty and others, (2014) 6 Supreme Court Cases 460, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that simply by making representations in absence of any statutory provision/appeal, period of limitation would not get extended. Relevant para 18 of the judgment is reproduced hereunder:

> "18. It is a settled legal position that the period of limitation would commence from the date on which the cause of action takes place. Had there been any statute giving right of appeal to the respondent and if the respondent had filed such a statutory appeal, the period of limitation would have commenced from the date when the statutory appeal was decided. In the instant case, there was no provision with regard to any statutory appeal. The respondent kept on making representations one after another and all the representations had been rejected. Submission of the respondent to the effect that the period of limitation would commence from the date on which his last representation was rejected cannot be accepted. If accepted, it would be nothing but travesty of the law of limitation. One can go on making representations for 25 years and in that event one cannot say that the period of limitation would commence when the last representation was decided. On this legal issue, we feel that the courts below committed an error by considering the date of rejection of the last representation as the date on which the cause of action had arisen. This could not have been done."

15. It has further come in the pleadings of this writ petition, that the father of the petitioner consented for 5 marlas of land for installing a tubewell, which was installed for the welfare of the public, including the petitioner's land.

16. From the above, it seems that first of all the father of the petitioner made the department to install a tubewell, however, the State of Himachal Pradesh paid handsome compensation of Rs.1,13,029/- (one lac thirteen thousand twenty nine) to the petitioner and other co-sharer in two equal shares, which the petitioner did not object at that time, but with greed to have more money without any basis the petitioner approached the Land Acquisition Collector after six years to make reference to the learned District Judge and when the learned Land Acquisition Collector refused to make the reference, after two years the petitioner approached this Court. From the pleadings it is clear that the petitioner is a vigilant and literate man, therefore, the petition is not maintainable due to delay, laches, waiver and acquiescence. The conduct of the petitioner assumes great importance, is suggestive of the fact that he has misused the process of law without there being any cause in his favour and the petition is required to be dismissed alongwith costs.

17. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Wardington Lyngdoh and others vs. The Collector, Mawkyrwat, reported in AIR 1995 Supreme Court 2340, has held that no person who had received the amount without any protest would be entitled to make application under Section 18 of the Act. It is apt to reproduce paragraph 5 of the said judgment hereunder:

> "5. It will thus be clear that the persons interest in the land are entitled to receive compensation awarded by the Collector under S. 11 under protest and entitled to object to the compensation determined by the Collector. No person who had received the amount otherwise than under protest should be entitled to make the application under S. 18. In other words, the receipt of the amount under protest is a condition precedent to make an application under S. 18 within the limitation prescribed under the proviso to sub-s. (2) of S. 18 together with the grounds on which the objections have been taken. Thereon the Collector is enjoined to make a reference to the Civil Court with the statement in the manner stated in S. 19"

18. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Land Acquisition Officer vs. Shivabai and others, reported in AIR 1997 Supreme Court 2642, has held in paragraph 8 of the said judgment as under:

> "8. Shri C. Sitaramiah, learned senior counsel appearing for the respondents, contends that on the Division Bench's direction to make an enquiry into the matter, the Land Acquisition Officer himself has referred the matter. Unless there is a proof of service of the notice of the award under sub-section (2) of Section 12, the limitation does not start. We are unable to agree with the learned counsel. It is now settled law that it is not necessary that the award or its copy should be served on the claimant along with notice under Section 12(2) of the Act. If the parties are not present on the date the award came to be passed, then Collector/Land Acquisition Officer shall give immediate notice of his award. The limitation begins to run from the date of the notice as per proviso to Section 18(2). The date of the award and the date of the receipt of the compensation was incidentally the same date. Under these circumstances, it must be presumed that they were present on the date when the award was made and the compensation was received without any protest. Under these circumstances, they are not entitled to seek any reference."

19. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Bhagwan Das & others vs. State of U.P. and others, reported in 2010 AIR SCW 1629, has expounded the similar principle.

20. Section 18(3)(b) of the Act provides limitation period for seeking reference, which reads as under:

> "18(3)(b). If the Deputy Commissioner does not make a reference to the court within a period of ninety days from the date of receipt of the application, the applicant may apply to the court to direct the Deputy Commissioner to make the reference, and the Court may direct the Deputy Commissioner to make the reference within such time as the Court may fix."

21. At the cost of repetition the petitioner has not availed the remedy as prescribed under Section 18(2) of the Act, as discussed above, and his right has already extinguished. Even otherwise the same was not available to him.

22. In State of Karnataka vs. Laxuman, reported in AIR 2006 Supreme Court 24, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that in case the claimant does not enforce the right available to him within the time prescribed by law in that eventuality the remedy of the claimant to have reference gets extinguished. It is apt to reproduce paragraphs No. 14, 15 and 21 of the said judgment hereunder:

> "14. Extinguishment of a right can be expressly provided for or it can arise by the implication from the statute. Section 18 of the Act as in Karnataka sets out a scheme. Having made an application for reference within time before the Deputy Commissioner, the claimant may lose his right by not enforcing the right available to him within the time prescribed by law. Section 18(3)(a) and Section 18(3)(b) read in harmony, casts an obligation on the claimant to enforce his claim within the period available for it. The scheme brings about a repose. It is based on a public policy that a right should not be allowed to remain a right indefinitely to be used against another at the will and pleasure of the holder of the right by approaching the court whenever he chooses to do so. When the right of the Deputy Commissioner to make the reference on the application of the claimant under Section 18(1) of the Act stands extinguished on the expiry of 3 years and 90 days from the date of application for reference, and the right of the claimant to move the Court for compelling a reference also stands extinguished, the right itself looses its enforceability and thus comes to an end as a result. This is the scheme of Section 18 of the Act as adopted in the State of Karnataka. The High Court is, therefore, not correct in searching for a specific provision bringing about an extinguishment of the right to have a reference and on not finding it, postulating that the right would survive for ever.

15. Under the scheme of Section 18 of the Act as in Karnataka, thus the claimant loses his right to move the Court for reference on the expiry of three years and 90 days from the date of his making an application to the Deputy Commissioner under Section 18 (1) of the Act within the period fixed by Section 18(2) of the Act. This position is now settled by the decision of this Court in The Addl. Spl. Land Acquisition Officer, Bangalore vs. Thakoredas, Major and others (supra). This loss of right to move the court precludes him from seeking a remedy from the court in terms of Section 18 of the Act. This loss of right in the claimant puts an end to the right of the claimant to seek an enhancement of compensation. To say that the Deputy Commissioner can make a reference even after the right in that behalf is lost to the claimant, would be incongruous. Once the right of the claimant to enforce his claim itself is lost on the scheme of Section 18 of the Act, there is no question of the Deputy Commissioner who had violated the mandate of sub-Section 3(a) of Section 18 of the Act, reviving the right of the claimant by making a reference at his sweet-will and pleasure, whatever be the inducement or occasion for doing so. On a harmonious understanding of the scheme of the Act in the light of the general principle that even though a right may not be extinguished, the remedy may become barred, it would be appropriate to hold that on the expiry of three years and 90 days from the date of an application for reference made within time under Section 18(1) of the Act, the remedy of the claimant to have a reference gets extinguished and the right to have an enhancement becomes unenforceable. The Deputy Commissioner would not be entitled to revive a claim which has thus become unenforceable due to lapse of time or non-diligence on the part of the claimant.

21. Then the question is, whether in the context of Section 18 of the Karnataka amendment, the decision of this Court in Thakoredas (supra) and our discussion as above, Section 5 of the Limitation Act could be invoked or would apply to an application under Section 18(3)(b) of the Act. This Court has held that Section 5 of the Limitation Act has no application to proceedings before the Collector or Deputy Commissioner here, while entertaining an application for reference. We see no reason not to accept that position. Then arises the question whether Section 5 could be invoked before the Land Acquisition Court while making an application under Section 18(3)(b) of the Act. We have held in agreement with the earlier Division Bench of the Karnataka High Court, that the right to have a reference enforced through court or through the Deputy Commissioner becomes extinguished on the expiry of three years and 90 days from the date of the application for reference made in time. Consistent with this position it has necessarily to be held that Section 5 of the Limitation Act would not be available since the consequence of not enforcing the right to have a reference made on the scheme of Section 18 of the Act as obtaining in Karnataka, is to put an end to the right to have a reference at all. Since in that sense it is an extinguishment of the right, the right cannot be revived by resorting to Section 5 of the Limitation Act. We may incidentally notice that in Thakoredas (supra) this Court rejected the application under Section 18(3)(b) of the Act which was beyond time, though, of course, there was no specific discussion on this aspect."

23. As a result of the above discussion, the petition is not maintainable being without any merit. Accordingly, the petition is dismissed and the petitioner is saddled with costs of Rs. 10,000/- (rupees ten thousand) to be deposited within two months from today, payable to the respondents. Pending application(s), if any, shall also stand(s) disposed of.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Sureshwar Thakur, Judge

The instant appeal is directed against the judgment rendered on 07.04.2016 by the learned Additional Sessions Judge (II), Una, District Una, H.P. in Sessions trial No.40 of 2014, whereby, the learned trial Court convicted and sentenced the appellants/accused as under:

Sr. No.	Sections	Sentence imposed
1.	302/34, IPC	Sentenced each of the accused to undergo rigorous life imprisonment and to pay a fine of Rs.15,000/- each. In default of payment of fine, the convicts shall further undergo simple imprisonment for a period of one year.
2.	323/34, IPC	Sentenced each of the accused to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of one year and to pay a fine of Rs.1000/- each. In default of payment of fine amount, the convicts shall further undergo simple imprisonment for a period of three months .
3.	324, IPC	Sentenced each of the accused to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of 3 years and to pay a fine of Rs.3000/- each. In default of payment of fine amount, the convicts shall further undergo simple imprisonment for a period of six months.

2. Brief facts of the case which are necessary to determine the appeal are that on 18.3.2014, SHO, Police Station, Haroli received an information on his mobile phone that a person had died in a scuffle at village Baliwal. Upon this, the SI/SHO along with HHC Dilbari Lal reached Baliwal at about 11.00 p.m. where ASI Paras Ram was already present along with other police officials and had secured the spot. One Sukhwinder Singh, son of late Sh. Narinder Singh got his statement recorded under Section 154 Cr.P.C. stating that he was a resident of village Pubowal. He had lost his parents whereafter he as well as his younger brother had been brought to the house of his maternal grand parents. About four months ago, he had solemnized love marriage with one Puja, who was the sister-in-law of his maternal uncle, Nirmal Singh. On account of the fact that his maternal uncles did not approve his marriage with Puja, both of his uncles namely Nirmal Singh and Sadhu Singh nourished ill will against him. He further stated that he was a crane operator at Baddi and had come home from Baddi on 18.3.2014. At about 8.30 p.m., he along with his friends, Daljit Singh alias Deepu and one Babbi had come to the maternal house of the complainant at Baliwal, to meet his maternal grandmother. They had come on a motorcycle make Pulsar PB-08-BL-1390. When they reached the maternal house of the complainant, both the maternal uncles were present there. When the complainant tried to touch the feet of his maternal uncles, they started hurling abuses at him and also tried to assault him. Considering the sensitivity of the situation, the complainant along with his two friends left the place on their motorcycle. When they had reached near Senior Secondary School Baliwal, Babi stated that his purse had been dropped somewhere, upon which all of them got down and started looking for the purse. Suddenly, the maternal uncles of the complainant, namely Sadhu Singh and Nirmal Singh along with truck driver Ramesh, came to the spot riding motor cycle No. HP-20C-3641, which was being driven by Sadhu Singh. They suddenly got down from the motorcycle and started assaulting the complainant and his friends. Sadhu Singh gave danda blows, Ramesh Kicks and fist blows to the complainant and his friends and Nirmal Singh gave blows with a darat to the complainant and Daljit Singh. The complainant suffered injuries on his left hand as a result of the blow from the darat. Daljit Singh received darat blow on his face near left side of his neck and also on the right hand. The complainant Sukhwinder Singh and his friend Babi ran away from the spot to save their life, but Daljit Singh could not do so and fell down. As a result of the injuries received by Daljit Singh he died on the spot. It was thus stated that Nirmal Singh, Sadhu Singh and Ramesh had caused injuries to complainant and Babi and murdered Daljit Singh. On the basis of the statement of the complainant, FIR was registered at the police station concerned. After the registration of the FIR, the police started the investigation in the case and concluded all the formalities thereto.

3. On conclusion of investigations, into the offences, allegedly committed by the accused, a report under Section 173 of the Code of Criminal Procedure was prepared and filed in the competent Court.

4. The accused were charged by the learned trial Court for theirs committing offences punishable under Sections 302, 323 and 324 read with Section 34 of the IPC to which they pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

5. In order to prove its case, the prosecution examined 28 witnesses. On closure of prosecution evidence, the statements of accused, under Section 313 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, were recorded in which they pleaded innocence. However, they have not led any defence evidence.

6. On an appraisal of evidence on record, the learned trial Court, returned findings of conviction against the accused/appellants.

7. The accused/appellants are aggrieved by the judgment of conviction recorded by the learned trial Court. The learned defence counsel for the appellants has concertedly and vigorously contended qua the findings of conviction recorded by the learned trial Court standing not based on a proper appreciation of evidence on record, rather, theirs standing sequelled by gross mis-appreciation of material on record. Hence, he contends qua the findings of conviction being reversed by this Court in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction and theirs being replaced by findings of acquittal.

8. On the other hand, the learned Additional Advocate General has with considerable force and vigour, contended qua the findings of conviction recorded by the Court below standing based on a mature and balanced appreciation of evidence on record and theirs not necessitating interference, rather theirs meriting vindication.

9. This Court with the able assistance of the learned counsel on either side, has, with studied care and incision, evaluated the entire evidence on record.

10. Preceding the ill-fated occurrence which occurred on 18.3.2014 near Senior Secondary School, Baliwal, PW-1, an ocular witness thereto testifies qua his along with deceased Daljit Singh and PW-7 Babi visiting the house of his maternal grand mother at Village Baliwal. Whereat he testifies qua his maternal uncles, accused Nirmal Singh and accused Sadhu Singh being also present. He testifies qua both his maternal uncles arraigned as accused, nursing ill will against him on account of his contracting a love marriage with one Puja Devi, who stands related to accused Nirmal Singh being his sister-in-law (sali). He proceeds to testify qua despite his proceeding to seek blessings of his uncles by touching their feet, both yet proceeding to abuse him and quarrel with him, in course whereof, the shirt of Babi (PW-7) was torn. The incident aforesaid which occurred at Baliwal, constrained PW-1 to along with his friends, one amongst whom was deceased Daljit Singh, to depart therefrom on motor cycle bearing No. PB-08-BL-1390 driven by deceased Daljit Singh. However, he testifies of, on their arriving at Senior Secondary School, Baliwal, a communication stand made by PW-7, Babi to him qua his dropping his purse whereupon they by alighting from the motorcycle proceeded to make a search for it. However, during the course of theirs launching a search for locating the purse of PW-7, the accused atop a motor cycle bearing No. HP-20C-3641 driven by accused Sadhu Singh abruptly arrived thereat. He deposes of all the aforesaid on alighting from the motorcycle proceeded to assault them with danda and fist blows. Sadhu Singh stands testified by PW-1 to wield a danda whereas accused Nirmal Singh is testified by him to be wielding a darat (sickle). He makes a communication in his deposition of accused Nirmal Singh assaulting him with a darat in sequel whereof his finger was injured whereafter he deposes of accused Nirmal Singh delivering a blow with a sickle on the arm of Daljit Singh, assault whereof thereon, stood succeeded by his delivering a blow with darat, Ex. S-1, on the neck of deceased Daljit Singh. However, he deposes of his fleeing from the site of occurrence and hiding himself in bushes wherefrom he witnessed of accused Nirmal Singh and Sadhu Singh administering fist blows on PW-7 Babi and Daljit Singh. He continues to depose of PW-7 also fleeing from the spot besides of accused Ramesh fleeing from the site of occurrence and on the latter raising outcries, in response whereof people gathered at the spot.

11. The aforesaid ocular narrative qua the occurrence bespoken by PW-1 holds absolute concurrence vis-a-vis his previous statement recorded in writing. His testimony qua the occurrence when bereft of any taint of any gross, blatant besides stark contradictions embodied in his examination-in-chief vis-a-vis his cross-examination gives a firm impetus to this Court to erect thereupon a formidable conclusion of his rendering a truthful ocular rendition qua the occurrence. His ocular account qua the ill-fated occurrence significantly qua the factum of his standing struck with danda blows by accused Sadhu Singh besides qua other co-accused belabouring him with fist blows also his rendering an untainted ocular rendition qua the trite factum of accused Nirmal Singh with sickle (darat), Ex.S-1 striking a fatal blow on the neck of deceased Daljeet Singh is a potent display of his proving the inculpatory role of the accused in the ill-fated occurrence. His truthful ocular rendition qua the ill-fated occurrence stands firmly corroborated by the apposite MLC prepared qua him by the doctor concerned, MLC whereof stands embodied in Ex.PW15/A. Furthermore, with PW-27, Dr. Piyush Nanda, Medical Officer, who subjected the deceased Daljit Singh to postmortem examination in sequel whereof he prepared postmortem report comprised in Ex.PW27/B vividly pronouncing in his testification of the relevant injuries noticed by him to be occurring on the body of the deceased being sequelable by user thereon of Darat, Ex. S-1 recovered at the instance of accused Nirmal Singh under memo Ex.PW8/D, preceding whereof his apposite disclosure statement comprised in Ex.PW 8/A stood recorded, gives a vigorous clout to a tenacious inference qua the ocular testimony qua the occurrence rendered by PW-1 attaining a sacrosanct virtue of truth by probative corroborative evidence aforesaid besides hence its warranting credibility being fastened thereto.

12. The ocular account qua the occurrence rendered by PW-1 though concerted to be corroborated by PW-7, Babi, also an ocular witness thereto yet PW-7 reneged from his previous statement recorded in writing whereupon the defence endeavours to impute incredibility to the testification of PW-1 arousable from the factum of the testification of the PW-1 standing omitted to be corroborated by PW-7. However, the testification of PW-7, who reneged from his previous statement recorded in writing hence in his examination-in-chief unfolds echoings qua the ill-fated occurrence adversarial to the success of the prosecution case, would not beget the sequel of its yet suffering the ill-fate qua its standing omnibusly axed nor his testification embodied in in his examination-in-chief alone would dispel the vigour in its entirety of his testimony unless he in his cross-examination akin to his examination-in-chief makes alike unfoldments qua the occurrence, unfoldments whereof are adversarial to the success of the prosecution case. Consequently, only on a wholesome reading of his testimony would an apt conclusion be garnerable therefrom qua whether his meteing or omitting to mete corroboration qua the relevant factum probandum unfolded by PW-1. Also there is no trite exposition of law, of the testimony of a hostile prosecution witness being omnibusly discardable. Contrarily, the principle of law enjoined to be borne in mind while evaluating the testimony of a hostile prosecution witness, is of it standing read in a wholesome manner, reading whereof when unfolds qua his on material particulars supporting the prosecution case, especially qua the factum probandum besides the trite factum deposed by PW-1, his testification occurring in his examination-in-chief though adversarial to the prosecution case being discardable. Contrarily, his relevant testification qua the fulcrum of the the ill-fated occurrence embodied in his cross-examination, if corroborative vis-a-vis the rendition of an ocular account thereto by PW-1, warranting deference. Bearing in mind the trite principle aforesaid, this Court proceeds to incisively besides with keen discernment appraise his testimony. In his cross-examination, he corroborates PW-1 qua accused Sadhu Singh holding him by his collars sequeling his shirt getting torn also he corroborates PW-1 qua on their arriving near Government Senior Secondary School, Baliwal, on his thereat detecting his purse located in his pocket not occurring therein, theirs launching a search for its location. Though, he contradicts PW-1 qua the accused while standing armed with danda and sickle (darat) theirs on a motorcycle abruptly arriving thereat also he contradicts PW-1 of the accused belabouring PW-1 with stick besides darat, Ex. S-1. He further contradicts PW-1 of the accused belabouring PW-1 with fist blows. In addition, he contradicts PW-1 qua accused Nirmal Singh inflicting a sickle blow on the neck of deceased Daljit Singh. However, he attributes the occurrence to some unknown persons. Nonetheless, the effect, if any, of his qua the aforesaid facet contradicting PW-1 stands benumbed rather negated by his acquiescing to the suggestion put to him by the PP concerned while holding him to cross-examination qua his fleeing from the spot for saving himself from the assault perpetrated by the accused. His acquiescence qua the facet aforesaid is a visible loud display of his ascribing an incriminatory role vis-a-vis the accused. Besides he also acquiesces qua the factum of PW-1 fleeing from the spot. The further effect qua his acquiescences qua the factum of his receiving injuries on his back and arm besides of his acquiescing in his cross-examination qua his departing from the site of occurrence for obviating his standing assaulted by the accused, is qua theirs cumulatively besides tellingly hold an effect qua his thereupon corroborating PW-1 qua the assault at the relevant site of occurrence standing perpetrated by the accused. Also hence it subsumes the factum of his attribution in his testification embodied in his examination-in-chief qua the relevant assault standing perpetrated by some unknown persons. Contrarily, the effect of his acquiescences to the suggestions put to him by the PP concerned while holding him to cross-examination embodying therewithin the factum of his in the relevant occurrence standing inflicted with injuries on his back and arm by the accused is an abundant portrayal of his lending corroboration to the ocular rendition qua the occurrence by PW-1, wherein the latter efficaciously besides emphatically proves the genesis of the prosecution case. Since the effect of the aforesaid acquiescences made by PW-7 hold tenacity for giving corroborative vigour to the ocular rendition qua the occurrence by PW-1, hence reverence is enjoined to be meted thereto, despite his in the earlier portion of his testification rendering a version qua the occurrence contradictory to the one deposed qua it by PW-1. Conspicuously, when it is the trite expostulation of law, of with a hostile prosecution witness on material particulars lending succor to the genesis of the prosecution case, his corroborative testimony qua the relevant facets ocularly testified by PW-7 warranting imputation of credibility thereto. In sequel, when on a wholesome reading of the testimony of PW-7, it stands concluded qua his testimony imputing vigorous corroborative succor to the rendition of an ocular account qua the occurrence by PW-1 whereupon hence an invincible conclusion qua the prosecution succeeding to prove the guilt of the accused is unfailingly ensuable. As an apt sequitur thereto, the contention of the learned counsel for the appellants of with PW-7 reneging from his previous statement recorded in writing, hence, his not corroborating the ocular rendition qua the occurrence by PW-1 effacing the credibility of PW-1 stands negated also warrants its standing discountenanced by this Court.

13. The factum of efficacy of recovery of darat, Ex.S-1 by the Investigating Officer at the instance of accused Nirmal Singh under recovery memo Ex.PW8/B, preceding whereof his apposite disclosure statement stood recorded comprised in Ex.PW8/A, stands evinced from apposite credible testifications of recovery witnesses thereto. The aforesaid efficacious proof of recovery of the relevant weapon of offence firmly connects the accused in the commission of the offences alleged.

14. Be that as it may, with revelations occurring in Ex.PW28/J, exhibit whereof constitutes the apposite report of the FSL concerned qua the occurrence of blood group 'O' on darat, Ex.S-1, blood group whereof belonged to deceased Daljit Singh, does also unfailingly connect the accused in the commission of the offences alleged. Prominently, darat, Ex. S-1 stands deposed by PW-1 to be the relevant weapon of offence with user whereof accused Nirmal Singh inflicted a fatal blow on the neck of deceased Daljit Singh also consequently when its evident efficacious recovery stood effectuated by the Investigating Officer at the instance of accused Nirmal Singh besides with Ex.PW28/J making articulations qua the occurrence of blood on the clothes of accused also qua occurrence of blood on the relevant weapon of offence, occurrence whereof thereon stands not explicated by the accused, hence firmly connects him with the commission of the offences alleged also lends sustainable vehement force to the conclusion as formed by the trial Court qua the testimony of PW-7 even when he in his examination-in-chief contradicts PW-1, his aforesaid relevant admissions, on material accounts qua the factum probandum qua the genesis of the prosecution case occurring in his cross-examination when mete vigorous corroboration to the ocular renditions qua the occurrence by PW-1, hence enjoying probative tenacity.

15. With the accused on motorcycle bearing No. HP-20C-3641 driven by accused Sadhu Singh chasing PW-1, PW-7 besides Daljit Singh upto Senior Secondary School, Baliwal whereat they stood armed also with accused Nirmal Singh and Sadhu Singh, the maternal uncles of PW-1 evidently nursing ill will against him on account of his marrying the sister-in-law (sali) of accused Nirmal Singh, hence with theirs holding incendiarised frayed tempers against PW-1 is a palpable display of theirs holding a premeditated mensrea to commit the offence alleged. Consequently, with theirs in unison assaulting PW-1, PW-7 besides deceased Daljit Singh, hence, even if the relevant fatal injury on the person of deceased stood delivered by accused Nirmal Singh would not per se render the other co-accused unamenable to conviction. Contrarily with theirs in unison chasing the aforesaid uptill the Senior Secondary School, Baliwal, hence unfolding their premeditated mansrea to launch an assault upon them besides when on their abrupt arrival at the site of occurrence they in unison assaulted PW-1, PW-7 and deceased Daljit

Singh, they are all to be construable to be amenable to theirs holding a joint or a common premeditated mensrea to commit the offences alleged. Even though Ramesh did not carry any weapon of offence yet with his joining the company of other co-accused from the latters home upto the site of occurrence, he is to be hence construed to be since his joining the company of other co-accused upto the site of occurrence all throughout besides at the site of occurrence holding both knowledge besides a joint inculpable mensrea with them to commit the relevant offences. Conspicuously, when he arrived upto the site of occurrence with other co-accused, with the latter holding the relevant weapons of offences, he is to be concluded qua his sharing a premeditated joint mensrea along with them to commit the offences alleged. In sequel, he is amenable for vicarious criminal inculpation with them.

16. The summom bonum of the aforesaid discussion is that the learned trial Court below has appraised the entire evidence on record in a wholesome and harmonious manner apart therefrom the analysis of the material on record by the learned trial Court does not suffer from any perversity or absurdity of mis-appreciation and non appreciation of the evidence on record, rather it has aptly appreciated the material available on record.

17. Consequently, there is no merit in the instant appeal and it is accordingly dismissed. In sequel, the judgment impugned before this Court is maintained and affirmed. Records be sent back forthwith.

For the petitioners: Mr. Sanjeev Kuthiala, Advocate.
For the respondents: Mr. Pankaj Negi, Deputy Advocate General, for respondents No. 1 to 3.
Mr. Rajnish K. Lal, Advocate, for respondent No. 4.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Ajay Mohan Goel, Judge :

By way of the present writ petition, the petitioners have prayed for the following reliefs:

> "(i) To call for the records of the case pertaining to revision Petition No. 112 of 2009, titled Pankaj Kumar versus Jitender Kumar and others and after examining the legality and propriety of the impugned order Annexure P-8, to set aside the same.
> (ii) That in the alternative, to direct respondent No. 3 to decide the matter in a time bound schedule with respect to the grant of Nautor of the land in question and also ensure the protection of the rights of the petitioner during this period and also the status with respect to the ownership and possession and the revenue entries.
> (iii) Any other relief which this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper in the facts and circumstances of the case may also kindly be granted in favour of the petitioner and as against the respondent."

2. Brief facts necessary for the adjudication of the present case are that predecessor of the petitioners, namely Shri Gosain applied for grant of Nautor land in the year 1960, which Nautor was sanctioned in favour of Shri Gosain vide order dated 10.01.1975. Pursuant to objections filed by one Shri Tawaira against the said sanction, the same was set aside by respondent No. 1 vide order dated 07.08.1992 on the ground that the portion of sanctioned land was not suitable for horticulture purpose. Respondent No. 1 directed Deputy Commissioner, Mandi/Sub Divisional Officer (Civil), Chachiyot to give alternative land to the petitioners. Pursuant to the said order, Sub Divisional Officer (Civil) sanctioned 4-3-10 bighas of land comprised in Khasra Nos. 620,1682/633/2, 1682/633/3, 1584/1171/1, 296/1, 1724/1588/2, 1703/1316/1, Kita 8, situated in Mohal Gohar, Tehsil Chachiot in favour of the petitioners. Thereafter, mutation was also entered in favour of the petitioners and consequent upon the mutation of grant of Nautor land, jamabandi for revenue estate was also prepared and in the jamabandi for the year 2000-2001, names of the petitioners were shown as owners in possession pertaining to the land in issue. As per the petitioners, on the basis of said grant, they had developed the land and also made it cultivable. They were growing crops on the same by way of barricading and fencing by barbed wires.

3. The grant of above land by way of Nautor in the year 1992 was again challenged by way of an appeal filed under Rule 28 of the Himachal Pradesh Nautor Land Rules, 1968 before the Court of Deputy Commissioner, Mandi in the year 2006 by one Pankaj Kumar (present respondent No. 4). Deputy Commissioner, Mandi vide order dated 27.11.2006 dismissed the appeal so filed by inter alia holding that there was no infirmity in the grant of said land by way of Nautor in the year 1992 in favour of the petitioners and by further holding that the appeal was also hopelessly barred by limitation.

4. Feeling aggrieved by the said order passed by Deputy Commissioner, Mandi dated 27.11.2006, Pankaj Kumar filed an appeal before the next appellate authority provided under Rule 28 of the Himachal Pradesh Nautor Land Rules, 1968, i.e. Divisional Commissioner, Mandi Division. Divisional Commissioner, Mandi forwarded the case to the Financial Commissioner (Appeals), Himachal Pradesh by way of recommendation on the basis of reasonings returned by the said authority vide order dated 23.07.2009 passed in Case No 95/2007, which order with the consent of parties was taken on record by this Court on 07.09.2016 as the same was necessary for the purpose of adjudication of the case. Learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) vide decision dated 04.05.2010 agreed with the recommendation of Divisional Commissioner, Mandi Division and set aside order dated 27.11.2006 passed by Deputy Commissioner, Mandi in File No. 2 of 2006 as well as order of Sub Divisional Officer (Civil), Chachiyot at Gohar sanctioning grant of Nautor land in favour of the petitioners. Financial Commissioner (Appeals) also remanded the case back to Sub Divisional Officer (Civil) to decide the case afresh in light of the observations made by him in order dated 04.05.2010. This order passed by Financial Commissioner (Appeals) is under challenged by way of the present writ petition.

5. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and have also carefully gone through the documents produced on record by the respective parties.

6. Order dated 27.11.2006 passed by Deputy Commissioner, Mandi in File No. 2 of 2006 was an adjudication done by the said authority in an appeal which was filed by Pankaj Kumar (i.e. respondent No. 4 in the present writ petition) under Rule 28 of the Himachal Pradesh Nautor Land Rules, 1968. Under the provisions of Rule 28 of the Himachal Pradesh Nautor Land Rules, 1968 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Nautor Rules'), further appeal from the appellate order of Deputy Commissioner lies to the Commissioner within 30 days from the date of the order. It is an admitted fact that feeling aggrieved by the order dated 27.11.2006 Pankaj Kumar filed an appeal before Divisional Commissioner, Mandi Division against the appellate order passed by Deputy Commissioner. However, Commissioner rather than deciding the said appeal as an appellate Court, ordered the appeal to be treated as Revision under the Nautor Rules and thereafter went upon to recommend Financial Commissioner (Appeals), Himachal Pradesh for passing of an appropriate order as it deemed fit. This is evident from perusal of order dated 23.07.2009, last part of which is quoted hereinbelow:

> "In view of the above observations, the present appeal, which has been ordered to be treated as a revision under the H.P. Nautor Land Rules, 1968, is recommended to the learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals), Himachal Pradesh, Shimla (HP) for passing an appropriate order as deems fit in the present revision. All relevant record files be submitted along with this recommendation. Since, the order in this appeal was kept reserve as such a copy of this order be communicated to he parties through a registered post. A copy of the order be sent to the lower courts for information."

7. The factum of Pankaj Kumar having filed an appeal against the appellate order passed by the Deputy Commissioner is also evident from Annexure P-7 in which the type of case is mentioned as 'Nautor Appeal'. In fact Annexure P-7 is the official communication through which the matter was sent by way of recommendation for further adjudication to Financial Commissioner (Appeals), Himachal Pradesh. Financial Commissioner (Appeals) acting on the recommendation so made by Commissioner, Mandi Division in Case No. 95/2007 dated 23.07.2009 passed order dated 04.05.2010, impugned in the present petition, and vide said order, while agreeing with the recommendation of Commissioner, Mandi Division, said authority set aside order passed by Deputy Commissioner, Mandi dated 27.11.2006 passed in File No. 2 of 2006 as well as order of Sub Divisional Officer (Civil), Chachiyot at Gohar sanctioning grant of Nautor land in favour of the present petitioners. Financial Commissioner (Appeals) further ordered the case to be remanded to Sub Divisional Officer (Civil) with a direction to decide the case afresh in the light of observations made in the order after following proper procedure as laid down in Nautor Rules.

8. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and also gone through the records of the case.

9. In my considered view, the act of Divisional Commissioner, Mandi Division of treating the appeal filed by Pankaj Kumar against the appellate order of Deputy Commissioner as a Revision under the Himachal Pradesh Nautor Land Rules, 1968 and thereafter recommending the case to Financial Commissioner (Appeals), Himachal Pradesh for passing appropriate order was totally unjustified and illegal. The power of appeal and the power of revision conferred upon different authorities under the provisions of Nautor Rules are totally different and distinct. Rule 28 of the said Rules deals with power of appeal, whereas Rule 30 deals with power of revision. Both these Rules are quoted hereinbelow:

"28. An appeal from the order of the S.D.O. (C) under rule 16 shall lie to the Deputy Commissioner within 60 days from the date of the order. A further appeal from the appellate order of the Deputy Commissioner shall lie to the Commissioner within 60 days from the date of the order. In the case of original grant made by the Deputy Commissioner, an appeal from his order shall lie to the Commissioner within 60 days from the date of order and a second appeal to the Financial Commissioner within 90 days from the date of order;

Provided that no second appeal shall lie when the original order is confirmed on first appeal.

30. Revision.-(1) The Financial Commissioner may at any time call for the record of any case pending before, or disposed of by any officer subordinate to him.*

(2) The Commissioner may at any time call for the record of any case pending before, or disposed of by any officer subordinate to him.

(3) If, in any case, in which the Commissioner has called for the record, he is of the opinion that the proceeding taken order made should be modified or reversed, he shall report the case with his opinion thereon for the orders of the Financial Commissioner.

(4) The Financial Commissioner may in any case called for by himself under sub-rule (i) or reported to him under sub-rule (iii) pass such order as he thinks fit.

Provided that he shall not under this rule pass any order reversing or modifying any proceedings or orders of the subordinate Revenue Officer without giving the parties concerned an opportunity of being herd."

10. A perusal of the provisions of Rule 30 demonstrate that in exercise of its revisional powers, Commissioner may at any time call for the record of any case pending or disposed of by any officer subordinate to him and if in any case in which Commissioner has called for the record he is of the opinion that the said proceeding should be modified or reversed, then he shall report the case with his opinion thereon for the orders of the Financial Commissioner.

11. In the present case, the proceedings before the Commissioner were not by way of Revision. The proceedings with which the Commissioner was seized were appellate proceedings. Rule 28 of the Nautor Rules does not contain any such provision that while exercising its appellate powers, Commissioner can convert the said appeal into a revision and thereafter proceed with the matter as if he was hearing a revision petition.

12. Therefore, in my considered view, the act of the Commissioner of converting the appeal into a revision petition and thereafter recommending the same for further action to the Financial Commissioner (Appeals) as per the provisions of Rule 30 of the Nautor Rules rather than adjudicating upon the same as an appellate Court was an act without jurisdiction. As the recommendation made by Divisional Commissioner to the Financial Commissioner vide order dated 23.07.2009 was a nullity, the subsequent order passed by the Financial Commissioner (Appeals) in Revision Petition No. 112/2009 dated 04.05.2010 on the basis of recommendation made by Divisional Commissioner, Mandi is also non est and not sustainable in law.

13. Therefore, in view of the discussion held above, the writ petition is allowed. Order dated 04.05.2010 passed by Financial Commissioner (Appeals), Himachal Pradesh, Camp at Mandi in Revision Petition No. 112/2009 appended with the petition as Annexure P-8 is quashed and set aside and so is the recommendation made by Divisional Commissioner, Mandi dated 23.07.2009. The case is accordingly remanded back to Divisional Commissioner, Mandi Division for adjudication afresh from the stage of appeal which was filed by Pankaj Kumar against the appellate order passed by Deputy Commissioner, Mandi. It is made clear that the appeal shall be heard and adjudicated by Divisional Commissioner, Mandi Division on merit totally uninfluenced by any observations made by this Court or in the orders/recommendation earlier passed by Financial Commissioner (Appeals) and Divisional Commissioner, Mandi which have been set aside by this Court. It goes without saying that while deciding the appeal, Divisional Commissioner, Mandi Division will take into consideration all the issues raised before it by both the parties including that of locus standi as well as delay and latches/limitation and maintainability of the second appeal. Keeping in view the fact that the matter is an old one, this Court hopes and trusts that Divisional Commissioner, Mandi shall made all endeavour to adjudicate upon the appeal as expeditiously as possible.

With the said directions, the present writ petition is disposed of. No order as to costs.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice (oral)

This appeal is directed against the award, dated 17th October, 2013, passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Mandi, District Mandi, H.P., (for short, "the Tribunal") in Claim Petition No.33 of 2012, titled Jubeda Bibi and another vs. Hassan Ali and others, whereby the claim petition came to be dismissed, (for short the "impugned award").

2. Facts of the case, in brief, are that the claimants, being the parents of deceased Mohamad Usman Haider, who died in a vehicular accident, which took place on 10th July, 2009 at about 8.30 p.m. at Dhanotu, near Punjabi Dhaba and Sheetla Gas Agency, Tehsil Sundernagar, District Mandi, invoked the jurisdiction of the Tribunal under Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, (for shot, the Act), for compensation to the tune of Rs.20.00 lacs, as per the break-ups given in the claim petition.

3. The claim petition was resisted by the respondents and following issues were framed:

1. Whether Sh.Mohamad Usman Haider died in a road side accident on 10-7-2009, involving vehicle No.HP-31A-4822, being driven by respondent No.2 in a rash and negligent manner? OPP

2. If issue No.1 is proved in affirmative, for what amount of compensation, the claimants are entitled and from whom? OPP

3. Whether the present claim petition is not maintainable in view of the preliminary objection No.1 as taken by the respondents No.1 and 2? OPR-1 & 2

4.Whether the petition is bad for non joinder of necessary party? OPR 1 & 2.

5. Whether the vehicle involved in the accident was being driven by the appellant who was not holding a valid and effective driving licence to drive the vehicle at the time of accident? OPR

6. Whether the vehicle in question was being plied in contravention of terms and conditions of insurance policy, if so its effect? OPR-3

7. Relief.

4. Claimant No.1 Jubeda Bibi, in support of the claim set out in the claim petition, appeared in the witness box as PW-1. The claimants also examined three more witnesses i.e. PW-2 Munish Mohamad, PW-3 HC Sanjeev Kumar and PW-4 Ravinder Kumar. Respondents No.1 and 2, i.e. the owner and the driver of the offending truck, appeared in the witness box as RW-1 and RW-2 respectively. The insurer has not examined any witness.

5. It is apt to record herein that respondent No.4 i.e. National Insurance Company Limited was deleted from the array of respondents vide order dated 13th September, 2012, passed by the Tribunal in the Claim Petition.

6. The Tribunal, after scanning the evidence, held that the claimants had failed to prove that Sanjeev Kumar, (respondent No.2) had driven the offending truck bearing No.HP-31A-4822 rashly and negligently on the fateful day and had caused the accident.

7. After hearing the learned counsel for the parties and after having gone through the record, I am of the considered view that the said findings recorded by the Tribunal are not borne out from the record and are required to be set aside for the reasons given hereinbelow.

8. The claimants have specifically pleaded in the claim petition that FIR bearing No.195/09, dated 10th July, 2009, under Sections 279, 337 and 304 of the IPC was registered at Police Station, Sundernagar, District Mandi, H.P. The said FIR has been proved on record as Ext.PW-3/A, a perusal of which clearly shows that the same was recorded against respondent No.2 Sanjeev Kumar, driver of the offending truck. Final report in terms of Section 173 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, (for short, Cr.P.C.) was presented before the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sundernagar, against respondent No.2 Sanjeev Kumar, which, as informed during the course of hearing, is still pending.

9. Thus, from the above, it is clear that the findings recorded by the Tribunal are erroneous and against the concept of granting compensation. The Tribunal, while dismissing the claim petition, seems to have applied the standard of proof required in criminal proceedings, which is against the spirit of awarding compensation in accident cases. While awarding compensation in Claim Petitions arising out of a vehicular accident, the Tribunal has to keep in mind that the victims of a vehicular accident have to establish prima facie that the injury or the death was due to the rash and negligent driving of a motor vehicle.

10. It is beaten law of the land that the Courts, while determining the cases of compensation in vehicular accidents, must not succumb to the niceties and hyper technicalities of law. It is also well established principle of law that negligence in vehicular accident cases has to be decided on the hallmark of preponderance of probabilities and not on the basis of proof beyond reasonable doubt. Furthermore, the claimants claiming compensation in terms of Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, (for short, the Act), is not to be seen as an adversial litigation, but is to be determined while keeping in view the aim and object of granting compensation.

11. My this view is fortified by the judgment of the Apex Court in Dulcina Fernandes and others vs. Joaquim Xavier Cruz and another, (2013) 10 SCC 646.

12. The Apex Court in Savita vs. Bindar Singh & others, 2014 AIR SCW 2053, has held that at the time of fixing compensation, courts should not succumb to niceties or technicalities of law. It is apt to reproduce paragraph 6 of the said decision hereunder:

> "6. After considering the decisions of this Court in Santosh Devi (Supra) as well as Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh (supra), we are of the opinion that it is the duty of the Court to fix a just compensation. At the time of fixing such compensation, the court should not succumb to the niceties or technicalities to grant just compensation in favour of the claimant. It is the duty of the court to equate, as far as possible, the misery on account of the accident with the compensation so that the injured or the dependants should not face the vagaries of life on account of discontinuance of the income earned by the victim. Therefore, it will be the bounden duty of the Tribunal to award just, equitable, fair and reasonable compensation judging the situation prevailing at that point of time with reference to the settled principles on assessment of damages. In doing so, the Tribunal can also ignore the claim made by the claimant in the application for compensation with the prime object to assess the award based on the principle that the award should be just, equitable, fair and reasonable compensation."

13. A reference may also be made to the decision of the Apex Court in Sohan Lal Passi v. P.Sesh Reddy and others, AIR 1996 Supreme Court 2627, in which, in paragraph 12, it was observed that the courts, while deciding claim petitions, must keep in mind that the right of the claimants is not defeated on technical grounds. Relevant portion of paragraph 12 of the said decision is reproduced hereunder:

> "12. ..... While interpreting the contract of insurance, the Tribunal and Courts have to be conscious of the fact that right to claim compensation by heirs and legal representatives of the victims of the accident is not defeated on technical grounds. Unless it is established on the materials on record that it was the insured who had wilfully violated the condition of the policy by allowing a person not duly licensed to drive the vehicle when the accident took place, the insurer shall be deemed to be a judgment debtor in respect of the liability in view of sub-section (1) of Section 96 of the Act. It need not be pointed out that the whole concept of getting the vehicle insured by an insurance company is to provide an easy mode of getting compensation by the claimants, otherwise in normal course they had to pursue their claim against the owner from one forum to the other and ultimately to execute the order of the Accident Claims Tribunal for realisation of such amount by sale of properties of the owner of the vehicle. The procedure and result of the execution of the decree is well known."

14. This Court also, in the recent past, in series of judgments, has followed the similar principle and held that aim and object of awarding compensation in vehicular accident cases is just to ameliorate the sufferings of the victims and compensation is to be granted without succumbing to the niceties of law, hyper-technicalities and procedural wrangles and tangles.

15. Having said so, it is held that the claimants have proved that the driver, namely, Sanjeev Kumar, respondent No.2, had driven the offending truck rashly and negligently on the fateful day and had caused the accident in which the son of the claimants lost his life. Accordingly, the findings recorded by the Tribunal on issue No.1 are set aside.

16. Before dealing with issue No.2, I deem it proper to deal with other issues.

Issues No.3

17. This issue pertains to the maintainability of the claim petition and the onus to prove the same was cast on respondents No.1 and 2 i.e. the owner and the driver of the offending vehicle, have not led any evidence to prove the said issues and discharged the onus. On the other hand, as discussed above, FIR was recorded against respondent No.2 Sanjeev Kumar, driver of the offending truck and final report in terms of Section 173 of the Cr.P.C. was also presented before the court of competent jurisdiction against the said Sanjeev Kumar. Therefore, I am of the view that the Tribunal has erroneously held that the claim petition was not maintainable. Accordingly, the findings recorded by the Tribunal on issue No.3 are set aside and it is held that the claim petition was maintainable.

Issues No.4

18. The Tribunal under this issue has held that respondents No.1 and 2 have failed to prove how the claim petition was bad for non joinder of necessary parties, and accordingly decided the said issue against respondents No.1 and 2. The said respondents have not challenged the findings recorded by the Tribunal by filing an appeal or cross objections. Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal on this issue are upheld.

Issues No.5 and 6

19. It was for the insurer to plead and prove that the driver of the offending vehicle was not having a valid and effective driving licence at the time of accident or the offending vehicle was being plied in contravention of the terms and conditions contained in the insurance policy, has not led any evidence. The Tribunal has decided these issues against the insurer and the insurer has not challenged the said findings. Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal on these issues are upheld.

20. The claimants have pleaded that the deceased was a student of Engineering and was 19 years of age at the time of accident. However, there is nothing on the record suggestive of the fact that the deceased was pursuing Engineering at the time of death. Since the claimants attained the age of majority at the time of death, therefore, by exercising guess work, his income can be treated at par with a labourer and cannot be said to be less than Rs.4,000/- per month. The deceased was bachelor at the time of death. In view of the law laid down by the Apex Court in Sarla Verma (Smt.) and others versus Delhi Transport Corporation and another, reported in AIR 2009 SC 3104, upheld by a larger Bench of the Apex Court in a case titled as Reshma Kumari & others versus Madan Mohan and another, reported in 2013 AIR (SCW) 3120, 50% amount has to be deducted from the income of the deceased towards his personal expenses. Thus, the monthly loss of source of dependency to the claimants can be said to be Rs.2,000/-.

21. It has come on record that the deceased, at the time of accident, was 19 years of age, therefore, as per the dictum of the Apex Court in Sarla Verma's case supra and 2nd Schedule attached to the Act, and also the ratio laid down in Munna Lal Jain and another vs. Vipin Kumar Sharma and others, JT 2015(5) SC 1, multiplier of 15 is just and appropriate and is applied in the instant case.

22. In view of the above, the claimants are held entitled to Rs.2000x12x15 = Rs.3,60,000/- as compensation under the head loss of source of dependency.

23. Apart from the above, the claimants are also held entitled to Rs.10,000/- each i.e. Rs.30,000/- in all, under the heads 'loss of love and affection', 'loss of estate' and 'funeral expenses'.

24. Thus, in all, the claimants are held entitled to compensation to the tune of Rs.3,60,000/- + Rs.30,000/- = Rs.3,90,000/-, with interest at the rate of 7.5% per annum from the date of filing of the claim petition till deposit.

25. The factum of insurance is admitted. Therefore, the insurer/respondent No.3 is saddled with the liability.

26. The insurer is directed to deposit the amount, alongwith interest, in the Registry of this Court within a period of eight weeks from today, and on deposit, the same be released in favour of the claimants, in equal shares, through their respective bank accounts.

27. In view of the above discussion, the appeal is allowed, the impugned award is set aside and the claim petition is granted. The appeal stands disposed of accordingly.

For the appellant: Mr. Dinesh Thakur, Advocate.

For the respondents: Mr. Anil God, Advocate, for respondents No. 1 and 2.
Mr. J.S. Bagga, Advocate, for respondent No. 3.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice. (Oral)

Subject matter of this appeal is award, dated 19th March, 2011, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Ghumarwin, District Bilaspur, Himachal Pradesh (Camp at Bilaspur) (for short "the Tribunal") in M.A.C. No. 85 of 2005, titled as Mohinder Kumar versus Smt. Shakuntla Devi and others, whereby the claim petition filed by the appellant-claimant-injured came to be dismissed (for short "the impugned award").

2. The appellant-claimant-injured has called in question the impugned award on the ground the Tribunal has fallen in an error in dismissing the claim petition on the ground that the claimant-injured has not been able to prove as to how did he suffer any loss on account of the injuries sustained by him.

3. In order to determine this appeal, it is necessary to give a flashback of the case, the womb of which has given birth to the appeal in hand.

4. The claimant-injured, being the victim of the vehicular accident, which was caused by the driver, namely Shri Prakash Chand, while driving bus, bearing registration No. HP-23A-1021, rashly and negligently on 15th June, 2004, at about 7.50 A.M. at village Delag, Tehsil Ghumarwin, in which claimant-injured sustained injuries, was taken to Civil Hospital Ghumarwin, thereafter was referred to Zonal Hospital, Bilaspur.

5. The claim petition was resisted by the respondents on the grounds taken in the respective memo of objections.

6. On the pleadings of the parties, following issues came to be framed by the Tribunal on 30th December, 2005:

> "1. Whether Mohinder Kumar sustained injuries due to rash and negligent driving of respondent No. 2, driver of bus No. HP-23A-1021, as alleged? OPP
>
> 2. If issue No. 1 is proved in affirmative, whether the petitioner is entitled for compensation and if so, to what amount and from whom? OPP
>
> 3. Whether the claim petition is not maintainable? OPR
>
> 4. Whether bus No. HP-23A-1021 was being plied without valid registration, fitness certificate and route permit as alleged, if so to what effect? OPR-3
>
> 5. Whether the driver of bus No. HP-23A-1021 was not having a valid and effective driving licence? OPR-3
>
> 6. Whether the petition is barred by limitation? OPR-1
>
> 7. Whether the petitioner has no locus standi to file the petition? OPR-1

7. Parties have led evidence.

Issue No. 1:

8. The Tribunal after scanning the evidence, oral as well as documentary has held that the claimant-injured has proved that he has sustained injuries because of the rash and negligent driving of the offending vehicle by its driver and determined the issue in favour of the claimant-injured and against the respondents. The said findings have not been questioned by the owner-insured, driver and insurer of the offending vehicle. Thus, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issue No. 1 are upheld.

9. Before dealing with issue No. 2, I deem it proper to determine issues No. 3 to 7.

Issues No. 3 and 7:

10. Both these issues came to be decided against the respondents as not pressed, have not questioned the same. Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issues No. 3 and 7 are upheld.

Issue No. 4:

11. It was for the insurer to plead and prove that the offending vehicle was being driven without valid documents, has not led any evidence, thus has failed to discharge the onus. Even otherwise, the insurer has not questioned the findings returned by the Tribunal on the said issue, thus, have attained finality. Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issue No. 4 are also upheld.

Issue No. 5:

12. The onus to prove this issue was on the insurer, has failed to do so.

13. It is apt to record herein that an appeal, being FAO No. 320 of 2011, titled as Oriental Insurance Company Ltd. Versus Smt. Maya Devi and others, arising out of the same accident, came to be determined by this Court vide judgment, dated 15th July, 2016, wherein it has been held that the driver of the offending vehicle was having a valid and effective driving licence.

14. On the last date of hearing, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the insurer was asked to seek instructions whether the said judgment has been assailed by the insurer. In sequel thereto, Mr. J.S. Bagga, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the insurer, stated at the Bar that he is under instructions to make a statement that the said findings have not been questioned by the insurer. That being so, the said findings have attained finality. Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issue No. 5 are upheld.

Issue No. 6:

15. I wonder how this issue came to be framed by the Tribunal. The Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (for short "MV Act") has gone through a sea change and the rigours of Limitation Act for filing claim petitions under the MV Act have been taken away. Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal on this issue are upheld.

Issue No. 2:

16. The claimant-injured has claimed compensation to the tune of ₹ 3,62,000/-, as per the break-ups given in the claim petition.

17. It has specifically been pleaded in the claim petition that the claimant-injured has sustained injuries in the vehicular accident, was taken to Civil Hospital Ghumarwin, wherefrom he was referred to Zonal Hospital, Bilaspur, where he remained admitted for about seventeen days.

18. The Tribunal has fallen in a grave error in deciding this issue against the claimant-injured for the reasons to be recorded hereinafter.

19. The aim and object of awarding compensation is just to ameliorate the sufferings of the claimants and the claim petitions cannot be dismissed on flimsy grounds.

20. The Apex Court and other High Courts have held that the Courts should not succumb to the procedural wrangles and tangles, hypertechnicalities and mystic maybes and that should not be a ground to dismiss the claim petition and to defeat the rights of the claimants.

21. The same principle has been laid down by the Apex Court in the cases titled as N.K.V. Bros. (P.) Ltd. versus M. Karumai Ammal and others etc., reported in AIR 1980 Supreme Court 1354; Sohan Lal Passi versus P. Sesh Reddy and others, reported in AIR 1996 Supreme Court 2627; and Dulcina Fernandes and others vs. Joaquim Xavier Cruz and another, reported in (2013) 10 Supreme Court Cases 646, and by this Court in FAO No. 339 & 340 of 2008, titled as NIC versus Parwati & others; FAO No. 172 of 2006, titled as Oriental Insurance Company versus Shakuntla Devi & others; FAO No. 396 of 2012, titled as Asha & others versus Moti Ram & others; FAO No. 4248 of 2013, titled as Magni Devi & others versus Suneel Kumar & others, decided on 13.03.2015; FAO No. 17 of 2008, titled as United India Insurance Company Limited versus Smt. Brijbala & others, decided on 20.03.2015; and FAO No.

186 of 2008, titled as Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. Versus Shri Kishan Chand & others, decided on 01.05.2015.

22. Having said so, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issue No. 2 merit to be set aside.

23. The question is – to which amount of compensation, the claimant-injured is entitled to?

24. The perusal of the record does disclose that the claimant-injured suffered fracture in ribs, was taken to Civil Hospital, Ghurmarwin, wherefrom was referred to Zonal Hospital, Bilaspur and remained admitted there with effect from 16th June, 2004 to 2nd July, 2004, as is evident from discharge slip (Ext. PW-2/A).

25. The Apex Court in R.D. Hattangadi versus M/s Pest Control (India) Pvt. Ltd. & others, reported in AIR 1995 SC 755, Arvind Kumar Mishra versus New India Assurance Co. Ltd. & another, 2010 AIR SCW 6085, Ramchandrappa versus The Manager, Royal Sundaram Aliance Insurance Company Limited, 2011 AIR SCW 4787 and Kavita versus Deepak and others, 2012 AIR SCW 4771, has clearly laid down the principles as to how compensation has to be awarded in cases where the claimant has suffered permanent disability and how the assessment is to be made.

26. The Apex Court in its latest decision in the case titled as Jakir Hussein vs. Sabir and others, reported in (2015) 7 SCC 252, while discussing its earlier pronouncements, observed that in injury cases, the compensation would include not only the actual expenses incurred, but the compensation has to be assessed keeping in view the struggle which the injured has to face throughout his life due to the permanent disability and the amount likely to be incurred for future medical treatment, loss of amenities of life, pain and suffering to undergo for the whole life etc. It is apt to reproduce paragraphs 11 and 18 of the said decision hereunder:

> "11. With regard to the pain, suffering and trauma which have been caused to the appellant due to his crushed hand, it is contended that the compensation awarded by the Tribunal was meagre and insufficient. It is not in dispute that the appellant had remained in the hospital for a period of over three months. It is not possible for the courts to make a precise assessment of the pain and trauma suffered by a person whose arm got crushed and has suffered permanent disability due to the accident that occurred. The appellant will have to struggle and face different challenges as being handicapped permanently. Therefore, in all such cases, the Tribunals and the courts should make a broad estimate for the purpose of determining the amount of just and reasonable compensation under pecuniary loss. Admittedly, at the time of accident, the appellant was a young man of 33 years. For the rest of his life, the appellant will suffer from the trauma of not being able to do his normal work of his job as a driver. Therefore, it is submitted that to meet the ends of justice it would be just and proper to award him a sum of Rs.1,50,000/- towards pain, suffering and trauma caused to him and a further amount of Rs.1,50,000/- for the loss of amenities and enjoyment of life.
> 18. Further, we refer to the case of Rekha Jain & Anr. v. National Insurance Co. Ltd., 2013 8 SCC 389 wherein this Court examined catena of cases and principles to be borne in mind while granting compensation under the heads of (i) pain, suffering and (ii) loss of amenities and so on. Therefore, as per the principles laid down in the case of Rekha Jain & Anr. and considering the suffering undergone by the appellant herein, and it will persist in future also and therefore, we are of the view to grant Rs.1,50,000/- towards the pain, suffering and trauma which will be undergone by the appellant throughout his life. Further, as he is not in a position to move freely, we additionally award Rs.1,50,000/- towards loss of amenities & enjoyment of life and happiness."

27. The claim of the claimant-injured has to be tested in view of the principles laid down by the Apex Court in the decisions supra.

28. The perusal of the discharge slip, Ext. PW-2/A, does disclose that the claimant-injured remained admitted in the hospital with effect from 16th June, 2004 to 2nd July, 2004. He was attended upon by the attendant during the period he was in hospital, has undergone and has to undergo pain and sufferings.

29. It has been averred that the claimant-injured was earning ₹ 4,000/- per month by doing the tailoring work. Thus, it can be safely said and held that he would have been earning not less than ₹ 5,000/- per month. He remained admitted in hospital for seventeen days. Thus, by exercising guess work, the claimant-injured is held entitled to ₹ 2,500/- under the head 'loss of income for the period he remained admitted'.

30. Dr. D.R. Sehgal has stepped into the witness box and has stated that the claimant-injured could not have worked for about six months due to the injury sustained by him and must have spent about ₹ one lac on his treatment and medicines. The claimant-injured has also placed on record some of the medical bills. Keeping in view the statement of the doctor and the period for which the claimant-injured remained admitted in hospital, the claimant-injured is held entitled to compensation to the tune of ₹ 1,00,000/- under the head 'medical expenses'.

31. He remained admitted in hospital for seventeen days and must have been attended upon by an attendant during the said period, thus, was entitled to compensation under the head 'attendant charges', which he would have paid not less than ₹ 5,000/- plus other expenses, which can roughly be assessed at ₹ 10,000/-.

32. He has also undergone pain and sufferings during the said period and has to suffer throughout his life. Thus, at least, ₹ 50,000/- was to be awarded under the head 'pain and sufferings' and ₹ 50,000/- under he head 'future pain and sufferings'.

33. The claimant-injured is also deprived of all comforts and amenities because of the injury sustained by him, thus, is entitled to ₹ 50,000/- under the head 'loss of amenities of life'.

34. The factum of insurance is not in dispute. Thus, the insurer is to be saddled with liability.

35. Viewed thus, claimant-injured is held entitled to compensation to the tune of ₹ 2,500/- + ₹ 1,00,000/- + ₹ 10,000/- + ₹ 50,000/- + ₹ 50,000/- + ₹ 50,000/- = ₹ 2,62,500/- with interest @ 7.5 % per annum from the date of the claim petition till its realization.

36. Having glance of the above discussions, the claim petition is granted and the impugned award is modified, as indicated hereinabove, and the appeal is allowed.

37. The insurer is directed to deposit the awarded amount before the Registry within eight weeks. On deposition, the same be released in favour of the claimant-injured through payee's account cheque or by depositing the same in his bank account.

38. Send down the record after placing copy of the judgment on Tribunal's file.

For the appellant: Mr. Deepak Bhasin, Advocate.
For the respondents: Mr. Avinash Jaryal, Advocate, for respondents No. 1 to 5.

This appeal is directed against the judgment and award dated 22/12/2010, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Fast Track Court, Chamba, H.P., in MAC No. 47/2009, titled Smt. Bhawna Devi and others versus The National Insurance Co. Ltd. and others, for short "the Tribunal", whereby compensation to the tune of Rs.4,95,500/- alongwith interest @7.5% per annum came to be awarded in favour of the claimants, hereinafter referred to as "the impugned award", for short.

2. The claimants, driver and insured have not questioned the impugned award on any ground. Thus, it has attained the finality so far as it relates to them.

3. The claimants had filed claim petition under Section 163-A of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, for short "the Act", for the grant of compensation, as per the break-ups, given in the claim petition.

4. The respondents resisted the claim petition and following issues came to be framed.

(i) whether Jagdish died on 5.8.2009 at Lachori Tehsil Bhalei Distt. Chamba in a vehicular accident involving vehicle NO. HP73-7170 as alleged? OPP.

(ii) If issue No. 1 is proved ion affirmative, whether petitioners being dependants of deceased are entitled for compensation, if so, from which of the respondents? OPP.

(iii) Whether the petition is not maintainable ?OPR-3 to 6.

(iv) Whether the petitioners are stopped by their own act and conduct from filing this petition. OPR 3 to 6.

(v) Whether the driver of the offending vehicle was not holding a valid and effective driving licence at the time of accident? OPR-1.

(vi) Whether the vehicle involved in the accident was being plied in contravention of conditions of the insurance policy, as alleged?OPR-1.

(vii) Relief.

5. The claimants have examined three witnesses and Smt. Bhawna Devi claimant No. 1, herself stepped into the witness-box as PW1.

6. The insurer has not led any evidence. Thus, the evidence led by the claimants have remained un-rebutted.

7. The Tribunal, after scanning the evidence, held that Jagdish deceased died in the accident which was outcome of the use of a motor vehicle. Thus, the findings returned on issue No. 1 by the Tribunal, are upheld.

8. Before I determine issue No. 2, I deem it proper to determine issues No. 3 to 6.

9. It was for the respondents to discharge the onus, have not led any evidence. However, I have gone through the claim petition. Admittedly, the accident was outcome of the use of a motor vehicle. The Motor Vehicles Act has gone through the sea change by now. In the year 1994, an amendment was made and Section 163-A was introduced in the Act. The compensation payable under Section 163-A of the Act was not as an interim measure, but was final.

10. In case titled Surinder Kumar Arora and another vs. Dr. Manoj Bisla & Ors. reported in 2012 AIR SCW 2241, it has been held that the claimant has option to seek compensation either under Section 166 or under Section 163-A of the Act. It is apt to reproduce paras 9 and 10 of the said judgment herein.

> "9. Admittedly, the petition filed by the claimants was under Section 166 of the Act and not under Section 163-A of the Act. This is not in dispute. Therefore, it was the entire responsibility of the parents of the deceased to have established that respondent no.1 drew the vehicle in a rash and negligent manner which resulted in the fatal accident. Maybe, in order to help respondent no.1, the claimants had not taken up that plea before the Tribunal. Therefore, High Court was justified in sustaining the judgment and order passed by the Tribunal. We make it clear that if for any reason, the claimants had filed the petition under Section 163-A of the Act, then the dicta of this Court in the case of Kaushnuma Begum (Smt.) & Ors. (supra) would have come to the assistance of the claimants.
> 10. In our view the issue that we have raised for our consideration is squarely covered by the decision of this Court in the case of Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. (supra). In the said decision the Court stated :
>
> > "....Therefore, the victim of an accident or his dependants have an option either to proceed under Section 166 of the Act or under Section 163-A of the Act. Once they approach the Tribunal under Section 166 of the Act, they have necessarily to take upon themselves the burden of establishing the negligence of the driver or owner of the vehicle concerned. But if they proceed under Section 163-A of the Act, the compensation will be awarded in terms of the Schedule without calling upon the victim or his dependants to establish any negligence or default on the part of the owner of the vehicle or the driver of the vehicle."

11. In case titled Reshma Kumari and others versus Madan Mohan and another, reported in 2013 AIR SCW 3120, the apex Court, in para 10 of the judgment it has been observed as under.

> "10.The 1988 Act gives choice to the claimants to seek compensation on structured formula basis as provided in Section 163A or make an application for compensation arising out of an accident of the nature specified in sub-section (1) of Section 165 under Section 166. The claimants have to elect one of the two remedies provided in Section 163A and Section 166. The remedy provided in Section 163A is not a remedy in addition to the remedy provided in Section 166 but it provides for an alternative course to Section 166. By incorporating Section 163A in the 1988 Act, the Parliament has provided the remedy for payment of compensation notwithstanding anything contained in the 1988 Act or in any other law for the time being in force or instrument having the force of law, that the owner of a motor vehicle or authorised insurer shall be liable to pay compensation on structured formula basis as indicated in the Second Schedule in the case of death or permanent disablement due to accident arising out of the use of motor vehicle. The peculiar feature of Section 163A is that for a claim made thereunder, the claimants are not required to plead or establish that the death or permanent disablement in respect of which the claim has been made was due to any wrongful act or neglect or default of the owner or owners of the vehicle concerned. The scheme of Section 163A is a departure from the general principle of law of tort that the liability of the owner of the vehicle to compensate the victim or his heirs in a motor accident arises only on the proof of negligence on the part of the driver. Section 163A has done away with the requirement of the proof of negligence on the part of the driver of the vehicle where the victim of an accident or his dependants elect to apply for compensation under Section 163A. When an application for compensation is made under Section 163A the compensation is paid as indicated in the Second Schedule. The table in the Second Schedule has been found by this Court to be defective to which we shall refer at a little later stage." [Emphasis added]

12. The apex Court in case titled United India Insurance Co. Ltd. versus Sunil Kumar and another reported in 2013 AIR SCW 6694, in para 5 has observed as under.

"5. We find difficult to accept the reasoning expressed by the Two-Judge Bench in Sinitha's case . In our view, the principle laid down in Hansrajbhai V. Kodala's case has not been properly appreciated or applied by the Bench. In fact, another Division Bench of this Court vide its order dated 19.4.2002 had doubted the correctness of the judgment in Hansrajbhai V. Kodala's case and referred the matter to a Three- Judge Bench to examine the question whether claimant could pursue the remedies simultaneously under Sections 166 and 163-A of the Act. The Three- Judge Bench of this Court in Deepal Girishbhai Soni & Ors. v. United India Insurance Co. Ltd., Baroda, 2004 5 SCC 385 made a detailed analysis of the scope of Sections 166 and 163-A and held that the remedy for payment of compensation both under Sections 163-A and 166 being final and independent of each other, as statutorily provided, a claimant cannot pursue his remedies thereunder simultaneously. The Court also extensively examined the scope of Section 163-A and held that Section 163-A was introduced in the Act by way of a social security scheme and is a Code by itself. The Court also held that Section 140 of the Act deals with interim compensation but by inserting Section 163-A, the Parliament intended to provide for making of an award consisting of a pre-determined sum without insisting on a long- drawn trial or without proof of negligence in causing the accident. The Court noticed that Section 163-A was inserted making a deviation from the common law liability under the Law of Torts and also in derogation of the provisions of the Fatal Accidents Act. The Three-Judge Bench also held that Section 163-A has an overriding effect and provides for special provisions as to payment of compensation on structured formula basis. Sub- section (1) of Section 163-A contains a non-obstante clause, in terms whereof the owner of the motor vehicle or the authorized insurer is liable to pay, in the case of death or permanent disablement due to accident arising out of the use of motor vehicle, compensation, as indicated in the Second Schedule, to the legal heirs or the victim, as the case may be. The Court also held that the scheme of the provisions of Section 163-A and Section 166 are distinct and separate in nature. In Section 163-A, the expression "notwithstanding anything contained in this Act or in any other law for the time being in force" has been used, which goes to show that the Parliament intended to insert a non-obstante clause of wide nature which would mean that the provisions of Section 163-A would apply despite the contrary provisions existing in the said Act or any other law for the time being in force. Section 163-A of the Act covers cases where even negligence is on the part of the victim. It is by way of an exception to Section 166 and the concept of social justice has been duly taken care of.

The above-mentioned Three-Judge Bench judgment was not placed before the learned Judges who decided the Sinitha's case ." [Emphasis added]

13. Accordingly, it is held that the claim petition was maintainable. The respondents have not led any evidence to prove issues No. 4 to 6, thus, the findings returned on these issues are upheld.

Issue No.2.

14. It is stated that the deceased was earning Rs.3300/- per month, i.e., Rs.39,600/- per annum, which comes below the cap fixed and provided under Section 163-A of the Act. Having said so, the Tribunal has rightly made the discussion in paras 12 and 13 of the impugned award, needs no interference. Accordingly, the findings returned on issue No. 2 are upheld.

15. Viewed thus, the impugned award is upheld and the appeal is dismissed.

16. The Registry is directed to release the awarded amount in favour of the claimants, through payees' cheque account or by depositing the same in their bank accounts, strictly as per the terms and conditions contained in the impugned award.

17. Send down the record, forthwith, after placing a copy of this judgment.

Motor Vehicle Act, 1988- Section 149- It was contended that driver of the vehicle was not having valid and effective driving licence at the time of accident- it was for the insurer to prove that driver was not having valid and effective driving licence at the time of accident but he had failed to do so- appeal dismissed. For the appellants: Mr. Jagdish Thakur, Advocate.

For the respondents: Mr. Jitender P. Ranote, Advocate, for respondent No. 1.
Nemo for respondent No. 2.
Ms. Seema K. Guleria, Advocate, for respondent No. 3.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice. (Oral)

Challenge in this appeal is to award, dated 20th May, 2011, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Shimla (for short "the Tribunal") in M.A.C. Petition No. 11-S/2 of 2007, titled as Sh. Gulam Hassan Sheikh versus Sh. Ravi Kumar and others, whereby compensation to the tune of ₹ 46,000/- with interest @ 8% per annum from the date of institution of the petition till its realization alongwith costs assessed at ₹ 5,000/- came to be awarded in favour of the claimant-injured and against the insurer (for short "the impugned award").

2. The claimant-injured, owner-insured and driver of the offending vehicle have not questioned the impugned award on any count, thus, has attained finality so far it relates to them.

3. Appellant-insurer has questioned the impugned award on the grounds taken in the memo of the appeal.

4. I wonder why the insurer has filed this appeal. A meagre amount of compensation has been awarded in favour of the claimant-injured and he has been deprived of his rights from the year 2007. The appeal merits to be dismissed with costs.

5. At this stage, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant-insurer argued that the insurer has proved that the driver of the offending vehicle was not having a valid and effective driving licence at the relevant point of time, which is not legally correct. The Tribunal has made discussion in paras 20 to 23 of the impugned award and has rightly held that the driver of the offending vehicle was having a valid and effective driving licence. Even otherwise, it was for the insurer to prove that the driver of the offending vehicle was not having a valid and effective driving licence at the time of the accident, has failed to do so.

6. Having said so, the impugned award is well reasoned and legal one, needs no interference.

7. Registry is directed to release the awarded amount in favour of the claimant-injured strictly as per the terms and conditions contained in the impugned award through payee's account cheque or by depositing the same in his bank account.

8. Viewed thus, the impugned award is upheld and the appeal is dismissed.

9. Send down the record after placing copy of the judgment on Tribunal's file.

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988- Section 149- It was for the insurer to plead and prove that driver did not have valid and effective driving licence at the time of accident and the insurer had committed willful breach- insurer had failed to discharge the onus- appeal dismissed. (Para-5)

For the Appellant : Mr. Ashwani K. Sharma, Senior Advocate with Mr. Ishan Thakur, Advocate.
For the Respondents: Mr. Ranvir Chauhan, Advocate, for respondent No.1.
Nemo for respondents No. 2 & 3.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice (oral)

This appeal is directed against the award dated 24th December, 2010, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal (II), Shimla, H.P. (hereinafter referred to as 'the Tribunal') in M.A.C. Petition No. 51-S/2 of 2007, titled as Shri Mohinder Singh versus The Oriental Insurance Company & others, whereby compensation to the tune of Rs.1,00,000/- (rupees one lac only) with interest at the rate of 7.5% per annum from the date of filing of the claim petition, was granted in favour of the claimant and the insurer came to be saddled with liability (for short, "the impugned award").

2. The claimant, insured-owner and driver have not questioned the impugned award, on any count. Thus, it has attained finality, so far it relates to them.

3. The insurer has questioned the impugned award on the following three grounds:

(i) that the driver was not having a valid and effective driving licence at the time of accident;

(ii) that the owner had not obtained Special Route Permit at the relevant time;

(iii) that the insured-owner has committed willful breach.

4. These grounds are relating partly to Issues No. 6 & 7. It is apt to reproduce Issues No. 6 & 7 framed by the Tribunal herein:-

"6. Whether the driver of the vehicle was not having valid and effective driving licence? …OPR-1

7. Whether the respondent No. 2 was not having valid RC and fitness certificate in respect of the vehicle in question? …OPR-1"

5. It was for the insurer to plead and prove that the driver was not having a valid and effective driving licence at the time of accident and the owner-insured has committed willful breach, has failed to do so, thus has failed to discharge the onus. Accordingly, it is held that the Tribunal has rightly decided Issues No. 6 & 7.

6. The adequacy of compensation is not in dispute. However, I have perused the record and the impugned award and am of the considered view that the Tribunal has rightly made the assessment. The amount awarded is adequate. Accordingly, it is held that the just and appropriate compensation has been granted by the Tribunal.

7. Having said so, no interference is required, thus, the impugned award is upheld.

8. Registry is directed to release the awarded amount in favour of the claimant, strictly as per the terms and conditions contained in the impugned award.

9. The appeal is dismissed accordingly.

10. Send down the record after placing a copy of the judgment on the Tribunal's file.

2. The owner-insured and driver have not questioned the impugned award, on any count. Thus, it has attained finality, so far it relates to them.

3. The insurer has questioned the impugned award on the grounds taken in the memo of appeal.

4. The claimants have questioned the impugned award on the ground of adequacy of compensation.

5. The claimants had invoked the jurisdiction of the Tribunal in terms of Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, for grant of compensation to the tune of 10,00,000/- as per the break-ups given in the claim petition.

6. The respondents resisted and contested the claim petition by filing replies.

7. Following issues came to be framed by the Tribunal:

"i) Whether Master Nishant had died on account of the rash and negligent driving of vehicle No. HP-52A-2070 by respondent No. 2? ….OPP

ii) If issue No. 1 is proved, to what amount of compensation and from whom, are the petitioners entitled to? …OPP

iii) Whether the respondent No. 2 had not been in possession of a valid and effective driving licence, if so, with what effect? ….OPR-3

iv) Whether the claim petition is not maintainable? …OPR-3

v) Whether respondent No. 1 had contravened the terms and conditions of the insurance policy, if so, with what effect? …OPR-3

vi) Relief."

8. Claimants examined HHC Bhagwan Singh (PW-1) and Dr. Piyush Kapila (PW-2) and one of the claimants, i.e. Sh. Gian Singh, also appeared in the witness box as PW-3. On the other hand, respondents examined Pradeep Kumar as RW-1.

9. The Tribunal, after scanning the evidence, oral as well as documentary, held that the claimants have proved that the accident was the outcome of the rash and negligent driving of the offending vehicle by driver, namely, Mohinder Singh.

10. I have gone through the entire record. FIR (Ext. PW-1/A) was lodged against the driver. The respondents have not led any evidence in rebuttal. Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal on Issue No. 1 are upheld.

11. Before I deal with Issue No. 2, I deem it proper to deal with Issues No. 3 to 5.

Issues No. 3 to 5.

12. It was for the insurer to plead and prove that the driver was not having a valid and effective driving licence at the time of accident, the claim petition was not maintainable and the owner has committed willful breach, has failed to do so. Thus, the findings returned by the Tribunal on Issues No. 3 to 5 are upheld.

Issue No. 2.

13. The deceased was 8 years old at the time of accident. The compensation to the tune of Rs. 2,00,000/-granted by the Tribunal, is just and appropriate compensation.

14. The factum of insurance is admitted. Accordingly, it is held that the Tribunal has rightly saddled the insurer with liability.

15. Registry is directed to release the awarded amount in favour of the claimants, strictly as per the terms and conditions contained in the impugned award.

16. Accordingly, the impugned award is upheld and the appeals are dismissed.

For the Respondents: Nemo for respondents No. 1 & 2.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice (oral)

Subject matter of this appeal is the award dated 22nd March, 2011, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal-III, District Kangra, H.P. (hereinafter referred to as 'the Tribunal') in MACP RBT No. 70-K/07/10, titled as Miss Palvi versus Rajneesh Kumar & others, whereby the claim petition came to be dismissed (for short, "the impugned award").

2. The claimant had invoked the jurisdiction of the Tribunal in terms of Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, for grant of compensation to the tune of 3,00,000/- as per the break-ups given in the claim petition.

3. The respondents resisted and contested the claim petition by filing replies.

4. Following issues came to be framed by the Tribunal:

"1. Whether the respondent No. 1 was driving the motor-cycle No. HP-40A-0479 owned by respondent No. 2 in a rash and negligent manner on the road on 2-12-2005 and had struck it against the petitioner at Manal, thereby causing grievous injury to her due to which she had suffered permanent disability as alleged? …OPP

2. If issue No. 1 is proved in affirmative to what amount of compensation the petitioner is entitled and from whom? …OPP

3. Whether the respondent No. 1 was not holding valid and effective driving licence to drive the motor-cycle and he had breached the terms and conditions of the Insurance Policy as alleged? ..OPR

5. The Tribunal, after discussing Issue No. 1, from para-7 to para-13 of the impugned award, held that there was not sufficient material on the record to hold that motor-cyclist, namely, Rajneesh Kumar, has driven the offending vehicle, i.e. motor cycle bearing registration No. HP-40A-0479, rashly and negligently. It is apt to reproduce para-13 of the impugned award herein:-

"Hence, the entire evidence on record is not sufficient to establish that in fact respondent No. 1 was driving motor cycle No. HP-40-A-0479 and due to his rash and negligent driving he committed the accident in question on 2-12-2005 by hitting petitioner Palvi and in the accident petitioner sustained the injuries in question as well as permanent disability. Consequently, this Issue No. 1 is decided against the petitioner."

6. It appears that the Tribunal has fallen in an error in holding that the claimant has failed to prove that the driver has driven the offending vehicle, rashly and negligently.

7. FIR (Ext. PW-2/A) was lodged in Police Station Shahpur, District Kangra, H.P.

8. H.H.C. Om Swaroop (PW-2) had conducted the investigation, has specifically stated before the Tribunal that FIR was lodged against motorcyclist, Rajneesh Kumar, who had driven the offending motor cycle, rashly and negligently and caused the accident. Challan, in terms of the mandate of Section 173 of the Code of Criminal Procedure was presented against the driver in the Court of the competent jurisdiction, i.e. before the Judicial Magistrate 1st Class (II), Dharamshala, District Kangra. Thus, there is sufficient material on the record to hold that the motor-cyclist had driven the offending motor-cycle, rashly and negligently.

9. It is a beaten law of the land that standard of proof in criminal and civil cases is altogether different and in claim petition, the prima facie proof is required. The technicalities and procedural wrangles and tangles have no role to play.

10. My this view is fortified by the judgment of the Apex Court in the case titled as N.K.V. Bros. (P.) Ltd. versus M. Karumai Ammal and others etc., reported in AIR 1980 Supreme Court 1354. It is apt to reproduce relevant portion of para 3 of the judgment herein:

> "3. Road accidents are one of the top killers in our country, specifically when truck and bus drivers operate nocturnally. This proverbial recklessness often persuades the courts, as has been observed by us earlier in other cases, to draw an initial presumption in several cases based on the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur. Accident Tribunals must take special care to see that innocent victims do not suffer and drivers and owners do not escape liability merely because of some doubt here or some obscurity there. Save in plain cases, culpability must be inferred from the circumstances where it is fairly reasonable. The court should not succumb to niceties, technicalities and mystic maybes. We are emphasising this aspect because we are often distressed by transport operators getting away with it thanks to judicial laxity, despite the fact that they do not exercise sufficient disciplinary control over the drivers in the matter of careful driving. The heavy economic impact of culpable driving of public transport must bring owner and driver to their responsibility to their "neighbour". Indeed, the State must seriously consider no-fault liability by legislation. A second aspect which pains us is the inadequacy of the compensation or undue parcimony practised by tribunals. We must remember that judicial tribunals are State organs and Art. 41 of the Constitution lays the jurisprudential foundation for state relief against accidental disablement of citizens. There is no justification for niggardliness in compensation. A third factor which is harrowing is the enormous delay in disposal of accident cases resulting in compensation, even if awarded, being postponed by several years. The States must appoint sufficient number of tribunals and the High Court should insist upon quick disposals so that the trauma and tragedy already sustained may not be magnified by the injustice of delayed justice. Many States are unjustly indifferent in this regard." (Emphasis Added)

11. The Jammu and Kashmir High Court in the case titled as Oriental Insurance Co. versus Mst. Zarifa and others, reported in AIR 1995 Jammu and Kashmir 81, held that the MV Act is Social Welfare Legislation and the procedural technicalities cannot be allowed to defeat the purpose of the Act. It is profitable to reproduce para 20 of the judgment herein:

> "20. Before concluding, it is also observed that it is a social welfare legislation under which the compensation is provided by way of Award to the people who sustain bodily injuries or get killed in the vehicular accident. These people who sustain injuries or whose kith and kins are killed, are necessarily to be provided such relief in a short span of time and the procedural technicalities cannot be allowed to defeat the just purpose of the Act, under which such compensation is to be paid to such claimants."

12. It would also be profitable to reproduce relevant portion of para 12 of the judgment of the Apex Court in the case titled as Sohan Lal Passi versus P. Sesh Reddy and others, reported in AIR 1996 Supreme Court 2627, herein:

"12. .....While interpreting the contract of insurance, the Tribunals and Courts have to be conscious of the fact that right to claim compensation by heirs and legal representatives of the victims of the accident is not defeated on technical grounds. Unless it is established on the materials on record that it was the insured who had wilfully violated the condition of the policy by allowing a person not duly licensed to drive the vehicle when the accident took place, the insurer shall be deemed to be a judgment-debtor in respect of the liability in view of sub-section (1) of Section 96 of the Act. It need not be pointed out that the whole concept of getting the vehicle insured by an insurance company is to provide an easy mode of getting compensation by the claimants, otherwise in normal course they had to pursue their claim against the owner from one forum to the other and ultimately to execute the order of the Accident Claims Tribunal for realisation of such amount by sale of properties of the owner of the vehicle. The procedure and result of the execution of the decree is well known."

13. The Apex Court in a case titled Dulcina Fernandes and others vs. Joaquim Xavier Cruz and another, reported in (2013) 10 Supreme Court Cases 646 has laid down the same principle and held that strict proof and strict links are not required.

The same principle has been laid down by this Court in a series of cases.

14. A Single Judge of this Court in FAO No. 127 of 1999, titled as Bimla Devi and others versus Himachal Road Transport Corporation and others, decided on 22.08.2005, held that the claimants have to prove the case by leading cogent evidence and applied the mandate of the Code of Civil Procedure, (for short 'the CPC') read with the Evidence Act, was questioned before the Apex Court by the medium of Civil Appeal No. 2538 of 2009, titled as Bimla Devi & Ors. versus Himachal Road Transport Corpn. & Ors., reported in 2009 AIR SCW 4298, and the Apex Court set aside the said judgment and held that strict proof is not required. It is apt to reproduce paras 2 and 12 to 15 of the judgment herein:

"2. This appeal is directed against a judgment and order dated 22.8.2005 passed by the High Court of Himachal Pradesh, Shimla in FAO No. 127 of 1999 whereby and whereunder an appeal preferred against a judgment and award dated 28.10.1998 passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal-II [MACT (I), Nahan] in MAC Petition No. 21-NL/2 of 1997, was set aside.

12. While dealing with a claim petition in terms of Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, a Tribunal stricto sensu is not bound by the pleadings of the parties; its function being to determine the amount of fair compensation in the event an accident has taken place by reason of negligence of that driver of a motor vehicle. It is true that occurrence of an accident having regard to the provisions contained in Section 166 of the Act is a sine qua non for entertaining a claim petition but that would not mean that despite evidence to the effect that death of the claimants predecessor had taken place by reason of an accident caused by a motor vehicle, the same would be ignored only on the basis of a post mortem report vis-a-vis the averments made in a claim petition.

13. The deceased was a Constable. Death took place near a police station. The post mortem report clearly suggests that the deceased died of a brain injury. The place of accident is not far from the police station. It is, therefore, difficult to believe the story of the driver of the bus that he slept in the bus and in the morning found a dead body wrapped in a blanket. If the death of a constable has taken place earlier, it is wholly unlikely that his dead body in a small town like Dharampur would remain undetected throughout the night particularly when it was lying at a bus stand and near a police station. In such an event, the court can presume that the police officers themselves should have taken possession of the dead body.

14. The learned Tribunal, in our opinion, has rightly proceeded on the basis that apparently there was absolutely no reason to falsely implicate the respondent Nos. 2 and 3. Claimant was not at the place of occurrence. She, therefore, might not be aware of the details as to how the accident took place but the fact that the First Information Report had been lodged in relation to an accident could not have been ignored. Some discrepancies in the evidences of the claimant s witnesses might have occurred but the core question before the Tribunal and consequently before the High Court was as to whether the bus in question was involved in the accident or not. For the purpose of determining the said issue, the Court was required to apply the principle underlying burden of proof in terms of the provisions of Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act as to whether a dead body wrapped in a blanket had been found at the spot at such an early hour, which was required to be proved by the respondent Nos. 2 and 3.

15. In a situation of this nature, the Tribunal has rightly taken a holistic view of the matter. It was necessary to be borne in mind that strict proof of an accident caused by a particular bus in a particular manner may not be possible to be done by the claimants. The claimants were merely to establish their case on the touchstone of preponderance of probability. The standard of proof beyond reasonable doubt could not have been applied. For the said purpose, the High Court should have taken into consideration the respective stories set forth by both the parties."

15. There is sufficient prima facie proof on the record to the effect that the motor-cyclist had driven the offending vehicle, rashly and negligently, at the relevant point of time and had caused the accident, in which the claimant sustained injuries. Accordingly, Issue No. 1 is decided in favour of the claimant and against the respondents and the findings returned by the Tribunal on the said issue are set aside.

16. Before I deal with Issue No. 2, I deem it proper to deal with issue No. 3.

17. It was for the insurer to plead and prove that the driver was not having a valid and effective driving licence at the relevant time.

18. The insurer has examined Kewal Singh as RW-4, who had deposed that as per the register brought by him, the driving licence of the motor-cyclist was not issued by Licensing Authority, Khandur Sahib, District Taran Taaran, Punjab. But in the cross-examination, he has admitted that the said register was not relating to the series of 9000. He further admitted that after serial number 6228, the driving licences have also been issued. The number of the driving licence of the driver is 9648.

19. It was for the insurer to prove that the owner of the offending vehicle has committed willful breach of the terms and conditions of the insurance policy and mere plea here and there cannot be a ground for seeking exoneration, as held by the Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. versus Swaran Singh & others, reported in AIR 2004 Supreme Court 1531. It is apt to reproduce relevant portion of para 105 of the judgment hereinbelow:

"105. .....

(i) .....

(ii) .....

(iii) The breach of policy condition e.g. disqualification of driver or invalid driving licence of the driver, as contained in subsection (2) (a) (ii) of Section 149, have to be proved to have been committed by the insured for avoiding liability by the insurer. Mere absence, fake or invalid driving licence or disqualification of the driver for driving at the relevant time, are not in themselves defences available to the insurer against either the insured or the third parties. To avoid its liability towards insured, the insurer has to prove that the insured was guilty of negligence and failed to exercise reasonable care in the matter of fulfilling the condition of the policy regarding use of vehicles by duly licensed driver or one who was not disqualified to drive at the relevant time.

(iv) The insurance companies are, however, with a view to avoid their liability, must not only establish the available defence(s) raised in the said proceedings but must also establish 'breach' on the part of the owner of the vehicle; the burden of proof wherefore would be on them.

(vi) Even where the insurer is able to prove breach on the part of the insured concerning the policy condition regarding holding of a valid licence by the driver or his qualification to drive during the relevant period, the insurer would not be allowed to avoid its liability towards insured unless the said breach or breaches on the condition of driving licence is/are so fundamental as are found to have contributed to the cause of the accident. The Tribunals in interpreting the policy conditions would apply "the rule of main purpose" and the concept of "fundamental breach" to allow defences available to the insured under Section 149 (2) of available the Act."

20. It is also profitable to reproduce para 10 of the latest judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Pepsu Road Transport Corporation versus National Insurance Company, reported in (2013) 10 Supreme Court Cases 217, hereinbelow:

"10. In a claim for compensation, it is certainly open to the insurer under Section 149(2)(a)(ii) to take a defence that the driver of the vehicle involved in the accident was not duly licensed. Once such a defence is taken, the onus is on the insurer. But even after it is proved that the licence possessed by the driver was a fake one, whether there is liability on the insurer is the moot question. As far as the owner of the vehicle is concerned, when he hires a driver, he has to check whether the driver has a valid driving licence. Thereafter he has to satisfy himself as to the competence of the driver. If satisfied in that regard also, it can be said that the owner had taken reasonable care in employing a person who is qualified and competent to drive the vehicle. The owner cannot be expected to go beyond that, to the extent of verifying the genuineness of the driving licence with the licensing authority before hiring the services of the driver. However, the situation would be different if at the time of insurance of the vehicle or thereafter the insurance company requires the owner of the vehicle to have the licence duly verified from the licensing authority or if the attention of the owner of the vehicle is otherwise invited to the allegation that the licence issued to the driver employed by him is a fake one and yet the owner does not take appropriate action for verification of the matter regarding the genuineness of the licence from the licensing authority. That is what is explained in Swaran Singh case. If despite such information with the owner that the licence possessed by his driver is fake, no action is taken by the insured for appropriate verification, then the insured will be at fault and, in such circumstances, the Insurance Company is not liable for the compensation."

21. This Court in FAO No. 322 of 2011, titled as IFFCO-TOKIO Gen. Insurance Company Limited versus Smt. Joginder Kaur and others, decided on 29.08.2014 and FAO No. 523 of 2007, titled as Oriental Insurance Company Ltd. versus Smt. Rikta alias Kritka & others, decided on 19.12.2014, has laid down the same principle.

22. Having said so, the insurer has failed to prove that the owner-insured has committed willful breach. Accordingly, it is held that the insurer has to satisfy the liability.

Issue No. 2.

23. The claimant has suffered 5% permanent disability and remained under treatment for about two months.

24. It is beaten law of land that while assessing compensation in injury cases, guess work is to be made.

25. My this view is fortified by the judgments made by the Apex Court in the cases titled as R.D. Hattangadi versus M/s Pest Control (India) Pvt. Ltd. & others, reported in AIR 1995 SC 755, Arvind Kumar Mishra versus New India Assurance Co. Ltd. & another, reported in 2010 AIR SCW 6085, Ramchandrappa versus The Manager, Royal Sundaram Aliance Insurance Company Limited, reported in 2011 AIR SCW 4787, and Kavita versus Deepak and others, reported in 2012 AIR SCW 4771.

26. This Court has also laid down the same principle in a series of cases.

27. Thus, the claimant is entitled to compensation to the tune of Rs.1,00,000/- under the head 'loss of amenities of life', Rs. 50,000/- under the head 'pain and sufferings' and Rs. 50,000/- under the head 'medical expenses'.

28. Viewed thus, the claimant is held entitled to the total amount of compensation to the tune of Rs. 1,00,000/- + Rs. 50,000/- + Rs. 50,000/- = Rs. 2,00,000/- with interest at the rate of 7.5% per annum from the date of the impugned award till its final realization.

29. Accordingly, the impugned award is set aside and the appeal is allowed and compensation to the tune of Rs. 2,00,000/- with interest at the rate of 7.5% per annum from the date of the impugned award till its final realization is awarded in favour of the claimant and against the insurer.

30. The insurer is directed to deposit the compensation amount before the Registry within six weeks from today. The Registry is directed to deposit the compensation amount in the fixed deposit for a period of five years.

31. Send down the record after placing a copy of the judgment on the Tribunal's file.

BEFORE HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE MANSOOR AHMAD MIR, C.J.

Smt. Radhi Devi and others ...Appellants.

Versus

Savitri and others ...Respondents.

Decided on: 09.09.2016

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988- Section 149- Insurer was held liable to pay compensation in another claim petition arising out of the same accident- an appeal was preferred, which was dismissed- further appeal was filed before the Supreme Court, which was also dismissed- therefore, insurer is to be held liable to indemnify the insured. (Para-10)

Case referred:

Kala Devi & others versus Bhagwan Dass Chauhan & others, 2014 ACJ 2626

For the appellants: Mr. H.C. Sharma, Advocate.

For the respondents: Mr. Raman Sethi, Advocate, for respondents No. 1 (a) to 1 (c).

Mr. Ashwani K. Sharma, Senior Advocate, with Mr. Ishan Thakur, Advocate, for respondent No. 3.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice. (Oral)

Subject matter of this appeal is award, dated 6th August, 2011, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Fast Track Court, Shimla, H.P. (for short "the Tribunal") in M.A.C. No. 52-S/2 of 2008, titled as Smt. Radhi Devi and others versus Bhagwan Dass Chauhan and others, whereby the claim petition filed by the appellant-claimant-injured came to be dismissed (for short "the impugned award").

2. The claimants invoked the jurisdiction of the Tribunal as per the mandate of Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles, Act, 1988 (for short "MV Act") for grant of compensation to the tune of ₹ 10,00,000/-, as per the break-ups given in the claim petition, on the grounds taken in the memo of the claim petition.

3. The owner-insured and driver of the offending vehicle did not choose to appear before the Tribunal and were set ex-parte.

4. The claim petition was resisted by the insurer on the grounds taken in the memo of the objections.

5. On the pleadings of the parties, following issues came to be framed by the Tribunal on 17th August, 2009;

"1. Whether Shri Ram Lal died due to the rash and negligent driving of vehicle No. HP-09A-0897 by the respondent/driver Shri Keshva Nand? OPP

2. If issue No. 1 is proved in affirmative, whether the petitioners are entitled to the compensation as claimed. If so, its quantum and from whom? OP Parties

3. Whether the vehicle was being plied in violation of the terms and conditions of the insurance policy as alleged. If so, its effect? OPR-3

4. Whether the petition is not maintainable in the present form? OPR-3

5. Whether respondent Shri Keshva Nand was not holding and possessing valid and effective driving licence to drive the vheicle, as alleged. If so, its effect? OPR-3

6. Whether late Shri Ram Lal was travelling as a gratuitous passenger, as alleged? OPR-3

7. Relief."

6. Parties have led evidence

Issue No. 1:

7. The Tribunal has recorded the findings in para 11 of the impugned award that the claimants have proved that deceased-Ram Lal died due to the negligence of the driver of the offending vehicle. The owner-insured, driver and insurer of the offending vehicle have not questioned the said findings. Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issue No. 1 are upheld.

8. Before dealing with issue No. 2, I deem it proper to determine issues No. 3 to 6.

Issue No. 3, 5 and 6:

9. It was for the insurer to plead and prove the said issues, have not led any evidence to this extent, thus, has failed to discharge the onus.

10. I deem it proper to record herein that in another claim petition arising out of the same accident, the insurer was saddled with liability by the Claims Tribunal. The insurer questioned the same by the medium of appeal before this Court in the case titled as Kala Devi & others versus Bhagwan Dass Chauhan & others, reported in 2014 ACJ 2626, whereby appeal was dismissed and the findings of the Tribunal that the insurer has to satisfy the award were upheld, was questioned before the Apex Court by the claimants by the medium of C.A. No. 9972 of 2014, reported in 2014 ACJ 2875, and the said findings came to be upheld. Thus, in this case also, the insurer has to be saddled with liability. Issues No. 3, 5 and 6 are accordingly decided against the insurer.

Issue No. 4:

11. The Tribunal has decided the said issue against the claimants on the premise that the claimants had filed a claim petition, which was dismissed as withdrawn, thus, were caught in terms of Order XXIII Rule 1 (4) of the Code of Civil Procedure (for short "CPC").

12. The Tribunal has fallen in a grave error in dismissing the claim petition as per the mandate of Order XXIII Rule 1 (4) CPC for the reasons to be recorded hereinafter.

13. The perusal of the record does disclose that the claim petition was withdrawn by the claimants with liberty to file fresh claim petition (the copy of the statement is at page 48 of the record). Thus, the claimants were within their rights to file fresh claim petition. Moreover, the claimants have not concealed the said fact and have mentioned the same in the opening portion of the claim petition.

14. The proceedings under the MV act are summary in nature and all the provisions of the CPC are not applicable. However, the State of Himachal Pradesh has framed Himachal Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 1999 (for short "MV Rules"), in terms of which some of the provisions of CPC, including Order XXIII Rules 1 to 3, have been made applicable in terms of Rule 232 of the Rules.

15. The Tribunal has dismissed the claim petition in terms of the mandate of Order XXIII Rule 1 (4) CPC, which is not legally correct. Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issue No. 4 are set aside and it is decided in favour of the claimants and against the insurer.

16. I have gone through the assessment made by the Tribunal in paras 12 and 13 of the impugned award, is just, adequate and appropriate, needs no interference.

17. Viewed thus, the claimants are held entitled to compensation to the tune of ₹ 8,23,000/- with interest @ 7.5 % per annum from the date of the claim petition till its realization and the insurer is saddled with liability.

18. Having glance of the above discussions, the claim petition is granted and the impugned award is modified, as indicated hereinabove, and the appeal is allowed.

19. The insurer is directed to deposit the awarded amount before the Registry within eight weeks. On deposition, the same be released in favour of the claimants strictly as per the terms and conditions contained in the impugned award through payee's account cheque or by depositing the same in their bank accounts.

20. Send down the record after placing copy of the judgment on Tribunal's file.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Dharam Chand Chaudhary, Judge

This judgment shall dispose of the present appeal and also the connected one arising out of the judgment and decree dated 16.12.2003 passed by learned District Judge, Solan in Civil Appeal No. 60-S/13 of 2003. It is seen that learned District judge has reversed the judgment and decree passed by learned Senior Sub Judge, Solan in Civil Suit No. 385/1 of 99/97 and decreed the suit in favour of the respondent (hereinafter referred to as the plaintiff) for the recovery of a sum of Rs.70,000/- with interest @ 9% per annum from the date of filing of the suit against the appellants in these appeals (hereinafter referred to as the defendants) jointly and severally.

2. Plaintiff belongs to village Sainj, Post Office Kandaghat in District Solan, a rural area. She has been married to Ved Prakash of that village. She gave birth to two children out of this wedlock. When in the year 1994, the children born to her were 5 and 1½ years of age, on account of their poverty, the couple decided to undergo sterilization operation. She was advised to undergo family planning operation (tubectomy). The operation was conducted by the 3rd respondent, posted at that time in District Hospital, Solan on 8.12.1994 at Kandaghat. The complaint is that the said respondent while conducting the operation had acted negligently and failed to take all precautions. As a result thereof, the operation turned unsuccessful and the plaintiff became again pregnant. She even gave birth to a male child also.

3. Further complaint is that prior to conducting family planning operation of the plaintiff, defendant No. 3 had checked up her womb and other private parts thoroughly and it is after finding everything normal, she was advised to undergo tubectomy. Defendant No. 3 after conducting the operation told the plaintiff that she had taken all care and observed all skill and that the operation was successful. Also that, in future the plaintiff will not bear any child. However, to the utter surprise of the plaintiff, she became again pregnant after one year and four months of undergoing the said surgery. It was beyond her expectation that she will again become pregnant even after conducting the tubectomy. She suffered great risk to her life on account of pregnancy she carried on account of negligence of defendant No. 3, who according to the plaintiff failed to take due care and to observe requisite skill while operating the plaintiff. The plaintiff who was solely dependent upon her husband had to undergo a lot of stress and strain as well as financial burden because huge amount was required to provide best education, schooling, food and clothing etc. to the newly born child. The very purpose of undergoing the sterilization operation was as such frustrated and to the contrary additional burden has come on the plaintiff and her husband to provide all sort of amenities and necessities of life to the newly born child. The plaintiff served the defendants with the legal notice Ext. P-1 under Section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure vide registered AD post. The postal receipts and acknowledgment are Ext. P-2 to Ext. P-5. However, when defendant failed to reply to the legal notice, she filed the suit for recovery of Rs.2,00,000/- with costs against them.

4. Defendant No. 3 when put to notice has contested and resisted the plaintiff's claim as laid in the plaint. In preliminary, the objections such as the trial Court has no jurisdiction to try and entertain the suit, no notice of the application under Order 33 Rule 1 of the Code of Civil Procedure was ever served upon her, she did not receive any notice under Section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure and plaintiff is estopped from filing the suit due to her own act, conduct and acquiescence. On merits, while admitting that the plaintiff was operated for tubectomy by her, it is emphatically denied that operation was conducted negligently or rashly. Rather, all precautions were taken while conducting the operation upon the plaintiff. After the operation, the plaintiff never came to the hospital for proper check up so that the successfulness of the operation could have been assured. The contention that the plaintiff became pregnant within one and a half year of operation and gave birth to a child after the operation were denied for want of knowledge as according to defendant No. 3, plaintiff never attended the hospital for subsequent examination. It is, however, pointed out that had in spite of the operation, the plaintiff became pregnant, she would have come to the hospital to get the pregnancy washed off, if not interested to give birth to the child. It is pointed out that plaintiff has given consent in writing for undergoing the operation. She was apprised that the operation for all practical purposes was permanent and that there may be some chances of failure of operation for which the Government Hospital/doctor conducting the operation will not be responsible. The plaintiff was also apprised that she was undergoing the operation which carries element of risk also. The criteria to undergo the operation was explained to her and she consented to undergo the operation as per such criteria. Her consent Ext. D-A was pressed in service in support of such averments in the written statement.

5. Defendants No. 1 and 2 in separate written statement have also raised objections qua territorial jurisdiction, service of notice under Section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure, service of notice under Order 33 Rule 1 of the Code of Civil Procedure and estoppel etc., in preliminary. On merits, while denying the contentions to the contrary in the plaint, it is submitted that her operation was conducted in a very responsible and careful manner after observance of required precautions. Before that consent of the plaintiff (Ext. D-A) was obtained. It is pointed out that the plaintiff and her husband are well educated and they cannot be said to be illiterate. The averments that the plaintiff and her husband belong to a weaker section of society, hence poor are denied being wrong and it is submitted that they both are employed in private sector and earning handsome amount. In the application for consent, Ext. D-A, it is specifically mentioned that there could be possibility of failure of operation in rarest of rare cases and for that the Government Hospital/surgeon conducting the operation will not be held responsible. The operation was conducted by defendant No. 3, a well experienced and qualified surgeon after guiding the plaintiff that in case of failure of the operation, she should immediately contact the motivator or the doctor concerned so that M.T.P. etc. could be performed for pregnancy. The plaintiff allegedly did not act upon the advise of the operating surgeon i.e. defendant No. 3 and the staff and to the contrary opted for giving birth to the so called unwanted child. Had she reported the matter of pregnancy well in time to the medical authorities, the birth of the child could have been avoided. The plaintiff who had given birth to two children was expected to have the knowledge of occurrence of pregnancy and as such, she was required to inform the concerned Medical Officer, the pregnancy she carried after the operation. The pregnancy up to three months could have been avoided. The suit has thus been sought to be dismissed.

6. In replication to the written statement filed on behalf of defendant No. 3, the plaintiff has denied the averments to the contrary being wrong and reiterated her case as set out in the plaint. It is denied that she voluntarily consented for undergoing operation. According to her, she was made to sign some documents without taking her into confidence and she was never told that there are chances of failure of operation also. When she sought advise from defendant no. 3, the said defendant had assured her that operation was 100% successful and that no issue would now be born to her nor she will suffer any physical problem after the operation. The said defendant also told her that there was no need to her to come for further check up or there was no apprehension of becoming her pregnant.

7. Similar is her version in the replication to the written statement filed on behalf of defendants No. 1 and 2.

8. On the pleadings of the parties following issues were framed:-

1. Whether the defendants are negligent and thereby the plaintiff is entitled for damages to the extent of the suit amount as alleged? OPP.
2. Whether this Court has no jurisdiction to entertain this suit as alleged? OPD.
3. Whether the suit is not maintainable in the present form? OPD.
4. Whether the plaintiff has not served as notice under Section 80 CPC. If so, its effect? OPD
5. Whether the defendant is estopped from filing the suit? OPD.
6. Whether the suit is not properly valued for the purpose of court fee and jurisdiction as alleged? OPD.
7. Relief.

9. The plaintiff has herself stepped into the witness box as PW-1. Reliance has also been placed on legal notice Ext. P-1 and the postal receipts Ext. P-2 to Ext. P-5. She has also produced in evidence the discharge summary Ext. P-6 and the certificate of undergoing family planning operation on 8.12.1994, Ext. P-7.

10. On the other hand, the defendants have examined Dr. Maya Ahuja, defendant No. 3 and placed reliance on the documentary evidence i.e. consent of the plaintiff Ext. D-A. The letter of appreciation issued in favour of defendant No. 3 Ext. D-B and the case sheet in respect of the plaintiff prepared on the day of her family planning operation, Ext. D-6. This witness has also made reference to the slip of hospital, Ext. D-D, which though is on record, however, not exhibited.

11. Learned trial Court on appreciation of the evidence has arrived at a conclusion that the defendants are not negligent, as such, the plaintiff was not held entitled to the recovery of damages as claimed. Issue No. 1 was answered against the plaintiff. The objections that the Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit, the suit was not maintainable, legal notice under Section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure was not served upon the defendants, estoppel and suit was not valued for the purpose of court fee and jurisdiction raised by the defendants were answered against them while answering issues No. 2 to 6. The suit, as such, was dismissed.

12. Learned lower appellate Court in appeal preferred by the plaintiff after taking note of the admitted facts and also the evidence available on record has concluded as under:-

> "16. The doctor had stated that she never assured plaintiff that there will be hundred percent success by such operation and there were chances for the reasons beyond human control. It was pleaded that the plaintiff could have terminated his pregnancy when she came to know that in spite of operation she had conceived a child. The reason of failure of the operation in the instant case has not been stated. No authentative Book of Medical Science has been brought to my notice by either of the parties. In Dr. Laxman Balkrishana Joshi Vs. Dr. Trimbak Bapu Godbole and another, A.I.R. 1969 Supreme Court, 128, the Hon'ble Apex Court of India has observed that a person who holds himself out ready to give medical advise and treatment impliedly undertakes that he is possessed of skill and knowledge for the purpose and that such a person when consulted by a patient owes him certain duties, viz, a duty of care in deciding whether to undertake the case, a duty of care, a duty of care in deciding what treatment to give or a duty of care in the administration of that treatment. It is not disputed that Dr. Maya Ahuja DW-1 is a qualified Medical Practitioner but the defendants have failed to produce the cogent evidence to pin-point that the consent and application for sterilization operation form Ex. DA was readover and explained to the plaintiff and she was made aware of chances of its failure. Merely by putting the signatures by her on the said form which is not in the language of the plaintiff will not discharge the burden of the defendants but in the instant case even this document was not put during the cross-examination of the plaintiff. Even she has stated that though her signatures were obtained on a form and she did not know English well as she had studied up to the 9th standard. Therefore, it was incumbent upon the defendant to prove the execution of Ex.DA in accordance with law. Even the defendant has also not stated anywhere that this document was readover and explained to the plaintiff by her. There is only self-serving statement of the doctor that the plaintiff was informed about the pregnancy in case of failure but there is nothing on file to show that after the operation any steps were taken by the said defendant to verify that the operation had been a success. Though in the circumstances of the case, the result of the failure of the operation was due to the reasons within the control of human being and the defendant No. 3 was also found negligent to perform her duty because it is not proved that the plaintiff was made aware of the chance of its failure. The plaintiff due to many reasons might not have decided to terminate the pregnancy.
> 17. The delivery of a child is itself a proof of negligence on the part of the doctor performing the operation.
> 18. Under the circumstances of the case, it is duly proved that the plaintiff inspite of the fact that she had undergone family operation and cannot expect to have a child."

13. Learned lower appellate Court, therefore, has reversed the findings recorded by the trial Court and decreed the suit for recovery of Rs. 70,000/- together with interest against the defendants jointly and severally.

14. The grouse of the defendant-State and also the doctor, defendant No. 3 against the judgment and decree is that the learned lower appellate court has not appreciated the oral as well as documentary evidence in its right perspective and as a result thereof, based its findings merely on surmises, conjectures and hypothesis. The evidence that the plaintiff never visited the hospital for her check up even after becoming pregnant also has erroneously been ignored and to the contrary the sole testimony of plaintiff has been relied upon to decree the suit. The findings recorded by the trial Court that the plaintiff has failed to prove negligence on the part of defendant No. 3 and as such, not entitled to the recovery of suit amount have been brushed aside without assigning any reasons. The plaintiff did not produce any evidence that after becoming pregnant she visited the hospital at Kandaghat and Solan, however, this aspect of the matter has not been properly appreciated. The contents of the consent form in vernacular were read over to the plaintiff before conducting her operation, however, this aspect of the matter has also not been appreciated in its right perspective. The negligence on the part of defendant No. 3 has not been adjudged at all nor it is appreciated that the failure of the operation and the plaintiff having become pregnant could have not been termed as negligence of the surgeon, defendant no. 3. The factum of failure of tubectomy operation from 5 to 7%, an universal phenomenon has not been considered. The medical science is not the exact science and the results of operations sometime are unpredictable and a surgeon cannot be held responsible for failure, if any, has also been ignored. The alleged negligence and failure to take proper care and caution by defendant No. 3 has not been proved by the plaintiff. She has no-where disclosed the nature and extent of negligence attributed to defendant No. 3. Nothing even qua this aspect has been said by the plaintiff in her examination-in-chief. No reason is assigned for decreeing the suit for a sum of Rs. 70,000/-.

15. This appeal has been admitted on the following substantial question of law:

1. Whether as the plaintiff/respondent No. 1 has neither pleaded not proved the factum of the alleged negligence and the manner in which the appellant/defendant No. 3 failed to take reasonable care and caution while performing the Tubectomy operation, the suit of the plaintiff is required to be dismissed?

16. The connected appeal filed by defendant No. 3 has also been admitted on the following substantial question of law:

1. Whether as the plaintiff/respondent No. 1 has neither pleaded not proved the factum of the alleged negligence and the manner in which the appellant/defendant No. 3 failed to take reasonable care and caution while performing the Tubectomy operation, the suit of the plaintiff is required to be dismissed?

17. It is seen that both the appeals have been admitted on similar substantial questions of law.

18. Mr. D.S. Nainta, learned Additional Advocate General representing the appellant-State and Mr. R.K. Bawa, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Mr. Ajay Sharma, Advocate representing proforma respondents in this appeal, whereas, appellant in the connected appeal have strenuously contended that in the absence of pleadings and proof to the effect that defendant No. 3 was negligent while conducting family planning operation of the plaintiff and that she even failed to impart necessary instructions qua taking post operative care by the plaintiff, the suit could have not been decreed. They have placed reliance on the judgment of the apex Court in State of Punjab V. Shiv Ram and others (2005) 7 Supreme Court Cases 1 and also in Jacob Mathew V. State of Punjab and Another (2005) 6 Supreme Court Cases 1 and on the strength of the ratio thereof urged that merely the plaintiff after having undergone sterilization operation become pregnant and delivered the child, the defendants cannot be held liable to compensate her on this score, as according to them she could have claimed compensation only if able to prove negligence on the part of defendant No. 3 in performing the surgery.

19. Mr. G.D. Verma, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Mr. B.C. Verma, Advocate while repelling the arguments addressed on behalf defendants has argued that in the present case the plaintiff has successfully pleaded and proved the negligence attributed to defendant No. 3, not only while conducting family planning operation but also proclaiming after conducting the operation that the plaintiff will not carry pregnancy in future and that the operation was 100% successful. According to Mr. Verma, it is for this reason, the plaintiff could not guess even on menstrual break also that it is on account of she having conceived the pregnancy again. It is further pointed out that in the hospital at Kandaghat also, she was advised that menstrual break may be due to she being weak and not on account of pregnancy. In district hospital at Solan she was advised not to go for termination of pregnancy being 3-4 months old at the pretext that to do so may be dangerous to her life. Therefore, according to Mr. Verma, the law laid down by the apex Court in Shiv Ram's case supra is distinguishable in the given facts and circumstances of this case.

20. The substantial questions of law as formulated in these appeals being identical in nature can conveniently be determined together by common findings in order to avoid repetition of evidence and also findings.

21. Since the defendants have mainly relied upon the law laid down by the apex Court in Shiv Ram's case and Jacob Mathew's case supra, therefore, at the first instance, it is deemed appropriate to look into this aspect of the matter to find out that the law so laid down is attracted in the given facts and circumstances of this case or not. Since the law laid down by the apex Court in Jacob Mathew's case supra has been discussed and taken into consideration in its subsequent judgment in Shiv Ram's case, therefore, it is deemed appropriate to take into consideration the law laid down by the apex Court in Shiv Ram's case. That was a case where husband and wife both had filed a suit for recovery of damages to the tune of Rs.3,00,000/- on account of a child born to them irrespective of the plaintiff wife having undergone tubectomy (sterilization) operation performed by a lady surgeon. A certificate like in the case in hand qua undergoing sterilization operation was found to be issued in that case also. The plaintiffs having served the notice under Section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure filed a suit for damages with the allegations that the child is born to them due to carelessness and negligence of the surgeon. The defendants contested that suit. The plaintiff-wife did not appear in the witness box and it is only her husband who on oath substantiated the averments in the plaint. The defendants have also examined Dr. Sham Lal. The suit was decreed for recovery of Rs.50,000/- with interest and costs by the trial Court. The judgment and decree so passed was even affirmed by the learned lower appellate Court and also the High Court. The matter ultimately landed in the apex Court. The apex Court taking note of the law laid down in Jacob Mathew's case supra has observed as under in para 8 of the judgment:-

> "8. The plaintiffs have not alleged that the lady surgeon who performed the sterilization operation was not competent to perform the surgery and yet ventured into doing it. It is neither the case of the plaintiffs, nor has any finding been arrived at by any of the courts below that the lady surgeon was negligent in performing the surgery. The present one is not a case where the surgeon who performed the surgery has committed breach of any duty cast on her as a surgeon. The surgery was performed by a technique known and recognized by medical science. It is a pure and simple case of sterilization operation having failed though duly performed. The learned Additional Advocate General has also very fairly not disputed the vicarious liability of the State, if only its employee doctor is found to have performed the surgery negligently and if the unwanted pregnancy thereafter is attributable to such negligent act or omission on the part of the employee doctor of the State."

22. The facts, not in controversy, are that the family planning operation of the plaintiff was conducted by defendant No. 3 on 8.12.1994 in the hospital at Kandaghat. She was discharged from the hospital on 8.12.1994 itself, as is apparent from the discharge summary, Ext. P-6. The case sheet is Ext. D-C, however, the same is not being given to the patient and rather remained in the record of the hospital itself. Therefore, there cannot be any quarrel even qua the plaintiff had conceived pregnancy, irrespective of she having undergone a family planning operation and gave birth to a male child within two years of the operation. She served the defendants with a legal notice Ext. P-1. The postal receipts and acknowledgment are Ext. P-2 to Ext. P-5. The defendants have not given any reply to the legal notice Ext. P-1.

23. It is seen that like in Shiv Ram's case supra, in the case in hand also, it is not the case of the plaintiff that defendant No. 3 was not competent to perform the surgery and still she proceeded to conduct the same. However, here the allegations are that defendant No. 3 and other supporting staff before and after conducting her tubectomy made her to understand that after the operation, she will neither become pregnant nor any other issue born to her. It is how according to her, defendant No. 3 was negligent and failed in her duty to tell that the operation may fail and she again conceive pregnancy and thereby failed to take due care and precautions before and after the operation was conducted. In the case before the apex Court, it was not the case of the plaintiffs that the doctor who conducted the operation had committed breach of any duty casts on her as a surgeon. This, however, is not the position in the case in hand for the reason that the plaintiff herein has specifically averred as under in the plaint:-

> "3. .....Prior to the operation defendant No. 3 thoroughly checked up the womb as well as other private parts of the plaintiff and she was found normal in all respects and she was advised by the defendant No. 3 to undergo the operation for tubectomy. At the time of above operation the plaintiff had two issues aged about 5 years and 1½ years. The plaintiff was given assurance that after the operation due care and skill is observed and operation is successful one and in future she will not bear any child."

24. Defendant No. 3 in the written statement though has denied the allegations of negligence attributed to her being wrong, however, not responded to the averments in the plaint that after the operation was over, she assured the plaintiff that while conducting operation due care and skill has been observed and that the operation a successful and also that in future she will not bear any child. Therefore, such averments in the plaint remained uncontroverted. On the other hand, plaintiff in replication to the written statement filed on behalf of defendant No. 3 has categorically averred as under:-

> "4.....It would be pertinent to mention here that when she took advise from the defendant No. 3, she assured her that after operation no issue would be born out and it is a 100% successful operation and she will not suffer any physical problem after the operation, since the same is very minor and she has no need to further checking or apprehension of pregnancy and due to this assurance she opted to operate which subsequently failed due to negligence of the defendant No. 3....."

25. Now if coming to the evidence qua this aspect of the matter, the plaintiff while in the witness box as PW-1 in so many words has proved that field staff before she chosen to undergo the operation had assured that after the operation she will not carry any pregnancy. Her version in examination-in-chief is that two issues were already born to her. The field staff from the hospital came to her and they motivated her to undergo family planning operation and also assured that she will not carry any pregnancy thereafter. On this, she came to the hospital at Solan. The doctor assured her that she will be operated upon properly and that after the operation, there will be no scope of any pregnancy and of giving birth to any other child. Further that defendant No. 3 Dr. Maya Ahuja (defendant No. 3) though had conducted her operation in December, 1994, however, not in the manner as was proclaimed, because she after over one and a half year of such operation again carried the pregnancy. No suggestion was given to the plaintiff in her cross-examination that neither the field staff nor defendant No. 3 ever assured her that operation was successful and that she will not carry any pregnancy after the operation. Meaning thereby that when the assurance was given to the plaintiff that her operation was 100% successful and that she will not carry any pregnancy in future, she may have not even imagined that she is carrying pregnancy when there was menstrual break. The stand of the defendants is that the rate of failure of family planning operation is ranging between 5-7%, however, the present is a case where the plaintiff was not made to understand the same. Defendant No. 3 who performed the surgery has, therefore, committed breach of the duty casts on her to apprise the plaintiff that the chances of failure of family planning operation were also there. Although, an effort has been made to believe that the plaintiff was advised to immediately report in the hospital in the event of becoming pregnant again and to get the pregnancy terminated, however, she never come to the hospital for her follow up subsequent to her operation conducted. It has come in para 3 of the written statement filed on behalf of defendant No. 3. She, however, has not said so while in the witness box that plaintiff was advised to do so when discharged from the hospital. Her statement in examination-in-chief that after the operation, the patients used to be guided properly to visit the hospital for check up in the case of some disturbance in menstruation is noticed or there being menstrual break and that in the event of patient become again pregnant after undergoing the operation, if willing the doctor may terminate the pregnancy also is general in nature. The plaintiff, however, while in the witness box has denied any such advice given to her after the operation. Any how, defendant No. 3 while in the witness box as DW-1 has admitted that the plaintiff had come to hospital for medical check up after becoming pregnant and that she was advised to get her admitted as an 'indoor patient' so that the pregnancy could be terminated but for the reasons best known to her, she failed to get her admitted in the hospital and perhaps was interested in giving birth to the child she had conceived. Such bald assertions without there being any proof, however, cannot be believed to be true for the reason that had it been so, some medical record should have been maintained in the hospital and the same produced in evidence. No doubt, the plaintiff had admitted her visit to the hospital and her check up by defendant No. 3 there, however, as per her version, she was advised not to go for termination of pregnancy being of 2-3 months old at the pretext that to do so may cause danger to her life. Such statement of the plaintiff is nearer to the factual position for the reason that as per her version immediately on noticing menstrual break, she visited the nearby hospital at Kandaghat. She was advised that she may not be pregnant but the menstrual break may be on account of she being weak. She was given some medicines also. No doubt, she failed to produce the prescription slip in evidence at the pretext that it was thrown by her, but it is not understandable as to why a poor lady will tell lie, had she not been went to the hospital at Kandaghat. It was rather for the defendants to produce the record of the hospital to rule-out the visit of the plaintiff there because in the hospital a register which contains the particulars of the patients coming to the hospital and the ailment, from which they are suffering, used to be entered. Therefore, the possibility of the plaintiff having first visited the hospital at Kandaghat and there she having came to know that she was pregnant and it is thereafter she visited defendant No. 3 in district hospital, Solan cannot be ruled-out. The plaintiff's version that it is the doctor who advised that to terminate the pregnancy at that stage would have been dangerous to her life cannot also be ruled-out. The testimony of defendant No. 3 to the contrary that she was advised to seek admission in the hospital for getting the pregnancy terminated without any proof cannot be believed to be true. Therefore, the present is a case where defendant No. 3 has failed to perform the duty casts on her as a surgeon to apprise the plaintiff that irrespective of the family planning operation conducted, in case the same fails and she become pregnant again and also that in such a situation she should rush to the hospital for further management. Such facts, however, were not in Shiv Ram's case supra before the apex Court and the observations in para 8 of that judgment "the present one is not a case where the surgeon who performed the surgery has committed breach of any duty cast on her as a surgeon" take out this case from the sweep of the above said judgment of the apex Court.

26. The further observations of the apex Court in para 25 of the judgment that "So also, the surgeon cannot be held liable in contract unless the plaintiff alleges and proves that the surgeon had assured 100% exclusion of pregnancy after the surgery and was only on the basis of such assurance that the plaintiff was persuaded to undergo surgery" also take out the present case from the sweep of the judgment supra because as noticed hereinabove, the plaintiff has satisfactorily pleaded and proved that the defendants at the time of persuading her to undergo family planning operation and even after conducting the operation also assured her about 100% success of the operation and also that she will not carry any pregnancy after undergoing the operation in future. Para 25 of the judgment is also reproduced here as under:

> "25. We are, therefore, clearly of the opinion that merely because a woman having undergone a sterilization operation became pregnant and delivered a child, the operating surgeon or his employer cannot be held liable for compensation on account of unwanted pregnancy or unwanted child. The claim in tort can be sustained only if there was negligence on the part of the surgeon in performing the surgery. The proof of negligence shall have to satisfy Bolam's test. So also, the surgeon cannot be held liable in contract unless the plaintiff alleges and proves that the surgeon had assured 100 % exclusion of pregnancy after the surgery and was only on the basis of such assurance that the plaintiff was persuaded to undergo surgery. As noted in various decisions which we have referred to hereinabove, ordinarily a surgeon does not offer such guarantee."

27. True it is that in terms of the ratio of judgment supra, the failure of the family planning operation provides a valid and legal ground for termination of pregnancy. However, in the case in hand, in view of the assurance given to the plaintiff, she seems to have not thought even in dreams also that she can become pregnant again, inspite of having undergone sterilization operation when menses stopped. Even initially the doctor has also ruled-out the possibility of she having become pregnant. It came to her notice that she is pregnant when she went to district hospital, Solan. The pregnancy at that time was 3-4 months old and as such, defendant No. 3 advised her not to go for termination of pregnancy being dangerous to her life. Therefore, the plaintiff had no occasion to terminate the pregnancy. The plaintiff has, therefore, rightly said in the replication that she could know regarding the pregnancy at a very late stage in view of being under a bonafide belief that there was no question of conception by her after having undergone the operation.

28. It is worth mentioning here that the present is not a case where the surgeon Dr. Maya Ahuja, the 3rd defendant was not competent to conduct the operation but she has otherwise been found to have committed breach of duty cast upon her to advise or guide the plaintiff before conducting her operation or guided her to take post operative precautions such as rushing to hospital at once, if become pregnant and she rather was made to understand that the operation was 100% successful and that she will not bear any pregnancy in future. It is in this way, defendant No. 3 has committed the breach of duty casted on her as a surgeon. The present as such is a case where it is careless and negligent attitude attributed to defendant No. 3 and for that matter the doctor on duty in the hospital at Kandaghat that the plaintiff had given birth to 3rd child. Mr. Verma, learned Senior Advocate representing the plaintiff is, therefore, absolutely justified in claiming that the facts of this case are distinguishable from that in Shiv Ram's case before the Hon'ble apex Court.

29. The defendants have heavily relied upon the so called consent form Ext. D-A. It is seen that this document is in English language. The educational qualification of the plaintiff is 9th standard. True it is that as per her own version, she had studied English as a subject in 8th and 9th class, however, in the considered opinion of this Court, a person with qualification as 9th standard, cannot understand the contents of a document like consent form, Ext. D-A. In the replication she filed to the written statement, it is denied that she has voluntarily consented for her family planning operation and rather as per her version, she was made to sign some document without letting her know that there were chances of failure of the operation. Also that, she being illiterate, could not go through the contents of the consent form. As per her version, Ext. D-A is not binding upon her. If coming to the testimony of defendant No. 3, who has stepped in the witness box as DW-1 though in her examination-in-chief it is stated that the consent form Ext. D-A of the plaintiff was obtained and it is thereafter her operation was conducted, however, as per her version in the cross-examination the consent form, Ext. D-A may have filled in by the motivator/health worker in the family planning department. She expressed her inability to disclose the name of such motivator/health worker who filled in this form. In the same breath, no doubt, she tells us that Ext. D-A was filled in her presence. However, once it is said that form might have been filled in by the motivator/health worker, how she could have turned around and said that the same was filled in her presence, because had it been so, she must have been knowing the name of such motivator/health worker. Being so, version of the plaintiff that she was made only to put her signature on the consent form seems to be nearer to the factual position. What was the qualification of the motivator/Health Worker who filled in the consent form also remained unexplained? It is also not known that he/she had read over and explained the contents of this document in vernacular to the plaintiff. Therefore, it would not be improper to conclude that the consent form Ext. D-A was got signed from the plaintiff in routine without apprising her about the contents thereof in vernacular. Therefore, on this score also, no case in favour of the defendants is made out. Learned lower appellate Court has considered this aspect of the matter in its right perspective.

30. The law laid down by learned Single Judge of this Court in State of H.P. and another V. Smt. Kalpana Chauhan and another in RSA No. 310 of 2002 dated 11.04.2014 is also distinguishable on facts and as such, is hardly of any help to the case of the defendants.

31. Now if coming to the prayer in the suit, the plaintiff has claimed the decree for recovery of a sum of Rs.2,00,000/-. Learned lower appellate Court in the given facts and circumstances has, however, decreed the suit only for a sum of Rs.70,000/-. The acts of carelessness and negligence as discussed hereinabove are responsible for giving birth to 3rd child by the plaintiff. A sum of Rs.70,000/- is not even a fraction of the amount required for bringing up a child and to provide him good education as well as settling him in his life, because for this purpose, huge amount is required. It can reasonably be believed that carrying pregnancy and giving birth to a child is a painful process for a woman. Therefore, Rs.70,000/- is not sufficient to compensate the plaintiff on account of pain and sufferings she had to undergo during the period she was carrying pregnancy and at the time when she gave birth to child. Therefore, in a case of decree of such a meager amount, the defendant a welfare state otherwise also should have not raised such a hue and cry. It is observed so by this Court in a case titled the State of H.P and others V. Smt. Satya Devi RSA No. 43 of 2006 decided on March 11, 2016.

32. In view of what has been said hereinabove, both the appeals fail and the same are accordingly dismissed. The judgment and decree under challenge is affirmed. No order so as to costs. Pending application(s), if any, shall also stand disposed of.

N.D.P.S. Act, 1985- Section 20- Accused started running on seeing the police- he was apprehended - his search was conducted during which 1.5 kg. charas was recovered- accused was tried and acquitted by the trial Court- held, in appeal that no independent witness was associated during the search and seizure - all the members of the police party were not examined - testimonies of police officials were contradictory- NCB form was filled in the same ink and in the same hand- there are other discrepancies in the testimonies of official witnesses- prosecution version was not proved beyond reasonable doubt - the trial Court had rightly acquitted the accused- appeal dismissed. (Para-18 to 25)

For the appellant: Mr. V.S. Chauhan, Addl. AdvocateGeneral, Mr. Vikram Thakur and Mr. Puneet Rajta, Deputy Advocate Generals.
For the respondent: Mr. Ajay Chandel, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Ajay Mohan Goel, J.:

By way of this appeal, State has challenged the judgment passed by the Court of learned Special Judge, Fast Track, Kullu, in Sessions Trial No. 63 of 2010 dated 30.09.2011, vide which, learned trial Court has acquitted the accused for commission of offence punishable under Section 20 of Narcotic Drugs & Psychotropic Substances Act.

2. The case of the prosecution was that on 04.07.2010, at about 5.00 p.m., Onkar Singh alongwith other police officials was going from Naggar road towards Saran Gaon on foot for patrolling duty. While on patrolling duty, police party saw one person coming from village Saran towards Naggar side at an isolated place on foot. This person, as soon as he saw the police party, started running. He was carrying one pink colour red bag in his hand. On the basis of suspicion, this person was nabbed by the police who on inquiry disclosed his name as Hottam Ram. SI Onkar Singh tried to associate some local person before conducting search of the accused, however, no local person was available at the site because the accused was nabbed at an isolated place. Accordingly faced with this situation, SI Onkar Singh associated ASI Lal Chand and Constable Hira Lal as witnesses. Thereafter, they gave their personal search to accused and this was followed with the search of the bag which was being carried by the accused. The police party found one polythene envelope inside the bag which was being carried out by the accused. In this polythene envelope Charas in the shape of pancake and rectangles was kept. Said Charas was weighed with the help of traditional scale and it was found to be 1 Kg. 500 grams. Thereafter, Charas was put back in the same envelope, which envelope was placed back in the same bag and wrapped in a apiece of cloth. This parcel was sealed with seal impression 'A' at six places and thereafter, SI Onkar Singh filled up NCB I form in triplicate. The specimen of the seal was taken on the NCB I form as well as on a piece of cloth. Thereafter, the seal was entrusted to ASI Lal Chand. Recovery and seizure memo were also prepared which were signed by the accused and witnesses. A Rukka was sent to Police Station on the basis of which FIR was registered. SI Onkar Singh prepared the site plan and also recorded the statements of the witnesses. Accused was arrested at around 8.00 P.M. near Saran Gaon. Arrest Memo was prepared and information about the arrest of the accused was given to his son. Thereafter, SI Onkar Singh alongwith accused came to the Police Station and produced the case property before SI/SHO, who resealed the same with seal 'K'. SI/SHO took samples of seal on pieces of cloth and also filled up relevant columns of NCB I form. The case property was deposited with MHC alongwith NCB form and sample seals. The case property was thereafter sent to FSL Junga alongwith other relevant documents. Chemical examination of the same revealed that the seized property was Charas.

3. After completion of the investigation, challan was filed in the Court and as a prima facie case was found against the accused, he was charged for commission of offence punishable under Section 20(b)(ii)(C) of Narcotic Drugs & Psychotropic Substances Act, to which, he pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

4. In order to prove its case, prosecution in all examined 11 witnesses.

5. LC Meena Kumari entered the witness box as PW-1 and she deposed that on 06.07.2010 S.O. Onkar Singh had handed over special report to her with the direction to take the same to Dy. S.P. Manali, which direction was followed by her.

PW-3 HC Gautam Chand proved on record that on 06.07.2010 MHC Police Station Manali handed over case property alongwith NCB I form and other relevant documents vide RC No. 148 of 2010 and he handed over the said case property and other relevant documents to dealing hand (at FSL Junga) on 07.07.2010. In his cross-examination, he stated that the case property was handed over to him by MHC at about 9.00 P.M. and he boarded HRTC night bus to Shimla at 9.30 P.M. and reached the laboratory on the next day at 10.00 A.M.

He also stated that thereafter he had handed over the parcel, NCB I form and samples seal to MHC for depositing the same in Malkhana.

He also stated that on the same day at 11.00 P.M., he entered rapat No. 35 when SI returned back to Police Post.

12. Constable Hira Lal entered the witness box as PW-8 and stated that on 04.07.2010 he alongwith ASI Lal Singh, SI Onkar Singh, Constable Narender Kumar and Constable Nikhil Kaundal were going towards village Saran from Naggar side on foot and they saw a person coming from Saran side towards Naggar side, who was carrying pink colour bag in his right hand. When that person saw the police party he turned back. Police party apprehended the accused and when his antecedents were asked, he disclosed his name as Hottam Ram. This witness further stated that they apprehended the accused at an isolated place. SI Onkar Singh associated him and ASI Lal Singh as witnesses. He further stated that SI Onkar Singh gave his personal search to the accused and Memo Ext. PW8/A was prepared which contained his signatures. This witness further stated that thereafter Onkar Singh conducted the search of the bag which was being carried by the accused and the bag contained one polythene envelope in which Charas in pancake and rectangular shape was found. The same was weighed with the help of traditional balance which was in the kit of the Investigating Officer and the same was found to be weighing 1Kg. and 500 grams. This witness further deposed that thereafter the Charas was put back in the polythene envelope and the bag which were wrapped in a piece of cloth and parcel was sealed with seal impressions of seal 'O' at six places. SI filled the NCB form and parcel was taken into possession vide recovery memo Ext. PW8/B which he signed as a witness. He stated that the same was also signed by ASI Lal Chand and the accused. As per him, SI Onkar Singh prepared Rukka, which was handed over to him with the direction to take the same to Police Station Manali. PW-8 further stated that he handed over the Rukka to MHC Sher Singh and took back the case file to the spot. In his cross-examination, this witness stated that statement Ext. DB which was his statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. was in his own hand. He admitted that village Saran and Naggar are adjoining to Rorik Art Gallery. He stated that the police party started from P.P. Patlikuhl at 2.30 P.M. and they went upto Art Gallery in a private vehicle. He further stated in his cross-examination that they were three persons when they started from P.P. Patlikuhl and near Art Gallery, ASI Lal Chand and Constable Narender Kumar met them. He further stated that they walked for about 5 minutes, after they got down from the vehicle and ASI Lal Chand and Constable Narender met them near the Art Gallery. He admitted that in his statement Ext. DB it was not recorded that the accused was arrested in his presence and Memo to this effect was prepared. He further stated in his cross-examination that he scribed Ext. DB after the Rukka was taken by him to the Police Station. He stated that Rukka was handed over to him at 6.15 P.M. He walked some distance on foot and thereafter, took lift upto Chowk and then went in another vehicle to Police Station Manali, where he reached at 7.20 P.M. He stated that Police Station Manali was at a distance of about 24-25 KM from Naggar. He admitted that distance between Rorik Art Gallery was about 2.5 KM from Naggar Chowk. He stated that MHC handed over case file to him at 7.35 P.M. and he reached back at the spot alongwith the case file in between 8.00 to 8.20 P.M. by taking lift in a private vehicle. He admitted it to be correct that he was present at the Police Station at 7.50 P.M.

13. SI Onkar Singh entered the witness box as PW-9 and he also reiterated the factum of apprehending the accused on 04.07.2010 from whom Charas was recovered. This witness stated that the accused was arrested at an isolated place and he tried to search for local witnesses but no one was available there. He stated that he in these circumstances associated ASI Lal Chand and Constable Hira Lal as witnesses and thereafter, conducted the search and seizure. This witness stated that he checked the carry bag which was in the hand of the accused and found one polythene bag containing pancake and stick shape Charas in it. He weighed the Charas which was found to be 1Kg. 500 grams. Charas was again put back in the same polythene bag and thereafter placed in pink colour bag which was wrapped in white coloured cloth. The parcel was sealed with seal impressions of seal 'A' at six places and he also filled up NCB form in triplicate. This witness further stated that he prepared Rukka and handed over the same to Constable Hira Lal, which he took to Police Station. This witness further deposed that he had drawn the sample of seal on pieces of cloth. He also stated that statements of the witnesses were recorded as per their versions. In his cross-examination, he stated that they went upto Naggar Chowk in a private vehicle. He further deposed that he could not tell the registration number of the vehicle, name of the driver or name of the owner of the vehicle. This witness further stated that police party went upto the spot on foot from Naggar Chowk. He also deposed that they stopped at Art Gallery for few minutes as they were on patrolling duty and many tourists were there at the Art Gallery. He further stated that they stopped at the Art Gallery at about 4.30 P.M. and started from there at 4.45 P.M. He further stated that they spotted the accused coming from village Saran side at a distance of about 20 meters. According to this witness, accused turned back and ran a distance of 10 meters before the accused was nabbed by them. This witness further deposed that he tried to locate and associate local panch witnesses from nearby locality but no one was available as the accused was apprehended at an isolated place. According to him, the accused was apprehended at a distance of 500 meters away from Art Gallery. He also stated that he did not go upto Art Gallery for search of panch witnesses. According to him, Charas was recovered at 5.10 P.M. and he handed over Rukka to Constable Hira Lal at 6.15 P.M. Incidentally, this witness says that statement of Hira Lal was dictated by him and scribed by Hira Lal himself. He also deposed that he had added FIR No. in Ext.PW4/D after receiving the case file.

14. On the basis of material produced on record by the prosecution, learned trial Court held that the prosecution had miserably failed to prove that 1Kg. 500 grams Charas were found from the conscious and exclusive possession of the accused. Accordingly, learned trial Court acquitted the accused for commission of offence under Section 20 of Narcotic Drugs & Psychotropic Substances Act.

15. Mr. V.S. Chauhan, learned Additional Advocate General argued that the judgment of acquittal returned by learned trial Court in favour of the accused is perverse and the findings so returned by learned trial Court are not based on the material produced on record by the prosecution. Mr. Chauhan argued that it stood proved from the material that was placed on record by the prosecution, both ocular as well as documentary, that the accused was found in exclusive and conscious possession of 1 Kg. 500 grams of Charas. According to Mr. Chauhan, the factum of the accused having been apprehended with the said narcotic was duly substantiated by the prosecution witnesses and there was no reason for learned trial Court to have disbelieved the cogent and reliable testimony of the prosecution witnesses. It was further argued by Mr. Chauhan that the inference drawn by learned trial Court to acquit the accused on the ground that no independent witness had been associated by the prosecution was not sustainable because learned trial Court failed to appreciate this aspect of the matter that as the accused was apprehended at an isolated place, it was not possible for the police to have had associated any independent witness. Mr. Chauhan further argued that even otherwise it stood substantiated from the testimony of the Investigating Officer and Hira Lal that the search and seizure had been done strictly as per the provisions of the NDPS Act. Mr. Chauhan further argued that learned trial Court had erred in not appreciating that there were no major contradictions and inconsistencies in the statements of prosecution witnesses. Minor inconsistencies if any in no manner impinged the trustworthiness of the said witnesses. On these basis, it was argued by Mr. Chauhan that the judgment of acquittal passed by learned trial Court was not sustainable in law and the same was liable to be set aside.

16. Mr. Ajay Chandel, learned counsel for the respondent, on the other hand, argued that there was neither any perversity nor any infirmity with the findings of acquittal returned by learned trial Court in favour of the accused. According to Mr. Chandel, the material produced on record by the prosecution did not prove beyond reasonable doubt that the accused was in fact apprehended by the police party with Charas. Mr. Chandel argued that the reason as to why no independent witness was associated by the Investigating Officer was that in fact the accused had not been apprehended by the police at all. According to him, the entire case of the prosecution was concocted and the accused was falsely implicated in the case. Mr. Chandel further argued that the testimony of the prosecution witnesses which comprised only of police witnesses was neither cogent nor the same was trustworthy. He further argued that there were many contradictions and inconsistencies in the same which created great doubt on the truthfullness of the case of the prosecution. Accordingly, he prayed that there was no merit in the present appeal and the same be dismissed.

17. We have heard learned counsel for the parties and also gone through the records of the case as well as the judgment passed by learned trial Court.

18. Admittedly, in the present case, no independent witness has been associated by the Investigating Officer in the search and seizure carried out at the spot by the Investigating Officer. The reason for this given by the Investigating Officer and other prosecution witnesses is that the accused was apprehended at an isolated place and because of this no independent witness could be associated. In our considered view, the said reason which has been putforth by the prosecution does not inspires confidence. It has come in the testimony of the Investigating Officer that the police party in fact had stopped at Rorik Art Gallery at 4.30 P.M. because lot of tourists were there and the police party left the said place at 4.45 P.M. This witness has further deposed that after the accused was apprehended and search was conducted, Charas was recovered at 5.10 P.M. This means that the accused was apprehended by the police party between 4.45 P.M. and 5.10 P.M. If the police party had apprehended the accused within 15 to 25 minutes of leaving Rorik art Gallery, it is not understood as to why no person of the police party was sent by the Investigating Officer to search for an independent witness. This shrouds the case of the prosecution with suspicion. We are not oblivious to the fact that it is not as if in each and every case independent witnesses have to be associated by the prosecution to prove its case but in our considered view, in the peculiar facts and circumstances of the present case, non-association of the independent witness creates serious doubts about the story as has been propounded by the prosecution.

19. As per prosecution, the search and seizure of Charas from the accused has been witnessed by Constable Hira Lal and ASI Lal Chand. Though, constable Hira Lal has entered the witness box as PW-8, however, ASI Lal Chand was not examined by the prosecution as a witness. As per PW-8 Constable Hira Lal, the police party which had apprehended the accused comprised of ASI Lal Singh, SI Onkar Singh, Constable Narender Kumar and Constable Nikhil Kaundal. However, except PW-8 Constable Hira Lal and Investigating Officer Onkar Singh, none of the other persons who were members of the police party were examined by the prosecution. Why no other member of the police party was examined by the prosecution to substantiate its case, could not be satisfactorily explained by the appellant/State.

20. Now coming to the testimony of Constable Hira Lal, who entered the witness box as PW-8. This witness has stated that his statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. was written in his own hand. He has admitted in his cross-examination that it was not recorded in statement Ext. DB that the accused was arrested in his presence and Memo to this effect was also prepared. This witness has further deposed that after taking Rukka to the Police Station he reached the spot back alongwith the case file between 8.00 to 8.20 P.M. In the same breath, he has admitted it to be correct that he was present at Police Station Manali at 7.50 P.M. In other words, this witness wants this Court to believe that distance of 24-25 KM between Police Station Manali and Naggar was covered by this witness between 10 to 20 minutes. PW-9 SI Onkar Singh in his cross-examination has admitted that he had not gone upto Art Gallery to search for independent witnesses. He stated in his cross-examination that accused was apprehended at a distance of 500 meters from Art Gallery. Incidentally, in his cross-examination, Investigating Officer has stated that the statement of Hira Lal was dictated by him and the same was scribed by Hira Lal himself. Further, Hira Lal has stated in his cross-examination that he reached back at the spot alongwith case file between 8.00 to 8.20 P.M., whereas PW-9 in his cross-examination has stated that they started from the spot at 8.00 P.M.

21. NCB form is on record as Ext. PW4/D. A perusal of the same demonstrates that case FIR No. was already written on it in the same handwriting and with the same pen with which the other contents of the said form have been filled in. In the said NCB form, the date and time of the seizure has been mentioned as 4.7.2010 at 6.00 P.M. near village Saran. Against column No. 7 of the said form which pertains to date of dispatch by the officer to Police station, the date is mentioned as 04.07.2010 and time of discharge is mentioned as 9.00 P.M. However, a perusal of column No. 10 of the said form demonstrates that date and time and place of deposit of the case property with MHC has been mentioned as 04.07.2010 at 9.00 P.M. at Police station Manali.

22. In our considered view, the factum of the mentioning of FIR No. in the NCB form in the same ink and hand in which columns No. 1 to 8 had been filled up coupled with the fact that the time of dispatch and time of deposit of the case property with MHC is both 9.00 P.M., the case of the prosecution becomes highly suspicious. As we have already taken note of above, village Naggar is at a distance of 24-25 KM from Police Station Manali and as per PW-8, he started from the spot where the accused was allegedly apprehended by the police party for Police Station Manali alongwith Rukka at 6.15 P.M. and he reached there at 7.20 P.M. This witness further deposed that he reached back to the spot alongwithg the case file in between 8.00 to 8.20 P.M. In his cross-examination, PW-8 has stated that the file was handed over to him by the MHC at 7.35 P.M. This testimony of PW-8 is contrary to the daily diary entries for 04.07.2010 where arrival of PW-8 at Police station has been shown against entry No. 29 as 7.20 P.M. and his departure has been shown against entry No. 31 as 7.50 P.M. We have also taken note of the fact that it is highly improbable and impossible to cover a distance of about 24-25 KM within a period of 25 minutes in hilly terrain.

23. Besides this, there are other major discrepancies in the statements of PW-8 and PW-9. According to PW-8 Constable Hira Lal, he reached the spot in a private vehicle and thereafter, he scribed the statement Ext. DB under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and he has also stated that he was a witness to the arrest Memo. The factum of alteration in the time of arrest in the arrest Memo has been admitted by the Investigating Officer PW-9, who stated that Hira Lal in fact had met the police about 1 KM away from the spot. This testimony of his also weakens the case of the prosecution because according to PW-8, he had scribed his statement Ext. DB at the spot and the accused was also arrested at the spot. PW-8 in his statement has also deposed that the Charas which was recovered from the accused was in the shape of pancake and rectangular. On the other hand, PW-9 in his statement has deposed that the Charas which was recovered from the accused was in the shape of pancake and stick shape. A perusal of NCB form demonstrates that the recovered Charas was in the shape of Chapati. All these discrepancies, inconsistencies and contradictions in the statements of the prosecution witnesses creates a serious doubt as to whether the accused was actually apprehended by the police in the mode and manner, as has been putforth by the prosecution and whether the Charas was actually recovered from the exclusive and conscious possession of the accused as prosecution wants this Court to believe.

24. A perusal of the judgment passed by learned trial Court demonstrates that all these aspects of the matter have been gone into in detail by learned trial Court and thereafter, learned trial Court has come to the conclusion that the prosecution was not able to prove its case against the accused beyond reasonable doubt. It was held by learned trial Court that the contradictions in the case of the prosecution led to two views including a view which is in favour of the accused. On these basis it was held by learned trial Court that when two views are possible then the view which favours the accused has to be taken. On these basis, the accused was acquitted by learned trial Court.

25. In our considered view, the findings so returned by learned trial Court are well founded and are borne out from the appreciation of the material placed on record by the prosecution. The evidence which has been produced on record by the prosecution both ocular as well as documentary does not prove beyond reasonable doubt that the accused in fact was apprehended by the police party on 04.07.2010 at village Saran in the mode and manner in which the prosecution wants this Court to believe, nor the prosecution has been able to establish beyond reasonable doubt that 1Kg. 500 grams Charas was recovered from the exclusive and conscious possession of the accused beyond reasonable doubt. Therefore, while upholding the findings returned by learned trial Court, we dismiss the present appeal being devoid of any merit. Bail bonds, if any, furnished by the accused are discharged.

State of Himachal Pradesh versus Mehboob Khan 2013(3) Him.L.R. (FB) 1834

For the appellant Mr. D.S. Nainta and Mr. Virender Verma, Addl. AGs.

For the respondents Ms. Kanta Thakur, Advocate, for respondent No. 1.

Mr. N. K. Thakur, Sr. Advocate with Mr. Ramesh Sharma, Advocate, for respondent No. 2.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Dharam Chand Chaudhary, J. (Oral)

State of Himachal Pradesh is in appeal before this Court. The complaint is that learned Special Judge, Chamba, Division at Chamba has erroneously acquitted the respondents, hereinafter referred to as 'the accused' from the charge under Sections 20 of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985, hereinafter referred to as 'the NDPS Act' in short vide judgment dated 24.11.2012 passed in Sessions trial No. 27 of 2012. The impugned judgment has thus been sought to be quashed and set aside with further prayer that both accused be convicted and sentenced for the commission of the offence they committed as per law.

2. The facts in a nut shell are that on 25.2.2012 a police patrol headed by ASI Harish Kumar PW11 and comprising HC Rajinder Kumar, HC Hem Raj (PW2) and HHC Raj Kumar left for patrolling towards Sahoo and Sillagharat area in wee hours (early morning). Rapat Ext.PW6/A to this effect was entered in the rapat rojnamcha. Around 7:45A.M. the police party had laid a Nakka at Ludera Forest Check Post. Suresh Kumar PW1 the forest guard and forest worker Baldev Singh on duty in the check post were also present at the spot. Around 8:00 A.M. Shiva Coach, a private bus, bearing registration No. HP-68-0676 arrived at the place of Nakka. PW11 got the bus stopped for its checking by the police party. During the course of checking the bus the accused who were found to be occupying seat Nos. 23 and 24 had kept one carry bag in between them. On inquiry they both claimed the bag to be their. On suspicion having arisen they both were made to alight from the bus. On inquiry they disclosed their names and other particulars. PW11 on suspicion that the accused may be carrying some drug or psychotropic substance in the bag deemed it appropriate to conduct the search of the bag. Before that he apprised them about their legal right of being searched either before a nearby Magistrate or gazetted officer vide memos Ext.PW1/D and Ext.PW1/E in the presence of Suresh Kumar PW1 and Baldev Singh. They however, opted for the search of the bag by the police present there. On this PW11 had first offered his search to the accused and memo Ext.PW1/A was prepared in this regard. Nothing incriminating was recovered from his possession. On conducting the search of the bag being carried by the accused charas in the shape of Batties was recovered therefrom. The same was kept beneath a red and white coloured shawl. The recovered charas was weighed and found to be 2Kg and 500 grams. The charas was packed again in that very bag. The same was sealed in a parcel of cloth with five impressions of seal 'R' and taken in possession vide seizure memo Ext.PW1/C. The sample of seal 'R' was taken on a piece of cloth which is Ext.PW1/B. The I.O. had prepared Rukka Ext.PW10/A and it was sent to Police Station, Sadar Chamba through HC Hem Raj (PW2) for registration of FIR. On the basis of Rukka the FIR Ext.PW10/C came to be registered in the police station.

3. The I.O PW11 had completed all codel formalities including filling up NCB form in triplicate and preparation of spot map on the spot. The accused were apprised about the offence they committed and the sentence prescribed therefor vide memos Ext.PW1/F and Ext.PW1/G. They both were thereafter arrested and taken in custody. The information qua their arrest was also given to the persons of their choice. The personal search of both accused were also conducted vide memos Ext.PW1/H and Ext.PW1/J.

4. On the same day, PW11 produced the case property before SI/SHO Prem Dass PW10 in the police station. The witness has resealed the parcel containing the case property with impression of seal 'T' and thereafter deposited the same with Pawan Kumar MHC Police Station, Sadar Chamba.

5. PW5 in turn had sent the case property to Forensic Science Laboratory, Junga through C. Amit Kumar. The report Ext.PA was received from the Forensic Science Laboratory and as per the same the contraband recovered from the accused was found to be the extract of cannabis and as such Charas.

6. On the completion of the investigation, report under Section 173 of the Code of Criminal Procedure came to be filed in the trial Court against both accused.

7. Learned Special Judge on going through the police report and the documents annexed therewith has prima-facie found a case under Section 20 of the NDPS Act made out against the accused. Charge against both of them was framed accordingly. They however pleaded not guilty.

8. The prosecution in order to sustain charge against them has examined oral as well as documentary evidence. The material prosecution witnesses are Suresh Kumar Forest Guard PW1, and HC Hem Raj PW2. PW3 Raj Kumar is the driver of the bus in which the accused were traveling whereas Ravinder Kumar PW4 is its conductor. The I.O. is PW11. The remaining prosecution witnesses HC Pawan Kumar, HHC Gian Chand, C. Amit Kumar, C. Rajesh Kumar, HC Subhash Sharma and ASI Prem Dass PWs 5 to 10 are formal as they remained associated during the investigation of this case in one way or the other. The statement of the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. were also recorded. They however, have not opted for leading any evidence in their defence.

9. On the completion of record and hearing learned Public Prosecutor as well as defence counsel learned Special Judge while placing reliance on a Division bench judgment of this Court in Sunil Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh, Latest HLJ 2010 (HP) 207 has arrived at a conclusion with the following observations:

> "....18. After having discussed the reports in detail, the Hon'ble High Court went on to hold that the reports did not prove that the stuff recovered from the accused was Charas as they were not in consonance with the provisions of Section 2(iii)(a) of the Act.
> 19. In para 31 of the Sunil Kumar's judgment, referred hereinabove supra, the Hon'ble High Court further observed as under:
>
> 'in view of the above stated position, we hold that Experts report in non of these six cases prove that the stuff recovered from the appellants/accused was Charas. The possibility of the stuff recovered from them being only bhang i.e. the dried leaves of cannabis plant, possession of which is no offence, cannot be ruled out.'
>
> 20. The learned counsel for the accused(s) has further urged that the a foresaid proposition has further been reiterated by the Hon'ble High court in 'Bajinder Singh vs. State of hp, Latest HLJ 2010(2) 1263 (HP), Om Parkash vs. State of H.P., Latest HLJ 2012 (HP) 474, Lekh Raj Vs. State of H.P., Latest HLJ 2012 (HP) 41 and also in State of H.P. Vs. Ranjeet Ram 2011 Latest HLJ (HP) 1466 and very recently in 2012(3) RCR 370 (Criminal) Hukam Singh Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh.
>
> 21. It is thus clear that the judgment rendered in Sunil Kumar's case has consistently been followed by the Hon'ble High Court till date.
>
> 22. It would not be out of place to now reproduce the result of the examination rendered by the State Forensic Science Laboratory, Junga in the present case, vide Ex. PA. It reads thus:
>
> 'Various scientific tests such as physical identification, chemical and chromatographic analyses were carried out in the laboratory with the exhibit under reference, The above tests performed indicated the presence of cannabinoids including the presence of tetrahydrocannabinol in the exhbt. The miscroscopic examination indicated the presence of Cystolithic hairs in the exhibit. Charas is a resinous mass, which on testing was found present in the exhibit. The quantity of resin as found in the exhibit is 23.79% w/w. The result thus obtained is given below:
> The exhibit is extract of cannabis and sample of CHARAS.

23. The perusal of the result of the examinations of the contraband found in possession of the two accused in the present case is verbatim, the same as have been considered by the Hon'ble High Court in Sunil Kumar's judgment, referred hereinabove supra and the other judgments discussed hereinabove. That being so, it can well be said that the contraband recovered from the possession of the accused(s) has not been proved to be Charas or the same being resin of charas and is not in consonance with the definition so provided under section 2(iii)(a) of the Act, as has been held by our Hon'ble High Court in catena of decision discussed hereinabove supra.

24. Keeping in view the mandate laid down by the Hon'ble High Court, the other aspects of the case are hardly required to be gone into, as the prosecution has failed to prove that the accused(s) were found in possession of Charas. The prosecution having failed to prove that the stuff recovered from the accused was the resin of Charas."

10. It is worth mentioning that a Larger Bench of this Court in State of Himachal Pradesh versus Mehboob Khan 2013(3) Him.L.R. (FB) 1834 has reconsidered the law laid down by the Division in Sunil's case supra and concluded as under:-

a. After taking into consideration Section 293 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, Sections 45 and 46 of the Indian Evidence Act and the Law laid down by the apex Court as well as various High Courts discussed in detail hereinabove, we conclude that on account of non-consideration of the same by the Division Bench, which has rendered the judgment in Sunil's case, correct law on the expert opinion and the reports assigned by the scientific expert after analyzing the exhibit has not been laid down.

b. We further conclude that on account of non-consideration of various reports of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime including Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs, 1961 and to the contrary placing reliance on the text books, which basically are on medical jurisprudence, the Division Bench in Sunil's case failed to assign correct meaning to 'charas' and 'cannabis resin', the necessary constituents of an offence punishable under Section 20 of the NDPS Act.

c. In view of the detailed discussion hereinabove, the Division Bench while deciding Sunil's case supra has definitely erred in taking note of the percentage of tetrahydrocannabinol in three forms of cannabis i.e. Bhang, Ganja and Charas and hence, concluded erroneously that without there being no reference of the resin contents in the reports assigned by the Chemical Examiners in those cases, the contraband recovered is not proved to be Charas, as in our opinion, the Charas is a resinous mass and the presence of resin in the stuff analyzed without there being any evidence qua the nature of the neutral substance, the entire mass has to be taken as Charas.

d. There is no legal requirement of the presence of particular percentage of resin to be there in the sample and the presence of the resin in purified or crude form is sufficient to hold that the sample is that of Charas. The law laid down by the Division Bench in Sunil's case that 'for want of percentage of tetrahydrocannabinol or resin contents in the samples analyzed, the possibility of the stuff recovered from the accused persons being only Bhang i.e. the dried leaves of cannabis plant, possession of which is not an offence, cannot be ruled out', is not a good law nor any such interpretation is legally possible. The percentage of resin contents in the stuff analyzed is not a determinative factor of small quantity, above smaller quantity and lesser than commercial quantity and the commercial quantity. Rather if in the entire stuff recovered from the accused, resin of cannabis is found present on analysis, whole of the stuff is to be taken to determine the quantity i.e. smaller, above smaller but lesser than commercial and commercial, in terms of the notification below Section 2 (vii-a) and (xxiii-a) of the Act.

e. We have discussed the Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs, 1961 in detail hereinabove and noted that resin becomes cannabis resin only when it is separated from the plant. The separated resin is cannabis resin not only when it is in 'purified' form, but also when in 'crude' form or still mixed with other parts of the plant. Therefore, the resin mixed with other parts of the plant i.e. in 'crude' form is also charas within the meaning of the Convention and the Legislature in its wisdom has never intended to exclude the weight of the mixture i.e. other parts of the plant in the resin unless or until such mixture proves to be some other neutral substance and not that of other parts of the cannabis plant. Once the expert expressed the opinion that after conducting the required tests, he found the resin present in the stuff and as charas is a resinous mass and after conducting tests if in the opinion of the expert, the entire mass is a sample of charas, no fault can be found with the opinion so expressed by the expert nor would it be appropriate to embark upon the admissibility of the report on any ground, including non-mentioning of the percentage of tetrahydrocannabinol or resin contents in the sample.

f. We are also not in agreement with the findings recorded by the Division Bench in Sunil's case that "mere presence of tetrahydrocannabinol and cystolithic hair without there being any mention of the percentage of tetrahydrocannabinol in a sample of charas is not an indicator of the entire stuff analyzed to be charas" for the reason that the statute does not insist for the presence of percentage in the stuff of charas and mere presence of tetrahydrocannabinol along with cystolithic hair in a sample stuff is an indicator of the same being the resin of cannabis plant because the cystolithic hair are present only in the cannabis plant. When after observing the presence of tetrahydrocannabinol and cystolithic hair, the expert arrives at a conclusion that the sample contains the resin contents, it is more than sufficient to hold that the sample is of charas and the view so expressed by the expert normally should be honoured and not called into question. Of course, neutral material which is not obtained from cannabis plant cannot be treated as resin of the cannabis plants. The resin rather must have been obtained from the cannabis plants may be in 'crude' form or 'purified' form. In common parlance charas is a hand made drug made from extract of cannabis plant. Therefore, any mixture with or without any neutral material of any of the forms of cannabis is to be considered as a contraband article. No concentration and percentage of resin is prescribed for 'charas' under the Act."

10. A Larger Bench, therefore, has held that the judgment in Sunil's case supra does not lay down the correct legal position as to what is Charas and what shall be its constituents in legal parlance and as such not to be followed. Therefore, in view of the Larger Bench judgment in Mehboob Khan's case supra, the impugned judgment can not be said to be legally and factually sustainable and the same as such is quashed and set aside. The case, however, is remanded to learned trial Court for fresh disposal in accordance with law. The parties through learned counsel representing them are directed to appear before the trial Court on 5th October, 2016. Record be sent back so as to reach in the trial Court well before the date fixed.

11. The appeal is accordingly allowed and stands disposed of.

This appeal is directed against the judgment and award dated 5.10.2010, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Fast Track Court, Kangra at Dharamshala, H.P., in MACP No. 37-K/2006, titled Smt. Neelam Kumari Mongra and others versus Chuni Singh and others, for short "the Tribunal", whereby compensation to the tune of Rs.28,17,000/- alongwith interest @7.5% per annum came to be awarded in favour of the claimants, and insurer was saddled with the liability with right of recovery from the owner/insured, hereinafter referred to as "the impugned award", for short.

Now the law has gone through sea change and the insurer has to satisfy the award with right of recovery.

3. The insured has not questioned the impugned award.

For the Respondents:	Mr. Ajay Sharma, Advocate, for respondent No.1. Respondents No. 2 & 4 already ex-parte. Mr. G.C. Gupta, Senior Advocate, with Ms. Meera Devi, Advocate, for respondent No. 3.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice (oral)

Subject matter of this appeal is the award dated 23rd April, 2011, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Kangra at Dharmshala, (H.P.) (hereinafter referred to as 'the Tribunal') in M.A.C.P No. 52-G/2003, titled as Smt. Mansa Devi & another versus Paramjeet Singh & others, whereby compensation to the tune of Rs. 1,00,000/- with interest at the rate of 7.5% per annum from the date of filing of the claim petition, was granted in favour of the claimants and the insurer came to be saddled with liability (for short, "the impugned award").

2. The other respondents, except the appellant-insurer of Truck No. AP-03/W-11, have not questioned the impugned award, on any count. Thus, it has attained finality, so far it relates to them.

3. The appellant-insurer of Truck No. AP-03/W-11 has questioned the impugned award on the following two grounds:

> "(i) The accident was outcome of the contributory negligence of the drivers of the offending vehicles, i.e. trucks bearing registration Nos. HR-55-A-5651 and AP-03/W-11.
> (ii) The premium amount was made by cheque, which was dishonoured and intimation was sent to the owner of truck No. AP-03/W-11, thus the owner of Truck No. AP-03/W-11, i.e. respondent No. 4 in the appeal and respondent No. 3 in the claim petition, was to be saddled with liability."

4. Both the grounds are not tenable for the following reasons.

5. The Tribunal has discussed the pleadings and the evidence led by the parties from paras 9 to 15 of the impugned award and held that the accident was not outcome of the contributory negligence of the drivers of both the trucks, but was caused by the driver of Truck No. AP-03/W-11, while driving the same rashly and negligently.

6. I have perused the entire record and am of the considered view that the Tribunal has rightly held that the accident was outcome of the rash and negligent driving of the driver of Truck No. AP-03/W-11.

7. The owner of Truck No. AP-03/W-11 had not filed reply to the claim petition, thus, the averments made in the claim petition remained unrebutted, are deemed to have been admitted in terms of the mandate of the Code of Civil Procedure.

8. Having said so, the Tribunal has rightly decided issue No. 1.

9. It was for the appellant-insurer of Truck No. AP-03/W-11 to prove that they have followed the mandate of Section 64-VB of the Insurance Act, 1938 (hereinafter referred to as "the Insurance Act") .

10. In terms of Section 64-VB of the Insurance Act read with the provisions of Sections 147 to 149 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (for short "MV Act"), the insurer has to intimate the insured, which has not been done in the present case, and if intimation is not given and during that period, the accident happens, it is the insurer, who is liable.

11. The Apex Court in the case titled as New India Assurance Co. Ltd. versus Rula and others, reported in AIR 2000 Supreme Court 1082, has held that the insurer has to mandatorily intimate the owner by way of notice about the cancellation of insurance policy and if the accident occurs between the period till the cancellation is conveyed, it is the insurer, who is liable. It is apt to reproduce para 11 of the judgment herein:

> "11. This decision, which is a 3-Judge Bench decision, squarely covers the present case also. The subsequent cancellation of the Insurance Policy in the instant case on the ground that the cheque through which premium was paid was dishonoured, would not affect the rights of the third party which had accrued on the issuance of the Policy on the date on which the accident took place. If, on the date of accident, there was a Policy of Insurance in respect of the vehicle in question, the third party would have a claim against the Insurance Company and the owner of the vehicle would have to be indemnified in respect of the claim of that party. Subsequent cancellation of Insurance Policy on the ground of non-payment of premium would not affect the rights already accrued in favour of the third party."

12. The matter again came up for consideration before the Apex Court in Deddappa & Ors. versus The Branch Manager, National Insurance Co. Ltd., reported in 2007 AIR SCW 7948, and the same principle has been laid down. It is apt to reproduce paras 26 to 28 of the judgment herein:

> "26. We are not oblivious of the distinction between the statutory liability of the Insurance Company vis-a-vis a third party in the context of Sections 147 and 149 of the Act and its liabilities in other cases. But the same liabilities arising under a contract of insurance would have to be met if the contract is valid. If the contract of insurance has been cancelled and all concerned have been intimated thereabout, we are of the opinion, the insurance company would not be liable to satisfy the claim.
> 27. A beneficial legislation as is well known should not be construed in such a manner so as to bring within its ambit a benefit which was not contemplated by the legislature to be given to the party. In Regional Director, Employees' State Insurance Corporation, Trichur v. Ramanuja Match Industries [AIR 1985 SC 278], this Court held :
>
> > "We do not doubt that beneficial legislations should have liberal construction with a view to implementing the legislative intent but where such beneficial .legislation has a scheme of its own there is no warrant for the Court to travel beyond the scheme and extend the scope of the statute on the pretext of extending the statutory benefit to those who are not covered by the scheme."
>
> We, therefore, agree with the opinion of the High Court.
> 28. However, as the appellant hails from the lowest strata of society, we are of the opinion that in a case of this nature, we should, in exercise of our extra-ordinary jurisdiction under Article 142 of the Constitution of India, direct the Respondent No.1 to pay the amount of claim to the appellants herein and recover the same from the owner of the vehicle viz., Respondent No.2, particularly in view of the fact that no appeal was preferred by him. We direct accordingly.

13. In the case titled as United India Insurance Co. Ltd. versus Laxmamma & Ors., reported in 2012 AIR SCW 2657, the Apex Court has discussed the law developed on the issue and ultimately held that if cancellation order is not conveyed and if the accident occurs till the cancellation is made, the insurer is liable. It is profitable to reproduce para 19 of the judgment herein:

"19. In our view, the legal position is this : where the policy of insurance is issued by an authorized insurer on receipt of cheque towards payment of premium and such cheque is returned dishonoured, the liability of authorized insurer to indemnify third parties in respect of the liability which that policy covered subsists and it has to satisfy award of compensation by reason of the provisions of Sections 147(5) and 149(1) of the M.V. Act unless the policy of insurance is cancelled by the authorized insurer and intimation of such cancellation has reached the insured before the accident. In other words, where the policy of insurance is issued by an authorized insurer to cover a vehicle on receipt of the cheque paid towards premium and the cheque gets dishonored and before the accident of the vehicle occurs, such insurance company cancels the policy of insurance and sends intimation thereof to the owner, the insurance company's liability to indemnify the third parties which that policy covered ceases and the insurance company is not liable to satisfy awards of compensation in respect thereof."

14. The same view has been taken by this Court in the cases titled as M/s New Prem Bus Service versus Laxman Singh & another, reported in Latest HLJ 2014 (HP) 579, and United India Insurance Company Ltd. Versus Smt. Sanjana Kumari & others, reported in Latest HLJ 2014 (HP) 1140.

15. Having said so, no interference is required. Accordingly, the impugned award is upheld.

16. Registry is directed to release the awarded amount in favour of the claimants, strictly as per the terms and conditions contained in the impugned award.

17. The appeal is dismissed accordingly.

18. Send down the record after placing a copy of the judgment on the Tribunal's file.

Code of Civil Procedure, 1908- Order 23 Rule 1- Plaintiff filed a civil suit for possession – application to withdraw the suit with liberty to file a fresh suit on the same cause of action was filed- application was allowed by the trial Court- application was filed on the ground that J had executed a valid Will- he was missing for last three years and his whereabouts were not known - a decree seeking declaration regarding civil death of J was not obtained, which is a technical defect- held, that Will would come into operation after the death of J and when proof of the death of J was not filed, suit was liable to be dismissed- no prejudice would be caused to the defendants by permitting the plaintiff to withdraw the suit- petition dismissed. (Para-5 and 6)

Case referred:
K.S. Bhoopathy and others vs. Kokila and others, AIR 2000 SC 2132

For the petitioners: Mr. Kulwant Singh Katoch, Advocate.
For the respondent: Mr. P.S.Goverdhan, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Justice Rajiv Sharma, J.

This petition is instituted against the order dated 2.7.2015, rendered in Civil Suit No. 241/2013 by the learned Civil Judge (Jr. Divn.), Kandaghat, Distt. Solan, H.P.

2. "Key facts" necessary for the adjudication of this petition are that the respondent-plaintiff (hereinafter referred to as the plaintiff) has filed a suit for possession under Section 6 read with Section 38 of the Specific Reliefs Act, 1963. The plaintiff filed an application under Order 23 Rule 1 CPC seeking permission to withdraw the suit and to file a fresh suit on the same cause of action. According to the averments made in the application, the plaintiff was residing along with his family members at village Biran-Silhari, PO and Tehsil Kandaghat in the house of Shri Jai Ram, defendant No. 8 for the last more than 7-8 years. Shri Jai Ram had been treating the plaintiff as his own son and out of love and affection he executed a legal and valid Will in favour of plaintiff on 7.11.2005. It was duly registered with Sub Registrar, Kandaghat as document No. 66 dated 8.11.2005 thereby bequeathing all his property, including the suit land in favour of the plaintiff. Shri Jai Ram was missing for the last three years and his whereabouts were not known to anyone. The report to this effect was also lodged in the Police Station Kandaghat on 5.5.2007. The defendants have started interfering in his possession and have dispossessed him. A formal defect has crept in as the declaration with respect to Will dated 7.11.2005, executed by defendant No. 8, is required to be taken and due to this formal defect and without seeking declaration with respect to the civil death of defendant No. 8 Jai Ram, the point in controversy between the parties could not be decided properly and effectively. It is further stated that without seeking declaration with respect to civil death, suit of plaintiff was bound to fail on this formal defect.

3. The application was contested by the defendants. The learned Civil Judge (Jr. Divn.), Kandaghat, Distt. Solan, H.P., allowed the application on 2.7.2015. Hence, this petition.

4. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and gone through the records of the case carefully.

5. According to the averments made in the application, it is a formal defect and not a defect of substance. Neither the plaintiff has stated in the suit that Jai Ram has died nor any declaration was sought regarding his civil death. The Will would come into force only after the death of Jai Ram. The defect was technical in nature and no prejudice has been caused to the petitioners-defendants by permitting the withdrawal of the suit and filing a fresh suit as per order dated 2.7.2015. Moreover, the suit is at the initial stage. The suit was bound to fail due to this formal defect.

6. Their lordships of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of K.S. Bhoopathy and others vs. Kokila and others, reported in AIR 2000 SC 2132, have laid down the following principles while granting permission to withdraw the suit with leave to file a fresh suit:

> "12. The provision in Order XXIII Rule 1 CPC is an exception to the common law principle of non suit. Therefore on principle an application by a plaintiff under sub-rule 3 cannot be treated on par with an application by him in exercise of the absolute liberty given to him under sub-rule 1, In (he former it is actually a prayer for concession from the Court after satisfying the Court regarding existences of the circumstances justifying the grant of the such concession. No doubt, the grant of leave envisaged in sub-rule (3) of Rule 1 is at the discretion of the Court but such discretion is to be exercised by the Court with caution and circumspection. The legislative policy in the matter of exercise of discretion is clear from the provisions of sub-rule (3) in which two alternatives are provided; (1) where the Court is satisfied that a suit roust fail by reason of some formal defect, and the other where the Court is satisfied that there are sufficient grounds for allowing the plaintiff to institute a fresh suit for the subject matter of a suit or part of a claim. Clause (b) of sub-rule (3) contains the mandate to the Court that it must be satisfied about the sufficiency of the grounds for allowing the plaintiff to institute a fresh suit for the same claim or part of the claim on the same cause of action. The Court is to discharge the duty mandated under the provision of the Code on taking into consideration all relevant aspects of the matter including the desirability of permitting the party to start a fresh round of litigation on the same cause of action. This becomes all the more important in a case where the application under Order XXIII Rule (1) is filed by the plaintiff at the stage of appeal. Grant of leave in such a case would result in the unsuccessful plaintiff to avoid the decree or decrees against him and seek a fresh adjudication of the controversy on a clean slate. It may also result in the contesting defendant losing the advantage of adjudication of the dispute by the Court or courts below. Grant of permission for withdrawal of a suit with leave to file afresh suit may also result in annulment of a right vested in the defendant or even a third party. The appellate/second appellate court should apply its mind to the case with a view to ensure strict compliance with the conditions prescribed in Order XXIII Rule 1(3) CPC for exercise of the discretionary power in permitting the suit with leave to file a fresh suit on the same cause of action. Yet another reason in support of this view is that withdrawal of a suit at the appellate/second appellate stage results in wastage of public time of Courts which is of considerable importance in the present time in view of large accumulation of cases in lower courts and inordinate delay in disposal of the cases."

7. There is neither any perversity nor any illegality in the order dated 2.7.2015. Consequently, there is no merit in this petition, the same is dismissed so also the pending application(s), if any.

For petitioner: Ms.Shashi Kiran Advocate.

For non-petitioner. Mr.R.K.Sharma Deputy Advocate General.

The following order of the Court was delivered:

P.S.Rana, Judge.

Present petition is filed under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 against order dated 29.7.2015 passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge Sirmour District at Nahan whereby learned Additional Sessions Judge dismissed revision petition of petitioner and affirmed order of learned Trial Court dated 8.4.2015.

BRIEF FACTS OF THE CASE:

2. On 1.4.2015 Sh Govind Attri got recorded his statement under section 154 code of criminal procedure 1973 before ASI Rajpal that on 1.4.2015 he was coming from Chandigarh at about 4.15 AM (Night) and when he reached at Naina Tikkar then he noticed five vehicles were loaded with oxen. Vehicles were checked by police officials. Oxen were loaded in cruel manner and drivers of vehicles did not give satisfactory answer and criminal case under section 429 IPC read with section 34 IPC and under section 11 of Prevention of Cruelty to Animal Act 1960 registered. Oxen handed over to local residents by investigating agency as of today. Sh Vijay Kumar petitioner filed petition under section 457 Cr.PC with prayer that cattle two in number be ordered to be released to petitioner on any conditions imposed by Court. It is alleged that Vijay Kumar is the owner of two cattle and cattle were purchased in cattle fair from Ropar (Punjab) for agricultural work. It is alleged that Vijay Kumar is agriculturist and he has no past criminal background. It is alleged that no criminal case is pending against Vijay Kumar. Learned Trial Court dismissed the application on 8.4.2015.

3. Feeling aggrieved against the order of learned Trial Court Vijay Kumar filed revision petition under section 397 Cr.PC. Learned Additional Sessions Judge Sirmour District at Nahan on dated 29.7.2015 dismissed revision petition and affirmed the order of learned Trial Court. Learned Additional Sessions Judge further directed that Vijay Kumar is at liberty to file fresh application before learned Trial Court. Thereafter Vijay Kumar filed fresh application before learned Trial Court under section 457 Cr.PC on the ground that investigation is completed and charge-sheet stood filed in Court and oxen be released to him on the ground that Vijay Kumar is owner of oxen. Learned Trial Court again dismissed the application of petitioner on dated 14.9.2015 relating to releasing of oxen.

4. Court heard learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner and learned Deputy Advocate General appearing on behalf of non-petitioner and also perused entire records carefully.

5. Following points arise for determination in present petition:

(1) Whether petition filed under Section 482 code of criminal procedure 1973 is liable to be accepted as mentioned in memorandum of grounds of petition?.

(2) Final Order.

Findings upon Point No.1 with reasons.

6. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that investigation is complete, charge-sheet has been filed in competent Court of law and trial of the case will be concluded in due course of time and custody of two oxen be granted to him on sapurdari is accepted for reasons hereinafter mentioned. As per section 457 of the Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 whenever the seizure of property by any police officer is reported to a Judicial Magistrate under the Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 the Magistrate may make such order as he thinks fit respecting the disposal of such property or the delivery of such property to the person entitled to possession thereof. It is well settled law that discretionary power should be exercised by Judicial Magistrate judicially. It is well settled law that Judicial Magistrate has to decide as to who is entitle to possession. It is well settled law that Judicial Magistrate has no power to go into question of title of property because Judicial Magistrate is not a Civil Court. See 2003 (12) SCC 429 title Rajmata Vijaya Raje Scindia Vs. State of M.P. and others. See AIR 1978 SC 1282 title Ram Parkash Sharma Vs. State of Haryana. See AIR 1968 Manipur 29 title Khuraijam Jugeswar Singh and another Vs. Smt. Chanabam Ongbi Tomu Devi and another. Chief Agriculture Officer Haridwar (Uttrakhand) has given certificate Annexure P3 placed on record that petitioner is agriculturist by profession and Chief Agriculture Officer has also given certificate to the effect that petitioner has purchased two oxen from Ropar (Punjab) for agriculture purpose. Chief Agriculture Officer has also given certificate that character of Vijay Kumar is satisfactory. No other person has filed any application claiming title of two oxen over suit property.

7. Submission of learned Deputy Advocate General appearing on behalf of non-petitioner that two oxen were carried by petitioner for the purpose of slaughtering and not for the purpose of agriculture and the custody of two oxen has been granted to local residents as of today and on this ground present petition be dismissed is rejected being devoid of any force for the reasons hereinafter mentioned. Issue whether two oxen were carried in vehicle for the purpose of agriculture work or for the purpose of slaughtering is complicated issues of facts. Judicial finding relating to complicated issues of facts cannot be given at this stage. Judicial finding relating to complicated issues of facts whether two oxen were carried in vehicle for agriculture purpose or for slaughtering purpose would be given by learned Trial Court after giving due opportunity to both parties to lead evidence in support of their case. In view of certificate Annexure P3 given by Chief Agriculture Officer Haridawar (Uttrakhand) placed on record it is expedient in the ends of justice to allow petition. In view of above stated facts point No.1 is answered in affirmative.

Point No.2 (Final Order).

8. In view of findings upon point No.1 petition is allowed and it is ordered that spurdari of two oxen owned by petitioner will be given to petitioner till conclusion of trial on furnishing personal bonds to the tune of Rs.100000/- (One lac) with one surety in the like amount to the satisfaction of learned Trial Court on following terms and conditions. (1) That two oxen will be produced before learned Trial Court whenever and wherever directed by learned Trial Court in accordance with law. (2) That petitioner will not sale or exchange two oxen during trial of case in any manner. (3) That petitioner will not change the nature of two oxen in any manner till disposal of trial. (4) That learned Trial Court will be at liberty to inspect two oxen in order to ensure that no cruelty is committed upon oxen in any manner till conclusion of trial. Certificate annexure P3 given by Chief Agriculture Officer Haridawar (Uttrakhand) will form part and parcel of order. Order of learned Additional Sessions Judge and learned Trial Court are modified accordingly. Observations will not effect merits of the case in any manner. Petition filed under Section 482 Cr PC is disposed of. All pending application(s) if any are also disposed of.

BEFORE HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE AJAY MOHAN GOEL, J.

Anil Kumar .....Petitioner.

Vs.

State of Himachal Pradesh and another .....Respondents.

CWP No: 2767 of 2010
Date of Decision: 14.09.2016

Constitution of India, 1950- Article 226- Petitioner filed a revision petition under Section 17 of the Himachal Pradesh Land Revenue Act against the order passed by the Court of learned Commissioner, Mandi- revision petition was dismissed in default- miscellaneous application was filed after 13 years for restoration of the revision petition along with an application for condonation of the delay- it was pleaded that petitioner was ill and could not appear before the Court- Counsel had also not appeared nor had he informed the petitioner about the dismissal of the revision petition - when petitioner came to the Shimla and made inquiry, he came to know about the dismissal – application was dismissed by the Financial Commissioner (Appeal)- aggrieved from the order, present writ petition has been filed- held, that order has been passed in exercise of statutory power- order is reasoned and speaking- no cogent explanation was given for delay in filing the application- allegations have been made against the Counsel without mentioning his name- petitioner had appeared on the earlier occasion, therefore, he was aware of the date of hearing- explanation given by the petitioner was not satisfactory and was rightly discarded- petition dismissed. (Para-9 to 13)

For the petitioner: Mr. R.R. Rahi, Advocate.
For the respondents: Ms. Parul Negi, Dy. A.G.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Ajay Mohan Goel, Judge:

By way of the present writ petition, the petitioner has prayed for the following reliefs:

"(i) That the impugned order dated 27.04.2010 (Annexure P-6) may kindly be quashed by issuing the writ of certiorari.

(ii) That the respondent No. 2 may be directed to restore the Revision Petition to its original number and may be heard on merit.

(iii) That the record pertaining to the case may kindly be summoned from the respondents for the kind perusal of this Hon'ble Court.

(iv) That the present Civil Writ Petition may kindly be allowed with costs.

(v) That any other order which this Hon'ble Court may deem fit just and proper in the facts and circumstances of the case may also be passed in favour of the petitioner and against the respondents."

2. Annexure P/6 quashing of which has been sought by way of the present writ petition is an order passed by learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals), H.P. in Miscellaneous Application No. 07/10 dated 27.04.2010 vide which, learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) dismissed the application filed by the present petitioner for restoration of revision petition which was dismissed in default on 11.04.1996.

3. Brief facts necessary for the adjudication of the present case are that the present petitioner had filed a revision petition under Section 17 of the Himachal Pradesh Land Revenue Act against the order dated 12.04.1994 passed by the Court of learned Commissioner, Mandi

Division in Revision Petition No. 110/93. The Revision Petition so filed before learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) was dismissed in default by the Financial Commissioner (Appeals) vide order dated 11.04.1996, which reads as under:

> "Case called. Neither the petitioner nor his counsel is present today. On the last date of hearing the petitioner/applicant Anil Kumar was present and informed him about the date of hearing. Thus, he was fully aware about the date of hearing. There is no written request or any explanation on behalf of the petitioner or his counsel for the adjournment of the case. It appears that the petitioner is not interested in pursuing his case. Therefore, the revision petition is dismissed in default."

4. A Miscellaneous application for restoration of the said revision petition was filed by the present petitioner before the Court of learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) on 15.12.2009, i.e. after 13 years alongwith an application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act for condonation of delay in filing the application for restoration of revision petition.

5. The grounds which are mentioned in the application so filed for restoring the revision petition which was dismissed in default on 11.04.1996 were that the petitioner could not put in appearance before the Court of learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) on 11.04.1996 as he was not feeling well and on the said date personal presence of the petitioner was not necessary/required. As per the petitioner, the counsel engaged by him did not appear on 11.04.1996 nor did he inform the petitioner about the fact that the case stood dismissed in default. It was further the case of the petitioner that each time, when he asked his counsel about the fate of the case, he was told that the case was pending. Further, as per the petitioner, when he came to Shimla in the month of November, 2009 and enquired from the Registry of the Court of learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals), then he came to know that the case had been dismissed in default as far back in the year 1996. Thereafter, without any further delay, he contacted another counsel, who inspected the file and after preparation of the application, the same was filed for restoration of revision petition. Same reasons were given in the application so filed under Section 5 of the Limitation Act for condonation of delay.

6. Learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) vide impugned order dated 27.04.2010 dismissed the application so filed by the petitioner by holding that before the case was dismissed in default on 11.04.1996, on the previous date of hearing, petitioner Anil Kumar was present and he had been informed about the next date of hearing. Learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) held that despite this, no one appeared on behalf of the petitioner on 11.04.1996 and the application for restoration of the case which was dismissed in default was filed after more than 13 years and 8 months and there was no cogent explanation for the inordinate delay in filing of the application except blaming the counsel which could not be verified. Learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) further held that the case put forth by the petitioner that he could not personally appear on 11.04.1996 on account of ill health and he had informed his counsel to put in appearance on the said date, who did not appear and also did not inform him about the factum of the case having been dismissed in default also seemed to be not cogent. It was further held by learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) that a litigant is always anxious to know about the fate of his case especially one who has engaged a counsel. Learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) further held that it was the duty of the petitioner to have had enquired about the fate of his case and there was no cogent explanation as to why he did not do so for such a long period. By assigning the said reasons, learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) dismissed the application for restoration of revision petition.

7. Feeling aggrieved by the said rejection, the petitioner has filed the present writ petition.

8. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and also gone through the relevant records of the case.

9. The order passed by learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) has been assailed on the grounds that the same is inter alia arbitrary, illegal, discriminatory, unconstitutional and violative of Articles 14, 16 and 21 of the Constitution of India. It has been further mentioned in the petition that the learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) failed to appreciate that a client cannot be made to suffer on account of the fault of his counsel. It is on these grounds that the impugned order was assailed by the learned counsel for the petitioner before me.

10. In my considered view, the arguments raised by learned counsel for the petitioner to the effect that the impugned order was arbitrary, illegal, discriminatory, unconstitutional and violative of Articles 14, 16 and 21 of the Constitution of India call for outright rejection. The order under challenge is a quasi judicial order which has been passed by Financial Commissioner (Appeals) in the exercise of statutory powers conferred upon him under the provisions of the Himachal Pradesh Land Revenue Act. It is not understood as to how an order dismissing an application for restoration of revision petition which revision petition was dismissed almost 13 years back can be said to be violative of Articles 14, 16 and 21 of the Constitution of India. The contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner that the impugned order is violative of the principles of natural justice also merits outright rejection for the simple reason that the order has been passed by the authority after hearing the petitioner and it is not even the ground of challenge in this Court that the impugned order was passed without hearing the petitioner.

11. Similarly, a challenge to the impugned order on the ground that the same is violative of Articles 16 and 21 of the Constitution of India per se demonstrates that the petition in fact has been filed without due application of mind. This is evident from the fact that Article 16 of the Constitution of India which deals with equality in the matters of employment has nothing to do in a matter wherein a quasi judicial authority dismisses an application filed for restoration of a revision petition, that too filed under the provisions of the Himachal Pradesh Land Revenue Act. Similarly, it is not understood as to how an order passed by quasi judicial authority in exercise of its statutory powers can be said to be violative of Article 21 of the Constitution of India which Article deals with the life and liberty of an individual.

12. Even otherwise, a perusal of the order passed by Financial Commissioner (Appeals) demonstrates that the same is a reasoned and a speaking order. In my considered view, the findings returned by learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) while rejecting the application filed for restoration of revision petition are cogent and justified. It is apparent from the averments made in the application filed by the petitioner for restoration of the revision petition as well as the averments which are made in the application for condonation of delay that there is no cogent explanation given in the same as to why the application for restoration of the revision petition was being filed after more than 13 years. The reason given in the said application wherein the blame has been fairly and squarely levelled on the counsel concerned is neither corroborated nor substantiated by any material produced on record to this effect by the petitioner. It is not mentioned in the application as to who was the counsel engaged by him during the pendency of the revision petition before learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) and what efforts, if any, were made by him to enquire about the fate of his case after 11.04.1996. In fact, even the name of the counsel who was allegedly instructed by the petitioner to put in appearance on 11.04.1996 has not been mentioned in the application. It is not the case of the petitioner that he was not aware of the fact that the case was to come up before the Court of learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) on 11.04.1996 because it is apparent from the order passed by learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) that on the date previous to 11.04.1996, the petitioner was present and he was made aware about the next date of hearing.

13. In view of this, in my considered view, there is no infirmity or illegality with the order passed by learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) dated 27.04.2010 vide which the application filed by the present petitioner for restoration of revision petition after more than 13 years was dismissed. Order passed by learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) besides being a speaking and reasoned order, otherwise also does not calls for any interference on merits because in my considered view, learned Financial Commissioner (Appeals) rightly rejected the application filed by the petitioner for restoration of revision petition which was dismissed as far back as on 11.04.1996 in view of the fact that the petitioner was not able to substantiate with any cogent explanation as to why the said application was filed for restoration of the revision petition after more than 13 years and 8 months from the date the revision petition was so dismissed in default.

14. Accordingly, as there is no merit in the present petition, the same is dismissed. No order as to costs. Miscellaneous application(s), if any, also stands disposed of.

Jaswant Kaur vs. Amrit Kaur (1977) 1 SCC 369

For the Appellant :Mr. Bhupender Gupta, Senior Advocate with Mr. Neeraj Gupta, Advocate.
For the Respondents :Mr. G.D. Verma, Senior Advocate, with Mr. B.C. Verma, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Tarlok Singh Chauhan, Judge

The defendant is the appellant and has come up in appeal against concurrent findings recorded against him by the learned Courts below.

2. The facts as necessary for the adjudication of the case are that the predecessor-in-interest of the respondents/plaintiffs i.e. Chingu Ram (hereinafter referred to as the 'plaintiff') filed a suit for declaration and injunction to the effect that he is owner in possession of the suit land as detailed in the plaint being legal heir of deceased Rania son of Dheru and that the mutation No. 515 in favour of the appellant/defendant (hereinafter referred to as the 'defendant') is null and void and that the Will dated 15.3.1946 in favour of the defendant executed by deceased Rania is also wrong and illegal. A decree of permanent injunction was also sought by the plaintiff against the defendant to the effect that he be restrained from cutting or removing trees or taking forcible possession of the suit land.

3. It was averred that the suit land was owned and possessed by deceased Rania S/o Dheru as co-sharer. The said Rania left the village and his whereabouts are not known for the last sixty years nor he has been heard of being alive. He was 12 years of age when he left the village. He never visited the village again and as such, is presumed to be dead. The mutation was attested on 12.8.1988 in respect of his estate and as such, his date of death is to be presumed to be 12.8.1988. The said Rania was minor when he left the village and therefore, there was no occasion for him to execute Will nor he ever executed Will nor he was competent to do so. The defendant in connivance with the settlement field staff and witnesses propounded a false forged Will and on its basis managed to mutate the estate of deceased Rania in his favour. The Will in question is forged and fabricated document and therefore is not binding on the rights of the plaintiff in the suit land. The plaintiff is the only legal heir of deceased Rania and is entitled to succeed his estate. The revenue official did not adopt proper procedure at the time of attestation of mutation and forged Will was relied upon for attestation of mutation. The defendant threatened to cut and remove the trees and to take forcible possession of the suit land in an illegal manner.

4. The suit was contested and resisted by defendant by raising preliminary objections regarding maintainability, estoppel on account of his act and conduct, jurisdiction and limitation. On merits, it was admitted that the suit land was owned and possessed by Rania son of Dheru. It was denied that said Rania left the village when he was child. It was also denied that he had not been heard of for the last more than 60 years. The said Rania was having disposing state of mind and being issueless on 15.3.1946, had executed the Will of his entire property in favour of the parties to the extent of half share. It was denied that Rania left the village when he was of 12 years old, rather he left about thirty years back. It was averred that the dispute inter se the parties in respect of the estate of deceased Rania arose during settlement in the year 1986. It was denied that mutation had been wrongly attested. It was averred that the Will was a genuine one and had been executed by deceased Rania voluntarily. It was also averred that during consolidation operation, the revenue staff had partitioned the joint land and the same cannot be assailed before the Civil Court. It was denied that Rania left the village before 15.3.1946 or that he was insane or incompetent to execute the Will. The correctness of the pedigree-table was also challenged. It was averred that the defendant is already in possession of his share in the suit land. It was lastly denied that the defendant threatened to cut or remove the trees. The defendant accordingly prayed for dismissal of the suit.

5. The plaintiff filed replication wherein the contents of the written statement were controverted and those of the plaint were reiterated.

6. From the pleadings of the parties, the learned trial Court framed the following issues:

1. Whether plaintiff is owner in possession of the suit land being legal heir of deceased Rania as alleged? OPP
2. Whether mutation No. 515 dated 12.2.88 is wrong, illegal and void? If so, its effect? OPP.
3. Whether plaintiff is entitled to the relief of injunction as prayed? OPP
4. Whether plaintiff is entitled to the relief of possession of suit land in alternative? OPP
5. Whether suit is not maintainable as alleged? OPD
6. Whether act and conduct of plaintiff is a bar to the suit? OPD
7. Whether this Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the suit? OPD
8. Whether deceased Rania had executed a valid Will in favour of the parties qua the suit land as alleged? If so, its effect? OPD
9. Relief.

7. The learned trial Court vide judgment and decree dated 31.3.2003 decreed the suit of the plaintiff. The appeal filed by the defendant against the judgment and decree of the learned trial Court resulted in dismissal and this is how the defendant is before this Court by way of the present regular second appeal.

8. On 21.11.2006, this Court admitted the appeal on the following substantial question of law:

> "Whether the two courts below ought to have drawn presumption under Section 90 of the Evidence Act in favour of the Will, it having been executed in the year 1946 and having been produced from the proper custody?

I have heard learned counsel for the parties and gone through the records of the case carefully.

9. In order to appreciate the controversy in issue, it would be appropriate to refer to Section 90 of The Indian Evidence Act, 1872, which reads thus:

> "90. Presumption as to documents thirty years old.—Where any document, purporting or proved to be thirty years old, is produced from any custody, which the Court in the particular case considers proper, the Court may presume that the signature and every other part of such document, which purports to be in the handwriting of any particular person, is in that person's handwriting, and, in the case of a document executed or attested, that it was duly executed and attested by the persons by whom it purports to be executed and attested.
> Explanation.—Documents are said to be in proper custody if they are in the place in which, and under the care of the person with whom, they would naturally be; but no custody is improper if it is proved to have had a legitimate origin, or if the circumstances of the particular case are such as to render such an origin probable.*
> This Explanation applies also to section 81."

10. This section does away with the strict rules, as regards requirement of proof, which are enforced in the case of private documents, by giving rise to a presumption of genuineness, in respect of certain documents that have reached a certain age. The period is to be reckoned backward from the date of the offering of the document, and not any subsequent date i.e. the date of decision of suit or appeal. Thus, the said section deals with the admissibility of ancient documents, dispensing with proof as would be required, in the usual course of events in usual manner. However, the moot question is wither the presumption extends to wills which are more than thirty years old.

11. In Bharpur Singh and others vs. Shamsher Singh, (2009) 3 SCC 687, it was categorically held that a presumption regarding documents thirty years old, does not apply to a Will and the same has to be proved in terms of Section 63 (c) of the Succession Act read with Section 68 of the Evidence Act. It was observed as under:

> "19. The provisions of Section 90 of the Indian Evidence Act keeping in view the nature of proof required for proving a Will have no application. A Will must be proved in terms of the provisions of Section 63(c) of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 and Section 68 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872. In the event the provisions thereof cannot be complied with, the other provisions contained therein, namely, Sections 69 and 70 of the Indian Evidence Act providing for exceptions in relation thereto would be attracted. Compliance with statutory requirements for proving an ordinary document is not sufficient, as Section 68 of the Indian Evidence Act postulates that execution must be proved by at least one of the attesting witness, if an attesting witness is alive and subject to the process of the Court and capable of giving evidence. {See B. Venkatamuni vs. C.J. Ayodhya Ram Singh & ors. [(2006) 13 SCC 449, SCC p. 458, para 19)."

12. Similar reiteration of law can be found in the subsequent judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court rendered in M.B. Ramesh (dead) by LRs vs. K.M. Veeraje Urs (dead) by LRS and others (2013) 7 SCC 490, wherein it was observed as under:

> " 15. The first submission on behalf of the appellant has been that the learned judge of the high Court has erred by framing the question of law, in the manner in which he has. It was submitted that when the trial court and the first appellate court have given a concurrent finding about the invalidity of the will, it was a finding of fact, and the High Court could not have disturbed the finding of fact by framing a question of law as to whether the finding was bad in law, and perverse or contrary to the evidence on record. Reliance was placed, in this behalf, on the observations of this Court in Narayanan Rajendran Vs. Lekshmy Sarojini reported in 2009 (5) SCC 264. That apart, it was submitted that in any case, the findings of the Courts below could not in any way be categorized as perverse, since they were not contrary to the evidence on record."

13. Though, the question of law could have been conveniently answered by holding that the presumption as envisaged under Section 90 of the Evidence Act does not apply to a Will and the same is required to be proved in accordance with law. However, to be fair to the appellant, this Court would go into question as to whether the Will in question has been proved and the appellant has been able to dispel all suspicious circumstances.

14. It is more than settled that when the Will is allegedly shrouded in suspicion, its proof ceases to be a simple lis between the plaintiff and the defendant. An adversarial proceeding in such cases becomes a matter of court's conscience and propounder of the will has to remove all suspicious circumstances to satisfy that the Will was duly executed by the testator wherefor cogent and convincing explanation of suspicious circumstances shrouding the making of Will must be offered. This was so held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Jaswant Kaur vs. Amrit Kaur (1977) 1 SCC 369, wherein some of the suspicious circumstances were enumerated as follows:

> "23. Suspicious circumstances like the following may be found to be surrounded in the execution of the Will:
> i. The signature of the testator may be very shaky and doubtful or not appear to be his usual signature.
>
> ii. The condition of the testator's mind may be very feeble and debilitated at the relevant time.
>
> iii. The disposition may be unnatural, improbable or unfair in the light of relevant circumstances like exclusion of or absence of adequate provisions for the natural heirs without any reason.
>
> iv. The dispositions may not appear to be the result of the testator's free will and mind.
>
> v. The propounder takes a prominent part in the execution of the Will.
>
> vi. The testator used to sign blank papers.
>
> vii. The Will did not see the light of the day for long.
> viii. Incorrect recitals of essential facts."

15. Adverting to the facts, the Court is first required to examine the oral evidence. The plaintiffs examined five witnesses. PW-1 Ramesh Rana stated that his grand father and the grand father of Rania were real brothers. Rania had not died in the village and had gone missing. He had not executed any Will and his property was inherited by his legal heir Chingo which property in turn had thereafter been inherited by him and his three brothers and one sister and the defendant had no concern with this property. In cross-examination, the witness stated that he had not seen Rania. He denied that Rania had executed a Will on 15.3.46.

16. PW-2 Nathu Ram stated that he had not seen Rania ever since his childhood. In cross-examination, he stated that he had been working at Amritsar for the last 15 years and had left for Amritsar about 10 years ago. He had no knowledge whether Rania was married or not as he had never seen Rania.

17. PW-3 Davinder Kumar was the Secretary, Co-operative Society, Gindpur Malaun and had simply brought the record. PW-4 Satya Dev Sharma was a retired Kanungo, who had translated the document Ex.PW-4/A from Urdu to Hindi.

18. As against this, the defendant examined four witnesses. DW-1 Hardev Singh has stated that the original Will of Rania had been written by his father and he was conversant with his handwriting as he remained with him. In cross-examination, the witness stated that Will was not written in his presence and he had no personal knowledge of the villagers and the parties. He further stated that his house was situated at a distance of about 2 KM from the village of the parties.

19. DW-2 Rattan Chand has stated that his father had told him that Rania had executed a Will in favour of Hans Raj and Chingo and he claimed to have been a witness to that Will and had put thumb impression on the same. In cross-examination, the witness denied that Rania was missing from his childhood as according to him Rania was missing after 50 years of age. He further stated that about 38-40 years have elapsed since Rania was found to have gone missing. He admitted that the Will had not been written in his presence, but claimed that he had seen the Will about 20-22 years ago.

20. DW-3 Inderjit Singh has stated that he had seen the original Will which had been signed by his father as he was conversant with his father's signature. In cross-examination, the witness stated that he had passed matriculation in 1972, but had not read Urdu language. According to him, he knew little bit of Urdu, but could not read the 7th line of the Will. He could not even read Urdu. He denied that Will Ext. D-1 had not been signed by his father.

21. DW-4 Hans Raj stated that Rania had executed a Will of his entire property on 15.3.46 in his favour and in favour of Chingo Ram in equal shares as he had no off-spring. According to him, Rania had left the village about 30 years ago and never came back. He denied that Rania had left the village about 60 years ago and was minor at that time. He stated that the mental condition of Rania was sound at the time he left the house. In cross-examination, he stated that his father had expired about 25 years ago, whereas Rania had gone missing for the last 15-20 years. He further stated that Rania was missing since 1965. He also stated that the age of Rania was 50 years when he executed the Wil. The age of Rania in 1965 was 70-75 years as he was 40-45 years elder to his father. He further stated that Will had been handed over to him by the plaintiff about 18 years ago and claimed to have knowledge regarding the same even earlier to the same being handed over to him. He claimed to be 20 years of age at the time of preparation of Will.

This in entirety is the oral evidence led by the parties.

22. As regards documentary evidence, the plaintiff has filed the copy of jamabandi Missal Hakiat for the year 1987-88 Ext.P-1, P-2, P-3 and copy of Missal Hakiat for the year 1989-90 Ext.P-4, copy of Missal Hakiat for the year 1989-90 Ext.P-5, Ext.P-6, Ext.P-7, copy of Missal Hakiat for the year 1987-88 Ext.P-8, Ext.P-9, jamabandi for the year 1981-82 Ext.P-10, jamabandi for the year 1982-83 Ext.P-11, copy of jamabandi for the year 1982-83, Ext.P-12, P-13 to P-16 and copy of members of co-operative society Kharoh Ext.PW-4/A.

23. The defendant on the other hand has only produced on record the Will Ext.D-1.

24. It is evidently clear from the oral and documentary evidence that both the parties were related to deceased Rania but the plaintiff is in closer proximity and the legal heir, who in absence of the Will is alone entitled to inherit his property and this fact is not even disputed by the defendant.

25. Therefore, the only question that arises for consideration is whether late Rania had executed a valid Will Ext.D-1 and the same has been proved in accordance with law.

26. The learned Courts below have categorically found the evidence led by the defendant to be totally shaky and have further held the Will not to be a genuine document, but a fabricated one.

27. Learned Courts below have culled out the following suspicious circumstances:

(i) That alleged scribe of the Will Partap Singh has been shown to be village Gindpur in Tehsil Una, whereas his son DW-1 Hardev Singh has clearly stated on oath that he is resident of Village Gulerdhar situated in Tehsil Jaswan in District Kangra. This witness had further deposed that not only his father but even his ancestors were residing at Village Gulerdhar. Therefore, there was no reason for alleged scribe to give his address as a resident of village Gindpur. Not only this, it was not even the case of any of the parties that the scribe Partap Singh was resident of Village Gindpur.

(ii) Second suspicious circumstance noted by the learned courts below was that at the time of execution of the Will the father of the defendant Hans Raj was very much alive. DW-4 Hans Raj had categorically stated in his statement on oath that his father had died about 45 years and such statement was recorded on 25.10.2002 and that would mean that Sher Singh father of Hans Raj was alive at the relevant time. It assumes importance because deceased plaintiff Chingu Ram and Sher Singh were cousins of deceased Rania. Chingu and Sher Singh were having one sister Nihatu. The defendant Hans Raj is the son of aforesaid Sher Singh. The will contains a clear cut recital to the effect that Rania was bequeathing his property in favour of Hans Raj son of Sher Singh and Chingu because they happened to be his heirs. Once Sher Singh is proved to be alive at the time of execution of the Will then in that event, Hans Raj could not and cannot be considered to be the heir of Rania.

(iii) The third suspicious circumstance relates to the identification of the signature of the attesting witness Kehar Singh whose signatures were sought to be proved with the aid of statement of DW-3 Inderjit. This witness on oath has stated that he had been living with his father and had seen him writing and could identify his signatures which were admittedly in Urdu language. However, when the witness was subjected to cross-examination, it is clearly revealed that he had very little knowledge of Urdu language and admitted that he did not know how to write Urdu, but could only identify Urdu writing. Surprisingly, the witness during the course of examination failed to read the 7th line of the Will. It was on the basis of such testimony and conduct of the witness that the Courts below have come to a categorical conclusion that the witness had no knowledge of the Urdu language and whatever he was deposing was on the basis of guess work and was not sufficient to prove the signature of his father on the Will in question.

(iv) The last suspicious circumstance observed by the learned Courts below related to the production of the Will after considerable lapse of time from the date of disappearance of deceased Rania. DW-4 Hans Raj had in his examination-in-chief stated that whereabouts of Rania were not known since 1965 and, therefore, he would be presumed to be dead in the year 1972. The Will in question was stated to have been executed in the presence of Hans Raj, who was supposed to be in its custody for the last more than 18 years and before that Will was allegedly in the custody of the plaintiff deceased Chingu. In such circumstances, why the defendant took no steps to get the mutation attested despite the fact that Rania as per him had already gone missing since 1965. Why the defendant Hans Raj waited for more than a decade to cause production of the Will from the year 1972 for the purpose of attestation of the mutation.

28. Even before this Court, learned senior counsel for the appellant has not been able to dispel the suspicious circumstances noted by the learned Courts below.

29. In addition to the aforesaid, learned senior counsel for the respondents has taken me through the trend of cross-examination adopted by the defendant whereby while examining PW-1 it is suggested to the witness that Rania had not gone missing and had been visiting the village and this suggestion completely demolish the case set up by the defendant.

The substantial question of law is answered accordingly.

30. There is no impropriety, illegality or irregularity much less perversity in the findings recorded by the learned Courts below and the same are based on proper appreciation of the pleadings as also the evidence and the law on the subject.

Having said so, I find no merit in this appeal and the same is accordingly dismissed, leaving the parties to bear their own costs. The pending application(s) if any, stands disposed of.

(Para-13 to 27)

For the appellants. : Mr. Ajay Kumar, Sr. Advocate with Mr. Dheeraj K. Vashisht, Advocate.
For the respondent : Mr. Dilip Sharma, Sr. Advocate with Mr. Umesh Kanwar, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Ajay Mohan Goel, Judge.

This appeal has been filed by the appellants/defendants (hereinafter referred to as 'defendants') against the judgment passed by the Court of learned Additional District Judge, Ghumarwin, District Bilaspur, in Civil Appeal No. 46/13 of 2004/2000, dated 12.04.2006, vide which, learned Appellate Court while rejecting the appeal so filed by the defendant-appellant has upheld the judgment and decree passed by the Court of learned Sub Judge 1st Class, Ghumarwin, in Civil Suit No. 125/1 of 1991, dated 29.12.1999.

2. This appeal was admitted on 18.12.1006 on the following substantial question of law:

> "Whether the two Courts below have committed serious illegality in dismissing the plea of the appellants/defendants that late Punu Ram had executed a Will in their favour on the grounds that the original Will has been with-held, when the original Will is on record and one witness, namely DW-3 Bali Ram has specifically stated that the Will was Ext. DW-4/A, though it is a different matter that the Will is not so marked?"

3. Brief facts necessary for the adjudication of this case are that respondent/plaintiff (hereinafter referred to as 'plaintiff') filed a suit for possession of the suit land on the pleadings that one Shri Punnu Ram son of Shri Mali was owner of land comprised in Khata Khatauni No. 30/38, Khasra Nos. 34, 42, 47, 142, 153, 155, 160 and 169, measuring 16.18 bighas, situated in village Kharota, Pargana Sunhani, Tehsil Ghumarwin, District Bilaspur, H.P which property was succeeded by plaintiff after the death of Punnu Ram, who died on 15.08.1989. As per the plaintiff, Punnu Ram was his real maternal uncle and plaintiff was the sole successor to the property of deceased Punnu. According to the plaintiff, last rites of Punnu after his death were also performed by him as he had started living in the house of deceased and also was looking after the management of the land of Shri Punnu. According to the plaintiff, defendants were interfering in the property of deceased Punnu on the pretext that Punnu had made a 'Will' in their name and they had also forcibly taken possession of the suit land as well as house from the plaintiff on 20.01.1991 with the help of police. Further as per the plaintiff, defendants had no right, title or interest over the suit land and Shri Punnu had executed no 'Will' in favour of defendants and the order which had been passed by Sub Registrar, Ghumarwin, District Bilaspur, vide which it has ordered that the 'Will' be registered, was illegal, wrong, null and void. On these bases, the plaintiff filed the suit praying for decree of possession of the suit land.

4. Defendants in the written statement filed by them denied the claim of the plaintiff. According to them, the plaintiff had not succeeded to the property of deceased Punnu Ram and in fact, it were the defendants who had succeeded the deceased Punnu Ram by virtue of 'Will' dated 30.07.1989 which was duly executed by Punnu Ram in their favour. According to the defendants, they were looking after deceased Punnu during his lifetime and also used to cultivate his land.

5. On the basis of pleadings of the parties, learned trial Court framed the following issues:-

> "1. Whether the plaintiff is entitled to the possession of the suit land? OPP.
> 2. Whether Sh. Punnu, executed a valid Will dated 15-8-1990 in favour of defendants? OPD.
>
> 3. Whether the plaintiff is estopped to file the suit by his acts, conducts, omissions and commissions? OPD.
>
> 4. Whether the suit has not been properly valued for the purpose of court fee and jurisdiction? OPD.
>
> 5. Whether this court has no jurisdiction to hear and decide the suit? OPD
>
> 1-A. Whether the suit is not maintainable? OPD
>
> 2-A. Whether plaintiff has no locus standi to file the present suit? OPD
>
> 3-A. Whether plaintiff has no cause of action? OPD

6. On the basis of evidence led by the parties both ocular as well as documentary in support of their respective cases, the issues so framed were answered by the learned trial Court in the following manner:-

"Issue No.1	: Yes.
Issue No. 2	: No.
Issue No. 3	: No.
Issue No.4	: No.
Issue No.5	: No.
Issue No. 1-A	:No.
Issue No. 2-A.	:No.
Issue No. 3-A.	:No.
Relief	:The suit of the plaintiff is decreed as per operative part of the judgment."

7. Accordingly, learned trial Court decreed the suit of the plaintiff for possession against the defendants in respect of land measuring 16.18 bighas i.e. the suit property and it directed the defendants to hand over vacant possession of the suit land within three months to the plaintiff.

8. Issue No. 2 framed by the learned trial Court was to the effect that "whether Shri Punuu, executed a valid Will dated 15.8.1990 in favour of defendants?", which issue was decided alongwith Issue No. 1 by the learned trial Court, which issue was to the effect that "whether the plaintiff is entitled to the possession of the suit land?".

9. Learned trial Court while holding that plaintiff was entitled to the possession of the suit land also held that Shri Punnu Ram had not executed any valid 'Will' dated 15.8.1990 in favour of defendants. While disbelieving the 'Will' propounded by the defendants, learned trial Court held that Sohan Singh Thakur who had entered the witness box as DW-2 and who was stated to be scribe of the 'Will, had deposed that he was practicing as an Advocate at Ghumarwin for the year 1981 to 1993 and Ext. DW-2/A was the copy of the original 'Will' scribed by him. Learned trial Court took note of the fact that the exhibition of the said document was objected by learned counsel for the plaintiff and from this it was deciphered by the learned trial Court that the original 'Will' was not produced by the defendants in the Court at the time when statement of DW-2 Sohan Singh Thakur was recorded in the Court and the copy of same was sought to be exhibited. Learned trial Court further held that said document could not have been exhibited without placing on record the original 'Will'. It was further held by learned trial Court that no application for leading secondary evidence was moved by the defendants and as per the provisions of Section 64 of the Indian Evidence Act, documents must be proved by primary evidence except in the cases mentioned therein and for leading secondary evidence as was envisaged in Section 65 of the Indian Evidence Act conditions mentioned therein are required to be fulfilled. Learned trial Court went on to hold that although the original 'Will' was later on produced by the defendants, but the same had not been exhibited in the Court and was exhibited as Ext. PW-2/A by the Sub Registrar and therefore, fact remained that the 'Will' in issue had not been exhibited before the learned trial Court during the course of trial. It was further held by learned trial Court that defendants had moved an application under Order 18, Rule 17-A praying that defendants be allowed to recall all the D.Ws already examined in the Court to prove the 'Will' and after due consideration, the application was dismissed by learned trial Court on 23.12.1997. It further went on to hold that similar application was also rejected by the learned trial Court earlier vide order dated 09.02.1995. As per learned trial Court, these applications were moved by the defendants at belated stage when the case was fixed for final arguments. Learned trial Court further concluded that in the case in hand, none of the conditions for leading secondary evidence were fulfilled by the defendants. It further held that in the written statement submitted by the defendants it was submitted that "original will" was produced during the course of proceedings before the learned trial Court, however, said contention of the learned counsel for defendants was found to be totally wrong as there was no record to this effect on the case file, which could show and prove that the original 'Will' was produced in the Court, when statements of witnesses of the defendants were recorded. It was held by learned trial Court that original 'Will' was not put to DW3 Bali Ram and DW5 Nand Lal. On these bases learned trial Court returned the finding that "original Will" was not proved on record by the defendants as per the provisions of Section 64 and 65 of the Indian Evidence Act and the contentions regarding the valid execution of the 'Will' were rejected by learned trial Court.

10. It is pertinent to mention here that in para 19 of the judgment passed by learned trial Court, it is mentioned that original 'Will' was later on produced by the defendants but the same was not exhibited in the Court. The findings returned in this regard are quoted herein below:

> "19. Although the original will was later on produced by the defendants, but the same has not been exhibited in the Court and is exhibited as Ex.PW-2/A by the Sub-Registrar. Therefore, fact remains that the will has not been exhibited in this Court during the course of trial of this case."

11. Learned Appellate Court in its judgment held that the onus to prove that Punnu had executed a valid 'Will' dated 30.07.1989 in their favour was heavily upon the defendants but defendants had not produced the original 'Will' at the time when evidence was adduced. Accordingly, learned Appellate Court held that the original 'Will' was not proved in accordance with law. It further held that Ext. 2/A was the photocopy of original 'Will', therefore, same cannot be read in evidence as the same was secondary evidence. On these bases, learned Appellate Court held that it was correctly held by learned trial Court that defendants had failed to prove execution of 'Will' by Punnu Ram. Learned Appellate Court further held that perusal of the record demonstrated that statements of witnesses Kuldeep Singh and scribe Sohan Singh were recorded on 17.1.1995 and on the said date Sh. D.K. Sharma, was appointed as Local Commissioner to record the statements of attesting witness Nand Lal and trial Court specifically directed vide order dated 17.1.1995 that the original file of the case be handed over to Local Commissioner i.e. D.K. Sharma but in the meantime, defendants on 19.1.1995 moved application under Order 13 Rule 2 CPC for allowing them to produce the original 'Will' dated 30.7.1989 alongwith other documents before examining the witnesses and the application so filed was allowed vide order dated 24.1.1995 subject to costs of Rs. 100/-. Learned Appellate Court further held that despite the fact that application under Order 13, Rule 2 CPC was allowed, defendants failed to produce the original 'Will' before the learned trial Court as well as before the Local Commissioner who while recording the statement of attesting witness Nand Lal on 29.1.1995 observed before recording statement of Nand Lal that the original 'Will' was not on record. Learned Appellate Court further held that the evidence of defendants was closed on 01.02.1995 and thereafter defendants moved application for leading additional evidence which was dismissed on 9.2.1995 and revision petitioned filed against order of dismissal dated 9.2.1995 was allowed by High Court vide order dated 21.7.1995 and defendants were allowed to examine five witnesses subject to cost of Rs. 150/-. Thereafter, statements of DW3 Bali Ram and DW4 Rameshwar were recorded on 18.3.1996 and evidence of defendants was closed. Thereafter again defendant moved an application under Order 18, Rule 17-A CPC for adducing additional evidence which was opposed by the plaintiff and said application was dismissed on 18.3.1996. Learned Appellate Court further held that pursuant to order passed by the High Court dated 21.7.1995, defendants were allowed to adduce five witnesses and defendants examined only DW3 Bali Ram and DW-4 Rameshwar but failed to produce original 'Will' the 'Will' at the time of examination of these witnesses. Learned Appellate Court held that it appeared that the original 'Will' was produced by the defendants alongwith their application under Order 18, Rule 17 CPC which was moved after evidence of defendants was closed. On these bases, it was held by learned Appellate Court that it was apparent that original 'Will' was in possession of the defendants but they failed to produce it before the learned trial Court. Accordingly, it was held by learned Appellate Court that the defendants were not vigilant when they adduced their evidence. Learned Appellate Court further held that the 'Will' in issued was not refused by the learned trial Court from being admitted in evidence and it were the defendants in whose possession the 'Will' in issue was, but they did not exercise due diligence at the time of adducing their evidence. It is further held by learned Appellate Court that provisions of Order 41, Rule 27 CPC was not meant to help a sleeping litigant. On these bases, learned Appellate Court also rejected the plea of the appellants therein to lead additional evidence. On the said findings, learned Appellate Court went on to uphold the judgment and decree passed by learned trial Court and the appeal filed against the said judgment and decree was accordingly dismissed.

12. Mr. Ajay Kumar, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the appellants argued that the judgments and decrees passed by both the learned Courts below were not sustainable as both the learned Courts below had committed serious illegality in dismissing the plea of the appellants that late Punnu Ram in fact had executed a 'Will' in favour of defendants and said 'Will' was never withheld by the defendants as one of the defendant's witness namely DW3 Bali Ram had specifically stated that the original 'Will' was available on the record of the learned trial Court and the same was referred to him as Ext. DW4/A, though according to Mr. Ajay Kumar, it was a different matter that the original 'Will' on record was not so marked. According to Mr. Ajay Kumar, the conclusion arrived at by both the learned Courts below to the effect that the original 'Will' was not produced on record by the defendants at the time of examination of their witnesses was totally perverse. As per the learned senior counsel, the original 'Will' was already placed on record by the defendants before the statements of defence witnesses were recorded and this was apparent from the statement of DW3 Bali Ram. According to Mr. Ajay Kumar, said perversity in the findings returned by both the learned Courts below rendered the said judgments as non est and according to Mr. Ajay Kumar, the judgments and decrees passed by the learned Courts below are liable to be set aside on this count only.

13. On the other hand, Mr. Dilip Sharma, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the respondent argued that there was neither any perversity nor any infirmity with the findings which have been returned by both the learned Courts below to the effect that the defendants had not produced the original 'Will' at the time when the statements of defence witnesses were recorded. Mr. Sharma vehemently argued that in fact it was explicitly explained both in judgment passed by learned trial Court as well as judgment passed by learned Appellate Court that despite ample opportunities having been granted to the defendants, they failed to place on record of the learned trial Court the original 'Will' purportedly executed in their favour by Punnu Ram. According to Mr. Sharma, the findings so returned by both the learned Courts below were based on records of the case. Mr. Sharma further submitted that a perusal of the judgment passed by the learned Appellate Court demonstrated that during the pendency of the appeal, defendants had also filed an application to lead additional application under Order 41, Rule 27 CPC which was also and rightly so dismissed by the learned Appellate Court. According to Mr. Sharma had the original 'Will' been on the records of the learned trial Court before the testimony of defence witnesses was recorded then there was no occasion for the defendants to have had filed the application either before learned trial Court under Order 18, Rule 17 CPC or before the learned Appellate Court under Order 41, Rule 27 CPC. On these bases, it was submitted by Mr. Sharma that there was no merit in the appeal and same is liable to be dismissed.

14. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and also gone through the records of the case as well as the judgments passed by both the learned Courts below.

15. The issue for adjudication before this Court is in a very narrow compass. It is to be adjudicated by this Court as to whether the findings returned by the learned Courts below to the effect that defendants had failed to place on record of the learned trial Court the original 'Will' at the time when defendant's witnesses were examined are correct or whether the contention of the appellants before this Court that the original 'Will' was on record at the time of deposition of defendant's witnesses and this was apparent from the testimony of DW3 is correct.

16. Before proceeding further, it is necessary to take note of the fact that learned trial Court in its judgment retuned the finding that though original 'Will' was later on produced by the defendants but the same was not exhibited in the Court. It is evident from the records of the case that statement of DW2 Sohan Singh was recorded on 17.1.1995. This witness deposed in the Court that 'Will' was scribed on 30.07.1989. At page 87 of the paper book, there is one 'Will' dated 30th July, 1989. This 'Will' is a two page document which bears the signatures of Punnu Ram, the alleged testator of the said 'Will' and two witnesses namely Bali Ram and Nand Lal. As per said 'Will', it was scribed by Shri S.S. Thakur, Advocate. This 'Will' also stands duly registered before the Sub Registrar on 15.7.1992.

17. At page 78 of the learned trial Court's case file there is a photocopy of the said 'Will'. Photocopy of 'Will' dated 30.07.1989 as well as the original 'Will' bears the stamp of Sub Judge 1st Class, Ghumarwin, District Bilaspur, H.P. On the photocopy of the said 'Will' which is at page 78 of the paper book, on the first page Ext. 2/A is written in red ink. Signature of Shri S.S. Thakur are encircled and marked as mark Y, whereas signatures of testator Punnu Ram were encircled in red ink and marked as mark X. Similarly 'Will' which is at page 87, also bears one stamp of Sub Judge 1st Class, Ghumarwin, District Bilaspur on its first page and two such stamps on its second page. In the original 'Will', signatures of Bali Ram, attesting witness are encircled in red ink and marked as mark X, whereas signatures of other witnesses Nand Lal are encircled in red ink and are marked as mark Y. However, below mark X and mark Y, "Sub Registrar" is written in the same ink i.e. red and in the same hand. As per learned senior counsel appearing for the appellants, the factum of original 'Will' being on record has been proved by the testimony of DW3. Shri Bali Ram, one of the attesting witness of the 'Will' in issue, has entered the witnesses box as DW3. A perusal of his testimony demonstrates that in his examination in chief he has deposed "Punnu ke Dastkhat vasiyat Ext. DW4/A par hai. Phir maine bhee vasiyat par daskhat bataur gawah keye". One thing which is apparent from a perusal of the testimony of DW3 is that neither he identified the signatures of Punnu on any particular document on the court file nor there is any document on the court file which has been marked as Ext. DW4/A. According to Mr. Ajay Kumar in fact the "original Will" which is at page 87 of the trial Court's record which was put to DW-3 when the said witness was examined, however, by mistake, the same could not be exhibited as a document.

18. Statement of DW3 Bali Ram was recorded on 18.3.1996. It is a matter of record that there were two applications filed by the defendants before the learned trial Court under Order 18, Rule 17 to lead additional evidence. The application later on filed under Order 18, Rule 17 dated 24.9.1997 is at page 107 of the trial Court's case file which was rejected by the learned trial Court. A perusal of the averments made in the said application demonstrate that it was mentioned therein that the case in issue was listed on 24.9.1997 (the date on which said application was filed) and at the time of recording statement of the said witness, the original 'Will' was lying on the record but by mistake the original 'Will' was not exhibited by the Court and resultantly photocopy of the 'Will' was exhibited by the Court. On these bases, it was contended in that application that it was necessary in the interest of justice that D.Ws. be recalled and re-examined to prove the 'Will'. In my considered view, if the contention of the learned senior counsel appearing for the appellants is to be believed that the original 'Will' which was on the record of the trial Court was duly proved by DW3 but erroneously the same was wrongly marked then the averments which have been made in the application which was filed by the defendants under Order 18, Rule 17 dated 24.9.1997 were wrong and incorrect vide which application, prayer for recalling and re-examining the defendant's witnesses was made to prove the 'Will' in issue on the ground that the original 'Will' which was lying in the Court, by mistake was not exhibited and resultantly photostate copy of same 'Will' got exhibited.

19. It is evident from the averments which were made in the application filed under Order 18 Rule 17 CPC dated 24.9.1997 that by way of recalling D.Ws, defendants intended to prove original 'Will' dated 30.07.1989, whereas the 'Will' which was exhibited earlier was the photocopy i.e. Ext. 2/A, which is at pages 78 and 79 of the paper book.

20. Besides the factum of a photocopy having been exhibited on record being substantiated by the averments made in the application filed under Order 18, Rule17, this is also substantiated from the fact that in the photocopy of the said 'Will' stamp of Sub Judge 1st Class, Ghumarwin, District Bilaspur is affixed below where the said document has been exhibited as Ext. 2/A as well as below where signatures of Shri S.S. Thakur, Advocate, were encircled in red ink and marked as mark Y and signatures of testator of the 'Will' Punnu Ram were encircled in red ink and marked as mark Y.

21. In my considered view, whereas on one hand, the testimony of DW3 nowhere leads us to the conclusion that original 'Will' was ever put to him, on the other hand, the averments made in the application filed by the defendants under Order 18, Rule 17 CPC dated 24.9.1997 categorically proves and demonstrates that till the date of filing of the said application, the original 'Will' had not been exhibited. Therefore, in this background, in my considered view, there is no merit in the contention of learned counsel for the appellant that despite the fact that the original 'Will' was lying on the records of the learned trial Court and it was put to DW-3, both the learned Courts below had erroneously concluded that the said 'Will' had not been proved on record.

22. Further, a perusal of the averments made in the application which was filed during the pendency of first appeal by the present appellants before the first Appellate Court under Order 41, Rule 27 CPC demonstrates that the reasons which were given therein by the present appellants to allow them to produce additional evidence was that defendants had produced Bali Ram and Sohan Singh as their witnesses in support of 'Will' but due to negligence of the counsel and the mistake of learned lower Court the "original Will" could not be properly marked as Exhibit on the records of the learned lower Court.

23. In my considered view, averments made in the application which was filed under Order 41, Rule 27 CPC to the effect that the "original Will" could not interalia be properly marked as an exhibit due to the mistake of learned lower Court was a very serious allegation leveled by the appellants. It is a matter of record that the application filed under Order 18, Rule 17 CPC dated 24.9.1997 before the learned trial Court was dismissed by the learned trial Court vide order dated 23.12.1997. This order attained finality. During the pendency of suit before the learned trial Court, present appellants had also moved an application under Order 13, Rule 2 CPC for production of 'Will' dated 30.07.1989 which was registered in the office of Sub Registrar, Ghumarwin on 8.6.1992. By way of said application, the prayer which was made by the appellants therein was that the defendants may be allowed to produce original 'Will' dated 30.07.1989 along with other documents before examining the witnesses. However, there is nothing on record to substantiate as to how and when the original 'Will' was in fact placed on record by the defendants. There is no list of documents filed alongwith the "original Will" and incidentally, though there is stamp of Sub Judge 1st Class on the "original Will" but there is no signature of Presiding Officer on the same. These facts create serious suspicion on the mode and manner in which the "original Will" in fact was placed on record by the defendants. During the course of arguments also, learned counsel for the appellants could not point out from either any document on record or any order passed by the learned trial Court as to on which date and in what manner, the original 'Will' in fact was placed on record.

24. The testimony of Nand Lal (DW5) was recorded on 29.1.1995 and this witness has deposed in his examination in chief that if "original Will" is shown to him then he can identify his signatures as well as the signatures of Punnu Ram and the marginal witnesses. This demonstrates that at the time when this witness was examined, the "original Will" was not shown to him. If on that date, the "original Will" was on record then it is not understood as to what prevented the defendants from showing the said "original Will" to DW5.

25. Another important aspect of the matter is that defendants earlier also filed an application under Order 18, Rule 17 CPC to recall witnesses for the purpose of re-examination which application is at page 95 of the learned trial Court's case file. This application is dated 1.2.1995 and it was averred in the said application that the case was fixed for 01.02.1995 itself and witnesses had already been examined on photostate copy of 'Will' dated 30.07.1989 which was pending for the purpose of registration in the office of Sub Registrar, Ghumarwin and therefore, this necessitated the recall of witnesses as additional evidence to prove the original 'Will' which was later on submitted in the aforesaid case. Though, this application was dismissed by the learned trial Court, however, defendants were permitted to examine D.Ws by this Court and accordingly, on 18.3.1996, DW3 Bali Ram and DW4 Rameshwar were examined by the defendants. A perusal of the testimony of these witnesses also does not demonstrate that the original 'Will' in fact was put to them on 18.03.1996.

26. As I have already mentioned above that thereafter another application was filed under Order 18, Rule 17 CPC by the defendants to recall defendants witnesses to prove the 'Will' which was rejected. It is pertinent to mention that reply which was filed by the plaintiffs to the subsequent application filed by the defendants under Order 18, Rule 17 CPC demonstrates that it was the categorical stand of the plaintiffs in the said reply that the original 'Will' was not on record and thus there was no question to recall defendant's witnesses again.

27. All the above facts, in my considered view, point towards one fact only that the original 'Will' was not on record when the defendants witnesses were examined on various dates and the original 'Will' was subsequently introduced in the records of the learned trial Court by the defendants. The contention of the learned counsel for the appellants that the factum of the original 'Will' being on record was substantiated by the testimony of DW3 Bali Ram, is neither convincing nor the same is borne out from the records of the case. On the other hand, the findings returned by both the learned Courts below to the effect that the original 'Will' in fact was not placed on record by the defendants at the time when defendants witnesses were examined are neither perverse nor it can be said that the findings so returned by both the learned Courts below are contrary to the records. The substantial question of law is answered accordingly.

In view of the findings returned above, as there is no merit in the appeal, the same is dismissed with costs, so also pending miscellaneous application(s), if any.

For the Appellant	Mr.R.K.Gautam, Senior Advocate with Ms. Megha Kapur Gautam, Advocate.
For the respondents No.1 to 3:	Mr. N.K.Thakur, Senior Advocate with Ms. Jamna, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Tarlok Singh Chauhan J

The defendant is the appellant, who aggrieved by the concurrent decrees passed by the learned courts below, has filed the instant appeal.

2. Relevant facts are that the plaintiffs/respondents (hereinafter referred to as 'respondents') filed suit for declaration to the effect they have been coming in physical cultivation and possession of the suit land as non occupancy tenants and now have become owners by virtue of coming into force the H.P. Tenancy and Land Reforms Act (the 'Tenancy Act' for short) and the Rules, 1972. Suit land is stated to be measuring 13 kanal 4 marlas comprised in Khewat No.176 min, Khatauni No.2806 min, bearing new Khasra Nos.4387, 4389, 4388 and old Khasra Nos. 4060 to 4063 as entered in Misal Hakiat Ishtemal for the year 1989-90, situate in Village Kungrat Majra Chhetran, Tehsil and District Una (the 'suit land' for short). It was averred that entries in the column of cultivation showing the name of defendant No.1 Prita as 'Gar Mourusi' are wrong, null and void and further the mutation No.8713 dated 22.12.1990, conferring proprietary rights under the Act in favour of defendant No.1 are also illegal, null and void and not binding on the plaintiffs. It is averred that in June, 1984, predecessors of defendants 2 to 21, who were Khatri by caste were not ploughing the suit land and had inducted Mohna son of Hako, father of the plaintiffs as tenant-at-will on payment of rent over 13 kanal 12 marlas of land which area was decreased in re-partition proceedings during the consolidation operation to 13 kanal 4 marlas. Predecessors of the plaintiffs reclaimed that land and brought it under cultivation. After the death of Mohna, plaintiffs succeeded to the tenancy rights being the sons of Mohna.

It was further averred that the revenue officials wrongly mentioned the name of Prita son of Hako instead of mentioning the name of plaintiffs being sons of Mohna son of Hako inadvertently without confirming the name of Mohna after his death, as a result of which wrong and incorrect entry came to be incorporated in the Jamabandi for the year 1968-69 in favour of defendant No.1. It was averred that there was no person in the village in the name of Prita son of Hako and, it is only the plaintiffs who are successors in interest to the tenancy rights under the law and, therefore, entries to the contrary in the revenue record were not only wrong, but null and void and inoperative qua the legal rights of the plaintiffs. It was also averred that defendant No.1 was a clever person and with connivance of the revenue officials, got sanctioned proprietary rights under the Tenancy Act in his favour vide order dated 28.9.2000 passed by A.C. Grade-II and, therefore, said mutation was also wrong, illegal and null and void.

3. Suit was resisted and contested by the defendant No.1 only and other defendants did not contest the suit and were proceeded against ex parte. As regard defendant No.1, he, in his written statement, took preliminary objection, inter alia of jurisdiction, locus standi, maintainability, plaintiff being out of possession and approaching the court with unclean hands, limitation, estoppel and non joinder of necessary parties. On merits, it was specifically denied that the plaintiffs or their predecessor were in possession of the suit land as tenants at any point of time and even the entry of tenancy in favour of Mohna, father of plaintiffs, was claimed to be wrong and false and a stray entry which had resulted out of manipulation. It was also alleged that the mutation of proprietary rights had been rightly sanctioned in favour of answering defendant. It is further claimed that the order dated 28.9.2000 passed by Settlement Tehsildarcum- AC Grade-I, Una pertaining to mutation No.8713 was legal as defendant No.1 was in possession of the suit land as owner thereof. Defendant also took the plea of adverse possession as his possession was stated to be actual, continuous, uninterrupted, open and hostile for a period exceeding 12 years.

4. Plaintiffs filed replication to the written statement filed by defendant and reiterated the allegation made in the plaint and denied those of the written statement.

5. Learned trial court framed the following issues:

"1.Whether the plaintiff has been coming in actual cultivatory possession of the suit land as gair marusi and now has become owners of the suit land, as alleged? OPP.

2.Whether the plaintiff has no cause of action? OPD.

3.Whether this court has no jurisdiction to try the present suit? OPD.

4. Whether the plaintiffs have no locus standi to file the suit? OPD.

5.Whether the suit is not maintainable in the eyes of law? OPD.

6.Whether the plaintiffs have not approached the court with clean hands? OPD.

7.Whether the suit is not within time? OPD.

8.Whether the plaintiffs are estopped from filing the suit by their acts and conduct? OPD.

9.Whether the suit is bad for non joinder of necessary parties, as alleged? OPD.

9-A.Whether the order dated 28.9.2000 of the AC 1st Grade in Misal No.15/2000 is wrong as alleged? OPD.

10.Relief."

6. After recording evidence and evaluating the same, learned trial court dismissed the suit and even the appeal filed against the same was dismissed by the learned lower appellate court constraining the defendant to file the instant appeal.

7. On 2.11.2004, appeal was admitted on the following substantial questions of law:

"1. Whether civil court had no jurisdiction to try the suit?

2. Whether the trial Court and first Appellant court erred in ignoring long standing entries in the revenue record and based decisions on sole stray entry in the revenue record?."

8. During the course of hearing, parties were put to notice and the appeal was also heard on the following additional question of law. (3) Whether the proceedings initiated by the plaintiffs/respondents before the civil court were barred by principle of res judicata?.

Substantial Question No.1

9. As regards question No.1, there is no difficulty in concluding that since the dispute was not one between landlord and tenant and was rather inter se two persons claiming themselves to be the tenant, therefore, it was the civil court alone which had the jurisdiction to determine the said issue. This court in Tulsa Singh Vs. Agya Ram & ors,1994 (2) Sim.L.C. 434, was confronted with a similar issue and the same was repelled with the following observations:

"8. Learned counsel for the appellant has contended vehemently that as the appellant had already been granted proprietary rights under Section 104 or the Act and therefore the civil court will have no jurisdiction whatsoever to entertain and decide the case of present nature, where the rights of tenancy in favour of appellant stood legally decided under the provisions of the Act by the competent authority and civil court will have no jurisdiction to again go into that controversy. The learned counsel in support of the aforesaid contention has tried to rely upon (1991) 1 Sim LC 223 Chuhniya Devi v. Jindu Ram.

9. In the reported case the appellants came up before the Full Bench for answer to the question whether civil court had jurisdiction in respect of an order:

> (a) made by the competent authority under the H.P. Land Revenue Act, 1954, and
> (b) of conferment of. proprietary rights under Section 104 of the H.P. Tenancy and Land Reforms Act, 1972.

10. In so far as present case was concerned point (b) above was more relevant.

11. In this Chuhniya Devi case (supra) their Lordships answered to the question as under :

> (a) that an order made by the competent authority under the H. P. Land Revenue Act, 1954, is open to challenge before a civil court to the extent that it related to matters falling within the ambit of Section 37(3) and Section 46 of that Act; and
> (b) the civil court has no jurisdiction to go into any question connected with the conferment of proprietary rights under Section 104 of the Act, except in a case where it was found that the statutory authorities envisaged by that Act had not acted in conformity with the fundamental principles of judicial procedure or where the provisions of the Act had not been complied with.

12. I think the applicability of the principle disposed of in the aforesaid case on the basis of the facts involved and proved on record in the present case was not at all called for.

13. Firstly, in Chuhniya Devi's case, (1991 (1) Sim LC 223) referred to above the dispute was between the landlord and tenant but in the present case the dispute is between the two persons alleging themselves to be the tenant,

14. Secondly, in the aforesaid reported case the proprietary rights had been granted in favour of the tenant by the competent officer under the Act and that too in the presence of the landlord. In the case under reference the suit Was filed on February 4, 1977 and the proprietary rights were granted initially through mutation No. 2649 Ex. D-5 on record sanctioned on December (sic).

15. Thirdly, it may be pointed out that the suit was filed on February 4, 1977 and the written statement was filed by the defendant-appellant on March 25, 1977 while replication was filed on April 12, 1977, meaning thereby the present appellant was in full knowledge of the present suit where his tenancy rights were being assailed in so far as on the date when the proprietary rights were conferred in his favour. The appellant did not bring .to the notice of the Revenue Officer under the Act sanctioning of mutation of proprietary, rights in his favour, pertaining to the alleged civil suit. Thus, the order of proprietary rights in favour of the appellant was granted in the absence of the present plaintiffs.

16. Fourthly, it may again be referred that the landlord preferred an appeal before the Collector, Una, assailing the order of grant of proprietary rights in favour of the present appellant which appeal was accepted and the case was remanded back to the Assistant Collector, for decision, afresh as is evident from Ex. P-5, certified copy of the order of the Collector. Order of the Collector is dated April 5, 1978 and thereafter finally the proprietary rights in favour of the appellant were granted behind the back of the present plaintiff-respondent, though later mutation granting proprietary rights has not been brought on record.

17. The aforesaid facts which have been proved on record clearly make the present case of an altogether different nature than the facts involved in Chuhniya Devi's case (1991 (1) Sim LC 223) referred to above. The applicability of the ratio of that judgment as such on the basis of dissimilarity of the facts in the two cases is not at all called for.

10. In Babu Ram (deceased) through L.Rs Smt. Sita Devi & ors Vs. Pohlo Ram (deceased) through L.Rs Smt. Vidya Devi & ors, 1991(2) Sim.L.C 211, this court has categorically held that the Legislature barred only those suits from cognizance of Civil Courts where there is no dispute between parties about relationship of landlord and tenant and where such relationship was disputed, it was the civil court alone which had the jurisdiction to entertain and decide the case. Relevant observations read as under:

> "5. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties. Learned counsel for the appellants urged before me that in view of the averments made in the plaint, in which the plaintiff had claimed a decree for declaration that he was a tenant on the suit land, civil court had no jurisdiction to entertain and decide the suit. It was further urged that there was cogent and convincing evidence adduced by the defendant on record to show that plaintiff was not in possession of the suit property and before the Panchayat the plaintiff had, on April 3, 1974, admitted by giving a document in writing that he was not in possession of the property and on the basis of this document, an order Ex D-1 was passed on April 25, 1976, by the Assistant Collector Second Grade, ordering the correction of entries in revenue records by showing the defendant to be in possession. It was on the basis of this order that change was effected in Khasra Girdwari in Rabi 1976 and for which report in Roznamcha Waquati was also made by the Patwari on May 11, 1976 vide copy Ex D-3. The learned counsel for the appellant further urged that the courts below were not right in discarding the order passed by the Assistant Collector Second Grade on the ground that it was based upon the report of Girdawar Kanungo, who had not been produced in the witness box. It was for this reason that application under order 41 Rule 27 of CPC had been made seeking to produce by way of additional evidence the report of Field Kanungo dated December 11, 1975 along with a copy of summon dated November 18, 1976, by which Assistant Collector Second Grade had asked the plaintiff to appear before him to show cause as to why the correction in revenue records be not made in favour of the defendant.
> 6. Learned counsel for the respondents, on the other hand, urged that the status of the plaintiff was not admitted by defendant and, therefore, there was no bar for civil court to entertain and decide the suit and moreover incorrect entry had appeared in the revenue record against the plaintiff, therefore, suit for declaration in a civil court was competent and maintainable in view of section 46 of the HP Land Revenue Act. It was further contended that defendant could not be permitted to lead additional evidence merely to fill in the lacunae in the case especially when such evidence was within the knowledge of the defendant and could have been easily produced in the trial court.
> 7. I see much force in the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the respondent-plaintiff. The argument of the learned counsel for the appellants that the suit is barred under Section 58 of the H.P. Tenancy and Land Reforms Act (hereinafter to be called as the Tenancy Act) is not tenable. There is no clause in section 58 of the Tenancy Act which provides for a suit by or against a person claiming himself to be a tenant and whose status as a tenant is not admitted by the land owner. The legislature barred only those suits from the cognizance of civil court where there is no dispute between the parties about the relationship of landlord and tenant. It was a suit filed by the plaintiff claiming himself to be in possession of the property as a tenant under the defendant and defendant had not admitted the status of the plaintiff, as such, rather, it was pleaded that the plaintiff was not at all in possession. The provisions contained in the Punjab Tenancy Act, as applicable to Himachal Pradesh, which are parimateria with the provisions of section 58 of the Tenancy Act came up for consideration before the Supreme Court in Raja Durga Singh V. Tholu and others, AIR 1963 SC 361. The Supreme Court observed init report as under:

"……There is no entry or item relating to a suit by or against a person claiming to be a tenant and whose status as a tenant is not admitted by the landlord. It would, therefore, be reasonable to infer that the legislature barred only those suits form the cognizance of a civil court where there was no dispute between the parties that a person cultivating land or who was in possession of land was a tenant……"

8. In view of the specific pleadings and as observed by the Supreme Court in Durga Singh's case (supra), Civil Court undoubtedly had jurisdiction to entertain and decide the suit. Moreover, plaintiff had felt aggrieved by an entry made in the revenue records on the basis of an order passed by Revenue Officer. Section 46 of the Himachal Pradesh Land Revenue Act provides that if a person considers himself aggrieved as to any right of which he is in possession by an entry in a record of right or any periodical record, he can institute a suit for declaration of the rights under Chapter VI of the Specific Relief Act, 1963. The courts below, as such, were right in their view that Civil Court had jurisdiction to entertain and decide the suit."

This question is answered against the appellant.

Substantial Question No.2

11. It is not in dispute that it was defendants 2 to 21 who were the owners of the suit land. It is also not in dispute that Mohna, father of the plaintiffs, died in the year 1966 and the name of Mohna was recorded as tenant for the first time in Khasra Girdwari Ext P-6 for the year 1964-65. This entry of tenancy continued upto 23.4.1971. In the Jamabandi for the year 1963-64, Ext P-2, there were no entries of tenancy in favour of said Mohna or defendant No.1 and suit land is shown to be owned and possessed by Smt. Achhri. It is also not in dispute that under para 9.9, Patwari has power to make entry in khasra Girdwari as per spot possession. As observed earlier, Mohna was recorded as a tenant during the course of harvest inspection i.e. Kharif 1965 and this entry continued upto April, 1971, yet the owners did not challenge the said entry, nor did they appear either before the trial court or any revenue officer to challenge the same. Entry in favour of Prita was made for the first time in the Jamabandi for the year 1968-69, Ext P-3, wherein he has been shown as Gair Mourusi

12. Learned courts below, on the basis of evidence, have come to a conclusion that entry in favour of Prita son of Hako as Gair Mourusi was only due to accidental slip or error of judgment on the part of revenue officer wherein instead of writing the name of Mohna son of Hako, name of Prita son of Hako was recorded,. This is clearly evident from the fact that Prita was the son of Nandu and not the son of Hako and the onus was rightly placed on defendant No.1 to explain that he is the son of Hako. That apart, there is admittedly no order of revenue officer whereby the defendant No.1 was ordered to be entered as Gair Mourusi under the land owners and it is more than settled that change in the revenue entries effecting proprietary title or tenancy cannot be made by a revenue officer without following procedure under he law. (Harbans Singh Vs. Karam Chand, 1991(2) SLC 222, Kanshi Ram Vs. Harbhajan, AIR 2002 HP 154..

Accordingly, this substantial question of law is answered against the appellant.

Substantial Question No.3

13. Learned Senior counsel for the appellant would vehemently argue that the application for leading additional evdiednce filed by his client before learned lower appellate court has been wrongly rejected whereby he had only sought production of copy of the order passed by Settlement Collector dated 14.9.2008, through which the filed by respondents was dismissed and the order passed by LRO dated 28.9.2000 in Misal No.15/2000 was upheld. Order dated 14.9.2001 was stated to have attained finality as no appeal against the same had been preferred and thus the instant proceedings were barred by the principle of res judicata.

14. In support of such submission, heavy reliance is placed by the learned Senior counsel for the appellant on the judgment rendered by me in RSA No.332 of 2007, titled as Gurdev Singh Vs. Narain Singh & ors, more particularly the following observations:

> 8.It is not in dispute that during settlement, the karukans prepared were ordered to be rectified by the Collector vide order Ext P-8 and the order so passed was affirmed by the Divisional Commissioner vide order Ext P-9. It is further not in dispute that this order has attained finality, having not been assailed before any authority or even a court of competent jurisdiction. Now, what would be the effect of the order?.
>
> 9.Section 11 Explanation VIII of the Code of Civil Procedure reads as under:
>
> > "An issue heard and finally decided by a Court of limited jurisdiction, competent to decide such issue, shall operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit, notwithstanding that such Court of limited jurisdiction was not competent to try such subsequent suit or the suit in which such issue has been subsequently raised."
>
> 10.It cannot be disputed that the Settlement Collector had the jurisdiction to entertain the application for correction. Therefore, in such circumstances, whether the order was right or wrong or in accordance with law or not in accordance with law, would not make the order coram non judice or void and the respondents/defendants, if at all aggrieved, were required to assail the same before the competent authority.
> 11.To be fair to the learned counsel for the respondents/defendants, he has vehemently argued that once it is proved on record that no proper procedure was followed by the Settlement Collector while ordering the correction of entries and also bearing in mind that these corrections were carried out at the back of the respondents without affording proper and reasonable opportunity of being heard to them, these findings cannot be held to be binding much less operate as res judicata against the respondents/defendants.
>
> 12.It is more than settled that where a court or Tribunal is having authority or jurisdiction to decide a particular dispute, but in exercise of such jurisdiction, comes to a wrong conclusion then it is difficult to hold that such an order is void. The correctness of the order has nothing to do with the jurisdiction of the court. It is equally settled that where a quasi judicial authority has jurisdiction to decide a matter, it does not lose its jurisdiction by coming to a wrong conclusion whether it is wrong in law or facts and if decides wrongly, the party wronged can only take the recourse prescribed by law for setting the matters right and if that course is not taken, the decision, however, wrong, cannot be disturbed.
>
> 13.Similar issue came up before a Constitution Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Ujjam Bai Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh& anr, AIR 1962 SC 1621 and it was held as under:
> > "15.Now, I come to the controversial area. What is the position with regard to an order made by a quasi-judicial authority in the undoubted exercise of its jurisdiction in pursuance of a provision of law which is admittedly intra vires? It is necessary first to clarify the concept of jurisdiction. Jurisdiction means authority to decide. Whenever a judicial or quasi-judicial tribunal is empowered or required to enquire into a question of law or fact for the purpose of giving a decision on it, its findings thereon cannot be impeached collaterally or on an application for certiorari but are binding until (1) (1962) 1 S.C.R. 540 reversed on appeal. Where a quasi-judicial authority has jurisdiction to decide a matter, it does not lose its jurisdiction by coming to a wrong conclusion whether it is wrong in law or in fact. The question, whether a tribunal hat; jurisdiction depends not on the truth or falsehood of the facts into which it has to enquire, or upon the correctness of its findings on these facts, but upon their nature, and it is determinable "at the commencement, not at the conclusion, of the enquiry". (Rex v. Bolten, (1841) 1 QB 66 at p.74).. Thus, a tribunal empowered to determine claims for compensation for loss of office has jurisdiction to determine all questions of law and fact relating to the measure of compensation and the tenure of the office, and it does not exceed its jurisdiction by determining any of those questions incorrectly but it has no jurisdiction to entertain a claim for reinstatement or damages for wrongful dismissal, and it will exceed its jurisdiction if it makes an order in such terms, for it has no legal power to give any decision whatsoever on those matters. A tribunal may lack jurisdiction if it is improperly constituted, or if it fails to observe certain essential preliminaries to the inquiry. But it does not exceed its jurisdiction by basing its decision upon an incorrect determination of any question that it is empowered or required, (i. e.) has jurisdiction to determine. The strength of this theory of jurisdiction lies in its logical consistency. But there are other oases where Parliament when it empowers an inferior tribunal to enquire into certain facts intend to demarcate two areas of enquiry, the tribunal's findings within one area being conclusive and with in the other area impeachable. "The jurisdiction of an inferior tribunal may depend upon the fulfilment of some condition precedent or upon the existence of some particular fact. Such a, fact is collateral to the actual matter which the tribunal has to try and the determination whether it exists (1) [1841] 1 Q.B. 66,74.

or not is logically prior to the determination of the actual question which the tribunal has to try. The tribunal must itself decide as to the collateral fact when, at the inception of an inquiry by a tribunal of limited jurisdiction, a challenge is made to its jurisdiction, the tribunal has to make up its mind whether it will act or not, and for that purpose to arrive at some decision on whether it has jurisdiction or not. There may be tribunals which, by virtue of legislation constituting them, have the power to determine finally the preliminary facts on which the further exercise of their jurisdiction depends; but, subject to that an inferior tribunal cannot, by a wrong decision with regard to a collateral fact, give itself a jurisdiction which it would not otherwise possess."

(Halsbury's Laws of England, 3rd Edn. Vol. II page 59). The characteristic attribute of a judicial act or decision is that it binds, whether it be right or wrong. An error of law or fact committed by a judicial or quasi judicial body cannot, in general, be' impeached otherwise than on appeal unless the erroneous determination relates to a matter on which the jurisdiction of that body depends. These principles govern not only the findings of inferior courts strito sensu but also the findings of administrative bodies which are held to be acting in a judicial capacity. Such bodies are deemed to have been invested with power to err within the limits of their jurisdiction; and provided that they keep within those limits, their decisions must be accepted as valid unless set aside on appeal. Even the doctrine of res judicata has been applied to such decisions. (See Living stone v. Westminister Corporation (1) Re Birkenhead Corporation (2) Re 56 Denton Road Twickenham(3) Society of Medical Officers of Health v. Hope(4). In Burn & Co. Calcutta v. Their Employees(5) (1) [1904] 2 K.B. 109. (2) (1952) Ch. 359, (3) [1953] Ch. 51. (4) [1959] 2 W.L.R. 377, 391, 396, 397, 402. (5) [1956] S.C.R. 781: (S) AIR 1957 SC 38) this Court said that although the rule of res judicata as enacted by s. 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure did not in terms apply to an award made by an industrial tribunal its underlying principle which is founded on sound public policy and is of universal application must apply. In Daryao v. The State of U. P. (1) this Court applied the doctrine of res judicata in respect of application under Art. 32 of the Constitution. It is perhaps pertinent to observe here that when the Allahabad High Court was moved by the petitioner under Art. 226 of the Constitution against the order of assessment, passed on an alleged misconstruction of the notification of December 14, 1957, the High Court rejected the petition on two grounds. The first ground given Was that the petitioner had the alternative remedy of getting the error corrected by appeal the second ground given was expressed by the High Court in the following words:

"We have, however, heard the learned counsel for the petitioner on merits also, but we are not satisfied that the interpretation put upon this notification by the Sales Tax Officer contains any obvious error in it. The circumstances make the interpretation advanced by the learned counsel for the petitioner unlikely. It is admitted that even handmade biris, have been subject to Sales Tax since long before the dated of the issue of the above notification. The object of passing the Additional Duties of Excise (Goods of Special Importance) Central Act No. 58 of 1957, was to levy an additional excise duty on certain important articles and with the concurrence of the State Legislature to abolish Sales Tax on those articles. According to the argument of the learned counsel for the petitioner during the period 14th December, 1957, to (1) [1961] 2 S.C.A. 591.

30th June, 1958, the petitioner was liable neither to payment of excise duty nor to pay- ment of Sales Tax. We do not know why there should have been such an exemption. The language of the notification might well be read as meaning that the notification is to 'apply only to those goods on which an addi- tional Central excise duty had been levied and paid".

If the observations 'quoted above mean that the High Court rejected the petition also on merits, apart from the other ground given, then the principle laid down in Daryao v. The State of U. P. (1) will apply and the petition under Art. 32 will not be maintainable on the ground of res judicata. It is,' however, not necessary to pursue the question of res judicata any further, because I am resting my decision on the more fundamental ground that an error of law or fact committed by a judicial body cannot, in general, be impeached otherwise than on appeal unless the erroneous determination relates to a matter on which the jurisdiction of that body depends.

16. In Malkarjun Narhari (2) the Privy Council dealt with a case in which a sale took place after notice had been wrongly served upon a person who was not the legal representative of the judgment. debtor's estate, and the executing court had erroneously decided that he was to be treated as such representative. The Privy Council said:

"In so doing the Court was exercising its jurisdiction. It made a sad mistake, it is true; but a Court has jurisdiction to decide wrong as well as right. If it decides wrong, the wronged party can only take the course prescribed by law for setting matters right; and if that course is not taken the decision, however wrong, cannot be disturbed".

(1) (1961) 2 S.C.A. 591.

(2) [1950] L.R. 279, A, 216. 225.

17. The above view finds support from a number of decisions-of this Court.

1. Aniyoth Kunhamina Umma v. Ministry of Rehabilitation , Petn No.32 of 1959, D/- 22.3.1961 (AIR 1962 SC 1616). In this case it had been held under the Administration of Evacuee Property Act, 1950, that a certain person was an evacuee and that certain plots of land which belonged to him were, therefore, evacuee property and vested. in the Cus- todian of Evacuee Property.' A transferee of the land from the evacuee then presented a petition under Art. 32 for restoration of the lands to her and complained of an infringement of her fundamental right, under Art. 19 (1) (f) and Art. 31 of the Constitution by the aforesaid order under the Administration of Evacuee Property Act. The petitioner had been a party to the proceedings resulting in the declaration under that Act earlier-mentioned. This Court held that as long as the decision under the Administration of Evacuee Property Act which had become final stood, the petitioner could not complain of any infringement of any fundamental right. This Court dismissed the petition observing :

" We are basing our decision on the ground that the competent authorities under the Act had come to a certain decision, which decision has now become final the petitioner not having moved against that decision in an. appropriate court by an appropriate proceeding. As long as that decision stands, the petitioner cannot complain of the. infringement of a fundamental right, for she has no such right".

2. Gulabdas & CO. v. Assistant Collector, of Customs (S) AIR 1957 SC 733. In this case certain imported goods had been assessed to customs tariff. The assessee continued in a petition under Art. 32 that the duty (1) [1962] 1 S.C.R. 505. (2) A.LR. [1957] S.C. 733, 736. should have been charged under a different item of that tariff and that its fundamental right was violated by reason of the assessment order charging it to duty under a wrong item in the tariff. This Court held that there was no violation of fundamental right and observed :

"If the provisions of law under which impugned orders have been passed are with jurisdiction, whether they be right or wrong on fact,' there is really no question of the infraction of a fundamental right. If a particular decision is erroneous on facts or merits, the proper remedy is by way of an appeal".

3. Bhatnagar & Co. Ltd. v. The Union of India, 1957 SCR 701: (S) AIR 1957 SC 478). In this case the Government had held that the petitioner had been trafficking in licences and in that view confiscated the goods imported under a licence. A petition had been filed under Art. 32 challenging this action. It was held :

> "If the petitioner's grievance is that the view taken by the appropriate authority in this matter is erroneous, that is not a matter which can be legitimately agitated before us in a petition under Art. 32".

4. The Parbhani Transport Co-operative Society. Ltd. v. Regional Transport Authority, Aurangabad, 1960-3 SCR 177: (AIR 1960 SC 801). In this case it was contended that the decision of the Transport Authority in granting a permit for a motor carriage service had offended Art. 14 of the Constitution. This Court held that the decision of a quasi-judicial body, right or wrong, could not offend Art. 14."

14. Once the Settlement Collector had the jurisdiction to make the necessary corrections and such order was affirmed by the Divisional Commissioner who too had the jurisdiction, then even if it is assumed that the order passed was wrong, the same would not make such order a nullity or having been passed without jurisdiction and would therefore, be binding on the parties.

15.Accordingly, question No.1 is answered in favour of appellant by holding that the order passed by Collector Settlement was required to be assailed by the respondents before a competent authority or court and in absence of any challenge to the same, the learned lower appellate court could not have gone into the validity of the order passed either by the Settlement Collector or the Divisional Commissioner and thereafter reverse the judgment and decree passed by the learned Trial Court.

16.Since question No.1 has been answered in favour of appellant, the appeal succeeds on this sole count alone. Therefore, in such circumstances, there is no requirement or even necessity to answer the remaining two other substantial questions of law framed by this Court on 1.8.2007 which have now only become academic.

17.In view of the aforesaid discussion, appeal succeeds and is accordingly allowed and the judgment and decree passed by the learned lower appellate court is set aside and that of the learned trial court is affirmed."

15. I am afraid that the reliance placed on the judgment in Gurdev Singh's case (supra) is totally misplaced as in that case the findings rendered by the Settlement Collector had attained finality as the same were not even questioned before the Civil court while filing suit and having not been assailed before any authority or even before the court of competent jurisdiction, the findings were held to operate as res judicata in the subsequent lis between the parties. Whereas, this is not the fact situation obtaining in the instant case as admittedly in the suit itself, proceedings pending before the revenue authority and the order passed therein were already assailed and were subject matter of the suit as the order passed by ST-cum-AC Grade-I, Una in Misal No.15/2000 pertaining to Mutation No.8713 had specifically been assailed.

16. It may be relevant to observe here that the suit was filed in the year 1994 and was subsequently amended so as to assail the order passed by revenue authorities. Once that be so, any subsequent order passed by the revenue authorities would be hit by the doctrine of lis pendens and would otherwise have no effect on the proceedings initiated before the civil court, as it is more than settled that the findings recorded by the civil court are binding on the revenue court and not vice versa.

17. That apart, the record clearly establishes that proceedings before the Settlement officer were initiated only after the proceedings were pending before the civil court and, therefore, the defendant No.1 cannot take any advantage of the order passed by Settlement Officer.

18. In Gurnam Singh & ors Vs. Jagjit Singh Rosha, 1975 PLJ 505, it was held by Hon'ble Punjab & Haryana High Court that though the entries in Khasra girdwaris are to be corrected by the revenue authorities, but once dispute has arisen between the parties, the controversy cannot be allowed to be transferred for decision to the revenue authorities. If any orders for correction of entries in khasra girdwaris have been made by these authorities, they would hardly be relevant in the civil proceedings and the evidence adduced by the parties in connection with the prayer for correction of the entries in khasra girdwaris shall have to be assessed independently by the civil courts. It is apt to reproduce the relevant observation which reads thus:

"2. The point in controversy between the parties is whether possession of the land had been transferred to the proposed vendee under the agreement of sale. There were entries in Khasra Girdawaris which showed that the vendee had succeeded in obtaining possession. These entries have been ordered to be corrected on an application filed by the appellants before the revenue authorities but once the disputes have arisen between the parties, the controversy cannot be allowed to be transferred for decision to the revenue authorities. If any orders for the correction of the entries in the Khasra Girdawaris have been made by these authorities, they would hardly be relevant in the civil proceedings and the evidence adduced by the parties in connection with the prayer for the correction of the entries in the Khasra Girdawaris shall have to be assessed independently by the civil Courts. A Local Commissioner appointed by the trial court had also reported that the respondent was in possession of the land in dispute. Under the circumstances, there was prima facie evidence about the plaintiff- respondent having succeeded in obtaining possession of the land under the agreement of sale. No final verdict can, however, be given as to which party is in possession unless the parties have had a full opportunity of examining their entire evidence. The order under appeal is apparently intended to maintain the status quo with regard to possession over the land as it existed on the date of the passing of the temporary injunction on 9.6.1970 in the absence of the appellants. This order had been made absolute by the trial Court on 26.6.1971 after hearing them. It is, however, made clear that this temporary injunction is not supposed to authorize any party to disturb the actual physical possession of the opposite party. The temporary injunction may, however, appear to be fully justified as the plaintiff- respondent had made out a prima facie case."

19. To the similar effect, are the observations made by the same court in case of Shri Niranjan Singh and others vs. The Financial Commissioner, Punjab (Revenue) and others 1979 PLJ 352, wherein court has held that though the correction of khasra girdawari entries was within the exclusive jurisdiction of revenue officer, however, the civil court was seized of the matter. It is the civil court, which can interpret entry either singly or in context of other relevant evidence proved on record by the parties. It has further been held that the findings of civil court regarding the status of contesting party over-rides the findings of revenue authorities:-

"6. The learned counsel for the petitioners confining his arguments to respondent No. 3 only has argued that the issue whether the latter is a trespasser or a tenant of the land measuring 52 Kanals 7 Marlas is sub judice before the civil Court. The trial Court vide judgment dated December 19, 1966 (A. 5) has found that respondent No. 3 was a trespasser. The civil court shall continue to be seized of this matter because respondent No. 3 has filed an appeal against that judgment which is still pending. In this situation, the orders of the revenue authorities ordering the change of the entries in the Girdawaris from 1962 to 1965 showing respondent No. 3 as a tenant of the land is ultra vires and the same are liable to be quashed. I see no force in this contention. The Commissioner in his impugned order dated July 25, 1967, said that it was within the exclusive jurisdiction of a revenue officer to correct the Khasra Girdawari and it is up to the civil court to interpret it in any particular civil proceeding pending before it either singly or in the context of other relevant evidence brought on record by the parties. The learned counsel for the parties do not (and rightly) dispute the correctness of the observation made by the Commissioner. The revenue authorities shall continue to be competent to effect change in the entries in the Girdawaris irrespective of the fact that the civil court is seized of the same matter, though the finding of the civil court regarding the status of the contesting respondents including respondent No. 3 being a tenant or otherwise will over-ride the finding of the revenue authorities resulting in the change of entries in the Girdawaris."

In view of above, this substantial question of law is answered accordingly against the appellant.

In view of the aforesaid discussion and cumulative effect of the answers to the aforesaid three substantial questions of law, there is no merit in this appeal and the same is dismissed leaving the parties to bear their own costs.

Cr. Revision No. 102 of 2010
Decided on: 14 .09.2016

Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881- Section 138- Complaint was filed pleading that petitioner had taken loan from the bank and had issued a cheque, which was dishonored due to insufficient funds- trial Court convicted the accused and sentenced him to undergo simple imprisonment for 6 months and to pay compensation of Rs. 60,000/-- an appeal was preferred, which was dismissed in view of the statement made by the accused- held, that Appellate Court had dismissed the appeal for the simple reason that undertaking was given before the Court to deposit the money which amounted to confession of guilt- accused had disputed delivery of cheque and the receipt of notice- Appellate Court was supposed to adjudicate all these facts- it was not permissible to dispose of the appeal on the basis of undertaking- revision allowed and case remanded to Appellate Court for deciding the same afresh on merits. (Para-6 to 8)

For the petitioner: Mr. M.S. Thakur, Advocate.
For the respondent: Mr. Vijay K. Verma, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Chander Bhusan Barowalia, Judge.

The present criminal revision petition is maintained by the petitioner/accused (hereinafter referred to as 'the petitioner') assailing the order, dated 16.02.2010, of learned Additional Sessions Judge (Fast Track Court), Shimla, H.P. passed in criminal Appeal No. 83-S/10 of 2009, which had arisen out of the judgment, dated 14.09.2009, passed by the learned Judicial Magistrate Fist Class, Court No. 4, Shimla, in Criminal Complaint No. 143/2 of 2006.

2. Briefly stating the facts giving rise to the present petition are that the complainant/respondent-Bank (hereinafter referred to as 'the respondent-Bank') maintained a complaint under Section 138 read with Section 142 of the Negotiable Instrument Act (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act') and Sections 406/420 of Indian Penal Code against the petitioner with the allegations that the petitioner took a loan from the respondent-Bank vide agreement No. LPSHM00001912900 and pursuant to the agreement the petitioner, in order to clear a part of the balance loan amount, issued the cheque, dated 14.02.2006, bearing No. 111620, drawn at Punjab National Bank, The Mall , Shimla. However, on being presented, the cheque was dishonored with remarks "funds insufficient". Subsequently, a demand notice was issued to the petitioner by the respondent-Bank, but the same was not answered, therefore, the respondent-Bank instituted a complaint under Section 138 of the Act. The learned Trial Court convicted the petitioner and sentenced him to undergo simple imprisonment for six months and to pay compensation of Rs.60,000/- to the respondent-Bank. The petitioner preferred an appeal against the order of learned Trial Court to the Court of learned Additional Sessions Judge (Fast Track Court), Shimla, which came to be dismissed, hence the present petition.

3. The learned Trial Court allowed the complaint and sentenced the petitioner to undergo simple imprisonment for six months and to pay compensation of Rs.60,000/- to the respondent-Bank for the loss suffered by it and inconvenience and harassment caused. The petitioner (accused), feeling aggrieved, from the judgment of the learned Trial Court preferred an appeal and the learned Lower Appellate Court dismissed the appeal holding that from the statement dated 14.12.2009 made by the petitioner (accused) it becomes clear that he has confessed his guilt. In view of the above noted facts, the learned Lower Appellate Court found no merits in the appeal and the same was accordingly dismissed.

4. The learned Lower Appellate Court dismissed the appeal for the simple reason that when appeal was pending before the learned Trial Court the petitioner (accused) has given an undertaking before the Court that he will deposit the amount of compensation and he confessed his guilt. The learned Lower Appellate Court without going into the merits of the appeal has simply held that since the appellant (petitioner herein) has confessed his guilt, so the appeal was dismissed and the petitioner was ordered to surrender before the Court below. Against the said order, the present revision petition is maintained by the petitioner (accused). As per the petitioner, the Court below, however, has neither touched the merits of the appeal nor gone through the facts of the case and simply passed the order on 16.02.2010 after recording the statement of the accused on 14.12.2009. It is further averred that the order of the learned Lower Appellate Court is not sustainable for the simple reason that the Court below has not touched the merits of the appeal at all. Whether the amount was legally payable or not has not been considered by the learned Lower Appellate Court and no findings are given on the appeal.

5. I have heard the learned counsel for the petitioner, learned counsel for the respondent and gone through the record in detail.

6. The learned counsel for the petitioner has argued that the findings of the learned Lower Appellate Court are no findings and the appeal is required to be remanded back to the learned Lower Appellate Court to give findings on merits of the case. The learned counsel for the respondent has argued that no findings are required to be given by the learned Lower Appellate Court when the accused has himself admitted his mistake and confessed his guilt and also promised to pay Rs.60,000/- to the respondent-Bank. In rebuttal, the learned counsel for the petitioner has argued that his statement is not sufficient to conclude his guilt, as the appeal was pending adjudication before the learned Lower Appellate Court and the Court below was required to give its findings on merits.

7. This Court finds that the petitioner (accused), in the learned Trial Court, has disputed the delivery of the cheque as well as the receipt of the statutory notice and these facts were again agitated before the learned Lower Appellate Court in appeal. In the fitness of the things, the learned Lower Appellate Court was required to at least go through the merits of the case after hearing the learned counsel for the parties and give its findings on the merits of the appeal. The order passed by the learned Lower Appellate Court is without touching the merits of the case and the same is not sustainable in the eyes of law and is liable to be set aside. Accordingly, the order under challenge, passed by the learned Lower Appellate Court, dated 16.02.2010, is set aside and it is directed that the learned Lower Appellate Court will pass a detailed order touching the merits of the case as well as considering the submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties afresh.

8. In view of what has been discussed hereinabove, the case is remanded back to the Court of learned Lower Appellate Court for deciding the same afresh on mertis. Records, if any, be send back forthwith to the concerned Court. The petition, as also pending application(s), if any, stand(s) disposed of.

Report was warded to the Senior Medical Superintendent. In her cross-examination, she deposed that a person having mental retardation can enter marriage if the other person is made aware of this fact and volunteers to marry her. Such a person can not take care of a child. A person having mild mental retardation can tell about the sexual assault committed upon her after three years. She does not have the ability to manipulate the facts.

26. PW-23 Dr. Sanjeev, Assistant Director, CFI Bhopal has proved report Ext. PW-23/A. As per Ext. PW-23/A, the accused was the father of the baby of the prosecutrix.

27. What emerges from the appraisal of evidence is that the prosecutrix PW-3 has testified that three years back, in the month of Bhado, she had gone to the jungle to graze the cattle. She was caught by the accused, from the arms. She was taken to a cave by the accused. accused gagged her mouth and raped her. He threatened to kill her in case the incident was disclosed to any one. She told the incident to her younger sister Lajwanti. She did not tell the incident to any other person because she was scared. PW-4 Lajwanti corroborated the statement of the prosecutrix. She deposed that her sister used to wear a Shawl in the summers also, in hot weather. Her sister told that she was pregnant. Incident was also narrated by the prosecution to her mother i.e. PW-2 Dhaneshwari Devi. PW-2 Dhaneshwari Devi has told the incident to PW-1 Jai Ram. Jai Ram was away to Shimla to look after his elder daughter. PW-7 Surinder Kumar has proved the birth certificate of the prosecutrix Ext. PW-7/B. PW-9 Dr. Sarla Chand has proved has examined the prosecutrix. According to her opinion, patient was habitual of sexual intercourse. She was carrying a pregnancy of 31 week and her age was 19 years. As per the report of the Radiologist the age of the prosecutrix was 19 years. She issued MLC Ext. PW-9/B. Statements of PW-11 Dr. Ramesh Kumar and PW-22 Dr. Rama Malhotra are material. According to PW-11 Dr. Ramesh Kumar, he had referred the patient to PGI Chandigarh to determine the IQ. As per the report, her IQ was 62 based on history, mental state examination. She had mild mental retardation. She was not in a position to understand the good and bad aspects of the sexual assault. In his cross-examination, he has admitted that he had given the opinion that the prosecutrix was unable to understand the good and bad of the sexual assault on the basis of questions put to her by him. PW-22 Dr. Rama Malhotra has also examined the prosecutrix to assess the mental IQ. According to her report, Ext. PW-22/A, mean IQ of 62. She has categorically deposed in her cross-examination that a person having mental retardation can enter into marriage if the other person is made aware of this fact and volunteers to marry her. Such a person can not take care of a child. A person having mild mental retardation can tell about the sexual assault committed upon her after three years. Such a person does not have the ability to manipulate the facts.

28. What emerges from the statements of PW-11 Dr. Ramesh Kumar and PW-22 Dr. Rama Malhotra is that the prosecutrix was suffering from mental retardation. She was not in a position to understand the consequences of the sexual assault. Merely that she was married and looking after a baby does not prove that she was of a sound mind. Learned trial Court has erred while making observation that according to him, girl was intelligent. Statement of the prosecution

P-3 has been duly corroborated by her sister Lajwanti and mother Dhaneshwari Devi, regarding the manner in which the incident has taken place. Statement of the prosecutrix PW-3 is also corroborated by medical evidence, as per the statement of PW-9 Dr. Sarla Chand, who has issued MLC Ext. PW-9/B. Accused has taken advantage of the mental retardation of the prosecutrix.

29. There is delay in lodging the FIR but the same is due to the fact that the prosecutrix did not know the consequences of the sexual assault by the accused. The ocular evidence of the prosecutrix has been duly corroborated by the statements of PW-11 Dr. Ramesh Kumar and PW-22 Dr. Rama Malhotra. Blood samples of the accused, the baby and the prosecutrix were taken and the report has been submitted by PW-23 Dr. Sanjeev, Assistant Professor, CFI, Bhopal. He has proved the report Ext. PW-23/A. It is clear from the Ext. PW-23/A that the accused (Chaman Lal) is the biological father of the baby of the prosecutrix. Learned trial Court has also brushed aside Ext. PW-23/A, which conclusively proves that the accused is father of the baby of the prosecutrix as per Ext. PW-23/A. It has come in the statement of PW-3 (Prosecutrix) that the accused used to threaten to kill her in case the incident was divulged to anyone. Thus, the prosecution has duly proved its case against the accused under charged sections.

30. Accordingly, in view of the discussion and analysis made hereinabove, the present appeal is allowed. Judgment dated 2.5.2013 rendered by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Mandi, District Mandi, Himachal Pradesh in Sessions Trial No. 2 of 2009, is set aside. Accused is convicted for the commission of offence under Sections 376 and 506-II IPC. He be produced to be heard on quantum of sentence on 19.9.2016.

31. Registry is directed to prepare and send the production warrants forthwith.

2. The case of the prosecution, in a nut shell, is that in the month of September, 2009, complainant Prabha Devi Lama along with her husband Sanjeev Kumar was residing in the house of one Jagat Ram at place Ghuggar near SSB Chowk, Palampur. One Dhan Bahadur, Uncle of Sanjeev Kumar was also residing with them. He admitted that he had relations with the accused.

11. PW-6 Vishal Rai testified that he belongs to Darjelling. On 15.9.2009 at 10:00 PM, his brother Naveen was in their room when sister of Punam Lama came to their room and told that Sanjeev had fallen and he is to be taken to hospital. He along with Naveen went to the room of Sanjeev Kumar and took him to hospital, Palampur from where he was referred to Tanda and from Tanda to PGI Chandigarh. He did not know how Sanjeev Kumar received injuries. He was declared hostile and cross-examined by the learned Public Prosecutor. In his cross-examination by the learned Public Prosecutor, he denied the suggestion that on 15.9.2009 at 10:00 PM Punam Lama told him that her son Ranjan Lama had quarreled with Sanjeev and Sanjeev had fallen down. He denied the suggestion that Sanjeev died due to injuries sustained by him as he was thrown by accused Ranjan Lama. He admitted that accused were known to him.

12. PW-7 Sukhdev testified that he was residing in the house of Jagat Ram. Deceased Sanjeev also used to reside along with wife and Uncle in the same house adjacent to his room. On 16.9.2009, Sanjeev Kumar was to go to Darjelling and for that purpose he had purchased railway ticket on 15.9.2009. He was also with him at that time. On 15.9.2009, Sanjeev Kumar was packing his luggage. When he was sleeping at 10:30 PM, he heard noise and in the meantime, Jagat Ram came to him and he saw Sanjeev Kumar fallen down. He was taken to hospital. He was told by wife of Sanjeev Kumar that he was thrown down by accused. Sanjeev Kumar died on way to PGI near Una on 16.9.2009. He admitted in his cross-examination that neither on 15.9.2009 nor on 16.9.2009, he reported the matter to the police.

13. PW-14 Dr. Sumeet Sood, testified that on 15.9.2009 when injured Sanjeev Kumar was brought to the hospital, at that time, he was on duty and Dr. Jaidesh Rana was on duty.

14. PW-15 Prabha Tamang is the eye witness to the incident. According to her, she along with her husband late Sanjeev Kumar was residing at Bindravan, Palampur. On 15.9.2009 at 9:30 PM accused Ranjan Lama, cousin brother of her husband came to their house and demanded Rs. 2000/- from her husband. Her husband and accused Ranjan Lama took liquor together in their room. An altercation ensued between her husband and accused Ranjan Lama regarding the money. Her husband told him that he would give the amount on the next day but accused Ranjan Lama insisted that the amount be given on that day only. She was packing her luggage on that day as on the next day they were to leave for their home town. Her husband slapped Ranjan Lama. She called Dhan Bahadur who was in another room who took accused Ranjan Lama away and while going away accused Ranjan Lama threatened her husband to do away with his life. After some time accused Ranjan Lama brought his mother Punam Lama with him and knocked their door. Her husband opened the door. Arguments started between her husband and accused Punam Lama. Accused Ranjan Lama all of a sudden appeared and lifted her husband from his legs and threw him down first on roof and from there her husband fell on the road. Her husband sustained injuries on head, ear, shoulder and other parts of the body. Blood was oozing out from the wounds. The accused fled away from the spot. He died on the way at Una. She lodged FIR Ext. PW-13/A with the police on 16.9.2009. In her cross-examination, she deposed that on asking of doctor in Civil Hospital, she told the doctor that her husband received injuries due to fall from the roof. She denied the suggestion that after the death of Sanjeev Kumar, she in connivance with Dhan Bahadur made a false story in order to implicate the accused persons in this case.

15. PW-16 Jagdish Chand stated that on 16.9.2009 after the registration of FIR Ext. PW-13/A, the case file was handed over to him for investigation. Inquest papers Ext. PW-16/A and PW-16/B were prepared. The post mortem was got conducted. The spot map Ext. PW-16/C was prepared. He also took the photographs of the spot. The blood stained soil was taken from the spot from three different places and the same were put in three different boxes. A blood stained Baniyan (inner) over which “Amul Gold” was written was also taken into possession. In his cross-examination, he admitted that it was written in the OPD slip Ext. PW-3/A that the smell of alcohol was present in the mouth of the deceased.

16. PW-15 Prabha Tamang is the only eye witness to the incident. According to her, on 15.9.2009 at 9:30 PM accused Ranjan Lama, cousin brother of her husband, came to their house and demanded Rs. 2000/- from her husband. Her husband and accused Ranjan Lama took liquor together in their room. An altercation ensued between her husband and accused Ranjan Lama regarding the money. Her husband slapped Ranjan Lama. After some time accused Ranjan Lama brought his mother Punam Lama with him and knocked their door. Her husband opened the door. Arguments started between her husband and accused Punam Lama. Accused Ranjan Lama all of a sudden appeared and lifted her husband from his legs and threw him down first on the roof and from there her husband fell on the road. Her husband sustained injuries on head, ear, shoulder and other parts of the body. Her husband was taken to CHC Palampur, from where he was referred to Tanda and from Tanda to PGI Chandigarh. He died on the way to PGI Chandigarh at Una. She lodged FIR Ext. PW-13/A with the police on 16.9.2009.

17. PW-2 Dr. Jai Des Rana has stated that on 15.9.2009 he was on night duty when injured, namely, Sanjeev was brought to the hospital with head injury. He inquired from the attendants about the cause of injury and they disclosed that the injury was sustained by fall. He has also conducted the post mortem examination. According to him, the death was due to injuries sustained in brain leading to cardio-respiratory arrest and death. He issued PMR Ext. PW-2/B. According to him, the probable duration between injuries and death was within 24 hours and between death and post mortem was 12 to 36 hours. PW-4 Jagat Ram was the landlord of the deceased. According to him, the wife of deceased came to him and told that Puman and her son present in the Court has thrown her husband from first floor to ground floor and there were minimum chances of his survival. He reached the spot and saw blood stains near the drain. He went to the room where Sanjeev Kumar was lying. He saw blood oozing out from his mouth and ear but he was unable to talk. Thereafter, Sanjeev Kumar was shifted to hospital.

18. PW-5 Amar Tamang and PW-6 Vishal Rai have not supported the case of the prosecution. They were declared hostile and cross-examined by the learned Public Prosecutor. In their cross-examination, they have admitted that they were related to the accused. PW-7 Sukhdev has deposed that he was the neighbourer of deceased Sanjeev Kumar. In the evening on 15.9.2009, Sanjeev Kumar was packing his luggage. He heard noise at 10:30 PM. Jagat Ram came to him and he saw Sanjeev Kumar fallen down. He was taken to hospital. He was told by wife of Sanjeev Kumar that he was thrown down by accused.

19. PW-4 Jagat Ram and PW-7 Sukhdev have admitted that they did not lodge report with the police. Admittedly, FIR was lodged on 16.9.2009. There is no undue delay in lodging the FIR. The first instinct of the wife was to save her husband. Her husband was thrown from the first floor. He received multiple injuries. Sanjeev Kumar (deceased) was taken to hospital, Palampur from where he was referred to Tanda and from Tanda to PGI Chandigarh. He died near Una on way to PGI, Chandigarh. The incident has taken place on 15.9.2009 and FIR has been registered on 16.9.2009. Although FIR should be registered with promptitude, however, in the instant case, the delay in lodging the FIR has been duly explained.

20. The learned trial Court has not correctly appreciated the statement of eye witness to the incident PW-15 Prabha Tamang. She is the wife of deceased and she was the sole eye witness, as discussed hereinabove. She had raised alarm and thereafter, PW-4 Jagat Ram and PW-7 Sukhdev reached the spot. Sanjeev Kumar was shifted to the hospital. Dhan Bahadur was though cited as a witness but his whereabouts were not known and it is in these circumstances, his statement could not be recorded. The learned trial Court has given undue importance that Dhan Bahadur was not examined by the prosecution. PW-15 Prabha Tamang seems to be simpleton lady and she has told the doctor that her husband has fallen.

21. Mr. Vivek Singh Attri, learned Dy. Advocate General for the State has drawn the attention of the Court to Ext. PA, report of the FSL. It is evident from the contents whereof that no ethyl alcohol was detected in the blood of deceased Sanjeev Kumar. Thus, possibility of his falling accidently from roof is ruled out.

22. It has also come in the statement of PW-15 Prabha Tamang that accused Ranjan Lama has threatened her husband with dire consequences to do away with his life, while leaving the house. The prosecution has duly proved that accused Ranjan Lama has thrown the deceased from the first floor resulting in his death. He knew the consequences that if Sanjeev Kumar was thrown from the first floor, he was bound to receive life threatening injuries resulting in his death. Thus, the prosecution has proved the case against accused Ranjan Lama under Sections 304-II and 506-II IPC and has failed to prove the case against accused Punam Lama.

23. Accordingly, the appeal is partly allowed. Accused Ranjan Lama is convicted under Section 304-II IPC and Section 506-II IPC whereas accused Punam Lama is acquitted of the offences under Section 304-II IPC and Section 506-II IPC. Accused Ranjan Lama be heard on the quantum of sentence on 22.9.2016.

Brief facts of the case:

2. Smt. Urmila Devi and master Vikas filed application under Section 125 Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 and same was decided on 10.09.2001 by learned Judicial Magistrate Anni Distt. Kullu (H.P.). Urmila Devi in her house and committed sexual intercourse against the will of Smt. Urmila Devi. It is alleged that Smt. Urmila Devi became pregnant and thereafter minor Vikas born. During pendency of petition filed application under Section 125 Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 Smt. Urmila Devi married and she did not press her maintenance allowance petition before learned Judicial Magistrate. Learned Judicial Magistrate granted monthly maintenance allowance to minor Vikas @Rs.500/- per month from the date of filing of application. Thereafter minor Vikas filed application under Section 127 Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 for enhancement of monthly maintenance allowance from Rs.500/- per month to Rs.10,000/- per month. Learned Trial Court vide order dated 03.11.2015 appointed Smt. Pushpa Devi wife of Sh. Yash Pal Rana who is maternal aunt of minor as next friend of minor. Aggrieved against the order Sh. Sunder Lal filed present petition.

3. Court heard learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner and learned Advocate appearing on behalf of non-petitioner and Court also perused the entire record carefully.

4. Following points arise for determination:

1) Whether petition filed under Section 482 Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 read with Article 227 of Constitution of India is liable to be accepted as mentioned in memorandum of grounds of petition?

2) Final order.

Findings upon Point No.1 with reasons.

5. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that learned Trial Court appointed Smt. Pushpa Devi maternal aunt of minor as next friend without consent of natural guardian and on this ground petition be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for reasons hereinafter mentioned. It is proved on record that on dated 09.10.2015 learned Judicial Magistrate issued notice to natural mother of minor Smt. Urmila Devi. It is proved on record that Smt. Urmila Devi natural mother of minor appeared before learned Trial Court and filed affidavit that she has no objection if Smt. Pushpa Devi is appointed as next friend of minor. Smt. Urmila Devi had also given affidavit to the effect that minor Vikas is under the care of Smt. Pushpa Devi. There is recital in the affidavit that Smt. Pushpa Devi is providing all necessities of life to minor and is also bearing expenses of education of minor. Affidavit filed by Smt. Urmila Devi before learned Trial Court remain unrebutted on record.

6. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that proceedings under Section 127 Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 are criminal proceedings and no order under Order XXXII Code of Civil Procedure 1908 can be passed by criminal Court and on this ground petition be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for reasons hereinafter mentioned. It is held that proceedings under Section 127 Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 are quasi criminal and quasi civil proceedings. It is held that in quasi criminal and quasi civil proceedings provisions of order XXXII Code of Civil Procedure can be invoked. It is well settled law that Chapter IX and Section 125 to 128 of Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 are measure of social justice to protect women and children from vagrancy and destitution. See AIR 1999 SC 3348 Dwarka Prasad Satpathy vs. Bidyut Prava Dixit. See AIR 1978 SC 1807 Ramesh Chander Kaushal vs. Mrs Veena Kaushal and others. See 1991 (2) SCC 375 Vimala (K) vs. Veeraswamy (K). See 1971 (3) SCC 923 S. Sethu rathinam vs. Barbara.

7. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that Smt. Pushpa Devi is not appointed under Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act 1956 and under Guardians and Wards Act 1890 and on this ground petition be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for reasons hereinafter mentioned. It is well settled law that it is the duty of the Court to appoint next friend of minor in judicial proceedings. It is also well settled law that any person can be appointed next friend of minor if he fulfilled following conditions: (1) Next friend should not be of unsound mind. (2) Next friend himself should not be minor. (3) Next friend should not have any adverse interest against minor.

8. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that Smt. Pushpa Devi has adverse interest qua minor and on this ground petition be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for reasons hereinafter mentioned. There is no evidence on record that Smt. Pushpa Devi has adverse interest qua minor. Plea of petitioner that Smt. Pushpa Devi has adverse interest qua minor is defeated on the concept of ipse dixit. (An assertion made without proof). In view of the fact that petition under Section 127 Code of Criminal Procedure filed by minor and in view of the fact that Courts are under legal obligation to protect the interest of minor it is held that learned Trial Court did not commit any illegality by way of appointing Smt. Pushpa Devi as next friend of minor in proceedings under Section 127 Code of Criminal Procedure 1973. In view of above stated facts point No.1 is answered in negative.

Point No.2 (Final order).

9. In view of findings upon point No.1 above petition is dismissed. File of learned Trial Court alongwith certified copy of this order be sent back forthwith. Observations will not effect merits of case in any manner and will be strictly confined for disposal of present petition. Learned Trial Court will dispose of petition of minor within two months. Parties are directed to appear before learned Trial Court on 30.09.2016. Cr.MMO No.365/2015 is disposed of. Pending applications if any also disposed of.

The plaintiffs are the appellants, who aggrieved by the judgment and decree passed by the learned lower Appellate Court, whereby he held the suit of the plaintiff to be not maintainable before the Civil Court and thereby reversed the findings recorded by the learned Trial Court, have filed this Regular Second Appeal questioning the said judgment and decree.

2. The bare minimal facts as necessary for adjudication of this case are that the plaintiffs/appellants (herein after referred to as the 'plaintiffs') filed a suit for possession of land comprised in Khata Khatauni No. 62min/160, Khasra No. 1 min measuring 3 Bighas, Khasra No. 55 min measuring 7 Bighas and Khasra No. 56 min measuring 14 Biswas, Kitas 3 total measuring 10 Bighas 14 Biswas. It was further pleaded that the revenue entries showing Darshan Singh, (now deceased) as non-occupancy tenant were wrong, illegal, void and not binding on plaintiffs and proforma defendants, as he was never inducted as non-occupancy tenant. The owners were not aware of the wrong revenue entries and only in the month of May, 1990, plaintiff No. 1 came to know about such entries, where after, he moved an application opposing the attestation of conferment of proprietary rights upon defendant No. 1. However, defendant No. 1, taking undue advantage of the wrong revenue entries dispossessed the plaintiff from the suit land in July, 1990.

3. Only defendant No. 1 contested the suit and denied that he had dispossessed the plaintiffs from the suit land in July, 1990 and asserted that he was a non-occupancy tenant over the suit land and was inducted as such by predecessor of the plaintiffs in the year 1960. He raised the objection regarding jurisdiction of the Civil Court to try the suit and further submitted that the conferment and vestment of proprietary rights is automatic under the H.P. Tenancy and Land Reforms Act, 1972.

4. The learned trial Court framed the following issues:-

"1. Whether the possession of defendant No. 1 in the suit land is of tres-passer? OPP

2. If issue No. 1 is proved in affirmative, whether the entries of tenancy are illegal and fraudulent? OPP

3. Whether the plaintiffs are entitled to claim possession, as claimed? OPP

4. Whether the proper court fee has been affixed? OPP

5. Whether this court has jurisdiction? OPP

6. Whether this suit is within limitation? OPP

7. Relief."

5. After recording evidence and evaluating the same, the learned trial Court decreed the suit of the plaintiffs. However, on appeal being filed before the learned lower Appellate Court, the decree passed by learned trial Court was set aside and the case was remanded back to it for returning the plaint to the plaintiffs for presentation in a competent Court of law.

6. Aggrieved by the said findings, plaintiffs/appellants have filed the instant appeal and the same came to be admitted on 23.11.2001 on the following substantial question of law:-

"Whether the Civil Court has the jurisdiction to go into the question involved in the present case between the parties?"

I have heard learned counsel for the parties and gone through the records of the case.

7. At the outset, it may be observed that the jurisdiction of Civil Court cannot be readily inferred or easily excluded. While determining such jurisdiction, it is the pith and substance of the plaint's allegations that have to be kept in mind, so also the pith and substance of the relief sought and the jurisdiction does not depend upon the defence taken by the defendant in the written statement.

8. Adverting to the facts of the case, it would be noticed that the only reason which weighed with the learned lower Appellate Court to conclude that the jurisdiction of the Civil Court was excluded is the judgment rendered by Hon'ble Full Bench of this Court in Chuhniya Devi Vs.

Jindu Ram 1991 (1) Shimla Law Cases 223, as would be evident from para 9 of the judgment, which reads thus:

> "9. The facts of the case are not disputed that the plaintiffs and proforma-defendants No. 2 to 19 having been recorded as occupancy tenants of the suit land shall be deemed to have become its owners. However, the suit land is alleged to be admittedly in possession of the defendant No. 1. Though it is alleged in the plaint that the defendant No. 1 has dispossessed the plaintiffs and came in illegal possession of the suit land in May, 1990, but the long standing entries in the revenue records commencing from the Jambandies 1960-1961 (Ext.DW1/A) todate show the possession of the defendant No. 1 over the suit land as non-occupancy tenant on payment or rent of Rs.150/- per annum. The presumption of correctness having been attached to the entries of the revenue records he shall prima facie be deemed to be in possession of the suit land as non-occupancy tenant. However at the worst it can be taken that there is a dispute between the parties if the possession of the defendant No. 1 over the suit land has been as a non-occupancy tenant or not. But such dispute is triable by the revenue Courts under the H.P. Tenancy and Land Reforms Act. The order of the Land Reform Officer to that effect is appealable to the higher revenue courts. Even the revision and review lies to the higher Authorities. Therefore, it is not disputed that the H.P. Tenancy and Land Reforms Act is a complete Code in itself with regard to the dispute in question. Therefore, I do agree with the learned counsel for the appellant that in view of the Chuhniya Devi's case referred to above the jurisdiction of the Civil Court in this matter is barred. This point as such is decided in favour of the appellants."

9. To say the least, the learned lower Appellate Court has not at all applied its judicial mind and has further not even cared to have a glance, much less, read the judgment passed in Chuhniya Devi's case (supra) or else the learned lower Appellate Court would not have passed such an order.

10. In Chuhniya Devi's case (supra), the Hon'ble Full Bench of this Court had categorically held that the jurisdiction of the Civil Court was barred only when both the parties admit about the status of landlord and tenant, but when there is dispute about such status, then the Civil Court alone would have the jurisdiction. This position of law has been consistently maintained by this Court and reference in this regard can conveniently be made to Babu Ram (deceased) through L.Rs. Smt. Sita Devi and others Vs. Pohlo Ram (deceased) through L.Rs. Smt. Vidya Devi and others 1991 (2) Sim. L.C. 211, wherein it has been held as under:-

> "6. Learned counsel for the respondents, on the other hand, urged that the status of the plaintiff was not admitted by defendant and, therefore, there was no bar for civil court to entertain and decide the suit and moreover incorrect entry had appeared in the revenue record against the plaintiff, therefore, suit for declaration in a civil court was competent and maintainable in view of section 46 of the HP Land Revenue Act. It was further contended that defendant could not be permitted to lead additional evidence merely to fill in the lacunae in the case especially when such evidence was within the knowledge of the defendant and could have been easily produced in the trial court.
> 7. I see much force in the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the respondent-plaintiff. The argument of the learned counsel for the appellants that the suit is barred under Section 58 of the H.P. Tenancy and Land Reforms Act (hereinafter to be called as the Tenancy Act) is not tenable. There is no clause in section 58 of the Tenancy Act which provides for a suit by or against a person claiming himself to be a tenant and whose status as a tenant is not admitted by the land owner. The legislature barred only those suits from the cognizance of civil court where there is no dispute between the parties about the relationship of landlord and tenant. It was a suit filed by the plaintiff claiming himself to be in possession of the property as a tenant under the defendant and defendant had not admitted the status of the plaintiff, as such, rather, it was pleaded that the plaintiff was not at all in possession. The provisions contained in the Punjab Tenancy Act, as applicable to Himachal Pradesh, which are parimateria with the provisions of section 58 of the Tenancy Act came up for consideration before the Supreme Court in Raja Durga Singh V. Tholu and others, AIR 1963 SC 361. The Supreme Court observed init report as under:

> "……There is no entry or item relating to a suit by or against a person claiming to be a tenant and whose status as a tenant is not admitted by the landlord. It would, therefore, be reasonable to infer that the legislature barred only those suits form the cognizance of a civil court where there was no dispute between the parties that a person cultivating land or who was in possession of land was a tenant……"

8. In view of the specific pleadings and as observed by the Supreme Court in Durga Singh's case (supra), Civil Court undoubtedly had jurisdiction to entertain and decide the suit. Moreover, plaintiff had felt aggrieved by an entry made in the revenue records on the basis of an order passed by Revenue Officer. Section 46 of the Himachal Pradesh Land Revenue Act provides that if a person considers himself aggrieved as to any right of which he is in possession by an entry in a record of right or any periodical record, he can institute a suit for declaration of the rights under Chapter VI of the Specific Relief Act, 1963. The courts below, as such, were right in their view that Civil Court had jurisdiction to entertain and decide the suit."

11. On the same preposition, reliance can be placed on the judgment rendered in Birbal Vs. Udhami and others 1992 (1) Sim.L.C. 153, wherein this Court held as under:-

"8. The close perusal of section 58 (3) of the Act shows that there is no clause therein providing for a suit by or against a person claiming himself to be a tenant and whose status as a tenant is not admitted by the land owner. The legislature barred only those suits from the cognizance of civil courts where there is no dispute between the parties about the relationship of landlord and tenant. It was a suit filed by the plaintiff claiming himself to be in possession of the property as a tenant under the defendant and defendant had not admitted the status of the plaintiff as such, rather, it was pleaded that the plaintiff was not at all in possession. The provisions contained in the Punjab Tenancy Act, as applicable to Himachal Pradesh, which are pari material with the provisions of section 58 of the Tenancy Act came up for consideration before the Supreme Court in Raja Durga Singh V. Tholu and others, AIR 1963 SC 361. The Supreme Court observed as under:

> "….There is no entry or item relating to a suit by or against a person claiming to be a tenant and whose status as a tenant is not admitted by the landlord. It would, therefore, be reasonable to infer that the legislature barred only those suits from the cognizance of a civil court where there was no dispute between the parties that a person cultivating land or who was in possession of land was a tenant….."

In view of the specific pleadings and as observed by the Supreme Court in Durga Singh's case (supra), civil court undoubtedly had jurisdiction to entertain and decide the suit. In the instant case, admittedly, both the parties are at loggerheads with respect to the status of the plaintiff. The plaintiff claims to be the owner in possession of the suit land. The point involved in the instant case is covered by the facts and circumstances of the case of Raja Durga Singh (supra). Accordingly, the point being devoid of any merit is rejected. Even otherwise, no interference is called for in the second appeal keeping in view the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case which are covered by the observations made in V. Ramachandra Ayyar and another Vs. Ramalingam Chettiar and another, AIR 1963 SC 302. The observations, in fact, pertain to the Regular Second appeal under section 100, C.P.C. prior to its amendment by C.P.C. (Amendment) Act, 1976. Defendant Birbal has no legs to stand up irrespective of the plea of relinquishment of tenancy land by the plaintiff in view of section 31 of the Act."

12. Above all, the question posed for consideration is no longer resintegra in view of the judgment rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Udham Singh Vs. Ram Singh and Another (2007) 15 SCC 529, wherein it was observed as under:-

"11. The observations of the High Court on the point of jurisdiction may be quoted, which read as under:

> "It may be very specifically pointed out here that so far as the present case is concerned, as per the allegations made in the plaint, the plaintiff filed a suit for possession against a trespasser on the basis of title. Such a suit primarily is triable by the civil court and in the present case the plaintiff has failed to prove his plea that he was the owner and the defendants were the trespassers. Suit, as discussed above, has to be disallowed. In the present case, relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties existed and stood established during the trial of the present suit. On the basis of the ratio of Chuhniya case (supra) the plaintiff otherwise has not been successful to make out a case for civil court's interference. ON that account also, the plaintiff has not been successful."

12. According to the own observations of the High Court on the basis of the averment made in the plaint the suit was cognizable by the civil court. The averments and prayers made in the plaint, are relevant for purpose of deciding the forum where the cause will lie. Looking to the plaint case, the High Court was itself of the opinion that the civil court was competent to take cognizance of the suit. But we feel that the High court went wrong while holding otherwise on the basis of the findings ultimately arrived at by the High Court on facts that the defendants were not the trespassers. The jurisdiction is not to be decided on the basis of the ultimate findings arrived at by the Court. We have already held earlier that the High Court erred in upsetting the concurrent findings of fact arrived at by the two courts of fact, namely, the trial court and first appellate court after detailed and elaborate discussion of the oral as well as documentary evidence on the record. The High court misread the documents and thereby upset the findings of courts below."

13. In view of the aforesaid exposition of law, the findings rendered by the learned lower Appellate Court on the point of jurisdiction cannot be sustained and are liable to be set aside. The learned Lower Appellate Court has not gone into the merits of the case and therefore, it would not be advisable for this Court to go into the factual matrix of the case, lest it defeats one's valuable right of appeal to the aggrieved party. The substantial question of law is answered accordingly and it is held that it is only the Civil Court which has the jurisdiction to entertain the instant lis.

14. Having said so, the appeal is allowed and the judgment and decree passed by the learned lower Appellate Court being not sustainable in the eyes of law is accordingly set aside, leaving the parties to bear their costs. The appeal is remanded back to the learned lower Appellate Court for decision afresh.

15. The parties through their learned counsel are directed to appeal before the learned lower Appellate Court on 3.10.2016. As the suit in this case was filed nearly 26 years back on 24.10.1990, the learned lower Appellate Court is requested to dispose of the appeal as expeditiously as possible and in no event later than 31st December, 2016.

He has admitted that though it was a National Highway but at that time, the vehicles did not cross the spot. Statement of PW-4 HHC Uttam Singh regarding the manner in which accused was apprehended, search was conducted etc. is duly corroborated by PW-6 Jagdish Chand. PW-4 Uttam Singh and PW-6 Jagdish Chand are official witnesses. Their statements inspire confidence. PW-4 Uttam Singh has tried to associate independent witness but she refused to become a witness.

14. Statements of the official witnesses are trustworthy and inspire confidence. Their lordships of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Karamjit Singh vs. State (Delhi Administration), reported in AIR 2003 SC 1311, have held that there is no principle of law that without corroboration by independent witnesses statements of official witnesses cannot be relied upon. Presumption that person acts honestly applies as much in favour of police personnel as of other persons. It has been held as follows:

> " 8. Shri Sinha, learned senior counsel for the appellant, has vehemently urged that all the witnesses of recovery examined by the prosecution are police personnel and in absence of any public witness, their testimony alone should not be held sufficient for sustaining the conviction of the appellant. In our opinion the contention raised is too broadly stated and cannot be accepted. The testimony of police personnel should be treated in the same manner as testimony of any other witness and there is no principle of law that without corroboration by independent witnesses their testimony cannot be relied upon. The presumption that a person acts honestly applies as much in favour of police personnel as of other persons and it is not a proper judicial approach to distrust and suspect them without good grounds. It will all depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case and no principle of general application can be laid down. PW11 Pratap Singh has clearly stated in the opening part of his examination-in-chief that ACP Shakti Singh asked some public witnesses to accompany them but they showed their unwillingness. PW10 Rajinder Prasad, SI has given similar statement and has deposed that despite their best efforts no one from public was willing to join the raiding party due to the fear of the terrorists. Exactly similar statement has been given by PW9 R.D. Pandey. We should not forget that the incident took place in November 1990, when terrorism was at its peak in Punjab and neighbouring areas. The ground realities cannot be lost sight of that even in normal circumstances members of public are very reluctant to accompany a police party which is going to arrest a criminal or is embarking upon search of some premises. At the time when the terrorism was at its peak, it is quite natural for members of public to have avoided getting involved in a police operation for search or arrest of a person having links with terrorists. It is noteworthy that during the course of the cross- examination of the witness the defence did not even give any suggestion as to why they were falsely deposing against the appellant. There is absolutely no material or evidence on record to show that the prosecution witnesses had any reason to falsely implicate the appellant who was none else but a colleague of theirs being a member of the same police force. Therefore, the contention raised by Shri Sinha that on account of non-examination of a public witness, the testimony of the prosecution witnesses who are police personnel, should not be relied upon has hardly any substance and cannot be accepted."

15. All the codal formalities have been completed on the spot strictly in accordance with law. There are no major contradictions in the statements of PW-4 Uttam Singh and PW-6 Jagdish Chand. PW-4 Uttam Singh has deposed that only one polythene packet was recovered from the external pocket of the jacket worn by the accused. PW-6 has deposed that personal search was conducted and two polythene packets were recovered. This is a minor contradiction. Accused was apprehended on 19.7.2004 and statements of PW-4 Uttam Singh and PW-6 Jagdish Chand were recorded on 2.8.2005. Thus, there is bound to be memory loss with the passage of time.

16. Mr. Sunil Mohan Goel, Advocate, has also argued that the NCB form is not in accordance with the law. Court has gone through the NCB form Ext. PW-6/D. There is no illegality in the same. Case property was handed over to the MHC. He has entered the same in Malkhana Register. Thereafter, case property was sent to CFSL Chandigarh and CTL Kandaghat. Reports of the laboratories are Ext. PX and PY.

17. Mr. Sunil Mohan Goel has also argued that since the IO has told the accused that he suspected that he was carrying Charas and other contraband, thus, he had prior knowledge. In other words, his submission that Section 42 of the Act was required to be complied. However, Court has also gone through the Ext. PW-4/A. Same is in conformity with the law. Accused was required to be told that the police suspected that he was carrying some contraband and he was required to be given an option to be searched either before a Magistrate or a Gazetted Officer. Thus, there is no illegality in Ext. PW-4/A.

18. Prosecution has proved beyond reasonable doubt that the contraband was recovered from the conscious and exclusive possession of the accused.

19. There is no occasion for this Court to interfere with the well reasoned judgment of the learned trial Court.

20. Accordingly, there is no merit in the present appeal and the same is dismissed, so also the pending applications, if any. Bail bonds of accused are cancelled.

(Para-15 to 19)

For the appellants: Mr. G.R. Palsra, Advocate.

For the respondents: Mr. Sanjeev Kuthiala, Advocate, for respondent No. 1.
Respondents No. 2 and 3 ex parte.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Ajay Mohan Goel, Judge :

This appeal has been filed by the appellants/defendants against the judgment and decree passed by the Court of learned District Judge, Mandi in Civil Appeal No. 36 of 2003 dated 13.01.2005 vide which, learned appellate Court while allowing the appeal filed therein by the present respondent No. 1, has set aside the judgment and decree passed by the Court of learned Senior Sub Judge, Mandi in Civil Suit No. 108/1999 dated 18.01.2003 and decreed the suit so filed by the plaintiff for mandatory injunction by directing the appellants/defendants to remove the construction raised by them on the portion of suit land shown by pink colour in map Ex. PW3/A within 3 months from the date of said judgment.

2. This appeal was admitted on 13.09.2005 on the following substantial questions of law:

"1. Whether the first appellate Court erred in ignoring the material evidence on record which if considered the first appellate Court would have reached the opposite conclusion?"

3. Brief facts necessary for the adjudication of the present case are that respondent No. 1/plaintiff (hereinafter referred to as 'the plaintiff') filed a suit for permanent prohibitory and mandatory injunction against the present appellants/defendants (hereinafter referred to as 'the defendants) on the grounds that land comprised in Khata Khatauni No. 117/715, bearing Khasra Nos. 2201, 2202, 2203 and 2525/2205, Kita 4 measuring 544-27 Sq. mtrs. situated at Mauja Magwain/366/8, Tehsil Sadar, District Mandi was jointly owned by plaintiff, defendant No. 1 as well as proforma defendants, as per Jamabandi for the year 1994-95. As per the plaintiff, the aforesaid Khasra numbers were adjacent to each other and they consisted one plot and all the owners of these Khasra numbers by mutual consent had divided this plot in four parts in the year 1990 as the plaintiff had shown his "willingness" to raise construction over the joint land. Further, as per the plaintiff, the plot allocated to him was in two parts on the spot and one portion was at higher level/elevation as compared to the other. Similar was the location of the plot of the defendants. According to the plaintiff, he started raising construction over a part of the portion of his plot which was at lower level in the year 1991 and completed one story in the same year. He left two feet vacant land from the boundary line in between plot of the plaintiff and defendants and the wall of his house. Further, as per the plaintiff, he extended eves of his slab on the ground floor on that vacant space to the extent of 1 ½ feet. Defendants also started raising construction in the year 1992 at the lower level over his plot and he suggested to the plaintiff that he would also attach the eves of his slab with the eves of their house on the boundary of two plots and both of them also agreed to keep some vacant space on the boundary of their plot and also agreed to keep said space as common path to go to both the houses and as such, on the vacant space on the boundary of both the houses, stairs were made and since then, both the parties were enjoying those stairs as common for the purpose of going to their houses. Further, as per the plaintiff, defendants with the malafide intention to use these stairs for their exclusive purpose, started raising construction of latrine on the front from where there was a bifurcation of path to both the houses since 13.08.1999 and defendants completed it within two days when the plaintiff and his family members were away from the suit premises and in this manner, defendants completely blocked the common path and he also covered the area beneath the eves of the plaintiff's house. As per the plaintiff, defendants were also using the wall of the plaintiff as common wall to that latrine. On these basis, a suit was filed by the plaintiff praying for decree of mandatory injunction as well as permanent prohibitory injunction against the defendants.

4. Defendants No. 1 and 2 in the written statement filed by them, denied the claim of the plaintiff by stating therein that the plaintiff had no enforceable cause of action to institute the suit which otherwise was time barred. According to the defendants, the factum of plaintiff having completed his construction in the year 1991 was admitted, but rest of the contentions of the plaintiff were denied. According to the said defendants, plaintiff had carried out construction in excess of his share. Defendants denied any agreement regarding the vacant space to be kept as path to go to the respective houses and stairs of plaintiff and defendants. According to defendants No. 1 and 2, they had not given any such right of common use to the plaintiff. It was denied by the defendants that there was any common wall in between constructions carried by plaintiff and defendants No. 1 and 2. Existence of a common path, stair case etc. was denied.

5. On the basis of pleadings of the parties, learned trial Court framed the following issues:

"1. Whether the plaintiff is entitled for mandatory injunction as prayed? OPP
2. Whether the plaintiff is entitled for Permanent Prohibitory Injunction as prayed? OPP
3. Whether the suit of the plaintiff is not maintainable in the present form? OPD.
4. Whether the plaintiff has no cause of action to file the present suit? OPD
5. Whether the suit of the plaintiff is barred by period of limitation? OPD

6. Relief.

6. On the basis of evidence adduced by the respective parties in support of their respective claims, the following findings were returned by learned trial Court on the issues so framed:

"Issue No. 1:	No.
Issue No. 2:	No.
Issue No. 3:	No.
Issue No. 4:	No.
Issue No. 5:	No.
Relief:	Suit dismissed as per operative part of judgment."

7. Accordingly, vide judgment and decree dated 18.01.2003, learned trial Court dismissed the suit of the plaintiff.

8. Feeling aggrieved by dismissal of his suit, plaintiff filed an appeal. Learned appellate Court vide judgment and decree dated 13.01.2005 accepted the said appeal and decreed the suit of the plaintiff for mandatory injunction by directing the defendants to remove the construction raised by them on the portion of the suit land shown by pink colour in map Ex. PW3/A. Judgment so passed by learned first appellate Court has been challenged by way of present appeal.

9. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and have also gone through the records of the case as well as the judgments passed by both the learned Courts below.

10. A perusal of the judgment passed by learned trial Court demonstrates that it was held by learned trial Court that plaintiff did not produce any site plan to demonstrate that both plaintiff and defendants had kept vacant space towards each others plots as agreed between them and had also connected their respective slabs and had agreed to use three feet space between two houses as common path and had also constructed stairs, though it was admitted by the plaintiff that he had got plan of his house sanctioned which was lying with him. Learned trial Court further held that there was no written agreement/partition placed on record regarding the factum of leaving 1 ½ feet space by both the parties. It was further held by learned trial Court that no demarcation or measurement of the area of the house of the plaintiff and defendants was placed on record and on these basis, it was difficult to believe the version of the parties with regard to leaving of vacant space and construction of common stairs by both the parties. It was further held by learned trial Court that the plaintiff could have had produced the plan of the house of the defendants in case he had made any deviation or had encroached upon more area than that was sanctioned by the Municipal Committee. It was further held by learned trial Court that it was admitted case of both the parties that the suit land was still joint and some portion of the same was vacant which was also joint and was liable to adjusted at the time of final partition. On these basis, it was held by learned trial Court that it could not be said that the plaintiff was in exclusive possession of any portion of the suit land and he was entitled to any relief of mandatory or prohibitory injunction until the suit land was partitioned in accordance with law.

11. Learned appellate Court while reversing the said findings held that it was admitted case of the parties that the entire suit land was joint and a part of it was allotted to the plaintiff in the year 1990 for raising construction of his house. It was further held by learned appellate Court that it had come in the statement of the plaintiff that he constructed his house in the year 1990 and the defendants constructed their house in the year 1992 and both kept one and half feet vacant land in between their houses to be used as common path. It was further held by learned appellate Court that according to plaintiff while he was away, defendants No. 1 and 2 constructed a latrine on the common path and blocked the same in the year 1999 and for this purpose, defendants also used one of the walls of the house of the plaintiff. It was further held by learned appellate Court that the path in dispute and the stairs in dispute were on the portion which was under the joint possession of the plaintiff and the defendants and on these basis, learned appellate Court held that it can further be presumed that the stairs might have been constructed jointly by the parties and by construction of latrine and bath room by the defendants, the user of the stairs has been denied by the plaintiff. While arriving at these conclusions, learned appellate Court relied upon the report of the Local Commissioner, in which as per learned appellate Court it was mentioned that both latrine on the ground floor and bath room on the first floor had been constructed by the defendants under the projections and slab of the house of the plaintiff also. It was further held by the learned appellate Court that the contention of the learned counsel for the respondents therein (i.e. the present appellants) to the effect that the suit land had not been partitioned between the parties by metes and bounds and hence plaintiff cannot claim exclusive possession of the stairs was true, but for both the parties, i.e. plaintiff and the defendants. On these basis, it was held by learned appellate Court that even the defendants cannot claim exclusive ownership and possession of the stairs. It was further held by learned appellate Court that the factum of obstruction being caused by the defendants despite objection of the plaintiff was evident from the statement of the plaintiff and that of PW-2 Netar Singh, who was related both to the plaintiff and the defendants. On these basis, it was held by learned appellate Court that defendants had raised construction of their latrine and bath room despite objection of the plaintiff and by their this act, the right of the plaintiff to use the property had been adversely affected. Accordingly, while allowing the appeal, learned appellate Court decreed the suit of the plaintiff for mandatory injunction directing the defendants to remove the construction raised by them in the portion of the suit land shown by pink colour in map Ex. PW3/A.

12. In the present case, it is a matter of record that during the pendency of the appeal before the first appellate Court, a Local Commissioner was appointed who submitted his report dated 11.01.2005, which has been taken into consideration by learned appellate Court while deciding the appeal. As per records, no objection was filed to the said report of Local Commissioner by either of the parties. The relevant part of the report of the Local Commissioner is quoted hereinbelow:

> "i) Whether by construction of the latrine in the ground floor and bath room, in the first floor, defendant Bhupinder has covered the projection of the house of the appellant Devinder?
>
> On this respect, it is submitted that on the spot Bhupinder Singh respondent has constructed a Latrine on the ground floor and bath room in the 1st floor and has constructed half of the abovesaid latrine under the projected slab (Chhaja) of Devinder appellant which is about 16 Inch in Breadth and 3 feet in length and has also constructed a bath room in the first floor in the like manner.
>
> ii) Whether the wall of the house of Devinder has also been included by the defendant in his latrine and bath room?
>
> With respect to this point, it is submitted that no wall relating to the house of Devinder has been included by the defendant Bhupinder.
>
> iii) Whether both the parties are having projection over the stairs in dispute?
> With respect point No. 3, it is submitted that Devinder appellant has 19 Inch and defendant Bhupinder has 21 Inch projection over the stairs in dispute."

13. Relying upon the report of the said Local Commissioner, it was held by the learned appellate Court that both the plaintiff and defendants were having projections of their houses towards the alleged common path and projection of the house of the plaintiff measures 19 inches and that of the defendants measures 21 inches over the stairs in dispute. It was further held by the learned appellate Court that it was also mentioned in the report that both latrine on the ground floor and bath room on the first floor had been constructed by the defendants upon the projections and slab of the house of the plaintiff also. On these basis, it was concluded by learned appellate Court that the projection was constructed to cover the area of the house and the area of the house can be taken to the extent to which the projection goes. Thereafter, learned appellate Court went on to hold that the contention of learned counsel for the respondents therein, i.e. the present appellants to the effect that house of the plaintiff cannot be considered up to the level to which the projection of his house goes and the area in between the house of the plaintiff and the house of the defendants was in possession of the defendants cannot be accepted because "the area under the house is to be presumed of the person who owns the house." On these basis, it was held by learned appellate Court that it can safely be said that path in dispute and the stairs in dispute were on the portion which was under the joint possession of the plaintiff and the defendants and appellate Court further went on to hold that "if it is so, it can further be presumed that the stairs might have been constructed jointly by the parties and by construction of latrine and bath room by the defendants the user of the stairs has been denied to the plaintiff."

14. Before the learned trial Court, there were specific issues framed; (i) whether the plaintiff is entitled for mandatory injunction as prayed?; and further (ii) whether the plaintiff was entitled for permanent prohibitory injunction?. After appreciating the evidence which was placed on record both by the plaintiff and the defendants, it was held by learned trial Court that there was neither any written family partition nor any agreement adduced on record by the plaintiff regarding the parties having agreed to keep vacant space of 1 ½ feet towards the plots of each other. It was further held by learned trial Court that there was no demarcation or measurement of the area of the house of the plaintiff and the defendants and, therefore, it was difficult to believe the version of the parties with regard to leaving of vacant space and construction of common stairs by both the parties. Learned trial Court further held that plaintiff did not produce any site plan, though it was the case of the plaintiff that he had got the plan of his house sanctioned and this was available with him. It was further held by learned trial Court that there was no evidence regarding the total area and the area which in fact had come in the respective share of the parties and it was an admitted fact of both the parties that the suit land was still joint and some portion of the land which was vacant was also joint and was liable to be adjusted at the time of final partition. On these basis, it was held by learned trial Court that it cannot be said that the plaintiff was in exclusive possession of any portion of the suit land and he was not entitled for the relief of mandatory and prohibitory injunction till the suit was partitioned. These findings given by learned trial Court were assailed in the appeal. Learned appellate Court rather than adjudicating the appeal by discussing the findings arrived at by learned trial Court and thereafter adjudicating on the basis of the contentions urged by both the parties as to whether the findings so arrived at by learned trial Court were sustainable or not went on to set aside the judgment and decree passed by learned trial Court by arriving at conclusions based on assumptions and presumptions. This is evident from the findings returned in the judgment passed by learned appellate Court wherein after coming to the conclusion that path in dispute and the stairs in dispute were on the portion which was under the joint possession of the plaintiff and the defendants, it was further held by learned appellate Court that it can be presumed that the stairs might have been constructed jointly by the parties and by construction of latrine and bath room by the defendants, the user of the stairs has been denied to the plaintiff.

15. I am afraid that the findings so arrived at by learned appellate Court are not sustainable. The findings of fact by a Court of law cannot be based on presumptions. On the basis of material adduced on record by both the parties, the Court has to give a definite finding.

16. Learned trial Court after appreciating material on record held that the plaintiff failed to prove that he was in exclusive possession of any portion of the suit land and on these basis, learned trial Court declined the relief of mandatory and prohibitory injunction in favour of the plaintiff. This Court is not making any observation as to whether the finding so returned by learned trial Court was correct or not. However, in my considered view, in case the finding arrived at by learned trial Court was to be set aside or distinguished by learned appellate Court, then it was obvious that after taking into consideration the reasonings behind the findings so arrived at by learned trial Court, learned appellate Court should have had returned its independent findings which were to be arrived at on the basis of material on record and not on the basis of conjectures, surmises or presumptions. However, this has not been done by the learned appellate Court in the judgment under challenge.

17. It is well settled law that the first appellate Court is the final Court of fact ordinarily and therefore a litigant is entitled to a full, fair and independent consideration of the evidence at the appellate stage and anything less than this is unjust to him. The appellate Court has jurisdiction to reverse or affirm the findings of the trial Court and first appeal is a valuable right of the parties and unless restricted by law, the whole case is therein open for rehearing both on question of fact and law. It is settled law that while reversing a finding of fact, the appellate Court must come into close quarters with the reasoning assigned by the trial Court and then assign its own reasons for arriving at a different finding. This would satisfy the Court hearing a further appeal that the first appellate court had discharged the duty expected of it. The judgment of the appellate Court must, therefore, reflect its conscious application of mind and record findings supported by reasons on all the issues involved in the case alongwith the contentions put forth and pressed by the parties for decision by the appellate Court.

18. In view of the above salutary principles, I am of the considered view that the learned appellate Court has failed to discharge the obligation placed on it as first appellate Court by deciding the appeal on presumptions rather than returning its findings by coming close quarters with the reasoning assigned by the learned trial Court and thereafter assigning its own reasons for arriving at a different finding. Substantial question of law is answered accordingly.

19. In view of the discussion held above, the appeal is allowed and judgment and decree dated 13.01.2005 passed by the Court of learned District Judge, Mandi in Civil Appeal No. 36 of 2003 are set aside. The case is remanded back to learned appellate Court with a direction to decide the appeal afresh on merits. Parties through their counsel are directed to put in appearance before the learned appellate Court on 17.10.2016. Keeping in view the fact that case pertains to the year 1999, this Court hopes and trusts that learned appellate Court shall adjudicate upon the appeal as expeditiously as possible. No order as to costs. Miscellaneous application(s), if any, also stands disposed of. Registry is directed to return back the records of the case to learned appellate Court forthwith.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Justice Rajiv Sharma, J.

This regular second appeal is directed against the judgment and decree of the learned District Judge, Kullu, H.P., dated 19.12.2003, passed in Civil Appeal No. 53/2002.

2. "Key facts" necessary for the adjudication of this regular second appeal are that the respondents-plaintiffs (hereinafter referred to as the plaintiffs), have instituted a suit for permanent prohibitory injunction against the appellants-defendants (hereinafter referred to as the defendants). According to the averments made in the plaint, the land comprised in Khata Khatauni No. 505 min/808, Kh. No. 1671, measuring 1-2-0 bighas situated in Phati Vashishat, Kothi Jagatsukh was recorded in the ownership of defendants No. 7 to 9, 13 and one deceased Bir Singh whose legal representatives are defendants No. 10 to 12 but in the possession of deceased Dodu, the father of plaintiffs who was inducted as tenant at will on paying rent and now vide mutation No. 3466, the tenancy rights of deceased Dodu were inherited by plaintiffs in equal shares. The land comprised in khata/khatauni No. 505 min/807 min, Kh. No. 1599 and 1660, measuring 2-9-0 bighas situated in Phati Vashishat, Kothi Jagatsukh was recorded in the name of deceased Ram Chand whose legal representatives are defendants No. 2 to 6 and in this land also deceased Dodu was inducted as tenant at will and now vide mutation No. 3466, tenancy rights were inherited by the plaintiffs. Dodu expired in the year 1971 and after his death the tenancy rights were inherited by plaintiffs and they started payment of rent to the owners and subsequently by operation of Section 104 of the H.P. Tenancy and Land Reforms Act, 1972, the plaintiffs became owner of the suit land on appointed day. The defendants have filed applications before the Tehsildar (Settlement) Kullu for the correction of revenue entries in which they have claimed that suit land was purchased by them and Dodu during his life time had surrendered/relinquished his tenancy rights. It was alleged that in the applications it was mentioned that plaintiffs are not in possession of suit land which fact was incorrect. The plaintiffs and their father have raised orchard over the suit land, out of which the plants on the land 0-9-0 bighas in Kh. No. 1668 are small plants and remaining portion of the land comprises fruit bearing plants. On the portion of land containing Kh. No. 5599, two houses have been constructed by deceased Dodu, one of which is 2 ½ storyed and other is 1 ½ storyed.

3. The suit was contested by the defendants. According to the defendants, Dodu was never inducted as tenant. The mutation No. 3466 was wrongly attested and sanctioned as Dodu himself was not a tenant in possession of the suit land. The mutation does not confer any title, right or interest to the plaintiffs. It was also denied that plaintiffs have become owners of the suit land by operation of Section 104 of the H.P. Tenancy and Land Reforms Act. The filing of three applications before the Assistant Collector is admitted. It is further averred that earlier Dodu was tenant in possession of the suit land under the previous owner but he had failed to pay rent to the owners and had fallen in huge arrears of rent. He was not in a position to cultivate the suit land and to pay the arrears of rent and as such he offered to surrender the possession of the suit land and relinquish the tenancy in favour of previous owner. The offer was accepted by the owners and the suit land was handed over to them in the year 1959. There was no relationship of landlord or tenant. Dina Ram, Govind and Chetu who were owners-in-possession of land measuring 0-19-0 bighas contained in Kh. Nos. 1668 and 1970 through a registered sale deed dated 3.4.1967 sold the land in favour of defendant No.1 and possession of the land was also delivered to defendant No. 1. Sh. Primu and Tikam Ram being owners-in-possession of land measuring 3-14-0 bighas contained in Kh. Nos. 1671, 1599 and 1600 through a registered sale deed dated 21.5.1962 sold the land in favour of Budh Ram and Ram Chand the predecessor in interest of defendants No. 2 to 13 and the actual and physical possession of the same was also delivered to Budh Ram and Ram Chand. Sh. Ram Chand, predecessor-in-interest of defendants No. 2 to 6 has constructed two houses i.e. single storyed house measuring 37' x 16' and two storyed house measuring 18' x 16 ½' on Kh. Nos. 1599 and 1600.

4. Replication was filed and the learned Sub Judge Ist Class, Manali framed the issues on 21.11.2001 and the suit was dismissed on 13.8.2002. The plaintiffs, feeling aggrieved, preferred an appeal before the learned District Judge, Kullu. He allowed the same on 19.12.2003. Hence, this regular second appeal.

5. The regular second appeal was admitted on 15.10.2004 on the following substantial questions of law:

> "1. Whether the learned first appellate Court has misread and misconstrued the oral and documentary evidence on record, especially the statements of PW-1, DW-1 and DW-2, DWs 5 to 7, Ext. DW-1/A, Ex. DW-1/C, Ex. DW-2/A, Ex. DW-3/A and Ex. DW-5/A and the judgment and decree, as such by the learned first appellate court is based upon mis-appreciation of facts and law?
> 2. Whether without effecting any enquiry as envisaged under the H.P. Tenancy and Land Reforms Act and rules, the officer concerned can grant and sanction proprietary rights beyond the provisions of the Act and Rules framed there under and without making any enquiry and whether such grant creates any title in favour of the tenant, especially when mutation, in itself does not create any title?"

6. Mr. Sanjeev Kuthiala, Advocate, appearing on behalf of the appellants, on the basis of the substantial questions of law framed, has vehemently argued that the first appellate Court has misread and misconstrued the oral and documentary evidence on record, especially the statements of PW-1, DW-1 and DW-2, DWs 5 to 7, Ext. DW-1/A, Ex. DW-1/C, Ex. DW-2/A, Ex. DW-3/A and Ex. DW-5/A. He also contended that the conferment of proprietary rights upon the plaintiffs was without making any enquiry. On the other hand, Mr. Bhupinder Gupta, Sr. Advocate has supported the judgment and decree dated 19.12.2003 passed by the learned first appellate Court.

7. Since both the substantial questions of law are inter-connected, hence are taken up together for determination to avoid repetition of discussion of evidence.

8. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and have also gone through the judgments and records of the case carefully.

9. One of the plaintiffs, namely, Sidhu Ram has appeared as PW-1. He deposed that his father Dodu Ram was tenant since 1953. His father has planted apple orchard. He has constructed two houses, one is 1 ½ storyed and other is 2 ½ storyed. His father expired in the year 1971. The land was inherited by all the brothers. They used to pay rent to the landlords till 1975 and they became owners after the enforcement of Section 104 of the H.P. Tenancy and Land Reforms Act and thereafter they have stopped paying the rent. The defendants have started interfering in their possession.

10. DW-1 Kanshi Ram testified that he was working as Niab Tehsildar in Settlement at Manali in the year 1992. He has visited the spot and recorded the statements of the parties. In his cross-examination, he deposed that he has visited the spot at the instance of Tehsildar. He has admitted categorically that he has given the report on the basis of oral statements. He has also admitted that he has not called any member of the Panchayat on the spot, including Lambardar or Chowkidar. He did not remember the details of the adjoining fields. He has also admitted that he has not summoned any other witness and that defendants have not handed over any revenue papers to him. He also admitted that in the jamabandi for the year 1992-93, Dodu Ram was shown as tenant and Dila Ram and Om Parkash Shashni were landlords. He also admitted that tenancy was inherited by the plaintiffs from Dodu Ram and mutation was also attested in their favour. He admitted that during settlement, the Patwari also prepares khasra girdawri. He also admitted that at the time of girdawri, general public, Chowkidar etc. are present. The general public, Lambardar and Chowkidar give the details of the sown crops in the fields. He also admitted that at that time if there is any mistake in the revenue entry, the same is noted by the Patwari with pencil. The report is confirmed by the Kanungo. Thereafter, it is confirmed by the Tehsildar. He also reiterated that in the year 1975, in revenue papers, the plaintiffs have been shown as tenants.

11. DW-3 Om Parkash Shashni deposed that Dodu Ram may be cultivating the land of the landlords but since he was not in a position to pay the rent he told the landlords that he could not pay the rent and thereafter he relinquished the tenancy in their favour and possession was handed over to the landlords in the year 1959. Thereafter, his father Ram Chand and Budh Ram have purchased 3-0-11 bighas of land in the year 1962. He proved Ext. DW-3/A. The original sale deed was not produced. In his cross-examination, he admitted that he did not know properly about the sale of the land. He also admitted that in 1959, he did not know Dodu Ram. He also admitted that he was born in the year 1954. He also admitted that no conversation has taken place about giving of the possession of the land. Volunteered that it was told to him by his father. It was in the year 1975 that he was told about the surrendering of the possession of the land. His father has never told him about any writing to this effect. No ejectment proceedings were ever initiated against Dodu Ram.

12. DW-5 Dile Ram testified that he has planted trees after purchasing the land. He has submitted an application for correction of revenue entries which was pending before the Tehsildar.

13. DW-6 Dole Ram testified that Dile Ram has planted Cherry trees, Japani fruit plants on the land, including apples. Om Parkash has constructed house on the suit land.

14. DW-7 Tashi Ram testified that on the suit land the possession is with Om Parkash and Lala Budh Ram.

15. Mr. Sanjeev Kuthiala, Advocate has vehemently argued that there was no landlord-tenant relationship between Dodu predecessor-in-interest of plaintiffs and the defendants. However, the case set up by the defendants themselves is that Dodu Ram predecessor-in-interest of plaintiffs has relinquished the tenancy since he was in arrears of rent. The defendants have not led any tangible evidence to prove that in what manner Dodu Ram has relinquished the tenancy. According to the plaintiffs, Dodu Ram was inducted as tenant in the year 1959. According to Section 8 of the Punjab Security of Land Tenures Act, 1953, there would be continuity of tenancy and would not terminate with the death of tenant. The mutation was also attested in favour of the plaintiffs. The case of the defendants is that they have purchased the land in the year 1962. The tenancy of Dodu Ram was not effected even if the sale has taken place. Dodu Ram has died in the year 1971. The revenue entries are in favour of Dodu as tenant. The plaintiffs have thus acquired proprietary rights after coming into force of the H.P. Tenancy and Land Reforms Act, 1972.

16. PW-1 Sidhu Ram in his statement has deposed that they were paying rent to the landlords but after the conferment of proprietary rights upon them, they stopped paying the rent to the landlords. The revenue entries vide Ext. P-1 to P-14 from the year 1952-53 to 1991-92 have remained in favour of Dodu Ram. Dodu Ram was shown in possession of the suit land on payment of rent. The entries were changed in favour of defendants abruptly without there being any order of the competent authority.

17. The defendants have also filed an application under Order 41 Rule 27 CPC being CMP No. 19831/2014. The defendants have not given the date when they came into possession of the documents placed along with the application. Moreover, defendants have not shown that despite due diligence these documents could not be traced earlier. The purpose of filing application is not to fill up the lacunae. The application has been filed under Order 41 Rule 27 CPC at a very belated stage. It cannot be believed that documents remained in the brief of local counsel and could not be produced before the lower appellate Court. Thus, the application merits dismissal.

18. Mr. Sanjeev Kuthiala, Advocate has relied upon the decisions in the cases of Sohawa Singh vs. Kesar Singh and others, reported in AIR 1932 Lahore 586, Bogha Singh alias Kishan Singh and anr. vs. Harnarain Singh and ors., reported in 1959 PLJ 136 and Jit Singh and others vs. Chanan Singh and anr., reported in 1966 PLJ 246. These judgments are not applicable in the present case since they pertain to Punjab Tenancy Act, 1887 and the present lis is covered under the Punjab Security of Land Tenures Act, 1953.

19. It was for the revenue authorities to carry out necessary corrections after the death of Dodu Ram in the year 1971. It is reiterated that defendants have failed to lead any evidence that Dodu Ram had relinquished or surrendered his tenancy rights over the suit land in the year 1959. The tenancy has devolved upon the plaintiffs, being male lineal descendants. The landlord-tenant relationship has never come to an end in the year 1959. The learned first appellate Court has correctly appreciated the oral as well as documentary evidence. The proprietary rights have been conferred upon the plaintiffs after the death of their father under Section 104 of the H.P. Tenancy and Land Reforms Act, 1972, automatically. The substantial questions of law are answered accordingly.

20. Consequently, there is no merit in this appeal and the same is dismissed, so also the pending application(s), if any.

The following order of the Court was delivered:

P.S.Rana, Judge.

Present petition is filed under Section 482 code of criminal procedure 1973 read with Article 227 of Constitution of India for quashing order dated 7.3.2015 passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge II Solan HP in appeal No. 5-ASJ-II/10 of 2014 title Sh Manish Ghai Vs. Smt. Nancy Ghai.

BRIEF FACTS OF THE CASE:

2. Smt. Nancy Ghai wife of Sh Manish Ghai filed application before protection officer under Protection of woman from domestic violence act 2005 alleging therein that she was married with Sh Manish Ghai on dated 8.7.2006 in Delhi. Applicant Smt. Nancy Ghai alleged that after marriage she had gone to Nahan in her matrimonial house. It is alleged by Smt.Nancy Ghai that her father-in-law Sh Surinder Mohan Ghai and her mother-in-law Smt. Vidya Ghai demanded dowry from her in her matrimonial house in the shape of fixed deposit, car, gold and TV. Smt. Nancy Ghai further alleged that her father-in-law is characterless person and he harassed her physically and threatened her that he would kill her and spoil her life. Smt. Nancy Ghai further alleged that her husband also harassed her mentally and physically and also tried to kill her in the month of February 2012. Smt. Nancy Ghai further alleged that she was also beaten several times. Smt. Nancy Ghai further alleged that she has two daughters. She has further alleged that Rhythm Ghai is five years old and younger daughter Rijul Ghai is 1 ½ years old. Smt. Nancy Ghai further alleged that her father-in-law used to tell that he would marriage Manish Ghai again because Smt. Nancy Ghai did not give birth to a male child. Protection officer forwarded the application of Smt. Nancy Ghai to Judicial Magistrate Kasauli. On dated 26.4.2012 learned Judicial Magistrate Kasauli recorded the statement of Smt. Nancy Ghai and Sh Manish Ghai and passed consent order to the effect that Sh Manish Ghai would pay sum of Rs.3000/- (Three thousand) per month i.e. Rs.1500/- (One thousand five hundred) per month to each of children as monthly allowance and would deposit the same in the account of Smt. Nancy Ghai. Learned Judicial Magistrate also passed consent order on dated 26.4.2012 that Sh Manish Ghai would meet the children but would not take children out of Kasauli and would not take children to their grand father. Learned Judicial Magistrate disposed of application filed under Protection of women from domestic violence act 2005 accordingly with the consent of Sh Manish Ghai and Smt. Nancy Ghai. Thereafter Sh Manish Ghai filed application under Section 25 of Protection of women from domestic violence act 2005 for alteration of consent order dated 26.4.2012 on the ground that Smt. Nancy Ghai has shifted to Delhi along with her two minor daughters and Sh Manish Ghai is teacher in Lawrence school Kasauli. Sh Manish Ghai sought permission to bring minor children from Delhi to Kasauli. Learned Judicial Magistrate keeping in view the entire facts and circumstances of case, keeping in view the tender age of minor children and keeping in view pending litigation between Sh Manish Ghai and Smt. Nancy Ghai ordered that Sh Manish Ghai would not take minor children from Delhi to Kasauli in the absence of their mother. Learned Judicial Magistrate further directed that Sh Manish Ghai could meet minor children at Delhi and could also take them for outing during their holidays from 9 AM to 5 PM and thereafter he would hand over the safe custody of minor children to their mother at 5 PM. Learned Judicial Magistrate further ordered that Smt. Nancy Ghai can take children to Kasauli if she so desires during their holidays and could accompany them till they resides with Sh Mansih Ghai at Kasauli. Thereafter Sh Manish Ghai filed appeal under section 29 of Protection of women from domestic violence act 2005 against order dated 13.5.2014 passed by learned Judicial Magistrate. Again before learned Additional Sessions Judge Solan compromise order was passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge Solan in appeal No. 5-ASJ-II/10 of 2014 title Sh Mansih Ghai Vs. Smt. Nancy Ghai as per statement of Sh Manish Ghai and Smt. Nancy Ghai placed on record. Learned Additional Sessions Judge Solan passed consent order on dated 7.3.2015 in appeal to the effect that Sh

Manish Ghai would pay maintenance allowance to the tune of Rs.9000/- (Nine thousand) per month to each of two minor daughters (Total maintenance allowance Rs.18000/-). Learned Additional Sessions Judge also passed consent order to the effect that during school vacation Sh Manish Ghai would be at liberty to take minor daughters from Delhi to Lawrence school Sanawar Kasauli HP where Sh Manish Ghai is presently posted. Learned Additional Sessions Judge further directed by way of consent order that it would be the duty of Sh Manish Ghai to hand over the children in safe custody to Smt. Nancy Ghai at her residence at Delhi after the expiry of vacation period.

3. Court heard learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner and learned Advocate appearing on behalf of non-petitioner and also perused entire record carefully.

4. Following points arise for determination in present petition:

1. Whether petition filed under Section 482 Cr.PC read with Article 227 of Constitution of India is liable to be accepted as mentioned in memorandum of grounds of petition?

2. Final order.

Findings upon point No.1 with reasons.

5. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that maintenance allowance granted to minor daughters to the tune of Rs.18000/- (Eighteen thousand) by way of consent order be reduced to Rs.9000/- (Nine thousand) per month i.e. Rs.4500/- per month per minor daughter is rejected being devoid of any force for reasons hereinafter mentioned. It is proved on record that learned Additional Sessions Judge granted maintenance allowance to minor daughters as per voluntary consent of Sh Manish Ghai. Sh Manish Ghai has given voluntary written statement signed by him and his Advocate to the effect that he would pay Rs.18000/- (Eighteen thousand) to minor daughters. Sh Manish Ghai has signed his statement in the presence of his Advocate on dated 7.3.2015 voluntarily without any coercion and without any undue influence. The contents of statement given by Mansih Ghai were read over and explained to him and after admitting the contents of statement as correct Sh Manish Ghai has signed statement dated 7.3.2015. It is held that at this stage of case Sh Manish Ghai cannot be allowed to resile from compromise dated 7.3.2015. It is held that compromise dated 7.3.2015 is binding upon parties and parties cannot be allowed to escape from consequences of compromise in order to maintain majesty of law. Even Sh Manish Ghai did not pay any maintenance allowance to Smt. Nancy Ghai but only pay maintenance allowance to his minor daughters who are school going children. It is the duty of Court to protect the interest of minors. Court is guardian of minor. Monetary relief was granted by learned Additional Sessions Judge Solan to minors only as per voluntary consent of Sh Manish Ghai. Sh Manish Ghai is the father of minor daughters and he is under legal obligation to maintain his minor daughters. Keeping in view the interest of minor daughters it is not expedient in the ends of justice to reduce maintenance allowance granted to minor daughters with the consent of Sh Manish Ghai when Sh Manish Ghai signed statement dated 7.3.2015 voluntarily he was of sound state of mind. The statement of Sh Manish Ghai was recorded by learned Additional Sessions Judge dated 7.3.2015 in the presence of his Advocate namely Sh Vishal Bindra and Sh Vishal Bindra Advocate has also signed along with Sh Manish Ghai when statement of Sh Manish Ghai was recorded on dated 7.3.2015 by learned Additional Sessions Judge II Solan H.P.

6. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that consent order of learned Additional Sessions Judge dated 7.3.2015 be set aside and case be remitted back to learned Additional Sessions Judge Solan for disposal afresh in accordance with law upon merits is also rejected being devoid of any force for reasons hereinafter mentioned. Learned Additional Sessions Judge has passed consent order dated 7.3.2015 as per statement of Sh Manish Ghai and Smt. Nancy Ghai recorded on 7.3.2015 voluntarily. As per section 28 of Protection of women from domestic violence act 2005 proceedings relating to sections 12,18,19, 20, 21,22, 23 and 31 would be governed by the provision of code of criminal procedure 1973. It is held that Protection of women from domestic violence act 2005 is a special act and it empowers the Magistrate to pass protection order in favour of aggrieved person. In view of above stated facts it is not expedient in the ends of justice to interfere in the consent order passed by learned Additional Sessions Solan dated 7.3.2015 in favour of minor daughters and keeping in view price index and welfare of minor daughters.

7. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that non-petitioner has flouted terms and conditions of consent order intentionally and on this ground petition be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for reasons hereinafter mentioned. It is held that petitioner can file execution petition in accordance with law to implement terms and conditions of consent order passed by Court. Point No.1 is answered in negative.

Point No.2 (Final order).

8. In view of findings on point No.1 petition is dismissed. File of learned Trial Court and learned Appellate Court along with certify copy of order be sent back forthwith. Certify copy of order be sent to both parties free of cost as mentioned under section 24 of Protection of women from domestic violence act 2005. Certify copy of order will also be sent to police officer incharge of police station in the jurisdiction of which the Magistrate has been approached. Certify copy of order will also be sent to protection officer as required under Section 24 of Protection of women from domestic violence act 2005 forthwith for compliance. Petition is disposed of. All pending application(s) if any also disposed of.

For the Respondent:	Mr. Ashwani K. Sharma, Sr. Advocate with Mr.Nishant Thakur, Advocate, for the respondent. Mr. Arjun K. Lall, Amicus Curiae.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Sanjay Karol, J.

Assailing the judgment dated 03.01.2012, passed by the Additional Sessions Judge (II), Kangra at Dharamshala, H.P., in RBT S.C. No.69-K/VII/10/2009 / S.T. No.34/11, titled as State Versus Rahul Kumar, whereby accused stands acquitted, State has filed the present appeal under the provisions of Section 378 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973.

2. In connection with FIR No.59/08, dated 23.12.2008 (Ex.PW.25/A) registered at Police Station, Nagrota Bagwan, District Kangra, H.P., accused was charged to face trial for having committed offences punishable under the provisions of Sections 341, 353, 332, 333 and 302 of the Indian Penal Code. Finding the prosecution case not to have established its case, through the testimonies of 26 prosecution witnesses, trial Court has acquitted the accused on all counts.

3. We have heard learned counsel for the parties, as also perused the record. Having done so, we are of the considered view that no case for interference is made out at all. We find that the judgment rendered by the trial Court is based on complete, correct and proper appreciation of evidence (documentary and ocular) so placed on record. There is neither any illegality/infirmity nor any perversity with the same, resulting into miscarriage of justice.

4. It is a settled principle of law that acquittal leads to presumption of innocence in favour of an accused. To dislodge the same, onus heavily lies upon the prosecution. Having considered the material on record, we are of the considered view that prosecution has failed to establish the essential ingredients so as to constitute the charged offence.

5. In Prandas v. The State, AIR 1954 SC 36, Constitution Bench of the apex Court, has held as under:

> "(6) It must be observed at the very outset that we cannot support the view which has been expressed in several cases that the High Court has no power under S. 417, Criminal P.c., to reverse a judgment of acquittal, unless the judgment is perverse or the subordinate Court has in some way or other misdirected itself so as to produce a miscarriage of justice. In our opinion, the true position in regard to the jurisdiction of the High Court under S. 417, Criminal P.c. in an appeal from an order of acquittal has been stated in – 'Sheo Swarup v. Emperor', AIR 1934 PC 227 (2) at pp.229, 230 (A), in these words:
> > "Sections 417, 418 and 423 of the Code give to the High Court full power to review at large the evidence upon which the order of acquittal was founded, and to reach the conclusion that upon that evidence the order of acquittal should be reversed. No limitation should be placed upon that power, unless it be found expressly stated in the Code. But in exercising the power conferred by the Code and before reaching its conclusions upon fact, the High Court should and will always give proper weight and consideration to such matters as (1) the views of the trial Judge as to the credibility of the witnesses, (2) the presumption of innocence in favour of the accused, a presumption certainly not weakened by the fact that he has been acquitted at his trial, (3) the right of the accused to the benefit of any doubt, and (4) the slowness of an appellate Court in disturbing a finding of fact arrived at by a Judge who had the advantage of seeing the witnesses. To state this, however, is only to say that the High Court in its conduct of the appeal should and will act in accordance with rules and principles well known and recognized in the administration of justice." "

6. In the instant case, identity of the deceased is not in dispute. His name is Ram Krishan and was employed as an Assistant Line Man with H.P. State Electricity Board, Nagrota Bagwan, having duty hours from 2.00 PM to 10.00 PM. Through the testimonies of Satinder Pal (PW.9), Prakash Chand (PW.10), Desh Raj (PW.11) and Jyoti Prakash (PW.13), it stands proven on record that on 22.12.2008, at about 9.30 PM deceased was asked to attend a complaint pertaining to a transformer at a place known as Gohrav. From the testimonies of these witnesses, it is evidently clear that thereafter deceased did not report to the office.

7. Further, it is the case of prosecution that on the said date accused Rahul Kumar and the deceased consumed liquor in the shop of Kishan Kumar (PW.12), where quarrel took place between the two. Accused telephonically called up Police Station, Nagrota Bagwan, informing Constable Sudershan Kumar (PW.21) about such fact. Accused had requested the police for help, which fact was so disclosed by Constable Sudershan to ASI Manohar Lal (PW.23). After some time, accused again called up Sudershan, but the phone came to be disconnected. Immediately Sudershan brought the matter to the notice of SHO SI Balbir (PW.25). Soon thereafter, accused walked into the Police Station and in person, informed the police about the quarrel. At that time, deceased Ram Krishan, who was bleeding from the cheek was also with him. Police wanted to get the deceased medically examined, but since he was drunk, on his request, no action was taken and the accused left with the deceased, assuring that he would be dropped home. On 23.12.2008, at 3.30 AM, deceased came to be admitted at hospital, Nagrota Bagwan, which fact was brought to the notice of Balbir (PW.25), who immediately deputed Manohar Lal (PW.23) and Ram Swaroop (not examined) to visit the hospital. In the hospital, deceased got recorded his statement (Ex.PW.17/A), which led to the registration of the case against the accused. Investigation further revealed that on 22.12.2008, at about 8.30 PM, deceased informed Pawan Kumar (PW.5) that he had been beaten up by the accused, which fact latter brought to the notice of Hari Krishan (PW.6), brother of the deceased. Thereafter both Pawan Kumar and Hari Krishan went to search the deceased. In the meanwhile, Banwari Lal (PW.18), son of the deceased and an acquaintance Ashwani Kumar (PW.19) also reached the spot. Hari Krishan and Banwari Lal brought the deceased home and Hari Krishan went to drop Pawan Kumar. After some time, Banwari Lal telephonically informed Hari Krishan that deceased wanted to disclose some information. Hari Krishan immediately met the deceased, who informed that he had been beaten up by the accused. Also finding his condition to be precarious, Hari Krishan took the deceased to the CHC Nagrota. Since deceased was not improving he was referred to the State Hospital, Tanda, wherefrom, he was taken to PGI Hospital, Chandigarh, where he expired on 26.12.2008.

8. It is a matter of record that deceased came to be admitted in the Community Health Centre, Nagrota Bagwan in the morning of 23.12.2008. Testimonies of Dr. Reshmi Shekhar (PW.1), Dr.A.R. Raghu (PW.2) and Dr.Maneesh Verma (PW.3), reveal that the deceased was having the following injuries on his body:-

"1) Swelling on head left side 2 cm x 1 cm.

2) Lacerated wound on lower lip ½ long and ¼ cm in breadth reddish in colour.

3) Injury teeth.

4) Abrasion on right leg 1 cm x 1 cm. Reddish coloured.

5) Abrasion of dorsum of right hand 3 cm x 1/8 cm. Reddish in colour."

9. From the testimony of Dr.Ravinder Jeet Singh (PW.4), who conducted the postmortem of the deceased and also issued postmortem report (Ex.PW.4/B), it is evidently clear that deceased died as a result of shock on account of head injury.

10. It is a matter of record that at the time when deceased was brought to the hospital, he was in a state of semi-consciousness. Such fact is evident from the testimony of Dr.A.R. Raghu (PW.2). It is also the case of prosecution that condition of the deceased continued to deteriorate thereafter.

11. In the instant case, prosecution heavily relies upon the dying declaration so made by the deceased (Ex.PW.17/A), recorded by ASI Sawaran Roop Singh (PW.17) in the presence of Hari Krishan (PW.6), Vijay Kumar (PW.7) and Banwari Lal (PW.18). Now when we peruse the said statement, we find the deceased to have disclosed that "on 22.12.2008, at about 10.15 PM, I alongwith one Pappu, who owns a tea shop near Gandhi ground, was going to home. When I alongwith Pappu reached at Nagrota Bazar, outside the Dulhoo Restaurant, Rahul, who owns a Readymade garments shop near new bus-stand, restrained my path and by giving fist and kick blows took me upto the Subzi Mandi. On seeing such assaults, Pappu ran away. As a result of beatings given by Rahul, I sustained injuries on my face, head, leg and on other parts of body I sustained hidden injuries. Also he gave kick blows on my face, as a result of which my tooth was broken."

12. We express serious doubt about the genuineness of the said statement and/or truthfulness of its contents. And this we say so for the reason that according to Hari Krishan (PW.6), altercation between the deceased and the accused had already taken place somewhere at about 8.30 PM. There may be discrepancy with regard to timing, for it has come on record that at about 9.30 PM, deceased was asked by his superior to attend to a complaint, but the fact of the matter is that the deceased who was found in a wounded condition was brought home from the spot and not taken to the hospital. Considering his injuries he should have been straightaway taken to the hospital. As is so admitted by his son and the wife condition of the deceased had deteriorated and he was unconscious and semi-conscious state at home. He was taken to the hospital at about 3.30 AM when he was examined by Dr.A.R. Raghu (PW.2), who himself states that accused was in a state of semi-consciousness. Now significantly this doctor did not certify the deceased to be fit enough to make any statement. Sawaran Roop Singh (PW.17) wants the Court to believe that the said statement, so recorded by him, contains exact version narrated by the deceased, but then he himself admits that "At that time Ram Krishan was in semiconscious and he was not able to speak". The witness does state that he had obtained the medical opinion about the fitness of the deceased, but no such document is on record.

13. On this count, what further renders the statement of the close relatives to be doubtful is the fact that Police Station is just at a close distance of 10 minutes from the house of the deceased. None directly reported the matter to the police. Also after knowing about the altercation they did not take the deceased to the hospital, but instead took him home and allowed his condition to deteriorate. Why is it that deceased did not straightaway disclose the incident to all or any one of the witnesses who had reached the spot. After all he was conscious at that time.

14. Dying declaration is also rendered doubtful, in view of the testimony of police officer/officials Uma Pati Jamwal (PW.20), Sudershan (PW.21), Manohar Lal (PW.23) and Balbir (PW.25), according to whom accused had himself walked into the Police Station and made a grievance of having been beaten up by the deceased. Significantly police officials, admit that prior thereto, accused himself had called the police twice on the telephone, yet they did not respond. Even when he walked into the Police Station, they found the deceased to be present in an injured condition. Blood was oozing out from his cheek, yet they did not take any action, much less register a report. It is not the case of prosecution that matter between the parties got patched up. In fact, they allowed him to leave in the company of the accused. Why so? remains unexplained, for it is not the case of these police officials that either of the party were friends or known to each other from before. In fact, Sudershan (PW.21) refers to the presence of third person, who also was injured. Strangely, Investigating Agencies are conspicuously silent about him. In the Police Station, no grievance, as is made out in the dying declaration (Ex.PW.17/A), was ever made by the deceased to the police officials. To the contrary, he requested the police not to get him medically examined as he was drunk.

15. Prosecution relies upon yet another dying declaration through the testimonies of close relatives of the deceased, according to whom, deceased had also disclosed to them about the accused having beaten him up. Though this dying declaration is ocular in nature, but close scrutiny of testimonies of Pawan Kumar (PW.5) Hari Krishan (PW.6), Vijay Kumar (PW.7), Satya Devi (PW.8), Banwari Lal (PW.18) and Ashwani Kumar (PW.19), would only reveal such fact not to be inspiring in confidence and the reason is not far to seek. These witnesses admit that Ashwani, Banwari and Hari Krishan had gone to search for the deceased. They had learnt about the alleged quarrel. These witnesses admit that Police Station was closeby, yet none of them reported the matter to the police either in person or on telephone. Why so? remains undisclosed by them. The incident took place sometime at 10.00 PM and yet they did not inform the police the reason of assault. Also deceased allegedly disclosed such fact only when he was brought home. Why the delay? remains unexplained.

16. Hence, there is serious doubt with regard to genuineness of the document and correctness of the contents of statement (Ex.PW.17/A) as also the ocular dying declaration. We take this view in view of the law laid down by the Apex Court in Sham Shankar Kankaria Versus State of Maharashtra, (2006) 13 SCC 165.

17. The genesis of the prosecution story of the deceased and the accused having consumed liquor in the shop of Kishan Kumar (PW.12), cannot be said to have been established on record, in view of categorical denial of such fact by this witness and the Investigating Agency not having recovered any incriminating substance connecting the accused or the deceased in the establishment of such fact.

18. Also Pawan Kumar (PW.5), who allegedly witnessed the incident and initially informed Ram Krishan about such fact, has categorically denied the same. He has not supported the prosecution and nothing fruitful could be elicited from his testimony. He is not even friendly to the accused.

19. Prosecution further wants the Court to believe that in the presence of Sanjiv Kumar (PW.14) and Bhagwan Dass (PW.15), accused made a disclosure statement (Ex.PW.14/A), which led to recovery of blood stained apparels vide memo (Ex.PW.14/B). Disclosure statement and recovery is also rendered doubtful for the reason that independent witnesses PW.14 and PW.15 have not supported the prosecution. Even otherwise, and significantly, scientific evidence (Ex.PX-1 & Ex.PX-2), does not link the accused to the offence. Though human blood was found on some of these articles, but there is nothing on record to establish as to whether it matched the group of the accused or the deceased.

20. There is one disturbing feature, which has come on record and that being involvement of the police in the crime cannot be ruled out, for it is admitted by Banwari Lal (PW.18) "that it is correct that after this occurrence all the villagers had blocked the road. Then the villagers also sat on Dharna out side the Police Station for 3/4 days". Uma Pati Jamwal (PW.20) states that "I cannot say that the investigation was handed over to me due to political pressure. It is correct that local MLA has carried out the agitation out side the police station". Constable Sudershan (PW.21) states that "It is correct that after the registration of case the brother of aforesaid injured person and local MLA alongwith other persons had sat on hunger strike out side the Police Station. It is correct that said persons were disclosing the reason for hunger strike that above said person was beaten in the police custody and no action was taken. This hunger strike had continued for 6/7 days". ASI Manohar Lal (PW.23) states that "It is correct that no Rapat was lodged in the police station regarding the coming of Rahul and Ram Krishan. It is incorrect that Rapat was not lodged because Ram Krishan and Rahul had not come to the police station. It is correct that during this period the MLA of Nagrota had staged agitation against police". SI Ranjit

Singh (PW.24) states that "It is correct that there was a agitation regarding this case in Nagrota Bagwan".

21. In the aforesaid background, we find the Investigating Agency to have prepared the document (Ex.PW.6/A) perhaps only to create evidence. Significantly, statements of the family members of the deceased also came to be recorded not promptly, but with certain amount of delay.

22. Unmerited and undeserved prosecution is an infringement of a legal right under Article 21 of the Constitution of India. [See: Sanjaysingh Ramrao Chavan Versus Dattatray Gulabrao Phalke and others, (2015) 3 SCC 123].

23. Police appears to have suppressed the genesis of the crime, for the version of police officials does not in any manner concur with the contents of the alleged dying declaration.

24. Under these circumstances, we direct the Principal Secretary (Home) to the Government of Himachal Pradesh and Director General of Police, Himachal Pradesh, to have the matter examined and take appropriate action in compliance of the direction issued by the Apex Court in State of Gujarat Versus Kishanbhai and others, (2014) 5 SCC 108. Affidavit of compliance be positively filed within eight weeks for which purpose matter be listed before Court.

25. Suggestion of the learned Amicus Curiae in awarding compensation to the accused is left open to be adjudged in an appropriate proceedings. This would be in the light of the ratio laid down by the Apex Court in Shakila Abdul Gafar Khan (Smt) versus Vasant Raghunath Dhoble and another, (2003) 7 SCC 749; State of W.B. and others Versus Babu Chakraborthy , (2004) 12 SCC 201; Mano Versus State of Tamil Nadu, (2007) 13 SCC 795; Suresh Versus State of Haryana, (2009) 13 SCC 538; and Gulzar Ahmed Azmi and another Versus Union of India and others, (2012) 10 SCC 731.

26. Thus, to our mind, prosecution has not been able to establish by leading clear, cogent, convincing and reliable piece of evidence so as to prove that accused restrained the deceased Ram Krishan to proceed further; gave beatings to him and prevented him from discharging his duties as such public servant; caused grievous hurt as a result of which he died and thereby committed his murder.

27. The accused has had the advantage of having been acquitted by the Court below. Keeping in view the ratio of law laid down by the Apex Court in Mohammed Ankoos and others versus Public Prosecutor, High Court of Andhra Pradesh, Hyderabad (2010) 1 SCC 94, since it cannot be said that trial Court has not correctly appreciated the evidence on record or that acquittal of the accused has resulted into travesty of justice, no interference is warranted in the instant case.

28. For all the aforesaid reasons, present appeal, being devoid of merit, is dismissed, so also the pending application(s), if any. Bail bonds furnished by the accused are discharged. Record of the trial Court be immediately sent back.

29. Efforts put in by Mr. Arjun Lall, learned Amicus Curiae in rendering valuable assistance to the Court is highly appreciable.

Cr. Appeal No. 70 of 2011.
Reserved on : 7.07.2016.
Date of Decision 16.09.2016

Indian Penal Code, 1860- Section 323 and 307 read with Section 34- Informant along with his daughter-in-law was irrigating his field when his cousin (accused No. 1) came to the spot armed with the spade along with his wife (accused No.2) who was armed with the sickle – they inflicted injuries on the person of the informant- he was taken to hospital – the accused No.1 was convicted for the commission of offences punishable under Section 324 of I.P.C, whereas, accused No. 2 was acquitted by the trial Court – aggrieved from the judgment, present appeal has been filed- held, that the accused had given one blow of spade in a spur of moment- there was no person to stop the accused and he could have inflicted a graver injury, if he so wanted – there is nothing on record to show that accused had an intention of causing death – a compromise was effected between the parties, which shows that injury was not considered serious enough or dangerous to life- the trial Court had rightly acquitted the accused of the commission of offence punishable under Section 307 of I.P.C.- the conduct of the accused is not such as to deny the benefit of Probation of Offenders Act to him- appeal dismissed. State of Punjab versus Bawa Singh, reported in 2015(2) Criminal Court Cases 765 (SC)

For the Appellant : Mr. Vivek Chandel, Advocate.
For the Respondents No. 1 & 2. Mr. Gaurav Gautam, Advocate.
For the Respondent No. 3.: Mr. P.M. Negi, Deputy Advocate General.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Vivek Singh Thakur, Judge

Appellant (PW-1 Balwant Rai) lodged a complaint against respondents No. 1 and 2 stating therein that on 18.11.2009 he, alongwith his daughters in-law namely Manjit and Neena Devi, was irrigating his fields at about 2.30 PM and at that time his cousin Ramesh Chand (son of his Chacha) having spade in his hand alongwith his wife Rachana Devi having sickle in her hand reached there. They asked reason for damaging boundary of their fields. PW-1 Balwant Rai replied that he was raising blockade (Aad) for irrigating his field but respondents extending threaten to see him alleged that he was removing boundary of their fields and Respondent No. 1, Ramesh Chand gave a blow of spade on his head and respondent Rachna Devi inflicted injury on his right hand thumb with sickle causing bleeding from his hand and head. His daughters-in-law rescued him and took to Civil Dispensary Dehlan for treatment. After taking treatment he returned home. Thereafter matter was compromised between him and his cousin Ramesh Chand but thereafter also his cousin continued to threaten.

2. On registration of FIR matter was investigated and PW-1 Balwant Rai was medically examined and after completion of investigation challan was presented in the Court.

3. Respondents No. 1 and 2 were charge sheeted under Sections 323 and 307 readwith Section 34 IPC. On conclusion of trial, respondent No. 1 was convicted under Section 324 IPC and was given benefit of Section 4 of Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 whereas respondent No. 2 Rachana Devi was acquitted of charge framed against her under Sections 323 and 307 IPC readwith Section 34 IPC vide impugned judgment.

4. Respondent No. 1 did not file any appeal against his conviction. Therefore, his conviction under Section 324 stands accepted.

5. In instant appeal appellant/complainant has assailed impugned judgment with prayer to quash and setaside the same and to convict respondents No. 1 and 2 under Section 307 IPC.

6. We have heard learned counsel for parties and have also gone through the record.

Section 307 reads as under:-

"307. Attempt to murder- Whoever does any act with such intention or knowledge, and under such circumstances that, if he by that act caused death, he would be guilty of murder, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to ten years, and shall also be liable to fine; and if hurt is caused to any person by such act, the offender shall be liable either to {imprisonment for life}, or to such punishment as is hereinbefore mentioned.

Attempt by life convicts {When any person offending under this section is under sentence of (imprisonment of life), he may, if hurt is caused, be punished with death}"

7. The offence of attempt to commit murder punishable under Section 307 IPC is constituted by occurrence of mens rea followed by an actus rues. An intent per-se is not an attempt. It implies purpose and attempt is an actual effort made in execution of the purpose. From overt act directed towards the objective sought, the criminal intent must be logically inferable. The attempt for purpose of Section 307 IPC should stem from a specific intention to commit murder and this blameworthy condition of mind may be gathered from direct or circumstantial evidence including the conduct of accused. When mens rea, which is essential part of offence of murder, is absent and where the weapons used by accused is ordinarily agricultural implement and does not necessarily indicate a deliberate intention to cause death or fatal injury, the accused is not be convicted under Section 307 IPC. (Mohindar Singh versus State AIR 1960, Punjab 135 and Kanbi Nagji Kala versus State AIR 1956, Saurashtra 107).

8. Conviction is not legally punishable under Section 307 IPC unless prosecution proves ingredients of Section 300 IPC., of which intention or knowledge play a vital role. (Kumar Majhi versus State 1981 Cr.LJ 1787).

9. Under Section 307 IPC, Court has to see whether the act irrespective of its result was done with the intention or knowledge and under circumstances mentioned in that Section. The intention or knowledge of the accused must be such as his necessary to constitute murder. Without this ingredient being established there can be no offence of attempt to murder under Section 307, the intention precedes the act attributed to accused. The intention is to be gathered from all circumstances and not merely from the consequences that ensue. The nature of weapons used, manner in which it is used, motive for the crime, severity of the blow, the part of the body where injury was inflicted are some of the factors that may be taken into consideration to determine intention. (Hari Singh versus Sukhbir Singh and others (1988) 4 SCC 551 and Tukaram Gundu Naik versus State (1994) 1 SCC 465)

10. In present case PW-1 Balwant Rai and PW-2 Manjit Kaur are spot witnesses. No other witness examined by prosecution has witnessed incident. By accepting conviction by respondent No. 1 under Section 324 IPC, causing injury to PW-1 Balwant Rai by him with spade is conceded. Therefore, only gravity of offence committed by respondent No. 1 is to be assessed. So far as respondent No. 2 is concerned, she was acquitted and her acquittal is also challenged in present appeal, therefore her culpability is to be determined.

11. PW-2 Manjit Kaur stated that other persons were also working in their own fields before they started irrigating their land. PW-1 Balwant Rai stated that he alongwith her daughter-in-law was irrigating their fields. PW-1 Balwant Rai was having spade in his hand. Similarly, respondent No. 1 was also having spade in his hand. Daughters-in-law of PW-1 Balwant Rai i.e. PW-2 Manjit Kaur and Neena and also respondent No. 2 were also having tools required for agricultural operation in their fields. Therefore, holding a spade in hand by respondent No. 1 and sickle by respondent No. 2 cannot be basis to infer criminal intent on their part.

12. It came in evidence that except two daughters-in-law of PW-1 Balwant Rai no one came forward to rescue PW-1 Balwant Rai. One daughter-in-law Manjeet Kaur was examined as PW-2 whereas another daughter-in-law Neena was given up to avoid repetition. Intention or knowledge of respondents to cause injuries to PW-1 Balwant Rai is to be assessed on the basis of statements of PW-1 Balwant Rai and PW-2 Manjeet Kaur and other surroundings facts and circumstances on record. PW-2 Manjeet Kaur stated that she was working in her fields at a distance of about 10-12 feet from her father-in-law and respondent No. 1 inflicted injury to her father-in-law with spade only once and she did not try to snatch spade from him. In his statement Ex. PW-1/B under Section 154 Cr.P.C., PW-1 Balwant Rai stated that on questioning by respondents for reasons to damage boundary of their fields, he had replied that he was raising blockade to irrigate his fields. Thereupon respondent No. 1 gave one blow to PW-1 Balwant Rai with spade, being carried by him.

13. Besides causing injury to PW-1 Balwant Rai, intention or knowledge to cause death was also necessary for convicting respondents under Section 307 IPC. There was no one near PW-1 Balwant Rai so as to stop respondents from inflicting injuries to him as nearest person to him, his daughters in-law were at a distance of 10 to 12 feet from him who did not try to snatch spade from respondent No. 1 and after inflicting one blow to PW-1, Balwant Rai, respondent No. 1 had left the place on his own.

14. Conjoint reading of statements of PW-1 and PW-2 indicated that except one stroke of spade in spur of moment after reply of PW-1 Balwant Rai to question of respondent Ramesh Chand asking for reasons for uprooting boundary, there was no further assault by respondent Ramesh Chand. It happened within few seconds PW-2 Manjeet Kaur stated that she and Neena were at some distance about 10-12 feet. No one was there to stop respondent Ramesh Chand from inflicting more than one injury or striking PW-1 Balwant Rai with spade more than once. But as stated by PW-1 and PW-2 respondent Ramesh Chand hit PW-1 Balwant Rai only once and weapon used by respondent was agricultural implement. There is nothing on record to infer that intention of respondent was to cause death of PW-1. In these facts and circumstances, it can be inferred that there was no intention on the part of respondent Ramesh Chand to cause death of PW-1 Balwant Rai.

15. After incident PW-1 Balwant Rai went home, visited Civil Dispensary at Dehlan and after getting first-aid returned back to home on foot and no complaint was lodged by him with police meaning thereby that on that day injury caused to him was not considered to be of such nature so as to attract Section 307 IPC. Later on, some complications developed in the wound of PW-1 Balwant Rai and he had to have medical treatment for his head injury from PGI Chandigarh and DMC Ludhiana.

16. PW-12 Dr. Rajesh stated that PW-1 was brought to PGI Chandigarh on 23.11.2009 with alleged history of assault on 18.11.2009 and patient was conscious, moving all four limbs with stable vitals. On local examination, there was sutured wound over scalp and C.T. Scan showed fracture left parietal bone with preumecphas-lus. PW-1 was treated conservatory and was referred to District Hospital on 24.11.2009.

17. PW-6 Dr. Indu Bhardwaj treated PW-1 Balwant Rai in Regional Hospital Una. She stated that patient remained for basic nursing care with them for three days and on 27.11.2009 he was developing hemiparasis paralysis of half of the body but attendants were reluctant to take the patient to PGI.

18. PW-13 Dr. R.K. Kaushal admitted PW-1 Balwant Rai in DMC Hospital Ludhiana with history of weakness of right side of the body and difficulty in speaking and memory loss. At the time of admission patient was conscious but having difficulty in expressing himself with weakness of right side. On C.T. Scan of his head, fracture left parietal area with the pneumocephalus (air in the brain) was noticed. He was operated on 28.11.2009. At the time of surgery injured areas was found to be infected. In cross examination he stated that incidence of wound infection was much more in diabetic untreated patient and PW-1 had history of diabetes for the last five years. From medical evidence on record it transpired that initially injury was not apprehended be so serious and later on due to delay in medical aid the injured area was infected and injury was aggravated. There is nothing on record to show that respondents were having knowledge that PW-1 Balwant Rai was diabetic since last 5 years and even injury caused by single blow may be fatal for his life. Therefore, knowledge of causing death with such injury is negated by evidence on record.

19. Knowledge of causing death by injury inflicted to PW-1 Balwant Rai by respondent Ramesh Chand was also absent. Not only PW-1 Balwant Rai but PW-7 Doctor Suresh Kumar did also not apprehend impact of injury received by PW-1 Balwant Rai. For that reason only, gravity of offence was not considered to be of such high degree so as to report the matter to police despite the fact that constable Banwari Lal son-in-law of PW-1 Balwant Rai was serving in Police Department.

20. PW-1/A compromised deed also indicated that PW-1 respondent Ramesh Chand apologized and Balwant Rai admonished him in Khangi Panchayat. It was possible only when there was a feeling amongst parties that alleged incident had taken place between cousins without any intention or knowledge to murder. PW-1 Balwant Rai went and came back from Dehlan on foot. PW-7 Doctor Suresh had stitched the wound and given firstaid to PW-1 Balwant Rai. Despite being a Medical Officer he did not find injury so serious at first instance so as to causing danger to life of PW-1 Balwant Rai and for that reason no such apprehension was mentioned in prescription slip Ex. PW-7/A issued on 18.11.2009. However, in MLC PW-7/B issued on 23.11.2009 he stated that injury was grievous and dangerous to life. But this opinion of doctor that injury caused to PW-1 Balwant Rai was dangerous to life is not sufficient to hold respondent guilty for committing an offence under Section 307 IPC.

21. In absence of intention or knowledge of respondents as required under Section 307 IPC, respondent are not liable to be convicted under Section 307 IPC and trial Court has rightly acquitted respondents under Section 307 IPC.

22. PW-1 alleged that respondent No. 2 inflicted injury on his right hand thumb with sickle. During medical examination of PW-1 Balwant Rai, no injury was found on his right hand thumb. PW-1 had approached PW-7 Doctor Suresh Kumar for his treatment immediately after the incident on 18.11.2009. PW-7 Doctor Suresh Kumar had found following injuries:-

1. Wound was 7x2x2 cm. bleeding profusely, stitched applied.

2. Wound on left wrist joint 3x1 cm. antiseptic dressing done. Abrasion and contusion right side of arm.

23. In his deposition in the Court also, PW-1 Balwant Rai stated that he sustained injury on his right hand thumb due to sickle stroke by respondent No. 2. PW-2 Manjit Kaur also stated that Rachna Devi inflicted injury to right hand thumb of her father-in-law. On this count, version of these witnesses was negated by injuries noticed by PW-7 Doctor Suresh Kumar on body of PW-1. There was no injury not only on right hand thumb of PW-1 but even on left hand thumb. It is not a case where there is a reconcilable discrepancy in ocular and medical evidence, rather medical opinion is completely wiping ocular version with regard to injury caused by respondent Rachna Devi.

24. Prosecution also relied upon compromise dated 20.11.2009 arrived at between parties after the incident. In this compromise, it was mentioned in clear words that respondent Ramesh Chand abused and beat PW-1 Balwant Rai and respondent Ramesh Chand confessed his fault and PW-1 Balwant Rai admonished him. There was no reference about even slightest involvement of respondent Rachna Devi in incident.

25 The matter was reported to Police on 23.11.2009 after five days of incident. There was possibility to improvement at the time of lodging FIR after five days to involve respondent No.2 Rachna Devi being wife of respondent Ramesh Chand because of afterthought for revenge. There was no other evidence regarding involvement of respondent No. 2 Rachana Devi in the incident so as to held her liable for act of respondent Ramesh Chand punishable under Section 34 IPC. Therefore, there was no sufficient material to invoke Section 34 IPC, to hold respondent Rachna Devi liable for committing an offence in furtherance of common intention for common object with respondent Ramesh Chand. Trial Court has rightly acquitted respondent Rachna Devi and therefore, no interference is warranted to disturb her acquittal.

26. So far as conviction of respondent Ramesh Chand under Section 324 IPC, the same was not challenged by respondent Ramesh Chand. However, he was released by trial Court on probation by giving benefit of Section 4 of Probation of Offender Act 1958. The said release of respondent has also been challenged by appellant.

27. Learned counsel for appellant relying upon pronouncement of Hon'ble Supreme Court in case titled as State of Punjab versus Bawa Singh, reported in 2015(2) Criminal Court Cases 765 (SC) submitted that release of respondent Ramesh Chand on probation was a result of misplaced sympathy and in view of ratio laid down in this judgment respondents deserved to be sentenced to undergo imprisonment as provided in Indian Penal Code.

28. After giving our anxious consideration to the contention urged by counsel for appellant we are of the view that the trial Court has not committed any error in releasing respondent Ramesh Chand on probation of good conduct. Respondent No. 1 is not dangerous criminal but a person who surrendered to temptation. The occurrence in question was a out come of a sudden flare-up. The respondent was 55 years of age at the time of occurrence. He was released on probation of good conduct in the year 2010. The incident had taken place on account of sudden boundary dispute. Respondent Ramesh Chand cannot be compared with hard core criminal or person having a criminal intent to commit crime to murder PW-1 with pre-mediation. Also from compromise dated 20.11.2009, it can be inferred that respondent had realized his mistake and after his repentance matter was compromised. It is also relevant that at the time of compromise there was no police complaint pending against respondent Ramesh Chand and therefore compromise was not under pressure but only of repentance. There is nothing on record to reflect conduct of respondent Ramesh Chand warranting interference of this Court after releasing him on probation of good conduct. For these reasons, we do not consider it appropriate to interfere in release of respondent under Probation of Offenders Act, 1958.

29. In view of above discussion, appeal being devoid of merit is dismissed alongwith pending application if any. Bail bonds if any, are discharged. Record of the Court below be sent back immediately.

20. What emerges from the appraisal of statements of the witnesses is that the accused trespassed into the house where Kalpana was present, on 10.8.2013. He forced Kalpana to marry him. She refused to marry him. Thereafter he poured kerosene oil on her and put her on fire. He was seen at the spot by PW-1 Sunil Kumar. PW-1 Sunil Kumar has categorically stated that he was present in his house on 10.8.2013 at about 2-2.30 PM. He heard cries coming from the house of Swaroop Chand. He reached the spot. Kamlesh and Jasbir were present there. Accused tried to run away. He tried to catch him. However, accused pushed him and ran way. Thereafter, they went inside the room and found that Kalpana was burnt. They inquired from Kalpana about the incident. She told that accused had poured kerosene oil on her and had put her on fire. Statement of PW-1 Sunil Kumar is duly corroborated by PW-4 Swaroop Chand. He testified that on 10.8.2013, he was out of house. He received a telephone call at 2.50 PM from Kamlesh Kumari. She disclosed that accused had entered his house and poured kerosene oil on his daughter and set her ablaze. He reached his house and found that his daughter was lying on the floor. She was badly burnt. Thereafter, she was taken to the hospital. Kalpana has told him that accused was insisting her to marry him and when she refused, he set her on fire. PW-6 Jasbir is the brother of the deceased. He has also testified that his mother, father and grandmother were not at home. He heard cries of his sister. He went to the spot. His Aunt Kamlesh and one Sunil Kumar were already on the spot. He saw accused coming out of the room of old house. Accused tried to run away. Sunil Kumar tried to catch him. However, accused ran away from the spot. After that his aunt and Sunil Kumar went inside the room and found his sister in a burnt condition. They asked his sister about the incident. She told that accused entered the room. He asked her to marry him and when she refused to do so, he set her on fire by pouring kerosene oil. PW-13 Dr. Vijay Arora has conducted the post-mortem. According to him, cause of death was shock due to ante-mortem burns, which were sufficient to cause death in the ordinary course of nature. According to the FSL report, Ext. 21. PW-20 Inspector Sunil Kumar has deposed that on 13.8.2013, he moved an application Ext. PW-20/K for recording the statement of Kalpana before a Magistrate and sought opinion of the Medical Officer RPGMC Tanda, whether Kalpana was fit to make statement.

Bal Krishan, Tehsildar, Nagrota Bagwan came to RPGMC Tanda alongwith Patwari Bir Singh and recorded statement of Kalpana Ext. PW-8/A.

22. PW-19 ASI Daya Ram testified that he moved an application to the Medical Officer to take opinion whether the injured was fit to make statement, vide Ext. PW-12/A and Medical Officer opined that the injured was fit to make statement. He recorded the statement of Kalpana in the presence of the Medical Officer, CHC Thural, as per her version. Contents of the statement were read over to Kalpana. Thereafter, she put thumb impression on the statement. Statement was also attested by the Medical Officer, CHC Thural.

23. PW-12 Dr. Shagun Sharma deposed that the police moved an application Ext. PW-12/A for medical examination and recording the statement of the injured. Injured was fit for making statement. She opined regarding the fitness of the injured in Ext. PW-12/A. In her presence, the police recorded the statement of injured vide Ext. PW-12/B as per her version. Thereafter, injured put her right thumb impression over the statement after it was read over to her. Statement was attested by her. She identified her signatures on Ext. PW-12/B.

24. Statement of child witness also inspires confidence. He has reached the spot when he heard cries of his sister. Similarly, PW-1 Sunil Kumar reached the spot when he heard cries of Kalpana. Recoveries have been made strictly in accordance with law. PW-1 Sunil Kumar, PW-4 Swaroop Chand and PW-6 Master Jasbir are natural witnesses of the incident dated 10.8.2013.

25. We have perused Ext. PW-12/A and the dying declaration Ext. PW-12/B dated 10.8.2013. Kalpana stated that the accused came to her house. He was carrying a plastic Can. Accused told her that she should elope with him and when she refused to do, he poured kerosene oil on her and put her on fire. Statement Ext. PW-12/B is voluntary in nature. Injured was fit to make the statement as per PW-12 Dr. Shagun Sharma as mentioned on Ext. PW-12/A itself. One more dying declaration of the injured was recorded on 13.8.2013. PW-8 Bal Krishan has deposed that on 13.8.2013 SDM Kangra forwarded one application to him for recording the statement of Kalpana. Thereafter, he alongwith Bir Singh (PW-11) went to the RPGMC Tanda and recorded the statement of Kalpana as per her version. Thereafter, he read over the statement to Kalpana vide Ext. PW-8/A. Injured was not able to put her signature. Therefore, he appended a certificate on Ext. PW-8/A. Statement of PW-8 Bal Krishan has been duly corroborated by PW-11 Bir Singh. She has reiterated the manner in which accused has put her on fire when she refused to marry him.

26. Dying declarations have been made by Kalpana, after she was found fit to make statement as per the opinion of the Doctors.

27. Their Lordships of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Gulzari Lal v. State of Haryana, reported in AIR 2016 SC 795, have held that a valid declaration maybe made without obtaining the certificate of fitness from a Medical Officer. Their lordships have held as under:

> We find no infirmities with the statements made by the deceased and recorded by the Head Constable Manphool Singh (PW-7). A valid dying declaration may be made without obtaining a certificate of fitness of the declarant by a medical officer. The law regarding the same is well-settled by this Court in the decision of Laxman v. State of Maharashtra[6], wherein this Court observed thus:
> > "3. There is no requirement of law that a dying declaration must necessarily be made to a magistrate and when such statement is recorded by a magistrate there is no specified statutory form for such recording. Consequently, what evidential value or weight has to be attached to such statement necessarily depends on the facts and > circumstances of each particular case. What is essentially required is that the person who records a dying declaration must be satisfied that the deceased was in a fit state of mind. Where it is proved by the testimony of the magistrate that the declarant was fit to make the statement even without examination by the doctor the declaration can be acted upon provided the court ultimately holds the same to be voluntary and truthful. A certification by the doctor is essentially a rule of caution and therefore the voluntary and truthful nature of the declaration can be established otherwise."

Further, clarity on the issue may be established by the judgment of this Court in the case of Paras Yadav & Ors. v. State of Bihar[7], wherein this Court addressed the question regarding the dying declaration that was not recorded by the doctor and where the doctor had not been examined to say that the injured was fit to give the statement. It has been held by this Court as under :

> "8....In such a situation, the lapse on the part of the Investigating Officer should not be taken in favour of the accused, may be that such lapse is committed designedly or because of negligence. Hence, the prosecution evidence is required to be examined de hors such omissions to find out whether the said evidence is reliable or not."

In reference to the position of law laid down by this Court, we find no reason to question the reliability of the dying declaration of the deceased for the reason that at the time of recording his statement by Head Constable, Manphool Singh (PW-7),he was found to be mentally fit to give his statement regarding the occurrence. Further, evidence of Head Constable Manphhol Singh (PW-7) was shown to be trustworthy and has been accepted by the courts below. The view taken by the High Court does not suffer from any infirmity and the same is in order.

28. In this case, both the dying declarations Ext. PW-12/B and Ext. PW-8/A are unanimous and minor discrepancies inter se two dying declarations can not be a ground to acquit the accused, particularly when one of the dying declarations has been recorded by a Tehsildar i.e. PW-8 Bal Krishan. PW-12 Dr. Shagun Sharma, has also testified that Kalpana was fit to make statement Ext. PW-12/B. Doctor has certified on Ext. PW-20/K that Kalpana was fit to make statement.

29. Mr. Chaudhary, Advocate has also drawn the attention of the Court to the fact that the learned trial Court has framed two points for determination and findings returned on Issue No. 1 are 'No' and findings on Issue No.2 are, "Accused person acquitted of the alleged offences as per operative part of the judgment.". It is a typographical error. The trial judge should have been more careful while dictating the judgment. Learned trial Court has considered the entire ocular and documentary evidence while convicting the accused as per the operative potion of the judgment. Judgment in fact was pronounced on 30.5.2016 and convict was also heard on quantum of sentence on 30.5.2016. However, due to typographical error, date of pronouncement of judgment has been shown as 31.5.2016. It has not prejudiced the case of the accused in any manner. Accused can not take the benefit of a typographical error, which has inadvertently crept into the judgment.

30. Mr. Chaudhary, Advocate, has also argued that all the details have not been given in the FIR. It is settled law by now that an FIR is not an encyclopaedia. Now, so far as the evidence of child witness is concerned, same can be relied upon but it is to be read with caution.

31. Accused has trespassed into the room of Kalpana with an intention to cause grievous hurt and has wrongfully restrained Kalpana on 10.8.2013. Thereafter, the accused poured kerosene oil on her and set her on fire.

32. Prosecution has duly proved its case against the accused under Sections 302 and 452 IPC.

33. In view of the discussion and analysis made hereinabove, there is no merit in the appeal and the same is dismissed. Pending applications, if any, are also disposed of.

34. However, before parting with the Judgment, it would be pertinent to mention that the police in inquest report, statement recorded under Section 154 CrPC, recovery memo and dying declaration have separately stated the caste of the accused as well as of the victim. This is not permissible. Mentioning of caste/status separately in the criminal proceedings is a colonial legacy and requires to be stopped forthwith. Right to dignity is a fundamental right and a basic human right. Human dignity is one of the basic features of the Constitution. The Constitution of India also guarantees a casteless and classless society. Segmentation of the society into groups can not be determined by birth. All are born equal.

35. The expression, "right to life', includes right to live with human dignity. It is the bounden duty of the State not only to protect the human dignity but to facilitate it by taking positive steps in that direction. In the German Constitution, human dignity under Article 1 is 'inviolable'. Human dignity is the foundation of constitutional rights/ values.

36. Their Lordships of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Jeeja Ghosh and another v. Union of India and others, reported in (2016) 7 SCC 761, have held that human dignity which is the core value of human right and is treated as a significant facet of right to life and liberty. Jurisprudentially, three types of models for determining the content of the constitutional value of human dignity are recognised. These are: (i) Theological Models, (ii) Philosophical Models, and (iii) Constitutional Models. Aquinas and Kant discussed the jurisprudential aspects of human dignity based on the aforesaid philosophies. Over a period of time, human dignity has found its way through constitutionalism, whether written or unwritten. Their lordships have held as under:

> "37. The rights that are guaranteed to differently abled persons under the Act, 1995 are founded on the sound principle of human dignity which is the core value of human right and is treated as a significant facet of right to life and liberty. Such a right, now treated as human right of the persons who are disabled, has it roots in Article 21 of the Constitution. Jurisprudentially, three types of models for determining the content of the constitutional value of human dignity are recognised. These are: (i) Theological Models, (ii) Philosophical Models, and (iii) Constitutional Models. Legal scholars were called upon to determine the theological basis of human dignity as a constitutional value and as a constitutional right. Philosophers also came out with their views justifying human dignity as core human value. Legal understanding is influenced by theological and philosophical views, though these two are not identical. Aquinas and Kant discussed the jurisprudential aspects of human dignity based on the aforesaid philosophies. Over a period of time, human dignity has found its way through constitutionalism, whether written or unwritten. Even right to equality is interpreted based on the value of human dignity. Insofar as India is concerned, we are not even required to take shelter under theological or philosophical theories. We have a written Constitution which guarantees human rights that are contained in Part III with the caption "Fundamental Rights". One such right enshrined in Article 21 is right to life and liberty. Right to life is given a purposeful meaning by this Court to include right to live with dignity. It is the purposive interpretation which has been adopted by this Court to give a content of the right to human dignity as the fulfillment of the constitutional value enshrined in Article 21. Thus, human dignity is a constitutional value and a constitutional goal. What are the dimensions of constitutional value of human dignity? It is beautifully illustrated by Aharon Barak[2] (former Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Israel) in the following manner:

"The constitutional value of human dignity has a central normative role. Human dignity as a constitutional value is the factor that unites the human rights into one whole. It ensures the normative unity of human rights. This normative unity is expressed in the three ways: first, the value of human dignity serves as a normative basis for constitutional rights set out in the constitution; second, it serves as an interpretative principle for determining the scope of constitutional rights, including the right to human dignity; third, the value of human dignity has an important role in determining the proportionality of a statute limiting a constitutional right."

38. All the three goals of human dignity as a constitutional value are expanded by the author in a scholarly manner. Some of the excerpts thereof, are reproduced below which give a glimpse of these goals:

"The first role of human dignity as a constitutional value is expressed in the approach that it comprises the foundation for all of the constitutional rights. Human dignity is the central argument for the existence of human rights. It is the rationale for them all. It is the justification for the existence of rights. According to Christoph Enders, it is the constitutional value that determines that every person has the right to have rights...

The second role of human dignity as a constitutional value is to provide meaning to the norms of the legal system. According to purposive interpretation, all of the provisions of the constitution, and particularly all of the rights in the constitutional bill of rights, are interpreted in light of human dignity...

Lastly, human dignity as a constitutional value influences the development of the common law. Indeed, where common law is recognized, judges have the duty to develop it, and if necessary modify it, so that it expresses constitutional values, including the constitutional value of human dignity. To the extent that common law determines rights and duties between individuals, it might limit the human dignity of one individual and protect the human dignity of the other."

37. The founding fathers of the Indian Constitution, were of utmost belief that the caste system would come to an end with the passage of time. However, unfortunately, the caste system is still prevalent. There is no scientific, intellectual, social and logical basis for caste system. The caste system is profoundly illogical and is also against the basic tenets of the Constitution.

38. Accordingly, the Principal Secretary (Home) to the Government of Himachal Pradesh, is directed to issue instructions to all the Investigating Officers in Himachal Pradesh not to separately state/mention the caste of the accused, victims or witnesses in recovery memos, FIR's, seizure memos, inquest papers and other forms prescribed under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 and Punjab Police Rules. We should, as a public policy, shun the caste system.

Present: None.

Case called repeatedly but none appeared on behalf of complainant. Today case was fixed for filing PF and CA and summon to accused, but despite having knowledge of the date of the hearing neither complainant nor his counsel appear. Hence this court is of view that complainant conduct does not deserve any further leniency. It is not a fit case to call through fresh notice, accordingly appreciating his conduct and also being the right of speedy trial of accused which is also fundamental right. This court is of a considered opinion that it is a fit case where for want of non appearance of complainant, complaint is liable to be dismissed. Accordingly, the complaint is dismissed under Section 256 of Cr.P.C for non appearance. Statutory acquittal is announced in favour of accused. File after due completion be consigned to record room."

5. Section 256 of the Code of Criminal Procedure reads thus:

" 256. Non- appearance or death of complainant.

(1) If the summons has been issued on complaint, and on the day appointed for the appearance of the accused, or any day subsequent thereto to which the hearing may be adjourned, the complainant does not appear, the Magistrate shall, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, acquit the accused, unless for some reason he thinks it proper to adjourn the hearing of the case to some other day:

Provided that where the complainant is represented by a pleader or by the officer conducting the prosecution or where the Magistrate is of opinion that the personal attendance of the complainant is not necessary, the Magistrate may dispense with his attendance and proceed with the case.

(2) The provisions of sub- section (1) shall, so far as may be, apply also to cases where the non- appearance of the complainant is due to his death.

6. It is evident from the aforesaid order that the case was listed for filing of process fee and correct address of the accused, but the learned trial court has not at all come to the conclusion that presence of the complainant on the said date was absolutely essential and has straightaway dismissed the application by invoking the provisions of Section 256 of Cr.PC.

7. Furthermore, the learned trial Magistrate has not even recorded its satisfaction as to why it was dismissing the complaint and in such circumstances mainly by holding that 'this court is of the considered opinion that it is a fit case where for want of non appearance of complainant, complaint is liable to be dismissed.", would not suffice.

8. Acquittal of the accused under this section is not automatic. It cannot be said that this section contemplates that the order of acquittal should be a matter of routine and followed automatically on the absence of the complainant. There has to be an application of mind to the question as to whether the order of acquittal under the aforesaid section should be passed.

9. When the court notices that the complainant is absent on a particular day, it is imperative for the court to see whether personal attendance of the complainant is essential on that date and also whether the situation does not justify the case being adjourned. On account of singular default in appearance on the part of complainant, dismissal of the complaint would not be proper and can also be termed as arbitrary.

10. In view of the aforesaid discussion, the impugned order passed by the learned trial Magistrate on 25.2.2016 is not sustainable in the eyes of law and the same is accordingly set aide. Petition is allowed in the aforesaid terms. The parties through their counsels are directed to cause appearance before the court below on 5.10.2016.

Petition disposed of in the aforesaid terms, so also the pending application(s), if any.

For the Petitioner:	Mr. S.D. Gill Advocate.
For Non-petitioners Nos. 1 to 3	Mr. M.L. Chauhan Addl.Advocate General.
For Non-petitioner No.4:	Mr. Satyen Vaidya Sr. Advocate with Mr.Vivek Sharma Advocate.

The following order of the Court was delivered:

P.S. Rana, Judge

Present petition is filed under Section 482 of Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 to quash FIR No. 32 of 2013 dated 16.7.2013 registered under Sections 409, 467, 468, 471 and 120(B) IPC at P.S. Reckeong Peo District Kinnaur H.P. and also to quash criminal proceedings of case No. 20/2 of 2014 title State of H.P. vs. Shyam Lal and another.

Brief facts of the case

2. It is alleged that Senior Executive Engineer Electrical Division HPSEBL Reckongpeo filed FIR No. 32 of 2013 dated 16.7.2013 against accused persons namely Shyam Lal and Piare Lal alleging that Shri Shyam Lal draftsman was working in Electricity Division and has committed embezzlement of public money amounting to Rs. 30055/- (Rupees thirty thousand fifty five). FIR was registered and investigation conducted by Investigating Agency. Investigating Agency filed charge sheet against Shyam Lal petitioner and Piare Lal before learned Chief Judicial Magistrate Kinnaur at Reckongpeo on 30.5.2014. Feeling aggrieved against FIR and consequential criminal proceedings petitioner filed present petition.

3. Court heard learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner and learned Additional Advocate General appearing on behalf of non-petitioners Nos. 1 to 3 and learned Advocate appearing on behalf of non-petitioner No.4 and also perused the record carefully.

4. Following points arise for determination in present petition:-

Point No.1

Whether petition filed under Section 482 of Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 is liable to be accepted as mentioned in memorandum of grounds of petition?

Point No.2

Final order.

5. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that petitioner was asked to assist the tender process committee to complete the formality of tender work and petitioner was asked to fill up the register and was asked to help the Superintendent of office for completion of tender process and petitioner did not receive any tender earnest money from contractors and same was received by Shri Piare Lal Sr. Assistant who actually issued the receipts against money received by him and on this ground petition be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force. Fact whether petitioner received tender earnest money from contractors or not is a complicated issue of facts. Judicial findings relating to complicated issue of facts cannot be given at this stage of case. Judicial findings would be given after giving due opportunity to both parties to lead evidence in support of their case.

6. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that separate disciplinary proceedings were initiated against the petitioner and inquiry officer submitted the report that petitioner is not liable and thereafter findings of inquiry officer remitted back and on this ground petition be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for the reasons hereinafter mentioned. It is well settled law that departmental proceedings and criminal proceedings under Indian Penal Code 1860 are distinct proceedings. It is well settled law that criminal proceedings under Indian Penal Code 1860 cannot be dropped automatically simply on ground that separate departmental proceedings are under process relating to same facts. It is well settled law that two parallel proceedings relating to same facts qua distinct offence could continue in accordance with law. See AIR 1961 SC 578 title State of Bombay vs. S.L.Apte. See AIR 1954 SC 375 title S.A.Venkataraman vs. Union of India.

7. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that Senior Executive Engineer Electric Division HPSEBL Reckongpeo Kinnaur H.P. has enmity with petitioner because when Senior Executive Engineer Electric Division was posted at Kaza along with petitioner there was case of embezzlement registered against official who was close friend of Senior Executive Engineer and on this ground petition be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for the reasons hereinafter mentioned. Fact whether Senior Executive Engineer has enmity with petitioner because petitioner has registered embezzlement case against friend of Senior Executive Engineer at Kaza is also complicated issue of facts. It is held that judicial findings relating to complicated issue of facts cannot be given at this stage of case unless opportunity is granted to both parties to lead evidence in support of their case.

8. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that petitioner is not involved in embezzlement of amount because earnest money of tender is received by Sr. Assistant Piare Lal and same is counter signed by SDO and on this ground petition be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for the reasons hereinafter mentioned. Whether earnest money of tender was received by Senior Assistant Shri Piare Lal or not is also complicated issue of facts. It is not exepdient in the ends of justice to give judicial findings relating to complicated issue of facts at this stage of case unless opportunity is granted to both parties to lead evidence in support of their case.

9. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that petitioner has no malafide intention in recording the entry in register because if petitioner would have intention for embezzlement then he would actually record less amount in register than the money received and on this ground petition be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for the reasons hereinafter mentioned. Issue relating to absence of mensrea on part of petitioner cannot be decided at this stage of case because issue relating to absence of mensrea is a complicated issue of facts and it is not exepdient in the ends of justice to give judicial findings relating to complicated issue of facts unless opportunity is granted to both parties to lead evidence in support of their case.

10. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that tender processing committee did not adopt the proper procedure as per manual and on this ground petition be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for the reasons hereinafter mentioned. Issue whether tender committee did not adopt the proper procedure is also complicated issue of facts. Judicial findings relating to non-adoption of proper procedure cannot be given at this stage of case unless opportunity is granted to both parties to lead evidence in support of their case.

11. After perusal of statement of prosecution witnesses annxed with charge sheet i.e. (1) Ajit Singh Negi (2) Piar Pur Negi (3) Jai Pal Singh (4) Deepak Chauhan (5) Jagdish Chand (6) Uveesh Chander (7) Mohan Singh (8) Bhupender Singh (9) Inder Singh (10) Kaami Lama (11) Dr.Visheshwar Sharma (12) Punya Ram (13) HC Sarju Ram (14) C. Rajesh Kumar (15) Deputy Superintendent Yadav Chand, (16) Yodha Ram and (17) Laxman Kumar recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. prima facie there are sufficient grounds to proceed against the accused/petitioner.

12. After perusal of documentary evidence placed on record i.e. (1) Challan form (2) FIR (3) Complaint along with documents (4) Recovery memo (5) Letter No. 434(Sectt.)FTE/2/DOFP/2011 (6) Tender form sale register (7) Tender opening register (8) Notice Inviting tender (9) Applications of contractors for tender (10) Tender document dated 3.7.2013 (11) Receipt Book No. 0084201 to 0084300 (12) Receipt Book No. 0084201 to 0084400 (13)

Applications of contractors to withdraw deposited earnest money (14) Letter No. 8120 dated 2.1.2014 alongwith cash book page No. 72 dated 4.7.2013 (15) Copies of appointment and posting order of petitioner Shyam Lal draftsman (16) Copies of appointment and posting order of co-accused Piare Lal cashier (17) Specimen handwriting and signatures of petitioner/co-accused Shyam Lal Draftsman S-1 to S-24. (18) Specimen hand writing and signatures of co-accused Piare Lal cashier S-25 to S-48. (19) Report filed by SFSL Junga it is held that prima facie there are sufficient grounds to proceed against the petitioner.

13. Offence under Sections 409, 468, 471 IPC are cognizable criminal offence. It is well settled law that investigating agency is under statutory obligation to investigate the case relating to FIR filed in cognizable criminal cases. It is well settled law that disputed and controversial facts should not be made basis for quashing criminal proceedings. It is well settled law that High Court should exercise jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. for quashing FIR and criminal proceedings sparingly and with circumspection. It is well settled law that evaluation of truth and falsity would be possible when evidence would be recorded by learned Trial Court in accordance with law. See AIR 2014 SC 3352 title Mosiruddin Munshi vs. Md. In view of above stated facts and case law cited supra point No. 1 is answered in negative.

Point No.2(Final Order)

14. In view of findings upon point No.1 petition filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is dismissed. BEFORE HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE SANDEEP SHARMA, J.

State of H.P. .....Appellant.

Versus

Ramswaroop & Ors. .....Respondents.

RSA No.185 of 2004

Date of Decision: 16.09.2016

Specific Relief Act, 1963- Section 34- Plaintiffs filed a civil suit for declaration pleading that they are owners in possession of the suit land- half share of the suit land was owned by predecessor-in-interest of the plaintiffs and remaining half share was owned by M- M mortgaged his share with the predecessor-in-interest of the plaintiffs- mutation was sanctioned to this effect- mortgage was never redeemed either by M or by his successors- the right of redemption was extinguished by efflux of time and the plaintiffs became owners of the suit land – the land has been wrongly shown in the ownership and possession of S – hence, the suit was filed for seeking the declaration- the defendant denied the averments of the plaint- the suit was decreed by the trial Court- an appeal was filed, which was allowed and the case was remanded to the trial Court- again the suit was decreed- an appeal was filed, which was dismissed – held, in second appeal that an issue regarding the lack of jurisdiction was framed by the trial Court which was not pressed, therefore, it is not permissible to raise the question of jurisdiction in the second appeal-

further, the suit was filed regarding the declaration of the right of a person which falls exclusively within the jurisdiction of the Civil Court- the suit land was shown to be in the ownership and possession of M, who had mortgaged it with the predecessor-in-interest of the plaintiffs- plaintiffs are in continuous possession of the suit land since then M had not redeemed the mortgaged at any point of time- even successors of M had not filed an application for redemption, therefore, Courts had rightly decreed the suit- appeal dismissed. (Para-17 to 27)

For the Appellant:	Mr. Rupinder Thakur, Additional Advocate General with Mr. Rajat Chauhan, Law Officer.
For the Respondents:	Mr. Sanjay Jaswal, Advocate for respondents No. 1(a), 2(a, 4(a) to 4(c), 6(a) to 6(e), 7, 8 and 10. Respondents No. 3(a) to 3(i) and 9(a) to 9(c) already exparte. Respondents No. 5 to 11 already delected.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Sandeep Sharma, Judge

Instant Regular Second Appeal filed under Section 100 of the Code of Civil procedure is directed against the judgment and decree dated 30.11.2002, passed by learned Additional District Judge, Nahan, District Sirmaur, H.P. in Civil Appeal No. 49-N/13 of 2002, affirming the judgment and decree dated 8.5.2002, passed by learned Senior Sub Judge, Sirmaur District at Nahan, H.P. in Civil Suit No. 253/1 of 2001/96, whereby suit filed by plaintiffs was decreed by declaring him to be owner in possession of entire suit land including disputed share of Shri Mohar singh (Original mortgagor) comprised under Khewat No. 8, Khatauni Nos. 25, 26 and 27, total measuring 23-16 bighas as per jamabandi for the year 1992-93 situated in village Chamba Sheel, Tehsil Nahan, District Sirmaur, H.P. Learned trial Court while allowing aforesaid suit of the plaintiffs also declared revenue entries showing defendant i.e. State of H.P. as owner of mortgagor of suit land to the extent of ½ share, illegal, null and void and not binding upon the right of the plaintiffs.

2. Briefly stated facts, as emerged from the record are that the plaintiffs (hereinafter after referred to as the 'respondents-plaintiffs') filed suit for declaration against defendant (hereinafter referred to as the 'appellant-defendant') averring therein that they are owner in possession of suit land comprised in Khewat No. 8, Khatauni Nos. 25, 26 & 27, measuring 23 bighas and 16 biswas as per jamabandi for the year 1992-93 situated in village Chamba Sheel, Tehsil Nahan, District Sirmaur, H.P. , which has been recorded in the column of ownership to the extent of ½ share in the name of the appellant-defendant and the remaining ½ share in the names of the plaintiffs-respondents. Plaintiffs-respondents further averred that half share of the suit land was owned by predecessor-in-interest of plaintiffs-respondents, namely, S/Shri Dharmu & Bir Singh sons of Shri Ganga Ram to the extent of the of ½ share and the remaining ½ share was owned by Shri Mohar Singh son of Shri Mangal Singh. As per plaintiffs-respondents, Shri Mohar Singh mortgaged his share with the predecessor-in-interest of plaintiffs-respondents vide mutation No. 16 attested on 20th Chait BK Sambat 1970. Plaintiffs-respondents further contended that predecessor-in-interest of plaintiffs-respondents remained in possession of entire suit land and mortgage was never redeemed either by Shri Mohar Singh or his successor-in-interest, as a result of which, the plaintiffs-respondents, who succeeded the suit land, became owner of the entire suit land. Plaintiffs-respondents further contended that half share of Shri Mohar Singh in the suit land was inherited by Smt. Sandla Devi widow of Shri Mohar Singh, but since she also failed to get the mortgage of the suit land redeemed till 31.12.1970, her right to get the suit land redeemed got extinguished, as a result of which, plaintiffs-respondents became absolute owner of the suit land. Plaintiffs-respondents further alleged that Smt. Sandla Devi in connivance with the appellant-defendant surrendered half share of the suit land in favour of appellant-defendant, as a result of which, appellant-defendant was shown mortgagor of the suit land, but fact remains that entire suit land was in possession of the plaintiffs-respondents and same was wrongly shown in the ownership of Smt. Sandla Devi after 31.12.1970. In the aforesaid background, plaintiffs-respondents filed suit for declaration as has been detailed hereinabove.

3. Present appellant-defendant by way of written statement refuted the claim of the plaintiffs-respondents by stating that total area of holding was 8-9 bighas whereas now the plaintiffs-respondents are claiming ownership and possession of 23-16 bighas. Appellant-defendant further contended that plaintiffs-respondents got the revenue entries changed in their favour in connivance with the revenue officials by playing fraud upon the appellant-defendant. Appellant-defendant further stated that mortgage created by Shri Mohar Singh in favour of predecessor-in-interest of the plaintiffs-respondents was without any share in shamlat, as such, plaintiffs-respondents cannot be treated owner in possession of 23-16 bighas of land. In the aforesaid background, appellant-defendant sought dismissal of the suit filed by the plaintiffs-respondents.

4. Plaintiffs-respondents by way of replication reiterated its case as made out in plaint and denied all the averments contained in the written statement. Learned trial Court on the basis of pleadings available on record framed following issues on 11.12.1997:-

"1. Whether the plaintiffs are entitled for the decree of declaration, as alleged? ...OPP

2. Whether the suit is not maintainable in the present form? ...OPD

3. Whether plaintiff has no enforceable cause of action? OPD

4. Whether the suit is not within time? OPD

5. Whether this Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the present suit? OPD

6. Whether the plaintiffs have no locus-standi to file the present suit? OPD

7. Whether the suit is not properly valued for the purpose of court fees and jurisdiction? OPD

8. Whether no valid and legal notice as required under Section 80, C.P.C. served upon the defendant? If so, its effect? OPD.

9. Relief."

5. Thereafter, vide judgment and decree dated 5.11.1999, learned trial Court decreed the suit of the plaintiffs-respondents. Present appellant-defendant i.e. State of H.P. being aggrieved with the passing of judgment and decree dated 5.11.1999, preferred an appeal before Appellate Court i.e. learned District Judge, Sirmaur at Nahan. The learned Appellate Court vide judgment dated 15.11.2001 set aside the impugned judgment and decree dated 5.11.1999 and remanded the case to the learned trial Court for fresh trial after recasting issue No. 1, which is as under:-

"Whether the entire suit land was mortgaged with possession with the predecessor-in-interest of the plaintiffs and as such they are entitled to the decree for declaration, as prayed for? ...OPP"

6. Accordingly, learned trial Court in terms of judgment dated 15.11.2001 called upon the parties to lead evidence on additional re-casted issue No. 1, but fact remains that no oral or documentary evidence was led on record by the parties. Learned trial Court on the basis of evidence adduced on record by the respective parties, decreed the suit of the plaintiffs-respondents, as has been detailed hereinabove.

7. Being aggrieved and dis-satisfied with the impugned judgment passed by learned trial Court, present appellant-defendant filed an appeal before learned Additional District Judge, Sirmaur District at Nahan, which came to be registered as Civil Appeal No. 49-N/13 of 2002 and learned Additional District Judge vide judgment 30.11.2002 dismissed the appeal preferred by the present appellant-defendant and upheld the trial Court judgment dated 8.5.2002.

8. Hence, present Regular Second Appeal by present appellant-defendant praying therein for setting aside the judgments and decrees passed by both the Courts below.

9. This Regular Second Appeal was admitted on the following substantial questions of law:-

> "1 That the Judgment and Decree dated 30.11.2002 passed by Addl. District Judge, Nahan, District Sirmaur by affording the Judgment and Decree passed by Senior Sub-Judge, Nahan dated 8.5.2002 is against the provision of H.P. Mortgage Redemption Act, 1971 with the result the Judgment and decree passed by the Ld. Courts below are liable to be set aside.
>
> 2. That the both Courts below has acted beyond the jurisdiction vested in it under Law with the result the Judgment and decree passed by the Courts below are not tenable in the eyes of law and needs to be set-aside.
>
> 3. Whether the Judgment and decree passed by the Courts below are exercised the jurisdiction nor vested in it as the jurisdiction cannot be assumed by the consent of the parties and specific findings were required for the issues framed by the Courts below. Particularly issue No. 5 with the result, the judgment and decree passed by the Courts below are liable to be set aside.
>
> 4. Whether the both Courts below have mis-read and misinterpreted the evidence and documents of the parties with the result the judgment and decree passed by Courts below are liable to be set aside.
> 5. Whether the Courts below were having jurisdiction to triable beyond his scope of jurisdiction and to decide the matter where it was neither the pleading of the necessary party nor it was evidence of the party at the case not pleaded and proved."

10. Shri Rupinder Singh Thakur, learned Additional Advocate General representing the appellant-defendant vehemently argued that judgments passed by both the Courts below are not sustainable as the same are not based upon the correct appreciation of evidence available on record, as such, same deserves to be quashed and set aside. Mr. Thakur forcefully contended that both the Courts below have gravely erred in exercising their jurisdiction, which is not vested in it, specifically in the matter arising / falling within the scope of H.P. Mortgage Redemption Act, 1971 and H.P. Restitution of Mortgaged Lands Act, 1976. As per Mr. Thakur, Collector of District u/s 2 (2) and 13 of the Acts decided the matter arising out of this matter and whereas the jurisdiction of Civil Court is completely barred, as such, he prayed for quashing and setting aside of the impugned judgments passed by both the Courts below. As per Mr. Thakur, since plaintiffs-respondents in Civil Suit has questioned the validity of vestment of land, which admittedly falls under Himachal Pradesh Restitution of Mortgaged Lands Act, 1976, jurisdiction of the Civil Court is completely barred under Section 13 of the Act No. 20 of 1976, as such, judgments passed by both the Courts below are quashed and set aside being illegal.

11. Mr. Thakur further contended that both the Courts below have traveled beyond the jurisdiction and has not decided the matter on the question of jurisdiction and Courts below have failed to return findings on issue No. 5 framed by Senior Sub Judge, Nahan, as such, prayed for quashing and setting aside the judgments passed by both the Courts below. Mr. Thakur while concluding his arguments strenuously argued that subject matter decided by the Courts below was pure question of law and issue No. 5 as framed by the learned Senior Sub Judge, Nahan, ought to have been decided as preliminary issue by the Court without adverting to the merits of the case, as such, grave injustice has been caused to the present appellant-defendant. Similarly, Mr. Thakur made this Court to travel through the statements of witnesses adduced on record by the plaintiffs-respondents to demonstrate that plaintiff himself never stepped into witness box though he was alive, at that relevant time, as such, in absence, Courts below should have refrained from granting discretionary relief of declaration. In the aforesaid background, Mr. Thakur prayed that present appeal may be accepted by quashing and setting aside the impugned judgment passed by both the Courts below.

12. Mr. Sanjay Jaswal, counsel representing the plaintiffs-respondents supported the judgments passed by both the Courts below. Mr. Jaswal vehemently argued that bare perusal of the impugned judgment passed by First Appellate Court clearly suggests that same is based upon the correct appreciation of evidence adduced on record by the respective parties. He solely with a view to substantiate his aforesaid plea, invited the attention of the Court to the judgments passed by both the Courts below to demonstrate that Courts below have dealt with each and every aspect of the matter meticulously, as such, no interference, whatsoever, of this Court is warranted in the present facts and circumstances of the case.

13. While refuting arguments having been made on behalf of counsel representing the appellant-defendant that Civil Court had no jurisdiction, he invited the attention of this Court to the plaint filed by plaintiffs-respondents, whereby they sought declaration that revenue entries showing appellant-defendant as owner with respect to Khewat No. 8, Khatauni No. 25, 26 & 27, measuring 23 bighas and 16 biswas as per jamabandi for the year 1992-93 situated in village Chamba Sheel, Tehsil Nahan, District Sirmaur may be declared illegal, null and void and not binding upon the right of the plaintiffs-respondents qua ownership of the suit land. Perusal of plaint, as shown to the Court, clearly suggests that, at no point of time, plaintiffs-respondents in Civil Suit questioned the validity of vestment of land with the appellant-defendant, rather, by way of Civil Suit, plaintiffs-respondents made a prayer to declare revenue entries illegal, null & void showing appellant-defendant as owner qua the suit land as per jamabandi for the year 1992-93.

14. Mr. Jaswal further contended that since suit was filed for granting decree of declaration declaring that entries showing appellant-defendant as owner qua the suit land, dispute, if any, as alleged by the appellant-defendant could not be decided in terms of provisions of H.P. Mortgage Redemption Act, 1971 and the Civil Court had all the jurisdiction to look into the controversy at hand. Mr. Jaswal also invited the attention of the Court to the para 16 of the judgment dated 8.5.2002 passed by learned trial Court to demonstrate that counsel representing appellant-defendant had himself not pressed issue Nos. 4, 5 and 7 and accordingly learned trial Court decided the issue as not pressed against the appellant-defendant. He also invited the attention of this Court to Issue No. 5 "Whether this Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the present suit?, Mr. Jaswal contended that since appellant-defendant themselves not pressed the issue of jurisdiction i.e. Issue No. 5, now it does not lie in the mouth of appellant-defendant to rake up the issue of jurisdiction at this appellate stage.

15. Mr. Jaswal while concluding his arguments also invited the attention of the Court to the evidence led on record by the plaintiffs-respondents to demonstrate that plaintiffs-respondents were successful in proving that the revenue entries showing the appellant-defendant i.e. State of H.P. as owner of the suit land to the extent of half share was illegal, null and void and not binding upon the right of the plaintiff, as such, there is no illegality and infirmity in the judgments passed by the Courts below. Mr. Jaswal further contended that this Court has very limited power to re-appreciate the evidence, especially, when both the Courts below have returned concurrent findings on the facts as well as law. In this regard, to substantiate the aforesaid plea, he placed reliance upon the judgment passed by Hon'ble Apex Court in Laxmidevamma and Others Vs. Ranganath and Others, (2015)4 SCC 264.

16. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and have gone through the record of the case.

17. Careful perusal of substantial questions of law No. 1 to 3, as reproduced hereinabove, suggests that same pertains to jurisdiction of Civil Court to decide controversy at hand and, as such, this Court would be taking up these issues together for consideration at the first instance.

18. It has been vehemently argued on behalf of counsel representing the appellant-defendant that learned First Appellate Court erred in upholding the judgment passed by learned trial Court, especially, when jurisdiction of Civil Court was completely barred in the facts and circumstances of the case. Mr. Rupinder Thakur, learned Additional Advocate General, argued that Courts below have fallen in grave error while exercising their jurisdiction whereas this matter was arising / falling within the scope of the Himachal Pradesh Mortgage Redemption Act, 1971 and H.P. Restitution of Mortgaged Lands Act, 1976. Mr. Thakur also contended that plaintiffs in Civil Suit no where questioned the validity of vestment of land, which falls under the H.P. Restitution of Mortgaged Lands Act, 1976 and jurisdiction of the Civil Court was also barred under Section 13 of the Act No. 20 of 1976.

19. But perusal of judgment dated 8.5.2002 passed by learned Senior Sub Judge, District Sirmaur at Nahan clearly suggests that it had framed specific issue with regard to jurisdiction to entertain the present suit, which is as under:-

"5. Whether this Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the present suit."

20. Interestingly, as emerged from Para 16 of the judgment rendered by learned trial Court, learned ADA representing defendant-State, at that relevant time, did not press issue No. 4, 5 and 7 and moreover no arguments were addressed on specific issue of jurisdiction as mentioned in Para 16 of the judgment. Accordingly, learned trial Court decided issue Nos. 4, 5 and 7 against the defendant-State being not pressed.

21. This Court is of the view that since issue specifically framed by learned trial Court with regard to jurisdiction of Court was not pressed by appellant-defendant, now it is not open for it to raise the issue of jurisdiction, that too, during the second appeal. Moreover, there is no explanation noted even in the grounds of appeal before this Court while maintaining present appeal that why issue Nos. 4, 5 and 7 were not pressed by learned counsel representing the defendant-State during trial stage, as such, this Court is unable to accept the contention put-forth on behalf of counsel representing the appellant-defendant that issue No. 5 framed by trial Court was not taken up for consideration and no findings were returned. Appellant-defendant in its grounds of appeal as well as submission having been made during the arguments specifically stated that judgments passed by Courts below deserves to be quashed and set aside solely on the ground that Courts below miserably failed to return findings qua issue No. 5, but as has been discussed above, issue Nos. 4, 5 and 7, which also includes issue of jurisdiction were not pressed by the present appellant-defendant, as such, learned trial Court had no occasion whatsoever, to return findings qua the same. Moreover, as emerged from the record, learned A.D.A., at that relevant time, had not addressed any arguments qua issue of jurisdiction, as such, this Court sees no force in the contention put-forth on behalf of counsel representing the appellant-defendant that issue No. 5 was not dealt with by the learned trial Court while deciding the suit.

22. Moreover, this Court after perusing the relief clause contained in the plaint, is in total disagreement with the contention put-forth on behalf of appellant-defendant that since plaintiffs in civil suit did not question the validity of vestment of land, which falls under H.P. Restitution of Mortgaged Lands Act, 1976, jurisdiction of Civil Court was barred under Section 13 of the Act No. 20 of 1976. The Section 13 of the Act No. 20 of 1976 is reproduced here-in-below:-

> "13. Jurisdiction of civil courts barred. – No civil court shall have jurisdiction to entertain any claim to enforce any right under a mortgage declared extinguished under this Act, or to question the validity of any proceedings under this Act.

Otherwise also bare perusal of averments contained in plaint as well as relief, clearly suggests that by way of civil suit, plaintiffs prayed for granting decree of declaration that the revenue entries showing the appellant-defendant as owner in respect of Khewat No. 8, Khatauni No. 25, 26 and 27, total area measuring 23 bighas, 16 biswas per jamabandi for the year, 1992-93, situated in village Chamba sheel, Tehsil Nahan, District Sirmaur be declared illegal, null & void and not binding upon the right of the plaintiffs qua ownership of the suit land.

23. Careful perusal of documents Exts.P1 to P11 clearly suggest that suit land to the extent of ½ share was earlier in ownership of predecessor-in-interest of plaintiffs, whereas ½ share of one Shri Mohar Singh, who had mortgaged it with predecessor-in-interest of plaintiff. It is also undisputed that since then plaintiffs-respondents are in continuous possession of the suit land, which was earlier in possession of predecessor-in-interest. Similarly, appellant-defendant has not been able to prove on record that suit land mortgaged by Mohar Singh in favour of predecessor-in-interest of plaintiffs was, at any point of time, got redeemed by his widow Smt. Sandla Devi within stipulated period. Since, Smt. Sandla Devi and any LRs of late Mohar Singh failed to redeem the property mortgaged with the predecessor-in-interest of plaintiffs-respondents, plaintiffs-respondents became owner of the same after expiry of stipulated time.

24. Hence, this Court sees no illegality and infirmity in the findings returned by the Courts below that even if it is presumed that Smt. Sandla Devi after inheriting half share of Shri Mohar Singh relinquished her share in favour of State of H.P., she had no right, title or interest in the suit land after 31.12.1970, when plaintiffs-respondents had became absolute owner due to failure of Smt. Sandla Devi or other LRs of Shri Mohar Singh to redeem the land within stipulated period. Since, by way present suit, plaintiffs-respondents had only sought decree of declaration that the revenue entries showing appellant-defendant as owner of the suit land may be declared illegal, null and void, Civil Court had all jurisdiction to decide the controversy at hand and, as such, there is no force in the arguments having been advanced on behalf of appellant-defendant. Hence, substantial questions of law No. 1 to 3 are answered accordingly.

25. Now, this Court would be taking up substantial question of law No. 4. Since, this Court while exploring answer to aforesaid substantial question of law, as has been decided in earlier part of judgment, had an opportunity to peruse the entire evidence, be it ocular or documentary, led on the record by the respective parties, it can be safely concluded that both the Courts below have dealt with each and every aspect of the matter very meticulously and there is no mis-reading and mis-interpretation of the evidence led on record by the respective parties, rather both the Courts below have examined each and every aspect of the matter minutely before arriving at final conclusion. Hence, this Court sees no force in the contention put-forth on behalf of counsel representing the appellant-defendant that learned Courts below mis-read and min-interpreted the evidence, as a result of which, suit of the plaintiff was decreed. Accordingly, substantial question No. 4 is answered accordingly.

26. This Court sees no illegality and infirmity, if any, in the judgments passed by the Courts below, rather, same are based upon correct appreciation of the evidence available on record. This Court is fully satisfied that both the Courts below have critically examined the issue involved in the matter and there is no scope of interference, whatsoever, in the present matter. Since, both the Courts below have returned concurrent findings, which otherwise appear to be based upon proper appreciation of evidence, this Court has very limited jurisdiction/scope to interfere in the matter. In this regard, it would be apt to reproduce the relevant contents of judgment rendered by Hon'ble Apex Court in Laxmidevamma and Others vs. Ranganath and Others,* (2015)4 SCC 264, herein below:-

> "16. Based on oral and documentary evidence, both the courts below has recorded concurrent findings of fact that plaintiffs have established their right in 'A' schedule property. In the light of concurrent findings of fact, no substantial questions of law arose in the High Court and there was no substantial ground for re-appreciation of evidence. While so, the High Court proceeded to observe that the first plaintiff has earmarked the 'A' schedule property for road and that she could not have full fledged right and on that premise proceeded to hold that declaration to plaintiffs' right cannot be granted. In exercise of jurisdiction under Section 100 C.P.C., concurrent findings of fact cannot be upset by the High Court unless the findings so recorded are shown to be perverse. In our considered view, the High Court did not keep in view that the concurrent findings recorded by the courts below, are based on oral and documentary evidence and the judgment of the High Court cannot be sustained."

27. Consequently, in view of the discussion made hereinabove, this Court is of the view that the judgments passed by both the Courts below are based on correct appreciation of the evidence, be it ocular or documentary on the record and, as such, present appeal fails and same is accordingly dismissed.

28. Interim directions, if any, are vacated. All miscellaneous applications are disposed of.

2. The case of the prosecution, in a nut shell, is that on 23.8.1999 at about 4:30 PM accused Sarwan Kumar produced two General Power of Attorneys before Sub Registrar (Tehsildar), Sadar, Mandi for registration in the presence of Manohar Lal, Advocate. 3. The prosecution, in order to prove its case, has examined as many as eight witnesses. The accused were also examined under Section 313 Cr.P.C. They pleaded innocence and stated that the witnesses have stated falsely. The learned trial Court acquitted the accused, as noticed hereinabove. Hence, this appeal.

4. Mr. P.M.Negi, Dy Advocate General, for the State has vehemently argued that the prosecution has proved its case against the accused. On the other hand, Mr. R.R.Rahi, Advocate has supported the judgment of the learned trial Court dated 1.12.2005.

5. We have heard the learned counsel for both the sides and have also gone through the judgment and records of the case carefully.

6. PW-1 Prabodh Saxena, Deputy Commissioner, has stated that in the year 1999, he was posted as Deputy Commissioner, Mandi. On 23.8.1999, Sub Registrar (Tehsildar) informed him that two General Power of Attorneys were produced before him through Sh. Manohar Lal, Advocate and when he made inquiry from Lekh Ram, he could not satisfy him and ran away from the Tehsil Office. The complaint is Ext. PW-1/A.

7. PW-2 Pratap Singh testified that on 23.8.1999 accused Sarwan Kumar produced two General Power of Attorneys through Sh. Manohar Lal, Advocate for registration in which there were nine executors and in another there were four executors. Sh. Manohar Lal, Advocate disclosed that some other person had appeared on behalf of Lekh Ram and when he made inquiry Sunder Lal disclosed that he was Lekh Ram but he could not satisfy him and ran away from the Court Room. The police was informed. Complaint Ext. PW-2/A was registered. The police took into possession two General Power of Attorneys vide seizure memo Ext. PW-2/B. In his cross-examination, he admitted that he told the police that the person who appeared in place of Lekh Ram disclosed his name as Sunder Lal, however, this fact was not recorded in his statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C.

8. PW-3 Amin Chand testified that in the year 1999, Sarwan Kumar produced two General Power of Attorneys for registration before Tehsildar and Sh. Manohar Lal, Advocate was also present at that time. When Tehsildar made inquiry from Lekh Ram, he could not reply satisfactorily. Later on, they came to know that Sunder Lal appeared as Lekh Ram and Tehsildar handed over the General Power of Attorneys to the police.

9. PW-4 Bhagi Rath Sharma testified that he typed the General Power of Attorneys.

10. PW-5 HC Sanjay Kumar has taken the General Power of Attorneys into possession. He arrested the accused and procured specimen signatures before the Naib Tehsildar Gopal Chand. These documents were sent to GEQD for opinion.

11. PW-6 Bishan Dass testified that on the request of police, he issued certificate Ext. PW-6/A.

14. The case of the prosecution, in a nut shell, is that accused Sarwan Kumar has represented himself to be Lekh Ram and attempted to cheat the Sub Registrar (Tehsildar), Sadar, Mandi. According to the prosecution case, this incident has taken place in the presence of Sh. Manohar Lal, Advocate. Sh. Manohar Lal, Advocate was a material witness, however, fact of the matter is that Sh. Manohar Lal, Advocate has not been examined by the prosecution as a witness.

15. PW-2 Pratap Singh testified that he came to know that some other person was appearing on behalf of Lekh Ram when accused appeared in the Court. Surprisingly, PW-3 Amin Chand deposed that he came to know about this fact after 1-2 days of the incident. No identification parade of the accused was conducted by the police. It has also come on record that the accused were not previously known to the witnesses. The prosecution has failed to prove the case against the accused for offences punishable under Sections 420, 120-B and 511 IPC. Thus, there is no occasion for us to interfere with the well reasoned judgment of the learned trial Court dated 1.12.2005.

16. Accordingly, there is no merit in this appeal and the same is dismissed.

Cr. Appeal No.: 79 of 2012
Date of Decision: 16.09.2016

Indian Penal Code, 1860- Section 363, 366-A and 376- Prosecutrix went for tuition but did not return- accused told the father of the prosecutrix that she had been taken away by some boys- he was going to search for her - subsequently he informed father of the prosecutrix that she was with him – matter was reported to police- accused and prosecutrix were found in Khad- prosecutrix told that accused had sexual intercourse with her at Chintpurni without her consent and against her will- some documents were prepared at Nadaun- she was taken to Jawalamukhi, where she was again assaulted sexually by the accused- accused was tried and acquitted by the trial Court- held, in appeal that prosecutrix had talked to her mother on telephone- despite this complaint was lodged after 4 days- justification given by the informant that he had reported the matter to panchayat was not substantiated from any material on record – the fact that matter was not reported to the police immediately is highly unnatural- an inference which can be drawn from his conduct is that he was aware of the fact that the prosecutrix had not been kidnapped by the accused and that she had gone with him out of her free will and volition- prosecutrix was taken in public transport to various places - no attempt was made by her to escape from wrongful custody- prosecutrix had not raised any hue and cry at the public place- no external injuries were found on the person of the prosecutrix, which falsifies her version that she had resisted the attempt of molestation - conviction can be based on the sole testimony of the prosecutrix, if found reliable- however, where there are contradictions and improvements in the testimony, it requires corroboration- evidence of the prosecutrix in the present case is not satisfactory or creditworthy- prosecution version was not proved beyond reasonable doubt- trial Court had rightly acquitted the accused- appeal dismissed. For the respondent : Mr. Kanta Thakur, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Ajay Mohan Goel, Judge :

By way of this appeal, the State has challenged judgment dated 30.09.2011 passed by the Court of learned Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court, Kangra at Dharamshala in RBT SC No. 70-N/VII/10/00, Sessions Trial No. 20/11 vide which, learned trial Court has acquitted the accused for commission of offences punishable under Sections 363, 366-A & 376 of the Indian Penal Code.

2. The case of the prosecution in brief was that prosecutrix, daughter of Sher Singh, resident of Jhhikli Khanny was away to Jassur for tution on 16.07.2008, but she did not come back to her house in the evening. Complainant Sher Singh remained under this impression that she might have gone to the house of his relatives. Both on 17.07.2008 and 18.07.2008, Sher Singh searched for his daughter at the houses of his relatives. However, on 18.07.2008 at 10:00 a.m., accused came and asked Sher Singh about the prosecutrix and at the same time, accused told him that she had been taken away by some boys and he was going to search for her. Further, as per the prosecution, on 19.07.2008 accused contacted Sher Singh on mobile and informed him that the prosecutrix was with him. Sher Singh suspected that his daughter had been taken away by the accused to marry with him and accordingly rapat Ex. PW1/A was lodged on 23.07.2008, on the basis of which, police made inquiries from the parents of the accused and in the meantime, accused was contacted by his parents on his mobile phone. In the morning of 27.07.2008, accused and prosecutrix were found in a Khad and they were apprehended there by Sher Singh with the help of villagers. It was disclosed to the police by the prosecutrix that on 16.07.2008, while she was coming back from tution, accused met her in his vehicle at Nagbari and asked her to board the same. Accused waited there for some time for passengers and asked prosecutrix to marry him, to which prosecutrix told him that she was only 17 years old and she wanted to study. Further, she was Rajput by caste, whereas accused was Ghirth Choudhary. As per the prosecution, accused took prosecutrix to Pathankot in his vehicle and on 17.07.2008, he brought her back to Nagbari and thereafter took her to Chintpurani in a bus. On the night of 17.07.2008 and 18.07.2008, accused kept the prosecutrix in a Saraye at Chintpurani and had sexual intercourse with her without her consent and against her will. On 19.07.2008, accused took the prosecutrix to Nadaun before a Notary Public and prepared certain documents with regard to marriage, in which the age of the prosecutrix was falsely mentioned as 19 years. In the evening, accused took the prosecutrix to Jawalamukhi and there they stayed in a room in Saraye, where again the prosecutrix was sexually molested by the accused without her consent and against her will.

3. After the accused was apprehended with the prosecutrix, both were taken to the Police Station, from where they were referred to CHC, Nurpur for medical examination.

4. After the completion of investigation, as sufficient evidence was found against the accused for commission of offences punishable under Sections 363, 366-A & 376 of the Indian Penal Code, a challan was filed in the Court and as a prima facie case was found against the accused, accordingly he was charged for having committed offences punishable under Sections 363, 366-A & 376 of the Indian Penal Code, to which he pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

In the morning, she noticed her father near the Khad and she freed herself from the accused and ran to her father. Her father called Satpaul and Kartar to the spot in the Khad and from there, they took the prosecutrix to the house of her parents. Prosecutrix further stated that Police came and took her to the Police Station, from where she was sent for medical examination. In her cross-examination, this witness stated that at the time of making the statement she was 21 years old. She also admitted that she used to travel in the vehicle of the accused before 16.07.2008. She denied that on 19.07.2008 they performed marriage at Chintpurni temple. She denied that she was not subjected to any sexual intercourse by the accused against her consent. She stated in her cross-examination that she had told the police that the accused alongnwith her parents and brother kept her in a Khad on the night of 26.07.2008 and this witness was confronted with her statement Mark-X, in which it was not so recorded. This witness was also confronted with her statement Mark-X, in which it was also not so recorded that when she saw her father near the Khad, she ran towards him and she was also confronted with Mark-X in which it was also not so recorded that the accused being uncle was like her father. She denied the suggestion that she had friendly relations with the accused and had gone with him of her own volition and the accused did not entice and compel her to accompany him. She denied that on their return, accused was given merciless beatings by her father, Satpaul, Kartar and other villagers.

19. Sher Singh entered the witness box as PW-14 and deposed that on 16.07.2008, prosecutrix went to Jassur for tuiton at about 12:30 noon, but did not return back in the evening and he thought that she might have gone to the house of some relatives. However, she did not return back on 17.07.2008 and on 18.07.2008 at about 10:00 a.m., accused came to his house and asked about whereabouts of the prosecutrix, on which Sher Singh told him that she had not come back to home for the last two days. As per this witness, at this stage, accused told him that he will search for the prosecutrix as some boys had taken her with them. He further stated that on 19.07.2008, accused rang on his mobile and told him that prosecutrix was with him and when the prosecutrix was talking with his wife, she was weeping. This witness further deposed that they tried their best to search for the prosecutrix, but could not do so and accordingly on 23.07.2008, they reported the matter to the police against the accused on the basis of suspicion. He further stated that on 27.07.2008 at about 6:30 a.m., he was away to his field and had gone towards the Khad when he noticed the prosecutrix with the accused. Prosecutrix came running to him and thereafter he called Kartar and Satpal on the spot and with their help he brought the prosecutrix to his house alongwith the accused and also informed the police. Thereafter, police came and took both the accused and his daughter to the Police Station, from where his daughter was sent for medical examination. This witness further deposed that the accused used to park his vehicle near his fields and he also used to come to their house. He further stated that his daughter told him that accused took her away without her consent and committed sexual intercourse with her. In his cross-examination, he admitted that before 16.07.2008, prosecutrix used to talk with the accused. He also admitted the suggestion that though they had come to know on 19.07.2008 that the prosecutrix was with the accused, however, they did not report the matter to the police till 23.07.2008. He further stated that the matter was reported to the Panchayat on 20.07.2008. He admitted that the prosecutrix used to travel in the vehicle of the accused before 16.07.2008 but stated that she used to pay money for the same and denied the suggestion that she did not use to pay money in this regard. He denied that prosecutrix and accused had a love affair and which was not acceptable to him due to caste factor. He admitted that prosecutrix had told them that she travelled in bus and stayed in the Sarayes of the temples.

20. Sawan Kumar Sindhia entered the witness box as PW-15 and he stated that he was Safaie Karamchari in Bansal Dharamshala Jawalamukhi and the accused had come with his wife to the Dharamshala in the year 2008. This witness further stated that as there was no room in the Dharamshala, he took the accused and his wife to the house of Poozari Krishan Swarup Sharma and they resided there. In his cross-examination, he mentioned that the lady accompanying the accused appeared to be newly married as per her clothes and other wearings.

21. I.O. Daya Sagar entered the witness box as PW-16 and he stated that *rapa*t Ex. PW11/A was entered on 23.07.2008, on the basis of which, FIR Ex. PW16/A was registered. He further deposed that on 27.07.2008, he received information on telephone from the father of the prosecutrix that accused has been seen in Nallah alongwith the prosecutrix. He further deposed that he went to village of father of the victim and found accused and victim sitting in the courtyard of Sher Singh. He further deposed that both of them were brought to the Police Station, from where prosecutrix was taken for medical examination. Thereafter, this witness deposed about the factum of investigation being carried out in this regard and recovery of the case property. In his cross-examination, he admitted that on 16.07.2008, the prosecutrix had left her house of her own. He admitted that it had come in the course of investigation that from 16.07.2008 to 26.07.2008, prosecutrix had travelled both in bus as well as in car. He also stated that he had taken into possession affidavit regarding marriage of the prosecutrix and the accused. He denied that it had come in the investigation that prosecutrix was about 18 years of age and that is why he did not record any statement of the Advocate, Notary Public etc. He stated in his cross-examination that it had come in the FIR that prosecutrix had talked with her parents on telephone and FIR was lodged only on 23.07.2008.

22. On the basis of testimonies of the said witnesses and other material produced on record by the prosecution, learned trial Court vide its judgment under challenge held that the prosecution was not able to establish the guilt of the accused beyond all reasonable doubts and on these basis, it ordered acquittal of the accused for charges punishable under Sections 363, 366-A and 376 of the Indian Penal Code. While returning the said findings, learned trial Court took into consideration that it had come on record that the accused was well known to the prosecutrix and she used to travel with the accused in his vehicle and there was no evidence which could demonstrate that past conduct of the accused was in any manner bad towards the prosecutrix. Learned trial Court further held that material produced on record demonstrated that the prosecutrix had ample time and opportunity to escape from the custody of the accused and to lodge a complaint against him had she really been forcibly taken by the accused as alleged, however, neither she lodged any complaint nor she made any attempt to escape which clearly reflected that she remained willingly with the accused throughout. It was further held by learned trial Court that prosecution was not able to establish on the basis of evidence on record that the accused in fact had kidnapped the prosecutrix on 16.07.2008 from village Nagbari from the lawful guardianship of her parents with intention to have sexual intercourse and marry her against her will. Learned trial Court further held that prosecution was not able to prove that on 17.07.2008, 18.07.2008 and 19.07.2008 accused had sexual intercourse with the prosecutrix against her will and without her consent. On the basis of said evidence, learned trial Court acquitted the accused.

23. Mr. V.S. Chauhan, learned Additional Advocate General has vehemently argued that the findings of acquittal returned by learned trial Court were perverse and not sustainable both on facts and law. Mr. Chauhan argued that the prosecution had proved beyond reasonable doubt that the prosecutrix was kidnapped by the accused from the lawful guardianship of her parents on 16.07.2008 and thereafter she was subjected to sexual intercourse by the accused against the will and consent of the prosecutrix. It was further argued by Mr. V.S. Chauhan, that learned trial Court had erred in not appreciating the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses in its correct perspective, which had resulted in great travesty of justice. According to Mr. Chauhan, it categorically stood proved from the statements of PW-13 and PW-14, i.e. prosecutrix and her father that the prosecutrix was kidnapped by the accused, who thereafter sexually molested the prosecutrix on the pretext of false promise of marriage. According to Mr. Chauhan, this very importance aspect of the matter had not been appreciated by learned trial Court in correct perspective. He further argued that the testimonies of prosecution witnesses on all material points nailed the guilt of the accused and, therefore, the judgment of acquittal passed by learned trial Court was not sustainable.

24. On the other hand, Ms. Kanta Thakur, learned counsel appearing for the respondent argued that there was neither any perversity nor any infirmity with the judgment passed by learned trial Court and according to her, learned trial Court had rightly acquitted the accused from charges punishable under Sections 363, 366-A and 376 of the Indian Penal Code as the prosecution had failed to prove beyond reasonable doubt that the accused was guilty of commission of said offences. Ms. Kanta Thakur further argued that the evidence on record was self speaking that the prosecutrix was neither minor nor she was kidnapped from the lawful custody of her parents by the accused. According to Ms. Thakur, the prosecutrix was in love with the accused and she had willfully of her own volition gone with the accused and had solemnized marriage also. According to Ms. Thakur, as the parents of the prosecutrix were not willing to accept the relation of the prosecutrix with the accused due to caste factor, it was on these basis that a false case was made against the accused in which he was implicated. On these basis, it was submitted by Ms. Thakur that the conclusion arrived at by learned trial Court to the effect that the prosecution had miserably failed to prove the charges for commission of offences punishable under Sections 363, 366-A and 376 of the Indian Penal Code called for no interference and she prayed that as there was no merit in the appeal, the same be dismissed.

25. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties and also gone through the records of the case and the judgment passed by the learned trial Court.

26. In the present case, the accused was charged for commission of offences punishable under Sections 363, 366-A and 376 of the Indian Penal Code. As per the case put forth by the prosecution, prosecutrix who was a minor was kidnapped from the lawful guardianship of her parents by the accused on 16.07.2008 with the intention to compel her to have sexual intercourse and marry him against her will.

27. Admittedly, the prosecutrix went missing on 16.07.2008 and rapat in this regard was lodged by the father of the prosecutrix against the accused on suspicion on 23.07.2008. Admittedly, accused personally met the father of the prosecutrix on 18.07.2008 and had thereafter contacted him on telephone on 19.07.2008. It has come in the testimonies of prosecution witnesses PW-13 and PW14, i.e. prosecutrix as well as her father that on 19.07.2008, the prosecutrix had conversion with her mother on telephone. Despite this, it took four days for the father of the prosecutrix to lodge a complaint against the accused with the police. The justification given by the father of the prosecutrix to explain the delay in lodging the FIR that he had reported the matter to the Panchayat on 20.07.2008 is not substantiated from any material on record. Neither any complaint has been placed on record nor Pradhan of the Gram Panchayat or any responsible officer/official of the Gram Panchayat has entered the witness box to substantiate that the factum of prosecutrix having been kidnapped by the accused was reported by the father of the prosecutrix to the Gram Panchayat.

28. In our considered view, this conduct of the father of a girl who was missing since 16.07.2008 of not reporting the matter to the police till 27.07.2008 despite the factum of her being with the accused being in his express knowledge since 19.07.2008 is highly unnatural. The only inference which can be drawn from this conduct of the father of the prosecutrix is that he was aware of the fact that the prosecutrix had not been kidnapped by the accused, but rather she had gone with the accused out of her free will and volition. This conclusion of our's is fortified by the testimony of PW-3, PW-4 as well as PW-13, i.e. the prosecutrix. According to PW-13, she was allegedly kidnapped by the accused on 16.07.2008. Thereafter, as per the version put forth by her in the Court, she was taken to various places by the accused both in car as well as by way of travelling in public transport, i.e. by bus to Pathankot, Jawalamukhi and Vaishno Devi. This witness has also stated that she was also taken by the accused to the house of his Bua, where she stayed. It is apparent and evident from her testimony that no attempt at any stage was made by her to either escape from the alleged wrongful custody of the accused nor at any stage she raised any hue and cry to the effect that she had been kidnapped by the accused. This fact assumes importance because admittedly it is not the case of the prosecutrix that after her alleged kidnapping, she was kept in a secluded place by the accused. The places where the prosecutrix was taken by the accused, even as per her testimony, were places where public at large was present. No cogent and plausible explanation has come forth from the prosecutrix as to why she did not raise any hue and cry and alarmed the public that she had been kidnapped by the accused. The factum of her being sexually molested by the accused against her will and consent has also not been proved by the prosecution at all. The statements of the doctors who examined the prosecutrix coupled with the MLCs. which are on record demonstrate that the doctors have categorically stated that there was no evidence of recent sexual intercourse with the prosecutrix and the prosecutrix seemed to be habitual of sexual intercourse. No external injuries etc. were found on the body of the prosecutrix which belied her contention that when she resisted the accused from outraging her modesty, when he physically assaulted her. The story put forth by the prosecutrix as to how the prosecutrix was recovered in a Nallah where she was kept for the entire night of 26.07.2008 by the parents of the accused is also purportedly a concocted story because this version of the prosecution has not been proved by any of the independent witnesses. The persons who had allegedly gone with the father of the prosecutrix to the Nallah from where prosecutrix was recovered and brought back to her house alongwith the accused have not been examined by the prosecution. Besides this, it has come on record that when the accused was medically examined after he and the prosecutrix were allegedly recovered from the Nallah, injuries were found on the body of the accused, which as per the accused were inflicted upon him by the father of the prosecutrix.

29. Before proceeding further, it is relevant to take note of the fact that this Court is not oblivious to the fact that in a case under Section 376 of the Indian Penal Code, conviction of the accused can be based on the sole testimony of the prosecutrix itself if the same is cogent, trustworthy and reliable.

30. It is settled law that a prosecutrix complaining of having been a victim of the offence of rape is not an accomplice after the crime. There is no rule of law that her testimony cannot be acted upon without corroboration in material particulars. This is for the reason that the prosecutrix stands at a higher pedestal than an injured witness. However, the fact still remains that the testimony of the prosecutrix on the face of it has to be acceptable. {See State of U.P. Vs. Pappu alias Yunus and another (2005) 3 Supreme Court Cases 594}.

31. Though it is settled law that corroboration is not sine qua non for conviction in a rape case, however, it is relevant to refer to the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Rameshwar Vs. State of Rajasthan AIR 1952 SC 54, in which it has been observed as under:

> "The rule, which according to the cases has hardened into one of law, is not that corroboration is essential before there can be a conviction but that the necessity of corroboration, as a matter of prudence, except where the circumstances make it safe to dispense with it, must be present to the mind of the judge...."

32. In our considered view, in the facts of the present case, as they emerge from the evidence which has been placed on record by the prosecution, it cannot be said that the testimony of the prosecutrix is either cogent or it is trustworthy, reliable or the same seems to be truthful. Further, the credibility of the testimony of the prosecutrix has also been impinged by the defence in her cross-examination. Not only there are inconsistencies and contradictions in her statement recorded in the Court of law and which was previously recorded with the police, but she has also made improvements in the same which have gone unexplained. At the cost of repetition, we state that the prosecution has not been able to produce iota of evidence to substantiate that the prosecutrix was in fact kidnapped from the lawful guardianship of her parents by the accused in the mode and manner in which the prosecution wants this Court to believe. Admittedly, there is delay in lodging of FIR and there is no cogent explanation to explain said delay in lodging of the FIR. The conduct of the father of the prosecutrix is also unnatural as is expected from a father whose young girl is found missing from the house. In fact, this possibility cannot be ruled out that the prosecutrix willfully ran away with the accused and thereafter returned back after 5-6 days and it was for this reason that the family of the prosecutrix being aware of the fact that she had willfully gone with the accused, they immediately did not lodge any FIR with the police.

33. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has held in State of Punjab Vs. Gurmit Singh and others, (1996) 2 Supreme Court Cases 384:

> "x x x x x x x x x The courts must, while evaluating evidence, remain alive to the fact that in a case of rape, no self-respecting woman would come forward in a court just to make a humiliating statement against her honour such as is involved in the commission of rape on her. In cases involving sexual molestation, supposed considerations which have no material effect on the veracity of the prosecution case or even discrepancies in the statement of the prosecutrix should not, unless the discrepancies are such which are of fatal nature, be allowed to throw out an otherwise reliable prosecution case. The inherent bashfulness of the females and the tendency to conceal outrage of sexual aggression are factors which the Courts should not over-look. The testimony of the victim in such cases is vital and unless there are compelling reasons which necessitate looking for corroboration of her statement, the courts should find no difficulty to act on the testimony of a victim of sexual assault alone to convict an accused where her testimony inspires confidence and is found to be reliable. Seeking corroboration of her statement before relying upon the same, as a rule, in such cases amounts to adding insult to injury. Why should the evidence of a girl of a woman who complains of rape or sexual molestation, be viewed with doubt, disbelief or suspicion? The Court while appreciating the evidence of a prosecutrix may look for some assurance of her statement to satisfy its judicial conscience, since she is a witness who is interested in the outcome of the charge levelled by her, but there is no requirement of law to insist upon corroboration of her statement to base conviction of an accused. The evidence of a victim of sexual assault stands almost at par with the evidence of an injured witness and to an extent is even more reliable. Just as a witness who has sustained some injury in the occurrence, which is not found to be self inflicted, is considered to be a good witness in the sense that he is least likely to shield the real culprit, the evidence of a victim of a sexual offence is entitled to great weight, absence of corroboration notwithstanding. Corroborative evidence is not an imperative component of judicial credence in every case of rape. Corroboration as a condition for judicial reliance on the testimony of the prosecutrix is not a requirement of law but a guidance of prudence under given circumstances. It must not be over-looked that a woman or a girl subjected to sexual assault is not an accomplice to the crime but is a victim of another persons's lust and it is improper and undesirable to test her evidence with a certain amount of suspicion, treating her as if she were an accomplice. Inferences have to be drawn from a given set of facts and circumstances with realistic diversity and not dead uniformity lest that type of rigidity in the shape of rule of law is introduced through a new form of testimonial tyranny making justice a casualty. Courts cannot cling to a fossil formula and insist upon corroboration even if, taken as a whole, the case spoken of by the victim of sex crime strikes the judicial mind as probable. In State of Maharashtra Vs. Chandraprakash Kewalchand Jain (1990 (1) SCC 550) Ahmadi, J. (as the Lord Chief Justice then was) speaking for the Bench summarised the position in the following words: (SCC p. 559, para 16)

"A prosecutrix of a sex offence cannot be put on par with an accomplice. She is in fact a victim of the crime. The Evidence Act nowhere says that her evidence cannot be accepted unless it is corroborated in material particulars. She is undoubtedly a competent witness under Section 118 and her evidence must receive the same weight as is attached to an injured in cases of physical violence. The same degree of care and caution must attach in the evaluation of her evidence as in the case of an injured complainant or witness and no more. What is necessary is that the court must be alive to and conscious of the fact that it is dealing with the evidence of a person who is interested in the outcome of the charge levelled by her. If the court keeps this in mind and feels satisfied that it can act on the evidence of the prosecutrix, there is no rule of law or practice incorporated in the Evidence Act similar to illustration (b) to Section 114 which requires it to look for corroboration. If for some reason the court is hesitant to place implicit reliance on the testimony of the prosecurtix it may look for evidence which may lend assurance to her testimony short of corroboration required in the case of an accomplice. The nature of evidence required to lend assurance to the testimony of the prosecutrix must necessarily depend on the facts and circumstances of each case. But if a prosecutrix is an adult and of full understanding the court is entitled to base a conviction of her evidence unless the same is shown to be infirm and not trustworthy. If the totality of the circumstances appearing on the record of the case disclose that the prosecutrix does not have a strong motive to falsely involve the person charged, the court should ordinarily have no hesitation in accepting her evidence. "

34. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Radhu Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, (2007) 12 Supreme Court Cases 57 has held:

" 6. It is now well settled that a finding of guilt in a case of rape, can be based on the uncorroborated evidence of the prosecutrix. The very nature of offence makes it difficult to get direct corroborating evidence. The evidence of the prosecutrix should not be rejected on the basis of minor discrepancies and contradictions. If the victim of rape states on oath that she was forcibly subjected to sexual intercourse, her statement will normally be accepted, even if it is uncorroborated, unless the material on record requires drawing of an inference that there was consent or that the entire incident was improbable or imaginary. Even if there is consent, the act will still be a 'rape', if the girl is under 16 years of age. It is also well settled that absence of injuries on the private parts of the victim will not by itself falsify the case of rape, nor construed as evidence of consent. Similarly, the opinion of a doctor that there was no evidence of any sexual intercourse or rape, may not be sufficient to disbelieve the accusation of rape by the victim. Bruises, abrasions and scratches on the victim especially on the forearms, writs, face, breast, thighs and back are indicative of struggle and will support the allegation of sexual assault. The courts should, at the same time, bear in mind that false charges of rape are not uncommon. There have also been rare instances where a parent has persuaded a gullible or obedient daughter to make a false charge of a rape either to take revenge or extort money or to get rid of financial liability. Whether there was rape or not would depend ultimately on the facts and circumstances of each case."

35. In Narender Kumar Vs. State (NCT of Delhi), (2012) 7 Supreme Court Cases 171, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held:

"20. It is a settled legal proposition that once the statement of prosecutrix inspires confidence and is accepted by the court as such, conviction can be based only on the solitary evidence of the prosecutrix and no corroboration would be required unless there are compelling reasons which necessitate the court for corroboration of her statement. Corroboration of testimony of the prosecutrix as a condition for judicial reliance is not a requirement of law but a guidance of prudence under 1 Page 12 the given facts and circumstances. Minor contradictions or insignificant discrepancies should not be a ground for throwing out an otherwise reliable prosecution case.

21. A prosecutrix complaining of having been a victim of the offence of rape is not an accomplice after the crime. Her testimony has to be appreciated on the principle of probabilities just as the testimony of any other witness; a high degree of probability having been shown to exist in view of the subject matter being a criminal charge. However, if the court finds it difficult to accept the version of the prosecutrix on its face value, it may search for evidence, direct or substantial, which may lend assurance to her testimony. (Vide: Vimal Suresh Kamble v. Chaluverapinake Apal S.P and Vishnu v. State of Maharashtra).

22. Where evidence of the prosecutrix is found suffering from serious infirmities and inconsistencies with other material, prosecutrix making deliberate improvements on material point with a view to rule out consent on her part and there being no injury on her person even though her version may be otherwise, no reliance can be placed upon her evidence. (Vide: Suresh N. Bhusare & Ors. v. State of Maharashtra.

23. In Jai Krishna Mandal & Anr. v. State of Jharkhand, this Court while dealing with the issue held: (SCC p. 535, para 4)

"4.....the only evidence of rape was the statement of the prosecutrix herself and when this evidence was read in its totality, the story projected by the prosecutrix was so improbable that it could not be believed."

36. In Munna Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, (2014) 10 Supreme Court Cases 254, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has been pleased to held:

"7. We are conscious that testimony of the prosecutrix is almost at par with an injured witness and can be acted upon without corroboration as held in various decisions of this Court. Reference may be made to some of the leading judgments.

8. In Bharwada Bhoginbhai Hirjibhai vs. State of Gujarat, this Court held as under (SCC pp. 224-26, paras 9-10)

"9. In the Indian setting, refusal to act on the testimony of a victim of sexual assault in the absence of corroboration as a rule, is adding insult to injury. Why should the evidence of the girl or the woman who complains of rape or sexual molestation be viewed with the aid of spectacles fitted with lenses tinged with doubt, disbelief or suspicion? To do so is to justify the charge of male chauvinism in a male dominated society. We must analyze the argument in support of the need for corroboration and subject it to relentless and remorseless cross examination. And we must do so with a logical, and not an opinionated, eye in the light of probabilities with our feet firmly planted on the soil of India and with our eyes focussed on the Indian horizon. We must not be swept off the feet by the approach made in the western world which has its own social milieu, its own social mores, its own permissive values, and 1 (1983) 3 SCC 217 Page 5 5 its own code of life. Corroboration may be considered essential to establish a sexual offence in the backdrop of the social ecology of the western world. It is wholly unnecessary to import the said concept on a turnkey basis and to transplant it on the Indian soil regardless of the altogether different atmosphere, attitudes, mores, responses of the Indian society, and its profile. The identities of the two worlds are different. The solution of problems cannot therefore be identical.

10. Without the fear of making too wide a statement, or of overstating the case, it can be said that rarely will a girl or a woman in India make false allegations of sexual assault …….. The statement is generally true in the context of the urban as also rural society. It is also by and large true in the context of the sophisticated, not so sophisticated, and unsophisticated society. Only very rarely can one conceivably come across an exception or two and that too possibly from amongst the urban elites. Because (1) A girl or a woman in the tradition-bound non-permissive society of India would be extremely reluctant even to admit that any incident which is likely to reflect on her chastity had ever occurred. (2) She would be conscious of the danger of being ostracized by the society or being looked down by the society including by her own family members, relatives, friends, and neighbours. (3) She would have to brave the whole world. (4) She would face the risk of losing the love and respect of her own husband and near relatives, and of her matrimonial home and happiness being shattered. (5) If she is unmarried, she would apprehend that it would be difficult to secure an alliance with a suitable match from a respectable or an acceptable family. (6) It would almost inevitably and almost invariably result in mental torture and suffering to herself. (7) The fear of being taunted by others will always haunt her. (8) She would feel extremely embarassed in relating the incident to others being overpowered by a feeling of shame on account of the upbringing in a tradition-bound society where by and large sex is taboo. (9) The natural inclination would be to avoid giving publicity to the incident lest the family name and family honour is brought into controversy. (10) The parents of an unmarried girl as also the husband and members of the husband's family of a married woman, would also more often than not, want to avoid publicity on account of the fear of social Page 6 6 stigma on the family name and family honour. (11) The fear of the victim herself being considered to be promiscuous or in some way responsible for the incident regardless of her innocence. (12) The reluctance to face interrogation by the investigating agency, to face the court, to face the cross examination by counsel for the culprit, and the risk of being disbelieved, acts as a deterrent."

9. In State of Maharashtra vs. Chandraprakash Kewalchand Jain, this Court held as under : (SCC pp. 558-60, paras 15-17)

"15. It is necessary at the outset to state what the approach of the court should be while evaluating the prosecution evidence, particularly the evidence of the prosecutrix, in sex offences. Is it essential that the evidence of the prosecutrix should be corroborated in material particulars before the court bases a conviction on her testimony ? Does the rule of prudence demand that in all cases save the rarest of rare the court should look for corroboration before acting on the evidence of the prosecutrix ? Let us see if the Evidence Act provides the clue. Under the said statute 'Evidence' means and includes all statements which the court permits or requires to be made before it by witnesses, in relation to the matters of fact under inquiry. Under Section 59 all facts, except the contents of documents, may be proved by oral evidence. Section 118 then tells us who may give oral evidence. According to that section all persons are competent to testify unless the court considers that they are prevented from understanding the questions put to them, or from giving rational answers to those questions, by tender years, extreme old age, disease, whether of body or mind, or any other cause of the same kind. Even in the case of an accomplice Section 133 provides that he shall be a competent witness against an accused person; and a conviction is not illegal merely because it proceeds upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice. However, illustration (b) to Section 114, which lays down a rule of practice, says that the court 'may' presume that an accomplice is unworthy of credit, unless he is corroborated in material particulars. Thus under Section 133, which lays down a rule of law, an accomplice is a competent witness and a conviction based solely on his uncorroborated evidence is not 2 (1990) 1 SCC 550 Page 7 7 illegal although in view of Section 114, illustration (b), courts do not as a matter of practice do so and look for corroboration in material particulars. This is the conjoint effect of Sections 133 and 114, illustration (b).

16. A prosecutrix of a sex offence cannot be put on par with an accomplice. She is in fact a victim of the crime. The Evidence Act nowhere says that her evidence cannot be accepted unless it is corroborated in material particulars. But if a prosecutrix is an adult and of full understanding the court is entitled to base a conviction on her evidence unless the same is shown to be infirm and not trustworthy. If the totality of the circumstances appearing on the record of the case disclose that the prosecutrix does not have a strong motive to falsely involve the person charged, the court should ordinarily have no hesitation in accepting her evidence. We have, therefore, no doubt in our minds that ordinarily the evidence of a prosecutrix who does not lack understanding must be accepted. The degree of proof required must not be higher than is expected of an injured witness. For the above reasons we think that exception has rightly been taken to the approach of the High Court as is reflected in the following passage:

"It is only in the rarest of rare cases if the court finds that the testimony of the prosecutrix is so trustworthy, truthful and reliable that other corroboration may not be necessary."

With respect, the law is not correctly stated. If we may say so, it is just the reverse. Ordinarily the evidence of a prosecutrix must carry the same weight as is attached to an injured person who is a victim of violence, unless there are special circumstances which call for greater caution, in which case it would be safe to act on her testimony if there is independent evidence lending assurance to her accusation.

17. We think it proper, having regard to the increase in the number of sex violation cases in the recent past, particularly cases of molestation and rape in custody, to remove the notion, if it persists, that the testimony of a woman who is a victim of sexual violence must ordinarily be corroborated in material particulars except in the rarest of rare cases. To insist on corroboration except in the rarest of rare cases is to equate a woman who is a victim of the lust of another with an accomplice to a crime and thereby insult womanhood. It would be adding insult to injury to tell a woman that her story of woe will not be believed unless it is corroborated in material particulars as in the case of an accomplice to a crime. Ours is a conservative society where it concerns sexual behaviour. Ours is not a permissive society as in some of the western and European countries. Our standard of decency and morality in public life is not the same as in those countries. It is, however, unfortunate that respect for womanhood in our country is on the decline and cases of molestation and rape are steadily growing. An Indian woman is now required to suffer indignities in different forms, from lewd remarks to eve-teasing, from molestation to rape. Decency and morality in public life can be promoted and protected only if we deal strictly with those who violate the societal norms. The standard of proof to be expected by the court in such cases must take into account the fact that such crimes are generally committed on the sly and very rarely direct evidence of a person other than the prosecutrix is available. Courts must also realise that ordinarily a woman, more so a young girl, will not stake her reputation by levelling a false charge concerning her chastity."

10. Similar observations were made in State of Punjab vs. Gurmit Singh, as under : (SCC pp. 395-96, para 8)

"8……The courts must, while evaluating evidence, remain alive to the fact that in a case of rape, no self-respecting woman would come forward in a court just to make a humiliating statement against her honour such as is involved in the commission of rape on her. In cases involving sexual molestation, supposed considerations which have no material effect on the veracity of the prosecution case or even discrepancies in the statement of the prosecutrix should not, unless the discrepancies are such which are of fatal nature, be allowed to throw out an otherwise reliable prosecution case. The inherent bashfulness of the females and the tendency to conceal outrage of sexual aggression are factors which the courts should not overlook. The testimony of the victim in such cases is vital and unless there are compelling reasons which necessitate looking for corroboration of her statement, the courts should find no difficulty to act on the testimony of a victim of sexual assault alone to convict an accused where her testimony inspires confidence and is found to be reliable. Seeking corroboration of her statement before relying upon the same, as a rule, in such cases amounts to adding insult to injury. Why should the evidence of a girl or a woman who complains of rape or sexual molestation, be viewed with doubt, disbelief or suspicion? The court while appreciating the evidence of a prosecutrix may look for some assurance of her statement to satisfy its judicial conscience, since she is a witness who is interested in the outcome of the charge levelled by her, but there is no requirement of law to insist upon corroboration of her statement to base conviction of an accused. The evidence of a victim of sexual assault stands almost on a par with the evidence of an injured witness and to an extent is even more reliable. Just as a witness who has sustained some injury in the occurrence, which is not found to be self-inflicted, is considered to be a good witness in the sense that he is least likely to shield the real culprit, the evidence of a victim of a sexual offence is entitled to great weight, absence of corroboration notwithstanding. Corroborative evidence is not an imperative component of judicial 3 (1996) 2 SCC 384 Page 10 10 credence in every case of rape. Corroboration as a condition for judicial reliance on the testimony of the prosecutrix is not a requirement of law but a guidance of prudence under given circumstances. It must not be overlooked that a woman or a girl subjected to sexual assault is not an accomplice to the crime but is a victim of another person's lust and it is improper and undesirable to test her evidence with a certain amount of suspicion, treating her as if she were an accomplice. Inferences have to be drawn from a given set of facts and circumstances with realistic diversity and not dead uniformity lest that type of rigidity in the shape of rule of law is introduced through a new form of testimonial tyranny making justice a casualty. Courts cannot cling to a fossil formula and insist upon corroboration even if, taken as a whole, the case spoken of by the victim of sex crime strikes the judicial mind as probable."

(emphasis in original)

11. Thus, while absence of injuries or absence of raising alarm or delay in FIR may not by itself be enough to disbelieve the version of prosecutrix in view of the statutory presumption under Section 114A of the Evidence Act but if such statement has inherent infirmities, creating doubt about its veracity, the same may not be acted upon. We are conscious of the sensitivity with which heinous offence under Section 376, IPC has to be treated but in the present case the circumstances taken as a whole create doubt about the correctness of the prosecution version. We are, thus, of the opinion that a case is made out for giving benefit of doubt to the accused."

37. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of India in Manoharlal Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, (2014) 15 Supreme Court Cases 587 has held:

"8. Though as a matter of law the sole testimony of the prosecutrix can sufficiently be relied upon to bring home the case against the accused, in the instant case we find her version to be improbable and difficult to accept on its face value. The law on the point is very succinctly stated in Narender Kumar v. State (NCT of Delhi), to which one of us (Dipak Misra, J). was a party, in following terms: (SCC p. 178, paras 29 and 21)

"20. It is a settled legal proposition that once the statement of the prosecutrix inspires confidence 4 Page 5 and is accepted by the court as such, conviction can be based only on the solitary evidence of the prosecutrix and no corroboration would be required unless there are compelling reasons which necessitate the court for corroboration of her statement. Corroboration of testimony of the prosecutrix as a condition for judicial reliance is not a requirement of law but a guidance of prudence under the given facts and circumstances. Minor contradictions or insignificant discrepancies should not be a ground for throwing out an otherwise reliable prosecution case.

21. A prosecutrix complaining of having been a victim of the offence of rape is not an accomplice after the crime. Her testimony has to be appreciated on the principle of probabilities just as the testimony of any other witness; a high degree of probability having been shown to exist in view of the subject-matter being a criminal charge. However, if the court finds it difficult to accept the version of the prosecutrix on its face value, it may search for evidence, direct or circumstantial which may lend assurance to her testimony." (emphasis in original)

9. Having found it difficult to accept her testimony on its face value, we searched for support from other material but find complete lack of corroboration on material particulars. First, the medical examination of the victim did not result in any definite opinion that she was subjected to rape. Secondly, Riyaz who was like a brother to the victim and thus a close confidant, has not supported the case of the prosecution and has completely denied having met her when she allegedly narrated the incident to him. Thirdly the person who was 5 Page 6 suffering from fever and to whose house she was first taken by the appellant was not examined at all. Fourthly, the policeman who the victim met during the night was also not examined. Fifthly, neither the brother nor any of the parents of the victim were examined to corroborate the version that she had come from the village of her brother and alighted around 10:00 P.M. at Bajna bus stand. Lastly, the sequence of events as narrated would show that she had allegedly accompanied the appellant to various places. In the circumstances, we find extreme difficulty in relying upon the version of the victim alone to bring home the charge against the appellant. We are inclined to give benefit of doubt to the appellant."

38. It is also relevant to refer to the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Tilak Raj Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh, AIR 2016 Supreme Court 406, in which the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held:

"19. We have carefully heard both the parties at length and have also given our conscious thought to the material on record and relevant provisions of The Indian Penal Code (in short "the IPC"). In the instant case, the prosecutrix was an adult and mature lady of around 40 years at the time of incident. It is admitted by the prosecutrix in her testimony before the trial court that she was in relationship with the appellant for the last two years prior to the incident and the appellant used to stay overnight at her residence. After a perusal of copy of FIR and evidence on record the case set up by the prosecutrix seems to be highly unrealistic and unbelievable.

23. From the aforesaid, it is clear that the evidence of the prosecution is neither believable nor reliable to bring home the charges leveled against the appellant. We are of the view that the impugned judgment and order passed by the High Court is not based on a careful re-appraisal of the evidence on record by the High Court and there is no material evidence on record to show that the appellant is guilty of the charged offences i.e., offence of cheating punishable under Section 417 of IPC and offence of criminal intimidation punishable under Section 506 part I of IPC. "

39. In view of the ratio laid down in the cases mentioned above and discussion held by us above, in our considered view, it cannot be said the prosecution was able to prove beyond reasonable doubt that the accused had either kidnapped the prosecutrix from the lawful guardianship of her parents or had committed forcible sexual intercourse with her. Besides perusing the records of the case, we have also perused the judgment passed by learned trial Court in detail. Learned trial Court after taking into consideration entire evidence which was produced on record by the prosecution has by way of a reasoned and speaking judgment disbelieved the case of the prosecution and acquitted the accused by holding that the prosecution could not prove beyond reasonable doubt that the accused was guilty of charges alleged against him.

40. In our considered view also, on the basis of material produced on record by the prosecution, it could not be said beyond reasonable doubt that the accused in fact was guilty of the charges framed against him. Accordingly, keeping in view the fact that the accused has got the benefit of being acquitted by the learned trial Court and further that the State has not been able to persuade us to differ from the view that was taken by the learned trial Court in the case, while upholding the judgment passed by learned trial Court, we dismiss the present appeal being devoid of any merit.

For the appellant	:	Mr. V. S. Chauhan, Addl. Advocate General with Mr. Vikram Thakur, Deputy Advocate General for the appellant/State.
For the respondent	:	Mr. R. K. Bawa, Senior Advocate with Mr. Amit Dhuman, Advocate, for the respondent.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Sanjay Karol, J. (oral)

Assailing the judgment dated 29.11.2007, passed by Addl. Sessions Judge-II, Kangra at Dharamshala, H.P., in Sessions Case No. 35-K/VII/2003, titled as State of Himachal Pradesh vs. Sumit Kumar, whereby accused stands acquitted, State has filed the present appeal under the provisions of Section 378 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973.

2. Smt. Reeta Kumari (deceased) was married to accused Sumit Kumar sometime in the year 1997. On 26.11.2002 at about 2.30 a.m., deceased suffered burn injuries and was brought to Civil Hospital Kangra, where she was examined by Dr. Amar Verma (PW-2). Police was immediately informed and HC Dalip Kumar (PW-15), after reaching the hospital, recorded statement (Ext. PW-2/D) of the deceased to the effect that she sustained injuries as a result of an accidental fire. For better treatment, she was referred to another hospital and eventually admitted at Government Hospital, Sector 32 Chandigarh. However unfortunately, on 2.12.2002 she breathed her last at 4.45 p.m. and when police learnt about such fact, SI Prem Chand (PW-21) travelled to Chandigarh, where on 3.12.2002 at about 4.00 p.m., he recorded statement of complainant Vinod Kumar (PW-3), brother of the deceased, which led to registration of F.I.R. No. 394 of 2002 (Ext. PW-17/A) in the early hours of 4.12.2002. Investigation so conducted by SI Pritam Singh (PW-20) and SI Prem Chand (PW-21) revealed it to be a case of murder. By sprinkling kerosene oil accused had set the deceased on fire resulting into her death.

3. Prima facie, on the presentation of challan, finding the prosecution to have made out its case, trial Court charged the accused of having committed an offence punishable under the provisions of Section 302 of the Indian Penal Code. From the testimonies of 22 prosecution witnesses, trial Court did not find the prosecution to have established the guilt of the accused and as such acquitted him of the charged offence.

4. Hence the present appeal.

5. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and also perused the record, Court is of the considered view that in the instant case no ground for interference is made out at all. Judgment rendered by the trial Court is reasoned and based on complete, correct and proper appreciation of evidence (documentary and ocular) so placed on record. There is neither any illegality/infirmity nor any perversity, resulting into miscarriage of justice.

6. It is a settled principle of law that acquittal leads to presumption of innocence in favour of an accused. To dislodge the same, onus heavily lies upon the prosecution. Having considered the material on record, we are of the considered view that prosecution has failed to establish the essential ingredients so required to constitute the charged offence.

7. In Prandas v. The State, AIR 1954 SC 36, Constitution Bench of the apex Court, has held as under:

> "(6) It must be observed at the very outset that we cannot support the view which has been expressed in several cases that the High Court has no power under S. 417, Criminal P.c., to reverse a judgment of acquittal, unless the judgment is perverse or the subordinate Court has in some way or other misdirected itself so as to produce a miscarriage of justice. In our opinion, the true position in regard to the jurisdiction of the High Court under S. 417, Criminal P.c. in an appeal from an order of acquittal has been stated in – 'Sheo Swarup v. Emperor', AIR 1934 PC 227 (2) at pp.229, 230 (A), in these words:

> "Sections 417, 418 and 423 of the Code give to the High Court full power to review at large the evidence upon which the order of acquittal was founded, and to reach the conclusion that upon that evidence the order of acquittal should be reversed. No limitation should be placed upon that power, unless it be found expressly stated in the Code. But in exercising the power conferred by the Code and before reaching its conclusions upon fact, the High Court should and will always give proper weight and consideration to such matters as (1) the views of the trial Judge as to the credibility of the witnesses, (2) the presumption of innocence in favour of the accused, a presumption certainly not weakened by the fact that he has been acquitted at his trial, (3) the right of the accused to the benefit of any doubt, and (4) the slowness of an appellate Court in disturbing a finding of fact arrived at by a Judge who had the advantage of seeing the witnesses. To state this, however, is only to say that the High Court in its conduct of the appeal should and will act in accordance with rules and principles well known and recognized in the administration of justice." "

8. Court below acquitted the accused for the reason that: (a) Dying declaration (Ext.PW-2/D) of the deceased was a genuine piece of evidence and worthy of credence; (ii) testimony of close relatives of the deceased did not establish any motive for murder. Also oral dying declaration so made by the deceased with her relatives was unworthy of credence; and (iii) prosecution failed to establish by way of link evidence that the accused sustained burn injuries as a result of kerosene oil.

9. Certain facts are not in dispute. (i) That accused and the deceased were married some time in the year 1997 stands admitted; (ii) Incident took place on 25.11.2002 in the matrimonial house; (iii) deceased died within seven years of marriage.

10. It also stands established through the testimony of Jagdish Kumar (PW-6) and Sh. Madan Chauhan (PW-16) who have proved document (Ext. PW-3/D), which fact is also not disputed by the accused, as is evident from Question No. 10 so put to him during the course of his examination under Section 313 Cr.P.C., that all was not well within the parties. Earlier in the year 1999, parties had entered into a compromise when the accused had sworn an affidavit (Ext. PW-3/D) to the effect that in future he would not beat the deceased and live with her in peace. Also the deceased would not visit her parents without his or his parents' prior permission.

11. Evidently there was dispute inter se the parties. It was of economic dependence and behavioural attitude. It is a matter of record that though thereafter parties continued to reside together and no complaint ever came to be lodged with anyone. It is also a matter of record that deceased was working as a Patwari in the office of the Tehsildar. She was deeply in love with the accused and had wanted him to find a better job.

12. Identity of the deceased not being in dispute, it stands established through the testimony of Dr. Virender Pal Singh (PW-22), who conducted and proved the post mortem (Ext. PW-21/E), that except in the area of perineum, lateral side of left thigh, left leg and left hip deceased had sustained dermo-epidermal burns all over her body.

13. Even Dr. Amar Verma (PW-2) who proved the medical history sheet of deceased (Ext.PW-2/B) has documented the victim of suffering superficial burn injuries over the neck, interior abdomen, both arms, thigh and feet to the extent of 30%. This document also records the cause of fire. In fact it affirmatively states that "mujhe koi shak nahi hai" (I have no suspicion).

14. With these undisputed and proven facts, this court is called upon to examine six essential facts: (i) As to whether the dying declaration (Ext. PW-2/D) can be said to be the true, genuine and convincing version of the deceased? (ii) As to whether it can be relied upon to prove the innocence of the accused? (iii) Whether any dying declaration, ocular in nature, so made by the deceased to her near relatives, including brother Vinod Kumar (PW-3) can be relied upon to convict the accused? (iv) Whether there has been inordinate and unexplainable delay of eight days (26th November 2002 to 3rd December, 2002) in registration of the F.I.R., rendering the prosecution case to be fatal? (v) Whether there is enough material on record to establish that after pouring kerosene oil, accused had set the deceased on fire; and (vi) Whether accused committed murder of the deceased or not?

15. In Court Munshi Ram (PW-8) who was neighbour and a colleague of the deceased states that on 25.11.2002, at about 11.00 – 11.30 p.m., he heard cries of the deceased coming from her residence. Immediately he went and knocked the door which was opened by the accused. After entering the house, he saw the deceased sitting on the bed and crying. Some kerosene like smell was there. As desired by the accused, deceased disclosed that she caught fire while preparing meals on a gas stove. Immediately he went to the Tehsildar Medh Raj Sharma (not examined) and narrated the incident. By the time he returned with the Tehsildar, Reeta Kumari had changed her clothes. Thereafter he along with the Tehsildar and the accused, took the deceased to the hospital. Thereafter he returned to his residence. Later on he learnt that deceased who had been referred to Chandigarh, died on 2.12.2002.

16. Now significantly this witness, who was the first one to have reached the spot, did not find anything unusual in the house. Except for burn injuries on the body of the victim no other burnt article was found. He did not find any can of kerosene oil. It is not the case of this witness that the accused had threatened, intimidated or persuaded the deceased to narrate the cause of fire which she did to him. This witness did not find the conduct of the accused to be suspicious or the deceased to be frightened. Significantly, despite being a revenue official, he did not report the matter to anyone, save and except the Tehsildar, who also did not take any action and remains unexamined in Court. Though statement of this witness was recorded by the police only on 5.12.2002, but did not report anything about the kerosene oil to the police. Significantly in cross examination he admits it to be correct that "when I asked the deceased about the cause of burn, she disclosed that she was caught fire while preparing the meals with the gas in the kitchen".

17. On this count, we also find that Doctor Amar Verma (PW-2) did not notice any smell of kerosene oil when the victim was first examined by him. The Doctor observed that the deceased suffered burn injuries to the extent of 30%. It is a matter of record that the incident came to be reported to the police when entry in the daily diary (Ext.PW-15/B) was made and when HC Dalip Kumar (PW-15) reached the hospital, he moved application (Ext. PW-2/C) seeking opinion of the Doctor as to whether deceased was fit to make any statement or not. The Doctor certified the victim to be medically fit and only thereafter, this officer recorded statement (Ext. PW-2/D) made and signed by the deceased and attested by the Doctor and Tehsildar, Kangra. Testimony of the Doctor is evidently clear to such effect. He is categorical that in his presence, deceased made a statement which she signed. Such statement was made voluntarily without any fear, pressure or persuasion. On this count version of HC Dalip Kumar that at that time, victim was frightened is a mere exaggeration and an improvement which never came to be recorded in his previous statement (Mark Z-1) with which he was confronted. Further, from the testimony of this witness it is evident that after the family members of the victim reached the hospital, they were proclaiming that the victim was burnt. They were also quarreling with the accused. Yet, he did not take any action in the matter and the reason is not far to seek, for as is so admitted by him in the cross examination part of his testimony, that statement of the victim was to the effect what was recorded in the presence of the Doctor and the Tehsildar. He also admits that the relatives of the victim were aware of such statement recorded in the hospital.

18. Conjoint reading of the statements of close relatives of the victim, namely Vinod Kumar (PW-3), Ram Krishan (PW-7), Shakuntla Devi (PW-9), Kashmiro Devi (PW-10), Ram Chand Bhatia (PW-11), Shashi Bala (PW-12) and Karam Chand (PW-14) reveals that they were fully aware of the dying declaration (Ext.PW2/D), yet till 3.12.2002 none disputed the veracity or contents thereof.

19. Statement (Ext.PW-2/D) is to the following effect:

> 'Statement of Smt. Geeta Kumari w/o Sumit Kumar, Caste Dalit R/o V.P.O. Kuhna, Tehsil Dehra, P.S. Jawalaji, Distt. Kangra, Age 28 years, At present Patwari, Tehsil Office Kangra.
> Stated that I am resident of the aforesaid address and working on the post of Patwari at Tehsil Office Kangra for the last seven years. My marriage was solemnized with Sumit Kumar s/o Sh. Kesar Chand as per Hindu rites and customs about five and a half years back. I have a daughter namely Prekshika who is aged three and a half years. I reside at my official residence, Kanungo Hut, along with my husband Sumit. My husband Sumit Kumar is employed as Daily Wages Lab Attendant, Dharamshala. On dated 25.11.2002 at 9.30 p.m. when I started preparing meals on the gas stove and lit the same, then all of a sudden gas came out in large quantity as a result of which the shirt which I was wearing caught fire. At that time my husband was in the room next to the kitchen. I screamed for help and started running towards the room of my husband on which my husband tried to extinguish the fire as a result of which he also sustained burn injuries on his hands. My husband poured water on me to douse off the fire. Then my neighbour Munshi, his family members and Tehsildar Medh Ram Sharma brought me to S.D.H. Kangra for treatment. This incident occurred at the time of lighting the gas stove suddenly. As the result of fire my stomach, arm and neck have burnt. In this incident, no one is at fault.'

20. There is no evidence, even remotely suggesting that this statement came to be made under any threat, fear or intimidation. It does not even remotely link the accused to the crime. No role whatsoever is ascribed to him. From the statement of Vinod Kumar (PW-3) it is evidently clear that deceased was working in the office of the attesting witness (Tehsildar). It is nobody's case that accused was in a position to or had exercised any influence over the revenue officials, Doctor or the deceased.

21. Hence, keeping in view the law laid down by the apex Court in State of A. P. vs. Shaik Moin, (2004) 6 SCC 34; Sher Singh & another vs. State of Punjab, (2008) 4 SCC 265; Amol Singh vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, (2008) 5 SCC 468; Nanhar & others vs. State of Haryana, (2010) 11 SCC 423; Mukehsbhai Gopalbhai Barot vs. State of Gujarat, (2010) 12 SCC 224; Krishan vs. State of Haryana, (2013) 3 SCC 280; Panchanand Mandal alias Pachan Mandal & others vs. State of Jharkhand, (2013) 9 SCC 800; Bhadragiri Venkata Ravi vs. Public Prosecutor, High Court of Andhra Pradesh, Hyderabad, (2013) 14 SCC 145; and Vijay Pal vs. State (Government of NCT of Delhi), (2015) 5 SCC 749, dying declaration (Ext. PW-2/D) which stands proven on record, being voluntary in nature, can safely be relied upon as a relevant piece of evidence.

22. Relatives of the victim admit that deceased was in love with the accused; both were residing alone in the accommodation allotted by the government; deceased who was working as a Patwari had wanted her husband to get a better job.

23. On record, two versions have emerged, as to who had locked the house, after accused took the deceased to the hospital. On the date of the incident accused first took the deceased to the hospital, Kangra and thereafter to Chandigarh where he continued to remain with her till the last breath. It is nobody's case that in between, accused ever accessed his house. HC Dalip Kumar is categorical that he immediately "locked" the "premises so as to preserve the same". This was so done when family members of the victim "proclaimed that she was burnt". SI

Prem Chand (PW-21) states that he opened the lock during the course of investigation, which undisputedly began after registration of the F.I.R. (dated 4.12.2002). However, when we peruse the testimony of close relatives of the victim, including that of acquaintance Ram Krishan (PW-7), we find that keys of the lock were actually with him. In fact this witness admits that before leaving for Chandigarh, both he and his niece (here he refers to Shashi Bala PW-12) had opened the lock and entered the premises when he noticed smell of kerosene oil, burnt match sticks and broken bangles.

24. From the testimony of these witnesses it is evident that in the Kangra hospital itself, motive of crime came to be disclosed to them. Deceased had informed that accused had demanded money and despite her having given Rs.900/-, he persisted with such demands. She was beaten up, and after sprinkling kerosene oil accused had set her on fire. Now all this was so disclosed not only to Ram Krishan (PW-7) but also to Vinod Kumar (PW-3), yet no recovery was effected by the police or any report lodged by anyone.

25. These witnesses want the Court to believe that the cause of fire came to be narrated by the deceased also at the hospital at Chandigarh. Vinod Kumar wants the court to believe that only under threat of the accused that her daughter would be killed, she made the dying declaration (Ext. PW-2/D). We do not find such version to be inspiring in confidence, for such fact never came to be recorded by the police in his statement (Ext.PW-3/A) made under Section 154 Cr. P.C., with which he was confronted. It is not his case that police wrongly recorded such statement. Undisputedly between 26.11.2002 and 2.12.2002, accused who was alone, was attending to the deceased. Relatives of the victim, in large number, were also there. Now if the deceased had disclosed the real cause of incident, then why is it that the matter never came to be reported to anyone, including the Doctors in the hospital; police officials at Kangra or Chandigarh. Also why is it that any one of the relatives did not lodge any protest against the illegal acts of the police officials/Tehsildar in wrongful recording of the dying declaration.

26. Further, Vinod Kumar admits that for better treatment, accused had got the deceased referred to Chandigarh where Doctors kept on attending to her. He did not even ask anyone to have the statement of the deceased recorded afresh. In his previous statement, he does not record the date of his discussion with the deceased. He admits that accused himself had also sustained burn injuries. His version about misconduct of the accused never came to be disclosed by him in his previous statement.

27. Ram Krishan (PW-7) admits that he never went to Chandigarh. Keys of the house were with him. He does not state that the room was not tampered with. His version of having learnt about the real cause of the incident from the deceased is a mere exaggeration, for it not to have been recorded in his previous statement (Ext. DX) with which he was confronted. In fact, he goes to admit that statement (Ext. PW-2/D) was signed by the deceased in his presence.

28. To similar effect is the statement of Shakuntla Devi (PW-9) mother of the deceased. She has made several improvements and exaggerations. Her version that accused had married the deceased out of love for money; deceased had (i) narrated the real cause of the incident to her; (ii) made statement out of fear for her daughter's welfare; (iii) desired that she be saved; and that accused had demanded money and thereafter set her on fire, are all exaggerations and improvements as it is nowhere recorded in her previous statement (Ext. DW-1) with which she was confronted.

29. We need not elaborately discuss, but find that the version of Kashmiro Devi (PW-10), Ram Chand Bhatia (PW-11), Shashi Bala (PW-12) and Karam Chand (PW-14) is unbelievable for the very same reason. Police has not sided with the accused or incorrectly recorded such statement.

30. Careful perusal of cross examination part of the testimonies of relatives of the deceased would only reveal that there are several improvements, exaggerations and embellishments, rendering their version to be unbelievable and witnesses to be unreliable.

31. Hence, it cannot be said that these witnesses have been able to establish the real cause of the incident to have been disclosed to them by the deceased. Dying declaration, ocular in nature, cannot be said to be proven on record by leading clear, cogent, consistent and reliable piece of evidence.

32. The delay of eight days in lodging the F.I.R. (Ext. PW-17/A) remains unexplained by the prosecution. As already discussed, relatives of the victim did not lodge any protest against anyone. They remained silent despite the fact that they suspected involvement of the accused in the alleged crime. Where is this daughter? how old is she? remains unexplained on record. It is not the case of neighbour Munshi Ram (PW-8) that at the time of incident, child was at home. Also initially police did not register any case against the accused. In fact, spot of crime also never came to be inspected by them. Statements of the witnesses came to be recorded much after lodging of the complaint by Vinod Kumar (PW-3) which was done on 3.12.2002.

33. It is not the case of the prosecution that health of the victim was improving and the relatives wanted the marriage to be saved. Accused was alone, unable to exhibit or exercise any influence. His economic and social status was far lower than that of the deceased. Even the colleagues of the deceased did not suspect any hand of the accused in the alleged crime.

34. Hence in the given facts and circumstances delay of eight days in lodging the F.I.R. is fatal to the prosecution [Rajeevan & another vs. State of Kerala, (2003) 3 SCC 355; Shankarlal vs. State of Rajasthan, (2004) 10 SCC 632; State of Rajasthan vs. Bhanwar Singh, (2004) 13 SCC 147; and A. Shankar vs. State of Karnataka, (2011) 6 SCC 279].

35. Through the testimony of Madan Lal (PW-4) prosecution wants the court to believe that there was no malfunction of the regulator of the gas cylinder. Well it is not the case of the deceased that the gas cylinder had burst. It is the specific case that clothes worn by the deceased caught fire from the gas stove while preparing the meals.

36. In order to establish that the accused, after pouring kerosene oil set the deceased on fire, our attention is invited to the testimonies of Vinod Kumar (PW-3) and SI Prem Chand (PW-21). The Investigating Officer states that from the room he recovered broken bangles, burnt pieces of cloth, hair clip, one match box and one plastic can of five litres containing drops of kerosene oil. Repetitive though, but it is relevant to reiterate that the Doctor did not find any smell of kerosene oil at the time of the examination of the victim. Also Vinod Kumar (PW-3) and Ram Krishan (PW-7) did not notice any can of kerosene oil (Ext. P-5), so recovered by the police, at the time they visited the house, prior to the victim being taken to Chandigarh. Significantly Ram Krishan wants the court to believe that he visited the house with Shashi Bala (PW-12) who is conspicuously silent about any such visit. In fact, she is categorical of having visited the house only once i.e. on 5.12.2002. In view of the aforesaid contradictions having emerged on record, not much credence can be lent to the recovery of can of kerosene oil (Ext.P-5) or burnt match sticks from the house of the accused. None has come forward to depose that the spot of crime was kept safe and not tampered with.

37. By way of corroborative link evidence, that of the experts, accused is not linked to the crime. Report of State Forensic Science Laboratory, Shimla (Ext.PW-21/K) evidences that in the can (Ext.P-5) and pieces of cloth (Ex.P6 to Ex.P9), traces of kerosene oil were found. But then, how did the can reach the spot of crime, remains a mystery and why is it that pieces of clothes worn by the deceased not taken into possession in the hospital itself remains unexplained. No charred portions of clothes were noticed by the Doctor.

38. In the instant case, prosecution has failed to establish any motive. It is not a case of bride burning or death as a result of dowry demand. It is case of murder. There is no spot witness to the crime. The neighbour (PW-8) who was the first one to have reached the spot, never suspected role of the accused in the alleged crime. Deceased voluntarily made statement (ExtPW2/D) in the presence of government officers.

39. From the material placed on record, prosecution has failed to establish that the accused is guilty of having committed the offence, he stands charged for. The circumstances cannot be said to have been proved by unbroken chain of unimpeachable testimony of the prosecution witnesses. The guilt of the accused does not stand proved beyond reasonable doubt to the hilt.

40. Having perused the testimony of prosecution witnesses on record, it cannot be said that prosecution has been able to prove its case, beyond reasonable doubt, to the effect that accused murdered the deceased, by leading clear, cogent, convincing and reliable material on record.

41. The Court below, in our considered view, has correctly and completely appreciated the evidence so placed on record by the prosecution. It cannot be said that the findings returned by the trial Court are perverse, illegal, erroneous or based on incorrect and incomplete appreciation of material on record resulting into miscarriage of justice.

42. The accused has had the advantage of having been acquitted by the Court below. Keeping in view the ratio of law laid down by the Apex Court in Mohammed Ankoos and others versus Public Prosecutor, High Court of Andhra Pradesh, Hyderabad, (2010) 1 SCC 94, since it cannot be said that the Court below has not correctly appreciated the evidence on record or that acquittal of the accused has resulted into travesty of justice, no interference is warranted in the instant case.

For all the aforesaid reasons, present appeal, devoid of merit, is dismissed, so also pending applications, if any. Bail bonds, if any, furnished by the accused are discharged. Records of the Court below be immediately sent back.

The following order of the Court was delivered:

P.S. Rana, Judge

Present petition is filed under Section 482 of Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 for quashing criminal complaint No. 240-1 of 2010 title State of H.P. through Drug Inspector District Kangra vs. Varun Samra and others filed under Drugs and Cosmetics Act 1940 for punishment of accused persons under Section 27 (b) (ii) of Drugs and Cosmetics Act 1940.

Brief facts of the case

2. It is alleged that on 15.10.2010 State of H.P. through Drug Inspector District Kangra filed complaint under Drugs and Cosmetics Act 1940 against accused persons alleging that on 13.5.2010 Inspector from the office of S.P. CBI Shimla came to office of Drug Inspector and disclosed that M/s Jackson Laboratories Plot 56-61 Industrial Area Phase III Sansarpur Terrace District Kangra is engaged in manufacture of Tablet Comiflam allegdly appearing to be similar and under imitation of Tablet Comiflam being manufactured by M/s Aventis Pharma. There is recital in complaint that thereafter premises of M/s Jackson Laboratories inspected on 13.5.2010 in afternoon. There is recital in complaint that licence to manufacture Tablet Comiflam was granted to M/s Jackson Laboratories Pvt. Limited in the month of November 2009. There is recital in complaint that M/s Jackson Laboratories Private Limited manufactured Tablet Comiflam in the month of October 2009 and circulated in the market for sale to general public. There is recital in complaint that Tablets Comiflam Batch Nos. T-0977 and T-0982 were manufactured relating to drug Tablet Comiflam in the month of October 2009 prior to the issuance of licence. There is recital in complaint that 1118900 Tablet Comiflam purchased by M/s Antex Pharma Private Limited vide invoice No. 00235 dated 27.10.2009 and thereafter sold to M/s Tirupati Pharma and thereafter sold to various dealers at Delhi and outside Delhi. There is recital in complaint that prosecution sanction obtained from Assistant Drug Controller H.P. on 29.9.2010. Complaint before learned Chief Judicial Magistrate Kangra filed on 25.10.2010 and learned Chief Judicial Magistrate Kangra issued summons to accused persons under Section 27 (b) (ii) of Drugs and Cosmetics Act 1940 on 27.10.2010. Thereafter learned Chief Judicial Magistrate listed the case for pre-charge evidence for 18.3.2014. Thereafter learned Chief Judicial Magistrate recorded pre-charge evidence of Shri Avinash Saini working as Inspector in CBI Branch Shimla H.P. on 18.03.2014 and listed the case for remaining pre-charge evidence of complainant for 24.5.2014. Petitioners filed Cr.MMO No. 4125 of 2013 before Hon'ble H.P. High Court. Hon'ble H.P. High Court called entire record of learned Trial Court on dated 19.3.2014 through special messanger.

3. Court heard learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioners and learned Additional Advocate General appearing on behalf of State and also perused the record carefully.

4. Following points arise for determination in present petition:-

Point No.1

Whether petition filed under Section 482 of Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 is liable to be accepted as mentioned in memorandum of grounds of petition?

Point No.2

Final order.

Findings upon Point No. 1 with reasons

5. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioners that after amendment of Section 32 w.e.f. 10.8.2009 cognizance of offence under Chapter IV of Drugs and Cosmetics Act 1940 could be taken only by Court of Sessions and Chief Judicial Magistrate is not legally competent to take cognizance of offence and on this ground petition be allowed is partly answered in yes and partly answered in no. As per Section 32(2) of Drugs and Cosmetics Act 1940 no Court inferior to that of a Court of Sessions would try the offence under Chapter IV of Drugs and Cosmetics Act 1940 w.e.f. 10.8.2009. The complaint was filed before learned Chief Judicial Magistrate on 25.10.2010 after amendment of Section 32 of Drugs and Cosmetics Act 1940. It is held that learned Chief Judicial Magistrate committed irregularity by way of recording pre-charge evidence in present case. It is held that learned Chief Judicial Magistrate was under legal obligation to send the complaint to learned Sessions Judge for trial as mentioned under Section 32 of Drugs and Cosmetics Act 1940. It is well settled law that filing of complaint itself does not amount to taking cognizance of case. It is well settled law that Court takes cognizance of case when it applies its mind to frame charge against the accused. It is well settled law that cognizance is sine-qua-non for trial and it cannot be equated with issuance of process. It is well settled law that initiation of criminal proceedings is different from commencement of criminal trial under Section 32(2) of Drugs and Cosmetics Act 1940. No Court inferior to that of Court of Sessions would try an offence punishable under Chapter IV of Drugs and Cosmetics Act 1940. It is well settled law that trial of criminal case starts after framing of charge. In the present case charge has not been framed against accused persons. See AIR 1961 SC 986 title Gopal Das Sindhi and others vs. State of Assam and another. See AIR 2000 SC 2946 title Narsingh Das Tapadia vs. Goverdhan Das Partani and another. See AIR 2008 SC 1213 title S.K. Sinha Chief Enforcement Officer vs. M/s Videocon International Ltd. and others.

6. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioners that as per Section 34 of Drugs and Cosmetics Act accused persons are not liable and on this ground petition be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for the reasons hereinafter mentioned. Facts whether accused persons were incharge of and were responsible to the company for conduct of business of company is complicated issue of facts. Judicial findings relating to complicated issue of facts cannot be given at this stage of case. Same complicated would be decided by learned Trial Court after giving due opportunity to both parties to lead evidence in support of their case. It is not expedient in the ends of justice to give judicial findings at this stage of case upon complicated issue of facts unless opportunity is granted to both the parties to lead evidence in support of their case.

7. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioners that M/s Jackson Laboratories Pvt. Ltd. was permitted to manufacture Tablet Comiflam in October 2009 and in view of circular of Ministry of Health Government of India dated 1.10.2012 there was no necessity to obtain prior permission and on this ground petition be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for the reasons hereinafter mentioned. Circular of Ministry of Health Government of India came into operation on 1.10.2012 and present complaint was filed against accused persons on 25.10.2010. Hence it is held that circular of Ministry of Health Government of India dated 1.10.2012 is prospective in nature and not retrospective in nature. It is held that effect of circular dated 1.10.2012 will be decided by learned Trial Court when case shall be disposed of finally by learned Trial Court after giving due opportunity to both parties to lead evidence in support of their case.

8. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioners that prima facie case for summoning the petitioners under Section 27 (b) (ii) of Drugs and Cosmetics Act 1940 is not made out and on this ground petition be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for the reasons hereinafter mentioned. The facts whether petitioners have comitted offence or not cannot be decided at this stage. Judicial findings to the effect whether petitioners have committed offence under Drugs and Cosmetics Act 1940 would be given by learned Trial Court after recording statement of oral witnesses namely (1) Ashish Raina Drug Inspector, (2) Rajinder Thapa, (3) M.S. Hazare Dy.S.P.(B), (4) Kapil Dhiman Drugs Licensing Authority and after proof of annexures in accordance with law i.e. (1) Annexure A copy of notification (2) Annexure B Direction under Section 22 (i) (cca) for production of record (3) Annexure C1 to C2 Form No. 17 and 17-A for taking samples (4) Annexure D Intimation to Drug Licensing Authority regarding raid in M/s Jackson Laboratories Sansarpur Terrace (5) Annexure E Postal receipt No. SPEE725770803IN dated 15.5.2010 (6) Annexure F Postal receipt No. SPEE725770817IN dated 15.5.2010 (7) Annexure G1 to G2 Two memoranda to Governemnt Analyst on Form 18 for the two samples marked DS/2010-28 and DS/2010-29 (8) Annexure H Reply of M/s Jackson Laboratories Sansarpur Terrace dated 14.5.2010. (9) Annexure I-1 to I-95 second reply of M/s Jackson Laboratories Sansarpur Terrace dated 19.5.2010. (10) Annexure J-1 to J-2 Analysis report of Tab Comiflam for the two samples. (11) Annexure K-1 to K-2 Show cause notice to M/s Jackson Laboratories Sansarpur Terrace. (12) Annexure L Withdrawal of permission to manufacture Tab Comiflam by M/s Jackson Laboratories Sansarpur Terrace. (13) Annexure M-1 to M-2 Prosecution sanction dated 28.9.2010. (14) Annexure N-1 to N-2 Letter No. 9779 RC SIB 2010 E0004 EOU-V, ND dated 23/27.9.2010 issued by S.P., CBI, EOU-V, New Delhi for instruction to lodge complaint against accused. (15) Annexure N-3 to N-188 Investigation report and supporting documents of M S Hazare Dy.S.P. CBI, EOU-V New Delhi annexed with complaint. It is prima facie proved on record that Drug Controller Administration H.P. issued show cause notice to M/s Jackson Laboratories Pvt. Ltd. to the effect that M/s Jackson Laboratories Pvt. Ltd. had manufactured and sold drug Tablet Comiflam without obtaining prior permission as required under Drugs and Cosmetics Act 1940. It is also prima facie proved on record that Drug Controller Administration H.P. vide office order dated 28.5.2010 held that M/s Jackson Laboratories Pvt. Ltd. had manufactured and sold Tablet Comiflam without prior permission from competent authority. It is also prima facie proved on record that Drug Controller Administration H.P. had cancelled the licence of M/s Jackson Laboratories Pvt. Ltd. to manufacture Tablet Comiflam on dated 28.5.2010. It is also prima facie proved on record that Assistant Drug Controller Licensing Authority-cum-Controlling Authority Baddi had given prosecution sanction to prosecute co-accused persons namely (1) Jugal Kishore Samra, (2) Ramesh Kumar Samra, (3) Sudhir Kumar Samra.

9. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioners that there is no sanction to prosecute Varun Samra and on this ground petition be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for the reasons hereinafter mentioned. It is well settled law that prosecution starts when charge is framed against accused persons. It is held that sanction to prosecute Varun Samra is required when charge would be framed and when trial would commence in accordance with law. Court is of the opinion that Varun Samra can raise the plea at the time of framing of charge and at the time of commencement of trial before learned Trial Court relating to non-prosecution sanction.

10. It is well settled law that evaluation of truth or falsity would be possible only after evidence is recorded by learned Trial Court. Issue of absence of mensrea or actus reus cannot be decided at this stage of case when charge is not framed against accused persons as of today. See AIR 1976 SC 1947 title Smt. 11. Case law cited by learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioners i.e. 2005(8) SCC 89 title S.M.S. Pharmaceuticals Ltd. vs. Neeta Bhalla, 2011(6) RCR (Cri.) 2194 title David Methew vs. State of H.P. In view of above stated facts point No.1 is answered partly in affirmative and partly in negative.

Point No.2(Final Order)

12. In view of findings upon point No.1 petition filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is partly allowed and complaint No. 240-1 of 2010 title State of H.P. through Drug Inspector District Kangra vs. Varun Samra and others is withdrawn from the Court of learned Chief Judicial Magistrate Kangra (H.P.) forthwith and is assigned to learned Sessions Judge Kangra at Dharamshala for disposal in accordance with law. Parties are directed to appear before learned Sessions Judge Kangra (H.P.) at Dharamshala on 30.9.2016. Observations will not effect merits of case in any manner and will be strictly confine to disposal of present petition. File of learned Chief Judicial Magistrate be sent to learned Sessions Judge Kangra (H.P.) at Dharamshala forthwith. Learned Registrar (Judicial) will send certify copy of order to learned Sessions Judge Kangra (H.P.) and learned Chief Judicial Magistrate Kangra (H.P.) forthwith for compliance. Cr.MMO No. 4125 of 2013 is disposed of. Pending miscellaneous application(s) if any also stands disposed of.

Bhim Sen Sharma versus HP University and another, I L R 2016 (III) HP 157 (D.B.)

For the petitioner: Ms. Archana Dutt, Advocate.
For the respondent: Mr. Rajnish Maniktala, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice (Oral)

By the medium of this writ petition, the petitioner has come out of deep slumber after 34 years. On the last date of hearing, the learned counsel for the petitioner was asked to justify the maintainability of the writ petition, to explain the delay and laches, was not in a position to do so. Today, the learned counsel for the petitioner prayed that notice be issued to the respondents.

2. Mr. Rajnish Maniktala, Advocate, appears and prayed that the petition be dismissed in limine.

3. We have gone through the writ petition. The petitioner has not explained the delay of one day's, not to speak of 34 years.

4. It is beaten law of land that delay takes away the settings of law. A person who does not seek relief within time, his petition has to be dismissed only on the grounds of delay and laches, otherwise, it would amount to gross misuse of jurisdiction and disturb the settled position.

5. The Apex Court in a case titled as R & M Trust versus Koramangala Residents Vigilance Group and others, reported in (2005) 3 Supreme Court Cases 91, held that delay is a very important factor while exercising extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution; delay defeats equity and it cannot be brushed aside without any plausible explanation. It is apt to reproduce para 34 of the judgment herein:

> "34. There is no doubt that delay is a very important factor while exercising extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution. We cannot disturb the third-party interest created on account of delay. Even otherwise also why should the Court come to the rescue of a person who is not vigilant of his rights?"

6. The Apex Court in cases titled as S.D.O. Grid Corporation of Orissa Ltd. and others versus Timudu Oram, reported in 2005 AIR SCW 3715, and Srinivasa Bhat (Dead) by L.Rs. & Ors. versus A. Sarvothama Kini (Dead) by L.Rs. & Ors., reported in AIR 2010 Supreme Court 2106, has also discussed the same principle. It is profitable to reproduce para 9 of the judgment in Timudu Oram's case (supra) herein:

> "9. In the present case, the appellants had disputed the negligence attributed to it and no finding has been recorded by the High Court that the GRIDCO was in any way negligent in the performance of its duty. The present case is squarely covered by the decision of this Court in Chairman, Grid Corporation of Orissa Ltd. (GRIDCO) and others (supra), 1999 AIR SCW 3383 : AIR 1999 SC 3412. The High Court has also erred in awarding compensation in Civil Appeal No. ..... of 2005 (arising out of SLP (C) No. 9788 of 1998). The subsequent suit or writ petition would not be maintainable in view of the dismissal of the suit. The writ petition was filed after a lapse of 10 years. No reasons have been given for such an inordinate delay. The High Court erred in entertaining the writ petition after a lapse of 10 years. In such a case, awarding of compensation in exercise of its jurisdiction under Article 226 cannot be justified."

7. It would also be apt to reproduce para 39 of the judgment rendered by the Apex Court in Bhakra Beas Management Board versus Kirshan Kumar Vij & Anr., reported in AIR 2010 Supreme Court 3342, herein:

> "39. Yet, another question that draws our attention is with regard to delay and laches. In fact, respondent No. 1's petition deserved to be dismissed only on that ground but surprisingly the High Court overlooked that aspect of the mater and dealt with it in a rather casual and cursory manner. The appellant had categorically raised the ground of delay of over eight years in approaching the High Court for grant of the said relief. But the High Court has simply brushed it aside and condoned such an inordinate, long and unexplained delay in a casual manner. Since, we have decided the matter on merits, thus it is not proper to make avoidable observations, except to say that the approach of the High Court was neither proper nor legal."

8. The Apex Court in the case titled as State of Jammu & Kashmir versus R.K. Zalpuri and others, reported in JT 2015 (9) SC 214, held that a Writ Court while deciding a writ petition, is required to remain alive to the nature of the claim and the unexplained delay on the part of the writ petitioner. It is apt to reproduce paras 26 to 28 of the judgment herein:

"26. In the case at hand, the employee was dismissed from service in the year 1999, but he chose not to avail any departmental remedy. He woke up from his slumber to knock at the doors of the High Court after a lapse of five years. The staleness of the claim remained stale and it could not have been allowed to rise like a phoenix by the writ court.

27. The grievance agitated by the respondent did not deserve to be addressed on merits, for doctrine of delay and laches had already visited his claim like the chill of death which does not spare anyone even the one who fosters the idea and nurtures the attitude that he can sleep to avoid death and eventually proclaim "Deo gratias" - 'thanks to God'.

28. Another aspect needs to be stated. A writ court while deciding a writ petition is required to remain alive to the nature of the claim and the unexplained delay on the part of the writ petitioner. Stale claims are not to be adjudicated unless non-interference would cause grave injustice. The present case, need less to emphasise, did not justify adjudication. It deserved to be thrown overboard at the very threshold, for the writ petitioner had accepted the order of dismissal for half a decade and cultivated the feeling that he could freeze time and forever remain in the realm of constant present."

9. This Court also in LPA No. 48 of 2011 titled Shri Satija Rajesh N. vs. State of Himachal Pradesh and others decided on 26.8.2014, LPA No. 150 of 2014 titled Mr. Inderjit Kumar Dhir versus State of H.P. and others, decided on 17th September, 2014, batch of LPAs lead case of which is LPA No. 107 of 2014 titled Amit Attri and others versus Anil Verma and others decided on 3rd December, 2014 and LPA 270 of 2010 titled Bhim Sen Sharma versus HP University and another decided on 2nd May, 2016, has laid down the similar principles of law.

10. Having said so, the petition is dismissed in limine, alongwith pending applications, if any. Dasti copy.

16. It is well settled law that at the stage of issue of process Magistrate is mainly concerned with allegations made in the complaint. At the summoning stage Magistrate should not enter into detailed discussions of merits or demerits of the case. It is well settled law that evaluation of truth or falsity of complaint would be possible only after evidence is recorded. It is well settled law that disputed and controversial facts should not be made basis for quashing criminal proceedings. It is well settled law that in complicated facts the High court power to quash criminal proceedings should be exercised sparingly with circumspection. See 1995 (2) SCC 449 title State of T.N. Vs. Thirukkural Perumal. See 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335 title State of Haryana and others Vs. Bhajan Lal and others. See 2012 (10) SCC 155 title State of Madhya Pradesh Vs. Surendra Kori. 18. Ruling cited by learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioners i.e. 2013 (5) ALLMR 551 title Shashank Yankatesh Manohar Vs. Hence ruling cited supra is not applicable in Drugs& Cosmetics Act 1940 case.

19. Rulings cited by learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioners i.e. ILR (1999) MP 704 title Vishal Pharmaceuticals and another Vs. S.G.Bhakta Drugs Inspector and others are relating to final judgments after completion of entire trial. Rulings are not relating to summoning order. Ruling would be appreciated at the time of announcement of final judgment by learned Trial Court after completion of entire trial.

20. Rulings cited by learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioners i.e. 2003 AllMR (Cri) 758 title Venkaiah Chowdary Nannapaneni and others Vs. P.K.Das would be considered by learned Trial Court at the stage of notice of accusation or at the stage of framing charge in accordance with law when cognizance of offence would be taken. Present case is at the stage of enquiry before learned Trial Court. It is well settled law that mere filing of complaint is not taking cognizance of offence. Taking cognizance of offence is different from filing complaint. Court take cognizance of offence when it applies its mind to give notice of accusation or notice of charge to accused persons. It is sine qua non for trial and it cannot be equated with issuance of process. See AIR 1961 SC 986 title Gopal Dass Vs. State of Assam. See AIR 2000 SC 2946 Narsing Dass Tapadia Vs. Goverdhan Dass. See AIR 2008 SC 1213 title S.K.Sinha Chief Enforcement Officer Vs. M/s Videocon International Ltd. It is not expedient in the ends of justice to consider rulings at the stage of enquiry of criminal case. It is well settled law that at the stage of summoning accused persons under section 204 of code of criminal procedure 1973 Judicial Magistrate should simply satisfy himself whether there are sufficient grounds for proceedings against accused persons or not. In view of above stated facts point No.1 is answered in negative.

Point No.2 (Final Order).

21. In view of findings upon point No.1 petition is dismissed. Observation made hereinabove is strictly for the purpose of deciding present petition and shall not effect merits of the case in any manner. File of learned Trial Court along with certify copy of order be sent back forthwith. Parties are directed to appear before learned Trial Court on 30.9.2016. Petition filed under Section 482 of the code of criminal procedure 1973 is disposed of. All pending application(s) if any are also disposed of.

For the appellant: Mr. G.C. Gupta, Senior Advocate, with Ms. Meera Devi, Advocate.
For the respondents: Mr. Vinod Thakur, Advocate, for respondents No. 1 to 5.
Mr. Nimish Gupta, Advocate, for respondent No. 6.
Mr. N.S. Chandel, Advocate, for respondent No. 7.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Chander Bhusan Barowalia, Judge.

The present appeal is maintained by the appellant-Oriental Insurance Company, who was respondent No. 1 before the learned Tribunal below (hereinafter referred to as "the appellant"), under Section 173 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (as amended by the Act of 1994) (hereinafter referred to as "the Act") against the award dated 16.07.2011, passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Fast Track Court, Chamba, H.P., in M.A.C. No. 1/2011.

2. Briefly stating the facts giving rise to the present appeal are that respondents No. 1 to 5/claimants, who were the petitioners before the learned Tribunal below (hereinafter referred to as "the claimants), maintained a petition under Section 166 of the Act against the appellant/Insurance Company/respondent No. 1 in the learned Tribunal below (hereinafter referred to as "respondent No. 1"), respondents No. 6 and 7 herein, who were respondents No. 2 and 3, respectively, being owner and driver of the ill fated vehicle, which met with an accident, (hereinafter referred to as "respondents No. 2 and 3") for compensation on account of death of husband of petitioner No. 1, Smt. Malti, and father of petitioners No. 2 to 5, which was caused due to the rash and negligent driving of respondent No. 3 while driving the vehicle, bearing registration No. HP 68-0186 (pick up) owned by respondent No. 2.

3. As per the petitioners Shri Man Singh (deceased), who was husband of petitioner No. 1 and father of petitioners No. 2 to 5, on 04.10.2010 was traveling from Dand to Chakhotar, being owner of goods, in vehicle No. HP 68-0186. the said vehicle was being driven by respondent No. 3 in a rash and negligent manner and while negotiating a curve near Falanju Nallah the vehicle fell down into the gorge, which resulted into the death of the deceased. It is further contended that the deceased was 53 years of age at that time and was employed as Beldar/Mate in HPPWD, Salooni. His monthly salary was Rs.14,676/- and he was earning Rs.5000/- from agriculture. The report qua accident was registered at Police Station, Kihar, vide FIR No. 70/2010 and post mortem of the deceased was also conducted. As per post mortem, the deceased had died due to intra cranial haemorrhage and head injury. Vehicle was owned by respondent No. 2 and it was insured with respondent No. 1 (appellant herein). As per the petitioners, they were dependent upon the deceased and they have been deprived of the love and affection and they have also suffered mental agony, pain, financial loss etc.

4. The petition filed before the learned Tribunal was resisted by the respondents and they have filed separate replies. Respondent No. 1/Insurance Company took preliminary objection viz., maintainability, driver of the vehicle was not having valid driving license, the deceased was traveling as a gratuitous passenger and the vehicle met with an accident due to overloading, as more than ten passengers were traveling in it at the time of accident. On merits, respondent No. 1 denied the contents of the petition and reiterated that the deceased was traveling as a gratuitous passenger and the amount claimed is excessive. It is also contended that the vehicle was not having valid route permit. Respondent No. 2, while filing reply to the petition, took preliminary objection that he is not liable to pay any amount as the vehicle was duly insured with respondent No. 1/Insurance Company, vide Police No. 91189902, w.e.f. 14.11.2009 to 13.11.2010. Therefore, the liability to indemnify the claim is on respondent No. 1. On merits, it is contended that the deceased was traveling in the vehicle as owner of the goods. On the other hand, respondent No. 3 also filed reply, wherein he has stated that FIR was recorded on twisted facts and that he was driving the vehicle carefully, but due to mechanical defect the vehicle went out of control and fell into a gorge.

5. The learned Tribunal below has framed the following issues:

> "1. Whether deceased Man Singh had died on 04.10.2010 in the motor vehicle accident involving vehicle No. HP 68-0186 (pick up) near Nallah Falanju, Tehsil Salooni due to rash or negligent driving of the driver rattan Chand of the offending vehicle? OPP.

2. If issue No. 1 is proved in affirmative, whether the petitioners being dependent on deceased are entitled for the grant of compensation. If so, to what amount? OPP.

3. Whether the petition is not maintainable? OPR.

4. Whether the driver of the vehicle was not having valid driving licence? OPR.

5. Whether the deceased was gratuitous passenger? OPR.

6. Whether the accident had taken place due to over loading of the passengers in the ill fated vehicle? OPR.

7. Whether the vehicle waqs not having valid registration certificate? OPR.

8. Whether the petition is not maintainable? OPR-2.

After deciding issues No. 1 and 2 in favour of the petitioners and issues No. 3 to 8 against the respondent, allowed the petition. Hence the present appeal.

6. Heard. Learned Senior Counsel for the appellant herein has argued that the learned Tribunal below has not appreciated the evidence as well as the pleadings of the parties correctly. He has also argued that the learned Tribunal below has failed to take into consideration the fact that the deceased was a gratuitous passenger. He has further argued that even the compensation awarded is on a very higher side as well as the petition was collusive inter se the petitioners and respondents No. 2 and 3. He has further argued that even the negligence on the part of the driver was not proved on record. On the other hand, learned counsel for the claimants (respondents No. 1 to 5 herein) has argued that the deceased was carrying the goods, that is, ration for the marriage of his son and this fact has come on record. He has further argued that by oral evidence and from FIR, the negligence on the part of respondent No. 3 (driver of the vehicle) is proved and also the fact that other witnesses have also stated that the accident has occurred due to the negligence of the driver. He has argued that the learned Tribunal below has awarded less compensation, but at the same time he has averred that he has neither filed any appeal nor any cross objection. The learned counsel for respondent No. 6 herein (owner of the vehicle) has argued that it is amply proved on record that goods were being transported in the said vehicle, which belonged to the deceased and the vehicle was hired for Rs.800/-. He has further argued that the appeal deserves dismissal. Learned counsel for respondent No. 7 herein has adopted the arguments, as advanced by the learned counsel for respondent No. 6.

7. To appreciate the rival contentions of the learned counsel for the parties I have gone through the record in detail.

8. In order to prove their case, the respondents No. 1 to 5 (petitioners before the Tribunal below) have examined petitioner No. 1, Smt. Malti, as PW-1, who has tendered her affidavit, Ex. PW-1/A. PW-2, Shri Tula Ram, has tended his affidavit, Ex. PW-2/A. PW-3, Shri Pushpender Singh, Clerk, of HPPWD was examined to prove the income of the deceased. PW-4 HHC Diwan Chand, Police Station Kihar was examined to prove the FIR and PW-5 Dr. Manoj Thakur, conducted the post mortem of the deceased and he has proved on record the post mortem report, Ex. PW-5/A.

9. Smt. Malti (PW-1) has filed affidavit, Ex. PW-1/A, which corroborates the contents of the petition she deposed that on 04.10.2010 at about 4:15 p.m. the deceased was traveling in the vehicle No. HP 68-0186, as owner of the goods. The said vehicle met with accident near Nallah Falanju on Dand Chakotar road due to the rash and negligent driving of respondent No. 3. PW-1 has further stated that the deceased died on account of injuries sustained in the accident. As per her, she is wife of the deceased and petitioners No. 2 to 5 are sons and daughter of the deceased. She was subjected to extensive cross-examination but nothing contradictory has come qua the accident. She has denied that the accident occurred due to mechanical failure and that the accident was not the result of rash and negligent driving. PW-1 has disclosed for the first time that her husband was traveling as owner of the goods, but there was no occasion for her to state this fact anywhere else. She has denied that her husband was gratuitous passenger and more than ten persons were there in the vehicle due to overloading the accident had occurred. There is no reason to disbelieve petitioner No. 1, as she lost her husband. Her version stands fortified by PW-2, Shri Tula Ram, who has also tendered his affidavit of evidence, Ex. PW-2/A. PW-2 has stated that the deceased was traveling in the ill fated vehicle alongwith the goods of marriage, but the vehicle fell into the Nallah, which was the result of rash and negligent driving of the driver of the vehicle. He has denied in his cross-examination that the accident had taken place due to the mechanical defect or that the driver was not rash or negligent. He has also denied that no goods of marriage were being transported by the deceased claiming that the deceased had bought the articles of marriage/Dham in his presence from the shop of Pawan Kumar. The version of this witness is fortified by the version of PW-1, therefore the versions of PW-1 and PW-2 cannot at all be doubted. This witness has also denied that the deceased was traveling as gratuitous passenger or there were ten persons sitting in the vehicle and the accident had occurred due to the overloading of the vehicle.

10. The petitioners have also examined HHC Diwan Chand (PW-4) who has proved FIR No. 70/10, dated 04.10.2010, under Sections 279, 337 and 304-A IPC, Ex. PW-4/A. As per the contents of FIR, Ex. PW-4/A, the ill fated vehicle met with accident at about 4:15 p.m. at Falanju Nallah, due to rash and negligent driving. It is mentioned in the FIR, Ex. PW-4/A, that the deceased was walking on foot alongwith Khajanu and boarded the ill fated vehicle near Dand and Iqbal, Pawan Kumar, Subhan, Ahamad Deen and Yog Raj were also sitting in the vehicle, who sustained injuries. However, said Khajanu was not examined by respondent No. 1 that the deceased was not having any goods. Neither any injured was examined nor their MLCs have been placed on record demonstrating that they sustained the injuries in the said accident. If so, there are no merits in the stand of respondent No. 1 that the deceased was not traveling as owner of the goods or that there were more than 10 persons in the vehicle or that overloading was the cause of accident.

11. In the instant case the post mortem of the deceased was conducted at CHC, Salooni, and Dr. Manoj Thakur, M.O. (PW-5) conducted the post mortem of the deceased on 05.10.2010 and he has issued report, Ex. PW-5/A. As per him, the cause of death was intra cranial haemorrhage and the injury was possible in a vehicular accident. On the other hand, respondent No. 2 has appeared in the witness-box as RW-1. However, he did not utter a single word that the accident took place due to the mechanical failure or overloading. Respondent No. 1 did not produce any evidence. Respondent No. 3 has also not stepped into the witness-box to substantiate that the mechanical defect was the cause of accident. In the absence of any cogent evidence, it stands duly established that the accident was the result of rash and negligent driving of respondent No. 3.

12. It has come on record that while PW-2, Shri Tula Ram, was being cross-examined by respondent No. 1 (appellant herein) that the ill fated vehicle was hired for Rs.800/- by the deceased and the deceased was carrying the goods for marriage. The onus was on respondent no. 1/Insurance Company to prove that the deceased was a gratuitous passenger and no positive evidence has been led by respondent No. 1 to discharge its onus, which was on respondent No. 1. Therefore, I find no illegality in the findings arrived at by the learned Tribunal below, holding that the deceased was not the gratuitous passenger. It has also come on record that the vehicle met with an accident when respondent No. 3 (driver) could not control the vehicle and the vehicle fell into a khud. No mechanical defect in the vehicle has been proved on record by respondents No. 2 and 3 and, therefore, the only conclusion is that the vehicle met with an accident due to rash and negligent driving of respondent No. 3. I find no infirmity with the impugned award, so passed by the learned Tribunal below. At the same time, as far as the compensation is concerned, there is no cross-objection filed on behalf of the petitioners in the appeal and simply on the basis of arguments here and there no enhancement can be granted to the petitioners, as there is no cross-objection in the appeal, otherwise also the quantum of compensation is in accordance with settled principles.

13. Resultantly, the findings arrived at by the learned Tribunal below are just, reasoned and after appreciating the facts and evidence, which has come on record, to their true perspective and the law has been applied correctly. Thus, no interference is required. Consequently, the appeal is dismissed with no orders as to costs.

14. In view of the above, the appeal stands disposed of, as also pending application(s), if any.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Sanjay Karol, J.

In exercise of powers vested under Section 7 of the Himachal Pradesh Forest Produce (Regulation of Trade), Act, 1982 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Act') the Government of Himachal Pradesh issued notification dated 3.4.1991 (Annexure P-1), regulating the manner in which payments were required to be made to the owners of private forests, whose forest produce was purchased by the H.P. State Forest Corporation. The notification itself provides for complete mechanism of payment on economic basis/system.

2. Validity of such notification came up for consideration before a Division Bench of this Court in CWP No. 629 of 1991, titled as Ishwar Dutt & others vs. State of Himachal Pradesh & others, which was disposed of vide judgment dated 18.12.1996, wherein the Court not only held it to be valid, but also clarified as under:

> "5. As regards the notification, which is found in Annexure P-11, we do not find any merit in the contention urged by learned counsel for the petitioners. We are not able to find out anything, which is contrary to the provisions of the Act or Rules or any provisions of the Constitution and the principles of natural justice. The economic system, which has been invoked and adopted by the Forest Corporation has been found by the Government to be enforceable and acceptable and on that basis, the notification has been issued. Section 7 of the Act contains two provisos. Under the first proviso, if the Committee fails to tender advice by the 15th of February proceeding the financial year, the State Government may proceed to fix the price without consultation of the Committee. That will arise only if there is a Committee and it fails to tender advice for fixing the price in different forest Divisions. The second proviso reads that the State Government through its authorized officer or agent may purchase the forest produce till the constitution of the Committees at a price mutually agreed upon between the parties to the sale. Under the second proviso, it is open to the State Government to fix the price even if there is no Advisory Committee, under Sections 6 and 7 of the Act. It is only the said provision, under which the notification dated 3.4.1991 has been issued by the Government fixing the price for different forest produce. We do not find any illegality whatever in the said notification.
> 6. The said provision referred to the price mutually agreed upon between the parties to the sale. In this case, there is an agreement between the power agent of the parties and the Forest Corporation. Under the agreement, the party had agreed to the fixation of the price, as per the economic system, which was in vogue previously. The Government notification fixing the price at a particular rate says that if the price obtained under the economic system is higher that has to be paid. The Government notification says that whichever is the higher price it is to be adopted and paid for the trees in question. In such a situation, we do not find any illegality whatever in the notification dated 3.4.1991. Consequently, that contention fails." [Emphasis supplied]

3. It is a matter of record that not only the respondent/Corporation accepted the aforesaid findings but moved an application, seeking implementation thereof, in letter and spirit.

4. One Sh. Ashok Pal Sen, who perforce had to sell his produce to the State Forest Corporation, filed a petition before this Court, being CWP No. 900 of 2000, titled as Ashok Pal Sen vs. The H.P. State Forest Corporation, seeking benefits under the very same notification dated 3.4.1991, for the reason that the State Government had not issued any other notification under Section 7 of the Act, for the Financial Year 1994 – 1995. Learned Single Judge vide judgment dated 5.1.2004, by relying upon the decision rendered in Ishwar Dutt (supra) allowed the petition by according benefits under the very same notification. In effect, petitioner was held entitled to the price of forest produce at a rate which was higher than the agreed rates, on the basis of royalty. Criterion adopted was that of economic basis. Eventually petition came to be allowed in the following terms:

> "25. In view of the aforesaid discussion, this writ petition is allowed and as a result of it, petitioner is held entitled for a sum of Rs. 6,31,604/- and the respondent-Corporation is directed to pay the same as per Annexure P-8 having been worked out on economic basis, by or before 1.3.2004 by remitting the same through the banker's cheque or demand draft to the petitioner at its own expense. In case needful is not done by or before this date, respondent shall also be liable for payment of interest on this amount at the rate of 6% per annum with effect from 1.7.1996 till the date of its payment. No costs."

5. It is not in dispute that the said decision came to be affirmed by the Division Bench of this Court in terms of judgment dated 22.3.2004, rendered in LPA No. 6 of 2004, titled as The H.P. State Forest Corporation vs. Ashok Pal Sen.

6. Still aggrieved, the Corporation unsuccessfully agitated the issue before the apex Court, but however, on 2.12.2010, Civil Appeal No. 531 of 2005, titled as H.P. State Forest Corporation Ltd. vs. Ashok Pal Sen, came to be dismissed on merits in the following terms:

> "We have heard learned counsel for the parties.
>
> We find no merit whatsoever in this appeal preferred by the Corporation against the impugned judgment. The impugned judgment merely followed the decision of another Division Bench in Ishwar Dutt and others vs. State of Himachal Pradesh and others made in Civil Writ Petition No. 629 of 1991 dated 18.12.1996. The said judgment squarely applies to the facts on hand.
>
> This appeal is accordingly dismissed."

7. Even a Review Petition [Rev. Pet. (C) No. 1279 of 2011 in Civil Appeal No. 531 of 2005] came to be dismissed by the apex Court on 25.8.2011.

8. It is a matter of record that even the present petitioner, vide agreement dated 8.2.1995 (Annexure P-6) had sold the forest produce grown over his private land, to the respondent-Corporation. In terms of the agreement, petitioner was entitled to 50% of the basic rate on the basis of royalty. It is not in dispute that case of the present petitioner is identical to that of the petitioner(s) in Ishwar Dutt (supra) and Ashok Pal Sen (supra). Undisputedly no other notification under Section 6/7 of the Act came to be issued by the respondent-Corporation, and the only notification governing the field was dated 3.4.1991, subject matter of earlier cases. With the matter having come to rest in the case of Ashok Pal Sen (supra), present petitioner, vide communication dated 30.11.2011, seeking parity, requested the Corporation for release of payments, on the basis of very same notification and in terms of the aforesaid decisions. But however, such claim came to be refuted by the Corporation for the reason that benefit accorded by the Court was specific to the petitioner(s) therein and that, in any event, petitioner's claim was barred by limitation.

9. Noticeably the Act itself postulates mutually binding reciprocal obligations upon the parties. (i) Owner of the forest produce grown over private land is under an obligation to sell the same only to the State Government or its agent; (ii) Equally the State/its agent is to compensate the owner by making payment of the produce. All such payments are regulated by and are required to be made in consonance with the statutory provisions. Significantly relationship between the parties is governed by and under the Statute and not the contract alone.

10. The notification in question categorically provides for grant of benefit of higher price to the owner of the produce. And this is notwithstanding the agreement having entered into between the parties.

11. Deprivation of statutory claim is nothing but an infringement of a constitutional right. When the State deprives the citizens of their properties, it is a clear violation of Article 21 of the Constitution of India. In a Welfare State, the statutory authorities are bound to pay adequate compensation.

12. After observing that Article 300-A of the Constitution of India only limits the power of the State that no person shall be deprived of his property, save by authority of law, the apex Court in Tukaram Kana Joshi and others vs. Maharashtra Industrial Development Corporation and others, (2013) 1 SCC 353, clarified that even after cessation of right of property as a fundamental right, acquiring the property of a citizen most certainly tantamounts to deprivation and such deprivation can take place only in accordance with "law".

13. The Court in Tukaram (supra) further observed that the right to property is now considered to be, not only a constitutional or a statutory right, but also a human right. Though, it is not a basic feature of the Constitution or a fundamental right. Human rights are considered to be in the realm of individual rights, such as the right to health, the right to livelihood, the right to shelter and employment.

14. Whether on the ground of laches and delay itself, such right can be defeated and petition thrown or not, more so after its admission, is an issue which requires consideration, in view of the stand taken by the respondent. The answer to the same, in my considered view lies in the Statute and Part-III of the Constitution itself. Such right cannot be negated purely on account of delay and laches for the following reasons. (i) Relationship inter se the parties is governed by the Statute/Subordinate Legislation in the shape of notification; (ii) The Government/its agent is under an obligation to pay the amount to the owner of the forest produce. This has to be in terms of the Statute/notification issued there under. Failure to comply with the statutory notifications, cannot come in the way of the rightful claimant, in having his produce sold at marketable rates. Significantly acquisition of forest produce is by force of law, leaving the owner no choice but to perforce sell it to the State Government/its agent; (iii) There is a corresponding obligation cast upon the State/its agent to pay the amount in terms of the Statute. This has to be so done with promptitude. Of its own, State is under an obligation to discharge its statutory obligations and make payments, more so in the absence of any disputed claim. In the year 1996 and 2004 itself, this Court had settled the issue of rights and obligation of the State. They ought to have come forward in releasing the payments with certain amount of speed and dispatch, rather than forcing the parties to litigate for adjudication of their claims; (iv) The matter attained finality with the dismissal of Civil Appeal on 2.12.2010 as also Review Petition by the Apex Court on 25.8.2011, whereafter petitioner promptly agitated the issue in terms of his communication dated 30.11.2011 (Annexure P-8).

15. An identical issue came up for consideration before the apex Court in K. Thimmappa & others vs. Chairman, Central Board of Directors, State Bank of India & another, (2001) 2 SCC 259 wherein it was argued that if treatment meted out to the petitioners was found to be discriminatory and as such violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India, the Court would not throw away the petitions merely on the ground of laches. Despite the issue having been agitated after a period of one/ two decades, such contention came to be accepted by the Court. Petitioner had sought reliance on the following observations made by the apex Court in Ramchandra Shankar Deodhar vs. State of Maharashtra, (1974) 1 SCC 317:

> "Moreover, it may be noticed that the claim for enforcement of the fundamental right of equal opportunity under Article 16 is itself a fundamental right guaranteed under Article 32 and this Court which has been assigned the role of a sentinel on the qui vive for protection of the fundamental rights cannot easily allow itself to be persuaded to refuse relief solely on the jujune ground of laches, delay or the like."

16. In Godavari Sugar Mills Limited v. State of Maharashtra and others, (2011) 2 SCC 439, the apex Court culled out the following principles:

> "(i) Normally a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India will not be entertained to enforce a civil liability arising out of a breach of a contract or a tort to pay an amount of money due to the claimants. The aggrieved party will have to agitate the question in a civil suit. But an order for payment of money may be made in a writ proceeding, in enforcement of statutory functions of the State or its officers, [vide Burmah Construction Co. v. State of Orissa, 1962 Supp(1) SCR 242].

(ii) If a right has been infringed -whether a fundamental right or a statutory right and - the aggrieved party comes to the court for enforcement of the right, it will not be giving complete relief if the court merely declares the existence of such right or the fact that existing right has been infringed. The High Court, while enforcing fundamental or statutory rights, has the power to give consequential relief by ordering payment of money realized by the government without the authority of law [vide State of M.P. v. Bhailal Bhai, AIR 1964 SC 1006].

(iii) A petition for issue of writ of mandamus will not normally be entertained for the purpose of merely ordering a refund of money, to the return of which the Petitioner claims a right. The aggrieved party seeking refund has to approach the civil court for claiming the amount, though the High Courts have the power to pass appropriate orders in the exercise of the power conferred under Article 226 for payment of money, [vide Suganmal v. State of M.P., AIR 1965 SC 1740].

(iv) There is a distinction between cases where a claimant approaches the High Court seeking the relief of obtaining only refund and those where refund is sought as a consequential relief after striking down the order of assessment etc. While a petition praying for mere issue of a writ of mandamus to the state to refund the money alleged to have been illegally collected is not ordinarily maintainable, if the allegation is that the assessment was without a jurisdiction and the taxes collected was without authority of law and therefore the Respondents had no authority to retain the money collected without any authority of law, the High Court has the power to direct refund in a writ petition [vide Salonah Tea Co. Ltd. v. Superintendent of Taxes, (1988) 1 SCC 401].

(v) It is one thing to say that the High Court has no power under Article 226 of the Constitution to issue a writ of mandamus for making refund of the money illegally collected. It is yet another thing to say that such power can be exercised sparingly depending on facts and circumstances of each case. For instance, where the facts are not in dispute, where the collection of money was without the authority of law and there was no case of undue enrichment, there is no good reason to deny a relief of refund to the citizens. But even in cases where collection of cess, levy or tax is held to be unconstitutional or invalid, refund is not an automatic consequence but may be refused on several grounds depending on facts and circumstances of a given case. [Vide U.P. Pollution Control Board v. Kanoria Industrial Ltd, (2001) 2 SCC 549].

(vi) Where the lis has a public law character, or involves a question arising out of public law functions on the part of the State or its authorities, access to justice by way of a public law remedy under Article 226 of the Constitution will not be denied. [Vide Sanjana M. Wig v. Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Ltd., (2005) 8 SCC 242.] [Emphasis supplied]

17. On the question of delay, the Court in Tukaram (supra) observed as under:

"12. The State, especially a welfare State which is governed by the Rule of Law, cannot arrogate itself to a status beyond one that is provided by the Constitution. Our Constitution is an organic and flexible one. Delay and laches is adopted as a mode of discretion to decline exercise of jurisdiction to grant relief. There is another facet. The Court is required to exercise judicial discretion. The said discretion is dependent on facts and circumstances of the cases. Delay and laches is one of the facets to deny exercise of discretion. It is not an absolute impediment. There can be mitigating factors, continuity of cause action, etc. That apart, if the whole thing shocks the judicial conscience, then the Court should exercise the discretion more so, when no third party interest is involved. Thus analysed, the petition is not hit by the doctrine of delay and laches as the same is not a constitutional limitation, the cause of action is continuous and further the situation certainly shocks judicial conscience.

13. The question of condonation of delay is one of discretion and has to be decided on the basis of the facts of the case at hand, as the same vary from case to case. It will depend upon what the breach of fundamental right and the remedy claimed are and when and how the delay arose. It is not that there is any period of limitation for the Courts to exercise their powers under Article 226, nor is it that there can never be a case where the Courts cannot interfere in a matter, after the passage of a certain length of time. There may be a case where the demand for justice is so compelling, that the High Court would be inclined to interfere in spite of delay. Ultimately, it would be a matter within the discretion of the Court and such discretion, must be exercised fairly and justly so as to promote justice and not to defeat it. The validity of the party's defence must be tried upon principles substantially equitable. (Vide: P.S. Sadasivaswamy v. State of T.N., 1974 AIR (SC) 2271; State of M.P. & Ors. v. Nandlal Jaiswal & Ors., 1987 AIR(SC) 251; and Tridip Kumar Dingal & Ors. v. State of West Bengal & Ors., (2009) 1 SCC 768;)

14. No hard and fast rule can be laid down as to when the High Court should refuse to exercise its jurisdiction in favour of a party who moves it after considerable delay and is otherwise guilty of laches. Discretion must be exercised judiciously and reasonably. In the event that the claim made by the applicant is legally sustainable, delay should be condoned. In other words, where circumstances justifying the conduct exist, the illegality which is manifest, cannot be sustained on the sole ground of laches. When substantial justice and technical considerations are pitted against each other, the cause of substantial justice deserves to be preferred, for the other side cannot claim to have a vested right in the injustice being done, because of a non- deliberate delay. The court should not harm innocent parties if their rights have infact emerged, by delay on the part of the Petitioners. (Vide: Durga Prasad v. Chief Controller of Imports and Exports & Ors., 1970 AIR(SC) 769; Collector, Land Acquisition, Anantnag & Anr. v. Mst. Katiji & Ors., 1987 AIR(SC) 1353; Dehri Rohtas Light Railway Company Ltd. v. District Board, Bhojpur & Ors., 1993 AIR(SC) 802; Dayal Singh & Ors. v. Union of India & Ors., 2003 AIR(SC) 1140; and Shankara Co-op Housing Society Ltd. v. M. Prabhakar & Ors., 2011 AIR(SC) 2161)

15. In the case of H. D. Vora v. State of Maharashtra & Ors., 1984 AIR(SC) 866, this Court condoned a 30 year delay in approaching the court where it found violation of substantive legal rights of the applicant. In that case, the requisition of premises made by the State was assailed."

18. It is a settled principle of law that with the leave to appeal having been granted and the appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court having been invoked, order passed in the appeal would attract the doctrine of merger which order may be of reversal, modification or mere affirmation. [See: Kunha Yammed & others vs. State of Kerala & another, (2000) 6 SCC 359]

19. Hence there is no question of delay in the adjudication of petitioner's rights or invocation of equitable jurisdiction of this Court in seeking redressal of grievances emanating out of statutory obligation.

20. On a serious note, present petition is also opposed on the ground that the judgment rendered in Ishwar Dutt (supra) and Ashok Pal Sen (supra) is personam in nature and the ratio of law laid down therein, applicable and confined only to those writ petitioners, not extendable to the present petitioner who was not a party therein. Such contention needs to be rejected in view of law laid down by the apex Court in U.P. Pollution Control Board & others vs. Kanoria Industrial Ltd. & another, (2001) 2 SCC 549 wherein it is observed that:-

> "18. … … But in matters arising under public law when the validity of a particular provision of levy is under challenge, this Court has explained the legal position in M/s. Shenoy and Co. v. Commercial Tax Officer, Circle II, Bangalore, (1985) 2 SCC 512 : (AIR 1985 SC 621) that when the Supreme Court declares a law and holds either a particular levy as valid or invalid it is idle to contend that the law laid down by this Court in that judgment would bind only those parties who are before the Court and not others in respect of whom appeal had not been filed. To do so is to ignore the binding nature of a judgment of this Court under Article 141 of the Constitution. To contend that the conclusion reached in such a case as to the validity of a levy would apply only to the parties before the Court is to destroy the efficacy and integrity of the judgment and to make the mandate of Article 141 illusory. When the main judgment of the High Court has been rendered ineffective, it would be applicable even in other cases, for exercise to bring those decisions in conformity with the decisions of the Supreme Court will be absolutely necessary. Viewed from that angle, we find this contention to be futile and deserves to be rejected." [Emphasis supplied]

21. Further the apex Court in Bharat Sanchar Nigam Limited vs. Ghanshyam Dass (2) & others, (2011) 4 SCC 374 has observed as under:

> "25. The principle laid down in K.I. Shephard v. Union of India, (1987) 4 SCC 431, that it is not necessary for every person to approach the court for relief and it is the duty of the authority to extend the benefit of a concluded decision in all similar cases without driving every affected person to court to seek relief would apply only in the following circumstances:
>
> a) where the order is made in a petition filed in a representative capacity on behalf of all similarly situated employees;
>
> b) where the relief granted by the court is a declaratory relief which is intended to apply to all employees in a particular category, irrespective of whether they are parties to the litigation or not;
>
> c) where an order or rule of general application to employees is quashed without any condition or reservation that the relief is restricted to the petitioners before the court; and
> d) where the court expressly directs that the relief granted should be extended to those who have not approached the court."

22. In reference to the aforesaid decision Mr. Ram Murti Bisht, learned Addl. Advocate General invites attention of this Court to para – 26 of the said report. The fact situation being different, observation made by the Apex Court is not applicable in the instant case. No right whatsoever can be said to have accrued in favour of any third party.

23. To a similar effect is the decision rendered by the apex Court in State of Uttar Pradesh & others vs. Arvind Kumar Srivastava & others, (2015) 1 SCC 347 wherein the Court has held as under:

> "22. The legal principles which emerge from the reading of the aforesaid judgments, cited both by the appellants as well as the respondents, can be summed up as under:
> 22.1. Normal rule is that when a particular set of employees is given relief by the Court, all other identically situated persons need to be treated alike by extending that benefit. Not doing so would amount to discrimination and > would be violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India. This principle needs to be applied in service matters more emphatically as the service jurisprudence evolved by this Court from time to time postulates that all similarly situated persons should be treated similarly. Therefore, the normal rule would be that merely because other similarly situated persons did not approach the Court earlier, they are not to be treated differently.

> 22.2. However, this principle is subject to well recognized exceptions in the form of laches and delays as well as acquiescence. Those persons who did not challenge the wrongful action in their cases and acquiesced into the same and woke up after long delay only because of the reason that their counterparts who had approached the Court earlier in time succeeded in their efforts, then such employees cannot claim that the benefit of the judgment rendered in the case of similarly situated persons be extended to them. They would be treated as fence-sitters and laches and delays, and/or the acquiescence, would be a valid ground to dismiss their claim.
>
> 22.3. However, this exception may not apply in those cases where the judgment pronounced by the Court was judgment in rem with intention to give benefit to all similarly situated persons, whether they approached the Court or not. With such a pronouncement the obligation is cast upon the authorities to itself extend the benefit thereof to all similarly situated person. Such a situation can occur when the subject matter of the decision touches upon the policy matters, like scheme of regularisation and the like [see K.C. Sharma & Ors. v. Union of India, (1997) 6 SCC 721]. On the other hand, if the judgment of the Court was in personam holding that benefit of the said judgment shall accrue to the parties before the Court and such an intention is stated expressly in the judgment or it can be impliedly found out from the tenor and language of the judgment, those who want to get the benefit of the said judgment extended to them shall have to satisfy that their petition does not suffer from either laches and delays or acquiescence."

24. The apex Court in Prabhjot Singh Mand & others vs. Bhagwant Singh & others, (2009) 9 SCC 435 has held that "it is one thing to say that judgment delivered by this Court in Arvinder Singh Bains vs. State of Punjab, (2006) 6 SCC 673 is not a judgment in rem but prima facie this Court has interpreted the Rules, which would be a law declared in terms of Article 141 of the Constitution of India. The High Court before arriving at a finding that the first respondent would be entitled to be promoted to the cadre of Indian Administrative Service, in our considered opinion, should have bestowed serious consideration in regard to the implementation of the said judgment and the effect thereof. It was for the said purpose, the High Court should have assigned some reasons in support of its order".

25. To a similar effect is the decision rendered by the apex Court in Eastern Coalfields Limited vs. Tetulia coke Plant Private Limited & others, (2011) 14 SCC 624 wherein the Court has held that "it must be indicated herein that the present respondent also filed the writ petition in question in the Calcutta High Court before the aforesaid decision was rendered and in his case also interim order was passed by the Calcutta High Court. After the disposal of Ashoka Smokeless Coal India (P) Ltd. vs. Union of India, (2007) 2 SCC 640, the writ petition filed by the respondent herein which was pending was also considered and the same was allowed following the decision of this Court in Ashoka Smokeless Coal India (P) Ltd. (supra) as by that decision, this Court has declared the entire scheme to be invalid and ultra vires to the Constitution. Therefore, any action taken pursuant to the said scheme is also illegal and null and void. Following the ratio of the said decision this Court directed the coal companies to refund the price of the coal paid in excess of the notified price under e-auction scheme. Certain guidelines were also laid down as to how such payments is to be made. The said decision of the learned Single Judge was upheld by the Division Bench of the High Court by affirming the conclusions and analysing all the issues that were raised before it". The Court further held that "We are unable to accept the contention of the learned Additional Solicitor General that whatever is challenged in the present petition is only an interim order. It is not so because the respondents herein also challenged the legality of the e-auction scheme in the writ petition. The High Court has not disposed of only an interim prayer but has disposed of the entire writ petition by its judgment and order dated 25.03.2010. Consequently, it must also be held that when the entire scheme is set at naught by this Court, whatever action has been taken following the said e-auction by the coal company has also been declared to be illegal and, therefore, the coal company has become liable to refund the entire money which was collected in excess of the notified price. That is the consequence of quashing of the scheme and the same came to be reiterated by this Court while contempt petitions were filed and were disposed of. Therefore, it cannot be said that the effect of the decision of Ashoka Smokeless Coal India (P) Ltd. (supra) would be restricted only to those cases which were before this Court and not for all cases which were pending in different High Courts at that stage, at least to the issues which are common in nature".

26. It be only observed that neither this Court nor did the apex Court confine the decision to the parties before them.

27. In the instant case, petitioner cannot be said to be a fence-sitter. Immediately with the merger of the judgment of this Court, with that of the Apex Court, he approached the authorities, reminding them of complying with their statutory obligations.

28. The matter in support of the petitioner further stands fortified from the observations noticed by the apex Court in S. J. Coke Industries Private Limited & others vs. Central Coalfields Limited & others, (2015) 8 SCC 72 in the following terms:

> "37. Before parting with the case, we consider it opposite to state that this case reminds us of the subtle observations made by Justice M.C. Chagla, Chief Justice of Bombay High Court in Firm Kaluram Sitaram Vs. The Dominion of India, 1953 SCC OnLine Bom 39 : 1954 AIR (Bom) 50. The learned Chief Justice in his distinctive style of writing held as under: (SCC OnLine Bom para 19)
> > "19 ....we have often had occasion to say that when the State deals with a citizen it should not ordinarily rely on technicalities, and if the State is satisfied that the case of the citizen is a just one, even though legal defences may be open to it, it must act, as has been said by eminent judges, as an honest person."
> 38. Keeping in view the stand taken by the CCL and the manner in which they contested the cases at all stages in different High Courts and in this Court by raising same pleas despite their adjudication by this Court lead us to draw a conclusion that untenable pleas were being raised by CCL just to defeat the legitimate claim of the citizens determined in their favour by this Court in earlier litigations and which was known to CCL."

29. Relentlessly to drive home his point, Sh. Ram Murti Bisht, learned Addl. Advocate General draws attention of this Court to a decision rendered by the apex Court in Delhi Administration vs. Gurdip Singh Uban & others, (1999) 7 SCC 44. Bare reading of the judgment reveals that the Court was dealing with such of those parties who had never chosen to file objections to the acquisition proceedings and it is in this backdrop, while construing the specific provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, the Court held the acquisition proceedings with respect to the parties before them not to have lapsed. Opposition to the acquisition proceedings was sine qua non for assailing such action in Court.

30. No other point urged.

31. Hence for all the aforesaid reasons, communications dated 20.12.2011 (Annexure P-9) and 21.3.2012 (Annexure P-12) rejecting the petitioner's claim are quashed and set aside with a further direction to the respondent-Corporation to calculate the value of the forest produce sold by the petitioner to the State Forest Corporation in terms of agreement dated 8.2.1995 (Annexure P-6) on economic basis i.e. in terms of notification dated 3.4.1991 (Annexure P-1) and pay the amount within a period of four weeks from today. Since obligation to pay the amount within time, in accordance with law, vested solely with the respondent-Corporation and for the reason that it was not so done, petitioner shall be entitled to interest @ 6% per annum, in terms of decision rendered in Ashok Pal Sen's case (supra).

Petition stands disposed of accordingly, so also pending applications, if any.

Case referred:
State of Himachal Pradesh and others vs. Ajay Vij and others, 2011(1) Shimla Law Case 452

For the appellants: Mr. J.L. Kashyap, Advocate, for LRs No. 1(a) to 1(c).
For the respondents: Shri K.D. Sood, Sr. Advocate, with Mr. Rajnish K. Lall, Advocate, vice Mr. Sanjeev Sood, Advocate, for respondents No. 3 and 4.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Chander Bhusan Barowalia, Judge.

The present regular second appeal is maintained by the appellant/defendant, Shri Shiv Ram, who has died during the pendency of the appeal herein and the appeal is being pursued by his legal representatives (hereinafter referred to as 'the defendant') laying challenge to the judgment and decree passed by the learned Additional District Judge, Fast Track Court,

Shimla, H.P., in Civil Appeal No. 13-S/13 of 2004/88, decided on 21.03.2006, whereby the appeal preferred by the respondents/plaintiffs (hereinafter referred to as 'the plaintiffs') was allowed and the judgment and decree of the learned Trial Court passed in Case No. 104/1 of 1985, decided on 24.12.1987, was set aside.

2. The brief facts giving rise to the present regular second appeal are that the plaintiffs sought a decree for permanent prohibitory injunction against the defendant, restraining the defendant from interfering in any manner with the possession of the plaintiffs over the suit properties, details whereof find mention in paras 1 and 2 of the plaint. Plaintiffs had also sought decree for mandatory injunction with a direction to the defendant to remove the construction over a part of the suit land. Plaintiffs have also sought a direction to restore their possession over plots of land, as per jamabandi for the year 1981-82, measuring 13 bighas, 14 biswas comprised in khasras No. 50, 51, 53, 56, 68, 302/51/1 (2 bighas), 302/52/3 (0-17 biswas) and 303/52/1 (6.17 bighas) entered at Khewat No. 1 min, Khatauni No. 1 min, situated at mauza Kanori Pargana Dhamer, Tehsil and District Shimla. Simultaneously, the plaintiffs have also sought a decree for rendition of accounts, directing the defendants to render true and accurate accounts and on accounts being taken to grant a decree for recovery of amount alongwith a decree for recovery of Rs.500/- as damages till the date of filing of the suit and future damages @ Rs.1000/- per annum from the date of filing of the suit till the date of delivery of possession. In the event of defendants succeed in dispossessing the plaintiffs from any part of the suit land, then decree for possession was also prayed for.

3. As per the plaintiffs, plaintiff No. 1 is the owner of the land, that is, 40 plots, as per jamabandi for the year 1981-82, measuring 53 bighas 11 biswas, comprised in Khasras No. 2, 4, 12, 301/31, 299/32, 300/32, 41 min, 50, 51, 302/52 min, 303/52/1, 53, 54, 55, 56, 368/57, 370/58, 379/304, 381/305/61, 382/305/61, 62, 306/61, 67, 69 min, 68, 71, 72, 372/358/76, 359/76, 361/76, 80, 88/1, 203, 386/244, 387/244, 208/251, 392/263 and 393/263, entered at Khewat No. 1, Khatauni No. 1 of mauza Kanori Pargana Dhamer, Tehsil and District Shimla. As per the plaintiffs, plaintiff No. 2 is stated to be owner of the land, that is 15 plots, as per jamabandi for the year 1979-80, measuring 12 bighas, 16 biaswas, comprised in Khasras No. 1349/186, 1355/188, 1359/190, 1360/190, 1362/192, 1363/1092, 159, 159/1, 180, 1336/181, 1337/181, 1339/182, 1342/183, 1346/1, 85 and 1347/185, entered at Khewat No. 74, Khatauni No. 151, situated at Mauza Majhar, Pargana Dhamer, Tehsil and District, Shimla. It is also averred in the plaint that plaintiff No. 1, being ex-Ruler of erstwhile princely State of Dhami, has to remain out of the village usually for substantial period and he was getting his property managed through various persons. The defendant, who was the father of the present appellants, was appointed as a Manager to look after and manage the properties of plaintiffs No. 1 and 2 and he was authorized to keep all accounts of the income and expenditure and defendant was liable to render accounts to the plaintiff after harvest of each crop, viz., twice a year. It also included looking after the building of the plaintiffs, situated over the above mentioned land and management of Parao as well as moveable and immoveable property of the plaintiffs. The defendant acting upon the instructions of the plaintiffs used to render the accounts to the plaintiffs, through plaintiff No. 1, after each harvest and for the work done by the defendant for and on behalf of the plaintiff. It is also averred that the defendant used to pay 10% management charges of the income of properties. The defendant was also required to maintain a register for keeping the account of income and expenditure as well as inventory of the properties of the plaintiffs.

4. It is further averred by the plaintiffs that in the month of March, 1982, the defendant got checked from the Officials of the Forest Department, that the rosin, which belonged to plaintiff No. 1, had been stolen from the godown in Khel-ka Chora and it was reported to the plaintiffs that 30 tins of rosin are missing from the godown. The matter was reported to the police and on investigation, 18 tins of rosin were found at Khel Ka Chora and 40 tins of rosin from godown at Kanori were missing. After conclusion of inquiry, the officials of Forest Department had to take rosin to Resin and Turpentine Factory at Bilaspur. The defendant did not open the lock when the officials of the Forest Department visited the spot. Plaintiff No. 1 had no option but to break open the locks. In the months of February/March, 1983, plaintiff No. 1 asked the defendant to bring the register containing the inventory of the property and amount of income and expenditure as well as to hand over the charge to plaintiff No. 1, but the defendant failed to do the needful. It is further averred that defendant had been deputed by plaintiff No. 1 to perform regular puja in the temple of 'Narsinghji Maharaj' situated at Kanori, Tehsil and District Shimla, which is private property of plaintiff No. 1. As per the plaintiffs, the defendant was having a residential house at Kanori Bazar, but with a view to properly look after and maintain the temple and perform the puja, defendant No. 1 was allowed to use a house belonging to plaintiff No. 1 in lieu of the services, which were being rendered by defendant in the temple. Defendant performed the puja for about ten years and the house, which was meant for the Pujari of the temple, was damaged by DGBR personnel. Subsequently, plaintiff No. 1 constructed two one room houses for which construction was carried out by the defendant and the funds were provided by plaintiff No. 1. One house was meant for residential purpose of defendant and other one for cooking and preparation of bhog for deity. Construction was raised on Khasra No. 303/52/1, situated at Mauza Manori, Tehsil and District Shimla. Defendant occupied both the houses and thereafter he asked permission to keep cattles, which was allowed by the plaintiffs. Till such time, the defendant used to remain in the house, but due to the act of the defendant, plaintiff No. 1 terminated the agency of the defendant and asked him to hand over the charge of the property and to stop managing the affairs of his property including the temple. In the months of February/March, plaintiff No. 1 visited the village and found that the defendant without the consent/permission of plaintiff No. 1 has constructed two scuppers upon a portion of the land comprised in Khasra No. 303/52/1. It is further averred in the plaint that defendant gradually extended his possession to the adjoining Khasras No. 51, 303/52 and has also cultivated the land comprised in Khasra No. 53 situated at Mauza Kanori. The defendant, as such has occupied the land measuring one bigha, 14 biswas, comprised in Khasra No. 50, 51 and 53 and 303/52/1 entered at Khewat No. 1 min, Khatauni No. 1 mim (as per jamabandi for the year1981-82), situated at Mauza Kanori, Pargana Dhamer, Tehsil and District Shimla. As per the plaintiffs, during the pendency of the suit, the defendant has further encroached upon land measuring 12 bighas, comprised in Khasras No. 56 (2-10), 68 (0-9), 302/52/1 (2-0), 302/52/3 (0-17) and parts of Khasra No. 303/52 (6-4), (0-13 biswas is already included in paragraph 11 of the plaint), total land measuring 12 bighas. Meaning thereby, the defendant is in occupation of 13.14 bighas of land over which he has no right, title and interest. It is further averred that the defendant has no right to raise construction or scuppers over the land and also to personally cultivate the same. With mala fide intentions the defendant intends to raise false claim upon the property of the plaintiffs and he wants to usurp the same. As per the plaintiffs, during the time when the defendant was managing the property, he sold grass out of the property and for which no accounts have been rendered by him. He has also not rendered the accounts of income received by him nor handed over the account books to the plaintiffs. Lastly, the plaintiffs pleaded that as the agency of the defendant was terminated, he is liable to render true and accurate account and he is also bound to pay the amount realized by him after deducting the expenses.

5. The defendant, who was the father of the present appellants, filed written statement and took preliminary objections, that is, over valuation of the suit, jurisdiction and mis joinder of necessary parties. On merits it is admitted that the plaintiffs are owners of the suit land, but the defendant claim himself to be the tenant on payment of half galla batai in respect of land measuring 13 bighas, 2 biswas, Kita 7, Khewat Khatauni No.1/1, Khasras No. 50 (6 biswas), Khasra No. 51 (3 biswas), Khasra No. 302/52/1 (2 bighas), Khasra No. 302/52/3 (17 biswas), Khasra No. 303/52/1 (6 bighas, 17 biswas), Khasra No. 56 (2 bighas 10 biswas) and Khasra No. 68 (9 biswas) situated in Village Kanauri, Pargana Dhamer, Tehsil and District Shimla for the last more than 12 years. The defendant has contended in the written statement that he has nothing to do with other land described in paras 1 and 2 of the plaint. He has also denied the entries in the jamabandi regarding the land. The defendant has admitted that plaintiff No. 1 is the ex-Ruler of erstwhile princely State of Dhami and plaintiff No. 2 is his daughter. The defendant, in his written statement, has denied the fact that he was ever employed by the plaintiff to manage the property belonging to the plaintiff. He has contended that he is only in cultivating possession of the land described in para No. 1 of the written statement on payment of half galla batai to the plaintiffs and the plaintiffs are taking undue advantage of the wrong entries in the record and is now trying to threaten the defendant to interfere with his possession over this land. As per the defendant, plaintiff No. 1, being rich person, has lodged a false complaint in the police after the defendant had applied for correction of revenue entries with the concerned revenue officer. However, due to some discrepancy in the description of land, the application was withdrawn and a fresh application has already been filed. It is contended that the lock and key used to remain with plaintiff No. 1 and his wife. After conclusion of inquiry, the factual position was unearthed and no action was taken against the defendant by the police. As per the defendant, temple Narsing Ji Maharaj is not the private property of plaintiff No. 1 and the temple is a place of worship of all. The defendant has admitted that he alongwith his sons is regularly performing puja in the temple. He has also admitted that he is running a dhaba in Kanori bazaar and the house is meant for Pujari of the temple, which is damaged. As per the defendant, plaintiff No. 1 sold the slates of this house to one Shri Goria, son of Shri Ram Dyal and the wooden structure was used by plaintiff No. 1 as firewood. It is further contended that plaintiff did not spent any amount on the construction of two rooms and it is the defendant, who has spent on the construction of these rooms. The house is being used for agriculture purposes. The defendant has denied that during the pendency of the suit, he has encroached upon the land of the plaintiffs. As per the defendant, there is no question of possession of the property, as the defendant is a tenant regarding the land measuring 13 bighas, 2 biswas of land, as mentioned in para 1 of the written statement. Defendant has also denied that he is liable to render any true and correct account as he was never appointed as manager by the plaintiffs to manage their properties.

6. The learned Trial Court on 16.04.1984 framed the following issues for determination and adjudication:

"1. Whether this Court has no pecuniary jurisdiction, as alleged? OPD.

2. Whether the suit is bad for mis-joinder of parties and causes of action and for multifarious, as alleged? OPD.

3. Whether there is a relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties, as alleged. If so, regarding what property? OPD.

4. If issue No. 3 is proved, whether this Court has jurisdiction to try the suit regarding the property over which the relationship of landlord and tenant is proved between the parties? OPP.

5. Whether the defendant was appointed as a Manager for the plaintiffs' properties and is liable to render accounts? OPP.

6. If issue No. 3 with respect to the properties mentioned in para 17-C of the plaint is decided against the defendant, then whether the plaintiffs are entitled to the possession of this property? OPP.

7. Whether the defendant has raised unauthorized construction on Khasra No. 303/51/1 bearing 13 biswas as alleged in the plaint? OPP.

9. Whether the plaintiffs are entitled to the relief of permanent injunction as prayed in para 17-A of the plaint? OPP.

10. Whether the plaintiffs are entitled to damages, if so how much? OPP.

11. Whether the plaintiffs are entitled to any future damages, if so on what rate? OPP.

12. Relief."

After deciding issues No. 1 and 2 against the defendant, issues No. 3 and 4 in favour of the defendant, issues No. 5 to 8, 10 and 11 against the plaintiffs and issue No. 9 in favour of the plaintiff, decreed the suit except the land, as mentioned in para No. 12 of the written statement.

7. Now, the appeal remains only with regard to the land measuring 13.2 bighas, out of the big estate of the plaintiffs, on which the defendant claims tenancy and thereafter vesting of ownership rights, as per the mandate of H.P. Tenancy and Land Reforms Act.

8. Against the judgment of the learned Trial Court, the appellants (who were the plaintiffs before the learned Trial Court) preferred an appeal, but the same was dismissed by the learned Lower Appellate Court on 26.05.1997. Against the said judgment, the plaintiffs came in regular second appeal and the matter was remanded back to the learned District Judge and hence the impugned judgment.

9. The present appeal was admitted on the following substantial questions of law:

> "1. Whether Addl. Distt. Judge, Fast Track Court, Shimla, has mis-construed, mis-read and misinterpreted pleadings of parties as well as oral and documentary evidence on record?
>
> 2. Whether Lower Appellate Court has not been able to record reasons to differ with the findings as recorded by the learned Trial Court with the aid of legal and valid grounds, therefore, findings recorded by learned lower Appellate Court are required to be set aside?
>
> 3. Whether the findings recorded by learned Lower Appellate Court are vitiated for want of proper appreciation and consideration of pleadings of parties and evidence on record and therefore, findings recorded by him are liable to be set aside?
>
> 4. Whether Trial Court rightly declared defendant/appellant to be a tenant over area measuring 13 bighas, 2 biswas and the reasons as given by learned Trial Court for arriving at such a conclusion having not been found any fault by learned Lower Appellate Court, therefore, appellant has to be held to be a tenant?
> 5. Whether presumption of correctness as attached to revenue entries have amply been rebutted by appellant as held by Trial Court and the Lower Appellate Court having not considered this point, therefore, jurisdiction has not been exercised properly?"

10. The learned counsel for the appellants has argued that the learned Lower Appellate Court has failed to give findings after appreciating the evidence correctly and so the appeal may be allowed. He has also argued that presumption of truth is attached to the revenue entries, which stood rebutted by the statements of the witnesses and it is clear that the defendant was tenant over the land to the extent of 13.2 bighas on which, earlier to the defendant, Shri Liaquat Ali, was the tenant. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondents/plaintiffs has argued that presumption of truth attached to the revenue entries has not been rebutted. He has further argued that defendant was servant of the plaintiff, Raja of Dhami, and he was never a tenant. In rebuttal, the learned counsel for the appellant/defendant has argued that the plaintiffs/respondents have not been able to show any appointment letter, though he has stated that defendant was appointed as servant by an appointment letter. The plaintiffs have also not been able to show any salary or remuneration paid to the defendant and the only possible conclusion that could be drawn is that the defendant was a tenant on the land to the extent of 13.2 bighas. To dispose of the present appeal, I would like to discuss the material, which has come on record.

11. In order to prove the contention that the defendant was inducted as a Manager of the property belonging to the plaintiff and thereafter he maintained the account in respect of the property so managed by him, one of the plaintiff, Shri Dalip Singh (who has expired during the pendency of the suit) has appeared as PW-1 and he has stated that his property is located at Kanori, Majhar, Halog, Khel ka Choura and to look after these properties he appointed various persons, who used to mange the properties and they also used to manage the account, which were checked by him after every six months. This witness has further testified that in respect of the property situated at Kanori, Majhar and Khel ka Chaura, the defendant was appointed as a Manager and in Kanauri there is a house and a temple alongwith Parao over his property. He has further deposed that there is also land and ghasni belonging to him at Kanauri and at Kanauri there is about 53 bighas of land belonging to him, whereas 12 to 13 bighas of land belongs to Pawan Kumari. As per this witness, the defendant used to cultivate the land situated at Kanori and Majhar and also used to look after the temple. The defendant also used to maintain the account regarding the sales and accounts of the property alongwith inventory. One house meant for Pujari was also there, but the same was razed by the personnel of DGBR. This witness has deposed that rosin tins were stolen from the godown and the matter was reported to the police, however, the defendant refused to hand over the keys of the godown. The lock of the godown was broke open and 48 tins of rosin were found missing. It is only thereafter the defendant started claiming himself as tenant of the plaintiffs and not the employee. The defendant also refused to render the accounts to the plaintiff regarding the properties, which was under his management. The defendant used to sell the grass worth Rs.1000/- and he also used to earn Rs.2000/- from the land. Apart from the above the defendant also used to earn about Rs.10/- to Rs.15/- from the Parao. This witness has deposed that the defendant has no right over the property and this witness also tendered in evidence copies of jamabandies and khasra girdawaries.

12. Notice, copy of which is Ex. P-14, was issued to the defendant prior to filing of the suit, its postal receipts are Ex. P-15 and Ads are Ex. P-16. As per PW-1, after the institution of the suit, the defendant has started cultivating some of his land, but he has abandoned the temple as well as the remaining land belonging to the plaintiffs. This witness, in his cross-examination, has admitted that he never used to cultivate the suit land by himself, but the land was cultivated by him by engaging the labourers. He does not remember the names of the labourers and he did not know that how much land is ghasni and how much is cultivable land. He has further deposed in his cross-examination that when the Manager used to render accounts to him he maintained no record thereof. 10% of the total income used to be paid as remuneration to the defendant, but qua this fact no accounts was being maintained by him. This witness was certain that the defendant was appointed about 10 years back, but on which date/month the defendant was appointed it was not known to him. In his cross-examination PW-1 has further deposed that the defendant was issued letter of appointment, but the same is not in his possession. He has admitted the fact that the defendant has moved an application for correction of revenue entries, however, he has denied that after moving of that application, the suit was filed against the defendant. He has further denied that land measuring 13.3 bighas located at Kanori was earlier used to be cultivated by one Iqwal Ali and after that the defendant is cultivating the said land on payment of galla batai. As per this witness Shri Gusaum and Shri Tulsi Ram earlier were his employees, however, he has denied that both these persons used to collect galla batai from the defendant and further transmitted the same to him. The defendant till 1982 used to render accounts. PW-1 has admitted in his cross-examination that the defendant offered key of the temple to him, but he refused to take the same, as the defendant was asked to render the accounts of the property, which he used to manage. This witness has denied the suggestion that the defendant is a tenant qua land measuring 13.3 bighas on payment of galla batai. Therefore, it is manifest that the defendant was appointed as a Manager of the property belonging to the plaintiffs, as PW-1 has admitted that the defendant was appointed as a Manager about 10 years back through a written appointment order, however, no such appointment order was placed on record to corroborate this statement. On close scrutiny of the statement of PW-1 it has also become manifest that PW-1 has not been able to state the date or month when the defendant was appointed as a Manager nor this witness could state the time when the defendant was appointed. As per this witness, the defendant was a Manager of the property of the plaintiffs and he was not a tenant.

13. Shri Bhandaru Ram (PW-2), who is in the business of buffaloes, has stated that he went to Dhami twice for business where he met the defendant and the defendant supplied him grass and he also stayed in a Parao, which he heard belongs to Raja Sahib. As per this witness, when he stayed in the Parao, both times the charges were received by the defendant. Except the above statement of PW-2, there is nothing material emanating from the statement of this witness and the same cannot at all be relied upon. PW-2 only heard that the Parao belongs to Raja Sahib, but he did not disclose that from whom he has heard the same. The plaintiffs have examined no other witness to establish that PW-2 stayed in the Parao belonging to them. Therefore, the statement of PW-2 went uncorroborated and same is not trustworthy. PW-3 is a Bank Officer in State Bank, Shimla. Cheque No. D-20/14/330, dated 24.10.1975, copy whereof is Ex. PW-3/A, was debited in current account No. 300 and his statement is only to this effect. On perusal of Ex. PW-3/A it is emanating that this cheque was issued in favour of one Shri Shiv Ram for Rs.700/- on 24.10.1975, but this fact cannot at all be established that the defendant was appointed as a Manager by the plaintiffs for managing their property. Mere issuance of cheque to the defendant by the plaintiffs cannot prove that the defendant was a Manager of the property of the plaintiffs.

14. Shri Partap (PW-4) has deposed that the disputed property is situated at Village Kanori and the defendant is an employee of the plaintiff and he used to look after the property and also the Parao situated there, which belongs to the plaintiffs. This witness has further deposed that in the year 1983 he was sent by the plaintiff to Kanori for checking the register maintained by the defendant, but the defendant said that he will show the same after some time, as the same was not immediately available on demand. PW-1 did not state this fact that PW-4 (Shri Partap) was deputed by him for checking the registers of the defendant. In the absence of corroboration from PW-1, the statement of PW-4 cannot be relied upon and it would be unsafe to rely upon the statement of PW-4 to this extent. PW-4 in his cross-examination has admitted that his father used to be an employee of the plaintiff and he has also served the plaintiffs, which fact further goes to show that PW-4, being an employee of the plaintiffs, also can be held to be an interested witness and, therefore, much reliance cannot be placed on his testimony. PW-4 has further admitted in his cross-examination that the land was never given by the plaintiff in his presence to the defendant nor he knows under what conditions this land was given to the defendant by the plaintiffs. As per this witness, the defendant is in possession of this land for the last 7 to 8 years, which further fails to show that the defendant was in fact Manager of the property of the plaintiffs, as PW-4 could not state that under what condition this land was handed over to the defendant by the plaintiff.

15. PW-5, Shri Rup Chand, did not utter anything qua the land dispute and his statement is of no help to the plaintiffs. As per his statement this witness also used to look after the property of the plaintiffs for the last about five years and he used to receive 10% of income derived by him from the property under his management. In his cross-examination, this witness has admitted that he has not seen the suit land, therefore, the statement of this witness is of no help to the plaintiffs in proving that the defendant was not a tenant and he was a Manager appointed by the plaintiffs to manage their properties. PW-6 and PW-7 have stated that the defendant is looking after the properties belonging to the plaintiffs as an agent and as per PW-6 the defendant used to receive 10% of the total income derived from the properties managed by him. PW-6 has deposed that plaintiffs did not have any tenants, but they are having their agents, who are managing their properties. PW-6 in his cross-examination has admitted this fact that he has also served the plaintiff, however, it goes to establish that this witness is an interest witness and much reliance cannot be placed on his testimony. Moreover, PW-6 did not disclose his source of information from where he came to know that the defendant used to receive 10% of the total income of the property managed by him and that the defendant was managing the property as an agent and not as a tenant. Likewise, PW-7 has deposed that she used to purchase the grass from the defendant and the defendant was looking after the property situated at Kanori as an employee of the plaintiffs. It is undisputed that the defendant is looking after the property of the plaintiffs, but the point at controversy is that the defendant is looking after the property of the plaintiffs as Manager or as a tenant. The mere fact that PW-7 purchased the grass from the defendant cannot at all demonstrate that the defendant was a Manager rather than a tenant. PW-7 in his cross-examination has admitted that the land situated in Village Kanori is being cultivated by the defendant and this fact is also not disputed. PW-7 did not disclose anything about his source of information. The above statement of PW-7 is not suffice to hold that the defendant is not a tenant and was a Manager looking after the properties of the plaintiffs.

16. Shri Sarupa Nand, Patwari (PW-8) was examined to testify Khasra Girdawari, Ex. P-5 to Ex. P-12, and he has stated that he carried out the Khasra girdawari as per the factual position existing on the spot. Likewise, PW-9 has stated that he remained as Patwari in Halqua from December, 1972 to August, 1975. He has also carried out the girdawari qua the land belonging to the plaintiffs in presence of the defendant and one Shri Gusaun, who were the servants of the plaintiffs. PW-9 in his cross-examination has deposed that he does not know as to what remuneration used to be paid to the defendant by the plaintiffs nor he is in a position to state as to what business the defendant was carrying out. As per this witness, he has not seen any land belonging to the plaintiffs with the defendant and he has also stated that he has not seen anyone cultivating the land situated at Kanori in front of the house of Shri Saran Dass. Therefore, it is doubtful that this witness is stating qua the land in dispute or some other property. As per deposition of this witness he has never seen the defendant in possession of the suit property and he cannot state that the land situated at village Kanori was being cultivated. Whereas, as per the plaintiffs, the defendant was in possession of the land situated in Village Kanori, which belongs to plaintiff and land situated in Village Majhar belongs to plaintiff No. 2.

17. PW-10, Shri Jagdish Chand, was examined to establish that at the instance of Raja Sahib, that is, plaintiff No. 1, tins of rosin were seized from the godown at Kanori and Khel ka Chaura and he is also used to carry out inspection of the godowns. He has further deposed that inspection used to be carried out by him with the assistance of the defendant, who was the servant of the plaintiff No. 1 and the defendant was having the key of the godown. It is noticeable that inspection was being carried out on the order of D.F.O., however, no such order was placed on record to substantiate this fact. It is also noticeable that no witness has been examined on behalf of the plaintiffs to establish that PW-10 used to inspect the godown. The testimony of this witness is marred by a glaring fact that he has deposed in his cross-examination that when the tins of rosin were stolen, he went to the spot at Khel ka Chaura and Kanori alongwith the police and the lock of the godown was lying broken, however, as per this witness lock was opened in his presence, whereas, as per the pleadings, the lock of the godown was broken as the defendant refused to handover the keys of the godown when the police went to the spot, which further makes the testimony of PW-10 unreliable. This witness does not know that how many tins were missing from the godown. PW-10 visited the godown with the police, in such circumstances, much reliance cannot at all be placed on his testimony qua the fact that he ever carried out the inspection of the godown.

18. Shri Shingaru (PW-11) was examined to establish that the plaintiffs used to cultivate their land through employees and he was also a servant of the plaintiff for the last 18-20 years. As per statement of this witness, in Village Kanori no land of the plaintiff is in possession of the tenants. However, he has admitted this fact that he is an employee of the plaintiff. Thus, he is also an interested witness, therefore, much reliance cannot be placed on his testimony.

19. The above ocular evidence does not prove that the plaintiffs have appointed the defendant as a Manager and he was not a tenant. Except the statement of PW-1 nothing has come on record that goes to establish that plaintiff was appointed as a Manager and he was not a tenant. The witnesses examined by the plaintiffs are either interested witness or they do not inspire confidence, therefore, their testimonies cannot be safely relied upon. The best evidence for the plaintiffs was the appointment letter issued to the defendant appointing him as Manager, but the same has not been produced by the plaintiffs. Moreover, PW-1 could not state that when the defendant was appointed as Manager. The plaintiffs have not brought on record any documentary evidence which demonstrates that the defendant was managing the property of the plaintiffs as Manager and not as a tenant. The plaintiffs have placed on record copies of jamabandi, Ex. P-1 to P-4 and copies of khasra girdawari, Ex. P-5 to P-12, which depict that the suit land is in ownership and possession of the plaintiffs. No doubt presumption of truth is attached to the copy of jamabandi, but this presumption is always rebuttable. The plaintiffs have also placed on record copy of notice, Ex. P-14, which was issued to the defendant, its reply, Ex. P-17, is also on record. In reply to this notice, the defendant has refuted that he was ever appointed as Manager by the plaintiffs and he has submitted that he is a tenant of the land situated in Village Kanori and he use to pay rent regularly qua the property.

20. In fact, the defendant is claiming himself as tenant over 13.2 bighas of land situated in Village Kanori and he is not claiming any right over the rest of the property. The defendant is also denying that he was ever appointed as a Manager by the plaintiffs. The defendant examined eight witnesses in order to substantiate his claim.

21. The defendant, Shri Shiv Ram (DW-1, since dead) stated that land measuring 13.2 bighas, situated in Village Kanori, belongs to the plaintiffs and he is in possession of the same on payment of galla batai. As per the defendant, he is in possession of this land for the last 15 to 16 years and prior to that one Iqwal Ali was in possession of this land. He and Iqwal Ali use to pay galla batai to the plaintiffs. The land remained with Iqwal Ali for about 3 years and thereafter the same came into the possession of the defendant on payment of galla batai. The servants of the plaintiffs, that is, Gosaium and Tulsi Ram used to collect galla batai from him. PW-1, in his cross-examination, has admitted that Tulsi Ram and Gosaiun were his servants, however, he has denied that they used to collect any galla batai from the defendant qua the land situated at Kanori. As per the defendant (DW-1), his nephew, Shri Parkash was working as servant with the plaintiff during the period 1974-1976 and cheque, Ex. PW-3/A, was issued by the plaintiff in lieu of his services and the same was encashed by him. DW-1 has further deposed that in addition to the above mentioned land no other land of the plaintiffs is in his possession. He has denied that he ever rendered any account regarding the crops upto 1982 nor he has ever paid 10% of the income to the plaintiffs. The defendant used to perform Puja in Radha Krishan Mandir at Kanori and money received by him were used by him for the purpose of the temple. On receipt of notice, Ex. P-14, he handed over the keys of the temple to the plaintiffs. This witness has denied that any report was lodged by the plaintiffs qua theft of rosin and he has also denied that rosin was damaged by him. As per this witness, he was never appointed as Manager and so there was no question of rendering any account to the plaintiffs. In cross-examination at length this witness did not state anything contradictory and he has not been tattered. He has further denied that he received any staying charges from the persons staying in the Parao belonging to the plaintiffs. He has denied that he used to lock the rosin. He admitted in his cross-examination that he does not possess any receipt of galla batai. As per this witness, girdawari was carried out regularly and he has denied that he used to look after the property of the plaintiffs situated at Khel Ka Choura. He denied that he has given the land at Village Kanori to some shopkeepers of that locality. No register was being maintained by him qua the temple where he used to perform puja. He has also denied that he used to receive 10% of the total income of the property managed by him belonging to the plaintiffs. He has denied that after receipt of notice he did not hand over the possession of the land nor did he render any account to the plaintiffs.

22. Shri Iqwal Ali (DW-2), as per the defendant, is the person who used to cultivate the land prior to him. DW-2 has fully corroborated the version of the defendant. As per this witness, the land situated at Kanori was in possession of the defendant as a tenant on payment of galla batai and Tulsi Ram and Gosaun were the servants of the plaintiffs, who used to receive rent from him. This witness has stated that he remained in possession of 12 to 13 bighas of land for about 14 to 15 years. He has also stated that after him the defendant came into possession of the land at Village Kanori on payment of rent. This witness has denied that he used to work as Washerman and was dismissed from service on the charges of theft by the plaintiffs and due to this he is having enmity with the plaintiffs. He does not possess any receipt of rent and he has denied that no land was in his possession, as a tenant, which belongs to the plaintiffs. As per this witness, the defendant was also servant of the plaintiffs and was looking after their property.

23. Shri Tulsi Ram (DW-5), to whom DWs 1 and 2 are alleging that he used to receive the rent from them regarding the land situated at Kanori on behalf of the plaintiff and whom PW-1 has also admitted to be his servant at one time is also very imperative. As per this witness, about 15 to 16 years back he worked with the plaintiffs for about 7 to 8 years alongwith one Gosaun. He has further stated that the defendant was possessing about 12 to 13 bighas of land at Kanori and he used to pay half galla batai. The galla batai used to be paid by him at his shop and weighed at the shop of one Saran Dass. As per this witness, he used to collect the galla batai on behalf of the plaintiffs and thereafter used to hand over the same to the plaintiffs. Prior to the defendant, the land was in possession of Iqwal Ali. This witness, in his cross-examination, has stated that he left the service of the plaintiffs about 7 to 8 years back. He has denied that grass was sold by him without the permission of the plaintiffs and he has also denied that he was dismissed by the plaintiffs for stealing a cow. He has further denied that the defendant was servant of the plaintiffs and he (defendant) never used to pay rent to him on behalf of the plaintiffs qua the land in his possession. Animosity between the plaintiffs and this witness has not been proved, thus this witness can be safely held as an independent witness.

24. At the cost of repetition, PW-1 in his cross-examination has admitted that Tulsi Ram was his servant and he used to collect rent from the defendant qua the land at Kanori and this fact has been further substantiated by DWs 1 and 2. Therefore, the statements of DWs 1 and 2 stand fully corroborated that the defendant was, in fact, a tenant in possession of the land situated at Kanori and he used to pay rent qua that land. The rent was used to be collected by Tulsi Ram and Gasaun and prior to him, it was Iqwal Ali (DW-2), who was in possession of this land as a tenant. Mere absence of any receipt regarding the payment of rent does not make the testimony of the defendant untrustworthy, as the person to whom the defendant used to pay the rent has fully substantiated the statement of the defendant.

25. Shri Gauria (DW-4) was examined in order to establish that the defendant has purchased stone etc. from the plaintiffs in respect of the houses located on the disputed land. However, the statement of this witness went uncorroborated and thus cannot be relied upon. As regards the fact that the defendant is in possession of the land as a tenant is concerned, this witness did not whisper anything qua the same, but he has stated that it was told to him by the defendant that he is cultivating the land on payment of rent and therefore, the statement of DW-4, being hearsay, cannot be relied upon.

26. Shri Parkash (DW-6) is nephew of the defendant and he has stated that he served the plaintiff for about 2 ½ years on salary of Rs.150/- per month and during that time the defendant was his guardian appointed by the Court. As per this witness, payment of Rs.700/-, through cheque in October, 1975, was made by the plaintiffs to the defendant for the service of Parkash and after that he made no payment. Shri Tulsi Ram and Shri Gosaun were the servants of the plaintiffs, which is a undisputed fact. This witness has further asserted that Tulsi Ram and Gosaun used to receive the rent from the defendant, which fact is substantiated on record by DW-5 himself. He has denied, in his cross-examination, that defendant was a servant of the plaintiff. He has further stated that in his presence he has seen the defendant paying the rent to Tulsi Ram. However, his statement cannot be relied upon as neither Tulsi Ram nor the defendant has asserted this fact that any payment of rent was made by the defendant to Tulsi Ram in presence of DW-7. This witness, in his corss-examination, has admitted the fact that girdawari was being carried out regularly and the same was done qua this land according to the factual spot position.

27. Smt. Lalita Chauhan (DW-8) was examined in order to prove Ex. DW-8/A to Ex. DW-8/D. On close scrutiny of these documents, it is emanating that DW-8/A is the statement of Iqwal Ali, therein he has stated that for the last 12 to 13 years the defendant in in possession of the land on payment of galla batai and prior to this he was in possession of this land on payment of rent. Ex. DW-8/B is the statement of the defendant made before AC 2nd Grade, Shimla, whereas Ex. DW-8/C is the statement of Saran Dass made before AC 2nd Grade, wherein he has stated that the land is in possession of the defendant as a tenant on payment of galla batai. Ex. DW-8/D is the report of girdawar Kanungo, who reported to AC 2nd Grade, Shimla, that the land situated at Kanori, measuring 13.2 bighas is in possession of the defendant as a tenant on payment of galla batai for the last 13 to 14 years and he has recommended the correction in the revenue record regarding this fact, therefore, Ex. DW-8/A to Ex. DW-8/D further go to establish that even on inquiry, which was conducted by Kanungo, pursuant to the application moved by the defendant, for correction of revenue entries, he also recommended the correction in the revenue record to the extent that the defendant is in possession of land measuring 13.2 bighas land at Kanori as a tenant on payment of half galla batai.

28. From the above, it stands fully established on record that the plaintiffs used to receive galla batai from the defendant for the land measuring 13.2 bighas and the presumption of truth attached to the revenue entries showing the plaintiff as owner-in-possession of the said land stands rebutted. Even otherwise also, as far as the possession of the defendant qua the suit land is concerned, it is admitted by the plaintiff, but the case of the plaintiff is that the defendant was his servant. At the same time, as has been observed hereinabove, the plaintiff has failed to bring any document on record with respect to the appointment of the defendant as a servant, salary paid to him and conclusion is that the defendant was a tenant of the plaintiff on the land to the extent of 13.2 bighas.

29. The Hon'ble High Court of Himachal Pradesh in State of Himachal Pradesh and others vs. Ajay Vij and others, 2011(1) Shimla Law Case 452, has held that the presumption of truth is attached to the revenue record, but the presumption of truth is rebuttable. It has been held that the tenancy is creation of contract between parties, but the contract can be oral as well as in writing. Therefore, as the defendant was a tenant by way of oral understanding and the possession of the defendant is admitted by the plaintiffs and the same has also been proved on record, the conclusion is that the defendant was a tenant on the suit land to the extent of 13.2 bighas. At the same point of time, the Hon'ble High Court of Himachal Pradesh in State of Himchal Pradesh and others vs. Ajay Vij and others, 2011 (2) Shimla Law Cases 43, has held that the conferment of property rights on a tenant is automatic in view of H.P. Tenancy and Land Reforms Act.

30. For the reasons, as discussed hereinabove, it is clear that the leaned Lower Appellate Court has given the findings, which are perverse and the Court below has misconstrued, misread and misinterpreted the pleadings of the parties and oral as well as documentary evidence. Therefore, the substantial question of law No. 1 is answered accordingly. Substantial question of law No. 2 is answered holding that the findings of the learned Lower Appellate Court are perverse and not sustainable in the eyes of law. The substantial question of law No. 3 is also answered holding that the findings of the learned Lower Appellate Court are perverse. Substantial question of law No. 4 is answered holding that the findings of the learned Lower Appellate Court are perverse, as there is no reason in setting aside the well reasoned judgment of the learned Trial Court to the extent of not decreeing the suit of the plaintiff to the extent of 13.2 bighas of land, which was under the possession of the defendant as a tenant and on which the defendant has become owner as per the provisions of H.P. Tenancy and Land Reforms Act. Substantial question of law No. 5 is answered holding that the presumption of correctness is always attached to the revenue entries, but this presumption is always rebuttable and here in this case the presumption of truth attached to the revenue entries stands rebutted.

31. The net result of the above discussion is that the appeal filed by the appellant is required to be allowed as the judgment and decree passed by the learned Lower Appellate Court is perverse and is without appreciating the law and documents on record. Accordingly, the appeal is allowed and the judgment and decree passed by the learned Lower Appellate Court is set aside and that of the learned Trial Court is affirmed.

32. In view of the above, the appeal stands disposed of, as also pending application(s), if any, with no orders as to costs.

For the appellant: Mr. P.M. Negi, Deputy Advocate General.
For the respondents: Mr Lakshay Thakur, Advocate, for respondent No.1.
Mr. Y.P.S. Dhaulta, Legal Aid Counsel for respondent No.2.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Per Rajiv Sharma, Judge:

This appeal is instituted by the State against the impugned judgment dated 29.12.2010, rendered by the learned Special Judge, Kullu, H.P., in Sessions Trial No. 24/2010, whereby the respondents, Khekh Ram and Govind Singh (hereinafter referred to as the "accused" for the convenience sake), who were charged with and tried for offences punishable under Sections 20 and 29 of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985 (in short, the Act) have been acquitted.

2. The case of the prosecution, in a nutshell, is that on 19.10.2009, a police party, headed by PW8 Inspector/SHO Sanjeev Chauhan consisting of SI Tej Ram, HHC Kashmi Ram, PW1 HHC Hira Singh under the leadership of Ahmed Syed, the then Additional Superintendent of Police, Kullu, was on patrolling duty in an official vehicle bearing registration No. HP-03A-1281 being driven by Constable Tej Ram. On 20.10.2009 at about 4.00 A.M. when the police party was present at a place known as Kelti Dhar, a vehicle bearing registration No.HP-01K-0805 was noticed coming from Shallang side. The said vehicle was on the way to Kullu. It was signalled to stop. The driver of the vehicle stopped the vehicle at once and fled away from the spot towards an apple orchard on the lower side of the road. The place was secluded one. The Investigating Officer directed HHC Hira Singh to bring the independent witnesses, who came back after about 15-20 minutes and disclosed that due to odd hours, neither any independent witness nor any passer-by was available. As such, Inspector/SHO associated HHC Kashmi Ram and HHC Hira Singh as witnesses and searched the vehicle bearing registration No. HP-01K-0805 in their presence. On front seat of the vehicle, a black bag was found and on checking, it was found containing sticks and chapatti shaped black substance. After smelling the substance, it was found to be charas.

The police party also found from the dashboard of the vehicle registration certificate of the vehicle in the name of PW2 Ses Ram and a bank pass book bearing account No.3513 pertaining to Himachal Gramin Bank having been issued in the name of accused Khekh Ram. The charas weighed 14.750 kg. The charas was put in the same bag, which was sealed in a cloth parcel with nine seals of impression 'T'. Ruka was sent to the Police Station through HHC Hira Singh for registration of the case. The driver who fled away from the spot was stated to be having stout built, tall and aged about 30-35 years. He was described as Khekh Ram. On 20.10.2009, the owner of the vehicle Ses Ram was interrogated, who disclosed that on 3.8.2009 he had sold vehicle No.HP-01K-0805 to accused Govind Singh. On 20.10.2009, accused Govind Singh was also interrogated who disclosed that on 19.10.2009, his vehicle was taken by accused Khekh Ram for some personal work. Khekh Ram was searched by the police party in his house, but he was not found there. On 21.10.2009 he was arrested from Garsa while driving TATA SPACIO vehicle bearing registration No.HP-01K-1672. On 6.3.2010, the accused Govind Singh was also arrested. Thus, the accused persons were booked for the offences punishable under Sections 20 and 29 of the Act. The matter was investigated and the challan was put up in the trial court after completing all codal formalities.

3. The prosecution examined as many as 8 witnesses, in all, to prove its case against the accused persons. Statements of the accused persons under Section 313 Cr. P.C. were recorded, in which they pleaded that they were falsely implicated. The trial court acquitted the accused persons vide impugned judgment dated 29.12.2010. Hence, the present appeal.

4. Mr. P.M. Negi, learned Deputy Advocate General appearing for the appellant-State, has vehemently argued that the prosecution has proved its case against the accused persons beyond reasonable doubt.

5. M/s Lakshay Thakur and Y.P.S. Dhaulta, learned Advocates, have supported the impugned judgment dated 29.12.2010.

6. We have heard learned counsel for the parties and have gone through the impugned judgment and record meticulously.

7. PW1 HHC Hira Singh testified that on 19.10.2009 at about 10.25 P.M., police party headed by SHO Police Station Kullu, Sanjeev Chauhan, went on patrolling duty. After sometime, Ahmad Syed, the then Additional Superintendent of Police, Kullu, also joined the police party as Incharge. On 20.10.2009 at about 4.00 A.M. when the police party reached at a place known as Kelti Dhar in official vehicle No. HP-03A-1281, a Maruti Alto Car was noticed coming towards the police party. The SHO signalled the vehicle to stop. The driver stopped the vehicle at a distance of about 15-20 yards from the police party and fled away from the spot towards the orchard on the downside of the road. The police party tried to chase the driver with the help of search lights, but he could not be nabbed. Thereafter, he was deputed by SHO to bring local witnesses. No independent witness was available on the spot as it was early hour of the morning. Thereafter, the vehicle was searched. During search, contraband was recovered from the front seat of the vehicle and registration certificate and bank passbook of Gramin Bank issued in the name of accused Khekh Ram were also recovered from the dashboard of the vehicle. The charas weighed 14.750 kg. The sealing proceedings were completed on the spot. The case property i.e. Alto Car bearing registration No. HP-01K-0805 along with its key, RC and pass book, was taken into possession vide memo, Ext.PW1/A. He along with HHC Kashmi Ram and SI Tej Ram signed the recovery memo as witnesses. In his cross-examination, he deposed that the driver of the vehicle fled away from the spot before the police party reached near the vehicle. He had seen him from his back side. He volunteered that he had also seen his side face from a distance of about 40-50 yards.

8. PW2, Ses Ram, testified that on 13.8.2009 he sold vehicle bearing registration No. HP-01K-0805 to accused Govind Singh.

9. PW3, HC Harbans Singh, proved on record copy of special report, Ext.PW3/A.

10. PW4, HC Manoj Kumari, testified that on 20.10.2009 since no senior officer was present in the Police Station, she was officiating as SHO-cum-MHC, Police Station, Kullu. On 20.10.2009, at about 6.55 A.M., HHC Hira Singh brought Ruka to Police Station, on the basis of which, she recorded FIR, Ext.PW4/A. On the same day, at about 5.30 P.M., Inspector/SHO Sanjeev Chauhan deposited with her a parcel, Ext.P1, sealed with 9 seals of impression "T" along with sample seal "T", NCB form in triplicate, photocopy of seizure memo and vehicle bearing registration No. HP-01K-0805 along with its keys. She duly entered all the above articles in the relevant register No.19 at Sr. No.216. On 21.10.2009, she handed over parcel, Ext.P1 along with sample seal "T", NCB form in triplicate, photocopy of seizure memo, photocopy of FIR and docket to Constable Kishan for being deposited at SFSL Junga vide R.C. No.171/2009, Ext.PW4/C, who after depositing the same at SFSL Junga handed over the R.C. to her.

11. PW5, Constable Kishan Chand, testified that he had taken the case property to SFSL Junga.

12. PW6, Constable Narender Kumar, proved on record rapats, Ext.PW6/A, Ext.PW6/B and Ext.PW6/C.

13. PW7, Kapil Sharma, Assistant Chemical Examiner, NDPS Division, SFSL Junga, proved on record chemical examination report, Ext.PA. In his cross-examination, he deposed that the case property was received by him from Constable Kishan Lal.

14. PW8, Sanjeev Chauhan is material witness. He deposed that he was posted as SHO, Police Station, Kullu in the month of October, 2009. He deposed the manner in which the vehicle bearing registration No. HP-01K-0805 was intercepted at Kelti Dhar on 20.10.2009 at about 4.00 A.M. According to him, he deputed HHC Hira Singh to bring independent witness from nearby locality, who after 15-20 minutes returned back to spot and apprised him that no independent witness was available. Thereafter, he associated HHC Hira Singh, HHC Kashmi Ram and SI Tej Ram as witnesses. During search of the vehicle, the charas weighing 14.750 kg was found on the front seat of the vehicle. On opening dashboard of the vehicle, pass book bearing account No.3513 of Himachal Gramin Bank issued in the name of accused Khekh Ram and registration certificate of the vehicle were also found. Sealing proceedings were completed on the spot. The case property, i.e. contraband, Alto Car along with R.C., keys and bank pass-book, was taken into possession vide memo, Ext.PW1/A. Thereafter, he prepared the ruka, Ext.PW8/A and handed over the same to HHC Hira Singh for being taken to Police Station Kullu for registration of the case. During investigation, Ses Ram disclosed to the police that he had sold his vehicle bearing registration No.HP-01K-0805 to accused Govind Singh by way of an affidavit. Accused Govind Singh disclosed to the police that accused Khekh Ram had taken the said vehicle from him to bring his wife from Anni. On 21.10.2009, accused Khekh Ram was arrested when he was coming from Garsa road vide memo Ext.PW1/C. In the month of March 2010, accused Govind Singh was arrested vide memo, Ext.PW8/G. In his cross-examination conducted by learned defence counsel for accused Khekh Ram, he deposed that when the police party alighted from the police vehicle, driver of vehicle No. HP-01K-0805 fled away from the spot and jumped towards dhank (gorge) on lower side of the road. He also chased him on the road. He denied the suggestion that no bag was recovered from vehicle No. HP-01K-0805. In his cross-examination conducted by learned defence counsel for accused Govind Singh, he denied the suggestion that he forced the accused Govind Singh to depose against accused Khekh Ram and when he refused to obey, he falsely implicated him in this case. Whatever was disclosed by accused Govind Singh and Ses Ram, it was recorded in the zimini orders.

15. What emerges from appraisal of the statements of the prosecution witnesses is that on 20.10.2009 at about 4.00 A.M., when the police party was on patrolling duty at a place known as Kelti Dhar in an official vehicle No. HP-03A-1281, a Maruti Alto Car bearing registration No. HP-01K-0805 being driven by accused Khekh Ram was signalled to stop. On seeing the police party, he at once stopped the vehicle and ran away from the spot towards the orchard downside the road. The police party tried to chase him with the help of search lights, but he could not be nabbed. PW8, Investigating Officer directed HHC Hira Singh to bring the independent witnesses, who came back after about 15-20 minutes and apprised him that due to odd hours and the place being secluded one, no independent witness was available. As such, PW8 Investigating Officer, associated HHC Kashmi Ram and HHC Hira Singh as witnesses and searched the vehicle bearing registration No. HP-01K-0805 in their presence. On search, a black bag was found on the front seat of the vehicle and it was found containing sticks and chapatti shaped black substance, which after smelling was found to be charas. The registration certificate of the vehicle in the name of one Ses Ram and a pass book bearing account No.3513 pertaining to Himachal Gramin Bank having been issued in the name of accused Khekh Ram were also found in the dashboard of the vehicle. The charas weighed 14.750 kg. The vehicle was owned by accused Govind Singh.

16. Mr. Lakshay Thakur, learned Advocate, has vehemently argued that the prosecution has failed to connect the accused Khekh Ram with the alleged offence. He has contended that accused Khekh Ram was booked in the present case merely on the basis of his bank pass-book allegedly found in the dash board of the vehicle bearing registration No. HP-01K-0805. He has also argued that in the ruka, Ext.PW8/A the name of the accused Khekh Ram was not mentioned.

17. It has come in the cross-examination of PW1 HHC Hira Singh that the accused Khekh Ram fled away from the spot before the police party reached near the vehicle. When search lights were thrown on him, the police party noticed his back portion. He had also seen him from his back side. He had also seen his side face from a distance of about 40-50 yards. The pass book bearing account No.3513 pertaining to Himachal Gramin Bank having been issued in the name of accused Khekh Ram was also found in the dashboard of the vehicle.

18. We have gone through the ruka, Ext.PW8/A. Towards end of Ruka, Ext.PW8/A, the name of the accused has been specifically mentioned from whom the charas weighing 14.750 kg was recovered. The learned trial court should have read the contents of the Ruka, Ext.PW8/A in its entirety. Even in the NCB form also, name of the accused Khekh Ram has been mentioned.

19. Mr. Lakshay Thakur, learned Advocate has also vehemently contended that the accused Khekh Ram has been falsely implicated by the police personnel by planting the contraband, but there is no merit in his contention taking into consideration the huge quantity of charas (14.750 kg). Moreover, he has not proved on record that there was any animosity between Khekh Ram and the police personnel, who intercepted the vehicle. Even the bank pass-book of the accused Khekh Ram was also found in the dashboard of the vehicle. The accused Khekh Ram also feigned ignorance when he was put question No.7 while recording his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. that Alto Car No. HP-01K-0805 was searched by PW8 Inspector Sanjeev Chauhan and during search a black and red colour bag, on which word “Sports” was printed, was found on the front seat of the vehicle. A pass book bearing account No.3513 of Himachal Gramin Bank issued in his name, in which about Rs. 1,79,000/- were found to have been deposited upto 3.10.2009 was found in the dashboard of the vehicle. He should have given some explanation how his bank pass-book was found in Alto Car No. HP-01K-0805. There was no occasion for the police personnel to falsely implicate him. Therefore, the prosecution has proved beyond reasonable doubt that it was the accused Khekh Ram, who was driving the vehicle bearing registration No. HP-01K-0805, on 20.10.2009 at 4.00 A.M., from which the charas weighing 14.750 kg and bank pass-book bearing account No.3513 pertaining to Himachal Gramin Bank issued in his name were recovered.

20. It is reiterated that the name of the accused Khekh Ram was mentioned in the Ruka as well as in the NCB form. The learned trial court has not correctly appreciated the Ruka, Ext.PW8/A wherein name of Khekh Ram has been specifically mentioned. Though, the learned trial court has observed that Ahmad Syed, the then Additional Superintendent of Police, Kullu, was not examined, but it is the quality of the evidence and not the quantity of the evidence which is required to be judged by the Court to place credence on the statement.

21. Now, as far as the accused Govind Singh is concerned, the prosecution has failed to prove the case against him. What accused Govind Singh has told the police during interrogation is that accused Khekh Ram had taken his vehicle bearing registration No. HP-01K-0805 to bring his wife from Anni on 19.10.2009. Thereafter, he moved an application under Section 457 Cr.P.C. for the release of the vehicle. Moreover, the incident is dated 20.10.2009 and Govind Singh was arrested on 19.3.2010

22. Accordingly, the appeal is partly allowed and the impugned judgment dated 29.12.2010, rendered by the learned Special Judge, Kullu, H.P., in Sessions Trial No. 24/2010, is set aside to the extent it acquitted the accused Khekh Ram under Sections 20 and 29 of the Act. Accordingly, accused Khekh Ram is convicted for the offences punishable under Section 20 of the Act. He be produced in the Court to be heard on the quantum of sentence on 22.9.2016. The bail bonds are cancelled. The acquittal of accused Govind Singh is upheld.

23. The registry is directed to prepare the production warrant.

(Para-11 to 13)

For the appellant: Mr. M.A.Khan, Addl. AG.
For the respondent: Mr. Sanjeev Bhushan, Sr. Advocate with Ms. Abhilasha Kaundal, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Justice Rajiv Sharma, J.

The State has come in appeal against the judgment dated 31.5.2011, rendered by the learned Special Judge (FTC), Kullu, H.P., in Sessions Trial No. 51/2010, whereby the respondent-accused (hereinafter referred to as the accused), who was charged with and tried for offence punishable under Section 20 of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985 (hereinafter referred to as the Act), has been acquitted.

2. The case of the prosecution, in a nut shell, is that on 16.2.2010 at about 8:10 PM at place known as "Fagu Bridge" Inspector SHO along with HC Purshotam, HHC Hem Raj and HHG Sher Singh was going towards Larji in official vehicle in connection with patrolling duty. When the police party reached near Fagu bridge, they noticed one boy standing on the bridge. On seeing the police vehicle, he turned towards Ghambhir road and tried to run down towards the rivulet. The police party became suspicious and nabbed the accused. The boy disclosed his identity. SHO suspected that the boy was carrying some narcotic substance. The place was isolated. The police waited for sometime, but when neither any vehicle nor any person passed through the road, SHO joined HC Purshotam and HHC Hem Raj as witnesses. The accused was apprised of his right to be searched either before a Gazetted Officer or a Magistrate. He consented to be searched by the police present at the spot. SHO gave his personal search. Thereafter, search of the accused was conducted and during his search one polythene envelope from the inner pocket of brown coloured coat of accused was recovered. From the envelope, marble shaped black substance was recovered. It was found to be charas. It weighed 250 grams. The same was wrapped in white coloured cloth and sealed with five impressions of seal "H". NCB-I form in triplicate was filled in and impression of seal on separate pieces of cloth was also taken. Recovery memo was prepared. Rukka was sent to the Police Station through HHC Hem Raj, on the basis of which, FIR was registered. I.O. deposited the case property with MHC along with other relevant documents at Police Station. The case property was sent to FSL, Junga. The report of the Chemical Examiner was procured. The investigation was completed and the challan was put up before the Court after completing all the codal formalities.

3. The prosecution, in order to prove its case, has examined as many as nine witnesses. The accused was also examined under Section 313 Cr.P.C. According to him, he was falsely implicated. He denied the prosecution case in entirety. The learned trial Court acquitted the accused, as noticed hereinabove. Hence, this appeal.

4. Mr. Mr. M.A.Khan, Addl. AG, has vehemently argued that the prosecution has proved its case against the accused. On the other hand, Mr. Sanjeev Bhushan, Sr. Advocate for the accused has supported the judgment of the learned trial Court dated 31.5.2011.

5. We have heard the learned counsel for both the sides and have also gone through the judgment and records of the case carefully.

6. PW-1 HHC Hem Raj testified that on 16.2.2010, he along with HC Purshotam and HHG Sher Singh was accompanying Insp. Prem Dass. They reached at Fagu bridge at about 8:10 PM. They noticed one boy standing on the bridge. On seeing the police vehicle, the boy turned towards Ghambhir road and tried to run away down towards the nullah (rivulet). The police party became suspicious and nabbed the accused. The boy disclosed his identity. The place was isolated. Insp. SHO suspected that the boy was carrying some narcotic substance. The police party waited for arrival of some vehicle passing through the road, but when neither any vehicle nor any person passed through the road, SHO joined him and HC Purshotam as witnesses. In their presence, the accused was apprised of his right to be searched either before a Gazetted Officer or a Magistrate. The accused consented to be searched by the police present at the spot. Consent memo Ext. PW-1/A was prepared to this effect. Insp./SHO gave his personal search but nothing incriminating was recovered and memo Ext. PW-1/B was prepared. Thereafter, personal search of the accused was conducted and during his search one round shaped material kept inside the polythene envelope from the left pocket of coat of accused was recovered. It was found to be charas. It weighed 250 grams. The same was wrapped in white coloured cloth and sealed with five impressions of seal "H". NCB-I form in triplicate was filled in and impression of seal on separate pieces of cloth was also taken. Recovery memo was prepared. Rukka was sent to the Police Station through HHC Hem Raj, on the basis of which, FIR was registered. In his cross-examination, he deposed that he did not know when the last bus starts from Kullu to Banjar but deposed that last bus from Banjar to Kullu starts at 6:00 PM. He along with Purshotam Lal was associated by the I.O. He did not remember that there were 9-10 houses in village Jol. He did not remember the exact distance between Village Jol and the bridge. He did not remember that village Bihali was also situated by the side of Ghambhir road. He admitted that cemented stairs also originate from other side of the bridge. He did not remember that house of Gurbachan Singh was situated near the foot path which originates from other side of the bridge. He did not know that five houses of sons of Mal Singh were also situated on the other side of the bridge. He denied that village Trigyali was at a distance of 1 km. from the spot. Voluntarily deposed that it was more than 1 km. The SHO came out from the vehicle first and ran towards the accused and thereafter other police officials followed him. There was no street light at the place of incident. The accused ran about 15-20 paces and then climbed down. He did not remember as to how far the accused went down from the bridge towards the rivulet. SHO nabbed the accused first. They waited for the arrival of vehicle and people passing through that place for 15 minutes only. He admitted that SDM and Tehsildar are also housed at Banjar. Consent memo Ext. PW-1/A was in the hand writing of HC Purshotam which was dictated by the SHO.

7. PW-2 HC Purshotam testified the manner in which the accused was apprehended near the bridge and all the codal formalities were completed on the spot. In his cross-examination, he deposed that new bus stand was about 1 km. from the Police Station and old one was about 200 meters from the Police Station. The distance of village Sidhwan from Police Station was about 2 kms. He did not remember the distance from Police Station to Village Trigyali. Fagu bridge was about 7 kms from the Police Station. He did not know that village Bihali was about 400 meters from Fagu bridge. He did not know that there were 4-5 families in village Bihali. He admitted that there were 10-12 houses at village Jol. He also admitted that there was pucca path situated on other side of bridge leading to some village. He did not know that the house of Gurbachan Singh was situated on the other side of Fagu bridge. He also testified that the accused was nabbed by the SHO.

8. PW-4 HC Chaman Lal testified that on 16.2.2010, Insp./SHO Prem Dass handed over one parcel containing 250 grams of charas sealed with five seal impressions of seal "H" along with the sample seals and NCB form in triplicate. Insp./SHO Prem Dass handed over these articles to him at 11:50 PM. He made entry of the same in the relevant register at Sr. No. 124 vide Ext. PW-4/A. On 18.2.2010, he handed over the case property along with the relevant documents to Const. Vijay Kumar for depositing the same with FSL, Junga vide RC No. 26/10.

9. PW-6 Const. Vijay Kumar deposed that on 18.2.2010, MHC Chaman Lal handed over to him one parcel containing 250 grams of charas sealed with five seal impressions of seal "H" along with the sample seal, NCB form in triplicate and other relevant documents vide RC No. 26/10 with direction to deposit the same at FSL, Junga. He handed over the same to the official of FSL, Junga and handed over the receipt to the MHC.

10. PW-9 Insp./SHO Prem Dass also deposed the manner in which the accused was apprehended on 16.10.2010 at 8:00 PM. He gave his personal search to the accused in the presence of witnesses. Thereafter, personal search of accused was conducted and during his search one polythene transparent envelope from the left pocket of coat was recovered. It was found to be charas. It weighed 250 grams. Rukka Ext. PW-8/A was sent to the Police Station through HHC Hem Raj, on the basis of which, FIR Ext. PW-8/B was registered at PS Banjar. In his cross-examination, he deposed that HHC Hem Raj chased the accused and he was apprehended by Hem Raj and Purshotam. The accused was apprehended at about 10 mtrs. below towards river side from the road. The accused ran about 25 meters from the place where he was standing before running towards river side. He has arrested the accused after sending the rukka to the Police Station. HHC Hem Raj handed over the case file to him at 11:00 PM at the spot. He denied the suggestion that some houses were visible from the place of incident. He denied that house of Gurbachan Singh was visible from the spot. He did not know that 5-6 houses were also situated near to the house which belongs to the children of Mal Singh. According to him, village Trigyali was about 1 ½ km. before Fagu bridge. He denied that village Bihali was also near to the spot. Volunteered that it was about 2 kms. away from the spot.

11. According to PW-1 HHC Hem Raj, Insp. /SHO Prem Singh nabbed the accused. PW-2 HC Purshotam also deposed that the accused was nabbed by PW-9 Insp./SHO Prem Dass. However, PW-9 Insp./SHO Prem Dass deposed that HHC Hem Raj chased the accused and he was apprehended by Hem Raj and Purshotam. The prosecution has not examined any independent witness. The case of the prosecution is that the place where the accused was apprehended was isolated and desolate and no vehicle passed through the bridge at the relevant time. However, it has come on record in the statement of PW-1 HHC Hem Raj that he took lift in the private vehicle to Police Station, Banjar.

12. PW-1 HHC Hem Raj has categorically testified in his cross-examination that the accused was arrested before he took rukka to the Police Station. However, PW-9 Insp./SHO Prem Dass deposed that accused was arrested after sending the rukka to the Police Station. PW-1 HHC Hem Raj deposed that he handed over the case file to SHO when he reached at the Police Station. However, PW-9 Insp./SHO Prem Dass deposed that PW-1 HHC Hem Raj has handed over the case file to him on the spot. These are major contradictions in the statements of the official witnesses.

13. PW-1 HHC Hem Raj deposed that he has taken lift in the private vehicle to reach Police Station, Banjar. Thus, it is evident that it was a busy road and police could easily associate independent witnesses at the time of search, seizure and sealing proceedings on the spot. The police officials instead of denying the suggestions in their cross-examinations have testified that they did not remember or that they did not know whether human habitation was nearby the place where the accused was apprehended. Thus, no credence can be given to the statements of the official witnesses.

14. The prosecution has failed to prove that the charas weighing 250 grams was recovered from the conscious and exclusive possession of the accused and thus this Court has no occasion to interfere with the well reasoned judgment of the learned trial Court dated 31.5.2011.

15. Accordingly, there is no merit in this appeal and the same is dismissed.

(Para-7 to 18)

For the Appellant: Mr. Vikram Thakur, Deputy Advocate General.
For the Respondents: Mr. Satyen Vaidya, Sr. Advocate with Mr. Vivek Sharma, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Vivek Singh Thakur, Judge

Respondents have been acquitted vide judgment dated 22.04.2009 passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge in Sessions Trial No. 14-R/7 of 2008 in case FIR No. 107 of 2006 under Section 302 readwith Section 34 IPC, registered in Police Station Jubbal District Shimla H.P. The acquittal of respondents has been assailed by State of H.P. in present appeal.

2. We have heard learned counsel for parties and have gone through the record.

3. Deceased Sanju son of PW-1 Sandhira Sharma was running business of tent house. On 12.12.2006 he was returning from village Raika to his village Hatkoti with his tents in pickup vehicle driven by PW-12 Nand Lal. PW-11 Papu Ram and Lalit Kumar were also with them. Near Palothi Dhar, their vehicle scratched car of respondents coming from opposite side. PW-12 Nand Lal did not stop his vehicle whereupon respondents came back and after chasing pickup vehicle, stopped their car in front of pickup vehicle. Respondents pulled PW-12 Nand Lal out of pickup vehicle and started beating him. PW-11 Papu Ram and Lalit Kumar ran away from spot, approached PW-1 Sandhira Sharma at Hatkoti and narrated the incident. PW-12 Nand Lal was taken by respondents to Police Station Jubbal. A case under Motor Vehicle Act was registered against PW-12 Nand Lal and he was arrested and was sent for medical examination.

4. Deceased Sanju neither reached Hatkoti nor was found with PW-12 Nand Lal. PW-1 Sandhira Sharma tried to locate her deceased son Sanju by making telephonic calls to her relations as well as Police Station Jubbal. On finding no clue or link about her son on 13.12.2006 at about 9.30 AM. she lodged missing report Ex. PW-14/B in Police Station Jubbal PW-12 Nand Lal was released on 13.12.2006 on furnishing surety by PW-1 Sandhira Sharma.

5. During intervening night between 12th and 13th December, 2006 respondents had approached PW-2 Keshav Ram for searching one missing person with the help of Mashal. PW-2 Keshav Ram also unsuccessfully tried to search that person in bushes. Respondents went towards Jubbal and PW-2 Keshav Ram returned to his house.

6. After registering missing report police also searched deceased Sanju. PW-1 Sandhira Sharma, PW-11 Papu Ram and PW-12 Nand Lal and Lalit Kumar were also accompanying the police. PW-1 Sandhira Sharma noticed shoe of deceased Sanju and after spotting shoes they all went down the cliff and found dead body of Sanju lying in the water with injuries on various parts of his body. Dead body was sent for postmortem.

7. On 14.12.2006 PW-1 Sandhira Sharma made statement Ex. PA under Section 154 Cr.P.C. suspecting that deceased Sanju was thrown from cliff by respondents after killing him. On the basis of her statement, FIR Ex. PW-9/A was registered in Police Station Jubal and respondents were arrested and after completion of investigation challan was put in the Court under Section 302 readwith Section 34 IPC against respondents.

8. Including respondents there were six persons on the spot and PW-11 Papu Ram and Lalit Kumar had left place immediately after PW-12 Nand Lal was pulled out from vehicle by respondents. As per prosecution story deceased Sanju tried to intervene to save PW-12 Nand Lal but he was pushed below the road by respondents and thereafter took PW-12 Nand Lal to Police Station Jubbal. Therefore, besides respondents there was only PW-12 Nand Lal who was present on the spot to tell about deceased Sanju. PW-12 Nand Lal deposed that when he was being beaten by respondents then Sanju, Lalit Kumar and PW-11 Papu Ram came out of vehicle and thereafter respondents forced him to drive the pickup to the Police Station Jubbal. He was declared hostile on the request of learned public prosecutor and was subjected to cross examination. During cross examination he denied suggestions of prosecution that Sanju had tried to save him from clutches of accused and respondents had caught hold of Sanju and started beating him in presence of this witness. He also denied that respondent Pawan Kumar had thrown deceased Sanju from cliff after taking him towards cliff. He resiled from his earlier statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and denied to have made such statement to the police. In cross examination by defence counsel this witness stated that they stayed on the spot for five minutes after stopping his vehicle by respondents and respondents took him to Police Station Jubbal and respondents did not beat Sanju in his presence. He stated that they were not knowing that Sanju had fallen down on 13.12.2006 and they searched him for about an hour.

There is no direct evidence on record to link respondents with killing of deceased Sanju. PW-2 Keshav Ram has been examined to prove that respondents were knowing that deceased had fallen from cliff or had been thrown by them below the road. This witness deposed that respondents approached him and he provided a Mashal and accompanied them for searching one persons fallen below the road in bushes. As per respondents, someone informed in Police Station Jubbal that out of three persons running towards Hatkoti, one person had fallen from the cliff and thereupon police official told them that there was shortage of staff and asked to search person fallen from cliff and for this reason they took help of PW-2 Keshav Ram for searching said person.

9. Therefore, the statement of PW-2 Keshav Ram is not a conclusive proof to infer that respondents had thrown deceased from cliff and therefore they were searching for him during night.

10. PW-11 Papu Ram deposed that respondents tried to catch them and because of their fear he and Lalit Kumar ran away from spot to house of Sanju and at that time deceased Sanju was there in the vehicle. He stated that they narrated the incident to mother of Sanju after reaching his house and mother of Sanju i.e. PW-1 Sandhira Sharma rang up to Police Station Jubbal and she was replied that persons had been sent for medical examination. But later on police official conveyed her that only Nand Lal was there in police Station. He also admitted that on 13.12.2006 he, Nand Lal, Lalit Kumar were interrogated by Police and their statements were recorded by Police.

11. PW-1 Sandhira Sharma visited Police Station Jubbal on 13.12.2006 and bailed out PW-12 Nand Lal but at that time PW-12 Nand Lal did not state anything with regard to pushing deceased by respondents from cliff on the day of incident. Respondents took PW-12 Nand Lal from spot to the police and lodged report against him resulting into his arrest on 12.12.2006. he was not having any sympathy for respondents especially on that day. Even if, it is considered that on 12.12.2006 he was feeling himself guilty and was under pressure of respondent as well as of police because of his conduct and situation then also after bailing out on furnishing surety by PW-1 mother of Sanju, there was no impediment to him for not disclosing to her about killing of deceased Sanju by pushing from cliff by respondent Pawan Kumar. PW-12 Nand Lal was alongwith PW-1 Sandhira Sharma and PW-11 Papu Ram on 13.12.2006 and 14.12.2006 but till 14.12.2006 no such statement/disclosure was ever made by PW-12 Nand Lal.

12. Statement of PW-1 Sandhira Sharma under Section 154 Cr.P.C. was recorded on 14.12.2006 on the basis of which FIR against respondents was registered. PW-7 Sanjeev Kumar admitted that statement of Sandhira Sharma was recorded on the spot in presence of Deputy Superintendent of Police, Sub Divisional Magistrate and 50-100 other persons and respondents, Papu Ram, Nand Lal and Lalit Kumar were also present on the spot. PW-11 Papu Ram also admitted that on 14.12.2006 he was in the house of Sanju deceased and several persons had assembled in Hatkoti Rest house where Sub Divisional Magistrate and Deputy Superintendent of Police were called there. Deputy Superintendent of Police called respondent Pawan Kumar there and his statement was also recorded in the presence of Sub Divisional Magistrate. PW-12 Nand Lal also admitted that on 14.12.2006 he was present in Hatkoti Rest House and his statement was recorded by the Sub Divisional Magistrate in the Rest house in presence of 100 persons including Sub Divisional Magistrate and Deputy Superintendent of Police. He admitted that people present in Rest House were angry but he showed ignorance about pressurizing by those persons for registration of case against respondents. PW-14 Investigating Officer also admitted that statement of Sandhira Sharma was recorded in Hatkoti Rest House in presence of villagers, Deputy Superintendent of Police and Sub Divisional Magistrate. He admitted presence of both respondents in the rest house. He stated that residents of area were agitating and were demanding registration of case against respondents. He admitted that on that day PW-11 Papu Ram and PW-12 Nand Lal and Lalit Kumar did not say anything against the respondents. The circumstances in which statement of PW-1 was recorded under Section 154 Cr.P.C. also create doubt about fair investigation.

13. Even if Ex. PA statement of PW-1 Sandhira Sharma is considered to be correct, even then in that statement she only suspected that her son was thrown from cliff by respondents after killing him. PW-11 Papu Ram and PW-12 Nand Lal were present in the rest house who were staying in the house of PW-1 Sandhira Sharma. In case deceased Sanju was thrown from cliff by respondents in presence of PW-12 Nand Lal, then he must have told this fact of PW-1 Sandhira Sharma. But, in her statement she did not state specifically that deceased Sanju tried to save Nand Lal upon which deceased Sanju was also beaten by respondents and pushed from cliff as was claimed by prosecution on the basis of statement of PW-12 Nand Lal recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C.

14. PW-12 Nand Lal resiled from his statement recorded by police under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and did not state in the Court that deceased Sanju was pushed or thrown by respondents from cliff in his presence. His version deposed in Court appeared to be correct as had respondents have pushed deceased Sanju from cliff in his presence while deceased was trying to save him, he would have definitely disclosed this fact PW-1 Sandhira Sharma who had bailed out him on 13.12.2006 or to PW-11 Papu who was resident of his area.

15. PW-1 Sandhira Sharma in her deposition in the Court stated that she made telephonic call to police at 11.00 PM to talk with her son but police people replied that her son was not there in Police Station but driver etc were there, who were telling that three persons ran away from the spot. Therefore, it can be inferred that from the very beginning PW-12 Nand Lal was saying that three persons i.e. Papu, Lalit Kumar and Sanju fled from the spot.

16. Respondents have also examined DW-1 as defence witness but his statement is not necessary to be discussed as there is no sufficient material on record to prove guilt of respondent. The only eye-witness PW-12 Nand Lal who was companion of deceased at the time of incident had not supported prosecution case. Even if entire evidence is considered to be correct then also the material on record leads to suspicion only. Suspicion however strong can not take place of proof. Therefore, it cannot be said with certainty beyond all reasonable doubts that respondents had thrown deceased Sanju from the cliff to kill or after killing him.

17. PW-11 Papu Ram and PW-12 Nand Lal and Lalit Kumar in their statements under Section 161 Cr. P.C. did not state anything against respondents at first instance but they stated so in supplementary statements recorded by PW-13 Ram Rattan. In his cross examination PW-13 stated that these witnesses were eye witness to the incident and their statements under Section 161 Cr.P.C. were already on record at the time of recording their supplementary statements and he admitted that at the time of recording supplementary statements of these witnesses, their earlier statements were not read by him and these witnesses did not said at all that their previous statement were incorrect. There is possibility of registration of case succumbing to public pressure.

18. Respondents have been acquitted by the trial Court. From perusal and scrutiny of evidence, it cannot be said that the learned trial court has not appreciated the evidence correctly and completely and acquittal of accused has resulted into travesty of justice or has caused miscarriage of justice. After considering arguments of respective counsel for the parties and minutely examining the testimonies of the witnesses and other documentary evidence placed on record, we are of the considered view that prosecution has failed to prove the guilt of respondents-accused beyond reasonable doubt and thus, no case for interference is made out.

19. The present appeal, devoid of any merit, is dismissed, as also pending applications, if any. Bail bonds, if any, furnished by the accused are discharged. Records of the Court below be immediately sent back.

Case referred:
Deepak Gulati Versus State of Haryana, (2013) 7 Supreme Court Cases 675

For the appellant : Mr. M.A. Khan, Additional Advocate General.
For the respondents : Mr. Vinay Thakur, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Vivek Singh Thakur, Judge.

Assailing acquittal of respondents in case FIR No. 38 of 2006, dated 07.12.2006 under Sections 366, 376, 212, 109 and 417 of Indian Penal Code registered in Police Station Pooh District Kinnaur H.P., vide judgment dated 25.09.2010 passed in Sessions Trial No. 25 of 2007 by H.P., present appeal has been preferred by State of Himachal Pradesh.

2. On 07.12.2006 at about 4.40 PM, PW-7 Chhewang Lamo lodged FIR Ex. PW-7/A in Police Station, Pooh stating therein that her youngest daughter prosecutrix, aged 22 years was taken away by respondent Rajeev Kumar on 21.09.2006 from her village without their consent by alluring her under assurance of marriage. Respondent Rajeev Kumar kept their daughter in same village in the house of his maternal uncle PW-1 Thakursain for about 14 days thereafter he kept his daughter in village Rarang in the house of his Aunt (Bari Maa) (Mausi) PW-5 Hira Dassi. They asked Rajeev Kumar through the Vice President, Gram Panchayat, Labrang to complete ceremonies of marriage but Rajeev Kumar stated that his parents were yet in tension and he will send his parents to them after having their concurrence but till date of lodging complaint no one approached them and on approaching Rajeev Kumar he again said that he will send his parents to them very soon. Since the day Rajeev Kumar took their daughter, he did not allow her to talk with them. Circumstances in which their daughter was living were not known to them and they did not visit the village Rarang apprehending clash. They were waiting for performance of ceremonies of marriage on behalf of parents of the boy but neither parents of boy nor boy came to them nor was anything communicated to them. It was believed by them that Rajeev Kumar was misguiding her and was interested to keep her by giving false assurance of marriage.

3. On the same day i.e. 07.12.2006 prosecutrix was admitted in PHC Skiba by PWs Hira Dassi and on her son suspecting that she had consumed poison where from she was referred to Reckong Peo. On that day, HC Bhoop Singh from Police Post Moorang visited PHC Skiba and approached Medical Officer vide application Ex. PW-11/A for issuance of MLC of prosecutrix. Perusal of Ex. PW-11/A reflected that at that time prosecutrix was identified as wife of respondent Rajeev Kumar.

4. On 8th December 2006, PW-10 SI Lekh Ram approached Medical Officer Reckong Peo with application Ex.PW-16/B for recording statement of prosecutrix for investigation of FIR lodged by her mother PW-7 Chewang Lamo. After seeking opinion of Medical Officer, statement of prosecutrix Ex. PW-3/A was recorded by police which was attested by the Medical officer.

5. In this statement prosecutrix stated that she was resident of Village Labrang and studying in +2. Respondent Rajeev Kumar of his village expressed love with her with the desire to marry her. Since 2004, he chased her where ever she used to go. She advised him that in case he was in love with her and wanted to marry her then he should sent his parents to her parents so as to finalize marriage. He compelled her repeatedly and on 21.09.2016 when she was going to her home, he took her with him by enticing her and saying that from that day they will live like husband and wife and he will complete ceremonies of marriage by sending his parents. On that day Rajeev Kumar took her to the house of his relatives at Sangla. On 22.09.2006 (respondent No. 3) Sanam Medup father of respondent, Rajeev Kumar, Thakur Sain, Ajay Kumar and Kamal Kishore etc. residents of Village Labrang reached Sangla and brought her and Rajeev Kumar alongwith them back to village Labrang and kept them in the house of PW-1 Thakur Sain for 14 days. Rajeev Kumar lived with her in that house. Thereafter Rajeev Kumar kept her for 2-3 nights in residences of Ward Member and other people in his acquaintance. On 7.10.2006, respondent took her to house of his Massi PW-5 Hira Dassi in village Rarang and since then till 07.12.2006 she remained there. Rajeev Kumar stayed there only for 5 days. On 07.12.2006, she consumed wrong medicine by mistake and she was brought to hospital by PW-5 Hira Dassi and her son. Rajeev Kumar also reached there. Police from Moorang also came and recorded her statement. She was referred to District Hospital Reckong Peo and Rajeev Kumar accompanied her and admitted her in the Hospital. Because of taking wrong medicine, she lost her consciousness for short interval. After reaching Hospital, she did not see Rajeev Kumar nor did he inquire about her condition. His whereabouts were not known. Late night her parents and father of Rajeev Kumar, Sanam Medup and Kamal Kishore also arrived at Hospital and at that time she was not completely conscious. She was unconscious for short interval. Vomiting had started after some time of taking medicine. On inquiring reason for vomiting by Lata daughter of Hira Dassi and Meson she had told them about consuming medicine from Almirah assuming that the same was cough syrup which was, perhaps, spray for apples. When she was being taken to Hospital she over heard some ladies talking that Rajeev Kumar had performed marriage with some one else which was not believed by her and she was stunned and was not able to inquire from them. She was repeatedly asking Rajeev Kumar to complete ceremonies of marriage but every time he deferred it by saying that ceremony of marriage will be completed very soon by the consensus of his parents. Her parents had also asked parents of Rajeev Kumar to complete ceremonies of marriage by sending Pradhan and Up Pradhan and Ward members but every time they deferred it on one pretext or other. As and when Rajeev Kumar stayed with her, they lived as husband and wife and Rajeev Kumar developed physical relations without marrying her and without her desire by deceiving her with assurances to marry and as such Rajeev Kumar spoiled her life. As it was heard that he had solemnized another marriage definitely his parents were behind the same who were not agreeing for marriage of Rajeev Kumar with her. Parents of respondent Rajeev Kumar would have performed ceremonies of marriage on that day only when they were brought back Labrang from Sangla. Parents of prosecutrix would have agreed but parents of Rajeev Kumar did not do so. When they were brought back to Labrang, Pradhan had asked Rajeev Kumar that what he had done. Respondent Rajeev Kumar had replied that he had married according to his wish. On 21.09.2008, Rajeev Kumar was also accompanied by her God brother Funchok Chhopel who was also cousin of Rajesh Kumar and he was accompanying them at Sangla also.

6. After completion of investigation challan was put in the Court and respondent No. 1 Rajeev Kumar was charge sheeted under Sections 366 and 376 of Indian penal Code and respondent No. 2 Kamal Kishore was charge sheeted under Section 213 of the Indian Penal Code whereas respondent No. 3 Sanam Medup was charge sheeted under Sections 366 read with Sections 109 and 376 read with Section 109 of Indian Penal Code.

7. On conclusion of trial, learned trial Court acquitted the respondents.

8. We have heard learned counsel for parties and had have perused record.

9. Prosecutrix and respondents belong to tribal community residing in District Kinnaur of Himachal Pradesh. Before evaluating evidence on record, peculiar customs of tribal community came on record in suggestions put by and on behalf of respondents to witnesses during cross examination are necessary to be discussed.

10. During cross examination of witnesses, respondents highlighted customs of Tribal Community to which prosecutrix and respondent belong. PW-5 Hira Dassi, Aunt (Mausi) of respondent Rajeev Kumar, stated that in their area customary marriage was performed with consent of male and female and thereafter both of them inhabited in house of their relatives for some time after marriage on their own. It was recognized as customary marriage in Kinnaur District to which parties belong. Positive suggestion put to PW-7 Chhewang Lamo, mother of prosecutrix was admitted by her by stating that it was correct that in their area customary marriage was performed by boy and girl with mutual consent by leaving their houses. However, she qualified that ritual of custom had to be performed in the same evening or night by offering bottle of liquor by the family of boy to the family of girl. Suggestion that when boy and girl performed their marriage against wishes of parents, there was no ritual of customs for offering bottle of liquor, was denied by her. She admitted that in customary marriage parents of boy offered a liquor bottle as per rituals through Mediator to the parents of girl. Another positive suggestion was admitted by her stating that it was correct that there were many couples in Kinnaur and in their area where the marriage was celebrated without consent of parents but she qualified that rituals were performed after celebration of such marriage which was customary. Similar suggestions put to PW-8 prosecutrix were also admitted by her. PW-8 prosecutrix also admitted that there was custom in Kinnaur that male and female could marry against wishes of parents and there were many couples in Kinnaur who had married without consent of their parents. Another positive suggestion put to her was admitted by her stating that it was correct that there were couples who had married against wishes of their parents and thereby living separately from their parents as the parents had turned them out.

11. PW-9 Rajinder Singh was Pradhan of Gram Panchayat Labrang who deposed that on 22.09.2006 respondent No.3, Kamal Kishore and Yaswant Singh called him to house of PW-1 Thakur Sain where respondent Rajeev Kumar and prosecutrix were present and on inquiring respondent Rajeev Kumar disclosed that he liked prosecutrix and had married her. Thereafter he advised respondent No.3 to perform rituals of customs of Kinnaur for marriage of prosecutrix and respondent Rajeev Kumar but respondent No.3 proclaimed that he will not agree for the marriage.

12. PW-9 further stated that there was custom in Kinnaur that a male and female could marry against wishes of parents and there could be such couples in Kinnaur. He admitted that when male and female married on their own against wishes of their parents and lived separately, no rituals of custom to perform prayer with a liquor bottle was conducted.

13. PW-10 Varinder Singh was Up Pradhan of Gram Panchayat. He deposed that on information of father of prosecutrix that his daughter was not in village, he inquired from Rajeev on telephone who in turn disclosed that prosecutrix was kept by him in Village Rarang i.e. Village of PW-5 Hira Dassi and he assured that he will prevail upon his parents for his marriage after his arrival to village from Maharashtra. This witness further deposed that rituals of customary marriage of respondent Rajeev Kumar were not performed with prosecutrix and Rajeev Kumar had married another girl of village Chagaon after the quarrel taken place after his intervention.

14. PW-10 also admitted positive suggestion of defence counsel by stating that it was correct that there were many married couples living separately from their parents who had married against their wishes.

15. It has also come in evidence of PW-7 Chhewang Lamo, mother of prosecutrix and PW-8 prosecutrix that visiting and contacting by parents with their daughter during her stay with boy in the house of relatives was not permissible till rituals of customary marriage were performed. Therefore conduct of parents of prosecutrix not to meet her during her stay in the house of PW-1 maternal uncle of boy despite having his house adjacent to the house of parents of prosecutrix, was not only natural but in accordance with customs of their Tribal community.

16. From scrutiny of statements of maternal uncle and aunt of respondent Rajeev Pw-1 and PW-5 mother of prosecutrix and prosecutrix PW-7 and PW-8, Pradhan and Up Pradhan of Gram Panchayat PW-9 and PW-10, it emerges that as per tribal custom of area, marriageable boy and girl intending to marry with their consent used to live together in families of their relatives as part performance of marriage ceremony. Both of them are considered husband and wife and during that period parents of girl wait for formal offer from side of boy generally through parents by sending a sealed bottle of liquor and acceptance of offer expressed by parents of girl by opening seal of the said bottle, completes marriage. In case of disagreement, sealed bottle is returned to parents of boy. Starting to live together in relations is a part of marriage ceremony and marriage is declared to be complete after ceremony of offering and accepting sealed bottle of liquor.

17. In case parents disagree and do not perform ceremony of offering and accepting, boy and girl used to live together as husband and wife but as a separate independent family and such couples are also accepted by society in tribal community. In this background conduct of prosecutrix and respondents is to be assessed.

18. Tribe of Kinnaur is not a primitive Tribe but a well cultured and socially awakened Tribe having due regards for dignity of a woman and such society of tribe do not permit a person to develop physical relations with young girl under the garb of custom and thereafter leaving her on the road without completing the process of marriage. Such an act will definitely attract provision of Section 366 and 376 of the Indian Penal Code.

19. As per prevailing custom prosecutrix and respondent Rajesh accompanied each other left their village on 21.09.2006, reached Sangla alongwith PW-6 Funchok Chhopel cousin of respondent Rajeev Kumar who also happened to be God-Brother of prosecutrix. At Sangla they stayed in house of a person related to PW-6.

20. Father (respondent No.3) and maternal uncle (PW-1) of respondent Rajeev with other villagers reached Sangla in search of prosecutrix and Rajeev Kumar. Respondent Rajeev Kumar informed them that he had married prosecutrix. Both of them were taken to village Labrang in house of PW-1, where also in presence of PW-1, respondent No. 3 and others. Rajeev Kumar replied to Panchayat Pradhan PW-9 Rajinder that he had married prosecutrix. Thereupon father of Rajeev left both of them in house of PW-1(maternal uncle of boy) who considered them married and allowed them to live as per custom of their tribal community.

Parents of prosecutrix and respondent Rajeev as well as maternal uncle are residents of village Labrang. But parents of girl did not contact their daughter following custom and waiting for reply/offer from parent of boy. Prosecutrix and respondent Rajeev Kumar lived as couple in house of PW-1 for 14 days but respondent No. 3 did not object or intervened nor sent prosecutrix back expressing unwillingness for marriage of prosecutrix and respondent Rajeev Kumar. Pradhan and Up Pradhan advised parents of Rajeev Kumar to complete marriage by performing ceremonies.

21. On 07.10.2006 respondent Rajeev took prosecutrix to house of his maternal aunt PW-5 Hari Dassi and introduced her as his wife. PW-5 Hari Dassi informed parents of respondent Rajeev Kumar and advised to complete marriage. Respondent Rajeev stayed in her house for five days and left prosecutrix there on the pretext to visit Maharastra to bring his testimonials but he never came back till 07.12.2006 when prosecutrix, suspecting to had consumed poison, was admitted in PHC Skiba as wife of respondent Rajeev Kumar by his maternal aunt PW-5 Hari Dasi and her son. During cohabiting with Rajeev Kumar, prosecutrix submitted herself for developing physical relation as husband and wife.

22. In aforesaid circumstances FIR initiating present case, was lodged by mother of prosecutrix on 07.12.2016. Respondent Rajeev Kumar married another girl to whom he was already engaged before taking prosecutrix to his relatives as a wife.

23. PW-8 prosecutrix reiterated her statement in the Court and her statement was corroborated by maternal uncle and aunt of respondent Rajeev Kumar PW-1 Thakur Sain and PW-5 Hira Dassi and also by mother of prosecutrix PW-7 Chhewang Lamo.

24. PW-11 Dr. Soma Negi conducted medical Examination of prosecutrix and opined that possibility of sexual intercourse could not be ruled out. PW-2 Dr. Rajinder Bisht conducted medical examination of respondent Rajeev Kumar and observed that he was physically fit for sexual intercourse.

25. PW-4 Laxmi Devi Panchayat Sahyak has proved date of birth certificate of prosecutrix as Ex. PW-4/B and that of respondent Rajeev Kumar PW-4/C. These certificates were not disputed. According to these certificates date of birth of prosecutrix and respondent was 03.12.1985 and 01.12.1980. Therefore, on 21.09.2006 prosecutrix and Rajeev Kumar were 20 and 25 years old. PW-3 had also issued letter Ex. PW-4/D to SHO, Police Station, Pooh disclosing that in Panchayat record Rajeev Kumar was not recorded as married.

26. In her deposition in court PW-8 prosecutrix stated that respondent Rajeev Kumar had married with Champa resident of Village Chagaon and was residing with her in his house and also having children from her. This fact was not disputed by respondents in cross examination rather suggestion was put to prosecution witnesses that a male was entitled to keep more than one wife as per custom of Kinnaur.

27. God brother of prosecutrix and cousin of respondent Rajeev Kumar Funchok Chhopel was examined as PW-6. He resiled from his earlier statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.PC. and was declared hostile. He was subjected to cross examination by learned Public Prosecutor as well as defence counsel. In examination –in-Chief he deposed that about 3 years back, prosecutrix met him in his village on the way and disclosed that she had married with Rajeev Kumar. Thereafter, he, Raj Kumar, Prosecutrix and Rajeev Kumar boarded one pick up van to Rickong Peo and then went to Sangla to house of his friend namely Chander Parkash. During night father of Rajeev alongwith other villagers reached there and all of them were brought back by father of Rajeev Kumar to Labrang where they had reached on the next morning. He further stated that at Labrang Rajeev Kumar and prosecutrix went to the house of PW-1 Thakur Sain and he went to his house. During his cross-examination by learned Public Prosecutor he denied suggestion put to him stating that he was not present there. He admitted that respondent No. 3 Sanam Medup father of respondent Rajeev Kumar was his maternal uncle. In cross examination, by defence counsel he stated that prosecutrix being his god sister was herself interested to marry respondent Rajeev Kumar and therefore approached him to take her to Rajeev Kumar so as to marry him. He further admitted prosecutrix was aware about engagement of Rajeev Kumar with some other girl and was apprehending refusal of father of Rajeev Kumar to allow her in his house and for that reasons she sought his assistance for taking her alongwith Rajeev Kumar to some other place and he brought them to Sangla. He stated that Rajeev Kumar was not having any acquaintance at Sangla and he was brought to Sangla by him but before staying there, all of them were taken back by respondent No. 3 father of Rajeev Kumar and he admitted that prosecutrix had planned that after her marriage with Rajeev Kumar, his father would agree for their marriage by breaking up engagement with another girl. He admitted that prosecutrix left her house in absence of her parents by concealing herself so as to marry with Rajeev Kumar.

28. Immediately after bringing respondent Rajeev Kumar and prosecutrix in the house of PW-1 maternal uncle of respondent Rajeev Kumar, PW-9 Rajinder Singh Pradhan Gram Panchayat was called and on his inquiry respondent Rajeev Kumar had declared that he had married prosecutrix and thereafter respondent Rajeev Kumar and prosecutrix were kept in the house of PW-1 for 14 days in consonance with customs of their community.

29. Suggestions put by defence counsel indicated that keeping prosecutrix by respondent Rajeev Kumar in house of his maternal uncle and maternal Aunt (Mausi) was justified by referring custom of marriage by consent of male and female. These customs were also referred to show that prosecutrix was also consenting party in all acts of respondent Rajeev Kumar.

30. With the help of deposition of PW-6 Funchok Chhopel it had been brought on record by respondents that prosecutrix was aware about engagement of Rajeev Kumar already taken place with some other girl and that despite such knowledge prosecutrix had accompanied respondent Rajeev Kumar at her own with her consent. PW-8 prosecutrix admitted that she had knowledge that engagement of Rajeev Kumar had already taken place. But knowledge of the fact cannot be basis to hold that prosecutrix had consented for sexual intercourse to a person who was going to marry someone else. Because in present case despite having engaged with another girl, respondent Rajeev Kumar was proclaiming that he had married prosecutrix and had taken her to relatives stepping further to complete rituals of marriage so as to create an ambiance to assure prosecutrix that he was definitely going to marry her and thus creating a belief in her mind that she would be his wife and he was going to be her husband despite all hurdles. Prosecutrix was not wandering with respondent Rajeev Kumar but was accompanying him in consonance with prevailing permissible custom in their society which was recognized by all including PW-1, PW-5, PW-7, PW-9, PW-10 and all other villagers. In these circumstances consent of prosecutrix was not for free sex but was submission to her husband or would be husband rather to a person who was proclaiming that marriage had taken place and he was her husband which later on proved to be misconception.

31. Hon'ble Supreme Court in case Deepak Gulati Versus State of Haryana reported in (2013) 7 Supreme Court Cases 675 has held as under:-

> '18. Section 114-A of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Act 1872') provides, that if the prosecutrix deposes that she did not give her consent, then the Court shall presume that she did not in fact, give such consent. The facts of the instant case do not warrant that the provisions of Section 114-A of the Act 1872 be pressed into service. Hence, the sole question involved herein is whether her consent had been obtained on the false promise of marriage. Thus, the provisions of Sections 417, 375 and 376 IPC have to be taken into consideration, alongwith the provisions of Section 90 of the Act 1872. Section 90 of the Act 1872 provides, that any consent given under a misconception of fact, would not be considered as valid consent, so far as the provisions of Section 375 IPC are concerned, and thus, such a physical relationship would tantamount to committing rape.
> 19. This Court considered the issue involved herein at length in the case of Uday v. State of Karnataka, AIR 2003 SC 1639; Deelip Singh @ Dilip Kumar v. State of Bihar, AIR 2005 SC 203; Yedla Srinivasa Rao v. State of A.P., (2006) 11 SCC 615; and Pradeep Kumar Verma v. State of Bihar & Anr., AIR 2007 SC 3059, and came to the conclusion that in the event that the accused's promise is not false and has not been made with the sole intention to seduce the prosecutrix to indulge in sexual acts, such an act(s) would not amount to rape. Thus, the same would only hold that where the prosecutrix, under a misconception of fact to the extent that the accused is likely to marry her, submits to the lust of the accused, such a fraudulent act cannot be said to be consensual, so far as the offence of the accused is concerned.

20. Rape is the most morally and physically reprehensible crime in a society, as it is an assault on the body, mind and privacy of the victim. While a murderer destroys the physical frame of the victim, a rapist degrades and defiles the soul of a helpless female. Rape reduces a woman to an animal, as it shakes the very core of her life. By no means can a rape victim be called an accomplice. Rape leaves a permanent scar on the life of the victim, and therefore a rape victim is placed on a higher pedestal than an injured witness. Rape is a crime against the entire society and violates the human rights of the victim. Being the most hated crime, rape tantamounts to a serious blow to the supreme honour of a woman, and offends both, her esteem and dignity. It causes psychological and physical harm to the victim, leaving upon her indelible marks.

21. Consent may be express or implied, coerced or misguided, obtained willingly or through deceit. Consent is an act of reason, accompanied by deliberation, the mind weighing, as in a balance, the good and evil on each side. There is a clear distinction between rape and consensual sex and in a case like this, the court must very carefully examine whether the accused had actually wanted to marry the victim, or had mala fide motives, and had made a false promise to this effect only to satisfy his lust, as the latter falls within the ambit of cheating or deception. There is a distinction between the mere breach of a promise, and not fulfilling a false promise. Thus, the court must examine whether there was made, at an early stage a false promise of marriage by the accused; and whether the consent involved was given after wholly, understanding the nature and consequences of sexual indulgence. There may be a case where the prosecutrix agrees to have sexual intercourse on account of her love and passion for the accused, and not solely on account of mis-representation made to her by the accused, or where an accused on account of circumstances which he could not have foreseen, or which were beyond his control, was unable to marry her, despite having every intention to do so. Such cases must be treated differently. An accused can be convicted for rape only if the court reaches a conclusion that the intention of the accused was mala fide, and that he had clandestine motives.

22. In Deelip Singh (supra), it has been observed as under:

> The factors set out in the first part of Section 90 are from the point of view of the victim. The second part of Section 90 enacts the corresponding provision from the point of view of the accused. It envisages that the accused too has knowledge or has reason to believe that the consent was given by the victim in consequence of fear of injury or misconception of fact. Thus, the second part lays emphasis on the knowledge or reasonable belief of the person who obtains the tainted consent. The requirements of both the parts should be cumulatively satisfied. In other words, the court has to see whether the person giving the consent had given it under fear of injury or misconception of fact and the court should also be satisfied that the person doing the act i.e. the alleged offender, is conscious of the fact or should have reason to think that but for the fear or misconception, the consent would not have been given. This is the scheme of Section 90 which is couched in negative terminology."

23. This Court, while deciding Pradeep Kumar Verma (Supra), placed reliance upon the judgment of the Madras High Court delivered in N. Jaladu, Re ILR (1913) 36 Mad 453, wherein it has been observed:

> "11. '26....."We are of opinion that the expression "under a misconception of fact" is broad enough to include all cases where the consent is obtained by misrepresentation; the misrepresentation should be regarded as leading to a misconception of the facts with reference to which the consent is given. In Section 3 of the Evidence Act Illustration (d) states that a person has a certain intention is treated as a fact. So, here the fact about which the second and third prosecution witnesses were made to entertain a misconception was the fact that the second accused intended to get the girl married..... "thus ... if the consent of the person from whose possession the girl is taken is obtained by fraud, the taking is deemed to be against the will of such a person". ... Although in cases of contracts a consent obtained by coercion or fraud is only voidable by the party affected by it, the effect of Section 90 IPC is that such consent cannot, under the criminal law, be availed of to justify what would otherwise be an offence." (N. Jaladu, In re case, ILR 456-57)(Deelip Singh case, SCC 101-02 para 26)
> 24. Hence, it is evident that there must be adequate evidence to show that at the relevant time, i.e. at initial stage itself, the accused had no intention whatsoever, of keeping his promise to marry the victim. There may, of course, be circumstances, when a person having the best of intentions is unable to marry the victim owing to various unavoidable circumstances. The "failure to keep a promise made with respect to a future uncertain date, due to reasons that are not very clear from the evidence available, does not always amount to misconception of fact. In order to come within the meaning of the term misconception of fact, the fact must have an immediate relevance." Section 90 IPC cannot be called into aid in such a situation, to pardon the act of a girl in entirety, and fasten criminal liability on the other, unless the court is assured of the fact that from the very beginning, the accused had never really intended to marry her".

32. Consent has been defined under Section 90 of the Indian Penal Code which reads as under:-

> 90. Consent known to be given under fear or misconception.—A consent is not such a consent as it intended by any section of this Code, if the consent is given by a person under fear of injury, or under a misconception of fact, and if the person doing the act knows, or has reason to believe, that the consent was given in consequence of such fear or misconception;
>
> Consent of insane person.—if the consent is given by a person who, from unsoundness of mind, or intoxication, is unable to understand the nature and consequence of that to which he gives his consent;
> Consent of child.—unless the contrary appears from the context, if the consent is given by a person who is under twelve years of age.

33. Consent under misconception of fact by prosecutrix on the basis of act and conduct of offender is not a free consent as is intended in any section of Indian Penal Code. The consent must be voluntary and whether consent was voluntary or involuntary depends upon the facts of case which are to be appreciated on the basis of peculiar factors of each case. Keeping in view social and cultural environment, customs of the Society and other attending circumstances of the case. Further requirement of Section 90 IPC is that offender must know or has reason to believe that consent was given in consequence of such misconception.

34. In instant case, in peculiar facts, circumstances and customs, there is sufficient evidence to infer that consent of prosecutrix was under misconception of fact that respondent Rajeev Kumar was her husband or atleast would be husband in all eventualities to come. Prosecutrix was accompanying respondent Rajeev Kumar to houses of his relations as his spouse or would be spouse. There was no instance of her involvement in sexual activity prior to that. Declaration of respondent Rajeev Kumar that he had married prosecutrix was followed by physical relations. Respondent Rajeev Kumar was also knowing that prosecutrix was submitting herself to his desires as her spouse particularly when such relations were developed in house of relations i.e. maternal uncle and aunt of respondent Rajeev Kumar.

35. In instant case maternal uncle and aunt of respondent Rajeev Kumar PW-1 Thakur Sain and PW-5 Hira Dassi, in their examination-in-Chief specifically stated that that respondent Rajeev Kumar had claimed that he had married prosecutrix. Believing respondent Rajeev Kumar PW-1 had asked respondent No.3 to celebrate marriage as per custom at home and perform ritual customary ceremonies. PW-5 had also informed parents of respondent Rajeev Kumar by visiting their house whereupon his parents had sought some time for settlement. Prosecutrix and respondent Rajeev Kumar were brought from Sangla by respondent No. 3 father of respondent Rajeev Kumar and after declaration by respondent Rajeev Kumar in present of PW-9 Rajinder Singh, Panchayat Pradhan that he had married prosecutrix, respondent No. 3 had allowed respondent Rajeev Kumar and prosecutrix to live in house of PW-1 Thakur Sain for 14 days giving an impression to prosecutrix as well as her parents that both of them were residing in process of completing rituals of customary marriage. Respondent Rajeev Kumar and prosecutrix were again permitted to live in house of PW-5 Hira Dassi despite being informed by PW-5 Hira Dassi further fortifying belief of prosecutrix that marriage was under process and respondent Rajeev Kumar had chosen her as life partner. Prosecutrix was knowing about engagement of respondent Rajeev Kumar, but the respondent Rajeev Kumar was also well aware of this fact. However by his expressed conduct respondent Rajeev Kumar had made the prosecutrix to believe that it was she to whom he was going to marry and her belief was strengthened by his declarations before his parents and relations and also by his cohabitation with her as per customs of their community. During their stay in the house of PW-5 Hira Dassi, respondent Rajeev Kumar left company of prosecutrix after 5 days and never came back till 07.12.2006 when prosecutrix was admitted in PHC Skiba suspecting that she had consumed poison. Later on respondent Rajeev Kumar solemnized marriage with Champa with whom his engagement had already taken place.

36. In aforesaid circumstances consent of prosecutrix cannot be construed to be a free consent. She had submitted herself under a misconception of fact that she was consenting for physical relation with her husband as respondent Rajeev Kumar had made her to believe that despite his engagement with another girl he was proclaiming his marriage with prosecutrix and intended to adopt her as a life partner and respondent Rajeev Kumar had also took her to his relations according to custom in such a manner that everybody contacting him had to believe that he had selected prosecutrix as a life partner but his subsequent act of leaving respondent in house of his Aunt (Mausi) PW-5 Hira Dassi and marry another girl transpired that he was deceiving respondent knowingly that at last he was going to marry according to wish of his parents. Prosecutrix stayed with him according to customary rituals treating respondent Rajeev Kumar her husband and considering herself to be wife of respondent Rajeev Kumar. Respondent Rajeev Kumar also belonged to same Tribal Community, therefore, he was also having knowledge that prosecutrix was submitting herself under mis-conception of the fact that respondent Rajeev Kumar was going to be her life partner. Therefore consent given by prosecutrix was no consent as was required under Section 375 of the Indian Penal Code. Conduct of respondent Rajeev Kumar had rendered consent of prosecutrix illegal and invalid.

37. It is apparent from conduct of Rajeev Kumar that from very beginning he was not going to marry prosecutrix without concurrence of his parents despite the fact that it was permissible in his society and he adventured to take risk at the cost of life of prosecutrix by pretending to had married prosecutrix but ultimately married as per wish of his parents.

38. Respondent Rajeev Kumar was knowing that he was seducing prosecutrix to have a intercourse with him which became illicit intercourse as respondent Rajeev Kumar, despite his declaration had not accepted prosecutrix his wife and left her waiting in house of his Aunt with belief that he was going to bring his certificates from Maharashtra whereas later on he married some one else.

39. In view of above discussion, respondent Rajeev Kumar is guilty of offence under Section 366 and 376 of Indian Penal Code.

40. His parents particularly respondent No. 3 also allowed respondent Rajeev Kumar to continue with drama and abetted him in committing crime. Respondent No. 3 had brought back respondent Rajeev Kumar and prosecutrix from Sangla and after declaration of respondent Rajeev Kumar that he had married prosecutrix allowed both of them to stay in house of PW-1 maternal uncle of respondent Rajeev Kumar. Lateron, he had married with some one else. In case he was not intending to allow marriage of respondent Rajeev Kumar and prosecutrix he would have not allowed them to stay in the house of PW-1 as well as PW-5 according to customs of their Tribal community. Firstly he allowed both of them to live as married couple resulting into submission of prosecutrix to respondent Rajeev Kumar as wife and later on he married with some one else. Therefore for his active and passive conduct he is also guilty for abetting the offence committed by respondent Rajeev Kumar.

41. Respondent No.2 was charged sheeted under Section 212 of Indian penal Code for concealing respondent Rajeev Kumar with intention to screen him from legal punishment but there is no evidence except statement of PW-7 Chhewang Lamo that he helped respondent Rajeev Kumar to flee from Hospital. There is no cogent and reliable evidence against him for holding that he committed an offence as alleged. Therefore, he was rightly acquitted by trial Court. The trial Court has committed a mistake in acquitting respondent No.1 and respondent No.3. Prosecution has established the guilt of respondent No. 1 and respondent No. 3, beyond reasonable doubt by leading clear, cogent, convincing and reliable evidence. Findings returned by the trial Court qua respondents No. 1 and 3 cannot be said to be based on correct and complete appreciation of material on record, as such, the same are reversed. Hence, the appeal is partly allowed and respondent No.1 is held guilty for offences committed under Sections 366 and 376 IPC and respondent No. 3 is held guilty for committing offences under Sections 366 and 376 IPC read with Section 109 IPC.

42. Bail bonds furnished by the respondent-convict stand cancelled.

43. The respondents No. 1 and 3 be produced for hearing on quantum of sentence on 22.09.2016.List on 22.09.2016 Registry is directed to prepare production warrant.

For the respondents : Mr. Naresh Kaul, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Per Rajiv Sharma, Judge:

The present appeal has been filed by the State against Judgment dated 3.5.2010 rendered by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court, Kangra at Dharamshala in S.T. No. 17/10, whereby respondents-accused (hereinafter referred to as 'accused' for convenience sake) who were charged with and tried for offence under Sections 498-A/34, 315/34, 323/34 and 506/34 IPC have been acquitted.

2. Case of the prosecution, in a nutshell, is that the complainant Sareena was married to accused No.1 Ramesh Chand on 2.3.2006. Accused No. 3 Kailasho Devi is the mother-in-law of the complainant, accused No. 2 Sunka Ram was the father-in-law of the complainant and accused No.4 Surender Kumar is the brother-in-law of the complainant. All the accused, after two months of marriage, started torturing Sareena mentally as well as physically. Accused used to demand dowry as well as Rs.50,000/- from Sareena. Accused threatened the complainant if she did not bring money, she would be thrown out of the house. When Sareena was carrying four months' pregnancy, she was forced by the accused to leave the matrimonial home. She came to her parents at Khabli. On 10.3.2007, accused Ramesh had gone to Khabli and asked Sareena to come back with him. Sareena refused. Ramesh told Sareena that his family members would come to Khabli and would beat her. Sareena did not go with the accused on 10.3.2007. On 14.3.2007, all the accused came to the house of father of Sareena and asked her to come back. Sareena again refused. All the accused used criminal force against Sareena. She was pulled down from the bed and given kick and fist blows. Accused Ramesh Chand had given blows on her stomach which resulted into bleeding. Sareena was saved from the clutches of accused by her parents. She suffered severe pain. In the next morning, police was informed and statement of Sareena under Section 154 CrPC was recorded. FIR was registered. Investigation was completed. Challan was put in the Court after completing all the codal formalities.

3. Prosecution has examined as many as seven witnesses to prove its case against the accused. Accused were also examined under Section 313 CrPC. They pleaded innocence. Trial Court acquitted the accused as noticed above. Hence, this appeal.

4. During the pendency of appeal, accused No.2 Sunka Ram expired on 31.7.2016.

5. Mr. M.A. Khan, Additional Advocate General has vehemently argued that the prosecution has proved its case against the accused person.

6. Mr. Naresh Kaul, Advocate, has supported the judgment dated 3.5.2010.

7. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties and also gone through the judgment and record carefully.

8. PW-1 Sareena testified that she was married to the accused Ramesh as per Hindu rites and customs on 2.3.2006. Accused and his family members were decent with her for two months. Thereafter, her husband Ramesh, brother-in-law, Surender Kumar alias Munnu, mother-in-law Kailasho Devi and father-in-law, Sunka Ram started torturing her mentally and physically. Accused used to beat her and used to demand dowry. They also used to say that they want to construct a house. They demanded Rs.50,000/- for the construction of house. Initially she did not reveal this to anybody and kept tolerating the behaviour of the accused. Her husband Ramesh continued to harass her. Remaining accused used to help him. Mother-in-law, Kailasho Devi pushed her and snatched her ornaments. Accused had been beating her for the 8-9 months. She narrated her woes to her parents. She also told the accused that her parents have no capacity to pay the money. She was carrying four months' pregnancy. She was forced to leave the house of the accused. On 10.3.2007, Ramesh came to her father's house and asked her to accompany him otherwise his family members would come and beat her. She did not go with the accused. On 14.3.2007 at 8.30 PM, all the accused alongwith complainant's sister-in-law, Shobha Devi and her husband Som Raj came to her father's house. Complainant's younger sister-in-law, Shivani was also with them. Accused asked her to come to their house. She refused. Accused Ramesh gave her beatings. Ramesh pulled her down from the bed. He gave kick and fist blows on her stomach. Her parents and one Amit saved her from the clutches of the accused. She started bleeding and suffered pain. Accused left her and went away. On the next morning she was taken to the hospital. Police came. Her statement Ext. PW-1/A was recorded. She was medically examined. Doctors told that the child was aborted. In her cross-examination, she deposed that there were two rooms in her parental house. She admitted that on 14.3.2007, they did not inform the Doctor or the police. Volunteered that there was no doctor and further her parents did not want to flare up the matter. She was a graduate.

9. Statement of PW-1 Sareena has been duly corroborated by her father, PW-2 Satpal. He deposed that, 3-4 months after the marriage, all the accused started torturing Sareena. They used to ask Sareena to bring Rs.50,000/-. They used to say that she had brought insufficient dowry and used to beat her. Initially, Sareena did not disclose these facts to him but later disclosed all these facts to him. His daughter told him that her mother-in-law, Kailasho Devi had snatched her ornaments after pushing her. He was not capable of making the payment. On 26.2.2007, Sareena came to his house and at that time, she was carrying 3-4 months' pregnancy. On 14.3.2007, all the accused came to his house. His daughter was sleeping. They said they wanted to talk to his daughter. Accused went to the room of his daughter and pulled her down from the bed. He saw accused Ramesh giving fist blows on the stomach of his daughter. Other accused were standing there but they did not aske Ramesh not to beat Sareena. On the next morning, they took Sareena to the Hospital. She was medically examined. Police came to the hospital. In his cross-examination, he denied the suggestion that the accused came to his house on 14.3.2007 and after spending only half an hour, went to Nirmala's house. Volunteered that the accused had spent about five hours in his house and they had gone to Nirmala's house at about 11.30-11.45 Pm. On 15th, they had gone to the hospital in a vehicle. They had hired the vehicle from Khabli itself. Akshay was his son. His vehicle met with an accident near Kotla. He denied the suggestion that Naresh had incurred expenses of the repair of the vehicle of Akshay at Pathankot.

10. PW-3 Amit Sharma deposed that he had gone to the house of Satpal for personal work. His house was adjacent to Satpal's house. He saw Sareena sitting on the floor and all the accused were standing in her room. He was declared hostile and cross-examined by the learned Public Prosecutor. In his cross-examination by the learned Public Prosecutor, he deposed that the fact of beating to her was told to him by Sareena.

11. PW-4 Dr. Suman Dhiman, conducted ultrasound on 16.3.2007. Report is Ext. PW-4/C. She has also given a detailed report vide Ext. PW-4/D.

12. PW-5 Dr. Vijay Singh Chib testified that Sareena wife of Ramesh was brought with history of domestic violence. He had noticed the following injuries:

> "1. A 14-16 weeks old foetus inside yellow coloured blood stained underwear. Foetus was dead.

2. There were no marks of injury seen on abdominal wall. She complained of pain in left shoulder."

13. Nature of injury No.1 was grievous and nature of injury No.2 was simple. Probable duration of injuries was within 12 hours. Injuries were caused with blunt object. He issued MLC Ext. PW-5/A. In his cross-examination, he deposed that the dead foetus was handed over to the police to ascertain the cause of death by examination in the laboratory. He also testified that injury No. 1 could occur by fist and kick blows and sudden dragging from cot to floor. He admitted that there was no external or internal injury on vagina, uterus and genitalia. There could be so many other reasons for miscarriage of pregnancy. PW-5 Vijay Singh Chib further deposed that an application Ext. PW-5/B was put up before him by the police. He replied the same. He has given his opinion on Ext. PW-5/B.

14. PW-6 ASI Ashok Kumar was posted as IO in Police Station, Dehra in 2007. On 15.3.2007, an information was received from CH Dehra from a Doctor. He alongwith other police official went to Dehra Hospital and recorded statement of Sareena Ext. PW-1/A. Rukka was prepared and sent to the Police Station. He recorded the statements of Satpal and Neelam. He obtained MLC Ext. PW-5/A from the Doctor.

15. PW-7 Dharam Chand testified that on 15.3.2007, Rukka Ext. PW-1/A alongwith endorsement was received in the Police Station upon which FIR Ext. PW-7/A was registered. He carried out part investigation of the case. On 2.4.2007, he had visited the spot and prepared site plan, Ext. PW-7/C. He recorded statement of Amit. On 28.3.2007, he had moved an application Ext. PW-5/B before the Doctor and on the same day, his opinion was obtained.

16. What emerges from the appraisal of the statements and evidence as discussed herein above is that PW-1 Sareena and Ramesh were married on 2.3.2006. Relations between husband and wife were normal. Thereafter, accused and his family members started harassing PW-1 Sareena. Accused were asking Sareena to tell her parents to pay them Rs.50,000/-. Her ornaments were snatched by her mother-in-law, i.e. accused No.3, Kailasho Devi. Ramesh Chand alongwith other accused went to the house of PW-1 Sareena. Ramesh pulled down Sareena and gave kick and fist blows to her stomach. PW-1 Sareena started bleeding. She also suffered pain. She was moved to the hospital. In the morning, medical examination was conducted. Thereafter, FIR was registered. Prosecution has led tangible evidence that accused Ramesh Chand and Kailasho Devi were demanding dowry from the family of PW-1. Kailasho Devi has snatched ornaments of Sareena. Learned trial Court has erred in law by holding that family of Sareena owed Rs.50,000/- for undertaking repairs of the vehicle of Sareena's family. PW-2 Satpal, father of PW-1 Sareena, though has admitted that Akshay was his son and he met with an accident near Kotla. However, he has categorically denied that Naresh, brother-in-law of accused Ramesh Chand incurred expenses of repairs of the vehicle of Akshay at Pathankot. The learned trial Court has come to a wrong conclusion that there was a civil dispute between the parties. Accused Ramesh Chand has visited the house of PW-1 Sareena on 14.3.2007. PW-1 Sareena has categorically deposed that accused Ramesh Chand gave kick and fist blows on her stomach. She started bleeding. She was taken to the hospital. Statement of PW-1 Sareena has been duly corroborated by her father PW-2 Satpal. He has deposed that on 14.3.2007, accused went to the room of his daughter and pulled down his daughter from the bed. Thereafter, he saw accused giving fist blows on the stomach of his daughter. Ultrasound was conducted by PW-4 Suman Dhiman. She issued MLC Ext. PW-4/C and Ext. PW-4/D. According to the report, it was a case of incomplete evacuation with retained products of conception i.e. incomplete abortion. PW-5 Dr. Vijay Singh has medically examined PW-1 Sareena. According to him, 14-16 weeks old foetus in yellow coloured blood stained underwear was found. Foetus was dead. According to him, nature of injury No.1 was grievous and nature of injury No. 2 was simple. Probable duration of injuries was within 12 hours and caused with blunt object. Opinion of PW-5 Dr. Vijay Singh was again sought by the police by submitting application Ext. PW-5/B. PW-5 Vijay Singh has stated that in his opinion, miscarriage in this particular case could have occurred due to either of two possibilities as given in application Ext. PW-5/B dated 28.3.2007. Abortion/miscarriage has taken place due to the beatings administered by the accused Ramesh to PW-1 Sareena on her stomach.

17. Mr. Naresh Kaul, Advocate, has vehemently argued that there is delay in lodging FIR and that the PW-1 Sareena was not taken to the hospital immediately. It has come on record that no Doctor was available and PW-2 Satpal initially thought that matter should not be flared up. Ramesh and Kailasho Devi have forced PW-1 Sareena to leave the matrimonial home. Accused have admitted their presence in the house of Sareena's parents on 14.3.2007. Learned trial Court has also erred in holding that matter should have been reported by the parents of the victim to the police or Panchayat. In the Indian society, first attempt of the parents is that matter should be settled amicably and going to the police or Panchayat is the last resort. PW-3 Amit though declared hostile, but in his cross-examination, he has admitted that he was told by Sareena about the manner in which she was beaten up by the accused. Learned trial Court has perversely come to the conclusion that the accused were falsely implicated. Accused Ramesh and Kailasho Devi have criminally intimidated Sareena by going to her house. Accused Ramesh was aware that his wife was pregnant and despite that, he has given kick and fist blows on the stomach of Sareena resulting into miscarriage of pregnancy, thus, preventing the child from being born alive. Ramesh Chand and Kailasho Devi have caused mental as well as physical cruelty to PW-1 Sareena by demanding dowry. Sareena was forced to leave the matrimonial home and to live with her parents.

18. Prosecution has duly proved that accused Ramesh Chand and Kailasho Devi have caused physical and mental cruelty to Sareena by demanding a sum of Rs.50,000/- and administering beatings to her. Accused Ramesh Chand has prevented the child from being borne alive by giving fist and kick blows to the stomach of Sareena resulting into miscarriage of pregnancy. Accused Ramesh and Kailasho Devi have criminally intimidated Sareena. According to PW-5 Vijay Singh, injury No.1 was grievous but accused have been charged only under Section 323 IPC. Ramesh has voluntarily caused hurt by giving beatings to Sareena. However, there is no evidence against Surender Kumar, brother-in-law of the complainant Sareena.

19. Accordingly, the present appeal is allowed. Judgment dated 3.5.2010 rendered by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court, Kangra at Dharamshala in S.T. No. 17/10, is set aside. Accused Ramesh Chand is convicted under Sections 498-A/34, 323/34 and 315/34 IPC. Kailasho Devi is convicted for the commission of offence under Sections 498-A/34 and 506-I/34 IPC. Convicts be produced to be heard on quantum of sentence on 22.9.2016.

20. Registry is directed to prepare and send the production warrants forthwith.

(Para-13 to 25)

For the appellant :Mr. Neeraj K. Sharma, Deputy Advocate General.
For the respondent :Mr. Rajnish Maniktala, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Vivek Singh Thakur,Judge.

Aggrieved by acquittal of respondent-accused vide judgment dated 30.10.2012 passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge (I) Kangra at Dharamshala H.P. in Sessions Case No. 89-G/2010, in case FIR No. 69 /2010 registered under Sections 302 and 201 of the Indian Penal Code in Police Station Dehra District Kangra H.P., the State has preferred present appeal with prayer to set aside impugned judgment and to convict respondent-accused.

2. We have heard learned Deputy Advocate General for the appellant-State and counsel for respondent and have also perused record of the case.

3. On 12.06.2010 Crime Investigation Agency was set in motion by Lekh Raj Ward Panch Gram Panchayat Bhaner by telephonically informing Police Post Teras that dead body of Om Parkash was found on side of Kuhal near the road. Said information was further telephonically disseminated to Police Station Dehra by PW-14 ASI Manmohan, Chowki Incharge Police Post Taras. Police parties from Police Post Taras and Police Station Dehra headed by PW-14 ASI Manmohan Singh and PW-16 SI Tilak Raj reached on the spot. During investigation, it surfaced that deceased Om Parkash was unmarried and was doing shuttering business. His three brothers were serving out stations and Salochna wife and Vinod son of Krishan one brother of deceased, were residing with deceased Om Parkash in native village. On 11.06.2010 after taking meal at 10.00 AM, deceased Om Parkash left home for arranging shuttering. However he went Taras alongwith some residents of village namely Surinder Singh, Sat Pal, Rasal Singh, Ram Dei, Bishan Dutt Sharma and Sanjeev Kumar in vehicle No. HP-36-3291 driven by PW-4 Rajesh Kumar. All of them took meals in Langar at Lal Tanki Chowk in Taras and except Rasal Singh, Ram Dei and Bishan Dutt, all others visited Talwara for shopping. Thereafter they came to Police Post, Taras in connection with a complaint against PW-6 Surinder Singh made by one Parladh Singh. After compromising the said matter, they consumed liquor at liquor vend and had drinks at Lal Tanki also and thereafter started back to home. First of all Bishan Dutt had de-boarded vehicle near his house and thereafter Surinder Singh, Sat Pal Singh, Rasal Singh and Ram Dei alighted vehicle near their respective residences. Rajesh Kumar, Sanjeev Kumar and Om Parkash reached near Shiv Mandir where at a distance of about 500 yards, deceased Om Parkash alighted from vehicle after stopping it by compelling driver. Thereafter PW-4 Rajesh Kumar and Sanjeev Kumar also went to their respective houses but Om Parkash did not reach in his house but his dead body was noticed by people with small injury on his head with oozing blood out from nose and mouth. There were no other injuries or bruises on his body but his clothes and slippers were not there.

4. Aforesaid information was entered at General Diary Entry No. 36(A) on 12.06.2010 in Police Station Dehra, copy of which Ex. 16/G is on record. Police including Deputy Superintendent of Police, Dehra visited spot and inquired villagers on 12.06.2010, 13.06.2010, 14.06.2010 and 17.06.2010. Villagers, including persons accompanying deceased on 11.06.2010, were interrogated by the police. Brothers and other family members were also associated in the interrogation.

5. Till 17th June 2010 there was no change of circumstances. On that day suddenly statement of PW-4 Rajesh Kumar was reduced into writing and in the said statement it was narrated by him that on 11.06.2010 Sanjay Kumar alighted from vehicle and compelled Om Parkash to get down from vehicle despite his resistance and on next day dead body of Om Parkash was noticed by villagers at 6.30 AM. Statement of PW-4 Rajesh Kumar was also recorded under Section 164 Cr.PC stating therein that near Shiv Mandir, Sanjay Kumar and deceased Om Parkash alighted from vehicle and he went home.

6. On the basis of statement of PW-4 Rajesh Kumar respondent Sanjay Kumar was arrested on the same day. As per prosecution case police was searching for clothes of deceased Om Parkash since 12.06.2010 in all probable places including houses of Rajesh Kumar and Sanjeev Kumar. It is claimed by prosecution that on 18th June 2010 during his custody, respondent in presence of Harnam Singh and Gian Singh made disclosure statement Ex.P-7/B in presence of PW-7 Harnam Singh and Gian Singh in Police Station Dehra and on the basis of said statement clothes of deceased were recovered at the instance of respondent from place pointed out by him near water source at a distance of 400 yards from Shiv temple and 50 feet below the road. Those clothes were identified by PW-5 Vinod Kumar nephew of deceased.

7. Postmortem of dead body of deceased was conducted by PW-8 Dr. Vivek Kaushal and viscera of deceased was sent to State FSL, Junga for chemical analysis. Alcohol was detected in parts of stomach, small intestine, spleen and kidney and no other poison could be detected in these parts. Cause of death, as per opinion of Doctor, was shock due to head injury.

8. Present case of prosecution is based on circumstantial evidence. Prosecution has relied upon 'last seen together' supported by 'motive' and disclosure statement of the respondent-accused.

9. It is a settled law that in case of circumstantial evidence conviction should be recorded only if the chain pointing to the guilt of respondent-accused is firmly established linking the accused with crime firmly and not only creating suspicion as the suspicion however strong evidence itself may not take place of proof. All the circumstances must be consistent only with hypothesis of the guilt.

10. Though, murders are also committed even without any pre-emptive motive. In cases based on circumstantial evidence motive, however is an important factor and a strong circumstance.

11. In present case prosecution has relied upon circumstances of 'last seen together', disclosure statement followed by recovery of clothes and enmity.

12. After completing investigation challan was put in the court against respondent-accused only and 16 witnesses were examined by prosecution and statement of respondent under Section 313 of the Code of Criminal Procedure was recorded.

13. To prove 'motive, only evidence on record is testimony of PW-2 Krishan Chand who is brother of deceased Om Parkash. He stated that deceased Om Parkash was former Panch of Panchayat. Joginder Singh used to come to Om Parkash twice in a week for consultation in a case pending at Shimla against Arjun Singh who was father of respondent and as such family of respondent was inimical towards deceased Om Parkash and they suspected that respondent had committed murder. During cross examination this witness admitted that till 20.06.2010 he did not suspect any person having committed murder. He also admitted that there was no land dispute or any other dispute of their family with family of respondent but he again stated that there was some dispute about 10 years ago with mother of Arjun Singh. He further added that in the year 2004-2006 girls of their family and family of respondent had some dispute and matter was adjudicated before Panchayat and therefore they were not in talking terms with family of respondent. Respondent was arrested on 17.06.2010 but till 20.06.2010 no suspicion about murder was there. Despite arrest of respondent, PW-2 Krishan Chand or other family members of deceased Om Parkash did not utter even a single word about enmity pointed out by PW-2

Krishan Chand that too for first time in the Court. He admitted in cross examination that all these facts were not been stated by him before police on 20.06.2010 at the time of making statement, he gave explanation that these facts were not asked by any one from him. It appears that in order to ascertain conviction of respondent after believing story put forth by police, PW-2 tried to exaggerate and improve his statement and thus his statement is to be ignored. Statement of PW-2 with respect to enmity is not confidence inspiring and there is no other evidence on record indicating any motive attributable to respondent for committing murder of deceased OM Parkash.

14. PW-7 Harnam Singh Panch of Gram Panchayat Bhaner also admitted that deceased Om Parkash did not make any complaint to Panchayat against respondent or his family members. Prosecution also never placed on record any document to show that family of respondent was inimical towards deceased Om Parkash. However, absence of motive or failure to prove motive cannot be a basis to conclude that respondent had not murdered deceased Om Parkash. Therefore, rest of evidence is to be assessed for arriving at final conclusion.

15. Prosecution also relied upon disclosure statement Ex. PW-7/B. PW-7 Harnam Singh stated that on 18.06.2010 they were called to Police Station Dehra and Gian Chand Chowkidar was accompanying him and respondent who was also there gave statement Ex.PW-7/B in presence of SHO and 2-3 other police officials. In cross examination this witness stated that on 18.06.2010 he received telephonic message from PW-16 SI Tilak Raj, SHO Police Station Dehra asking him to come at Dehra as statement of respondent was to be recorded. He further stated that he reached Police Station around 11.00 AM but he could not tell as to since when questioning was going in Police Station and SHO did not tell as to what facts were disclosed during questioning. PW-7 further stated that SHO informed that Sanjay had told about clothes to be recovered and thereafter signatures of witnesses were obtained. He further admitted that SHO asked him to bring one more respectable person to be present in Police Station alongwith him. He stated that police was having his telephone number. This witness admitted that they signed on the basis of information supplied by SHO. Admission of this witness in cross examination rendered veracity of disclosure statement Ex. PW-7/B under suspicions. Out of two independent witnesses, only PW-7 Harnam Singh was examined and PW Gian Singh was given up by prosecution. Therefore, Ex.PW-7/B cannot be considered a valid disclosure statement under Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act so as to rely upon to convict respondent.

16. Prosecution claimed recovery of clothes of deceased at the instance of respondent in presence of PW-7 Harnam Singh and PW Gian Singh. In absence of valid and admissible disclosure statement alleged recovery of clothes cannot be considered as incriminating evidence against respondent. Moreover, PW-7 Harnam Singh admitted that place from where clothes were recovered was on the way of a short cut leading to 'Bowary' (Water Source) for bringing water which was being used by people throughout the year and the place from where clothes were recovered was also not secluded or hidden place but was an open place. PW-5 Vinod Kumar identified clothes of deceased Om Parkash but the said identification of clothes cannot be said to be sufficient proof to consider disclosure statement and recovery of clothes to prove guilt of respondent.

17. To prove 'last seen together' prosecution relied upon testimony of PW-3 Kamal Kumar, PW-4 Rajesh Kumar and PW-6 Surinder Singh.

18. PW-3 Kamal Kumar stated that he asked PW-4 Rajesh Kumar to bring feed for cattle from Sansarpur Taras and at about 10.20–11.00 PM he unloaded said feed from vehicle of PW-4 Rajesh Kumar and at that time there was no one in the vehicle except Rajesh Kumar and thereafter Rajesh Kumar went to his home. He further stated that on 12.06.2010 Roshan Lal, at the time of going to answer the call of nature at around 5-6 AM noticed dead body lying near the Kuhal. He admitted that he was questioned by police but his statement was recorded on 20.06.2010. Testimony of this witness is not reliable for reason that police made request vide application Ex. PW-8/A on 12.06.2010 to Medical Officer SDH Dehra for postmortem of dead body of deceased narrating entire episode of 11.06.2010 as disclosed by Rajesh Kumar but in that application fact of bringing cattle feed for PW-3 Kamal Kumar did not find mention. Similarly this fact did not find mention in 'Rukka', PW-16/C prepared on 13.06.2010 and DD report Ex. PW-16/G recorded in 12.06.2010. Statement PW-3 Kamal Kumar was recorded on 20.06.2010 and no reasons were assigned by this witness for not disclosing this fact prior to that despite the fact that he was being questioned by police since beginning. Therefore, this witness is not trustworthy.

19. Statement of PW-6 Surinder Singh is also not sufficient to hold that it was respondent only who was 'last seen together' with deceased as at the time of leaving vehicle by this witness there were three persons in the vehicle namely PW-4 Rajesh Kumar, respondent Sanjay Kumar and deceased Om Parkash. This witness admitted that on 11.06.2010 they had no quarrel with each other after consuming liquor and also during their return in the vehicle to village. He stated that he was not having any suspicion against any persons.

20. In the aforesaid circumstances, testimony of PW-4 is only evidence to prove 'last seen together' of respondent with deceased but his veracity is also doubtful. He was being interrogated since 12.06.2010 to 17.06.2010 and his stand was that deceased Om Parkash himself alighted from vehicle after compelling him and he and Sanjay Kumar were last persons together with each other after alighting vehicle by deceased Om Parkash. Suddenly on 17.06.2010, he came with story that it was Sanjay who forcibly alighted deceased Om Parkash from vehicle near Shiv Temple and he also introduced fact of bringing cattle feed for PW-3 Kamal Kumar. Prosuection tried to explain with the help of PW-7 Harnam Singh by introducing the fact in his statement that PW-4 Rajesh Kumar had disclosed it to him on 12.06.2010 and PW-7 Harnam Singh had advised PW-4 to tell truth whenever police would come to village. PW-7 Harnam Singh stated that thereafter police came in village on 17.06.2010 but the said stand of PW-7 is false as PW-16 SI Tilak Raj clearly stated that he visited the spot 12.06.2010, 13.06.2010 and 14.06.2010. Not only PW-16 SI Tilak Raj but Deputy Superintendent of Police, Dehra had also visited spot between 12.06.2010 to 17.06.2010. It is also again a mystery which prevented PW-7 Harnam Singh to inform the police regarding facts disclosed by PW-4 Rajesh Kumar to him on 12.06.2010. PW-4 Rajesh Kumar stated in cross examination that he disclosed to Pradhan on 13.06.2010 and police came in village on 14.06.2010 but did not record his statement and recorded it only on 17.06.2010 and he was asked not to disclose this fact to any other person. PW-14 ASI Manmohan stated that he had not advised PW-4 Rajesh Kumar to make his statement only before SHO Dehra and not to disclose his statement to any other person. What emerges from all these contradictory statements that testimony of PW-4 is not reliable.

21. Postmortem of deceased was conducted on 12.06.2010 and viscera was also handed over to police on the same day which was further handed over to MHC Police Station, Dehra on 12.06.2010 but said viscera was sent to State FSL Junga on 17.06.2010. Clothes of deceased were recovered on 18.06.2010 but same were also sent to State FSL, Junga on 24.06.2010. PW-16 admitted these facts but no reason has been assigned for keeping these parcels for seven days in waiting for sending State FSL Junga. In normal circumstances delay in sending parcels to State FSL Junga may not be of any significance but in the circumstances of present case delay in sending these parcels to State FSL Junga also fortifies doubt on fairness of investigation.

22. It is evident from aforesaid discussion that chain of circumstantial evidence to prove the guilt of accused is not complete and prosecution evidence cannot be treated as cogent, reliable, credible and trustworthy to prove guilt of the accused-respondent beyond reasonable doubt. There are material contradictions and discrepancies in the testimonies of material witnesses. Thus, it cannot be said that prosecution has been able to prove that respondent-accused has committed offence under Sections 302 and 201 of the Indian Penal Code.

23. It is a settled principle of law that acquittal leads to presumption of innocence in favour of an accused. To dislodge the same, onus heavily lies upon the prosecution. It cannot be said that learned trial court has not appreciated evidence correctly and completely and acquittal of accused has resulted into travesty of justice or has caused mis-carriage of justice. The accused has been acquitted by the trial Court. No case for interference is made out.

24. The present appeal, devoid of any merit, is dismissed, so also pending applications, if any. Bail bonds, if any, furnished by the accused are discharged. Records of the Court below be sent back forthwith.

Industrial Disputes Act, 1947- Section 25- Petitioners were appointed as Fire and Safety Supervisors in the month of September, 1993 by the respondents – they continued till 1997 when their services were disengaged by the respondents – they raised an industrial dispute- the Tribunal dismissed the reference holding that petitioners had not proved themselves to be the employees of the respondents – held, in the writ petition that no appointment letters have been placed on record to demonstrate that petitioners were engaged by the respondents- no salary slip was placed on record- petitioners themselves stated before the Tribunal that they were not employees/workers of respondent No. 2- hence the Tribunal has rightly concluded that the dispute does not fall within the definition of industrial dispute- further, the finding of the fact recorded by the Tribunal cannot be interfered with in exercise of writ jurisdiction- petition dismissed. The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Sandeep Sharma, J.

By way of aforesaid Civil Writ petitions filed under Articles 226 and 227 of the Constitution of India, petitioners therein have laid challenge to the common award dated 21.06.2010, passed by H.P. Industrial Tribunal-cum-Labour Court, Shimla (in short 'Tribunal'), in reference No. 65 of 1998, 63 of 1998, 66 of 1998 and 67 of 1998, whereby claim of the aforesaid petitioners were rejected and references were answered accordingly. Since common award dated 21.6.2010 passed by learned Tribunal is under challenge by way of aforesaid petitions, same are being taken together for adjudication with the consent of counsel representing the parties.

2. Briefly stated facts as emerged from the record are that petitioners Agya Ram, Lal Chand, Kuldeep Kumar and Khem Raj being aggrieved with the illegal dis-engagement of their services by M/s Gujrat Ambuja Cement Ltd. (in short 'GACL') raised industrial dispute. Appropriate government in terms of Section 10 of Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 (in short 'Act') made following references to the learned Industrial Tribunal-cum-Labour Court, Shimla for adjudication:-

> "Whether the plea of the contractor of M/s Ess Ess Engineering Contractor to M/s Gujarat Ambuja Cement Ltd. Darlaghat, District Solan, Himachal Pradesh that S/Shri Agya Ram s/o Badri Ram, Lal Chand s/o Dhani Ram, Khem Raj s/o Daulat Ram and Kuldeep Kumar s/o Hukum Chand, workmen have abandoned the services of their own accord is legal and justified? If not, what relief service benefits and post the concerned workmen are entitled to?"
> "Whether the demand of S/Shri Agya Ram s/o Badri Ram, Lal Chand s/o Dhani Ram, Khem Raj s/o Daulat Ram and Kuldeep Kumar s/o Hukum Chand, workmen that their services be taken on the permanent service/roll of the principal company i.e. Gujarat Ambuja Cement Ltd., Darlaghat is legal and justified? If yes, to what relief and service benefits concerned workmen are entitled to form the concerned principal employer?"

3. Learned Tribunal below vide order dated 21.5.2002 passed in Reference No. 65 of 1998 ordered for consolidation of Reference Nos. 63/1998, 64/1998, 66/1998, 101/1998, 103/1998, 104/1998 and 105/1998 with Reference No. 65 of 1998. However, fact remains that except Reference Nos. 63/1998, 66/1998, 67/1998, which stood consolidated with reference No. 65/1998, Reference Nos. 101/1998, 103/1998, 104/1998 and 105/1998 were compromised, as such, no decision qua the same was made by the learned Tribunal below. Present petitioners claimed before learned Tribunal that they were appointed as Fire and Safety Supervisors in the month of September, 1993 by GACL and they continued, as such, till 1997, when they were not allowed to work. Petitioners further claimed that though record clearly reveals that they worked under the direct control and supervision of GACL but their names were shown on the attendance Roll of M/s Ess Ess Engineerings (in short 'Contractor') with ulterior motives by GACL to avoid its liability under the Labour Law / legislation. Petitioners also stated before learned Tribunal that they drew their last wages @ Rs.1950/-, Rs.2250/-, Rs.1950 and Rs.2250/-, respectively. Petitioners also stated that they worked for more than 240 days in each calendar year and during this period there was no complaint against them and their illegal termination, that too, in violation of provisions contained in the Act, deserves to be quashed and set aside. Petitioners also claimed regular employment under respondent No. 2-GACL in terms of settlement arrived at between GACL and State Government of H.P., namely, "Scheme for the Settlement and Rehabilitation of Oustees of Himachal Ambuja Cement Factory Darlaghat, District Solan, Himachal Pradesh."

4. Petitioners contended that respondents while dis-engaging their services failed to comply with the provisions of Section 25-N of the Act and they are required to be re-instated in services with the benefit of continuity of services or in alternate claimed that they may be taken on roll of GACL by re-instating their services alongwith all consequential benefits.

5. Respondent by way of detailed reply refuted the claim put-forth on behalf of the petitioners by stating therein that petitioners were on the roll of Respondent No.3-Contractor and, at no point of time, their services were ever hired/engaged by respondent No. 2-GACL. Respondent No. 2-GACL specifically stated that petitioners are not covered under the definition of workman under Section 2(s) of the Act and, as such, present petitions are not maintainable and deserves to be quashed and set aside. Respondent No.2-GACL specifically contended that in the absence of employer and employee relationship, petitioners cannot raise industrial dispute against the replying respondent. Respondent No.2-GACL further contended that matter pertains to Contract Labour (Regulation and Abolition) Act, 1970, as such, proper recourse available to the petitioners was to approach the authorities envisaged under Contract Labour (Regulation and Abolition) Act, 1970 and not under the Industrial Disputes Act. Respondents No. 2 -GACL further claimed that since Cement Industries has been declared as controlled industry, appropriate government under the Contract Labour Act is the Central Government, as such, Labour Commissioner had no power to entertain and refer the matter pertaining to petitioners qua the replying respondent (principal employer) to the H.P. Labour Court. Respondent No. 2-GACL has also contended that the appropriate government could only exercise its power under Section 10 only when there exists an industrial dispute as defined under Section 2 (k) of the Act. But in the present case, since petitioners had not been able to prove on record that there is any relationship between petitioners and respondent No. 2-GACL, as such, same is not maintainable before the learned Tribunal. Respondent No. 2-GACL further contended that petitioners are employees of respondent No. 3-Contractor, as such, they cannot claim for any preferential claim of employment in terms of settlement arrived at between them and the State Government.

6. Similarly, respondent No. 3-Contractor also refuted the claim put-forth on behalf of petitioners by stating that GACL had given certain project/work to respondent No. 3-Contractor, wherein, petitioners were engaged by Contractor from June, 1996 as Khalasis at its project site. Respondent No. 3-Contractor has further stated that petitioners themselves refused to do the job assigned to them and they left the job without notice. Respondent No. 3-contractor also reiterated like respondent No. 2-GACL that present petitioners are not covered by definition of workman as provided under Section 2(s), as such, no dispute, if any can be raised under Industrial Disputes Act. Factum with regard to petitioners having worked continuously for 240 days also denied by the replying respondent, rather, claimed that petitioners themselves left the job on their own.

7. In view of aforesaid background, respondent No. 2-GACL and Respondent No. 3-Contractor prayed for dismissal of the claim put-forth on behalf of the petitioners.

8. Record further reveals that learned Tribunal below on the basis of pleadings made available on record by the respective parties, framed following issues:-

> "1. Whether the plea of the contractor that petitioners have abandoned the service, on their own accord, is justified or not? If so, its effect.
>
> 2. Whether the petitioners are entitled to be taken on permanent service rolls of respondent no. 1 as alleged and to what effect?
>
> 3. Whether the petitioners are not workmen and the dispute is not an industrial dispute as alleged?
>
> 4. Whether there is no relationship between petitioners and employers as alleged?
> 5. Relief."

9. Learned Tribunal below on the basis of evidence adduced on record by the respective parties came to the conclusion that neither the petitioners have proved themselves to be the employees of respondent No. 2-GACL nor of respondent No. 3-contractor and, as such, no relationship of employees and employer has been established between the petitioners and respondent No. 2-GACL and accordingly dispute cannot be said to have fallen under Industrial Disputes Act, as per Section 2(s) of the Act.

10. Learned Tribunal below in view of the aforesaid findings, dismissed the reference petitions as filed by the petitioners.

11. In view of the aforesaid background, present petitioners have approached this Court by way of writ petitions, as referred hereinabove, praying therein for quashing of the common award dated 21.6.2010, passed by learned Tribunal.

12. Shri Rahul Mahajan, counsel representing the petitioners vehemently argued that impugned award passed by learned Industrial Tribunal is not sustainable in the eyes of law as the same is not based upon the correct appreciation of evidence as well as law and, as such, same deserves to be quashed and set aside. Mr. Mahajan contended that impugned award passed in reference No. 65/1998, titled Agya Ram & others vs. Gujrat Ambuja Cement Ltd., reference has been wrongly answered in negative against the petitioners because evidence led on record by the petitioner has not been dealt with in its right perspective while rejecting the reference referred to it by the appropriate government. Mr. Mahajan further argued that bare perusal of impugned award itself suggests that the same suffers from material irregularities and illegalities in law and same is based upon surmises and conjectures, as such, same cannot be allowed to sustain.

13. With a view to substantiate his aforesaid arguments that error of law is apparent on the face of the record, Mr. Mahajan invited the attention of the Court to the impugned award to demonstrate that candid, cogent and convincing evidence led on record by the petitioners in support of their claims have been brushed aside by the learned Tribunal on a very flimsy ground, as such, great prejudice has been caused to the present petitioners, who admittedly worked more than 7 years with the respondents before there illegal termination. Mr. Mahajan also stated that bare perusal of reply filed by respondent No. 2-GACL itself suggests that there was no specific denial of the averments made in the claim of the petitioners and, as such, same should have been implied considered to be admitted. Mr. Mahajan also stated that learned Tribunal has fallen in grave error while appreciating the statement of the petitioner, wherein, he categorically stated that when he was engaged in the employment of GACL as Fire and Safety Supervisor and as such worked till 1.1.1997, when his services were illegally terminated without any show cause notice, retrenchment compensation and charge sheet. Mr. Mahajan further stated that once it stood proved on record that Shri M.K. Verma, the then Manager Safety in M/s Gujarat Ambuja Cement Ltd. had issued circular for the work to be done by the petitioners while engagement with respondent No. 2-GACL, learned Tribunal had no occasion to return the findings that petitioners have not been able to prove on record that there was a relationship of employer and employees between the petitioners and respondent No. 2.

14. Mr. Mahajan also invited the attention of this Court to the monthly work report submitted by Mr. M.K. Verma, the then Safety Manager to demonstrate that petitioners were directly working under his control and supervision and as such, contention put-forth on behalf of respondent No. 2-GACL that petitioners were never engaged by it could not be accepted by learned Tribunal below on its face value. Mr. Mahajan further contended that learned Tribunal below has fallen in grave error in not appreciating the fact that petitioners had placed on record monthly report submitted by Shri M.K. Verma regarding the work done, daily progress report regarding work done and duties performed by the petitioners, which was sufficient to demonstrate that petitioners worked directly under the supervision and control of the Manager Safety, who was the employee of GACL. Similarly, Mr. Mahajan stated that Mr. S.S. Sahni, Manager (Personnel) in his affidavit and cross-examination admitted that he is not aware of the provision of Contract Labour (Regulation and Abolition) Act, 1970 and expressed his inability to produce the Registration Certificate and license under Contract Labour (Regulation and Abolition) Act, 1970. As per Mr. Mahajan, learned Tribunal miserably failed to appreciate that no registration or license as required under the Contract Labour (Regulation and Abolition) Act, 1970 was produced by M/s Gujarat Ambuja Cement Ltd. and Contractor- respondent No. 3 and, as such, adverse inference ought to have been drawn by learned Tribunal below against the respondents.

15. Mr. Mahajan also invited attention of this Court to the specific portion of impugned award, wherein, it finds mentioned that signatures of Mr. M.K. Verma, Safety Manager, was sent for Govt. Examiner of Questioned Documents for opinion, who categorically reported that signatures are of Mr. M.K. Verma, Manager (Safety), as such, same could not be ignored. He further contended that specific report rendered therein by Govt. examiner could not have been brushed aside by the leaned Tribunal below on the ground that respondent No. 2-GACL was not given opportunity to file objection and examine the Government Examiner. He stated that objections, if any, could only filed by respondent No. 2-GACL, who could move an application for examination of Government Examiner and, as such, M/s Gujrat Ambuja Cement Ltd. Cannot take any advantage and the claim put-forth on behalf of petitioners could not be rejected. Similarly, Mr. Mahajan further contended that learned Tribunal has also failed to appreciate that petitioners are workmen under Section 2(s) of the Act and even under the Contractor Labour (Regulation and Abolition Act), 1970 and learned Tribunal had jurisdiction to adjudicate the dispute, as such, impugned award deserves to be quashed and set aside.

16. Mr. Mahajan while concluding his arguments forcefully contended that findings of learned Tribunal, wherein, drawing adverse inference under Section 114 (g) of the Evidence Act against petitioners, namely S/Shri Lal Chand, Khem Raj and Kuldeep Kumar in References Nos. 63 of 1998, 66 of 1998 and 67 of 1998 rejected the claims, since they never stepped into witness box to prove their case, is bad in law because learned Tribunal has failed to appreciate that vide order dated 21.5.2000 of Labour Court, all the references as mentioned above were ordered to be consolidated with Reference No. 65 of 1998. Since, authorized representative of the petitioners in Reference Nos. 65 of 1998, 63/1998, 66/1998, 67/1998 led evidence only in Reference No. 65 of 1998, it was incumbent upon the learned Tribunal to consider evidence led in Reference No. 65 of 1998, in all cases. Moreover, once the references were consolidated by learned Tribunal in view of identical references made to it by Appellate Court, leading of evidence in one reference would not have resulted in drawing adverse inference in other references as the issues to be proved in all references were similar and statement of claim, reply had already been filed in references, as such, learned Tribunal took hyper technical view while rejecting reference Nos. 66 of 98, 63 of 98 and 67 of 98, on the ground that petitioners therein never stepped into witness box to prove their claims.

17. Mr. Mahajan while terming award dated 21.6.2010 harsh, unjust and illegal, prayed for accepting the present petitions by quashing and setting aside the award passed by learned Tribunal in reference petitions.

18. Mr. K.D. Sood, Senior Advocate, duly assisted by Mr. Sanjeev Sood, Advocate, supported the award passed by learned Tribunal below. Mr. Sood vehemently argued that bare perusal of impugned award itself suggests that same is based upon the correct appreciation of evidence available on record as well as law, as such, no interference, whatsoever is warranted in the present facts and circumstances. Mr. Sood strenuously argued that there is no illegality and infirmity in the impugned award because bare perusal of award itself suggests that, at no point of time, petitioners were able to prove their case. Mr. Sood with a view to demonstrate that petitioners were unable to prove its case invited the attention of the Court to the impugned award passed by the learned Tribunal, whereby learned Tribunal while rejecting the claims put-forth on behalf of petitioners specifically returned the findings that neither petitioners were able to prove themselves to be the employees of respondent No. 2-GACL nor relationship, if any, of employees and employer between them and replying respondent.

19. Apart from above, Mr. Sood forcefully contended that there is no document adduced on record by the petitioner to demonstrate that they, at no point of time, were given appointment by the replying respondent, which could entitle them to raise dispute being "workman" as defined under Section 2(s) of Industrial Disputes Act, 1947. Mr. Sood contended that no appointment letter, if any, has been placed on record by either of the petitioners to suggests that they were offered appointment by the replying respondent and as such there is no force in the contention put-forth on behalf of counsel representing the petitioners that learned Tribunal below has fallen in error while holding that dispute cannot be said to have fallen under definition of industrial dispute as prescribed under Section 2(s) of the I.D. Act.

20. Mr. Sood further contended that there is no illegality and infirmity in the award, wherein, references bearing No. 63 of 1998, 66 of 1998 and 67 of 1998 have been rejected on the ground that petitioners have not entered into witness box to prove their claims by leading cogent and convincing evidence. But in the present case, since only petitioner, namely, Agya Ram made deposition before the learned Tribunal, that too, qua his claim, there was no occasion, whatsoever, for the learned Tribunal below to return findings qua the claims made by other petitioners. In view of the aforesaid background, Mr. Sood prayed that present petitions may be dismissed being devoid of any merit.

21. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and gone through the record of the case.

22. At this stage, it may be pointed out that during proceedings of the case, this Court had an occasion to peruse the impugned award as well as evidence led on record by the parties and this Court has no hesitation to conclude that impugned award passed by learned Tribunal is based upon the correct appreciation of evidence led on record by the respective parties, as such, no interference, whatsoever of this Court is called for in the present case. Though during arguments, Mr. Mahajan made an attempt to point out certain illegalities having been allegedly committed by learned Tribunal below while passing impugned award but close scrutiny of impugned award suggests that Court below has dealt with each and every aspect of the matter meticulously and it cannot be said that impugned award is not based upon the correct appreciation of evidence adduced on record. But, this Court after perusing material available on record is unable to conclude that there is any perversity in the impugned award passed by the learned Tribunal, which could compel this Court to interfere in the impugned award, which definitely appears to be based upon the proper appreciation of the evidence on record.

23. Apart from above, undisputably no appointment letters, if any, have been placed on record by all the petitioners to demonstrate that they were engaged by respondent No. 2-GACL or respondent No.3. Similarly, though petitioners in their claim stated that they were paid salary/remuneration by respondent No. 2-GACL, but no document worth the name was placed on record to substantiate their aforesaid claims. In this case, petitioners have also not been able to prove that their services were terminated by the respondent No. 2-GACL, whereas respondent No. 2-GACL categorically denied that petitioners were engaged by it. Respondent No. 3 though admitted that services of the petitioners were hired/engaged by it w.e.f. June 1996 as Khalasis at project site but they specifically denied the claim of the petitioners that they were being paid salary @ of Rs.1950/-, Rs.2250/-, Rs.1950 and Rs.2250/- respectively. Respondent No.3 - Contractor further stated that petitioners were being paid wages @ Rs. 65/- per day but the claim of the petitioners that they worked more than 240 days continuously with the replying respondent was specifically denied. Similarly, respondent No. 3 stated that M/s Gujrat Ambuja Cement Ltd. had given some project/ work to respondent No. 3-Contractor and petitioners were engaged by respondent No. 3 and their services were never terminated rather they themselves left job on their own.

24. After perusing the entire evidence led on record by the petitioners as well as respondents, there is no doubt that, at any point of time, petitioners were able to prove their appointment as Fire & Safety Supervisors by respondent No. 2-GACL. Similarly, petitioners themselves stated before the learned Tribunal below that they were not employees/workers of respondent No. 2-GACL.

25. PW1 specifically stated before the learned Tribunal that he was inducted into employment of respondent No. 2-GACL as Fire & Safety Supervisor and, as such, he continued till 1.1.1997, but as has been observed above, none of the petitioners have placed on record appointment letters, if any, given by respondent No. 2, while engaging them as Fire & Safety Supervisors. As such, this Court sees no illegality and infirmity in order passed by the learned Tribunal below, wherein, it concluded that neither petitioners have proved themselves to be the employees of respondent No. 2-GACL nor that of respondent No. 3-Contractor. Since, petitioners were unable to prove on record relationship of employees and employer between them and respondent No. 2-GACL, learned Tribunal rightly concluded that dispute cannot be said to have fallen under the definition of "Industrial Disputes" as per Section 2(s) of the I.D. Act. At this stage, it would be profitable to refer the judgment passed by Hon'ble Apex Court titled Balwant Raj Saluja and Anr. Vs. Air India Limited and Ors. (2014) 9 Supreme Court Cases 407, wherein, Hon'ble Apex Court laid relevant factors to be taken into consideration while determining the relationship between the employer and employee, which are as under:

> "64. It was concluded by this Court in Nalco case that there may have been some element of control with Nalco because its officials were nominated to the Managing Committee of the said schools. However, it was observed that the abovesaid fact was only to ensure that the schools run smoothly and properly. In this regard, the Court observed as follows:
> > "30. … However, this kind of 'remote control' would not make Nalco the employer of these workers. This only shows that since Nalco is shouldering and meeting financial deficits, it wants to ensure that the money is spent for the rightful purposes."
>
> 65. Thus, it can be concluded that the relevant factors to be taken into consideration to establish an employer-employee relationship would include, inter alia:
>
> > (i) who appoints the workers;
> >
> > (ii) who pays the salary/remuneration;
> >
> > (iii) who has the authority to dismiss;
> >
> > (iv) who can take disciplinary action;
> >
> > (v) Whether there is continuity of service; and
> >
> > (vi) extent of control and supervision i.e. whether there exists complete control and supervision.
> As regards extent of control and supervision, we have already taken note of the observations in Bengal Nagpur Cotton Mills case, International Airport Authority of India case and Nalco case."

26. Careful perusal of aforesaid law passed by Hon'ble Apex Court clearly suggests that Court while examining the question of employer and employee relationship is required to consider several factors as have been culled hereinabove by the Hon'ble Apex Court. Perusal of facts and circumstances of the case as well as evidence adduced on record, nowhere suggests that petitioners herein were able to prove aforesaid factors while claiming employer and employees relationship between them and respondents No. 2 and 3. As has been discussed in detail, petitioners have not placed on record appointment letters, if any, issued either by respondent No. 2 or respondent No. 3. Since, petitioners herein were unable to prove on record that they were appointed by respondents No. 2 and 3, several other factors as have been indicated hereinabove may not have much relevance as far as present cases are concerned. But otherwise also, perusal of impugned award nowhere suggests that petitioners were able to prove that they were being paid salary/remuneration by respondents herein. Similarly, petitioners have not led on record any evidence to demonstrate that respondents No. 2 and 3 had control and supervision over them while discharging official duties.

27. Hence, in view of the above, this Court finds no force in the contention put-forth on behalf of counsel representing petitioners that learned Tribunal below has fallen in error while rendering the findings that petitioners do not fall under definition of Section 2(s) of Industrial Disputes Act. Admittedly, in the present case petitioners were not able to prove on record relationship of employees and employer between them and respondents and, as such, it cannot be said that impugned award passed by learned Tribunal deserves to be quashed and set aside being perverse.

28. Similarly, this Court sees no illegality and infirmity in the impugned award passed by learned Tribunal below wherein reference Nos. 66/1998, 63/1998 and 67/1998 were rejected by learned Tribunal drawing adverse inference under Section 114 G of Evidence Act against Lal Chand, Khem Raj and Kuldeep Kumar because they never stepped in witness box to prove their case. It is well settled that one who claim need to prove the same by leading best piece of evidence. In the present case, though vide order dated 21.5.2002, learned Tribunal had consolidated the aforesaid references but that could not be a ground for the petitioners to not step into witness box to prove their claim. In the present case authorized representative of the petitioner in Reference No. 65/1998 made an attempt to prove the claim of the petitioner, namely, Agya Ram only and by no stretch of imagination it can be concluded that evidence led on record by Shri Agya Ram in Reference No. 65 of 1998 could be read in evidence in other references. Moreover, perusal of evidence led on record by petitioner-Agya Ram in reference No. 65/1998 nowhere suggests that he made any mention with regard to other petitioners and, as such, this Court sees no illegality and infirmity in the impugned award passed by the learned Tribunal. Onus was upon each petitioner to prove their respective claims by leading cogent and convincing evidence, which they failed to discharge by not entering into witness box.

29. Hence, in totality of facts and circumstances, this Court finds no reason, whatsoever, to intervene in the well reasoned award passed by the learned Labour Court. Moreover, this Court has very limited jurisdiction while exercising power under Section 226 to re-appreciate the evidence.

30. Apart from above, findings of fact recorded by learned Tribunal below on the basis of appreciation of evidence cannot be questioned in writ proceedings and writ court cannot act as an appellate court. In this regard, reliance is placed upon the judgment passed by Hon'ble Apex Court in case titled Bhuvnesh Kumar Dwivedi vs. M/s Hindalco Industries Ltd. 2014 AIR SCW 3157. It is profitable to reproduce paras 16, 17 and 18 of the judgment herein:

> "16. .....The question about the limits of the jurisdiction of High Courts in issuing a writ of certiorari under Article 226 has been frequently considered by this Court and the true legal position in that behalf is no longer in doubt. A writ of certiorari can be issued for correcting errors of jurisdiction committed by inferior Courts or tribunals: these are cases where orders are passed by inferior Courts or Tribunals without jurisdiction, or is in excess of it, or as a result of failure to exercise jurisdiction. A writ can similarly be issued where in exercise of jurisdiction conferred on it, the Court or Tribunal acts illegally or improperly, as for instance, it decides a question without giving an opportunity to be heard to the party affected by the order, or where the procedure adopted in dealing with the dispute is opposed to principles of natural justice. There is, however, no doubt that the jurisdiction to issue a writ of certiorari is a supervisory jurisdiction and the Court exercising it is no entitled to act as an Appellate Court. This limitation necessarily means that findings of fact reached by the inferior court or Tribunal as result of the appreciation of evidence cannot be reopened for questioned in writ proceedings. An error of law which is apparent on the face of the record can be corrected by a writ, but not an error of fact, however grave it may appear to be. In regard to a finding of fact recorded by the Tribunal, a writ of certiorari can be issued if it is shown that in recording the said finding, the Tribunal had erroneously refused to admit admissible and material evidence, or had erroneously admitted inadmissible evidence which has influenced the impugned finding. Similarly, if a finding of fact is based on no evidence, that would be regarded as an error of law which can be corrected by a writ of certiorari. In dealing with this category of cases, however, we must always bear in mind that a finding of fact recorded by the Tribunal cannot be challenged in proceedings for a writ of certiorari on the ground that the relevant and material evidence adduced before the Tribunal was insufficient or inadequate to sustain the impugned finding. The adequacy or sufficiency of evidence led on a point and the interference of fact to be drawn from the said finding are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Tribunal, and the said points cannot be agitated before a writ Court. It is within these limits that the jurisdiction conferred on the High Courts under Article 226 to issue a writ of certiorari can be legitimately exercised.

17. The judgments mentioned above can be read with the judgment of this Court in Harjinder Singh's case (supra), the relevant paragraph of which reads as under:

21. Before concluding, we consider it necessary to observe that while exercising jurisdiction under Articles 226 and / or 227 of the Constitution in matters like the present one, the High Courts are duty bound to keep in mind that the Industrial Disputes Act and other similar legislative instruments are social welfare legislations and the same are required to be interpreted keeping in view the goals set out in the Preamble of the Constitution and the provisions contained in Part IV thereof in general and Articles 38, 39(a) to (e), 43 and 43-A in particular, which mandate that the State should secure a social order for the promotion of welfare of the people, ensure equality between men and women and equitable distribution of material resources of the community to subserve the common good and also ensure that the workers get their dues. More than 41 years ago, Gajendragadkar, J. opined that:

10.... The concept of social and economic justice is a living concept of revolutionary import; it gives sustenance to the rule of law and meaning and significance to the ideal of welfare State.

18. A careful reading of the judgments reveals that the High Court can interfere with an order of the Tribunal only on the procedural level and in cases, where the decision of the lower Courts has been arrived at in gross violation of the legal principles. The High Court shall interfere with factual aspect placed before the Labour Courts only when it is convinced that the Labour Court has made patent mistakes in admitting evidence illegally or have made grave errors in law in coming to the conclusion on facts. The High Court granting contrary relief under Articles 226 and 227 of the Constitution amounts to exceeding its jurisdiction conferred upon it. Therefore, we accordingly answer the point No. 1 in favour of the appellant." [Emphasis added]

31. Consequently, in view of the aforesaid discussion, this Court sees no force in these writ petitions, as such, the same are dismissed being devoid of any merit.

Human blood was found on leaves and soil taken from the spot as well as on the clothes of Ratti Ram. Blood was not detected on clothes of accused Satish Kumar and Rajeev Kumar. Report of FSL, Ex.PW14/E reveals that fire arm (SBBL gun) was in working order and cartridge case, Ex.E/5 has been fired from the said gun.

4. On conclusion of investigations, into the offences, allegedly committed by the accused, a report under Section 173 of the Code of Criminal Procedure was prepared and filed in the competent Court.

5. The accused were charged by the learned trial Court for theirs committing offences punishable under Section 302 read with Section 34 of the IPC and 25-27 of the Indian Arms Act. In proof of the prosecution case, the prosecution examined 18 witnesses. On conclusion of recording of the prosecution evidence, the statements of the accused under Section 313 of the Code of Criminal Procedure were recorded by the trial Court, in which the accused claimed innocence and pleaded false implication. However, they did not lead any defence evidence.

6. On an appraisal of evidence on record, the learned trial Court, returned findings of acquittal in favour of the accused/respondents herein.

7. The complainant/appellant herein aggrieved by the judgment of acquittal recorded by the learned trial Court. The learned counsel appearing for the complainant/appellant has concertedly and vigorously contended qua the findings of acquittal recorded by the learned trial Court standing not based on a proper appreciation of evidence on record, rather, theirs standing sequelled by gross mis-appreciation of material on record. Hence, he contends qua the findings of acquittal being reversed by this Court in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction and theirs being replaced by findings of conviction.

8. On the other hand, the learned defence counsel has with considerable force and vigour, contended qua the findings of acquittal recorded by the Court below standing based on a mature and balanced appreciation of evidence on record and theirs not necessitating interference, rather theirs meriting vindication.

9. This Court with the able assistance of the learned counsel on either side, has, with studied care and incision, evaluated the entire evidence on record.

10. Deceased Ratti Ram suffered his end by a gun shot injury. The relevant incident of his standing allegedly inflicted with a fatal gun shot wound occurred in Balh Churani Forest. The accused/respondents herein are alleged to commit the murder of deceased Ratti Ram. The fatal gun shot injury is alleged to stand fired at the deceased by accused Rajeev Kumar from the licenced arm, Ex.P-27, of his father, accused Lekh Ram. The spent cartridge Ex.P-23 stood recovered from the house of accused Rajeev Kumar under recovery memo Ex.PW2/F. The FSL concerned in its opinion comprised in Ex.PW14/E has therein categorically echoed of cartridge Ex.E/5 standing fired from fire arm, Ex.E/4 (SBBL gun), a valid licence qua which stood issued by the competent Licencing Authority qua accused Lekh Ram. Furthermore, underscorings stand embodied therein qua traces of gun shot residue standing borne on the holes present on Exts. E/9a (a piece of cloth), E/9b (shirt), E/9c (pant), E/9d (Sweater), E/9e (T-shirt) and E/9g (underwear). Ex.PW7/B is the postmortem report prepared by PW-7, Dr. N.K. Sankhan, in sequel to his subjecting the body of deceased Ratti Ram to postmortem examination. PW-7 in his testification has proved Ex.PW7/B. He has voiced therein qua his during the course of his subjecting the body of deceased to postmortem examination noticing thereon multiple perforated wounds without charring, blackening, tattooing, singing of hair. He attributes the existence of the aforesaid features on the body of the deceased to firing of pellets thereon. He testifies qua the demise of deceased occurring due to cardio respiratory failure as a result of injuries to lungs and heart and hypovolumic shock in sequel to a gun shot injury.

11. Apparently, the case of the prosecution rests upon circumstantial evidence. For the prosecution to succeed in a case anvilled upon circumstantial evidence, it was enjoined to prove by efficacious unflinching evidence each of the links in the chain of circumstances. Motive which ultimately does not hold any force in a case hinged upon direct evidence yet assumes significance in a case rested upon circumstantial evidence. The motive which stands attributed by the prosecution to the accused for theirs murdering the deceased stands grooved in there being an on going land dispute inter se them. Even though no record personificatory of an on going land dispute inter se the accused and the deceased exists on record also thereupon the attribution of a motive to the accused by the prosecution for theirs murdering the deceased would founder. However, even if, the aforesaid ascription of motive by the prosecution to the accused may not be nourished by any convincing evidence yet for want of evidence qua the facet aforesaid would not benumb the vigour of the prosecution case, if, other links in the chain of circumstances stand unflinchingly proven by the prosecution. Also if scientific ballistic evidence comprised in the report of the FSL concerned manifested in Ex.PW14/E squarely attracts the inculpation of the accused in the alleged offences, any lack of proof of link of motive would stand blunted. Also pronouncements occurring in the deposition of PW-7 qua the demise of the deceased ensuing from pellet injuries observed by him to be existing on the person of the deceased when cumulatively point qua accused Rajeev Kumar firing at the deceased the fatal gun shot from gun, Ex.P-27, concomitantly they assume paramount predominance dehors other links in the chain of circumstances remaining assumingly not cogently proven.

12. The learned trial Court had disimputed credence to the prosecution version qua recovery of body of the deceased under memo Ex.PW2/B at the instance of accused Satish Kumar and Rajeev Kumar in succession to their respective precedingly recorded disclosure statements comprised in Ex.PW2/A and Ex.PW15/C, given PW-15 testifying qua his receiving from accused Satish Kumar a telephonic intimation on 22.12.2009 whereupon he recorded rapat Ex.PW15/A, information whereof held a narrative qua a person suffering death in Balh Churani Forest, also with PW-2 testifying qua his standing purveyed an intimation qua the aforesaid facet by the police besides with PW-15 unveiling in his testification qua both Satish Kumar and Rajiv Thakur besides PW Kuldeep Kumar, Jaswant Singh and Neelam proceeding to the site of occurrence begetting therefrom an inevitable inference qua the investigating Officer holding knowledge qua the place of hiding, concealment or keeping of the body of deceased preceding vis-a-vis effectuation of recovery of body of the deceased at the instance of the accused. The aforesaid conclusion qua prior to, accused Statish Kumar and Rajeev Kumar getting its place of keeping or hiding identified in sequel whereto memo Ex.PW2/B stood prepared, the Investigating Officer holding knowledge qua the place of its keeping would stand firmly engendered also would hold entrenched vigour only when evidently PW-2 and PW-15 along with the Investigating Officer had prior to the identification of body of deceased by the accused, located it in Balh Churani Jungle. However, there is no evidence existing on record portraying the factum of PW-15, PW-2 and PW Kuldeep Kumar prior to the accused Rajeev Kumar and Satish Kumar making disclosure statements comprised in Ex.PW2/A and Ex.PW15/C, in pursuance whereof they under memo Ex.PW2/B identified the place of concealment or keeping of body of deceased, theirs along with the Investigating Officer visiting it, significantly it was inapt for the learned trial Court to conclude of the Investigating Officer detecting the body of the deceased in Balh Churani Forest prior to his recording the disclosure statements of accused Satish Kumar and accused Rajeev Kumar comprised in Ex.PW2/A and Ex.PW15/C. Even if, the Investigating Officer besides PW-1 and PW-2 held knowledge qua the occurrence of body of the deceased Ratti Ram in Balh Churani Jungle on information qua its location standing purportedly telephonically purveyed by accused Satish Kumar whereupon a rapat comprised in Ex.PW15/A stood registered yet the mere factum of information qua its occurrence in the forest would not be connotative of PW-15 (Investigating Officer) along with PW-1 and PW-2 visiting the relevant spot in the forest prior to the making of by co-accused Satish Kumar and Rajiv Kumar their respective disclosure statements comprised in Ex.PW2/A and Ex.PW15/C in sequel whereto the body of deceased stood identified by them under memo Ex.PW2/B, nor also any conclusion can stand fostered of the Investigating Officer dehors the accused identifying the place of its keeping and hiding preceding whereto they recorded their respective disclosure statements comprised in Ex.PW2/A and Ex.PW15/C, his previously locating the place whereat its location stood ultimately identified by accused Satish Kumar and accused Rajiv Kumar. Furthermore, no relevant unearthings upsurge in the cross-examination of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-15 qua dehors theirs holding knowledge qua the occurrence of body of deceased in Balh Churani, Jungle, theirs conjointly identifying its location prior to effectuation of its recovery at the instance of the accused under memo Ex.PW2/B. Also knowledge, if any, held by PW-1 and PW-2 qua occurrence of the body of the deceased in Balh Churani Jungle would ipso facto hold no connotation qua theirs purveying to the Investigating Officer with graphic specificity the exact place of its occurrence in the relevant jungle unless efficacious apposite unearthings upsurge in their testifications. However, for want of emergence of apposite upsurgings in the relevant testifications qua the facet aforesaid enhances the inference of the Investigating Officer of PW-1 and PW-2 not sharing with the Investigating Officer the exact place of its location in the relevant jungle wherefrom also an inference stands erected of the accused alone holding knowledge qua the place of hiding or keeping of body of deceased by them wheretoat they led the Investigating Officer whereupon memo Ex.PW2/B stood prepared. For reiteration, lack of upsurgings in their cross-examination qua the facet aforesaid, an apt inference therefrom is of assumingly even if PW-1, and PW-2 had held prior knowledge qua the place of keeping and hiding of the body of deceased in Balh Churani Jungle, nonetheless, the aforesaid knowledge held by PW-1 and PW-2 qua the precise site of its location therein cannot ipso facto stand concluded to be conveyed by them to the Investigating Officer unless their relevant cross-examinations qua the trite factum aforesaid unearthed evidence in affirmation thereto, whereas, with the aforesaid evidence being amiss it would be grossly inapt to conclude of even if assumingly PW-1 and PW-2 held knowledge qua the place of hiding and keeping of the body of deceased in Balh Churani Jungle, of thereupon the Investigating Officer also holding knowledge qua its exact place of location therein. The sequitur thereto is of the Investigating Officer acquiring knowledge only from the accused qua the place of hiding and keeping of the body of the deceased by them in Balh Churani Jungle, rendering hence redundant the effect, if any, of PW1 and PW-2 holding knowledge qua the place of hiding and keeping of the body of deceased Ratti Ram in Balh Churani Jungle. Preeminently also when the Investigating Officer hence evidently held no confabulations with PW-1 and PW-2 qua the relevant fact aforesaid rather he stood led by the accused to the place of its keeping and hiding by them, in sequel, it was grossly inapt for the learned trial Court to conclude of with PW-15 also PW-1 and PW-2 holding prior knowledge qua the occurrence of demise of Ratti Ram in Balh Churani Jungle, knowledge whereof occurred prior to the making of disclosure statements by accused Satish Kumar and Rajeev Kumar, begetting a concomitant conclusion of theirs visiting it along with the Investigating Officer, also theirs along with the Investigating Officer locating the place of its keeping and hiding nor it was apt for the learned trial Court to conclude of the disclosure statements of Satish Kumar and Rajeev Kumar lacking in sanctifying vigour. Cumulatively, hence the accused are to be concluded to be holding exclusive knowledge qua the place of its location also qua the exact place of its hiding or camouflaging by them whereupto they accosted the police, whereupon they identified it under memo Ex.PW2/B, preceding whereto their respective disclosure statements comprised in Ex.PW2/A and Ex.PW15/C stood recorded. The apt sequitur of the aforesaid inference qua accused Satish Kumar and Rajeev Kumar alone holding exclusive knowledge qua the place of hiding and keeping of the body of deceased Ratti Ram is qua also their respective disclosure statements, holding vigorous probative force, vigour whereof imbuing them stands grooved in the factum of exhibits aforesaid holding the respective signatures of the accused, signatures thereon of both standing not disputed by them whereupon they stand interdicted by the mandate of Sections 91 and 92 of the Indian Evidence Act to resile from the recitals occurring therein also stand concomitantly estopped to adduce oral evidence in digression thereto. Also likewise the existence of uncontested signatures of the marginal witnesses on memos Ex.PW2/A, Ex.PW15/C, Ex.PW2/B, Ex.PW2/C, Ex.PW2/D, Ex.PW2/F, Ex.PW2/J, Ex.PW4/A, Ex.PW6/A, Ex.PW8/A, Ex.PW9/A, and Ex.PW15/G, also likewise attracts qua them the interdiction cast in Sections 91 and 92 of the Indian Evidence Act against theirs orally digressing from the recorded recitals occurring therewithin. Consequently, their oral testimonies in variation thereto hold no vigour. Furthermore, with efficacious proof emanating qua disclosure statements of accused Satish Kumar and Rajiv Thakur respectively comprised in Ex.PW2/A and Ex.PW15/C also when in sequel thereto the place of concealment and keeping of the body of deceased stood identified by them under memo Ex.PW2/B, the factum of the prosecution not adducing cogent evidence in display of cellular communications occurring inter se co-accused Satish Kumar and PW-15 holding therein a narrative qua the body of the deceased occurring in Balh Churani Jungle appears to be inconsequential. Even, if the testimony of PW-5, who had last seen co-accused Satish Kumar and Rajiv Kumar going to the jungle on 21.12.2009 at about 6.00 a.m., hence holds therewithin the link evidence of his last seeing them in the vicinity of the site of occurrence, factum whereof qua his last seeing them in the vicinity of the site of occurrence stands testified by him to generate on his hearing sound of foot steps occurring outside his house whereupon he stood prodded to make an inquiry, inquiry whereof fetched/yielded to him an answer by accused Satish Kumar and accused Rajiv Thakur, identification whereof by him of the aforesaid stands testified by him to occur on his identifying their voices, may stand rendered discrepant, given PW-1 testifying qua her father departing from his house at about 8.00 a.m., whereas PW-5 deposing of his last seeing the accused in the vicinity of the site of occurrence at 6.00 a.m. yet it may not erode the efficacy of the disclosure statements of accused Satish Kumar and Rajiv Kumar manifested in Ex.PW2/A and Ex.PW15/C also would not benumb the vigour of identification in sequel thereto by the accused under memo Ex.PW2/B of the location of hiding or keeping of body of deceased Ratti Ram. The learned trial Court has meted the least deference to Ex.PW14/E with vivid articulations occurring therein of Ex.E/4 (Ex.P-27), A Single Barrel Breech Loading gun constituting the weapon wherefrom cartridge Ex.E/5 stood fired also it has belittled the significance of the expert concerned therewithin opining of traces of gun shot residue standing borne on the holes present on Exts. E/9a (a piece of cloth), E/9b (shirt), E/9c (pant), E/9d (Sweater), E/9e (T-shirt) and 3/9g (underwear). All the aforesaid pronouncements occurring in Ex.PW14/E graphically evince therefrom qua the relevant weapon of offence standing used by the accused for firing therefrom cartridge Ex.E/5 also with a loud articulation occurring therewithin qua the relevant clothes as sent to it for analysis holding gun shot residue within the holes existing thereon, does imminently cumulatively alongwith the factum of the relevant cartridge standing evidently fired from the relevant weapon of offence, portray qua its penetrating the portion of the body of deceased through clothes, Exts. E/9a (a piece of cloth), E/9b (shirt), E/9c (pant), E/9d (Sweater), E/9e (T-shirt) and 3/9g (underwear) whereon holes with gun shot residue stand opined to occur. With firm connectivity emanating qua hence the user of the relevant weapon of offence by the accused, it ought not to have entailed any inference as untenably drawn by the learned trial Court qua the recovery of empty cartridge P-23 under memo Ex.PW2/F holding no efficacy given its standing recovered from an open almirah wherefrom an inference stood untenably drawn by it qua its standing planted thereon by the Investigating Officer also its concluding qua the incriminatory role of accused Lekh Ram in the offences alleged qua whom Ex.P-27 stood issued and from whose house an empty cartridge Ex.P-23 stood recovered under recovery memo Ex.PW2/F being not cogently evincible obviously suffers from gross error of mis-appreciation by it of relevant germane evidence.

13. Be that as it may with absolute concurrence rather stark alignments occurring vis-a-vis the pronouncements made by PW-7 in Ex.PW7/B on his subjecting the body of deceased to postmortem examination qua his noticing occurrence thereon of pellet wounds vis-a-vis the report of the FSL comprised in Ex.PW14/E wherefrom for reasons aforesaid it stands concluded qua the user of the relevant weapon of offence standing connected with the fatal wounds occurring on the body of the deceased wherefrom the apt ensuing sequel is of with the accused not making any endeavour to while subjecting the prosecution witnesses to cross-examination put apposite suggestions to them qua the Investigating Officer removing the relevant weapon of offence from the premises of its licence holder, whereupon on affirmative responses thereto emanating from them wherewithin bespeakings stand encapsulated qua the Investigating Officer engineering the recovery of Ex.P27, contrarily evident absence of concert thereof by the defence nails a firm conclusion qua its licence holder also being amenable along with other co-accused for fastening an incriminatory role vis-a-vis its vicarious user by him.

14. The up shot of the above conclusion is of the postmortem report Ex.PW7/B and the report of the FSL Ex.PW 14/E constituting the best scientific evidence in emphatically sustaining the user of gun Ex.P-27 by the accused, also the exhibits aforesaid alone constituting the crucial pivotal link for sustaining the guilt of the accused. In sequel, with the aforesaid exhibits alone constituting formidable scientific evidence, they solitarily were enjoined to be meted deference by the learned trial Court. More so, when they vividly pronounce qua the incriminatory role of the accused, their respective credibility besides their vigour stands untenably undermined by the learned trial Court on mere purported inefficacy gripping the disclosure statements of the accused comprised in Ex.PW2/A and Ex.PW15/C, in sequel whereof they identified the place of its concealment and keeping under Ex.PW2/B, infirmities whereof as delineated by it in its judgment to be embodying them do not withstand the test of incisive scanning of the respective testifications of the relevant witnesses to the apt memos also do not withstand the rigor of application thereon of the relevant principles engrafted in Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act besides of Sections 91 and 92 of the Indian Evidence Act. Conspicuously, when the identification of the place of recovery of the body of deceased at the instance of the accused was exclusively within their knowledge besides when its recovery at their instance under memo Ex.PW2/B alone held efficacy whereas with the learned trial Court untenably holding of the Investigating Officer prior to the accused making the disclosure statements, whereafter they identified the body of the deceased, his holding knowledge qua the place of its keeping and hiding, has hence desanctified their solemnity whereby it has committed a gross mis-appreciation of their relevant import. Even if, some of the links in the chain of circumstances may assumingly remain unproven by clinching evidence thereto remaining unadduced by the prosecution, nonetheless, when the relevant links are merely incidental or fringe links vis-a-vis the predominant links constituted in Ex.PW7/B (postmortem report) and Ex.PW14/E (report of the FSL), exhibits whereof conclusively connect the guilt of the accused in the commission of offences alleged, the mere non proof of fringe links would not erode the sanctity of the aforesaid exhibits, significantly when they constitute best potent links besides when it is not a thumb rule of inflexible applicability of with fringe links remaining unproved it hence eroding the efficacy of proof by unflinching evidence of predominant potent links.

15. With accused Lekh Ram holding licence of the gun also with his incriminatory role standing unflinchingly proven besides with co-accused Satish and Rajiv identifying the location of body of the deceased whereat it stood concealed or kept by them whereupon the aforesaid evidently hold a vicarious incriminatory role intra se each other besides with co-accused Lekh Ram also preponderantly when both accused Rajiv and Satish Kumar do not in their defence propagate qua theirs not joining their intra se company at the relevant time when a fatal gun shot wound stood fired from the licenced arm of co-accused Lekh Ram imperatively hence it is to be reinforcingly concluded qua all the accused joining their intra se company at the site of occurrence wherefrom also an inference is marshable qua at the relevant site of occurrence each of the relevant accused standing infused with a conjointly premeditated mensrea with the relevant accused who fired fatal gun shot wound at deceased Ratti Ram. Even if assumingly, the apposite gun shot stood fired by only one of the accused, it would not exculpate the incriminatory role of other co-accused in the relevant occurrence, significantly, when the incriminatory role of all co-accused stand hinged upon theirs holding a vicarious premeditated mensrea vis-a-vis intra se each other respectively, factum whereof is evincible from theirs holding the company of the relevant accused while his standing armed with a fatal weapon also when no defence stands espoused by them qua theirs dissuading the relevant accused in his proceeding to fire the fatal gun shot wound at deceased Ratti Ram. Consequently, it is held that the prosecution has proven the guilt of the accused beyond all reasonable doubt.

16. For the reasons which have been recorded hereinabove, this Court holds that the learned trial Court below has not appraised the entire evidence on record in a wholesome and harmonious manner apart therefrom the analysis of the material on record by the learned trial Court suffers from a perversity or absurdity of mis-appreciation and non appreciation of evidence on record.

17. Consequently, the instant appeal is allowed and the accused/respondents are convicted for the offence punishable under Section 302 read with Section 34 of the IPC and under Section 25-27 of the Indian Arms Act. Consequently, they be produced before this Court on 22nd September, 2016 for hearing them on quantum of sentence.

The following order of the Court was delivered:

P. S. Rana, J.

Present civil revision petition is filed under Section 24(5) of H. P. Urban Rent Control Act 1987 against the interim order dated 24.02.2016 whereby learned Appellate Authority (I) Kangra at Dharamshala (H.P.) remanded the rent petition to learned Rent Controller(I) Kangra at Dharamshala (H.P.) for limited purpose to correct clerical mistake in memo of parties only relating to rent petition No.08/07/2005 title Sh. Lal Chand Vs. Sh. Ram Parshad and others decided on 26.04.2013.

Brief facts of the case:

2. Sh. Lal Chand s/o Sh. Tulsi Ram landlord filed eviction petition against tenants under Section 14(3)(C) of H. P. Urban Rent Control Act 1987. During pendency of rent petition before learned Rent Controller(I) Kangra at Dharamshala (H.P.) Sh. Ram Chand Mehta co-respondent No.4 died and learned Rent Controller impleaded Smt. Vimla Devi, Sh. Rajesh Mehta, Smt. Chanchla Devi, Smt. Shanta Devi and Smt. Sudha Devi as co-party in rent petition being LRs of deceased Sh. Ram Chand Mehta. Due to clerical mistake in the final eviction order passed by learned Rent Controller on dated 26.04.2013 in the memo of parties name of Smt. Sudha Devi was omitted. Learned Rent Controller evicted tenants from premises on the ground of reconstruction which could not be carried out without eviction of tenants. Learned Rent Controller directed tenants to hand over vacant possession of premises to landlord within three months w.e.f. 26.04.2013. Thereafter against eviction order Smt. Reeta Gupta and other tenants filed rent appeal No.78-D/XIV/13 title Smt. Reeta Gupta and others Vs. Sh. Lal Chand and others.

3. Thereafter during pendency of rent appeal No.78-D/XIV/13 landlord Sh. Lal Chand filed application before Appellate Authority (I) Kangra at Dharamshala (H.P.) under Section 152 CPC for correction of memo of parties in the eviction order and in memo of costs with plea that name of Smt. Sudha Devi be added as co-respondent No.4(v) in memo of parties. Learned Appellate Authority (I) on dated 24.02.2016 held that mistake committed by learned Rent Controller in memo of parties is liable to be corrected by learned Rent Controller. Thereafter learned Appellate Authority (I) Kangra at Dharamshala (H.P.) remanded the matter to learned Rent Controller(I) Kangra at Dharamshala (H.P.) for limited purpose to correct clerical mistake and add name of Smt. Sudha Devi as LR of deceased Sh.Ram Chand Mehta as co-party in eviction order and in memo of costs. Learned Appellate Authority (I) directed that after correction of clerical mistake in memo of parties and memo of costs learned Rent Controller would submit the record to learned Appellate Authority (I) on or before 16.03.2016. Aggrieved against interim order of learned Appellate Authority (I) dated 24.02.2016 revisionists filed present civil revision petition in H.P. High Court.

4. Court heard learned Advocate appearing on behalf of revisionists and learned Advocate appearing on behalf of non-revisionist No.1 and Court also perused the record of present civil revision petition carefully.

5. Following points arise for determination:

1) Whether civil revision petition filed under Section 24(5) of the H. P. Urban Rent Control Act 1987 is liable to be accepted as mentioned in memorandum of grounds of revision petition?

2) Final order.

Findings upon Point No.1 with reasons.

6. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of revisionists that learned Appellate Authority (I) has committed grave illegality by way of remitting the case file to learned Rent Controller(I) Kangra at Dharamshala (H.P.) for limited purpose for correcting clerical mistake in memorandum of parties is rejected being devoid of any force for reasons hereinafter mentioned. It is well settled law that section 152 Code of Civil Procedure 1908 is based upon concept of actus curiae neminem gravabit. (An act of Court should not prejudice anyone). It is well settled law that as per Section 152 Code of Civil Procedure 1908 Court is competent to correct clerical or arithmetical mistake at any stage of the case either on its own motion or on application of any party. It is also well settled law that an arithmetical mistake is a mistake of calculation and clerical mistake is a mistake of writing or typing. See AIR 2003 SC 4179 title State of Punjab Vs. Darshan Singh. See AIR 1966 SC 1047 title Master Construction Co. (P) Ltd. Vs. State of Orissa. See AIR 1977 Orissa 68 title Bishnu Charan Vs. Dhani Biswal. See AIR 1966 Orissa 225 title Sagua Vs. Bichinta.

7. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of revisionists that clerical mistake could be rectified by only Rent Controller and application for rectification of clerical mistake was not maintainable before Appellate Authority and on this ground revision petition be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for reasons hereinafter mentioned. It is proved on record that rent appeal No.78-D/XIV/13 title Smt. Reeta Gupta and others Vs. Sh. Lal Chand and others is pending before learned Appellate Authority (I) Kangra at Dharamshala (H.P.). It is well settled law that appeal is in continuation of judicial proceedings. See AIR 1967 Allahabad 214 title Shyam Sunder Lal Vs. Shagun Chand. See AIR 1960 Calcutta 469 title Damodar Mukherjee & Others Vs. Bonwarilal Agarwalla. See AIR 1957 M.P. 98 title Shyamlal Vs. Takhatmal. See AIR 1975 Gauhati 40 title Mahangu Parsad Vs. Pravag Sah & Others. See AIR 1968 Manipur 42 title Kakhangai Kabui & Others Vs. Smt. Apanbi Kabuini and others. It is held that Appellate Authority is legally competent to correct clerical mistake committed by learned Trial Court at any stage of the case. Power of Appellate Court is defined under Section 107 Code of Civil Procedure 1908. As per Section 107 Code of Civil Procedure 1908 Appellate Court has powers (1) To determine case finally (2) To remand the case (3) To frame issues and refer them for trial (4) To take additional evidence himself or direct that such additional evidence would be taken by Trial Court. As per Section 107(2) Code of Civil Procedure 1908 Appellate Court would have same powers and would perform same duty as conferred upon Courts of original jurisdiction.

8. In the present case it is proved on record that Sh.Ram Chand Mehta died during pendency of rent petition before learned Rent Controller. It is proved on record that learned Rent Controller by way of judicial order directed that following persons would be impleaded as LRs of deceased Sh. Ram Chand Mehta in rent eviction petition. (1) Smt. Vimla Devi (2) Sh. Rajesh Mehta (3) Smt. Chanchla Devi (4) Smt. Shanta Devi (5) Smt. Sudha Devi. It is proved on record that due to clerical mistake in memorandum of parties of final eviction order learned Rent Controller omitted name of Smt. Sudha Devi as co-party. It is held that mistake committed by learned Rent Controller in memo of parties is purely clerical in nature. It is held that it is expedient in the ends of justice to direct the learned Rent Controller to correct clerical mistake in memorandum of parties and incorporate name of Smt. Sudha Devi in memorandum of parties as one of LRs of deceased Sh.Ram Chand Mehta. In view of above stated facts it is held that there is no illegality in the interim order dated 24.02.2016 passed by learned Appellate Authority (I) Kangra at Dharamshala (H.P.). Point No.1 is answered in negative.

Point No.2 (Final order).

9. In view of findings upon point No.1 above present civil revision petition is dismissed. Interim order of learned Appellate Authority (I) Kangra at Dharamshala (H.P.) dated 24.02.2016 is affirmed. Parties are left to bear their own costs. Observations will not effect merits of case in any manner and will be strictly confined for disposal of present revision petition. Parties are directed to appear before learned Appellate Authority (I) Kangra at Dharamshala (H.P.) on 05.10.2016. Certified copy of this order be sent back forthwith to learned Appellate Authority (I) Kangra at Dharamshala (H.P.) and learned Rent Controller(I) Kangra at Dharamshala (H.P.) for compliance forthwith. C.R. No.26/2016 is disposed of. Pending applications if any also disposed of.

For the Petitioner: Ms. Leena Guleria, Advocate.
For the Non-petitioner: Mr. M.L. Chauhan Additional Advocates General.

The following order of the Court was delivered:

P.S. Rana, Judge.

Present bail application is filed under section 37 Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act 1985 read with section 439 Code of Criminal Procedure 1973 for grant of bail to petitioner relating to FIR No. 83 of 2016 dated 15.4.2016 registered under Section 20 of ND&PS Act 1985 at P.S. Kullu District Kullu H.P.

Brief facts of the case

2. It is alleged that on 15.4.2016 police officials headed by HC Suraj Thakur were present at place known as Shangan bridge in connection with routine patrolling and traffic checking. It is alleged that police officials noticed accused sitting on parapet. It is also alleged that when accused saw the police officials he threw some object down the road. It is further alleged that in presence of independent witnesses object thrown lifted and in a bag 814 grams of cannabis (Charas) found. As per police report investigation completed and challan stood filed before learned Special Judge Kullu and is fixed for prosecution evidence on 29.9.2016.

3. Court heard learned Advocate appearing on behalf of the petitioner and learned Additional Advocate General appearing on behalf of the non-petitioner and also perused the record.

4. Following points arise for determination in this bail application:-

1. Whether bail application filed by petitioner is liable to be accepted as mentioned in memorandum of grounds of bail application?
2. Final Order.

Findings upon Point No.1 with reasons

5. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of petitioner that petitioner is innocent and petitioner did not commit any criminal offence as alleged by investigating agency cannot be decided at this stage. Judicial findings relating to innocence of accused or not would be given by learned Trial Court after giving due opportunity to both the parties to lead evidence in support of their case.

6. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of the petitioner that investigation is completed and charge sheet already stood filed and recovered quantity is less than commercial quantity and on this ground petitioner is legally entitled to be released on bail is accepted for the reasons hereinafter mentioned. Bail in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances cases is governed by Section 37 of ND&PS Act 1985. Bail relating to recovery of contraband less than commercial quantity is permissible under law. It is well settled law that accused is presumed to be innocent till convicted by competent Court of law. At the time of granting bail following factors are considered. (i) Nature and seriousness of offence (ii) Character of evidence (iii) Circumstances which are peculiar to the accused (iv) Possibility of the presence of the accused at the trial or investigation (v) Reasonable apprehension of witnesses being tampered with (vi) The larger interests of the public or the State. See AIR 1978 SC 179 titled Gurcharan Singh and others Vs. State (Delhi Administration). Also see AIR 1962 SC 253 titled The State Vs. Captain Jagjit Singh. It is well settled law that object of bail is to secure the appearance of the accused person at his trial. It is well settled law that grant of bail is rule and committal to jail is exceptional. Refusal of bail is a restriction on personal liberty of individual guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution. Accused should not be kept in jail for an indefinite period. See 2012 Cri. L.J. 702 Apex Court DB 702 titled Sanjay Chandra vs. Central Bureau of Investigation.

7. Submission of learned Additional Advocate General appearing on behalf of non-petitioner that if bail is granted to petitioner then petitioner will induce and threat the prosecution witnesses and on this ground bail application be declined is rejected being devoid of any force for the reasons hereinafter mentioned. Court is of the opinion that conditional bail will be granted to petitioner. Court is of the opinion that if petitioner will flout the terms and conditions of conditional bail order then non-petitioner will be at liberty to file application for cancellation of bail in accordance with law.

8. Submission of learned Additional Advocate General appearing on behalf of non-petitioner that accused is resident of Nepal and if bail is granted to accused then trial of case would be hampered and petitioner would leave India and on this ground bail application be dismissed is rejected being devoid of any force for the reasons hereinafter mentioned. There is recital in bail petition that petitioner is residing at village Karol near Manikaran for the last so many years and there is recital in petition that petitioner would furnish local sureties for release and there is also recital in petition that petitioner would not leave District Kullu till the conclusion of trial by learned Trial Court. If petitioner will flout terms and conditions of bail order then prosecution will be at liberty to file appliction for cancellation of bail as per section 439(2) Code of Criminal Procedure 1973. In view of undertaking given by petitioner Court is of the opinion that it is expedient in the ends of justice to allow the bail application. In view of above stated facts point No.1 is answered in affirmative.

Point No.2 (Final order)

9. In view of findings upon point No.1 bail application filed by petitioner under Section 37 of NDPS Act 1985 read with section 439 Cr.P.C. is allowed subject to furnishing personal bond to the tune of Rs. 5 lac (Rupees five lacs only) with two local sureties in the like amount to the satisfaction of learned trial Court on following terms and conditions. (i) That petitioner will attend the proceedings of learned Trial Court regularly till conclusion of trial of case. (ii) That petitioner will not directly or indirectly make any inducement, threat or promise to any person acquainted with the facts of the case so as to dissuade him/her from disclosing such facts to the Court or to any police officer. (iii) That petitioner will not leave District Kullu (Himachal Pradesh) without the prior permission of the Court. (iv) That petitioner will not commit similar offence qua which he is accused. Observations made in this order will not effect the merits of case in any manner and will strictly confine for the disposal of bail application filed under section 37 of NDPS Act 1985 read with section 439 of Code of Criminal Procedure 1973. Bail petition filed under section 37 of NDPS Act 1985 read with section 439 of Code of Criminal Procedure stands disposed of. All pending application(s) if any also disposed of.

Constitution of India, 1950- Article 226- Himachal Pradesh Power Corporation Limited (HPCL) is setting up a 450 MW Hydro Electric project and most of the construction activities have been allotted to respondent No. 6 who had engaged various contractors to execute the work- there is violation of the various labour laws - workers are not even getting their salaries on which demand charters were presented- a meeting was arranged in which it was agreed that arrears of salary will be paid within two days- salary was not paid on which workers went on strike but prohibitory orders were imposed under Section 144 of Cr.P.C and to shield the contractors- respondents denied that there was violation of any labour law- a conciliation meeting was fixed but the workers went on strike- held, that members of the petitioner's Union are industrial workers - going on strike is recognized form of expression- however, strikers must obey civilized norms and not be vulgar or violent hoodlums- right to strike is not absolute- workmen cannot be permitted to take law into their own hands- demand charter was under consideration and a meeting was fixed- there was no occasion for the members of the petitioner Union to have illegally gone on strike- this only shows that they have no or scant respect for rule of law- hence, strike of petitioner is declared illegal- however, direction issued to comply with various labour laws and safety measures. For the Petitioner:	Mr. Sanjeev Bhushan, Senior Advocate, with Mr.Dalip Kaith, Advocate.

For the Respondents:	Mr.Anup Rattan,Mr.Romesh Verma, Mr.Varun Chandel, Additional Advocate Generals and Mr.Kush Sharma, Deputy Advocate General, for respondents No. 1, 4 and 7.
	Mr.Satyen Vaidya, Senior Advocate with Mr. Vivek Sharma, Advocate, for respondents No. 2 and 3.
	Mr.Rajiv Jiwan, Advocate, for respondent No. 5.
	Mr.R.K. Bawa, Senior Advocate with Mr.Amit Dhumal, Advocate, for respondent No. 6.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Tarlok Singh Chauhan, Judge

The Workers' Union of Shongtong Karcham Hydel Project is aggrieved by the action/inaction on the part of the respondents and has filed the instant writ petition claiming therein the following reliefs:-

"i) That the respondents may very kindly be directed that all the mandatory provision of the various Acts as mentioned in the body of the writ petition may very kindly be ordered to be implemented with further directions that benefits arising out of these Acts may very kindly be ordered to be paid to the members of the petitioner Union, with interest @ 9% p.a.

ii) That the respondents may very kindly be directed to get the decision of conciliation meeting held on 15.3.2015 annexure P-3 implemented with further directions to pay wages to the members of the petitioner union for the months of December 2015, January 2016, February 2016 and March, 2016 immediately.

iii) That the respondents may very kindly be directed to intervene and conduct conciliation meeting and resolve the problems by implementing all statutory norms, in the interest of justice and fair play.

iv) That the notification annexure P-4 imposing prohibitory orders under Section 144 Cr.P.C. dated 18.3.2016, may kindly be quashed and set aside."

2. It is averred that respondent No. 2, i.e. Himachal Pradesh Power Corporation Limited (for short HPCL) is setting up a 450 MW Hydro Electric project at Powari and most of the construction related activities have been allotted to respondent No. 6, i.e. Patel Engineering Limited, who in turn has further engaged various contractors to execute the work. However, the principal employer for all intends and purposes is still respondent No. 2. It is averred that there has been flagrant violation of the various labour laws, as a result whereof there is complete unrest amongst the workers, who are not even getting their dues and have not been paid the salary for the months of December, 2015, January, 2016 and February, 2016, which constrained them to submit a demand charter to the employer on 14.3.2016 with copies to the labour Officer-cum-Conciliation Officer, as also to respondent No. 5, i.e. Regional Provident Fund Commissioner. On submission of demand charter, Labour Officer cum-Conciliation Officer arranged a meeting of all concerned on 15.3.2016, in which it was agreed that the arrears of salary of the workmen will be paid within two days and for rest of the demands a meeting was to be held on 17.3.2016. The respondents did not pay the salary to the workers within the stipulated time nor was the further conciliation meeting convened, which constrained the workers to proceed on strike w.e.f. 17.3.2016. It is averred that such situation was forced and created because of the callous attitude of the respondents, who even thereafter instead of convening meeting for redressing the problem of the workers, resorted to oppressive methods, as is evident from the fact that respondent No. 7, i.e. Deputy Commissioner, Kinnaur immediately imposed prohibition orders under Section 144 Cr.P.C. and tried to shield the contractors and other respondents. The petitioner Union made various representations, but to no avail, constraining the Union to file the instant petition.

3. Respondent No. 1 i.e. Secretary MPP & P has not chosen to file reply. Respondents No. 2 and 3 have in their joint reply raised preliminary objections regarding the maintainability of this petition on the ground that the allegations contained therein are totally misplaced and wrong. It is averred that there is no violation of any of the labour laws and further averred that the wages and facilities as per the provisions of the relevant labour laws are required to be provided to the workers by respondent No. 6 at its own. Whereas, the replying respondents have only to release the payment to the contractor after the requisite milestone as laid down under the contract agreement is achieved by it. It is further averred that till 15.3.2016 payments in the sum of Rs.1,62,14,68,537/- has been made to respondent No. 6 and in addition to that a further payment of Rs.25 Crore has been made to respondent on 17.5.2016. It is also averred that the petitioner union has illegally sought support from outsiders, particularly some of the Trade Unions rather than reposing confidence in rule of law and have not only gone on illegal strike, but have resorted to violence. The illegal, wrongful and unruly acts on the part of the members of the petitioner Union have paralyzed the entire work and caused unnecessary delay in the execution of the project which is detrimental to larger public interest. It is averred that due to the delay the State exchequer is losing about approximately Rs.2 Crore per day and the entire project is being held to ransom. It is also averred that the acts on the part of the members of the petitioner union show that they have no respect for the rule of law. Instead of resorting to legal remedies, they have illegally resorted to strike.

4. The Labour Commissioner, who has been arrayed as respondent No. 4 filed his reply, wherein it has been stated that the replying respondent through its functionaries has been persistently taking necessary action against the contractor and its sub contractors for violation of labour laws and in this regard even prosecution cases have been filed before the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kinnaur at Rekong Peo from time to time. It is on account of constant and continued intervention that unpaid wages to some of the workers due up to February, 2016 have been paid during the months of March/April, 2016. It is then averred that the petitioner Union had submitted their demand charter on 14.3.2016 and vide letter dated 15.3.2016, respondents No. 2 and 6 were asked to submit their replies. Thereafter in order to settle the issue, respondent No. 4 had fixed a conciliation meeting on 17.3.2016 at 2:00 P.M. in his office however, the workers (approximately 450) went on strike w.e.f. 14.3.2016 itself at about 4:00 P.M. under the banner of CITU (Center of Indian Trade Union). That apart, a meeting was convened by the Deputy Commissioner, Kinnaur on 17.3.2016 and a settlement was arrived at. It is averred that the representatives of the petitioner Union were not present in this meeting and again went on strike on 17.3.2016. The strike continued from 17.3.2016 onwards and thereafter conciliation meeting vide notice dated 25.4.2016, was fixed on 27.4.2016, which was attended to by all the parties, but despite best efforts no settlement could be arrived at. Therefore, the Joint Labour Commissioner was specifically deputed to Rekong Peo to hold conciliation meeting, so as to resolve the matter. Such meeting was held in the office of Deputy Commissioner, Kinnaur on 29.4.2016, which was attended to by the representatives of respondent No. 2 and petitioner Union, but the same was not attended to by respondent No. 6 and therefore, no conciliation could be effected. It is thereafter averred that taking into consideration the report, all the issues raised in the demand notice and other issues, which have arisen thereafter have been referred for adjudication to the Labour Court cum Industrial Tribunal vide notification dated 6.5.2016.

5. Respondent No. 5, Regional Provident Fund Commissioner in its reply averred that despite repeated requests respondent No. 6 has failed to produce the records so as to enable it to verify the claims regarding payment of Provident Fund, constraining it to launch prosecution against the establishment of respondent No. 6 and others on 8.6.2016.

6. Respondent No. 6 in its reply averred that the wages to the workers for the period from December, 2015 to January, 2016 already stand paid. It is further averred that though a meeting was held with the representatives of the petitioner Union on 15.3.2016, but no conclusion was arrived at in the said meeting. However, the grievance of the petitioner thereafter has been resolved in the proceedings held with the Deputy Commissioner on 17.3.2016, but despite this the petitioner has illegally proceeded on strike on 17.3.2016. Not only this, the members of the petitioner Union have thereafter resorted to rampage causing damage worth crores of rupees to the machinery and equipments of the replying respondent, constraining it to lodge various FIRs (36 in number) against such workers. Not only this, the members of the petitioner Union, are indulging in illegal acts of instigating other workers to stop work and go on strike and even tried to compel the replying respondent to take back those workmen, who have resorted to rampage and large scale damage and destruction to public property, which in fact compelled the authorities to pass prohibitory orders under Section 144 Cr.P.C.

We have heard the learned counsel for the parties and have also gone through the records of the case.

7. The demand charter submitted by the petitioner Union is with regard to the violation of the provisions of the various labour laws and in particular:

(i) The Contract Labour (Regulation and Abolition) Act, 1970 and Rules made there under;

(ii) Minimum Wages Act, 1948;

(iii) Payment of Wages Act;

(iv) Employees Provident Fund Act;

(v) Registration under Building and other Construction Workers (Registration of Employment and Condition of Service) Act, 1996.

In addition thereto relates to following safety measures.

(i) Employees compensation;

(ii) Leave;

(iii) Uniform;

(iv) Bonus; and

(v) Illegal retrenchment.

8. It appears that some of the issues had been agreed to be settled in the minutes of meeting held on 17th March, 2016, which reads thus:-

"THAT ON DATED 17TH MARCH, 2016 MEETING WAS HELD UNDER THE CHAIRMANSHIP OF DEPUTY COMMISSIONER, KINNAUR IN HIS OFFICE BETWEEN THE H.P. POWER CORPORATION, PATEL ENGINEERING, HEP WORKERS' UNION REGARDING TO SETTLE THE ISSUE UNDER THE PROVISIONS AND IMPLEMENTATION OF THE LABOUR LAWS.

1. On 10th March, 2016, a meeting was held between the ShonGthong Workers' Union and Sub Contractors of the Patel Engineering in which it was resolved that all sub contractors of the Patel Engineering HEP shall disburse the wages within the stipulated period as per provisions of the law be paid in the front of the Chief appointed subordinate official of HPPCL, and Patel Engineering. Payment will be started from 1st March, 2016 as per Minimum Wages Act.

The payment of those employees' who have not been disbursed by the sub-contractors, the payment of the previous month i.e. February, 2016 shall disburse the wages within a week and photocopy of the same is may be forwarded to the Labour Officer, Kinnaur at Reckong Peo.

2. That the payment of the wages will be paid all the workers under minimum Labour Act, 1948 and regularly will be paid the overtime.

3. That the identity card, salary receipt and attendance card will be given to all the workers.

4. That the provident funds of all the employees will be deducted under the Provident Funds Act, 1952 and receipt thereof will also be given to the workers.

5. That as per the agreement between the Patel Shongthong Karcham HEP and Worker's Union (INTUC) the bonus, leave encashment and daily wages to the tune of 15% shall be given to the workers. Beside those contract employees who resides in their own residences shall be given HRA and canteen allowances.

6. That the tunnel allowance shall be given as per rule to the employees working in the tunnel.

7. That the basic facilities i.e. rest room, sanitation, drinking water and safety equipment etc. shall be provided to all the workers in their working places.

8. That workers shall not be thrown out of job without any valid reasons and provisions of law.

9. All the skilled workers shall be registered in Building and other Construction Welfare Boards under the Building and other Constructions Act, 1996 and all the facilities given by Board shall be extended to the workers."

9. When the matter came up before this Court on 28.6.2016, a request was made on behalf of the petitioner that the Deputy Commissioner, Kinnaur be directed to have a dialogue with the petitioner and the respondents for an amicable settlement and accordingly a direction was issued to the Deputy Commissioner to try and resolve the issue.

10. In compliance to this direction, Deputy Commissioner has filed his affidavit/status report, wherein it is stated that a meeting of all the stake holders was convened on 8.7.2016 and as per the demands of the petitioner Union, all their demands, except Item No. 12, which relates to illegal retrenchment, have been accepted by the representatives of respondent No. 6. It is further averred that respondent No. 6 undertook to pay all the dues to the labourers including ones who had gone on strike and further undertook to give the benefits like leave, uniform, employees' compensation as well as safety measures. As per the amicable settlement it had been pointed out by the representatives of respondent No. 6 that 283 labourers were working with it, out of which 108 labourers have been issued show cause notices on account of their having resorted to illegal strike and whereas criminal cases have been registered against 36 labourers. Respondent No. 6 was asked to reinstate the services of all the labourers, but it denied to reinstate the services of the labourers due to the matter being subjudice before this Court. It is lastly averred that though the Deputy Commissioner had made all sincere efforts and had given three more opportunities to settle the issue, but despite that the petitioner Union again and again reiterated that the strike would be continued until and unless the terminated labourers are not reinstated.

11. There can be no manner of doubt that the members of the petitioner Union are industrial workers covered by the provisions of Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, Industrial Employees Standing Orders, 1946, Trade Union Act, 1926 and host of other legislations. Going on strike is also one of the modes of recognized form of expression. However, the strikers must obey civilized norms in the battle and not be vulgar or violent hoodlums.

12. This was so held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Gujarat Steel Tubes Ltd. and others Vs. Gujarat Steel Tubes Mazdoor Sabha and others (1980) 2 SCC 593 and the relevant observations reads thus:-

> "129. A selective study of the case-law is proper at this place. Before we do this, a few words on the basis of the right to strike and progressive legal thinking led by constitutional guidelines is necessitous. The right to union, the right to strike as part of collective bargaining and, subject to the legality and humanity of the situation, the right of the weaker group, viz., labour, to pressure the stronger party viz., capital, to negotiate and render justice, are processes recognised by industrial jurisprudence and supported by Social Justice. While society itself, in its basic needs of existence, may not be held to ransom in the name of the right to bargain and strikers must obey civilized norms in the battle and not be vulgar or violent hoodlums, industry, represented by intransigent managements, may well be made to reel into reason by the strike weapon and cannot then sequeal or well and complain of loss of profits or other ill-effects but must negotiate or get a reference made. The broad basis is that workers are weaker although they are the producers and their struggle to better their lot has the sanction of the rule of law. Unions and strikers are no more conspiracies then professions and political parties are, and being for weaker, need succour. Part IV of the Constitution, read with Article 19 sows the need of this burgeoning jurisprudence. The Gandhian quote at the beginning of this judgment sets the tone of economic equity in industry. Of course, adventuriet, extremist, extraneously inspired and puerile strike, absurdly insan persistence and violent or scorched earth policies boomerang and are snathema for the law. Within the parameters to the right to strike is integral to collective bargaining."

13. That apart, the right to strike is not absolute under the Industrial jurisprudence and restrictions have been placed on it, by virtue of Sections 10(3), 10-A(4-A), 22, 23 and 24 of the Act, as was observed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in B.R. Singh Vs. Union of India (1989) 4 SCC 710 in the following terms:-

> "15. Counsel for TFAI also strongly contended that since the strike was illegal, the workers are not entitled to any relief. We see no merit in this submission. The right to form associations or unions is a fundamental right under Article 19(l)(c) of the Constitution. Section 8 of the Trade Unions Act provides for registration of a trade union if all the requirements of the said enactment are fulfilled. The right to form associations and unions and provide for their registration was recognized obviously for conferring certain rights on trade unions. The necessity to form unions is obviously for voicing the demands and grievances of labour. Trade unionists act as mouthpieces of labour. The strength of a trade union depends on its membership. Therefore, trade unions with sufficient membership strength are able to bargain more effectively with the managements. This bargaining power would be considerably reduced if it is not permitted to demonstrate. Strike in a given situation is only a form of demonstration. There are different modes of demonstrations, e.g., go-slow, sit-in, work-to-rule, absenteeism, etc., and strike is one such mode of demonstration by workers for their rights. The right to demonstrate and, therefore, the right to strike is an important weapon in the armoury of the workers. This right has been recognised by almost all democratic countries. Though not raised to the high pedestal of a fundamental right, it is recognised as a mode of redress for resolving the grievances of workers. But the right to strike is not absolute under our industrial jurisprudence and restrictions have been placed on it. These are to be found in Sections 10(3), 10-A(4-A), 22 and 23 of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 ("ID Act" for short). Section 10(3) empowers the appropriate government to prohibit the continuance of a strike if it is in connection with a dispute referred to one of the fora created under the said statute. Section 10-A(4-A) confers similar power on the appropriate government where the industrial dispute which is the cause of the strike is referred to arbitration and a notification in that behalf is issued under Section 10-A(3-A). These two provisions have no application to the present case since it is nobodys contention that the Unions demands have been referred to any forum under the statute." (Emphasis added)

14. Thus it is established that right of strike as part of collective bargaining is recognized in law only so long as it is peaceful. There is no scope for violence. Workmen cannot be permitted to take law into their own hands. The striking employees/workmen etc. must obey the civilized norms in the battle, desist from using vulgar and intimidating language; indulge in violent acts or acts which may subversive to the discipline of the industrial undertaking/company etc.

15. It is equally settled that the right to freedom of speech and expression is guaranteed under the Constitution of India, but the same is subject to reasonable restrictions as enshrined under Article 19 of the Constitution of India. The Trade Unions or their office bearers can resort to demonstration/dharna but that would be subject to the law of land. The same can be carried out only in a peaceful manner and not in a manner that would stop the working of the management. The management has every right to ensure that its working is not obstructed. Therefore, a balance necessarily has to be struck between the competing interests and to ensure that the work of the management is not disturbed and at the same time workmen can also continue with their activities in a peaceful manner.

16. The workmen may resort to peaceful picketing i.e. marching to and from before the premises of an establishment. This may be accompanied by carrying and display of sign boards, placards or banners bearing decent statements of the dispute or in connection with the dispute. They may also request politely the other non-striking employees not to assist in the running of the project/business and ask the customers not to patronize such establishment. Such acts would constitute peaceful picketing and are protected under Section 18 of the Trade Unions Act. These demonstrations may cause inconvenience and embarrassment to the employer/management and may be initiated to bring pressure on the management to concede to the workmen's demands.

17. However, as observed earlier, such demonstration is only protected so long as it is peaceful and does not turn violent. The striking employees/workmen cannot obstruct the ingress and egress of the employer/management to their business premises and the employer/management are also entitled to protection if there is imminent danger to their life and property. If picketing ceases to be peaceful or becomes a nuisance or endangers public peace etc., it ceases to be lawful.

18. In Chandrana Brothers and others versus K.Venkata Rao and others (1976) 1 KLJ 245, the Hon'ble Kerala High Court has expressed the law lucidly and incisively and it is apt to reproduce paras 18 and 19 of the judgment which read thus:-

> "18. The principles which are relevant for the purpose of the present case as can be gathered from the above may be now summarised. A demonstration by the employees is protected under Article 19 of the Constitution of India provided it is peaceful and orderly. Such a demonstration is, therefore protected even apart from Section 18 of the Trade Unions Act, 1926. Section 18 does not afford immunity for an act of deliberate trespass. The members of a trade union may resort to a peaceful agitation by gathering together either outside the industrial establishment or inside within the working hour. provided it is peaceful and no violence, intimidation or molestation is involved and there is no violation of the provisions of law. An act in contemplation or in furtherance of a trade dispute which induces breach of contract on other employees or causes interference with trade, business or employment of some other to dispose of his capital or labour as he wills would not be actionable, but such inducement or interference must be by lawful means and not by means which would be illegal or wrongful. The display of posters within or outside the place of business is permissible. The workers are entitled to the protection of Section 18 of the Trade Unions Act even if the strike is illegal under Section 24(l) of the Industrial Disputes Act.
> 19. The workers may resort to peaceful picketing i.e., the marching to and fro before the premises of an establishment. They may be accompanied by the carrying and display of sign boards, placards or banners bearing statements in connection with the dispute. They may also request politely the employees not to assist in the running of the business and ask the customers not to patronise that establishment. Such acts would constitute peaceful picketing and are protected under Section 18. The demonstration may cause inconvenience and embarrassment to the employer. It may be intended to bring pressure on the management to concede to the workers' demands. But such demonstration is protected so long as it is peaceful and does not turn violent. The employer can claim that the ingress and egress to their business premises should be protected from obstruction. He is also entitled to protection if there is imminent danger to life or property. If the picketing ceased to be peaceful or becomes a nuisance or endangers public peace, it ceases to be lawful. If the picketing is carried out in such principles or in such manner as is likely to intimidate or to obstruct or molest the employees or molest the employees or customers against their will, it would be unlawful. Any show or threat of violence or any other unlawful threat likely to create fear in the mind of a reasonable man will render picketing unlawful. Pickets are not entitled to compel people to listen to them or to obstruct deliberately standing in their way or catching hold of their arms, they are also not entitled to obstruct passage of vehicles by lying down in the high-way in front of them or otherwise blocking the high-way. They are not entitled to pester those persons who do not wish to listen to them, and who have requested them to desist. Right to picket is a very tangible one which is closely limited by the equal right of others to go about their lawful affairs free from objection, molestation or intimidation. The methods of persuasion are limited to oral and visual methods i.e., the use of the voice and the exhibition of placards and should not be extended to physical obstruction of a vehicle or a person which would be illegal. Each case must depend very largely upon its attendings facts and circumstances as to whether or not particular acts complained of are protected under Section 18 or not. When persons are combining and conspiring together and adopt means calculated to intimidate or to coerce the employees or those who wish to become employees from remaining in or entering his employ, or to prevent employers customers or others who wish to* have dealings with him from so doing by means of force, threats, intimidation or violence resulting in serious injuries to plaintiff's business, then such acts would not be protected."

19. Adverting to the facts we notice that the members of petitioner Union had on a drop of hat called a strike on 15.3.2016. We observe so, because once the demand charter of the petitioner Union was under consideration and a meeting had already been fixed on 15.3.2016, then there was no occasion for the members of the petitioner Union to have illegally gone on strike. Not only this, there further action in continuing with the strike with illegal support from the outsiders, particularly some of the trade Unions and thereafter going on rampage, is not only illegal, but reprehensible. The illegal, wrong and unruly acts on the part of some of the members of petitioner Union cannot be countenanced, whereby they have paralyzed the entire work and held the entire project to ransom and caused unnecessary delay in the execution of the project of national importance, which is detrimental to the larger public interest. This only goes to show that they have no or scant respect for the rule of law or else they would have taken resort to legal remedy.

20. That apart, the aforesaid members of petitioner Union have indulged in illegal acts of instigating other workers to stop or desist from work and go on strike and have tried to compel the respondents by adopting hand twisting tactics to take back those workmen, who have resorted to rampage and large scale damage and destruction to public property.

21. In such circumstances, we have no hesitation to conclude that even if some of the demands of the petitioner Union were genuine, the mode and manner of protest adopted and resorted to by the members of the petitioner Union is totally illegal. They had no right to obstruct the ingress and egress of the respondents or indulge in large scale violence and destroy public property. The members of the petitioner Union cannot compel respondent No. 6 to take back the workers who are persona-non-grata and more particularly when their cases are subjudice before the competent Court/authority. Accordingly, the strike of the petitioner is declared illegal.

22. It is then vehemently argued by Mr.Sanjeev Bhushan, Senior Advocate, assisted by Mr.Dalip Kaith, Advocate that the respondents be directed to at least implement the various labour legislations, as mentioned in the body of the petition and also ensure that the respondents follow the safety measures.

23. We find substance in this submission, because the respondents are duty bound and obliged to follow the mandate of the labour laws, which are enacted for the benefits of the workmen.

24. In fact, the provisions of the labour laws, particularly Industrial Disputes Act was brought on the statute book with the object to ensure social justice to both the employers and employees arid advance the progress of industry by bringing about the existence of harmony and cordial relationship between the parties. This was so observed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Ajaib Singh versus Sirhind Cooperative Marketing-cum-Processing Service Society Limited and another (1999) 6 SCC 82, which read thus:-

"5. Before appreciating the rival contentions urged on behalf of the parties, it has to be noticed as to under what circumstances the act was enacted and what was the objectives sought to be achieved by its legislation. If cannot be disputed that the act was brought on the statute book with the object to ensure social justice to both the employers and employees arid advance the progress of industry by bringing about the existence of harmony and cordial relationship between the patties. It is a piece of legislation providing and regulating the service conditions of the workers. The object of the Act is to improve the service conditions of industrial labour so as to provide for them the ordinary amenities of life and by the process, to bring about industrial peace which would in its turn accelerate productive activity of the country resulting in its prosperity. The prosperity of the country in its turn, helps to improve the conditions of labour (Hindustan Antibiotics Ltd v. The Workman, AIR (1967) SC 948). The Act is intended not only to make provision for investigation and settlement of industrial disputes but also to serve industrial peace so that it may result in more production and improve the national economy. In the present sociopolitical economic system, it is intended to achieve co-operation between the capital and labour which has been deemed to be essential for maintenance of increased production and industrial peace. The Act provides to ensure fair terms to workman and to prevent disputes between the employer and the employees so that the large interests of the public may not suffer. The provisions of the Act have to be interpreted in a manner which advances the object of the Legislature contemplated in the statement of objects and reasons. While interpreting different provisions of the Act attempt should be made to avoid industrial un-rest, secure industrial peace and to provide machinery to secure the end. Conciliation is most important and desirable way to secure that end. In dealing with industrial disputes, the courts have always, emphasized doctrine of social justice, which is founded on basic ideal of socio-economic equality as enshrined in the Preamble of bur Constitution. While construing the provisions of the Act, the Courts have to give them a construction which should help in achieving the object of the Act."

25. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in The Workmen of Bhurkunda Colliery of M/s Central Coalfields Ltd. v. The Management of Bhurkunda Colliery of M/s Central Coalfields Ltd., (2006) 3 SCC 297 held as under:-

"The main object of enacting Industrial and Labour laws is to ensure peace and harmony between the employers and the employees in the larger interest of the society."

"The industrial growth leading to economic prosperity largely depends on happy and healthy relationship between employers and employees."

"It is also our bounded duty to give expression to the legislative intention for creating a healthy environment leading to proper understanding and cooperation and in true sense a partnership between the employers and the employees in cases of industrial disputes."

"The interests of the employees which have received constitutional guarantees under the Directive Principles, the interests of the employers which have received a guarantee under Article 19 and other Articles of Part III, and the interests of the community at large which are so important in a Welfare State. It is on these lines that industrial jurisprudence has developed during the last few decades in our country."

"Both employers and employees have their respective obligations. They must have the appreciation of each other's responsibilities, duties and obligations. The Trade Union and Labour Union should understand and appreciate the fact that Labour is not a commodity nor is it a mere supply of Labour force at the management's disposal. Essentially, Labour is the real basis that underlines the production of goods and services. Through the work should the human personality and its sense of responsibility be able to unfold, management should appreciate this and always attribute its success to the trained and effective labour force. It must be understood by all concerns that both the employees and employers are vital for any industry and unless there is proper coordination, a smooth functioning of any industry would be difficult."

26. Adverting to the facts, we may notice that, as regards, the prayer made for payment of wages to the members for the period December, 2015 to March, 2015, the same already stands paid.

27. It has also come on record that even earlier the members of the petitioner Union were constrained to proceed on strike only because respondent No. 6 and respondents No. 2 and

3 had not been scrupulously following the various provisions of the labour legislations meant for the benefit of workmen. In addition to that even the safety measures were not in place. No doubt, this could not have been an excuse for the workmen to have proceeded on a strike and resorted to vandalism, but at the same time, this incident in itself does not in any manner give respondents an upper hand, so as to disobey and violate the mandate of law.

28. Apart from the above, we are also of the considered view that only because of misdemeanor on part of some of the members/representatives of the petitioner Union, the same cannot be used as a hand twisting tactics by the respondents for denying the benefits of various labour laws legislations enacted for their benefits. The entire body of the workmen cannot be driven against the wall and compelled to enter into litigation, which obviously to the knowledge of the respondents is a highly time consuming process. The respondents in this way cannot surmount illegal pressure upon the workmen to accept their dictates and terms by creating compelling circumstances.

29. However, at the same time, it does not mean that respondent No. 6 can be compelled to take back in service even those workmen, who according to it are persona-non-grata and those workmen who according to it have actively indulged in disrupting the smooth functioning of the project and destroyed its properties.

30. Now coming to the question of prohibitory orders issued under Section 144 Cr.P.C., we may notice that the initial prohibitory order was issued by the District Magistrate on 18.3.2016 and on completion of statutory period of two months, fresh notifications have been issued by the State Government from time to time and the maximum period of six months is going to expire on 18.9.2016 and therefore, this question need not to be gone into, as it has with efflux of time been rendered academic.

31. In view of the aforesaid discussion, we are of the considered view that the following directions shall subserve the interest of justice.

(i) The petitioner Union shall forthwith call of their strike.

(ii) Respondents No. 2, 3 and 6 would ensure that the benefits of various labour law legislations and safety measures detailed in para 7 (supra) including payment of P.F. are extended and made available within a period of three months from today.

The petition is disposed of in the aforesaid terms, leaving the parties to bear their costs.

Cases referred:

Vijay Thakur Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh, (2014) 14 Supreme Court Cases 609

Sangili alias Sanganathan Vs. State of Tamil Nadu, (2014) 10 Supreme Court Cases 264

For the appellant: Mr. V.S. Chauhan, Addl. A.G., Mr. Vikram Thakur and Mr. Puneet Rajta, Dy. A.Gs.

For the respondent: Ms. Anjali Soni Verma, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Ajay Mohan Goel, J. :

By way of the present appeal, State has challenged the judgment passed by the Court of learned Additional Sessions Judge (II), Kangra at Dharamshala in Sessions Trial No. 29/2011 dated 24.09.2011 vide which, learned trial Court has acquitted the accused for commission of offence punishable under Section 304 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code.

2. The case of the prosecution, in brief, was that on 19.10.2009, husband of the complainant had gone to Palampur Bazaar at around 10:00 a.m., but he did not return back in the evening. Complainant Poonam tried to contact her husband Rajinder on his mobile, but the phone of Rajinder was switched off. In these circumstances, she apprised her mother-in-law of the said facts and her mother-in-law lodged missing report of Rajinder at Police Station, Palampur on 20.10.2009. Further as per the prosecution, on 22.10.2009, one Santosh Kumar found the dead body of Rajinder near Neugal Khad bridge. The dead body was identified by the brother of the deceased. At the instance of Poonam, wife of the deceased, FIR was registered wherein she alleged that on 19.10.2009 in the evening, her husband had gone with accused Raj Kumar and Sadhu Ram towards Bundla in the vehicle of Ramjan Mohammad and near Kandi bridge, her husband had consumed liquor with Raj Kumr and Sadhu and at that moment, quarrel took place between deceased Rajinder and the accused regarding payment of some money and accused pushed the deceased in the Nallah, as a result of which Rajinder expired. The body of the deceased was sent for post mortem and on the basis of the FIR so lodged, investigation was carried out by the police. Investigation revealed that on 19.10.2009, during day time, accused Raju, Sadhu as well as deceased had gone to the shop of Raj Kumar, son of Rattan Chand, who had seen all of them together at Palampur Bazaar in the afternoon of 19.10.2009. Police visited the spot and prepared the spot map also and from the spot, chappal of the deceased alongwith five glasses, empty packet of namkeen were also recovered. Statement of Ramjan Mohammad was recorded before learned Judicial Magistrate 1st Class, Palampur under Section 164 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The print out of the telephone calls of the deceased was obtained. After completion of the investigation, challan was filed in the Court and as a prima facie case was found against the accused, accordingly they were charged for commission of offence punishable under Section 304 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code, to which they pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

3. On the basis of material produced on record both ocular as well as documentary by the prosecution, learned trial Court concluded that the evidence produced on record by the prosecution was not specific to connect the accused with the commission of offence. It further held that the testimony of the complainant was not free from reasonable doubts and there were material improvements in her statement. It was further held by learned trial Court that there was no direct or circumstantial evidence against the accused and accordingly, accused could not be held liable for commission of offence on the basis of last seen theory. On these basis, learned trial Court acquitted the accused for commission of offence punishable under Section 304 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code.

4. Mr. V.S. Chauhan, learned Additional Advocate General vehemently argued that the judgment of acquittal passed by learned trial Court was not sustainable in law as learned trial Court while acquitting the accused erred in not appreciating that the prosecution had placed sufficient material on record to prove the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt. Mr. Chauhan further argued that learned trial Court had erred in not believing the cogent and reliable testimony of the prosecution witnesses on material points. According to Mr. Chauhan, the testimony of the prosecution witnesses was disbelieved by learned trial Court on whimsical grounds without appreciating that the testimony of the said witnesses besides being cogent and reliable was also truthful. Mr. Chauhan further argued that learned trial Court failed to appreciate the prosecution evidence in right perspective and mislead itself by placing reliance on irrelevant material and by ignoring the testimony of Dr. Harjeet Pal Singh, who entered the witness box as PW-9. Accordingly, on these basis, it was urged by Mr. Chauhan that the judgment of acquittal passed by learned Court below was not sustainable and the same be set aside and accused be punished for the commission of offence punishable under Section 304 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code.

5. Ms. Anjali Soni Verma, learned counsel for the respondent, on the other hand, argued that the judgment of acquittal passed by learned trial Court did not want any interference because the conclusions arrived at by learned trial Court were duly borne out from the records of the case. Ms. Verma further argued that the prosecution had miserably failed to link the accused with the commission of offence and accordingly, no perversity or illegality was committed by the learned trial Court in acquitting the accused for commission of offence for which they were charged. Ms. Verma further argued that neither the guilt of the accused was proved beyond reasonable doubt by the prosecution nor it stood established on the basis of material on record that the accused had committed any offence for which they were charged. According to Ms. Verma, the accused were falsely implicated in the matter and learned trial Court had rightly acquitted them. Thus, Ms. Verma prayed that as there was no merit in the appeal, the same be dismissed.

6. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties and also gone through the records of the case as well as the judgment passed by learned trial Court.

7. Before we proceed further, it is relevant to take note of the fact that in the present case, there is no eye witness. No one has actually seen the commission of the offence with which the accused were charged. This is a case of circumstantial evidence. During the course of arguments, learned Additional Advocate General has culled out the following circumstances connecting the accused with the commission of the offence:

"1. Last seen together

2. Recovery of dead body

3. Motive

4. Mobile calls

8. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Vijay Thakur Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh, (2014) 14 Supreme Court Cases 609 has held on circumstantial evidence:

"18. It is to be emphasized at this stage that except the so-called recoveries, there is no other circumstances worth the name which has been proved against these two appellants. It is a case of blind murder. There are no eyewitnesses. Conviction is based on the circumstantial evidence. In such a case, complete chain of events has to be established pointing out the culpability of the accused person. The chain should be such that no other conclusion, except the guilt of the accused person, is discernible without any doubt. Insofar as these two appellants are concerned, there is no circumstance attributed except that they were with Rajinder

Thakur till Sainj and the alleged disclosure leading to recoveries, which appears to be doubtful. When we look into all these facts in entirety in the aforesaid context, we find that not only the chain of events is incomplete, it becomes somewhat difficult to convict the appellant only on the basis of the aforesaid recoveries.

19. In Mani v. State of Tamil Nadu, (2008) 1 SCR 228, this Court made following pertinent observation on this very aspect:

> "26. The discovery is a weak kind of evidence and cannot be wholly relied upon on and conviction in such a serious matter cannot be based upon the discovery. Once the discovery fails, there would be literally nothing which would support the prosecution case...."

20. There is a reiteration of the same sentiment in Manthuri Laxmi Narsaiah v. State of Andhra Pradesh, (2011) 14 SCC 117 in the following manner:

> "6. It is by now well settled that in a case relating to circumstantial evidence the chain of circumstances has to be spelt out by the prosecution and if even one link in the chain is broken the accused must get the benefit thereof. We are of the opinion that the present is in fact a case of no evidence."

21. Likewise, in Mustkeem alias Sirajudeen v. State of Rajasthan, (2011) 11 SCC 724, this Court observed as under:

> "24. In a most celebrated case of this Court, Sharad Birdhichand Sarda v. State of Maharashtra, (1984) 4 SCC 116, in para 153, some cardinal principles regarding the appreciation of circumstantial evidence have been postulated. Whenever the case is based on circumstantial evidence the following features are required to be complied with. It would be beneficial to repeat the same salient features once again which are as under: (SCC p.185) "(i) The circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn must or should be and not merely 'may be' fully established;

(ii) The facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty;

(iii) The circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency;

(iv) They should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved; and

(v) There must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused."

> 25. With regard to Section 27 of the Act, what is important is discovery of the material object at the disclosure of the accused but such disclosure alone would not automatically lead to the conclusion that the offence was also committed by the accused. In fact, thereafter, burden lies on the prosecution to establish a close link between discovery of the material object and its use in the commission of the offence. What is admissible under Section 27 of the Act is the information leading to discovery and not any opinion formed on it by the prosecution."

It is settled position of law that suspicion, however strong, cannot take the character of proof.

22. We, therefore, have no hesitation in allowing these appeals and setting aside the conviction and sentence of the two appellants under Section 302 read with Section 34 of the Penal Code. We order accordingly. The appellants are directed to be released from jail forthwith, if not required in any other case."

9. Thus, the salient points which have been carved out by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in a case of circumstantial evidence, on the basis of which the guilt of the accused can be brought home are as under:

"(i) The circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn must or should be and not merely 'may be' fully established;

(ii) The facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty;

(iii) The circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency;

(iv) They should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved; and

(v) Thee must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused."

10. Further, Hon'ble Supreme Court in Sangili alias Sanganathan Vs. State of Tamil Nadu, (2014) 10 Supreme Court Cases 264 has held:

"15. To sum up what is discussed above, it is a case of blind murder. There are no eyewitnesses. Conviction is based on the circumstantial evidence. In such a case, complete chain of events has to be established pointing out the culpability of the accused person. The chain should be such that no other conclusion, except the guilt of the accused person, is discernible without any doubt. In the present case, we find, in the first instance, that the appellant was roped in with suspicion that it was a case of triangular love and since he also loved PW-3, he eliminated the deceased when he found that the deceased and PW-3 are in love with each other. However, we are of the view that this motive has not been proved. The evidence of last seen is also not established. Father of the deceased only said that the deceased had received a call and after receiving that call he left the house. In his deposition, he admitted that he had not seen the appellant before and he did not recognize his voice either. Therefore, he was unable to say as to whether the phone call received was that of the appellant. Proceeding further, we find that the deceased was not seen by anybody after he left the house. When we look into all these facts in entirety in the aforesaid context, we find that not only the chain of events is incomplete, it becomes somewhat difficult to convict the appellant only on the basis of the aforesaid recoveries.

16. In Mani v. State of Tamil Nadu, (2009) 17 SCC 273, this Court made following pertinent observation on this very aspect:

"26. The discovery is a weak kind of evidence and cannot be wholly relied upon and conviction in such a serious matter cannot be based upon the discovery. Once the discovery fails, there would be literally nothing which would support the prosecution case...."

There is a reiteration of the same sentiment in Manthuri Laxmi Narsaiah v. State of Andhra Pradesh, (2011) 14 SCC 117 in the following manner:

"6. It is by now well settled that in a case relating to circumstantial evidence the chain of circumstances has to be spelt out by the prosecution and if even one link in the chain is broken the accused must get the benefit thereof. We are of the opinion that the present is in fact a case of no evidence."

17. Likewise, in Mustkeem alias Sirajudeen v. State of Rajasthan, (2011) 11 SCC 724, this Court observed as under:

"24. In a most celebrated case of this Court, Sharad Birdhichand Sarda v. State of Maharashtra, (1984) 4 SCC 116, in para 153, some cardinal principles regarding the appreciation of circumstantial evidence have been postulated. Whenever the case is based on circumstantial evidence the following features are required to be complied with. It would be beneficial to repeat the same salient features once again which are as under: (SCC p.185) "(i) The circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn must or should be and not merely 'may be' fully established;

(ii) The facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty;

(iii) The circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency;

(iv) They should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved; and

(v) There must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused."

25. With regard to Section 27 of the Act, what is important is discovery of the material object at the disclosure of the accused but such disclosure alone would not automatically lead to the conclusion that the offence was also committed by the accused. In fact, thereafter, burden lies on the prosecution to establish a close link between discovery of the material object and its use in the commission of the offence. What is admissible under Section 27 of the Act is the information leading to discovery and not any opinion formed on it by the prosecution."

(emphasis supplied)

18. It is settled position of law that suspicion however strong cannot be a substitute for proof. In a case resting completely on the circumstantial evidence the chain of circumstances must be so complete that they lead only to one conclusion, that is, the guilt of the accused. In our opinion, it is not safe to record a finding of guilt of the appellant and the appellant is entitled to get the benefit of doubt. We, therefore, allow the appeal and set-aside the conviction and sentence of the appellant. The appellant be set at liberty unless required in any other case."

11. In these circumstances because it is a case of circumstantial evidence, this Court has to satisfy its judicial conscience as to whether by way of circumstantial evidence produced on record by the prosecution, it has been able to link the commission of the offence with the accused or not.

12. We will deal with each of the circumstance independently in order to satisfy ourselves as to whether the chain of circumstances as culled out by learned Additional Advocate General linked the accused with the commission of offence or not in view of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court.

1. Last seen together:

13. According to Mr. Chauhan, the factum of the deceased having been last seen together with the accused was substantiated by the testimonies of PW-5 Raj Kumar and PW-6 Ramjan Mohammad. PW-5 Raj Kumar has stated that he runs a photography shop in Palampur Bazaar and on 19.10.2009 as it was Monday, the market was closed. This witness further deposed that his house is behind his shop and on the relevant day, he was carrying out repairs of his house, therefore, half of the shutter of his shop was open. He further deposed that at around 11 a.m., Rajinder came to him and as he had kept a chair outside his shop, Rajinder sat on the same. After about 10 minutes, accused Raj Kumar also came there and thereafter, both Raj Kumar and Rajinder went away. This witness further deposed that on the same day in between 3:30 and 3:45 p.m., he again saw Raj Kumar, Rajinder and one third person, whose name was Happy standing by the side of Red Light Pole, which was about 10 meters away from his shop. Thereafter, all of them went away and at about 8:00 p.m, accused Raj Kumar came to him and asked about Rajinder. On the next morning, wife of Rajinder came to him and on her inquiry, he told her that Rajinder had not come to him during the previous night. He further deposed that after 3-4 days, he came to know that Rajinder had expired and his body was recovered from the Neugal Khad. In his cross-examination, he denied that he had told the police that dead body of Rajinder was recovered from Neugal Khad on 22.10.2009. He was confronted with his statement recorded under Section 161 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, wherein it was so recorded. He further deposed that he had disclosed to the police that on 19.10.2009 at around 11:00 a.m. both Rajinder and accused Raj Kumar had gone away together from his shop. He was again confronted with his statement recorded under Section 161 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, wherein it was not so recorded.

14. PW-6 Ramjan Mohammad deposed that on 19.10.2009, deceased and the accused came to him at around 5/5:15 p.m. and they hired his taxi up to Bundla. He also stated that before Bundla, some namkeen and glasses were purchased. He further deposed that thereafter deceased and the accused sat about 150 yards ahead of Kandi bridge. This witness further stated that thereafter, he received a phone call from the house of Shankar Bag at Palampur, who required his taxi. Thereafter, he came back by asking the deceased and the accused that they were free to contact him on his telephone. He further deposed that thereafter said persons did not call him on telephone and he came to know that deceased was missing and then he informed the police of the above facts. He further stated that he was taken to Kandi bridge by the police and in his presence, police took into possession glasses and empty packet of namkeen. He also stated that police also recovered one chappal and at that relevant time, Manohar was with them. In his cross-examination, this witness stated that it was correct to suggest that he came to know about the death of Rajinder on 22.10.2009. He also stated that he did not give any statement to the police on 22nd and 23rd October, 2009. He further mentioned that he did not notice accused consuming liquor with the deceased. He further admitted it to be correct that after he dropped the said persons ahead of Kandi bridge and came back, thereafter he was not aware as to who had gone to the spot and met the aforesaid persons.

15. In our considered view, on the basis of the testimony of the said two witnesses, the prosecution was able to establish that on 19.10.2009, the deceased was last seen with the accused ahead of Kandi bridge, where they were left by PW-6 Ramjan Mohammad in his taxi.

2. Recovery of dead body:

16. The factum of recovery of dead body has been proved on record by PW-7 Manohar Lal brother of the deceased as well as by PW-10 Smt. Poonam wife of the deceased. PW-7 Manohar Lal has deposed that on 20th October, 2009, report was lodged with police by his mother regarding the factum of deceased being missing. He further stated that on 22nd October, 2009, they recovered the dead body of his brother ahead of Kandi bridge near Neugal Khad and he identified the dead body. He further deposed that one taxi driver Ramjan Mohammad had told him that on 19.10.2009, deceased and the accused had gone to Kandi bridge in a vehicle of PW-6.

17. PW-10 Poonam deposed that on 19.10.2009, she was informed by the police that dead body of her husband was found in the bushes near Kandi bridge and thereafter she got the FIR registered in the Police Station. She further stated that during the course of investigation, police came to their house and she had gone to the house of accused Raju, who on her asking had told her that he was also searching for Rajinder as mobile phone of Rajinder was found switched off. This witness further deposed that before that on 19.10.2009 in the evening, accused Raju had come to her house to inquire whether her husband had come back or not. This witness further deposed that accused Raju had told her that he alongwith Happy and the deceased had gone to Bundla and consumed liquor and a quarrel had taken place between them and her husband regarding payment of some money and the accused had also told her that he had pushed Rajinder, as a result of which, Rajinder had fallen down and died. In her cross-examination, this witness stated that when her mother went to lodge the missing report, she did not express any suspicion over anybody. This witness further deposed that at that relevant time, they did not name Raju as accused because they were not having any knowledge. She further stated that she had not seen the accused going with her husband, however, her mother-in-law had seen so. She further stated that she visited the house of accused Raju on 20.10.2009. She admitted it to be correct that she did not disclose this fact to the police on 20.10.2009. She denied that accused had not told any of the facts to her as were narrated by her in her cross-examination.

18. It is apparent from the testimony of PW-7 and PW-10 that body of the deceased was in fact recovered from behind the bushes on 22.10.2009, but the important and relevant aspect of the matter is as to whether the prosecution was able to link the accused with the death of the deceased so as to convict them for commission of offence punishable under Section 304 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code or not. This aspect of the matter shall be dealt with by us in the subsequent part of the judgment.

3. Motive:

19. According to learned Additional Advocate General, accused were having a motive to do away with the deceased and the said motive was that there was some dispute with regard to money between accused and the deceased and in fact the accused had thrown the deceased in the Khad after quarrel broke between the accused and the deceased on the fateful day with regard to money when all of them were under the influence of liquor.

20. In our considered view, the element of there being any motive with the accused to do away with the deceased has not been substantiated at all by the prosecution. There is not even an iota of evidence on record to prove and substantiate that on account of any enmity, animosity or dispute over monetary transaction, there was disharmony between the accused and the deceased and, therefore, the accused were having some motive to do away with the deceased. Accordingly, in our considered view, this circumstance has not been proved by the prosecution against the accused.

21. It has been held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Pankaj Vs. State of Rajasthan in Criminal Appeal No. 2135 of 2009 decided on 9th September, 2016 that it is a well settled principle of law that when the genesis and manner of the incident is doubtful, the accused cannot be convicted. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has further held that when the evidence produced by the prosecution has neither quality nor credibility, it would be unsafe to rest conviction upon such evidence and in such circumstances, the appellant is entitled to the benefit of doubt. It has further been held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court that motive is not sine qua non for the conviction of the accused, however, the effect of not proving motive raises a suspicion in the mind of the Court.

22. In our considered view also, keeping in view the fact that the prosecution has miserably failed to prove that the accused had any motive to do away with the deceased, it seriously raises question mark over the credibility of the case of the prosecution.

4. Mobile calls:

23. As per learned Additional Advocate General, this circumstance stood proved by the testimony of PW-2 Vinod Kumar, PW-3 Parestha Devi, PW-4 Darshan Devi, PW-7 Manohar Lal and PW-15 Inspector Jagdish. Vinod Kumar entered the witness box as PW-2 and stated that he runs a electronic shop in main Bazaar, Palampur. This witness further stated that on 25.10.2009, he alongwith police and one lady Parestha had gone to Neugal Khad, from where one mobile phone Ex. P-12 was recovered. PW-3 Parestha Devi stated that she remained associated with police during the investigation of the case and in fact while she was collecting fuel wood in the bushes below the LIC building Palampur, she recovered one mobile phone in the bushes which she handed over to her brother Darshan. She also identified the said mobile to be Ex. P-12.

PW-4 Darshan Ram stated that on 25th police had come and taken the mobile phone and 2-3 days prior to this, his sister Parestha had given him the said mobile phone. This witness further deposed that she told him that she had recovered the mobile phone from the bushes and thereafter he had inserted his SIM in mobile and made the same functional. PW-7 Manohar Lal, brother of the deceased deposed to the effect that possession of mobile phone Ex. P-12 was taken in his presence vide recovery memo Ex. PW2/B. PW-15 Inspector Jagdish deposed that on 25.10.2009, he took into possession the mobile phone of the deceased from Parestha Devi vide recovery Memo Ex. PW2/B

24. A careful perusal of the testimony of these five witnesses though points towards the factum of the mobile phone of the deceased having been recovered from the possession of PW-4 by the prosecution, however, we fail to understand as to how on the basis of the testimony of the abovementioned witnesses any inference can be drawn that the recovery of the mobile phone of the deceased from PW-4 is a pointer that the accused had in fact pushed the deceased in the Nallah, as a result of which, he died. Therefore, in our considered view, the prosecution has not been able to prove this circumstance against the accused.

25. Therefore, according to us, the chain of circumstances enumerated above by learned Additional Advocate General does not in any manner forms a complete chain linking the accused with the commission of the alleged offence.

26. Besides this, one more very important aspect of the matter is that the testimony of the wife of the deceased, i.e. the complainant does not inspire confidence as the same neither appears to be cogent nor the same appears to be reliable. As per the case of the prosecution, deceased went missing on 19.10.2009 and report to this effect was initially lodged at Police Station, Palampur on 20.10.2009 by the mother of the deceased. FIR was lodged subsequently on 23.10.2009 on the complaint of wife of the deceased PW-10 Smt. Poonam. Smt. Poonam deposed in the Court as PW-10 that in the evening of 19.10.2009, accused Raju had come to her house and inquired about her husband. She further deposed that accused Raju had told her that he, other accused had gone to Bundla alongwith the deceased and had consumed liquor there and a quarrel took place between them with regard to payment of some money and he had pushed Rajinder, as a result of which Rajinder had fallen down and died. Incidentally, none of these facts find mentioned in the FIR Ex. PW10/A, which was registered at the behest of the complainant. As per the prosecution, earlier to that a missing person report was also lodged by the mother of the deceased which is Ex. PW7/A on 20.10.2009 at 13:35 hours. It has come on record that this missing person report was lodged by the mother of the deceased after the factum of the deceased being missing was brought to her notice by the complainant. Even in this missing person report, there is no averment to the effect that accused Raju had come to the house of the deceased on 19.10.2009 and admitted/disclosed that a quarrel had taken place between the accused and the deceased after consuming liquor and deceased had died as a result of his being pushed by accused Raju. Even otherwise, it is not understood that if the factum of accused Raju having pushed deceased Rajinder had been brought to the notice of the complainant in the evening on 19.10.2009 itself, then why neither she disclosed these facts either to her relatives or to the police and why these facts were subsequently also not disclosed by her to anyone including to police. The only inference which can be drawn in the absence of any cogent explanation coming forth from the prosecution as to why these facts were not earlier revealed by the complainant, is that the statement to this effect by PW-10 is nothing but an afterthought and a concocted version. Further, no material has been produced on record by the prosecution to corroborate this version of the complainant. In this background, the testimony of PW-10 becomes highly doubtful and the conviction of the accused cannot be based on the testimony of such witnesses. Further, a perusal of the judgment passed by learned trial Court also demonstrates that after taking into consideration the entire material produced on record by the prosecution and after discussing the same in detail, learned trial Court held that the prosecution was not able to complete chain of circumstantial evidence against the accused nor the testimony of the complainant was free from reasonable doubts and the prosecution had not been able to prove its case against the accused beyond reasonable doubts.

27. In our considered view, the findings so returned by learned trial Court are neither perverse nor it can be said that the finding of acquittal returned by learned trial Court in favour of the accused is not borne out from the records of the case. According to us also, the prosecution has not been able to establish beyond reasonable doubt that the accused were guilty of commission of offence punishable under Section 304 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code.

28. In view of above discussion, we do not find any infirmity with the judgment which has been passed by the learned trial Court acquitting the accused of the charges levelled against him. It cannot be said that the judgment passed by the learned trial Court is either perverse or that the prosecution had proved its case beyond reasonable doubt against the accused, but learned trial Court erred in acquitting him. According to us, the prosecution has not been able to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. Therefore, the judgment passed by the learned trial Court is up-held and the present appeal is accordingly dismissed being devoid of any merit.

BEFORE HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE RAJIV SHARMA, J. AND HON'BLE MR. JUSTICE SURESHWAR THAKUR, J.

State of Himachal Pradesh .....Appellant.
Versus
Umesh Singh .....Respondent.

Cr.Appeal No.207 of 2010.
Reserved on: 16.09.2016.
Date of Decision : September 20, 2016.

Indian Penal Code, 1860- Section 302 and 34- A dead body was found by the police – dead body was identified to be that of H- accused U was tried and acquitted by the trial Court- accused O absconded – held, in appeal that case of the prosecution is based upon circumstantial evidence- prosecution version that accused was last seen with the deceased had not been proved- Medical Officer admitted that injuries sustained by accused could have been possible by way of fall on an unsmooth surface- extra judicial confession stated to have been made by the accused was also not proved- trial Court had rightly acquitted the accused- appeal dismissed. (Para-9 to 13)

For the Appellant: Mr.M.A.Khan, Additional Advocate General.
For the Respondent: Mr.Ashok Tyagi, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Sureshwar Thakur, Judge

The instant appeal stands directed against the judgment of the learned Sessions Judge, Solan, Himachal Pradesh, rendered on 1.9.2009, in Sessions Trial No.20-NL/7 of 2008, whereby the learned trial Court acquitted the respondent/accused for committing offences punishable under Sections 302 read with Section 34 IPC of the Indian Penal Code.

2. The facts, relevant to adjudicate the instant appeal, are that on 13.8.2008, Inspector Madan Kant Sharma, the then SHO Police Station, Baddi after receipt of an information recorded in Daily Diary register as report No. 54 along with ASI Kalyan Singh, HC Tejender Singh, Constables Sher Singh and Desh Raj proceeded to the spot. On reaching there, they found a dead body lying in bushes in a lonely place near Truck Union Baddi. The said Inspector after getting the dead body photographed, inspected the dead body of the deceased and found the person having been killed by strangulation with cloth used as Parna. He also found the blood having been oozed out of the nose of the deceased and also found injury marks on the backside of right ear and on the private part appearing to have been caused with pointed object. The vest and pants worn by the deceased were found torn. From the dead body an identity card issued by Election Commission was recovered on the basis of which the deceased was identified to be Harish Chander son of Satya Bhan resident of House No. 152 Aipura, Tehsil Bisauli, District Badayun. Thereafter, the dead body was identified by the co-villagers of the deceased, namely, Ram Bahadur and Naresh Kumar. Rukka was sent to the police Station concerned on the basis of which, FIR stood registered.

3. On conclusion of investigations into the offences allegedly committed by the accused a report under Section 173 of the Code of Criminal Procedure stood prepared and presented in the competent Court. The inspector aforesaid also initiated proceedings under Section 82 and 83 Cr.P.C against co-accused Ominder who had absconded.

4. Accused/respondent stood charged by the learned trial Court for committing offences punishable under Sections 302 read with Section 34 of Indian Penal Code to which he pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

5. In proof of the prosecution case, the prosecution examined 15 witnesses. On closure of the prosecution evidence, the statement of the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. was recorded, in which he pleaded innocence. On closure of proceedings under Section 313 Cr.P.C. the accused was given an opportunity to adduce evidence in defence yet he chose not to lead any evidence in defence.

6. On an appraisal of the evidence on record, the learned trial Court, returned findings of acquittal in favour of the accused/respondent.

7. The appellant/State stands aggrieved by the judgment of acquittal recorded by the learned trial Court. The learned Additional Advocate General has concerted to vigorously contend qua the findings of acquittal recorded by the learned trial Court standing not based on a proper appreciation of evidence on record, rather, theirs standing sequelled by gross mis-appreciation of material on record. Hence, he contends qua the findings of acquittal being reversed by this Court in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction and theirs being replaced by findings of conviction.

8. On the other hand, the learned counsel for the respondent/accused has with considerable force and vigour, contended qua the findings of acquittal recorded by the Court below standing based on a mature and balanced appreciation of evidence on record and theirs not necessitating interference, rather theirs meriting vindication.

9. The prosecution case in its entirety stands hinged upon circumstantial evidence. Consequently, it was incumbent upon the prosecution to by adducing cogent evidence emphatically prove each of the links in the chain of circumstances. However, in the event of the prosecution failing to adduce conclusive evidence in proof of any of the links in the chain of circumstances, the entire chain would get severed whereupon the relevant benefit of doubt would stand afforded to the accused. The initial link in the chain of circumstances for connecting the accused in the commission of offence alleged stands comprised in PW-3, PW-11 and PW-12 testifiying qua theirs last seeing the deceased in the company of the accused.

10. PW-3 (Smt. Sunita) has voiced qua on 12.8.2008 at about 9.30 p.m. Umesh, Ominder and Harish Chander @ Sudhir visiting their Jhugi along with a bottle of liquor. She continues to testify of the bottle of liquor standing consumed by Umesh, Ominder, Harish Chander @ Sudhir, Riyasat and her husband. Also she proceeds to testify qua Ominder requesting her husband for money for bringing more liquor, request whereof stood refused by her husband besides she testifies qua her husband thereafter proceeding to his Jhuggi for sleeping. Further more, she deposes of Riyasat departing from the Jhuggi whereafter Umesh, Ominder and Harish Chander also departed from her Jhuggi. However, she has omitted to bespeak in her testification qua her and PW-12 (Sitara) being also present at the relevant time when liquor was being consumed by the deceased, Ominder, Riyasat, Ram Bahadur and Umesh. The effect of her omission to testify qua her and PW-12 being present at the relevant time when the aforesaid were consuming liquor underscores an inference of both her and PW-12 standing disabled to unequivocally voice qua Ominder asking for money from her husband also both standing disabled to voice qua the confabulations which occurred inter-se them besides obviously qua what transpired thereat whereupon hence any testification by them qua the aforesaid factum holds no veracity.

11. Even PW-11 (Riyasat) who was sitting along with the deceased besides Umesh and Ominder at the relevant time they were consuming liquor at the relevant place, has testified qua accused Umesh requesting him on the bottle of liquor standing consumed by them to fetch another bottle of liquor, request whereof stood refused by him on score of his having no money whereafter there occurs an echoing in his testification qua him and the husband of PW-3 departing to their respective Jhuggi(s). Also he omits to underscore in his testification qua the presence of PW-3 and PW-12 at the relevant place whereupon with amplifying vigor an obvious inference upsurges qua hence PW-3 and PW-12 standing disabled to depose qua the confabulations which occurred inter-se the persons who were consuming liquor besides PW-3 and PW-12 also concomitantly stand disabled to testify qua what transpired at the relevant site. With the witnesses aforesaid standing disabled to depose qua what transpired inter-se the persons who were consuming liquor fosters an inference of the prosecution wanting in adducing clinching evidence in portrayal of the relevant motive which stood nursed by the accused for murdering the deceased. In sequel, with motive assuming significance in a case resting upon circumstantial evidence also it constituting an important link in the chain of circumstances whereas its standing not clinched by emphatic proof takes a toll upon the ascription of an incriminatory role by the prosecution to accused wanting in vigor. Significantly, unless the accused had nursed a motive to murder the deceased he would not proceed to commit the relevant incriminatory act ascribed to him by the prosecution. Furthermore, on an incisive reading of the testimonies of PW-3 and PW-12, a visible unveiling stands unfolded qua their respective testifications qua the accused and deceased departing together from the relevant place whereupon the prosecution erects an espousal of both standing last seen together, standing harboured upon hearsay, inference whereof galvanizes strength from PW-11 (Riyasat) testifying qua after theirs consuming a bottle of liquor at the relevant place, he and the husband of PW-3 departing to their respective Jhugis yet he has omitted to disclose qua his sighting only the accused alongwith the deceased departing therefrom contrarily he deposes qua both accused Umesh and Ominder along with the deceased proceeding towards Truck Union to fetch liquor. Since this Court has concluded of PW-3 and PW-12 not remaining present at the relevant place whereat the aforesaid were consuming a bottle of liquor whereupon this Court has concluded of both standing disabled to disclose the happenings which occurred thereat conclusion whereof when stands conjointly construed with the afore-referred testimony of PW-11, unveils a concomitant inference qua theirs surmisingly testifying qua theirs last seeing the accused and the deceased significantly when PW-11 contrarily testifies qua apart from accused herein, absconding accused Ominder also accompanying the former along with the deceased towards the Truck Union for fetching liquor. Ominder, who, alongwith deceased and accused Umesh, was hence also purportedly last seen together with the latter, was the best person to depose qua the significant crucial moment when he alienated himself from their company wherefrom it could be invincibly concluded of after absconding accused Ominder alienating himself from the company of the accused herein and the deceased both the latter holding their intra se company wherefrom also it could be concluded of with the body of the deceased standing recovered on 13.8.2008 qua hence with visible proximity occurring inter-se both the accused and the deceased standing last seen together vis-à-vis the recovery of the body of deceased, the relevant incriminatory role ascribed by the prosecution to the accused standing conclusively proven. However, the aforesaid Ominder up to date has remained under absconsion whereupon the Investigating Officer concerned stood disabled to make apposite elicitations from him qua the relevant occurrence. Also his remaining under absconsion empowers this Court to conclude of after accused/respondent alienating himself from the company of Ominder and deceased, both the latter thereafter holding their intra se company. Also obviously a conclusion stands rested qua hence absconding accused Ominder being hence the person who was last seen with the deceased whereupon a concomitant inference is erectable qua hence his being the likely person who committed the offence alleged. The efficacy of recovery of screw driver Ext.P-18 recovered under memo Ext.PW-5/C is to be tested in the light of manifestations occurring in Ext.PW-14/B qua the demise of the deceased standing sequelled by strangulation leading to asphyxia. While proceeding to hence construe the efficacy of effectuation of recovery of screw driver Ext.P-18 even if assumingly it holds efficacy, nonetheless its tenacity gets eroded when construed in conjunction with the post mortem report comprised in Ex.PW-14/B wherewithin recitals stand encapsulated qua ligature marks occurring in the middle of the neck tapering towards its end and its holding dimensions 6x3 cms. The factum aforesaid pronounces qua absence of exertion of pressure on the sides of the neck by the purported user thereon of the relevant strangulatory material also hence dispels the purported user thereon of the relevant strangulatory material necessarily also it enhances an inference of the demise of the deceased occurring not by strangulation. Consequently, the occurrence of ligature marks in the middle of the neck of the deceased besides absence of ligature marks on posterior aspect of the neck is magnificatory qua the strangulation of the deceased occurring not by tying of cloth around the neck. The erection of the aforesaid inference dispels the factum of user thereon of screw driver Ex.P-18 by the accused also dispels the factum of his purportedly by tying a Parna around the neck of the deceased strangulating him. Reiteratedly, hence when the user thereon of Screw Driver Ex.P-18 by the accused stands belied, it concomitantly wanes the factum of its recovery by the Investigating Officer under Memo Ext.PW-5/C at the instance of the accused preceding whereof his disclosure statement comprised in Ext.PW-5/A stood recorded predominantly when its recovery for reasons afore-stated holds no connectivity vis-à-vis accused qua its user begetting the demise of the deceased. Furthermore, also the lacerated wounds noticed by PW-14 (Dr.Amarjeet Singh) to be occurring on the relevant portion of the body of the deceased when stand testified by him in his cross-examination to stand suffered by the victim by fall on an unsmooth surface forcefully dispels their occurrence thereon standing seqeulled by user thereon of screw driver by the accused. Consequently, with the cause of demise of the deceased abysmally remaining unconnected with user thereon by a cloth by the accused or user thereon of screw driver by the accused, its recovery under memo Ext.PW-5/C by the Investigating Officer even if assumingly it holds efficacy does not constitute any efficacious link in the chain of the circumstances. Predominantly also the efficacy, if any, of recovery of screw driver Ext.P-18 at the instance of the accused gets subsumed in the trite factum of the pivotal link of the deceased standing last seen with the accused getting dismembered.

12. Also the prosecution has anvilled an espousal upon the purported extra judicial confession made by the accused to PW-3 for contending of hence the guilt of the accused standing clinchingly proven. However, the efficacy of the purported extra judicial confession besides its constituting a potent link in the chain of circumstances stands blunted, in the trite factum of PW-3 unveiling in her testification qua the purported extra judicial confession standing made by the accused to her on 13.8.2008 whereas hers making an inordinate delay up to 17.8.2008, to in tandem thereof record a statement before the Investigating Officer, in sequel thereof the aforesaid link in the chain of circumstances gets dismembered.

13. For the reasons which have been recorded hereinabove, this Court holds that the learned trial Court below has appraised the entire evidence on record in a wholesome and harmonious manner apart therefrom the analysis of the material on record by the learned trial Court does not suffer from any perversity or absurdity of mis-appreciation and non appreciation of evidence on record, rather it has aptly appreciated the material available on record.

14. In view of the above, we find no merit in this appeal which is accordingly dismissed. In sequel, the impugned judgement is affirmed and maintained. Record of the learned trial Court be sent back forthwith.

"Nothing is more cowardly and unconscionable than a person in police custody being beaten up and nothing inflicts a deeper wound on our constitutional culture than a State official running berserk regardless of human rights". (Kishore Singh Ravinder Dev etc. versus State of Rajasthan AIR 1981 SC 625**).

2. The petitioner claims himself to be a victim of custodial torture and has filed this writ petition claiming therein the following reliefs:-

"i) Direct that a case be registered against respondent No.5, for having illegally arrested, detained and physically tortured the petitioner in custody; in the most inhuman manner.

ii) Award adequate compensation to the petitioner for the custodial torture of the petitioner.

iii) Quash the inquiry conducted by the SDM and the consequent reinstatement of respondent No.5.

iv) Direct that the investigation in the case be conducted by an independent high-ranking official of police/ the crime branch.

v) Direct that a copy of the medical report of the petitioner be given to him.

vi) Direct that a copy of the inquiry report conducted by the SDM be given to him.

vii) The respondent No.5 may be directed to be transferred from P.S. Dharamshala to any other place so that he may not influence with course of the investigation.

viii) Proceedings for contempt of Court be initiated against respondent No.5 for having willfully and knowingly violated the directions of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of "D.K.Basu versus State of West Bengal".

ix) Issue any other order, writ or direction that this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper in the peculiar facts and circumstances of the present case."

3. It is averred that the petitioner is a Commerce Graduate and belongs to a respectable family and his father is a very senior and well-known Chartered Accountant. At the relevant time, the petitioner was running a Banquet Hall and Restaurant by the name of 'Kashish'. There was only one room attached to the Banquet Hall which was primarily meant for the parties booking the hall for changing their clothes or keeping their belongings, but the same was never offered for rental.

4. On 24.08.2005 while petitioner was away, then at about 4.40 p.m., 4-5 ladies accompanied by two or three men came to the restaurant and after being served water, ordered cold drinks and later placed order for chilly chicken. The waiter called the cook, who was on rest, for preparation of the food, however, in the meantime, (within 5 to 7 minutes) of the men and ladies having entered the place, a police party led by SHO, Dharamshala, R.P.Jaswal, accompanied by video camera operator of the local cable channel reached the restaurant and made enquiries from the men and ladies and the restaurant staff. The long and short of the story is that an FIR No.216/2005 (for short 'FIR') came to be registered against the petitioner under Sections 3, 4 and 5 of the Immoral Traffic (Prevention) Act (for short the 'Act') on the allegations that there was a sex racket being carried out in these premises.

5. The petitioner claimed to have arrived at the Banquet Hall at about 6.10/6.20 p.m. in response to a telephonic call made by his father at about 5.30 p.m. It is thereafter claimed that while in the lock up, the petitioner at about 11.00 p.m. was asked to sign blank papers and on refusing to do so, he was abused and mercilessly beaten up by respondent No.5 SHO. The beating was so severe and relentless that the same caused grievous injury in the ear of the petitioner. On these allegations, the petitioner has filed the instant petition for the reliefs as already set out hereinabove.

6. The State of Himachal Pradesh through Secretary (Home), District Magistrate-cum-Deputy Commissioner, Kangra at Dharamshala and Sub Divisional Magistrate, Kangra, who have been arrayed as respondents No.1, 2 and 4, respectively, have filed their joint reply wherein it is admitted that the petitioner is running the restaurant and letting the same for marriage functions, however, it is denied that the rooms of the hotel are not rented out to anyone. It has been averred that the local police of Police Station, Dharamshala, had searched the hotel and FIR had been registered. Regarding arrest etc., it has been stated that in the subsequent inquiry conducted by respondent No.4, it has been established that the hotel of the petitioner had been raided by the SHO (respondent No.5) alongwith police officials pursuant to which aforesaid FIR came to be registered. It is admitted that local cable operators had videographed the entire incident and was also with the raiding party. As regards the allegations of beating, it has been averred that during inquiry contradictory statements have been made by the petitioner. On 24.08.2005, the petitioner told respondent No.3 that he was beaten up by respondent No.5 and other police officials, whereas, in his later statement dated 31.08.2005, the petitioner clearly denied beating having been given by other police officials except respondent No.5.

7. Respondent No.3 has filed its separate reply wherein it has been averred that the petitioner was taken in custody from the spot in the presence of his father at 9.40 p.m. on 24.08.2005 from the spot and the said fact finds mention in the Zimini No.1 dated 24.08.2005. The petitioner was lodged in the police station lock up at 10.30 p.m. and an entry to this effect was made in the station diary vide DD No.32 dated 24.08.2005. It is averred that the police had associated their videographer which speaks volume of the fairness on the part of the police. The respondent admitted that the medical report indicated two bodily injuries (simple in nature) sustained by the petitioner within the past six hours when he was examined at 12.14 a.m. on 25.08.2005. Respondent No.3 then placed respondent No.5 under suspension and ordered Additional S.P.,Kangra to conduct departmental inquiry in the incident. However, the next day the ENT Specialist reported grievous injury to the right ear of the petitioner. Thus, as per the Punjab Police Rule 16.38 as applicable to the Himachal Pradesh before proceeding further departmentally, the matter was referred to D.M., Kangra. The SHO i.e. respondent No.5 was suspended by respondent No.3 only to ensure that he did not influence any inquiry into the incident by misusing his position, status or posting. The suspension was ordered to ensure free and impartial inquiry.

8. Respondent No.5 has filed his separate reply raising therein various preliminary objections by alleging that the petition is nothing more than a counter-blast to the FIR registered against the petitioner. It is averred that though the petitioner had got himself medically examined, but he has not chosen to place on record such medical examination report and, therefore, adverse inference ought to be drawn against him. Even otherwise, the petitioner at best, had suffered injury which was purely temporary and had not got the audiometry test conducted so as to establish any permanent loss of hearing. It is also averred that the present petition depicts no enforceable cause of action and concocted ipse-dixit of the petitioner cannot withstand the presumption of truth attached to the official records as prepared during the course of the duty.

9. On merits, it is averred that as per the investigation conducted in the FIR it had come to light that the premises of the petitioner where the raid was conducted was being used for carrying on a prostitution racket and the same was being carried out with the active support of the petitioner. The raid had been conducted pursuant to a complaint made by one Sarabjeet, who had informed the police that he had met one Veena Devi, who had agreed to arrange 4-5 girls. The amount to be paid to these girls had been fixed and Sarabjeet was required to pay the advance amount. The girls were provided at the premises of the petitioner at about 7 in the evening on 24.08.2005, as according to Veena Devi, these premises were very safe. According to her, the writ petitioner was related to some police official, hence no one dared to raid the premises of the writ petitioner and even on earlier occasions, she had used these premises in collusion with the writ petitioner.

10. After preparing decoy customers, the raid was carried out which was witnessed by independent witnesses like Pradhan, Gram Panchayat, Dari and other witnesses and the incident was also video filmed. The raid was started at about 7.00 p.m. and concluded at about 10.15 p.m. It is specifically stated that when the raid was being conducted, the writ petitioner had run away from the spot and was chased by the police and later over-powered. In this process, there was a major scuffle as the writ petitioner very strongly tried to resist being captured and in this process may have sustained some injury. It is specifically denied that the petitioner was asked to sign blank papers and it is further categorically denied that the petitioner was abused and mercilessly beaten up by the replying respondent and, therefore, there was no question of the petitioner having sustained any ENT related injury.

I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and gone through the records of the case.

11. Before dealing with the contentions on merits, it needs to be observed that no civilized law postulates custodial cruelty, an inhuman trait that springs out of a perverse desire to cause suffering when there is no possibility of any retaliation; a senseless exhibition of superiority and physical power over the one who is overpowered or a collective wrath of hypocritic thinking. It is one of the worst crime in the civilized society. Torture in custody flouts the basic rights of the citizen and is affront to him and his dignity. Custodial torture is a collective assault on human dignity and nothing can be more dehumanizing as the conduct of the police in practicing torture of any kind on a person in custody.

12. At the outset, it may be noticed that the criminal case filed against the petitioner pursuant to FIR No.216/05 dated 24.08.2005 has been dismissed and all the accused therein including the petitioner have been acquitted of the offences for which they had been charged.

13. It is also not in dispute that the petitioner while in police custody was got medically examined by the police i.e. on 25.08.2005 at about 12.20 a.m. at Dr. Rajendra Prasad Government Medical College and Hospital, Dharamshala, the said report is annexed as Annexure R3/A with the supplementary affidavit filed by Superintendent of Police pursuant to directions passed by this Court on 22.11.2006. In addition to this, respondent No.3 has also placed on record the letter dated 27.08.2005 whereby on the request of respondent No.5, respondent No.3 had asked for constitution of a Medical Board and the said report is annexed as Annexure R3/G. The necessity of Medical Board arose because respondent No.5 had made an allegation that he did not find the opinion of the ENT Expert to be fair as the Expert was personally known to the petitioner, who was levelling false allegations of having been beaten up in police custody only because he had been booked for a serious offence.

14. Notably, there was a perforation of the size of approximately 2 x 2 mm on the center of the tympanic membrane which was noticed in the right ear of the petitioner and the Medical Board had clearly found the injury to be grievous and had been caused within duration of 2-5 days earlier.

15. Now the moot question arises as to how the petitioner came to sustain such injury. Was it self-inflicted? Was it caused during the process when petitioner tried to flee as per the version of respondent No.5 or was it on account of the beating given by respondent No.5?

16. Insofar as the first probability is concerned, the same is otherwise ruled out as it is not even the case of the respondent that the petitioner had self-inflicted the injury.

17. Therefore, the question now only hinges around to two other probabilities. As already observed, the specific stand of respondent No.5 in his reply to the writ petition is that the petitioner may have sustained injury while he was fleeing from the spot and had been over-powered by the crowd and the police and the said allegation is reproduced in verbatim and reads thus:-

> "6. That the contents of paras 6 to 8 are categorically denied. It is submitted that the raid which started at about 7.00 on the premises of the petitioner concluded at about 10.15. At this juncture, it would be appropriate to mention that when the raid was conducted the writ petitioner had run away from the spot. The Writ petitioner had been chased by the police. On seeing this the public which had collected there had overpowered the writ petitioner. In the process there was a major scuffle as the writ petitioner had tried to very seriously resist being captured. Therefore in the process the Writ petitioner may have sustained some injury....."

18. The version put forth in the FIR against the petitioner with regard to an attempt being made by the petitioner to flee reads thus:-

> "At this time I, Inspr./SHO alongwith raiding party reach out side Hotel Kashish Civil Station and Video Film maker Pardeep Dogra has also reached at this time, he is also associated with the raiding party and the party raids the Hotel after surrounding it from all sides. When the party entered the main gate the person standing at the counter/reception on seeing the party ran towards the stairs out side the restaurant leading to the rooms upstairs. In his hurry he fell on the stairs and I Inspr./SHO with the help of raiding party over powered him....."

19. There appears to be again yet another version in the challan/final report which does not even mention anything about the petitioner trying to flee from the spot or his being apprehended by the mob or by anybody else and rather suggests that the petitioner has been arrested from the spot itself. The relevant portion of the challan reads thus:-

> ".....Thereafter during the raid at Kashish Hotel and Restaurant/Banquet Hall Dharamshala in the presence of witnesses, Amit Sood; who was present near the counter; produced five currency notes of denomination of Rs.500/- before the police; which were given to him for prostitution. The numbers of the currency notes are (1) 3AH 599963 (2) 3CK 153499 (3) 4CT 749149 (4) 7AA 42096 (5) 9AL 976672 which bear the signatures of Inspector/S.H.O. and have been seen by the witnesses. The aforesaid currency notes amounting to Rs.2500/- was packed in a cloth and was sealed by Stamp "K" 4 times and the sample of stamp was taken on a separate cloth and were taken into custody of the police. The stamp after use was handed over to witness Savita Karki. The copy of memo was supplied to witnesses and accused free of cost. The memo signed by Amit Sood and the witnesses by putting there signatures and thereafter Sh. Pradeep Dogra produced a video cassette which was recorded on 24.8.2005 in Kashish Rastaurant and Banquet Hall Dharamshala before me (Inspector/SHO) which was sealed in a cloth packet by stamping with Stamp "J" three times and the sample of the stamp was taken on separate cloth and stamp was handed over to witness Balbir Singh after use. Cloth Packet was taken into custody by way of recovery memo as evidence and the memo was signed by witness Balbir Singh and Pradeep Singh by putting their signatures. The spot was examined and spot map was also prepared. The statements of witnesses namely S/Sh. Sarvjeet Singh, Nirpail Singh, Niraj Kumar, Baldev Singh, Surjeet Singh, Deep Chand Ward Panch, Smt. Savita Karki, Balbir Singh, Pradeep Dogra were recorded as per their version and were penned down. Veena Devi, Meena Devi, Kaushalya Devi, Usha Devi, Suman Devi and Amit Sood were arrested for the offence under Section 3, 4, 5 of Immoral Traffic Act, 1956 and who have been released on Bail Bonds and Surety Bonds by the orders of Hon'ble Court. After investigation, the offences under Section 3, 4, 5 of the Immoral Traffic Act, 1956 in the Challan against the accused mentioned above is proved. The challan was prepared and is submitted before the Hon'ble Court. The accuseds be prosecuted."

20. When the petitioner was made to stand trial, the Ward Panch of Gram Panchayat, Dari, PW-2 Kuldeep Chand has clearly stated that the petitioner was not even present at the spot during the raid.

21. It is evidently clear from the aforesaid that it is not even the case of respondent No.5 or the other respondents that the petitioner had already sustained injury at the time of his arrest or else he would have straightaway been taken to the hospital. Even as per the respondents, the raid was conducted at 7.00 p.m. and concluded at 10.15 p.m. and the petitioner and the independent witnesses came to the police station at 10.30 p.m. The petitioner admittedly was examined after his arrest at 12.20 a.m. on 25.08.2005 and it was found that the petitioner had suffered perforation of the right ear. This was thereafter confirmed by the Medical Board so constituted on the asking of respondent No.5.

22. It is vehemently argued by learned counsel for respondent No.5 that in absence of there being any bleeding and injury to the external ear of the petitioner, the injury, if any, could only be an old one, out of which much capital cannot be made by the petitioner to claim that he was given beatings by respondent No.5 which resulted in the aforesaid injury. He has referred to Modi's Medical Jurisprudence and Toxicology, 23rd Edition, Chapter 7 which deals with the torture and as regards ear torture, it reads thus:-

> "(viii) Ear Torture
> Ear torture includes beating both the ears with the palms. This is known as 'telefona', which causes rupture of the tympanic membrane causing pain, bleeding and hearing loss."

23. He would thereafter rely upon page 230 of the book wherein it has been mentioned that in case of beatings with the palms on both ears simultaneously ('el telefone') the physical findings would be that of ruptured or scarred tympanic membranes. Injuries to the external ear which would be detected in the post mortem detection of torture. He would further canvass that in case blow is given over the ear, the same may produce a rupture of the tympanum leading to temporary or permanent deafness and would rely on the following abstract found at page 813 of the book which reads thus:-

> " Ears
> A blow over the ear may produce a rupture of the tympanum leading to temporary or permanent deafness. Such injuries should be examined as soon as possible to differentiate whether the damage to the tympanum if due to disease or injury.
>
> A police constable complained that he was slapped over his left ear by a station master. On examination of his ear on the next day, the tympanic membrane was found ruptured and the surrounding surface was congested."
> If a blow over the external ear is very severe, it may also injure the labyrinth. During a quarrel, the ears may be bitten off or cut off, and their lobes may be torn by pulling out the earrings either with the intention of causing hurt or committing theft. The injuries are grievous, if they produce permanent disfiguration.

24. The aforesaid contention cannot simply be accepted for the reason that in case it had been an old injury, the same would have been so mentioned in the Medico-Legal-Certificate. That apart, it has been specifically opined by the Medical Board in para-1 of its report that "X-ray of the mastoid region (RT & LT) does not show any sclerotic changes ruling out old perforation". Once, there is overwhelming evidence available on the record by way of opinion rendered by a team of doctors of the Medical Board that too based on the physical examination of the petitioner, it is not safe to rely upon any text which only refers to things in abstract.

25. Thus, on the basis of the aforesaid discussion, I am prima facie of the considered opinion that the injury sustained by the petitioner was at the time when he was in custody of respondent No.5 as earlier to this he was hale and hearty and, therefore, the onus was upon respondent No.5 to prove that the petitioner while in custody could not have and had not sustained injuries.

26. Dr. Martin Luther King had observed that "injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere" and these golden words were thereafter reiterated by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Kishore Singh Ravinder Dev's case (supra).

27. Justice R.K.Abichandani in his Article relating to custodial violence while referring to 'Custody' had observed as under:-

> "Custody
>
> The very idea of a human being in custody save for protection and nurturing is an anathema to human existence. The word custody implies guardianship and protective care. Even when applied to indicate arrest or incarceration, it does not carry any sinister symptoms of violence during custody. No civilized law postulates custodial cruelty – an inhuman trait that springs out of a perverse desire to cause suffering when there is no possibility of any retaliation; a senseless exhibition of superiority and physical power over the one who is overpowered or a collective wrath of hypocritic thinking."

28. In the same Article, he has referred to 'The Universal and Constitutional Concern' which reads thus:-

"The Universal Concern

(1) The Universal Declaration of Human Rights 1948, adopted and proclaimed by the General Assembly Resolution 217A(III) of 10th December, 1948 declared in the preamble that recognition of the inherent dignity and of the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family is the foundation of freedom, justice and peace in the world. Article 1 proclaimed that all human beings are born free and equal, in dignity and rights. In Article 3 it proclaimed that everyone has the right to life, liberty and security of person, and in Article 5 that no one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. The presumption of innocence of a person charged with a penal offence until proved guilty as contained in Article 11(a) is meant to insulate him against any high-handed treatment by the authorities dealing with him in the matter.

(2) Article 7 of the International Covenant on civil and Political Rights, 1966 adopted by the General Assembly resolution dated 16th December, 1966 covenanted that no one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. Under Article 10 of the said Covenant all persons deprived of their liberty shall be treated with humanity and with respect for the inherent dignity of the human person and the accused persons shall , save in exceptional circumstances, be segregated from convicted persons and shall be subject to separate treatment appropriate to their status as unconvicted persons. The minimum guarantees to which everyone charged with a criminal offence, is entitled in full equality covenanted in Art. 14(3), inter-alia, provide that no shall be compelled to testify against himself or to confess guilt, which obviously will rule out use of force of any kind on a person accused of any crime.

(3) The American Convention of Human Rights 1969 which came into force in July, 1978, declares under Article 4(1) that every person has the right to have his life respected and this right shall be protected by law. Under Article 5, the right of every person to have his physical, mental, and moral integrity respected is recognized and it is covenanted between the States who are parties to this convention that no one shall be subject to torture or to cruel, inhuman, or degrading punishment or treatment and that all persons deprived of their liberty shall be treated with respect for the inherent dignity of the human person. Right to human treatment recognized by Article 5 cannot be suspended even in time of war, public danger, or other emergency situation, as declared in Article 27 of this Convention.

VI. The Constitutional Concern

Respect for human dignity is thus not a matter for any deep study in axiology for an estimate of comparative values in ethical, social or an aesthetic problem but a matter of acknowledging a simple truth already recognized by our national document when its opening chant exudes the cultural nobility of a fraternity that assures the dignity of the individual. The Constitution recognizes it to be fundamental in the governance of the country that the State shall direct its policy to secure conditions of freedom and dignity and insulates against all forms of tyranny against mind and body and their freedom to grow fearlessly. All custodial safeguards in the constitutional and other laws are meant to protect human dignity and shun barbaric approaches. This is why no person accused of any offence shall be compelled to be a witness against himself [Art.20(3), a person is entitled to know why he is arrested for being detained in custody and to consult a legal practitioner of his choice [Art. 22(1), there is prohibition of traffic in human beings and forced labour (Art. 23), and, above all, that mother of all rights, the right to protection of life and personal liberty (Art. 21). The right to live with human dignity enshrined in Art. 21 derives its life and breath from the directive principles of State policy particularly clauses (e) and (f) of Article 39 and Articles 41 and 42 as held by the Supreme Court in Bandhua Mukti Morcha case. [see (1984)3 SCC 161 & (1991) 4 SCC 417]."

29. In Gyanesh Rai and another versus State of UP and Ors 2015 (6) All LJ 499 the learned Division Bench of the Allahabad High Court has made extremely lucid enunciation of law on the subject and I can do no better than to extract some of the observations made therein which read as follow:-

"8. Mahatma Gandhi in one of his quotes has said as follows:

"I object to violence because when it appears to do good, the good is only temporary, the evil it does is permanent."

9. By resorting to custodial torture, for the time being, police with a view to secure evidence or confession may achieve their goal but in long run, police will have to substantiate and will have to face the scrutiny of Court, as to whether evidence secured or confession made was voluntary or same has been sheer outcome of custodial violence inflicted upon. Evidences and Confessions that come through the route of custodial violence, in long run, do no good and prosecution has to pay heavy price for the same, on such facts being substantiated, otherwise police would be accomplishing behind their closed doors precisely what the demands of our legal order forbid.

10. Time and again custodial torture has been at the radar of the Apex Court and Apex Court, at all point of time, has viewed custodial torture with all seriousness. Apex Court in the case of Raghbir Singh vs. State of Haryana 1980 (3) SCC 70 proceeded to mention that State at the highest administrative and political levels would organize special strategies to prevent and punish brutality by police methodology, otherwise, the credibility of the rule of law in our Republic vis-a-vis the people of the country will deteriorate. Relevant extract of said judgement is as follows:

"We are deeply disturbed by the diabolical recurrence of police torture resulting in a terrible scarce in the minds of common citizens that their lives and liberty are under a new peril when the guardians of the law gore human rights to death. The vulnerability of human rights assumes a traumatic, torture some poignancy when violent violation is perpetrated by the police arm of the State whose function is to protect the citizen and not to commit gruesome offences against them as has happened in this case, Police lock-up if reports in newspapers have a streak of credence, are becoming more and more awesome cells. This development is disastrous to our human rights awareness and humanist constitutional order.

The State, at the highest administrative and political levels, we hope, will organise special strategies to prevent and punish brutality by police methodology. Otherwise, the credibility of the rule of law in our Republic vis-a-vis the people of the country will deteriorate.

We conclude with the disconcerting note sounded by Abraham Lincoln:

'If you once forfeit the confidence of your fellow citizens you can never regain their respect and esteem. It is true that you can fool all the people some of the time, and some of the people all the time, but you cannot fool all the people all the time.'

These observations have become necessary to impress upon' the State police echelons the urgency of stamping out the vice of 'third degree' from the investigative armoury of the police."

11. Apex Court in the case of State of Uttar Pradesh vs. Ram Sagar Yadav and others 1985 (1) SCC 552 has proceeded to took a note of the fact that at the point of time when a person is in custody and he is subjected to any atrocity, then, at the said point of time, police officials alone and none else, can give evidence as regards the circumstances in which a person in their custody comes to receive injuries while in their custody. Relevant extract of said judgement is as follows:

"Police Officers alone, and none else, can give evidence as regards the circumstances in which a person in their custody comes to receive injuries while in their custody. Bound by ties of a kind of brotherhood, they often prefer to remain silent in such situations and when they choose to speak, they put their own gloss upon facts and pervert the truth. The result is that persons, on whom atrocities are perpetrated by the police in the sanctum sanctorum of the police station, are left without any evidence to prove who the offenders are."

12. Apex Court, in the case of Nilabati Behera @ Lalit Behera vs. State of Orissa and others, 1993 (2) SCC 746 proceeded to take view that even convicts, prisoners and undertrials have right under Article 21 and once an incumbent is taken into custody and there are injuries on his body, then State will have to explain, as to how he sustained the injuries, and compensation can be awarded under public law remedy.

13. Apex Court in the case of D.K. Basu vs. State of West Bengal 1997 (1) SCC 416, has dealt with the issue of custodial violence, and has clearly ruled, interrogation through essential must be on scientific principles, third degree methods are impermissible, balanced approach should be there so that criminals don't go scot free. Various guidelines have been issued and same are holding the field, even as on date, in addition to constitutional and statutory safeguards. Relevant extract of said judgment is as follows:

"The importance of affirmed rights of every human being need no emphasis and, therefore, to deter breaches thereof becomes a sacred duty of the Court, as the custodian and protector of the fundamental and the basic human rights of the citizens. Custodial violence, including torture and death in the lock ups, strikes a blow at the Rule of Law, which demands that the powers of the executive should not only be derived from law but also that the same should be limited by law. Custodial violence is a matter of concern. It is aggravated by the fact that it is committed by persons who are supposed to be the protectors of the citizens. It is committed under the shield of uniform and authority in the four walls of a police station or lock-up, the victim being totally helpless. The protection of an individual from torture and abuse by the police and other law enforcing officers is a matter of deep concern in a free society. These petitions raise important issues concerning police powers, including whether monetary compensation should be awarded for established infringement of the Fundamental Rights guaranteed by Articles 21 and 22 of the Constitution of India. The issues are fundamental.

14. "Torture" has not been defined in Constitution or in other penal laws. 'Torture' of a human being by another human being is essentially an instrument to impose the will of the 'strong' over the 'weak' by suffering. The word torture today has become synonymous wit the darker side of human civilisation.

> "Torture is a wound in the soul so painful that sometimes you can almost touch it, but it is also so intangible that there is not way to heal it. Torture is anguish squeezing in your chest, cold as ice and heavy as a stone paralyzing as sleep and dark as the abyss. Torture is despair and fear and rage and hate. It is a desire to kill and destroy including yourself."

-Adriana P. Bartow

> No violation of any one of the human rights has been the subject of so many Conventions and Declarations as 'torture'- all aiming at total banning of it in all forms, but inspite of the commitments made to eliminate torture, the fact remains that torture is more widespread not that ever before, "Custodial torture" is a naked violation of human dignity and degradation with destroys, to a very large extent, the individual personality.

15. It is a calculated assault on human dignity and whenever human dignity is wounded, civilisation takes a step backward-flag of humanity must on each such occasion fly half-mast.

16. In all custodial crimes that is of real concern is not only infliction of body pain but the mental agony which a person undergoes within the four walls of police station or lock-up. Whether it is physical assault or rape in police custody, the extent of trauma a person experiences is beyond the purview of law.

> "Custodial violence" and abuse of police power is not only peculiar to this country, but it is widespread. It has been the concern of international community because the problem is universal and the challenge is almost global. The Universal Declaration of Human Rights in 1984, which market the emergency of worldwide trend of protection and guarantee of certain basic human rights, stipulates in Article 5 that "No one shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment." Despite the pious declaration, the crime continues unabated, though every civilised nation shows its concern and takes steps for its eradication."

17. Fundamental rights occupy a place of pride in the India Constitution. Article 21 provides "no person shall be deprived of his life or personal liberty expect according to procedure established by law". Personal liberty, thus, is a sacred and cherished right under the Constitution. The expression "life of personal liberty" has been held to include the right to live with human dignity and thus it would also include within itself a guarantee against torture and assault by the State or its functionaries. Article 22 guarantees protection against arrest and detention in certain cases and declares that no person who is arrested shall be detained in custody without being informed of the grounds of such arrest and the shall not be denied the right to consult and defend himself by a legal practitioner of his choice. Clause (2) of Article 22 directs that the person arrested and detained in custody shall be produced before the nearest Magistrate within a period of 24 hours of such arrest, excluding the time necessary for the journey from the place of arrest to the court of the Magistrate. Article 20(3) of the Constitution lays down that a person accused of an offence shall not be compelled to be a witness against himself. These are some of the constitutional safeguard provided to a person with a view to protect his personal liberty against and unjustified assault by the State, In tune with the constitutional guarantee a number statutory provisions also seek to project personal liberty, dignity and basic human rights of the citizens. Chapter V. of Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 deals with the powers of arrest of a person and the safeguard which are required to be followed by the police to protect the interest of the arrested person. Section 41, Cr. P.C. confers powers on any police officer to arrest a person under the circumstances specified therein without any order or a warrant of arrest from a Magistrate. Section 46 provides the method and manner of arrest. Under this Section no formality is necessary while arresting a person. Under Section 49, the police is not permitted to use more restraint than is necessary to permitted to use more restraint than is necessary to prevent the escape of the person. Section 50 enjoins every police officer arresting any person without warrant to communicate to him the full particulars of the offence for which he is arrested and the grounds for such arrest. The police officer is further enjoined to inform the person arrested that he is entitled to be released on bail and he may arrange for sureties in the event of his arrest for a non-bailable offence. Section 56 contains a mandatory provision requiring the police officer making an arrest without warrant to produce the arrested person before a Magistrate without unnecessary delay and Section 57 echoes Clause (2) of Article 22 of the Constitution of India. There are some other provisions also like Section 53, 54 and 167 which are aimed at affording procedural safeguards to a person arrested by the police. Whenever a person dies in custody of the police, Section 176 requires the Magistrate to hold and enquiry into the cause of death.

18. However, inspite of the constitutional and statutory provisions aimed at safeguarding the personal liberty and life of a citizen, growing incidence of torture and deaths in police custody has been a disturbing factor. Experience shows that worst violations of human rights take place during the course of investigation, when the police with a view to secure evidence or confession often resorts to third degree methods including torture and adopts techniques of screening arrest by either not recording the arrest or describing the deprivation of liberty merely as a prolonged interrogation. A reading of the morning newspapers almost everyday carrying reports of dehumanising torture, assault, rape and death in custody of police or other governmental agencies is indeed depressing. The increasing incidence of torture and death in custody has assumed such alarming proportions that it is affecting the creditibility of the Rule of Law and the administration of criminal justice system.

19. The community rightly feels perturbed. Society's cry for justice becomes louder.

20. Custodial death is perhaps one of the worst crimes in a civilised society governed by the Rule of Law. The rights inherent in Articles 21 and 22(1) of the Constitution required to be jealously and scrupulously protected. We cannot wish away the problem. Any form of torture of cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment would fall within the inhibition of Article 21 of the Constitution, whether it occurs during investigation, interrogation or otherwise. If the functionaries of the Government become law breakers, it is bound to breed contempt for law and would encourage lawlessness and every man would have the tendency to become law unto himself thereby leading to anarchanism. No civilised nation can permit that to happen. Does a citizen shed off his fundamental right to life, the moment a policeman arrests him? Can the right to life of a citizen be put in abeyance on his arrest? These questions touch the spinal court of human rights jurisprudence. The answer, indeed, has to be an emphatic 'No'. The precious right guaranteed by Article 21 of the Constitution of India cannot be denied to convicted undertrials, detenues and other prisoners in custody, except according to the procedure established by law by placing such reasonable restrictions as are permitted by law.

21. Instances have come to out notice were the police has arrested a person without warrant in connection with the investigation of an offence, without recording the arrest, and the arrest person has been subjected to torture to extract information from him for the purpose of further investigation or for recovery of case property or for extracting confession etc. The torture and injury caused on the body of the arrestee has sometime resulted into his death. Death in custody is not generally shown in the records of the lock-up and every effort is made by the police to dispose of the body or to make out a case that the arrested person died after he was released from custody. Any complaint against such torture or death is generally not given any attention by the police officers because of ties of brotherhood.

22. No first information report at the instance of the victim or his kith and kin is generally entertained and even the higher police officers turn a blind eye to such complaints. Even where a formal prosecution is launched by the victim or his kith and kin, no direct evidence is available to substantiate the charge of torture or causing hurt resulting into death as the police lock-up where generally torture or injury is caused is away from the public gaze and the witnesses are either police men or co- prisoners who are highly reluctant to appear as prosecution witness due to fear of retaliation by the superior officers of the police. It is often seen that when a complaint is made against torture, death or injury, in police custody, it is difficult to secure evidence against the policemen responsible for resorting to third degree methods since they are incharge of police station records which they do not find difficult to manipulate.

23. Consequently, prosecution against the delinquent officers generally results in acquittal. State of Madhya Pradesh Vs. Shyamsunder Trivedi & Ors. [1995 (3) Scale, 343] is an apt case illustrative of the observations made by us above. In that case, Nathu Bnjara was tortured at police station, Rampura during the interrogation. As a result of extensive injuries caused to him he died in police custody at the police station. The defence set up by the respondent police officials at the trial was that Nathu Banjara had been released from police custody at about 10.30 p.m. after interrogation 13.10.1986 itself vide entry EX. P/22A in the Roznamcha and that at about 7.00 a.m. on 14.10.1981, a death report Ex. P/9 was recorded at the police station, Rampura, at the instance of Ramesh respondent No. 6, to the effect that he had found "one unknown person" near a tree by the side of the tank riggling with pain in his chest and that as a soon as respondent No. 6 reached near him, the said person died. The further case set up by SI Trivedi, respondent No. 1, incharge of the police station was that after making a Roznamcha entry at 7.00 a.m. about his departure from the police station he (respondent No. 1- Shyamsunder Trivedi) and Constable Rajaram respondent proceeded to the spot where the dead body was stated to be lying for conducting investigation under Section 174 Cr.P.C. He summoned Ramesh Chandra and Goverdhan respondents to the spot and in their presence prepared a panchnama EX. P/27 of the dead body recording the opinion therein to the effect that no definite cause of death was known.

24. Police is, no doubt, under a legal duty and has legitimate right to arrest a criminal and to interrogate him during the investigation of a an offence but it must be remembered that the law does not permit use of third degree methods or torture of accused in custody during interrogation and investigation with that view to solve the crime. End cannot justify the means.

25. The interrogation and investigation into a crime should be in true sense purpose full to make the investigation effective. By torturing a person and using their degree methods, the police would be accomplishing behind the closed doors what the demands of our legal order forbid. No society can permit it.

34. Apex Court in the case of Shakila Abdul Gafar Khan vs. Vasant Raghunath Dhoble and another 2003 (7) SCC 749 has proceeded to make a mention that who are at the helm of affairs who proclaim from rooftops to be the defenders of democracy and protectors of people's rights and do not hesitate to condescend behind the screen to let loose their men in uniform to settle personal scores, reigning ignorance of what happens and pretending to be peace-loving puritans and saviours of citizens' rights. Relevant extract of said judgement is as follows:

"If it is assuming alarming proportions, now a days, all around it is merely on account of the devilish devices adopted by those at the helm of affairs who proclaim from roof tops to be the defenders of democracy and protectors of peoples' rights and yet do not hesitate to condescend behind the screen to let loose their men in uniform to settle personal scores, feigning ignorance of what happens and pretending to be peace loving puritans and saviours of citizens' rights.

Article 21 which is one of the luminary provisions in the Constitution of India, 1950 (in short the 'Constitution') and is a part of the scheme for fundamental rights occupies a place of pride in the Constitution. The Article mandates that no person shall be deprived of his life and personal liberty except according to the procedure established by law. This sacred and cherished right i.e. personal liberty has an important role to play in the life of every citizen. Life or personal liberty includes a right to live with human dignity. There is an inbuilt guarantee against torture or assault by the State or its functionaries. Chapter V of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (for short the 'Code') deals with the powers of arrest of persons and the safeguards required to be followed by the police to protect the interest of the arrested person. Articles 20(3) and 22 of the Constitution further manifest the constitutional protection extended to every citizen and the guarantees held out for making life meaningful and not a mere animal existence. It is therefore difficult to comprehend how torture and custodial violence can be permitted to defy the rights flowing from the Constitution. The dehumanizing torture, assault and death in custody which have assumed alarming proportions raise serious questions about the credibility of rule of law and administration of criminal justice system. The community rightly gets disturbed. The cry for justice becomes louder and warrants immediate remedial measures. This Court has in a large number of cases expressed concern at the atrocities perpetuated by the protectors of law. Justice Brandies's observation which have become classic are in following immortal words:

> "Government as the omnipotent and omnipresent teacher teaches the whole people by its example, if the Government becomes a law breaker, it breeds contempt for law, it invites every man to become a law into himself". (in (1928) 277 U.S. 438, quoted in (1961) 367 U.S. 643 at 659)."

The diabolic recurrence of police torture resulting in a terrible scare in the minds of common citizens that their lives and liberty are under a new and unwarranted peril because guardians of law destroy the human rights by custodial violence and torture and invariably resulting in death. The vulnerability of human rights assumes a traumatic torture when functionaries of the State whose paramount duty is to protect the citizens and not to commit gruesome offences against them, in reality perpetrate them. The concern which was shown in Raghubir Singh's case (supra) more than two decades back seems to have fallen to leaf ears and the situation does not seem to be showing any noticeable change. The anguish expressed in Gauri Shanker Sharma v. State of U.P. (AIR 1990 SC 709), Bhagwan Singh and Anr. v. State of Punjab (1992 (3) SCC 249), Smt. Nilabati Behera @Lalita Behera v. State of Orissa and Ors. (AIR 1993 SC 1960), Pratul Kumar Sinha v. State of Bihar and Anr. (1994 Supp. (3) SCC 100), Kewal Pati (Smt.) v. State of U.P. and Ors. (1995 (3) SCC 600), Inder Singh v. State of Punjab and Ors. (1995(3) SCC 702), State of M.P. v. Shyamsunder Trivedi and Ors. (1995 (4) SCC 262) and by now celebrated decision in Shri D.K. Basu v. State of West Bengal (JT 1997 (1) SC 1) seems to have caused not even any softening attitude to the inhuman approach in dealing with persons in custody.

Rarely in cases of police torture or custodial death, direct ocular evidence of the complicity of the police personnel alone who can only explain the circumstances in which a person in their custody had died. Bound as they are by the ties of brotherhood, it is not unknown that the police personnel prefer to remain silent and more often than not even pervert the truth to save their colleagues - and the present case is an apt illustration - as to how one after the other police witnesses feigned ignorance about the whole matter."

35. Apex Court in the case of Sube Singh vs. State of Haryana and others 2006 (3) SCC 178 has taken note of custodial violence to be torture and third degree methods used by police during interrogation and has discussed in detail the reasons behind such practice and has also given preventive measures as to how such violence can be tackled. Relevant extract of said judgement is as follows:

"Unfortunately, police in the country have given room for an impression in the minds of public, that whenever there is a crime, investigation usually means rounding up all persons concerned (say all servants in the event of a theft in the employer's house, or all acquaintances of the deceased, in the event of a murder) and subjecting them to third-degree interrogation in the hope that someone will spill the beans. This impression may not be correct, but instances are not wanting where police have resorted to such a practice. Lack of training in scientific investigative methods, lack of modern equipment, lack of adequate personnel, and lack of a mindset respecting human rights, are generally the reasons for such illegal action. One other main reason is that the public (and men in power) expect results from police in too short a span of time, forgetting that methodical and scientific investigation is a time consuming and lengthy process. Police are branded as inefficient even when there is a short delay in catching the culprits in serious crimes.

The expectation of quick results in high-profile or heinous crimes builds enormous pressure on the police to somehow 'catch' the 'offender'. The need to have quick results tempts them to resort to third degree methods. They also tend to arrest "someone" in a hurry on the basis of incomplete investigation, just to ease the pressure. Time has come for an attitudinal change not only in the minds of the police, but also on the part of the public. Difficulties in criminal investigation and the time required for such investigation should be recognized, and police should be allowed to function methodically without interferences or unnecessary pressures. If police are to perform better, the public should support them, government should strengthen and equip them, and men in power should not interfere or belittle them. The three wings of the Government should encourage, insist and ensure thorough scientific investigation under proper legal procedures, followed by prompt and efficient prosecution. Be that as it may.

Custodial violence requires to be tackled from two ends, that is, by taking measures that are remedial and preventive. Award of compensation is one of the remedial measures after the event. Effort should be made to remove the very causes, which lead to custodial violence, so as to prevent such occurances. Following steps, if taken, may prove to be effective preventive measures:

a) Police training should be re-oriented, to bring in a change in the mindset and attitude of the Police personnel in regard to investigations, so that they will recognize and respect human rights, and adopt thorough and scientific investigation methods.

b) The functioning of lower level Police Officers should be continuously monitored and supervised by their superiors to prevent custodial violence and adherence to lawful standard methods of investigation.

c) Compliance with the eleven requirements enumerated in D.K. Basu (supra) should be ensured in all cases of arrest and detention.

d) Simple and fool-proof procedures should be introduced for prompt registration of first information reports relating to all crimes.

e) Computerization, video-recording, and modern methods of records maintenance should be introduced to avoid manipulations, insertions, substitutions and ante-dating in regard to FIRs, Mahazars, inquest proceedings, Port-mortem Reports and Statements of witnesses etc. and to bring in transparency in action.

f) An independent investigating agency (preferably the respective Human Rights Commissions or CBI) may be entrusted with adequate power, to investigate complaints of custodial violence against Police personnel and take stern and speedy action followed by prosecution, wherever necessary.

The endeavour should be to achieve a balanced level of functioning, where police respect human rights, adhere to law, and take confidence building measures (CBMs), and at the same time, firmly deal with organized crime, terrorism, white-collared crime, deteriorating law and order situation etc."

36. Apex Court in the case of Prithipal Singh and others vs. State of Punjab and another 2012 (1) SCC 10 has considered that the State has to protect the victim of torture and State cannot be permitted to negate such a right. Relevant extract of said judgement is as follows:

"Police atrocities in India had always been a subject matter of controversy and debate. In view of the provisions of Article 21 of the Constitution, any form of torture or cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment is inhibited. Torture is not permissible whether it occurs during investigation, interrogation or otherwise. The wrong-doer is accountable and the State is responsible if a person in custody of the police is deprived of his life except in accordance with the procedure established by law.

However, when the matter comes to the court, it has to balance the protection of fundamental rights of an individual and duties of the police. It cannot be gainsaid that freedom of an individual must yield to the security of the State. Latin maxim salus populi est suprema lex - the safety of the people is supreme law; and salus reipublicae suprema lex - safety of the State is supreme law, 14 co-exist. However, the doctrine of the welfare of an individual must yield to that of the community.

The right to life has rightly been characterised as "`supreme' and `basic'; it includes both so-called negative and positive obligations for the State". The negative obligation means the overall prohibition on arbitrary deprivation of life. In this context, positive obligation requires that State has an overriding obligation to protect the right to life of every person within its territorial jurisdiction. The obligation requires the State to take administrative and all other measures in order to protect life and investigate all suspicious deaths.

The State must protect victims of torture, ill-treatment as well as the human rights defender fighting for the interest of the victims, giving the issue serious consideration for the reason that victims of torture suffer enormous consequences psychologically. The problems of acute stress as well as a post-traumatic stress disorder and many other psychological consequences must be understood in correct perspective. Therefore, the State must ensure prohibition of torture, cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment to any person, particularly at the hands of any State agency/police force.

In addition to the protection provided under the Constitution, the Protection of Human Rights Act, 1993, also provide for protection of all rights to every individual. It inhibits illegal detention. Torture and custodial death have always been condemned by the courts in this country. In its 113th report, the Law Commission of India recommended the amendment to the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (hereinafter called "Evidence Act"), to provide that in case of custodial injuries, if there is evidence, the court may presume that injury was caused by the police having the custody of that person during that period. Onus to prove contrary is on the police authorities. Law requires for adoption of a realistic approach rather than narrow technical approach in cases of custodial crimes."

38. Apex Court in the case of People's Union for Civil Liberties and another vs. State of Maharashtra and others 2014 (10) SCC 635 has clearly mentioned that Article 21 of Constitution of India guarantees "right to live with human dignity" and any violation of human rights is viewed seriously. Relevant extract of said judgement is as follows:

"Article 21 of the Constitution of India guarantees "right to live with human dignity". Any violation of human rights is viewed seriously by this Court as right to life is the most precious right guaranteed by Article 21 of the Constitution. The guarantee by Article 21 is available to every person and even the State has no authority to violate that right.

In some of the countries when a police firearms officer is involved in a shooting, there are strict guidelines and procedures in place to ensure that what has happened is thoroughly investigated. In India, unfortunately, such structured guidelines and procedures are not in place where police is involved in shooting and death of the subject occurs in such shooting. We are of the opinion that it is the constitutional duty of this Court to put in place certain guidelines adherence to which would help in bringing to justice the perpetrators of the crime who take law in their own hands.

Article 21 of the Constitution provides "no person shall be deprived of his life or personal liberty except according to procedure established by law". This Court has stated time and again that Article 21 confers sacred and cherished right under the Constitution which cannot be violated, except according to procedure established by law. Article 21 guarantees personal liberty to every single person in the country which includes the right to live with human dignity.

In line with the guarantee provided by Article 21 and other provisions in the Constitution of India, a number of statutory provisions also seek to protect personal liberty, dignity and basic human rights. In spite of Constitutional and statutory provisions aimed at safeguarding the personal liberty and life of a citizen, the cases of death in police encounters continue to occur. This Court has been confronted with encounter cases from time to time. In Chaitanya Kalbagh3, this Court was concerned with a writ petition filed under Article 32 of the Constitution wherein the impartial investigation was sought for the alleged killing of 299 persons in the police encounters. The Court observed that in the facts and circumstances presented before it, there was an imperative need of ensuring that the guardians of law and order do in fact observe the code of discipline expected of them and that they function strictly as the protectors of innocent citizens.

We are not oblivious of the fact that police in India has to perform a difficult and delicate task, particularly, when many hardcore criminals, like, extremists, terrorists, drug peddlers, smugglers who have organized gangs, have taken strong roots in the society but then such criminals must be dealt with by the police in an efficient and effective manner so as to bring them to justice by following rule of law. We are of the view that it would be useful and effective to structure appropriate guidelines to restore faith of the people in police force. In a society governed by rule of law, it is imperative that extra-judicial killings are properly and independently investigated so that justice may be done."

30. The issue of custodial violence was the subject-matter of a recent decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Dr. Rini Johar and another versus State of M.P. and others AIR 2016 SC 2679 wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court recapitulated the earlier law laid down by it in the following manner:-

"18. In D.K. Basu v. State of W.B.(1997) 1 SCC 416, after referring to the authorities in Joginder Kumar (supra), Nilabati Behera v. State of Orissa (1993) 2 SCC 746 and State of M.P. v. Shyamsunder Trivedi (1995) 4 SCC 262 the Court laid down certain guidelines to be followed in cases of arrest and detention till legal provisions are made in that behalf as preventive measures. The said guidelines read as follows:-

"(1) The police personnel carrying out the arrest and handling the interrogation of the arrestee should bear accurate, visible and clear identification and name tags with their designations. The particulars of all such police personnel who handle interrogation of the arrestee must be recorded in a register.

(2) That the police officer carrying out the arrest of the arrestee shall prepare a memo of arrest at the time of arrest and such memo shall be attested by at least one witness, who may either be a member of the family of the arrestee or a respectable person of the locality from where the arrest is made. It shall also be countersigned by the arrestee and shall contain the time and date of arrest.

(3) A person who has been arrested or detained and is being held in custody in a police station or interrogation centre or other lock-up, shall be entitled to have one friend or relative or other person known to him or having interest in his welfare being informed, as soon as practicable, that he has been arrested and is being detained at the particular place, unless the attesting witness of the memo of arrest is himself such a friend or a relative of the arrestee.

(4) The time, place of arrest and venue of custody of an arrestee must be notified by the police where the next friend or relative of the arrestee lives outside the district or town through the Legal Aid Organisation in the District and the police station of the area concerned telegraphically within a period of 8 to 12 hours after the arrest.

(5) The person arrested must be made aware of this right to have someone informed of his arrest or detention as soon as he is put under arrest or is detained.

(6) An entry must be made in the diary at the place of detention regarding the arrest of the person which shall also disclose the name of the next friend of the person who has been informed of the arrest and the names and particulars of the police officials in whose custody the arrestee is.

(7) The arrestee should, where he so requests, be also examined at the time of his arrest and major and minor injuries, if any present on his/her body, must be recorded at that time. The "Inspection Memo" must be signed both by the arrestee and the police officer effecting the arrest and its copy provided to the arrestee.

(8) The arrestee should be subjected to medical examination by a trained doctor every 48 hours during his detention in custody by a doctor on the panel of approved doctors appointed by Director, Health Services of the State or Union Territory concerned. Director, Health Services should prepare such a panel for all tehsils and districts as well.

(9) Copies of all the documents including the memo of arrest, referred to above, should be sent to the Illaqa Magistrate for his record.

(10) The arrestee may be permitted to meet his lawyer during interrogation, though not throughout the interrogation.

(11) A police control room should be provided at all district and State headquarters, where information regarding the arrest and the place of custody of the arrestee shall be communicated by the officer causing the arrest, within 12 hours of effecting the arrest and at the police control room it should be displayed on a conspicuous notice board."

31. Late Mr.Justice V.R.Krishna Iyer in 'Random Reflections' had said:-

"Policing, like justicing, has therefore to be at the service of the people commanding the credibility of the community at large without fear or favour, affection or ill-will. Independence and accountability with commitment to the Rule of law, are as much the non-negotiable qualities of the invigilating, investigating police force of the 'robed brethern' on the bench. If the investigative process fails, if the police presence to guard Law and Order is not functionally successful, the adjudicatory apparatus collapses and our adversarial system of justice becomes dysfunctional. The safety of society, sans police integrity, accountability, transparency and efficiency, suffers illusion and unreality."

32. Adverting to the facts of the case, not only is the conduct of respondent No.5 not above board, but even the then SDM, who conducted the inquiry has not at all been fair to the record and has rather acted as an expert over the medical evidence simply in order to exonerate respondent No.5. This is clearly evident from the report submitted by the SDM wherein he observed as under:-

"From the above stated findings, I am of the opinion that the any perforation in the ear, as opined by the doctor can not be conclusively decided to be caused by a grievous hurt until and unless the condition laid out in section 320 of the IPC are met with. The complainant Sh.Amit Sood has not suffered a permanent impairment of right ear as given as third condition nor has he suffered destruction of permanent impairment of ear. The dislocation which has been opined by Dr.Manish Saroch has not been observed by the Medical Board. As far as the hurt which endangers life is concerned, it is such a wide term that if not interpreted properly will not leave any hurt out of the scope of grievous hurt. For the reasons above since there is some difference of opinion between Dr. Manish Saroch ENT Specialist and Medical Board with regard to the handle of melleus, tuning fork test for assessment of hearing loss and as it has been advised by the medical board to approach the higher institution for audiometry so as to ascertain the exact loss, I am of the opinion that it can not be convincingly established that the nature of injury suffered is grievous in nature in the absence of unimpeachable medical testimony which can only be arrived after conducting audiometry test on the complainant. Hence the point No-1 is decided in negative."

33. The only apparent reason given by the SDM for disbelieving the version of the petitioner that he had suffered injury on account of beatings given by respondent No.5 reads thus:-

"------The Rapat No-35 dated 24-08-2005 which has been written by SP Kangra clearly reveals that the complainant told SP Kangra that he has been beaten up by Inspector Jaswal and some other police official. But where as in his statement dated 31-08-2005 the complainant has categorically denied any beating by other police officials. He has specifically mentioned that SHO Jaswal has beaten him up not the other police official where as in the police station before SP Kangra (Rapat No-35) he has alleged to have been beaten up by SHO Jaswal and other police officials also which contradicts his statements before the inquiry officer. This contradiction in the statement of the complainant before the SP Kangra & before the inquiry officer, throws a ring of suspicion about the complaint of the complainant and no irresistible conclusion can be drawn regarding the guilt of Inspector RP Jaswal.

-----Moreover the complainant has deposed that Inspector RP Jaswal has beaten him up on the ear with slaps, kicks and leather belt but there is no trace of external injury on the ear or associated areas as per the medical opinion of ENT expert and the Medical Board (Annexure A40 question no.2) and (Annexure A41 question no.5). The complainant alleges that the injury in the ear has been caused by beating in the ear by Inspector Jaswal with slaps, kicks & leather belt but the experts opine no external injury on the right ear. There is remotest possibility that if a person has been beaten up with slaps, kicks and leather belt on the ear, he will have no injury mark on the ear and in the absence of such medical testimony, no confidence can be inspired and the guilt of Inspector Jaswal can not be conclusively established. Under such circumstance it can not be proved that the injury which caused perforation in the right ear of complainant Amit Sood has been caused by beating by Inspector Jaswal in the PS."

34. The aforesaid reasonings are clearly two far-fetched and contrary to the records. The SDM was not an expert in the medical field and as already observed above, once the petitioner was hale and hearty and there was no record to prove that he had an old wound perforation of the ear, then the presumption was that the petitioner had suffered injury while in custody between 10.30 p.m. on 24.08.2005 to 12.20 a.m. on 25.08.2005 and heavy onus lay upon respondent No.5 to rebut this presumption which unfortunately he has failed to rebut. Rather, respondent No.5 continued to give different versions regarding the injuries sustained by the petitioner.

35. The inquiry report submitted by the SDM, to say the least, is clearly one sided and is an apparent attempt to shield respondent No. 5 with a biased mind. It would have been more appropriate if the concerned SDM had atleast called the petitioner and his father and thereafter made sincere efforts to find the truth, rather than straightaway come to the conclusion that the petitioner had come up with false allegations and that there was no act of torture, harassment from the side of respondent No.5. To say the least, the SDM, who conducted the inquiry has not acted with high probity and expected candour and has failed to meet the requisites of fairness while conducting inquiry.

36. What amazes this Court is the fact that it is the specific case of respondent No.5 that the whole incident relating to the arrest of the petitioner had been videographed. However, strangely enough, the said record of videography which could have been the best evidence to support the plea of respondent No.5 has been conveniently withheld from this Court constraining this Court to draw an adverse inference against the respondents, particularly, respondent No.5.

37. However, even having prima facie concluded that the petitioner had suffered injury while he was in custody of respondent No.5, such findings can only be said tentative for want of conclusive proof. A firm finding of fact in such like cases by a constitutional Court can be returned only in exceptional cases and even while these observations are founded upon material on record, nonetheless they remain only tentative for want of conclusive proof. No doubt, in the case in hand, the allegations are serious, even the circumstances somewhat seem to support them, even the consequences are quite apparent, yet the material on record is not within the decree of conclusive proof on the basis of which firm findings of fact can be returned. These, at best, may give rise to a strong suspicion, yet cannot be held to be conclusive. The truth must surface in the interest of those, who are accusing and/or are being accused, therefore, to reach a definite conclusion, the investigation and disciplinary proceedings are inevitable whereafter alone the guilt, if any, of respondent No.5 can be established. If such a course is not followed, then in teeth of such firm findings regarding the guilt of respondent No.5 are returned, then no subordinate Court or even the disciplinary authority would dare to go beyond these findings.

38. Identical issue came up for consideration before a learned Division Bench of this Court in State of Himachal Pradesh and another versus Sakshi Sharma etc. and others 2014 (Supp) Shim. LC 563 wherein it was held as under:-

> "11. It has to be remembered that while exercising the powers of a Constitutional Court a firm finding of fact in such like case can be returned only in exceptional cases. The observations made by the learned Single Judge may though be founded upon the material on record, nonetheless they remain only tentative for want of conclusive proof and at best can be termed to be prima facie views only. No doubt, in the case in hand, the allegations are serious, even the circumstances somewhat seem to support them, even the consequences are quite apparent, yet the material on record is not within the degree of conclusive proof on the basis of which firm findings of fact could have been returned. These at best may have given rise to a strong suspicion, but yet could not have been held to be conclusive. The truth must surface in the interest of those who are accusing and/or are being accused, therefore, to reach a definite conclusion, the investigation and disciplinary proceedings are inevitable whereafter alone the guilt, if any, of the police officials can be established.
> 12.This Court otherwise cannot be oblivious to the fact that in teeth of such firm findings as recorded by the learned Single Judge, no subordinate court or even the disciplinary authority would dare to go beyond these findings. More so when the order passed by the learned Single Judge does not even state that the findings as recorded are only tentative or prima-facie. Obviously, therefore, the findings so recorded in our considered view amounts to pre-judging the issues because the matter is pending investigation/disciplinary proceedings and it is possible that on its conclusion the Court /disciplinary authority may have sufficient material with it on the basis of which whatever has been said in the judgment could be sustained. However, it is equally possible that the material which the Court/ disciplinary authority may collect may not be enough to substantiate those allegations. When both the possibilities are there, the learned Single Judge should not have returned firm findings at this pre-mature stage."

39. Nonetheless, it has to be remembered that whenever human dignity is wounded, civilization takes a step backward. It is a collective assault on human dignity which cannot be tolerated and, in such circumstances, I have no option but to direct respondents No.1 to 3 to register a criminal case against respondent No.5 and, at the same time, direct departmental proceedings against respondent No.5. Needless to observe that since respondent No.5 is admittedly an Inspector rank police official, these proceedings/inquiry shall be conducted by a high ranking Officer of the Police, not below the rank of Superintendent of Police.

40. Coming to the question of compensation, the same can only be awarded if the guilt of respondent No.5 is established in the aforesaid criminal and departmental proceedings.

41. In view of the aforesaid discussion, the petition is partly allowed and respondents No.1 to 3 are directed to register a criminal case as also initiate disciplinary proceedings against respondent No.5 to be conducted by an Officer not below the rank of Superintendent of Police and conclude the same as expeditiously as possible and in no event later than 31st March, 2017. Respondents No.1 to 3 are directed to initiate criminal proceedings against respondent No.5 by lodging FIR and thereafter take the same to its logical end within the aforesaid period i.e. 31.03.2017.

42. The petition is disposed of in the aforesaid terms, so also the pending applications, if any.

RSA No. 357 of 2007.
Reserved on 1.9.2016.
Decided on: 21.9.2016.

Indian Succession Act, 1925- Section 63- Suit land was earlier owned by K who died intestate- defendants No. 1 and 2 got attested mutation of inheritance on the basis of bogus Will stated to have been executed by K- suit was opposed by the defendants by filing written statement pleading that K had executed a Will in favour of the defendants No. 1 and 2- suit was decreed by the trial Court- an appeal was preferred, which was dismissed- held, in second appeal that propounder of the Will had played an active role in the execution of the Will- PW-4 stated that Will was already written prior to his arrival and the testator had not put his signatures in his presence- it was upon the propounder to remove the suspicious circumstances surrounding the execution of the Will- original Will was not produced and the reason for withholding it was also not satisfactory- no presumption can be drawn by the registration of the Will- Courts had rightly held that execution of the Will was not proved- appeal dismissed. For respondents No.1 to 4. : Mr. G.R. Palsra, Advocate.
For remaining respondents : None.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Ajay Mohan Goel, J.

This appeal has been filed by appellants/defendants against the judgment and decree passed by the Court of learned District Judge, Kullu in Civil Appeal No. 93 of 2005 dated 29.6.2007 vide which, learned appellate court while upholding the judgment and decree passed by the Court of learned Civil Judge (Jr. Division), Manali in Civil Suit No. 38 of 2004/148 of 2000 dated 18.10.2005, dismissed the appeal filed against the same by the appellants.

2. This appeal was admitted on 5.12.2008, on the following substantial questions of law:-

> "Whether on proper construction and interpretation of the registered Will Ext. DW1/A, it could be held that it was the last Will of the testator and valid presumption of a valid execution and disposition by the testator in favour of the beneficiary was to be raised?
>
> Whether on the basis of an application being allowed under Section 65 of the Indian Evidence Act to lead secondary evidence, the certified copy of the registered Will was sufficient to have proved that the Will was validly executed and registered, the certified copy being compared with the copy of the Sub Registrar and duly proved by the Sub Registrar regarding the attestation of the same and whether such mode of proof was not sufficient as observed the courts below?
>
> Whether the endorsement by the Sub Registrar that the executant had acknowledged the execution before him amounts to attestation and whether such attestation holding the signatures and thumb impression of the identifying witness, testator and the attesting witness is sufficient to discharge the onus of proof?
> Whether, on the collusion of the attesting witness with the other party, the Sub Registrar can be taken to be an attesting witness and treated as such for the purpose of proving the execution of the Will, and the onus on the propounder stands discharged?"

3. Brief facts necessary for adjudication of the present case are that a suit was filed by respondents/plaintiffs (hereinafter to be referred as "the plaintiffs") to the effect that suit land measuring 17-8-5 bighas which was owned and possessed by Smt. Kamla was inherited after her death by plaintiffs No.1 to 4 and defendants No.1 and 4 in equal shares as absolute owners thereof. Smt. Kamla was widow of Sh. Narain Dass who was real brother of the father of plaintiffs and defendants No.1 and 4. As per plaintiffs, they along with defendants No.1 and 4 and their father Lal Dass and Narain Dass and Kamla Devi lived jointly and constituted a joint family. As per plaintiffs, Kamla Devi lived with them and defendants No.1 and 4 and it was only the plaintiffs who rendered their services and maintained her and also cultivated the suit land. Kamla Devi died intestate on 14.11.1997 and her last rites were performed by defendant No.4. Thereafter the suit property was inherited by plaintiffs and defendants No.1 and 4 in equal shares being heirs of the deceased and thereafter they became owners in possession of the suit land. As per plaintiffs, defendant No.1 was a clever person and with his ulterior motive to grab the shares of plaintiffs in connivance with revenue officials and defendant No.2, he managed the mutation of deceased Kamla Devi behind the back of the plaintiff in his favour and in favour of defendant No.2 which was wrong and illegal. Further as per plaintiffs, since the last week of July, 2000, defendant No.1 started proclaiming himself that he was the sole heir of deceased Kamla Devi where-after plaintiffs made inquiries which revealed that said defendant behind their back and without any notice to them had managed the attestation of mutation of the suit land in his own name and in the name of defendant No.2 on the basis of one bogus Will. According to plaintiffs, Kamla Devi died intestate and she had not executed any Will nor there was any occasion for her to execute the same. According to plaintiffs, Will dated 24.1.1994 was bogus and fictitious and the same had been set up and forged by defendants No.1 and 2 with an ulterior motive to grab the share of plaintiffs in connivance with the scribe and marginal witnesses after the death of Kamla Devi. It was further the case of plaintiffs that Mutation No. 1294 was illegal, void and inoperative and plaintiffs were not bound by the same. On these bases that the suit was filed by plaintiffs.

4. The claim as put-forth in the plaint was denied by defendants No.1 and 2. It was denied by said defendants in the written statement that Kamla Devi had died intestate. As per defendants deceased Kamla Devi had executed registered Will dated 24.1.1994 in favour of defendants No.1 and 2 and her last rites were performed by defendants No.1 and 2. It was denied by defendants that after the death of Kamla Devi, suit land was inherited by plaintiffs and defendant No.1 and 4 in equal shares. Defendants also justified the mutation which was attested in their favour based on the Will which was executed in their favour by Kamla Devi. It was denied by defendants that Will which was executed in their favour by Kamla Devi was a bogus Will. According to said defendants, after the death of Narain Dass, Kamla Devi brought defendant No.2 to her house who at the relevant time was studying in 4th Class and firstly they were brought up, educated and maintained by Kamla Devi and her husband and when he became major along with defendant No.1, both of them rendered services to Kamla Devi and also managed her household and agricultural affairs. According to defendants, plaintiffs had never rendered any services to Kamla Devi and Will dated 24.1.1994 had been executed by her in favour of defendants No.1 and 2 out of love and affection and in lieu of services rendered by them to her.

5. On the basis of pleadings of the parties and material placed on record, the learned Trial Court framed the following issues:-

> "1.Whether the parties are joint owners in possession of the suit land, as alleged ? OPP.
>
> 2. Whether the plaintiffs have got no locus standi and cause of action to file the present suit? OPD 1 and 2.
>
> 3. Whether suit is bad for non joinder of necessary parties? OPD 1 and 2.
>
> 4. Whether suit has not been properly valued for the purpose of Court fee and jurisdiction? OPD 1 and 2.
>
> 5. Whether Smt. Kamla Devi-deceased executed a valid and last Will dated 24.1.1994 in favour of defendants No.1 and 2? OPD 1 and 2.
> 6. Relief"

6. The learned Trial Court returned the following findings on the said issues:-

> "Issue No.1 : Yes.
>
> Issue No.2 : No.
>
> Issue No.3 : No.
>
> Issue No.4 : No.
>
> Issue No.5 : No.
> Relief : The suit is decree, per operative part of the judgment."

7. Accordingly, learned trial court vide its judgment dated 18.10.2005 decreed the suit of the plaintiffs by holding that the plaintiffs and defendants No.1 and 4 were jointly owners in possession of land measuring 17-8-5 bighas subject matter of the suit being legal heirs of deceased Kamla Devi. It was further held by learned trial court that mutation No. 1294 was wrong, illegal and void and mutations No. 1338 and 1339 were also wrong, illegal and void.

8. Feeling aggrieved by the said judgment and decree passed by learned trial court, defendants therein filed an appeal. Learned appellate court vide its judgment and decree dated 29.6.2007 while upholding the judgment and decree passed by learned trial court dismissed the appeal so filed by the defendants. It is pertinent to mention that plaintiffs had also filed cross-objections against the judgment and decree passed by learned trial court and the said cross-objections were also dismissed by learned appellate court.

9. The judgment and decree so passed by learned trial court in favour of the plaintiffs and upheld in appeal by learned appellate court is challenged by the appellants/defendants by way of this appeal.

10. According to Mr. Sanjeev Kuthiala, learned counsel for the appellant, the finding so returned by both the learned courts below are erroneous and not sustainable. According to Mr. Kuthiala the execution of the Will in issue stood duly proved in consonance with the provisions of Section 63 of the Indian Succession Act and this very important aspect of the matter had been ignored by both the learned courts below. He further argued that both the learned courts below had erred in not appreciating that application filed under Section 65 of the Indian Evidence Act was allowed by the learned trial court vide order dated 21.5.2004.

11. On the other hand it was submitted by Mr. G.R. Palsra learned counsel for respondents No.1 to 4 that the factum of there not being any valid Will executed by late Smt. Kamla in favour of defendants No.1 and 2 stood concurrently decided in favour of the present appellant and the said finding returned by both the learned courts below did not warrant any interference in the second appeal. Mr. Palsra further argued that even otherwise, there is no infirmity with the findings returned in this regard by both the learned courts below because the execution of the Will in issue could not be proved by the defendants as was rightly held by both the learned courts below. Mr. Palsra further submitted that there was no question of presumption of valid execution and disposition of the testator in favour of beneficiary when the suspicion surrounding the execution of the Will could not be explained satisfactorily by the propounder of the Will. Accordingly, he argued that there was no merit in the appeal and the same be dismissed.

12. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and also gone through the records of the case as well as judgments and decrees passed by both the courts below.

13. In the present case there is a concurrent finding recorded by both the learned courts below to the effect that Kamla Devi never executed any Will dated 24.1.1994 in favour of defendants No.1 and 2. The Will in issue is on record as Ext. DW1/A. The Will bears the signatures of the testator Kamla Devi. The scribe of the Will was Mansukh and Dhayan Singh was the marginal witness of the execution of the said Will.

14. Mansukh has entered the witness box as DW3 and he has stated that he has seen the second copy of Will and this Will was scribed by him on the asking of Kamla Devi. He has further deposed that the Will was read over to Kamla Devi and after accepting the contents thereof to be correct, she had appended her signatures on the original Will as well as the second copy of the same. He further stated that witness had also appended signatures in the presence of Kamla Devi. He further stated that at the relevant time Kamla Devi was in sound and disposing state of mind and she was in a position to understand what was good and bad for her. In his cross-examination he admitted it to be correct that in the second copy he had not written that the same was true copy of the original. He further stated that he cannot say that second copy was the true copy of the original or not.

15. Dhayan Singh entered the witness box as DW4 and this witness deposed that Kamla Devi had got one Will scribed through Mansukh and that he had seen the second copy of the same. This witness further stated that the Will was read over and after understanding the contents thereof, Kamla Devi had appended her signatures on the same and thereafter he had also signed the same. He stated that he appended his signatures in the presence of Kamla Devi and she was in a sound and disposing state of mind. In his cross-examination this witness deposed that he came after some time of the scribing of the Will. He further stated that he reached the Tehsil on that day between 1:30 and 2:00 p.m. He further stated that he had come there because of his own work. He further admitted in his cross-examination that Kamla Devi did not append her signatures Mark Y, Mark Z and Mark Z1 on Ext. DW1/A in his presence. This witness further stated in his cross-examination that he was asked to be a witness to the execution of the Will by Keshav and he had become a witness to the same on the asking of Keshav and he did not know Kamla Devi. He further stated that Keshav met him in the Tehsil. Another important thing which is stated in his cross-examination was that the Will in fact already stood scribed before he reached there and after his arrival only his name and address was written.

16. Section 63 of the Indian Succession Act clearly lays down that every testator shall execute his/her Will according to the following rules:-

> (a) The testator shall sign or shall affix his mark to the will, or it shall be signed by some other person in his presence and by his direction.
>
> (b) The signature or mark of the testator, or the signature of the person signing for him, shall be so placed that it shall appear that it was intended thereby to give effect to the writing as a will.
> (c) The will shall he attested by two or more witnesses, each of whom has seen the testator sign or affix his mark to the will or has seen some other person sign the will, in the presence and by the direction of the testator, or has received from the testator a personal acknowledgment of his signature or mark, or of the signature of such other person; and each of the witnesses shall sign the will in the presence of the testator, but it shall not be necessary that more than one witness be present at the same time, and no particular form of attestation shall be necessary."

17. Coming to the facts of the present case, it has clearly and categorically come in the testimony of DW4 that the Will in issue was already scribed when he reached and after his arrival only his name and address were scribed on the Will. He further stated in his cross-examination that the testator of the Will did not append her signatures on the same in his presence. In the present case it is apparent that the propounder of the Will Keshav had played an active role in the execution of purported Will Ext. DW1/A.

18. It has been held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in H. Venkatachala Iyengar Vs. B.N. Thimmajamma, AIR 1959 SC 443, that in the cases in which execution of the Will is surrounded by suspicious circumstances, it may raise a doubt as to whether the testator was acting of her own free will. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has further held that in such circumstances, the initial onus is on the propounder to remove all reasonable doubts in the matter. The presence of suspicious circumstances makes initial onus heavier. Such suspicion cannot be removed by the mere assertion of the propounder that the Will bears signature of the testator or that the testator was in a sound and disposing state of mind at the time when the Will was made.

19. In the present case, the propounder of the Will has failed to discharge this initial onus as she has not been able to remove all reasonable doubts in the matter. Though the purpose of the Will is to deprive the natural heirs from the devolution of the property as per natural succession, however, if the Will is suspicious, then the onus is upon the propounder of the Will to remove that suspicion and if the propounder succeeds in removing the suspicious circumstances, then the Court has to give effect to the Will, even if it has cut off whole or in part near relations.

20. It is a matter of record that in the present case the original Will was not produced by the defendants and in fact they led secondary evidence in order to prove the execution of Will, Ext. DW4/A, by stating that the original Will was lost. In this regard, it is relevant to refer to the averments which were made by the defendants in the application which was filed under Section 65 of the Indian Evidence Act for permitting them to lead secondary evidence.

21. Para 3 and 4 of the said application read as under:-

> "3. That after the execution and registration of the aforesaid Will dated 24.1.1994, the same was kept in safe custody by the defendants No.1 and 2 and after the death of

Smt. Kamla Devi, the estate left by her has been inherited by the defendants No.1 and 2 on the basis of the aforesaid Will and the mutation to this effect has also been attested and sanctioned in favour of the defendants No.1 and 2.

4. That the original Will dated 24.1.1994 executed by said Kamla Devi during her life time, is now lost and the defendants tried their level best to trace out the same but the same is not traceable as such the defendants No.1 and 2 are not in a position to produce the aforesaid original Will dated 24.1.1994."

22. However, Keshav Ram who entered the witness box as DW2 stated in his cross-examination that the original Will was with him and thereafter he stated that he had handed it over to the Advocate. Application for permission to lead additional evidence is dated 21.4.2004. DW2 Keshav Ram entered the witness box on 17.8.2004. Learned trial Court allowed the application filed by the defendants to lead additional evidence vide order dated 21.5.2004. The only conclusion which can be drawn from what has been discussed above is that either the averments which were made in the application filed by defendants for permitting them to lead secondary evidence were incorrect and wrong or the statement made by DW2 in the Court was incorrect and wrong. However, keeping in view the fact that DW2 had entered the witness box subsequently then the filing of application by the defendants to lead secondary evidence, it is apparent that the application which was filed by the defendants for permitting them to lead secondary evidence were based on incorrect facts.

23. Be that as it may, it remains a matter of fact that the original Will was not produced by defendants on the pretext that the same was lost but Keshav Ram in his cross examination categorically stated that the Will was in his possession and thereafter he stated that the same was handed over to him by his Lawyer. The only conclusion which can only be drawn from the said conduct of the defendants is that the original Will was purposely withheld by them from the Court and this itself becomes a suspicious circumstance regarding the execution of the Will which in my considered view defendants miserably failed to dispel.

24. Further coming to Will, Ext. DW1/A, in his cross examination Mansukh who entered the witness box as DW3 has deposed that he cannot say that the second copy of the Will was true copy of the original Will, therefore, in this view of the matter also in my considered view defendants were not able to remove the suspicion circumstances surrounding the Will. Perusal of judgments passed by both the learned courts below will demonstrate that both the learned courts below have taken into consideration the evidence on record and after discussing the same in detail they have come to the conclusion that defendants could not prove that Will Ext. DW1/A was a valid Will executed by Kamla Devi in their favour. It cannot be said that the findings so arrived at by the learned courts below are either perverse or not borne out from the records. The contention of the learned counsel for the appellant that because the Will in issue is a registered Will, therefore, presumption is in favour of the said Will that it is a validly executed Will also deserves rejection because the document in issue was registered in itself is not sufficient to dispel all the other related suspicious circumstances regarding the validity of the Will. In my considered view had the defendants been able to dispel the suspicious circumstances surrounding the execution of the Will then the factum of the said Will being a registered document would they had come to their rescue in the absence of the original Will being on record. However in the present case the appellant/defendants have miserably failed to prove that Ext. DW1/A was a validly executed Will by Kamla Devi in their favour.

25. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in S.R. Srinivasa and others Vs. S. Padmavathamma, (2010) 5 Supreme Court Cases 274 held as under:-

"This Court in Iyengar case had clearly held that cases in which the execution of the will is surrounded by suspicious circumstances, it may raise a doubt as to whether the testator was acting of his own free will. In such circumstances it is a part of the initial onus of the propounder to remove all reasonable doubts in the matter. The presence of suspicious circumstances makes initial onus heavier. Such suspicion cannot be removed by the mere assertion of the propounder that the will bears signature of the testator or that the testator was in a sound and disposing state of mind at the time when the will was made"

26. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Bharpur Singh and others Vs. Shamsher Singh, (2009) 3 Supreme Court Cases 687 has held as under:-

"14. The legal principles in regard to proof of a will are no longer res integra. A will must be proved having regard to the provisions contained in clause (c) of Section 63 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925 and Section 68 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, in terms whereof the propounder of a will must prove its execution by examining one or more attesting witnesses. Where, however, the validity of the Will is challenged on the ground of fraud, coercion or undue influence, the burden of proof would be on the caveator. In a case where the Will is surrounded by suspicious circumstances, it would not be treated as the last testamentary disposition of the testator.

15. This Court in H. Venkatachala Iyengar vs. B.N. Thimmajamma opined that the fact that the propounder took interest in execution of the Will is one of the factors which should be taken into consideration for determination of due execution of the Will. It was also held that: (AIR p. 451, para 19) > one of the important features which distinguishes Will from other documents is that the Will speaks from the date of death of the testator, and so, when it is propounded or produced before a court, the testator who has already departed the world cannot say whether it is his will or not; and this aspect naturally introduces an element of solemnity in the decision of the question as to whether the document propounded is proved to be the last will and testament of the departed testator.

16. In H. Venkatachala case, it was also held that the propounder of will must prove:

> (i) that the Will was signed by the testator in a sound and disposing state of mind duly understanding the nature and effect of disposition and he put his signature on the document of his own free will, and
>
> (ii) when the evidence adduced in support of the Will is disinterested, satisfactory and sufficient to prove the sound and disposing state of testator's mind and his signature as required by law, Courts would be justified in making a finding in favour of propounder, and
>
> (iii) If a Will is challenged as surrounded by suspicious circumstances, all such legitimate doubts have to be removed by cogent, satisfactory and sufficient evidence to dispel suspicion. In other words, the onus on the propounder can be taken to be discharged on proof of the essential facts indicated therein.

It was moreover held: (H. Venkatachala case, AIR p. 452, para 20)

> "20. There may, however, be cases in which the execution of the will may be surrounded by suspicious circumstances. The alleged signature of the testator may be very shaky and doubtful and evidence in support of the propounder's case that the signature in question is the signature of the testator may not remove the doubt created by the appearance of the signature; the condition of the testator's mind may appear to be very feeble and debilitated; and evidence adduced may not succeed in removing the legitimate doubt as to the mental capacity of the testator; the dispositions made in the will may appear to be unnatural, improbable or unfair in the light of relevant circumstances; or, the will may otherwise indicate that the said dispositions may not be the result of the testator's free will and mind. In such cases the court would naturally expect that all legitimate suspicions should be completely removed before the document is accepted as the last will of the testator. The presence of such suspicious circumstances naturally tends to make the initial onus very heavy; and, unless it is satisfactorily discharged, courts would be reluctant to treat the document as the last will of the testator. It is true that, if a caveat is filed alleging the exercise of undue influence, fraud or coercion in respect of the execution of the will propounded, such pleas may have to be proved by the caveators; but, even without such pleas circumstances may raise a doubt as to whether the testator was acting of his own free will in executing the will, and in such circumstances, it would be a part of the initial onus to remove any such legitimate doubts in the matter."

17. This Court in Niranjan Umeshchandra Joshi vs. Mrudula Jyoti Rao held: (SCC pp. 447-48, paras 33-34)

"33. The burden of proof that the Will has been validly executed and is a genuine document is on the propounder. The propounder is also required to prove that the testator has signed the Will and that he had put his signature out of his own free will having a sound disposition of mind and understood the nature and effect thereof. If sufficient evidence in this behalf is brought on record, the onus of the propounder may be held to have been discharged. But, the onus would be on the applicant to remove the suspicion by leading sufficient and cogent evidence if there exists any. In the case of proof of Will, a signature of a testator alone would not prove the execution thereof, if his mind may appear to be very feeble and debilitated. However, if a defence of fraud, coercion or undue influence is raised, the burden would be on the caveator. [See Madhukar D. Shende v. Tarabai Aba Shedage and Sridevi v. Jayaraja Shetty.) Subject to above, proof of a Will does not ordinarily differ from that of proving any other document.

34. There are several circumstances which would have been held to be described (sic) by this Court as suspicious circumstances:

(i) When a doubt is created in regard to the condition of mind of the testator despite his signature on the Will;

(ii) When the disposition appears to be unnatural or wholly unfair in the light of the relevant circumstances;

(iii) Where propounder himself takes prominent part in the execution of Will which confers on him substantial benefit.

[See H. Venkatachala Iyengar v. B.N. Thimmajamma and T.K. Ghosh's Academy v. T.C. Palit.]"

27. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Kashibai and another Vs. Parwatibai and others, 1996 (1) S.L.J. 315 has held as under:-

11. Here we may also take note of the definition of the expression "attested" as contained in Section 3 of the Transfer of Property Act which reads as under:-

"3. attested", in relation to an instrument, means and shall be deemed always to have meant attested by two or more witnesses each of whom has seen the executant sign or affix his mark to the instrument, or has seen some other person sign the instrument in the presence and by the direction of the executant, or has received from the executant a personal acknowledgement of his signature or mark, or of the signature of such other person, and each of whom has signed the instrument in the presence of the executant but it shall not be necessary that more than one of such witnesses shall have been present at the same time, and no particular form of attestation shall be necessary."

Having regard to the afore-mentioned definition an attesting witness is a person who in the presence of an executant of a document puts his signature or mark after he has either seen the executant himself or someone on direction of the executant has put his signature or affixed his mark on the document so required to be attested or after he has received from the executant a personal acknowledgement of his signature or mark or the signature or mark of such other person. In the present case the trial Court after a close scrutiny and analysis of the evidence of the defendant No. 1, Smt. Parvati Bai, Vir Bhadra. Sheikh Nabi. Shivraj and Gyanoba Patil who are witnesses to the will recorded the finding that none of them deposed that Lachiram had signed the said will before them and they had attested it. None of them except Sheikh Nabi even deposed as to when the talk about the execution of will was held. The witness Sheikh Nabi, however, deposed that the talk about the will also took place at the time of the talk about the adoption. But this witness too did not depose that deceased Lachiram had signed the alleged will in his presence. In the absence of such evidence it is difficult to accept that the execution of the alleged will was proved in accordance with law as required by Section 68 of the Evidence Act read with Section 63 of the Indian Succession Act and Section 3 of the Transfer of Property Act. It may be true as observed by the High Court that law does not emphasis that the witness must use the language of the Section to prove the requisite merits thereof but it is also not permissible to assume something which is required by law to be specifically proved. The High Court simply assumed that Lachiram must have put his signature on the will Deed in the presence of the attesting witness Sheikh Nabi simply because the Deed of Adoption is admitted by the witness to have been executed on the same day. The High Court committed a serious error in making the observations that broad parameters of Nabi's evidence would show that Lachiram executed the will in his presence, that he signed the will being part of the execution of the testament and this evidence in its correct background would go to show that what was required under Section 63 has been carried out in the execution of the will. With respect to the High Court we may say that these findings of the High Court are clearly based on assumption and surmises and, totally against the weight of the evidence on record. The trial Court on a close and thorough analysis of the entire evidence came to a proper conclusion that the will has not been proved in accordance with law which finding has been further affirmed by the lower appellate Court after an independent reappraisal of entire evidence with which we find ourselves in agreement as there was hardly any scope or a valid reason for the High Court to interfere with."

Therefore, in view of the discussion held above as well as the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court it cannot be said that the findings returned by both the learned courts below to the effect that defendants were not able to prove valid execution of Will Ext. DW2/A in their favour. Both the learned courts below have correctly come to the conclusion that the defendants were not able to prove the valid execution of Will Ext. DW4/A in accordance with law. The substantial question of law is answered accordingly and as a result thereof, the appeal is dismissed with costs.

For the Respondents: Mr. J.R. Poswal, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Tarlok Singh Chauhan J.

This Regular Second Appeal under Section 100 of the Code of Civil Procedure is directed against the judgment and decree dated 16.7.2005, passed by learned District Judge, Shimla H.P. in Civil Appeal No. 109/S/13 of 2002, whereby the judgment and decree dated 12.9.2002, passed by learned Sub Judge, Court No. 4, Shimla in Civil Suit No. 413/1 of 1996/94 was affirmed.

2. The brief facts leading to filing of the present appeal are that the plaintiffs (herein after referred to as the respondents) filed a suit for declaration against the defendants (herein after referred to as the appellants) to the effect that they are owners of the properties left behind by late Sh. Hira Lal alias Har Lal, son of Sh. Dharam Dass, Residents of Village Okhru in equal shares, being his son and widow, respectively. It was averred that at the time of death deceased had share in Khata Khatuni No. 2/3, 3/3, 4/4, 5 of village Okhru and Khata Khatuni No. 3/4, 4/5 to 6, 7/9, 8/10 of village Jania, as per jamabandi for the year 1984-85. In the alternative it was submitted that if respondent No. 2 is not found entitled to the share left behind by deceased (Hira Lal), then respondent No. 1 was the exclusive owner of the property left behind by deceased Hira Lal, who died in the year 1987. At the time of death, respondent No. 1 was alleged to be minor. It was averred that the respondents all the time remained under the impression that the property left by deceased was safe in the hands of the appellants. However, in the month of January, 1994, the respondents came to know that the appellants have got the mutation of immoveable property of the deceased attested in their favour, concealing the fact that respondents are the legal heirs of the deceased.

3. The suit was contested by appellants by filing written statement, wherein number of preliminary objections were raised viz maintainability, locus standi, limitation, estoppal, valuation for the purpose of court fee and jurisdiction, jurisdiction of the court to try and determine the suit, bad for failure to join all the necessary parties, as well as, not maintainable in view of the decision in H.M.A. Case No. 69-S/3 of 1976, dated 14.6.1976, titled as Hari Lal Vs. Maina Devi, decided by learned District Judge, Shimla. It was alleged that the parties are bound by the decision dated 14.6.1976. The main ground for opposing the claim of the respondents was that the deceased made a specific statement that respondent No. 1 was not his son and he had no claim over him. This statement was made in the Court in the above case and was admitted to be correct by respondent No. 2. The entirety of the pleadings reveals that the property had not been succeeded by the appellants by any testamatory document, but as per succession, excluding the respondents.

4. Respondents/plaintiffs filed replication, wherein it was specifically alleged that the order passed in H.M.A. Case does not bind the parties. A stand was taken that no divorce was possible except by a decree of divorce passed by the competent Court under the Hindu Marriage Act. It was alleged that there was no custom applicable to the parties, whereby any divorce was permissible outside the Court. It was further alleged that the right of respondent No. 1 could not have been taken away by the statement of respondent No. 2. Respondent No. 2 was alleged to be an illiterate woman. An attempt was made in the replication to show that the said signatures on this statement were obtained by coercive means.

5. On 16.10.2000, learned trial Court framed the following issues:-

"1. Whether the plaintiffs are entitled to the declaration that they are the only legal heirs of Hira Lal and entitled to the suti property, as prayed for? OPP

2. If the issue No. 1 is answered in affirmative, whether the mutation attested in favour of the defendants is illegal and void, as prayed for? OPP

3. Whether the plaintiffs in alternative are entitled for the relief of joint possession, as prayed for? OPP

4. Whether the present suit is not maintainable, as alleged? OPD

5. Whether the plaintiffs have no locus standi to file the present suit, as alleged? OPD

6. Whether the plaintiffs are estopped to file the present suit, as alleged? OPD

7. Whether the present suit is not properly valued for the purpose of court fee and jurisdiction, as alleged? OPD

8. Whether the plaintiffs' suit was barred by limitation, as alleged? OPD

9. Relief."

6. The learned trial Court after recording the evidence and evaluating the same decreed the suit. However, the appeal preferred against the same was dismissed. Aggrieved by the judgment and decree passed by the learned first appellate Court, the defendants have filed the instant appeal, which came to be admitted on the following substantial questions of law:-

"1. Whether the learned first Appellate Court erred in law and fact in holding that respondent No. 1 Vidya Sagar is the son of the deceased Hari Lal?

2. Whether the suit of the respondents-plaintiffs was beyond the period of limitation?

Question No. 1

7. At the outset, it may be observed that the question as framed is erroneous, as it was not the appellate Court alone but even the learned trial Court who concurrently held that respondent No. 1, Vidya Sagar to be the son of deceased Hari Lal. Be that as it may. Evidently, one of the parties to the marriage, i.e. Hari Lal is no more and the dispute has arisen only after his death. There is no dispute that Hari Lal was married to respondent No. 2, Maina Devi, but he disputed respondent No. 1 to be his son and this is clearly evident from the order passed by the then District Judge in matrimonial proceedings on 4.3.1977, which reads thus:-

"Parties with their counsel are present.

This petition has been preferred u/s 13/10 of H.M.A. Act on various grounds. Statements of petitioner and respondent recorded. The petitioner has stated that he has divorced the respondent outside the court according to the custom, that there is custom of divorce in his family and Illaqua, that son born to the respondent named Vidya Sagar is not from his loins and he has no claim over him and the respondent can bring up the said child and he has no objection and he will have no claim over the said child. The respondent has stated that she has heard the statement of the petitioner, which was explained to her in Hindustani and that it was correct and that they have divorced each other outside the court.

In view of the statements of the parties, this petition under Section 13/10 of Hindu Marriage Act has become infructuous, and is hereby dismissed. There is no order as to costs. The file after completion, according to procedure be considered to record room. Order announced in the open court."

8. Section 112 of the Evidence Act reads thus:-

"112. Birth during marriage, conclusive proof of legitimacy.—The fact that any person was born during the continuance of a valid marriage between his mother and any man, or within two hundred and eighty days after its dissolution, the mother remaining unmarried, shall be conclusive proof that he is the legitimate son of that man, unless it can be shown that the parties to the marriage had no access to each other at any time when he could have been begotten."

9. It is evidently clear from the aforesaid Section that law presumes strongly in favour of the legitimacy of the offspring. A child born during the continuance of valid marriage is legitimate, unless non access is proved by the husband. The proof of non access must be strong, distinct, clear, satisfactory and conclusive and unless such absence of access is established, presumption of legitimacy cannot be displaced. Once there is no dispute that respondent No. 2 was legally wedded wife of deceased Hari Lal, then the legal presumption of paternity raised by Section 112 is fully applicable to the child of a married couple. No doubt, in this case, even respondent No. 2 had in her statement before the Court in the proceedings (supra) admitted the statement of late Sh. Hari Lal to be correct when he stated that respondent No. 1 was not born from his loins and he had no claim over him, but the said statement of either Hira Lal or respondent No. 2 cannot have any binding effect on respondent No. 1, who as stated above, was born during the continuance of a valid marriage between respondent No. 2 and deceased Hari Lal. Moreover, respondent No. 2's solemn admission of respondent No. 1's legitimacy (if any) will not overcome the presumption provided for in the aforesaid Section.

10. The Courts in Ireland have consistently held that a strong presumption of legitimacy arises where a child is born during the marriage. In Yool Vs. Ewing (1904 1 L.R. 434) Sir Andrew Porter M.R. stated:

"Now, the presumption of legitimacy in the case of a child born during wedlock is not own juris et de jurie …. The question is one of fact. But the presumption is of enormous strength, and will not be rebutted in an ordinary case, where husband and wife live together, by mere evidence, or even proof, that a person or persons other than the husband had improper relations with the wife. In such a case the law, on the clearest grounds of public policy and decency, will not allow any enquiry as to who is the father. But it might be otherwise (where) ….the husband and wife were not living under the same roof, though…there was clearly possibility of access."

The Court further held that even the wife's solemn admission of the child legitimacy will not overcome the presumption envisaged and contemplated under Section 112 of the Act.

11. The House of Lords in Russell Vs. Russell (1924) AC 687 held that neither a husband nor a wife is permitted to give evidence of non-intercourse after marriage to basterdize the child born from the wedlock. The question of law is accordingly answered against the appellants.

12. Apart from the above, it would be noticed that even the judgment passed in matrimonial proceedings will not have binding effect nor operate as resjudicata qua respondent No. 1. Admittedly, respondent No. 1 was not a party to the proceedings and secondly, the decree so passed was contrary to the existing law. There can be no dispute that on the date of passing of the decree i.e. 4.3.1977, the provisions of Hindu Marriage Act had come into force, which as per provision contained in Section 29 did protect the customary divorce, but then it was incumbent upon the party setting up such customs to plead and prove such custom.

13. It is well established by a long chain of decision that prevailing of customary divorce in a community to which the parties belonging contrary to general law of divorce must be specifically pleaded and established by the person performing such custom. Here it is apt to refer to the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Yamanaji H. Jadhav Vs. Nirmala (2002) 2 SCC 637, wherein it was held as under:-

"7. In the view that we are inclined to take in this appeal, we do not think it is necessary for us to go into the contentions advanced by the learned counsel for the parties in this case, because we find that the courts below have erroneously proceeded on the basis that the divorce deed relied upon by the parties in question was a document which is acceptable in law. It is to be noted that the deed in question is purported to be a document which is claimed to be in conformity with the customs applicable for divorce in the community to which the parties to this litigation belong to. As per the Hindu Law administered by courts in India divorce was not recognised as a means to put an end to marriage, which was always considered to be a sacrament, with only exception where it is recognized by custom. Public policy, good morals and the interests of society were considered to require and ensure that, if at all, severance should be allowed only in the manner and for the reason or cause specified in law. Thus such a custom being an exception to the general law of divorce ought to have been specially pleaded and established by the party propounding such custom since said custom of divorce is contrary to the law of the land and which, if not proved, will be a practice opposed to public policy. Therefore, there was an obligation on the trial court to have framed an issue whether there was proper pleadings by the party contending the existence of a customary divorce in the community to which the parties belonged and whether such customary divorce and compliance with the manner or formalities attendant thereto was in fact established in the case on hand to the satisfaction of the court. In the instant case, we have perused the pleadings of the parties before the trial court and we do not find any material to show that prevalence of any such customary divorce in the community, based on which the document of divorce was brought into existence was ever pleaded by the defendant as required by law or any evidence was led in this case to substantiate the same. It is true in the courts below that the parties did not specifically join issue in regard to this question and the lawyers appearing for the parties did orally agree that the document in question was in fact in accordance with the customary divorce prevailing in the community to which the parties belonged but this consensus on the part of the counsel or lack of sufficient pleading in the plaint or in the written statement would not, in our opinion, permit the court to countenance the plea of customary divorce unless and until such customary divorce is properly established in a court of law. In our opinion, even though the plaintiff might not have questioned the validity of the customary divorce, the court ought to have appreciated the consequences of their not being a customary divorce based on which the document of divorce has come into existence bearing in mind that a divorce by consent is also not recognisable by a court unless specifically permitted by law. Therefore, we are of the opinion to do complete justice in this case. It is necessary that the trial court be directed to frame a specific issue in regard to customary divorce based on which the divorce deed dated 26th of June, 1982 has come into existence and which is the subject matter of the suit in question. In this regard, we permit the parties to amend the pleadings, if they so desire and also to lead evidence to the limited extent of proving the existence of a provision for customary divorce (otherwise through the process of or outside court) in their community and then test the validity of the divorce deed dated 26.6.1982 based on the finding arrived at in deciding the new issue."

14. Evidently, the pleadings in the earlier suit have not been placed on record. A bare perusal of the order passed by the learned Court below would reveal that a decree of divorce has been passed only on the basis of statement of parties that they had divorced each other outside the Court. To say the least, this statement in itself was not sufficient to pass a decree, as observed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Yamanaji case (supra), the Hindu Law did not recognize divorce as a means to put an end the marriage, which was eventually considered sacrament, with only exception where it is recognized by custom. Public policy, good morals and the interests of society were considered to require and ensure that, if at all, severance should be allowed only in the manner and for the reason or cause specified in law. Thus such a custom being an exception to the general law of divorce ought to have been specially pleaded and established by the party propounding such custom since said custom of divorce is contrary to the law of the land and which, if not proved, will be a practice opposed to public policy.

15. That apart, once it is concluded that the decree was erroneous on the point of law, the same would not operate as resjudicate, as held by the Hon'ble three Judges Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Shakuntla Devi Vs. Kamla and others (2005) 5 SCC 390, wherein it was categorically held that where the question is one purely of law and it relates to the jurisdiction of the Court or a decision of the court sanctioning something which is illegal, by resort to the rule of res judicata a party affected by the decision will not be precluded from challenging the validity of that order under the rule of res judicata, for a rule of procedure cannot supersede the law of the land. The question of law is accordingly answered against the appellants.

Question No. 2.

16. It is vehemently contended by learned counsel for the appellants that the suit was hopelessly time barred and therefore, deserves to be dismissed. According to him, as per the admitted case Hari Lal died in the year 1987 and the suit was instituted only on 26.4.1994, after 6 years of death of Hari Lal. He would further contend that as per the admitted case of the parties, respondent No. 1 was born on 22.11.1972 and at the time of death of his father in the year 1987 was minor and attained majority in February, 1990 and therefore, the suit for declaration at best could have been brought within three years of attaining majority as per the provisions of Section 6 of the Limitation Act, 1963.

17. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondents would contend that as the suit property was joint between the parties and therefore, all co-owners including the respondents were deemed to be in possession of every inch of the property. He would further argue that no cause of action had arisen to the respondents prior to year 1994, when they came to know about the non sanction of mutation of landed property of late Sh.Hari Lal in their favour.

18. While answering substantial question No. 1, this Court has already held respondent No. 1 to be the son of late Sh.Hari Lal and once it is so, then obviously he was co-owner of the property.

19. Now the further question is as to whether the respondents in fact acquired knowledge regarding the sanction of mutation in the year 1994, as alleged by him. For answering this question one will have to fall back to the statement of PW-5, Vidya Sagar, plaintiff No. 1, who in his examination-in-chief has categorically stated that he for the first time in the year 1994 came to know regarding the sanction of mutation of inheritance of his father, whereby he and his mother had been excluded and earlier to that he was under the impression that their share is intact. This version on behalf of respondent No. 1 was accepted to be correct by the appellants, as they did not elect to challenge the same by subjecting respondent No. 1 to cross-examination and would, therefore, be considered to have been admitted by them.

20. In addition to the aforesaid, even when PW-3 Maina Devi (plaintiff No. 2) appeared in the witness box, she too had stated that she had acquired knowledge regarding the wrong revenue entries qua the property of late Hari Lal only in January, 1994 and prior to it she was not aware about the entries and was under the impression that their share is intact. Though in her cross-examination she has stated that she had visited the office of Patwari in the year 1987, but by that time mutation was not attested, which admittedly was attested later on 22.1.1988.

21 Therefore, it stands established that it was in the year 1994 when the respondents came to know about the wrong revenue entries qua the suit land, which furnished them cause of action to file the suit, which admittedly was filed on 26.4.1994 and is therefore, within limitation after accrual of cause of action in their favour. The question if answered accordingly.

In view of the aforesaid discussion, I find no merit in this appeal and the same is accordingly dismissed, leaving the parties to bear their costs.

For the Petitioner : In person.
For the Respondent : Mr. J. S. Guleria, Assistant Advocate General, for respondent No.1.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Tarlok Singh Chauhan, Judge.

The instant petition was initially filed under the provisions of Sections 2,10,11 and 12 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Act') and under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (hereinafter referred to as 'Code'). When the same came up for consideration before this court on 9.9.2016, the petitioner was asked to justify the maintainability of the petition and was also repeatedly informed that in case he is not prepared, the matter could be adjourned and he could also be provided free legal-aid. However, the petitioner insisted that he was fully prepared and would argue the petition himself and gave statement on oath to the effect that he does not seek to invoke the provision of the Act and the petition be treated as one having been filed only under section 482 of the Code and be treated as an appeal.

I have heard the petitioner.

2. Even after his statement had been recorded, the petitioner was again asked to justify the maintainability and yet again offered legal assistance, which he refused to accept and while addressing on the question of maintainability of the petition would argue that clerks of the Registry of this court had guided him to file this petition in the manner he did.

3. He would further argue that even at earlier occasion, he had filed a similar petition which was registered as Cr MMO No.282/2014 and, therefore, the petition on the basis of past precedents was very much maintainable.

4. Evidently, the order assailed in this petition emanates from the proceedings conducted by learned Special Judge, Kangra on 1.9.2016 in an application instituted by the petitioner under Sections 2 and 12 of the Contempt of Courts Act.

5. It would be noticed that while instituting the aforesaid application and even while adjudicating upon the same, no provisions of the 'Code' have been invoked and same was decided only under the provisions of the 'Act' and, therefore, on the face of it, the instant petition under Section 482 of the 'Code' is misconceived and liable to be dismissed. Advice given by the Registry (if at all given), to say the least, cannot be a ground to canvass and claim that the petition is maintainable.

6. As regards the reliance placed on above Cr.MMO, it would be noticed that the precise prayer made in the said petition was for registration of FIR which obviously could be granted by this court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.PC. There is no parity whatsoever in both the petitions, therefore, the said petition can hardly be cited as a precedent for invoking the jurisdiction of this court under Section 482 Cr.P.C.

7. Having answered the question in issue, I may now advert to a very disturbing feature of the case. Petitioner while assailing the impugned order has not only used intemperate and contemptuous language, but has even levelled allegations which are not only scandalous but tactically attribute motive to the learned Judge below as would be evident from paragraphs 2,3,4,7 and 8 of the petition and the same read thus:-

> "2.That while the contempt petition in question, as set forth hereinabove, ought to have been referenced in short order to this Honourable Court as the sole authority empowered to adjudicate the matter at hand under the law, with the voice of the aforementioned subordinate court of lower instance necessarily added to the voice of petitioner as either assenting to or dissenting from the allegations made, the aid lower court of Sh. Rajeev Bali, very learned Special Judge, Kangra Division at Dharamshala, HP, illegally entertained and adjudicated the contempt petition at issue on merits on its own and of its own accord, thereby (a) causing obstruction in the administration of justice amounting to unnecessary delay of eight months and nine days; (b) illicitly benefiting the accused in the case while directly harming the interest of justice; (c) illegally compounding, in effect, the criminally illegal, unnecessary delays in police investigations prohibited by statute; (d) illegally condoning criminal contempt of the High Court of HP as the author of decisional law in this case.
> 3.That petitioner complained of the unlawful state of affairs obtaining here, as set forth in para 2 hereinabove, to the Worthy Registrar General of the High Court of HP on 12 August, 2016. Following remedial actions taken by the Worthy Registrar General as a result of petitioner's complaint, the aforementioned very learned Special Judge, as set forth in paras 1 and 2 dismissed the contempt petition in question on 1st September, 2016 after 253 days of litigation. At the same time, the same very learned Special Judge levied a fine in the amount of five thousand rupees (Rs.5000) against petitioner for 'frivolous litigation'.

4.That the aforementioned very learned Special Judge, as set forth in paras 1 and 2, additionally accused petitioner deliberately concealing material facts from the court, an action which-if corroborated by evidence-ought to have resulted in criminal counteraction against petitioner for perjury, given that full disclosure had been averred by petitioner in the sworn affidavit supporting the petition in question, and given that material concealments would have been a serious matter not amounting to frivolity but patently amounting to criminality, and thus meriting a much sterner punishment than a mere fine. There is, however, no evidence to support such an allegation against petitioner, while the documentation cited in the impugned order does not support the conclusions reached there from, which prima facie seem therefore, to have been framed mala fide. The same may be said of the implicit answer given tacitly by the said very learned Special Judge loco citato to the further and separate question as to whether or not the point at issue, allegedly concealed by petitioner, is material to the cause in the first place, and in such a way as could substantively affect the legal outcome as concerns the determination of respondent State's non-compliance in question here. While nothing at all is said in the impugned order on the question of material relevance of the point in issue, the unspoken presumption of the impugned order is nevertheless that the said point is unquestionably material; whereas the truth is that it is not and that it does not affect the factum and the pleading in the instant cause. We are thus dealing here with a case of double judicial misconduct-false evidence against petitioner in a matter that is ipso facto immaterial- a judicial fraud of Chaucerian proportions, intended to exculpate respondent's offences at al cost and by any means, fair or foul. Even the Pardoner might blush here: there has never been any pleading here from respondent alleging the uncorroborated facts relied on by the impugned order.

7. That the impugned order of 1st September, 2016, as set forth on the title page and paras 3 and 4 hereinabove is illegal, unjust, and unreasonable as having been entered in violation of the dictates of such common sense as might be espoused by any rational mind with regard to its factum of the instant cause, the latter having been established fraudulently without supporting evidence. Moreover, petitioner has not filed any other competent petition pertaining to this case in any other court of law, except as disclosed herein.

8. That in view of the facts, circumstances and points of law as set forth in paras 1-7 hereinabove, petitioner prays your Lordships to quash and set aside the impugned order entered on 1st September, 2016 by the immensely learned Sh. Rajeev Bali, Special Judge, Kangra Division at Dharamshala, as illegal, unconscionable, and indeed scandalous, and to revive and reactivate the dismissed contempt petition, this to be pursed within this Honourable High Court of Himachal Pradesh in accordance with the provisions of law, so as to punish respondent for its contempt of court and obstruction of administration of justice in an exemplary fashion, by meting out thereto the maximum prison sentence allowed by the Contempt of Courts Act, given the gravity insidiousness, multiplicity, persistence and massive nature of the offences constituting the contempt in question, as considered in the light of their undermining not just the administration of justice in this one single case but tending to tear to shreds the very fabric of the Union of India's democracy given the extremely high degree of insidiousness and shamelessness of the illegalities involved on the part of a law-enforcement agent, including in its submissions to the lower court in the instant case. Petitioner additionally prays your Lordships to assign the investigation of the instant case to the Central Bureau of Investigation in the hope of finding therein a more professional, honest, impartial and law abiding investigative agency to carry out the same."

8. Though as observed above, the instant petition is not maintainable, but it is suggestive that it was the Special Judge who illegally entertained and adjudicated the contempt at issue on merits and of its own accord. This contention is not only preposterous, but is contrary to the record after all it is the petitioner who himself had filed this petition and cannot now turn round and impute motive to the learned Judge by alleging that (a) he caused obstruction in the administration of justice amounting to unnecessary delay of eight months and nine days; (b) illicitly benefiting the accused in the case while directly harming the interest of justice; (c) illegally compounding, in effect, the criminally illegal, unnecessary delays in police investigations prohibited by statute; (d) illegally condoning criminal contempt of the High Court of HP as the author of decisional law in this case.

9. That apart, it would be noticed that the learned court below had imposed a find of Rs.5000/- on the ground that the petitioner had misled the court by filing frivolous petition despite knowing that the time frame for completion of investigation had been extended by this court.

10. It is not in dispute that initially this court vide order dated 24.4.2015, had directed the respondents to re-investigate the case within two months. However, thereafter, respondents moved an application seeking extension of time for completion of the investigation and this court vide order dated 29.7.2015 granted further time of three months to them to complete the investigation and this order was duly communicated to the petitioner by the learned Deputy Advocate General vide letter dated 24.9.2015. The fact that the learned court below had been considerate enough in only imposing a nominal fine of Rs. 5000/- and not initiating any other proceedings like perjury against the petitioner, cannot be a ground to impute motive and assail the order that too by using intemperate language and casting unwarranted aspersions on the Judicial officer and attributing motive to him while he was discharging his judicial functions.

11. Evidently, the language used by the petitioner is intemperate and contemptuous and above all, this petition is loaded with sarcasm and innuendos and, therefore, this court has no hesitation to conclude that the petitioner has made deliberate attempt to interfere with the due course of judicial proceedings and such action could be construed to be obstructive or attending to obstruct the administration of justice.

12. It has to be remembered that the subordinate judiciary forms the very backbone of the administration of justice and the higher court would come down with a heavy hand for preventing the judges of the subordinate judiciary from being subjected to scurrilous and indecent attacks, which scandalize or have the tendency to scandalize, or lower or have the tendency to lower the authority of any court as also all such actions which interfere or tend to interfere with the due course of any judicial proceedings or obstruct or tend to obstruct the administration of justice in any other manner.

13. No affront to the majesty of law can be permitted. The fountain of justice cannot be allowed to be polluted by disgruntled litigants. The protection is necessary for the courts to enable them to discharge their judicial functions without fear. (Ajay Kumar Pandey, Advocate, (1998) 7 SCC 248).

14. It is well settled that litigant cannot be permitted to browbeat the court or terrorize or intimidate the Judges as held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Chetak Construction Ltd. v. Om Prakash (1998) 4 SCC 577:

"16. Indeed, no lawyer or litigant can be permitted to browbeat the court or malign the presiding officer with a view to get a favourable order. Judges shall not be able to perform their duties freely and fairly if such activities were permitted and in the result administration of justice would become a casualty and the rule of law would receive a setback. The Judges are obliged to decide cases impartially and without any fear or favour. Lawyers and litigants cannot be permitted to 'terrorise' or 'intimidate' Judges with a view to 'secure' orders which they want. This is basic and fundamental and no civilized system of administration of justice can permit it."

15. These observations were subsequently, reiterated in Radha Mohan Lal v. Rajasthan High Court (2003) 3 SCC 427.

16. It would be evident from the pleadings extracted above that the petitioner has made scurrilous and indecent attacks against the learned Presiding Judge which are not only indecent and distasteful, but on the face of it, are contemptuous. It is most Unbefitting for a litigant to make imputations against the Judge only because he does not get the expected result, which according to him is the fair and reasonable result available to him. Judges cannot be intimidated to seek favourable orders. Only because the party has appeared in person he does not get a licence thereby to commit contempt of the court by using intemperate language and casting unwarranted aspersions on the Judicial Officers and attributing motive to him while he was discharging his judicial functions. He cannot use language, either in pleadings or during arguments which is either intemperate or unparliamentarily. The safeguards are not for the protection of any Judge individually but are essential for maintaining the dignity and decorum of the courts. No doubt, fair comments, even if, outspoken, but made without any malice or attempting to impair the administration of justice and made in good faith, in proper language, do not attract any punishment for contempt of court. However, when from the criticism deliberate, motivated and calculated attempt is discernible to bring down the image of judiciary in the estimation of the public or to impair the administration of justice or tend to bring the administration of justice into disrepute, the courts must bestir themselves to uphold their dignity and the majesty of law. No system of justice can tolerate such unbridled licence on the part of a person to permit himself the liberty or scandalizing a court by casting unwarranted, uncalled for an unjustified aspersions on the integrity, ability, impartiality or fairness of a Judge in the discharge of his judicial functions as it amounts to an interference with the due course of administration of justice. (Jaswant Singh Vs. *Virender Singh (1995 (supp.1) SCC 384).

17. Indeed, no litigant can be permitted to brow beat the court or malign the Presiding Officer with a view to get a favourable order. Judges shall not be able to perform their duties freely and fairly if such activities are permitted or tolerated and justice would become a casualty and Rule of Law would receive a set back. The Judges are obliged to decide cases impartially and without any fear or favour. Litigants cannot, be allowed to 'terrorize' or 'intimidate' judges with a view to 'secure' orders which they want. This is basic and fundamental and no civilized system of administration of justice can permit it. Not only are the aspersions cast by the petitioner derogatory, scandalous and uncalled for, but also tend to bring the authority and administration of justice into disrespect.

18. This all has been done calculatedly by the petitioner in order to undermine the authority of the Courts and public confidence in the administration of justice. Contempt of Court is to keep a blaze the glory around the judiciary and to deter the people from attempting to render justice contemptible in the eyes of public. A libel upon the Court is a reflection upon the sovereign people themselves. The petitioner has tried to convey to the people that the administration of justice is weak or in corrupt hands and that the fountain of justice is tainted. Therefore, it is necessary to regulate the judicial process free from fouling the fountain of justice to ward off the people from undermining the confidence of the public in the purity of fountain of justice and due administration. Justice thereby remains pure, untainted and unimpeded. If the people's allegiance to the law is so fundamentally shaken, it is the most vital and most dangerous obstruction of justice calling for urgent action.

19. The petitioner has indulged in scandalizing the Court, which means hostile criticism of Judges as Judges or judiciary. The gravamen of the offence is lowering the dignity or authority or an affront to majesty of justice. The petitioner has challenged the authority of the Court and has, therefore, interfered with the performance of duties of Judge's office or judicial process or administration of justice that has the tendency of bringing the Judges or judiciary into contempt.

If the attempts of the petitioner are encouraged the judicial independence would vanish eroding the very edifice on which the institution of justice stands. Any action on the part of a litigant which has the tendency to interfere with or obstruct the due course of justice has to be dealt with sternly and firmly to uphold the majesty of law. None can be permitted to intimidate or terrorize Judges by making scandalous unwarranted and baseless imputations against them in the discharge of their judicial functions so as to secure orders which the litigant "wants".

20. The rule of law is the foundation of a democratic society and the judiciary is the guardian of the rule of law. If the judiciary is to perform its duties and functions effectively and remain true to the spirit with which they are sacredly entrusted, the dignity and authority of the Courts has to be respected and protected at all costs. It is for this reason that the Courts are entrusted with the extraordinary power of punishing those for contempt of court who indulge in acts whether inside or outside the Courts, which tend to undermine the authority of the Courts and bring them in disrepute and disrespect thereby obstructing them to discharge their official duties without fear or favour. This power is exercised by the Courts not to vindicate the dignity and honour of any individual Judge who is personally attacked or scandalized but with a view to uphold the majesty of law and the administration of justice. The foundation of the judiciary is the trust and the confidence of the people in its ability to deliver fearless and impartial justice and as such no action can be permitted to shake the very foundation itself. Thus, it is now settled that abuses, attribution of motives, vituperative terrorism and scurrilous and indecent attacks on the impartiality of the Judges in the pleadings, applications or other documents filed in the Court or otherwise published which have the tendency to scandalize and undermine the dignity of the Court and the majesty of law amounts to criminal contempt of court.

21. No doubt, the litigant has the freedom of expression and liberty to project his case forcefully, but it has to be remembered that while exercising this liberty he is required to maintain dignity, decorum and order in the Court proceedings. Liberty of free expression cannot be permitted to be treated as a licence to make reckless imputations against the impartiality of the Judges deciding the cases. Even criticism of the judgment has to be in a dignified and temperate language and without any malice. (See: D.C.Saxena vs. Hon'ble the Chief Justice of India (1996) 5 SCC 216, In Re: Ajay Kumar Pandey (1996) 6 SCC 510, Ajay Kumar Pandey, Advocate, in RE: (1998) 7 SCC 248, S.K.Sundaram: IN RE (2001) 2 SCC 171 and Arundhati Roy, IN RE (2002) 3 SCC 343).

22. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in M.B. Sanghi Vs. High Court of Punjab & Haryana (91) 3 SCC 600, while examining the similar case has observed as under (SCC p.602, para 2).

> "2.....The foundation of judicial system which is based on the independence and impartiality of those who man it will be shaken if disparaging and derogatory remarks are made against the presiding judicial officers with impunity. It is high time that we realise that the much cherished judicial independence has to be protected not only from the executive or the legislature but also from those who are an integral part of the system. An independent judiciary is of vital importance to any free society".

23. In Asharam M.Jain Vs. A.t. Gupta, (1983) 4 SCC 125, while dealing with the issue, this Court observed as under: (SCC p.127, para 3)

> "3.....The strains and mortification of litigation cannot be allowed to lead litigants to tarnish, terrorise and destroy the system of administration of justice by vilification of judges. It is not that judges need be protected; judges may well take care of themselves. It is the right and interest of the public in the due administration of justice that has to be protected."

24. In Jennison v. Baker [1972] 1 All E.R. 997, 1006, it was observed (QB p.66 H)

".....'The law should not be seen to sit by limply, while those who defy it go free, and those who seek its protection lose hope.' "

25. In Vishram Singh Raghubanshi Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh (2011) 7 SCC 776, the Hon'ble Supreme Court noted the dangerous trend of making false allegations against judicial officers and observed as under:

"18. The dangerous trend of making false allegations against judicial officers and humiliating them requires to be curbed with heavy hands, otherwise the judicial system itself would collapse. The Bench and the Bar have to avoid unwarranted situations on trivial issues that hamper the cause of justice and are in the interest of none. "Liberty of free expression is not to be confounded or confused with license to make unfounded allegations against any institution, much less the Judiciary". A lawyer cannot be a mere mouthpiece of his client and cannot associate himself with his client maligning the reputation of judicial officers merely because his client failed to secure the desired order from the said officer. A deliberate attempt to scandalise the court which would shake the confidence of the litigating public in the system, would cause a very serious damage to the Institution of judiciary. An Advocate in a profession should be diligent and his conduct should also be diligent and conform to the requirements of the law by which an Advocate plays a vital role in the preservation of society and justice system. Any violation of the principles of professional ethics by an Advocate is unfortunate and unacceptable. (Vide: O.P. Sharma & Ors. v. High Court of Punjab & Haryana, (2011) 5 SCALE 518).

26. The matter cannot therefore be permitted to rest here or else, this would amount to compromising with the majesty of the Court and undermining the authority of the Court and the public confidence in the administration of justice. The petitioner has indulged in scandalizing the Court and his act amounts to interference with the administration of justice. This action tends to lower the authority of the Court and at the same time prejudice and interfere with due course of judicial proceedings apart from scandalizing and lowering the dignity of the Court.

27. Therefore, taking suo motu notice for initiation of criminal contempt proceedings against the acts of the petitioner, let criminal contempt proceedings be separately registered against the petitioner and the matter be placed before Hon'ble the Chief Justice for obtaining orders regarding listing of the same before the Hon'ble Division Bench in accordance with rules.

Tarlok Singh Chauhan, Judge

This Regular Second Appeal under Section 100 of the Code of Civil Procedure has been filed by the appellants/plaintiff against the judgment and decree dated 31.3.2001 passed by learned District Judge, Kinnaur Civil Division at Rampur Bushahr, in Civil Appeal No. 29 of 1999 whereby he affirmed the judgment and decree dated 20.9.1999 passed by learned Sub Judge, 1st Class, Rampur Bushahr, District Shimla in Case No. 25-1 of 99/87.

For convenience, the parties are referred to as plaintiff and defendants.

2. The facts as are necessary for determination of this appeal are that the plaintiff filed a suit for decree of declaration, permanent prohibitory and mandatory injunction on the allegations that his great grand father Meeri Mal had migrated from Raipur Rani, District Ambala to the then princely State of Rampur Bushahr in 1936. Meeri Mal had started business at Rampur Bushahr under the name and style of M/s Meeri Mal Lachhman Dass. Lachhman Dass was son of Meeri Mal. After the death of Meeri Mal, Lachhman Dass had carried on the family business. Out of the income of the business, Marri Mal had acquired moveable and immoveable property in the township of Rampur Bushahr. Lachhman Dass had inherited the moveable and immoveable property of his father Meeri Mal. Lachhman Dass had died sometimes in 1950 leaving behind three sons namely Krishan Chand, Keshav Ram and Sadhu Ram. After the death of Lachhman Dass, his three sons had carried on with the family business. The joint Hindu family comprised three sons of Lachhman Dass. Marri Mal had purchased a vacant piece of land described in Khata Khatauni No. 52/162 Khasra No. 240, measuring 64 square yards, (hereinafter referred to as the suit land), in Kasba Bazar within the limits of the township of Rampur Bushahr. There had been partition between three sons of Lachhman Dass on 19.9.1960. As per partition, the suit land had fallen to the share of Sadhu Ram, who was the father of the plaintiff. As per partition, Sadhu Ram had acquired ownership and possession of the suit land. Sadhu Ram was stated to have disappeared sometimes in 1979 and was presumed to be dead under the Presumptive Evidence Law. After the death of Sadhu Ram, the plaintiff had become owner in possession of the suit land. The plaintiff and his father had stacked stones in the suit land. The suit land was ancestral property in the hands of Sadhu Ram, as such, Sadhu Ram could not have alienated the suit land except for legal necessity. The plaintiff had acquired ½ share in the suit land by birth. The plaintiff and Sadhu Ram constituted a joint Hindu family and were governed by Mitakshara School of Hindu Law. After the presumptive death of Sadhu Ram, the proforma defendant No.8 Jai Bhagwan (brother of the plaintiff) and the plaintiff had been joint owners in possession in equal share of the suit land. The proforma defendant No.8 Jai Bhagwan and his father had been putting up at Kalka. Sadhu Ram was literate businessman and had been aware of implications of giving Special Power of Attorney. It had been alleged that sometimes in 1987, Brij Bhushan (father of defendants No.1 and 2) had started interfering with the ownership and possession of the plaintiff and proforma defendant No.8 of the suit land. At such time, the plaintiff had looked into the books of the Collector. It was found that Sadhu Ram through his special power of attorney Keshav Ram (father of Brij Bhushan had alienated the suit land in favour of Brij Bhushan through registered sale deed No. 10/62 of 20.6.1962 for alleged sale consideration of Rs.500/-. On the basis of the sale deed No.10/62 dated 20.6.1962, registered on 22.6.1962, mutation of the suit land had been initially entered in favour of Brij Bhushan but had been rejected. Afterwards, Brij Bhushan and defendants No.1 to 3 had manipulated the attestation of mutation No.1349 of the suit land in favour of Brij Bhushan on 6.6.1970. The defendants No.2 and 3 had been members of Himachal Pradesh Judicial Service and had been exercising undue influence over local revenue officials. The defendants No. 1 to 3 had also manipulated attestation of mutation No. 1758 on 20.2.1987 of the suit land in favour of Brij Bhushan. The plaintiff was not bound by false and fictitious sale deed No. 10/62, dated 20.6.1962, purported to have been executed by his father Sadhu Ram in favour of Brij Bhushan. The sale deed No.10/62, dated 20.6.1962 of the suit land was stated to be the result of fraud and misrepresentation and was liable to be set-aside. The plaintiff was also not bound by wrong and illegal entries of the books of the Collector and various mutations manipulated by defendants No. 1 to 4. Brij Bhushan and defendants No. 1 to 4 had started raising construction in the suit land in February, 1987. The defendants No. 1 to 4 were sought to be restrained from interfering with the ownership and possession of the plaintiff of the suit land by issuance of a decree of perpetual injunction against them. The construction done by defendants No. 1 to 4 in the suit land was sought to be pulled down by issuance of a decree of mandatory injunction. The defendants No. 1 to 4 were also sought to be restrained from using the sale deed No. 10/62 by issuance of a decree of perpetual injunction against them. With these allegations the suit had been instituted in the trial court on 17.3.1987.

3. The defendants No. 1 to 4 and their predecessors-in-interest Brij Bhushan and Keshav Ram had resisted the suit by raising preliminary objections of limitation, non-joinder and maintainability of the suit. The defendants No.1 to 4 had admitted their relationship with Meeri Mal and Lachhman Dass. Meeri Mal had migrated from Raipur Rani Ambala to the then princely State of Rampur Bushahr in 1936. Meeri Mal and his son Lachhman Dass had started business under the name and style of M/s Meeri Mal Lachhman Dass at Rampur Bushahr. The joint Hindu Family had acquired moveable and immoveable property at Rampur Bushahr. The suit land after the death of Lachhman Dass had been owned and possessed by Krishan Chand, Keshav Ram and Sadhu Ram. The defendants No. 1 to 4 had admitted private partition of the suit land on 19.9.1960. In such private partition, the suit land had fallen to the share of Sadhu Ram. The defendants No. 1 to 4 had stated that Sadhu Ram through his special power of attorney Keshav Ram, had sold the suit land in favour of Brij Bhushan on 20.6.1962 through registered sale deed No. 10/62. The sale deed No. 10/62 had been duly registered by the Sub Registrar on 22.6.1962. After 20.6.1962 Brij Bhushan had been owner in possession of the suit land and had been rightly entered so vide mutation no. 1349 dated 6.6.1970. The plaintiff in collusion with defendants No.5 and 6, had manipulated attestation of mutation No.1730 on 15.7.1986. As such, mutation No. 1758 of the suit land had been rightly sanctioned in favour of Brij Bhushan on 20.2.1987. The defendants No. 2 and 3 were members of Himachal Pradesh Judicial Service/Higher Judicial Service, but had not exercised any influence much less undue influence over the local revenue officials of Rampur Bushahr for attestation of mutation of the suit land in favour of Brij Bhushan. It had also been pleaded that in case Brij Bhushan, predecessor-in-interest of defendants No. 1 to 4 was not treated owner of the suit land on the strength of sale deed No. 10/62, dated 20.6.1962, he had acquired right of ownership of the suit land by adverse possession. Brij Bhushan had been in continuous, open, uninterrupted and hostile possession of the suit land w.e.f. 20.6.1962. The possession of Brij Bhushan had ripened into ownership. The plaintiff had not properly valued the suit for the purpose of court fee and jurisdiction. The plaintiff could not be treated either owner or in possession of the suit land. The plaintiff was bound by the registered sale deed No. 10/62, dated 20.6.1962 and the same deed could not be treated wrong, illegal and void on the ground of fraud and misrepresentation. The plaintiff was also bound by mutation No. 1349 dated 6.6.1970 and mutation No. 1758 dated 20.2.1987. The defendants No. 1 to 4 and their predecessors-in-interest had constructed three storeyed RCC building in the suit land after their building plans stood approved by the local body. The plaintiff was not entitled to any relief much less to the discretionary relief of permanent prohibitory and mandatory injunction. The proforma defendant No.8 Jai Bhagwan had filed written statement supporting the defence of defendants No. 1 to 4 and their predecessors-in-interest. Defendants No. 5 and 6 had admitted the suit of the plaintiff. Defendant No.7 despite notice, did not contest the suit.

4. On 29.7.1995, the learned trial Court framed the following issues:

1. Whether the suit land was coparcenary property, if so, its effect? OPP
2. Whether plaintiff is entitled for the declaratory decree to the effect that vide family arrangement/partition dated 19.9.1960, plaintiff and defendant No.8 are absolutely woner in possession of the land comprised in Khata/Khatauni No. 52/162, Khasra No. 240 to the extent of half share each after their father, as alleged? OPP
3. Whether the sale deed dated 20.6.1962 No.10/62 registered on 22.6.1962 in respect of the land comprised in Khasra No. 240 to the extent of 1/3rd share in favour of defendant No.1 (since deceased) is illegal one and in-operative and the result of fraud and misrepresentation and liable to be cancelled alongwith mutation No.1349, dated 6.6.1970 and mutation No. 1758 attested on 20.2.1987 are also liable to be cancelled? OPP
4. Whether plaintiff is entitled to the consequential relief of permanent injunction against defendants No.1 to 4 from using the said alleged sale deed No.10/62, as alleged? OPP
5. Whether plaintiff and proforma defendant No.8 are entitled for decree of permanent prohibitory injunction against defendants No. 1 to 4 as alleged? OPP
6. Whether the plaintiff is entitled for the relief of mandatory injunction directing defendants No. 1 to 4 to pull down the entire RCC structure over land comprised in Khasra No. 240 to the extent of 64 square yards, as alleged? OPP
7. Whether the suit is within time? OPP
8. Whether the suit of the plaintiff is bad for non-joinder of necessary parties? OPD
9. Whether the suit of the plaintiff is not value dproperly for the purpose of court fee and jurisdiction? OPD
10. Whether the suit of the plaintiff is not maintainable in the present form? OPD
11. Whether the suit land was in exclusive possession of defendant No.1 Brij Bhushan (since deceased), if so, its effect? OPD
12. Whether defendant No.1, Brij Bhushan (since deceased) was in lawful possession of the suit land by virtue of registered sale deed No.10/62, dated 22.6.1962? OPD
13. Whether the defendant No.1, Brij Bhushan (since deceased) in the alternative had acquired title to the suit land by way of adverse possession? OPD
14. Relief.

5. After recording the evidence led by the parties and evaluating the same, the learned trial Court dismissed the suit of the plaintiff on 20.9.1999, constraining him to file the appeal before the learned lower Appellate Court, who vide judgment and decree dated 31.3.2001 dismissed the same.

6. Aggrieved by the judgment and decree passed by both the learned Courts below, appellants/plaintiffs have filed this Regular Second Appeal, which was admitted by this Court vide order dated 06.10.2003 on the following substantial questions of law No.1, 2, 4 and 5:

1. When the plaintiff-appellant assailed the deed of sale Ext. PG, to be illegal, null and void, on account of having been procured by exercise of fraud and misrepresentation by the alleged attorney executed by late Sh. Sadhu Ram, in favour of Shri Keshav Ram, was not the defendant-respondents obliged to produce and prove on record such documents? Have not both the Courts below acted in excess of their jurisdiction in not drawing adverse inference on account of withholding the original documents despite issuance of notice under Order 12 Rule 8 of the Code of Civil Procedure by the plaintiff-appellant?
2. Whether both the Courts below have put under reliance on inadmissible evidence particularly Exhibit PG which was a certified copy without seeking permission to lead secondary evidence?
3. Whether both the Courts below have failed to consider the true import of the provisions of Section 107 and 108 of the Indian Evidence Act regarding the civil presumptive death of late Shri Sadhu Ram? What was the date when such factum was to be presumed? Whether both the Courts below have gravely erred in dismissing the suit of the plaintiff-appellant being barred by limitation? Are not such findings absolutely wrong and illegal and perverse when the suit from the date of knowledge of the fraud played was within the period of limitation, seeking declaration for setting aside the same?
4. Whether both the Courts below have exceeded their jurisdiction in denying the relief of mandatory injunction to the plaintiff-appellant particularly when it was established that the offending structure was constructed by the defendant-respondents during the pendency of the litigation despite the order of injunction operative against them.
5. Whether vendor Sh. Sadhu Ram through special attorney had executed the sale deed on dated 20.6.1962 registered on dated 22.6.1962 in the office of Sub Registrar, Rampur District Shimla, H.P. in favour of vendee namely Sh. Brij Bhushan in the capacity of exclusive owner of Khasra No. 240 on the basis of family partition or in the capacity of co-sharer?

I have heard learned counsel for the parties and gone through the records of the case carefully and meticulously.

Substantial Question of Law No.1.

7. The answer to this question lies in the fact as to whether there are sufficient pleadings so as to constitute fraud or misrepresentation as alleged by the appellants/plaintiffs. For deciding this question, one will have to fall back on the contents of the plaint wherein the allegations of fraud and misrepresentation have been set out more particularly para-9 thereof where the allegations have been pleaded in the following manner:

> "That the alleged sale deed alleged to have been executed by defendant No.2 in the capacity of his being Special Power of Attorney of late Sadhu Ram pertaining to Khasra No. 240 measuring 64 sqr. Yards in Kasba Bazar Rampur, is altogether void, illegal, inoperative and same deserves to be set-aside and cancelled, as Sadhu Ram never gave any Special Power of Attorney to execute the same in favour of defendant No.2. The alleged sale deed which is alleged to have been executed on 20.6.1962 and registered on 22.6.1962 with Sub Registrar, Rampur under registration No. 10/62 by defendant No.2. Late Sadhu Ram never appeared either before Sub Registrar nor before Assistant Collector 2nd Grade, Rampur. The alleged sale deed is the result of fraud and mis-representation and the same is forged one. The Assistant Collector 2nd Grade, Rampur in mutation No. 1223 dated 30.3.1963 rejected the alleged sale deed and the mutation entered on the basis of this alleged sale deed of No. 10/62 was rejected by him."

8. Evidently, the aforesaid allegations do not meet and fall short of the requirement of Rule 4 of Order 6, which reads thus:

> "4. Particulars to be given where necessary.- In all cases in which the party pleading relies on any misrepresentation, fraud, breach of trust, wilful default, or undue influence, and in all other cases in which particulars may be necessary beyond such as are exemplified in the forms aforesaid, particulars (with dates and items if necessary) shall be stated in the pleading."

9. It is clearly evident from the aforesaid provision that as per Rule 4 particulars with dates and items are clearly required to be stated in the pleading inter alia in cases of misrepresentation, fraud, breach of trust, wilful default or undue influence. The object of insisting on these particulars is two fold:

(i) It enables the opposite party to know the case he has to meet with; and

(ii) It prevents the issue being enlarged and enables the court to determine the controversy at the earliest.

'Fraud' is obtaining of an advantage by unfair or wrongful means.

10. Under this rule, where fraud is alleged, necessary particulars have to be set out and stated in the pleadings which must be clear, definite, express and specific. It is not enough to allege fraud without stating particulars with dates and items as to such fraud. General allegations, however strong, if unaccompanied by sufficient particulars, are not enough and the Court will not take notice.

11. In Sukhdei (Smt.) (dead) by LRs vs. Bairo (dead) and others (1999) 4 SCC 262 the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that while pleading fraud, particulars necessary for establishing the same should be specifically stated in the plaint and it was further held that findings on a question of fraud concurrently arrived at by the Courts below should not be interfered with by the High Court while exercising power under Section 100 of CPC. The aforesaid Rule is mandatory and no departure from the Rule is permissible while leading evidence.

As regards the plea of misrepresentation, the same means wrong, false or misleading representation.

12. Here again, when misrepresentation is alleged, the party alleging it must state necessary facts of such misrepresentation. Though, it is often observed that fraud and misrepresentation may overlap sometimes, however, particulars of each must be given. It must also be stated whether such representation was verbal or written. When it was alleged that diverse persons were induced by the defendant, names and necessary particulars also should be mentioned in the plaint by the plaintiff. Obviously, the onus is on the party setting up a plea of misrepresentation to prove it.

13. Adverting to the plea as extracted above, it may be noted that the pleadings of the plaintiff are wholly deficient and barring use of the word fraud or misrepresentation, nothing is stated which may even remotely establish the facts which constitute fraud or misrepresentation.

14. As regards, the drawing of adverse possession because of non-production of the document inspite of notice under Order 12 Rule 8 CPC, suffice it to say that before such presumption can be drawn against a party called upon to produce a document, it has to be proved that the document is in fact in the possession and custody of the party concerned. That apart, even otherwise such inference is no more than presumptive evidence which by its very nature is weak evidence and would at best entitle the party issuing the notice to lead secondary evidence of document under the Evidence Act.

Substantial question of law No.2:

15. It is not in dispute that Ext. PG was not only produced by the plaintiff but relied upon by the plaintiff in his examination-in-chief while appearing as PW-1. Having produced the document, the plaintiff is estopped from assailing either its mode and manner of production or even the contents thereof.

Substantial question of law No.3:

16. It is not in dispute that as per the allegations of the plaintiff, the partition amongst the party took place in 1960 and the sale deed in question was executed and registered in the year 1962, whereas the suit came to be filed only on 17.3.1987 i.e. after 25 years of the registration of the sale deed. Though, the learned counsel for the appellants would harp upon on the various mutations attested from time to time, but these mutations are hardly of any value as it is the sale deed which is the document of title that was required to be assailed and the mutations attested either ways could not furnish a cause of action.

17. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Sankalchan Jaychandbhai Patel and others vs. Vithal Bhai Jaychandbhai Patel (1996) 6 SCC 433 has held that the mutation entries are only to enable the State to collect revenues from the persons in possession and enjoyment of the property and the right, title and interest as to the property should be established dehors the entries. Entries are only one of the modes of proof of the enjoyment of the property. However, mutation entries in themselves do not create any title or interest therein.

18. Similar reiteration of law can be found in the judgment rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Sawarni (Smt.) vs. Inder Kaur (Smt.) and others, (1996) 6 SCC 223, wherein in paragraph -7 it was observed as under:

> "7. .....Mutation of a property in the revenue record does not create or extinguish title nor has it any presumptive value on title. It only enables the person in whose favour mutation is ordered to pay the land revenue in question....."

19. Furthermore, it is not always safe to rely upon the revenue records in cases like the instant one where one of the parties is possessed of a registered document of title. Entries in revenue records have often been held to be paradise of the Patwari and here it shall be apt to refer to the observations of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Baleshwar Tewari (dead) by LRs. and others vs. Sheo Jatan Tiwary and others (1997) 5 SCC 112 which read thus:-

> "16. Under these circumstances, even if any enquiry was conducted unless the appellant is given notice and an opportunity to adduce the evidence to establish his right in the enquiry made, the finding generally does not bind him. Entries in revenue records are the paradise of the patwari and the tiller of the soil is rarely concerned with the same. So long as his possession and enjoyment is not interdicted by due process and course of law, he is least concerned with entries. It is common knowledge in rural India that a raiyat always regards the lands he ploughs, as his dominion and generally obeys, with moral fiber the command of the intermediary so long as his possession is not disturbed. Therefore, creation of records is a camouflage to defeat just and legal right or claim and interest of the raiyat, the tiller of the soil on whom the Act confers title to the land he tills."

20. Even otherwise, admittedly the respondents are in possession of a registered document of title which is correct and complete proof of ownership and revenue entries including mutation entries have nothing to do with the ownership and cannot be treated as evidence of ownership of the property. There is a presumption in regard to the correctness of registered document.

21. In Ningawwa vs. Byrappa Shiddappa Hireknrabar AIR 1968, SC 956, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

> "27. There is a presumption that a registered document is validly executed. A registered document, therefore, prima-facie would be valid in law. The onus of proof, thus, would be on a person who leads evidence to rebut the presumption. In the instant case, Respondent 1 has not been able to rebut the said presumption."

22. In Prem Singh vs. *Birbal (2006) 5 SCC 353, it was held as under:

> "27. There is a presumption that a registered document is validly executed. A registered document, therefore, prima-facie would be valid in law. The onus of proof, thus, would be on a person who leads evidence to rebut the presumption. In the instant case, respondent No.1 has not been able to rebut the said presumption."

23. In view of the aforesaid exposition of law, the time spent in the mutation proceedings cannot be set off while computing the period of limitation. The suit filed by the plaintiff is clearly time barred and moreover the timing of the suit is such when the plaintiff knew fully well that most of the evidence with the passage of time may have got destroyed.

24. As already observed, there is no valid plea of fraud and misrepresentation and as regards, the knowledge thereof, it is too late in the day for the plaintiff to canvass that he only acquired knowledge in the year 1987 and filed the suit immediately. Rather it is established that the plaintiff had been contesting the mutation proceedings which in turn were admittedly based upon the sale deed in question, and still he would have this Court believe that he had no knowledge qua the sale deed. What then was the plaintiff really contesting is anybody's guess?

25. Therefore, in absence of the case of the plaintiff falling within any of the exemptions as contemplated under Rule 6 of Order 7 of the case, no fault can be found with the concurrent findings rendered by the learned Courts below regarding the suit of the plaintiff being highly time barred.

Substantial question of law No.4:

26. The appellants have failed to point out as to how both the Courts below exceeded the jurisdiction in deciding the relief of mandatory injunction particularly when the plaintiff has failed to establish the fact that offending structures were constructed by the defendants/respondents during the pendency of the litigation. This question is based on a pure findings of fact, and, therefore, is not open to challenge in these proceedings. That apart, in absence of proof of fraud or misrepresentation and more particularly when this question has not been agitated before the learned lower Appellate Court, the same is not open to challenge in this appeal.

Substantial question of law No.5:

27. It is vehemently argued by the appellants that there is a recital in the sale deed that vendor by way of family partition became owner of Khasra No. 240 measuring 64 Sqr. Yards and there is also further a recital that the sale deed was executed by vendor in the capacity of co-sharer. It is further argued that Sadhu Ram could not have been exclusive owner and at the same time the co-sharer of the property and this casts a serious doubt on the deed itself.

28. I find this contention to be not only devoid of any merit but to say the least preposterous. It is pleaded case of the plaintiff that immoveable properties possessed by their ancestors were divided amongst S/Sh. Krishan Chand, Keshav Ram and Lala Sadhu Ram on 19.9.1960 and the suit land fell to the share of Sadhu Ram as is evident from para-5 of the plaint which reads thus:

> "5. That the aforesaid immoveable properties were divided amongst themselves by S/Sh. Krishan Chand, Keshav Ram and Lala Sadhu Ram on 19 Sept. 1960 by way of family arrangement and the following properties came in the share of each:

Krishan Chand : (i) One residential house single storey first floor Is raised.

(ii) One small shop in Main Bazar, Raipur Rani.

Keshav Ram : (i) One two stories shop in Main Bazar, Raipur Rani.

(ii) One Kholla (Khandar).

Sadhu Ram : Total land situated in Khasra No.240 measuring 64 Sqr. Yards in Kasba Bazar Rampur.

The aforesaid family arrangement by way of partition was fully being acted upon by all the three persons and the possession of the aforesaid properties so allotted to them in that family arrangement remained that of the person to whom it was allotted according to aforesaid arrangement. Since this family arrangement by way of partition was affected each one of allotted to them in that partition. In this way late Sh. Sadhu Ram the father of the plaintiff became the full and exclusive owner in possession of the land comprising in Khasra No. 240 measuring 64 sqr. Yards in Kasba Bazar Rampur by aforesaid partition. The said land on the spot was Khandar since the time of Great-Grand Father of the plaintiff."

29. Notably, even the defendants/respondents have not denied these facts and, therefore, both the parties were alive to the factual situation that not only was there a partition inter se the co-owners but this property in fact fell to the share of Sadhu Ram in such partition. Thus, there was no question of Sadhu Ram being co-owner of the property in the year 1962 when partition had already been affected in 1960 and therefore, even if any such word is found to have been mentioned in any document, the same would only be superfluous and compulsory termed to be an accidental slip having virtually no bearing on the issue on hand. The appellants cannot convert a mountain out of a mole and thereby perpetuate the litigation which is already pending for the last more than thirty years.

Substantial questions of law are answered accordingly.

In view of aforesaid discussion, I find no merit in this appeal and the same is accordingly dismissed with costs throughout. Pending application(s), if any, also stands disposed of.

For the petitioner:	Mr. B.C. Negi, Senior Advocate, with Mr. Vineet Vashisht, Advocate.
For the respondents:	Mr. K.D. Sood, Senior Advocate, with Mr. Sanjeev Sood, Advocate, for respondent No. 1. Respondent No. 2 ex parte. Ms. Nishi Goel, Advocate, for respondent No. 3.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Ajay Mohan Goel, J. :

Issue involved in the present writ petition is as to whether the term "Family Unit" as it finds mention in Clause 4(e) of the brochure issued by respondent No. 1/Indian Oil Corporation Limited, i.e. Brochure on Selection of Rajiv Gandhi Gramin LPG Vitrak (RGGLV) includes the "grand parents" of the applicant or the term "parent" includes only "mother" and "father" of the applicant?

2. Brief facts necessary for the adjudication of the present case are that Indian Oil Corporation Limited issued an advertisement on 11.10.2010 for the purpose of award for Rajiv Gandhi Gramin LPG Vitrak (RGGVL) at Sarol in District Chamba under Scheduled Caste category. For the purpose of setting up of LPG Vitraks, respondent/Indian Oil Corporation Limited has issued a brochure, i.e. 'Brochure on Selection of Rajiv Gandhi Gramin LPG Vitrak (RGGLV)'. 3. The case of the petitioner is that pursuant to the issuance of advertisement dated 11.10.2010, the petitioner being eligible to apply for RGGLV location at Sarol in District Chamba, she applied for the same. Vide communication dated 16.02.2011 (Annexure P-2) on the subject "Application for award of Rajiv Gandhi LPG Vitrak (RGGLV) at Sarol, District Chamba under SC Category advertised on 11.10.2010", the petitioner was intimated by respondent No.1/Corporation that she had qualified for draw of selection of RGGLV and she was called upon to be present alongwith photo identity card issued by any Government department for draw at 10:00 a.m. on 11.03.2011. It is further the case of the petitioner that at the draw which was held on 11.03.2011 for Sarol location, the petitioner was declared as selected candidate. As per the petitioner, in consonance with the provisions of Clause 12.9 and 12.10 of the brochure after draw, field verification was to be carried out with regard to the selected candidate and in case the information provided by the applicant was found to be correct, then letter of intent was to be issued to the selected candidate and in case of rejection of selected candidate on account of findings in field investigation, the selection of the candidate so selected was required to be cancelled and this was to be followed by fresh draw from amongst remaining qualified eligible candidates. As per the petitioner, despite the fact that she had been selected for Sarol location in the draw which was held on 11.03.2011, no letter of intent was received by her, neither it was even communicated to her that the selection was cancelled. As per the petitioner, it was vide letter dated 01.08.2011 (Annexure P-3) that she came to know that respondent-Corporation had in fact invited the private respondents for fresh draw for Sarol Location, which was scheduled on 26.08.2011. As per the petitioner, this implied that her selection stood cancelled. According to the petitioner, she came to know all these facts on 16.08.2011 when she incidentally happened to come across the said communication. Accordingly, feeling aggrieved by the issuance of communication dated 01.08.2011 (Annexure P-3) vide which the private respondents were invited for draw of lots for allocation of Sarol location in District Chamba under Scheduled Caste category for award of Rajiv Gandhi LPG Vitrak (RGGLV), she filed the present writ petition praying for quashing of letter dated 01.08.2011 and for direction to the respondent/Corporation not to implement letter dated 01.08.2011 and to issue letter of intent in her favour.

4. In its reply filed by the respondent/Corporation, the factum of Sarol location having been advertised on 11.03.2011 and the factum of communication dated 16.02.2011 having been issued to the petitioner and her subsequently participating in the draw of lots on 11.03.2011 is not in dispute. However, as per the said respondent, merely qualifying in the draw was not to be construed as final selection and the final selection in fact depended upon field verification which was to be carried out with regard to the selected candidates. According to the respondent/ Corporation, if during field verification, the information given by the applicant in the application was found to be correct, only then letter of intent was to be issued to the selected candidate. As per the respondent/ Corporation, vide communication dated 17.08.2011, the petitioner was informed that as during field verifications involving physical verification of the information provided by the petitioner, it was found that plot offered by her for construction of godown at Khasra No. 756/312 was found to be in the name of Shri Guro Ram (grandfather of the present petitioner), who was not a member of her 'Family Unit' as defined under multi distributorship norms in the application/advertisement, and as she was also not a co-sharer qua the above land, the said land could not be considered to be owned by her as per multi distributorship norms as given in the application/advertisement. Vide this communication, the petitioner had also been informed that as she did not met the eligibility criteria of owning the suitable plot of minimum 20 meters X 24 meters in dimension in the advertised location for LPG storage godown, she stood disqualified for being issued the letter of intent for RGGLV at Sarol, District Chamba. It was the stand of the respondent/Corporation that the candidature of the petitioner was not found eligible as she did not had land in the name of self or within "Family Unit" as defined in the advertisement. On these basis, it was submitted on behalf of the respondent/Corporation that there was no arbitrariness or illegality in the issuance of communication dated 01.08.2011 quashing of which was sought by way of the present writ petition. It was further urged on behalf of the respondent/Corporation that as there was no merit in the petition, the same be dismissed.

5. Respondent No. 2 stood proceeded against ex parte and respondent No. 3 adopted the reply filed by respondent No. 1.

6. No rejoinder was intended to be filed by the petitioner to the reply filed by respondent No. 1.

7. Mr. B.C. Negi, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioner has argued that the rejection of the candidature of the petitioner on the ground that the land offered by her under Sub-clause (g) of Clause 4 of the brochure cannot be construed to be land either owned by the applicant or family member of the 'Family Unit' is arbitrary and erroneous. Mr. Negi has argued that it is an admitted fact that in the present case, the land which was offered by the petitioner as contemplated in Sub-clause (g) of Clause 4 of the brochure for construction of LPG storage godown belonged to the grand father of the petitioner. According to Mr. Negi, not construing grand father to be a family member of the "Family Unit" was totally erroneous because by no stretch of imagination grand father of an applicant can be said to be outside the purview of family member as envisaged by the term of "Family Unit". According to Mr. Negi, a "Family Unit" as defined in the brochure of the respondent/Corporation in case of unmarried applicant was to consist of individual concerned, his/her parents and his/her unmarried brothers and unmarried sisters. According to Mr. Negi, the term "his/her parents" also includes grand parents. On this analogy, it was argued by Mr. Negi that the rejection of the candidature of the petitioner on the ground that plot offered by her belonged to her grand father was not sustainable in law. To fortify his arguments, Mr. Negi has relied upon judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in K.V. Muthu Vs. Angamuthu Ammal (1997) 2 Supreme Court Cases 53.

8. On the other hand, Mr. K.D. Sood, learned Senior Counsel appearing for respondent/Corporation argued that the term "Family Unit" as defined in Clause 4 of the brochure issued by the respondent/Corporation was unambiguous and very clear as to who all were included in the term "Family Unit". Mr. Sood argued that in the present case, the petitioner was an unmarried lady and as per Clause 4, "Faimly Unit" in the case of an unmarried lady was to include her parents which means her mother and father and her unmarried brothers and unmarried sisters. According to Mr. Sood, grand parents were not included in the term parents and were not expressly included in the term "Family Unit" and could not be allowed to be introduced by giving the words "Parents" a wider meaning than what was intended in the brochure published by the respondent/Corporation. Mr. Sood further argued that the judgment being relied upon by the petitioner was having no applicability in the facts of the present case. It was further urged by Mr. Sood that incidentally the definition of "Family Unit" as it finds mention the brochure published by the respondent/Corporation had not been challenged by the petitioner. On these basis, it was submitted by Mr. Sood that there was no force in the arguments of Mr. Negi.

9. Ms. Nishi Goel, learned counsel appearing for respondent No. 3 adopted the arguments of Mr. K. D. Sood, learned Senior Counsel representing respondent/Corporation.

10. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and also gone through the documents which have been placed on record by the respective parties.

11. Clause 4 of the brochure issued by the respondent/Corporation on Selection of Rajiv Gandhi Gramin LPG Vitrak (RGGLV) for all categories defines "Family Unit" as under:

> 'Family Unit' in case of married person/ applicant, shall consist of individual concerned, his/her Spouse and their unmarried son(s)/daughter(s). In case of unmarried person/ applicant, 'Family Unit' shall consist of individual concerned, his/her parents and his/her unmarried brother(s) and unmarried sister(s). In case of divorcee, 'Family Unit' shall consist of individual concerned, unmarried son(s)/unmarried daughter(s) whose custody is given to him/her. In case of widow/widower, 'Family Unit' shall consist of individual concerned, unmarried son(s)/unmarried daughter(s).

12. Sub-clause (g) of Clause 4 of the said brochure provides as under:

>
> Own means having clear ownership title of the property in the name of applicant/ family member of the 'Family Unit' as defined in multiple dealership/distributorship norm. In case of ownership/co-ownership by family member, consent letter from the family member will be required.
> Land for construction of Godown will be considered suitable, if it is freely accessible through all weather motorable approach road (public road or private road of the applicant connecting to the public road) and should be plain, in one contiguous plot, free from live overhead power transmission or telephone lines. Pipelines / Canals / Drainage / Nallahs should not be passing through the plot.

13. As per the term "Family Unit" which finds mention in Clause 4 of the above mentioned brochure, the said term in case of married person consists of individual concerned, his/her spouse and their unmarried sons and daughters. In other words, if married person applies for allotment of location under this brochure, then "Family Unit" in case of such like person consists of the said applicant, spouse and un-married children. Neither married children nor their wards, i.e. grand children of the applicant are included in the definition of the term "Family Unit" in case of a married person. Similarly, in case of unmarried person, "Family Unit" is stated to be consisting of individual concerned, his/her parents and his/her unmarried brothers and unmarried sisters.

14. A harmonious reading of the term "Family Unit" as has been defined for a married person and an unmarried person makes it clear that the respondent/Corporation has confined the term "Family Unit" in case of a married applicant to his/her spouse and unmarried children and in case of unmarried applicant to his/her parents and unmarried brothers and sisters.

15. In my considered view, bare reading of the term "Family Unit" as has been provided for in the brochure makes it clear that grand parents are not included in the scheme of things as far as "Family Unit" is concerned. Therefore, I do not find any force in the contention of learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner that the term "Family Unit" in general and the term "Parent" in particular as it finds mention in Clause 4 of the brochure ipso facto includes grand parents also.

16. In Black's Law Dictionary Seventh Edition term "Parent" has been defined as:

> "Parent: The lawful father or mother of some one. In ordinary usage, the term denotes more than responsibility for conception and birth. The term commonly includes (1) either the natural father or the natural mother of a child, (2) the adoptive father or adoptive mother of a child, (3) a child's putative blood parent who has expressly acknowledged paternity, and (4) an individual or agency whose status as guardian has been established by judicial decree. In law, parental status based on any criterion may be terminated by judicial decree."

17. Similarly, in Corpus Juris Secundum, the term "Parent" has been defined as:

> "A "parent" is one who has generated a child; is a father or a mother.
>
> A "parent" is one who begets or brings forth off-spring; a father or a mother.
>
> A "parent" is one who generates a child, a father or mother by blood.
>
> "Parent" in its common and accepted meaning refers to the natural father or mother.
>
> The word "parent" means father or mother."

18. Therefore also, in my considered view, the word "parent" obviously means father and mother and it cannot be said to include "grand parents" within its ambit.

19. As far as the judgment relied upon by learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner is concerned, in the said case, the Hon'ble Supreme Court was seized with the issue as to whether a "foster son" would be a "member of family" in relation to a landlord within the meaning of Section 2(6-A) of the Tamil Nadu Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act, 1960. It is evident from para-9 of the said judgment that Section 2(6-A) of the Act in issue provided as under:

> "2.(6-A) 'member of his family' in relation to a landlord means his spouse, son, daughter, grandchild or dependant parent."

20. While interpreting the said statutory provision, the Hon'ble Supreme Court was pleased to hold that it appears that the definition is conclusive as the word "means" has been used to specify the members, namely, spouse, son, daughter, grandchild or dependent parent, who would constitute the family.

21. In my considered view, the judgment being relied upon by the petitioner has no bearing in this case because therein the Statute itself envisaged "member of his family" to mean a grandchild, which naturally took into its compass "grand parents" when dealt with from the perspective of the grandchild. It was in this background that the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that in its ordinary and primary sense, the term "family" signifies the collective body of persons living in one house or under one head or manager or one domestic government and in its restricted sense, "family" would include only parents and their children and it may include even grandchildren and all the persons of the same blood living together. In my considered view, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has not been pleased to hold that the term "parent" inherently includes not only father and mother, but also grand father and grand mother.

22. In view of the discussion held above, I do not find any merit in the present writ petition and the same is accordingly dismissed, so also the Miscellaneous application(s), if any. No order as to costs.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Ajay Mohan Goel, J.

By way of this appeal, the State has challenged the judgment passed by the Court of learned Sessions Judge, Kinnaur Sessions Division at Rampur Bushahr in Sessions Trial Court No. 12 of 2010 dated 12.5.2011 vide which, learned trial court has acquitted the accused for commission of offence punishable under Section 302 of the Indian Penal Code (in short 'IPC').

2. The case of the prosecution was that complainant Palas Ram and his brother Hari Singh were residing separately for the last 15 years and their parents were residing with the complainant. On 19.11.2009 Hari Singh (hereinafter to be referred as 'deceased') had gone to Kholighat in connection with his work. At about 7:00 p.m. complainant heard cries of the deceased and he along with his mother Smt. Shyam Dassi came out of the house and saw accused, Krishan Lal, who had his house nearby giving beatings to the deceased with 'Danda'. Further as per prosecution, at that time, bulb of the verandah of the house of accused was on. Beatings were given to the deceased on the passage which passed through the house of the accused. When complainant asked the accused as to why he was beating the deceased, accused gave a push to the deceased, as a result of which, deceased was thrown on the down side of the passage in a field and thereafter accused ran away. On this complainant ran and reached the spot and found the deceased in an injured condition. Both the legs of the deceased were not functioning. In the meanwhile his mother also reached the spot. Deceased was unable to move and his arms were also not working. He was taken to the house by the complainant on his back. Further as per prosecution, thereafter deceased told complainant that when he was returning from Kholighat and when he reached near the house of accused, accused started giving him beating with a danda and thereafter he pushed him down the field. Deceased was having lot of pain on the back of neck as well as his arms and legs were also not working properly. Since it was night time, therefore no vehicle could be arranged. On 20.11.2009, at around 9:30 a.m. deceased was taken to IGMC, Shimla in the vehicle of Ram Singh. Wife of the deceased also accompanied them. On the asking of doctors at IGMC, Shimla complainant told them that deceased had suffered injuries due to fall. This version was given by the complainant to the doctors, as he was confused. On 21.11.2009 deceased died while he was admitted in the hospital. Thereafter complainant telephonically reported the matter to police at Police Station, Rampur. This led to entry of Rapat in the daily diary. One police official was sent from police post Nankhari to inquire the Rapat. Thereafter statement of the complainant was recorded under Section 154 Cr.P.C. and on the basis of said statement, FIR was registered. The dead body of the deceased was also subjected to post-mortem. The accused was taken into custody and while in custody accused allegedly made a disclosure statement which led to the discovery of the weapon of offence, i.e. Danda.

3. After completion of investigation, challan was filed and as a prima facie case was found against the accused, he was charged for commission of offence punishable under Section 302 IPC, to which he pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

4. On the basis of material produced on record by the prosecution, learned trial court held that the version of prosecution that the deceased was given beatings by the accused with danda was highly doubtful. Learned trial court further held that testimony of PW7, Dr. Piyush Kapila, who conducted the postmortem of the dead body, revealed that he had nowhere stated that injuries found on the person of deceased could have been caused by danda. On the contrary he had stated that injuries which were found on the body of deceased could have been caused if a person was pushed by another person and as a result of the said push the said person fell down. Learned trial court further held that the defence suggestion that injuries sustained by the deceased could have been caused to a person due to fall under the influence of liquor were also admitted by PW7. Learned trial court also took note of the fact that danda Ext. P4 was never produced before PW7 to seek his opinion as to whether injuries which were found on the person of deceased could have been caused with the said weapon of offence or not. Learned trial court also took note of the fact that it had come on record that in the testimony of PW10 that deceased had consumed liquor firstly in the Dera of Bablu Nepali on 19.11.2009 at about 4:00 p.m. and thereafter in the house of Man Singh and he was found to be heavily drunk. Learned trial court further held that since the deceased was heavily drunk and was not in a position to move properly as stated by the Investigating Officer, there was every possibility of his having fallen down. On these basis, learned trial court came to the conclusion that prosecution was not able to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubt and accordingly it acquitted the accused for commission of offence punishable under Section 302 IPC.

5. Mr. V.S. Chauhan, learned Additional Advocate General argued that the judgment of acquittal passed by learned trial court was not sustainable in the eyes of law as the conclusions arrived at by learned trial court while acquitting the accused were based on hypothetical reasoning, surmises and conjectures. According to Mr. Chauhan, learned trial court failed to appreciate the evidence on record in its correct perspective and it also discarded the testimony of prosecution witnesses for untenable reasons ignoring the fact that the prosecution witnesses had proved the guilt of accused beyond reasonable doubt. It was further argued by Mr. Chauhan that the conclusion arrived at by learned trial court that there were material discrepancies and contradictions in the testimony of prosecution witnesses was also not borne out from the record especially in view of the fact that the complainant had very clearly and emphatically proved the occurrence of the incident which corroborated with the testimony of the doctor nailed the guilt of the accused. Mr. Chauhan further argued that adverse inference drawn by learned trial court against the prosecution with regard to recovery of Danda was also totally unsustainable, as it stood proved on record that after the assault Danda remained in the possession of accused and prosecution could not have been held liable for non-cooperation of the accused during the course of investigation. On these basis it was argued by Mr. Chauhan that the judgment passed by learned trial court was not sustainable in law and the same be set aside and the accused be convicted for commission of offence for which he was charged.

6. Mr. K.S. Banyal, learned Senior Counsel appearing as Amicus Curiae submitted that the findings of acquittal returned in favour of the accused by learned trial court were neither perverse nor it could be said that the findings so returned by learned trial court were not borne out from the records of the case. According to Mr. Banyal the evidence placed on record by the prosecution did not prove beyond reasonable doubt the guilt of the accused and in these circumstances learned trial court had rightly given the benefit of doubt to the accused Mr. Banyal further pointed out that the findings returned by learned trial court to the effect that the version of prosecution could not be believed because there were too many contradictions and inconsistencies in the story of the prosecution as well as in the testimonies of prosecution witnesses could also not be faulted with because the conclusion so arrived at by learned trial court was evident from the perusal of prosecution evidence. Further according to Mr. Banyal, there was possibility of accused having been falsely implicated in the case because of enmity which the complainant had towards him. Mr. Banyal urged that it was on these basis that there was no merit in the appeal, hence the same be dismissed.

7. We have heard Mr. V.S. Chauhan, learned Additional Advocate General as well as Mr. K.S. Banyal, learned Senior Counsel as Amicus Curiae.

8. In order to substantiate its case, the prosecution in all examined ten witnesses.

9. Before proceeding further we would take note of the testimonies of material witnesses of the prosecution in order to ascertain as to whether on the basis of statements so recorded by prosecution witnesses the case of prosecution stood proved against the accused beyond reasonable doubt or whether learned trial court correctly came to the conclusion that the prosecution had failed to prove its case against the accused beyond reasonable doubt.

10. Complainant-Palas Ram entered the witness box as PW1 and deposed that Hari Singh (deceased) was his elder brother. On 19.11.2009 his brother had gone to Kholighat in connection with his personal work and when he (complainant) was at his house at around 7:00 p.m. he heard cries of his brother where after he along with his mother came out of the house and saw that the accused was giving beatings to the deceased with danda blows. This witness further deposed that when he asked the accused as to why he was beating his brother, accused did not say anything and he pushed down the deceased in the field and fled/went away. This witness further deposed that thereafter he along with his mother went to the spot and found that the lower portion of deceased was not working and his neck had also turned to one side. They brought the deceased to their house and thereafter it was decided to take him to Shimla for treatment. However, no vehicle could be arranged on 19.11.2009, therefore deceased was taken to Shimla on 20.11.2009. He further deposed that since his brother (deceased) had told him that doctor was not to be told regarding the alleged incident, for this reason when initially deceased was taken to the doctor it was disclosed to the doctor that deceased had sustained injuries on account of fall. He further stated that deceased died on 21.11.2009 and thereafter he (complainant) rang Police Station, Rampur and police came to IGMC Shimla where his statement, Ext. PW1/A was recorded . In his cross-examination this witness stated that deceased, Hari Singh had gone all alone in the morning to Kholighat which was at a distance of 400 meters from his house. He further stated that on 21.11.2009 he had telephonically informed the police the fact of deceased having been beaten by Danda by the accused. He stated that he had also told the police telephonically that deceased had been pushed by the accused. He also stated that he had telephonically told the police that on account of said push his brother had sustained injuries on his neck, back and arms etc. He also stated that police was also informed by him that his mother had also seen the accused pushing the deceased. It was further stated in his cross examination that when deceased was admitted in IGMC, Shimla at around 3:00 p.m. on 20.11.2009 deceased was accompanied by him, his wife and driver of the vehicle. He stated that witness Sunder Singh had met them at Shimla. He admitted it to be correct that when deceased was initially admitted in the causality department, at that time it was told that deceased sustained injuries on account of fall from height. He further stated that immediately after the death of deceased he informed the doctor that the deceased had in fact been pushed by the accused. He further stated that on 19.11.2009 between 6:45 to 7:00 p.m. he was present in his room which had been allotted to him in a family partition and his daughter was also with him and she was watching television. He further stated that in the next room his wife and father were present. He further stated that he saw accused giving danda blows with right hand and from the distance he could recognize the accused giving danda blows. He further stated that accused gave two danda blows on the arm and leg of the deceased. He denied the suggestion that when he reached the spot he found his brother heavily drunk. He admitted it to be correct that there were vehicles which are being plied as taxis. He denied that there was a police post nearby. He stated that wife of deceased had died due to hanging. He expressed his ignorance that deceased along with Man Singh and Jai Singh had consumed liquor in the Dera of Bablu Nepali. He admitted it to be correct that in Kholighat there was PHC where two doctors were posted. He admitted it to be correct that there were houses of Padam Singh, Madan Lal, Puran Chand and Joginder near the house of the accused. He also admitted it to be correct that if someone cries, the voice would be heard in the houses of the above mentioned persons.

11. Shyam Dassi entered the witness box as PW2 and stated that deceased was her son. This witness further deposed that on the fateful day at around 7:00 p.m. she was boiling milk in her kitchen when she heard noise. She further stated that accused was hurling abuses and on hearing noise she came out from the kitchen and saw accused giving danda blows to her son and also pushing him, as a result of which deceased fell down. She further stated that her son Palas Ram also saw the incident. This witness further deposed that thereafter accused went to the verandah of his house and when they went on the spot they found Hari Singh in an injured condition and his lower portion was not working. She further deposed that they brought the deceased to the house and because it was night time, no vehicle could be arranged. It was on the next day they brought the deceased to Shimla hospital where he was admitted. She stated that on the third day, from the date of incident, she was informed telephonically that Hari Singh died. In her cross-examination she stated that while she was in the kitchen boiling milk firstly she heard abuses being hurled by accused and upon this, she called her son Palas Ram who came out along with other members of the family. She further deposed that from her house she saw accused giving danda blows and also pushing the deceased. She further stated that she could not say as to what was the length of danda because she saw the incident from some distance and her eyesight was week. She denied the suggestion that on the date of alleged occurrence deceased had consumed liquor along with Man Singh and Jai Singh in the Dera of Bablu Nepali.

12. Karam Chand entered the witness box as PW3 and deposed that he was associated in the investigation and SHO Des Raj Chandrotia had seized the danda in his presence. As this witness did not support the case of the prosecution, he was declared as a hostile witness. In his cross-examination by the Public Prosecutor this witness denied that while in police custody accused had disclosed about the danda to the effect that the same was kept out of the kitchen of his house. He also denied that thereafter accused led the police to the place where he had kept the danda and got the same recovered. In his cross examination by the defence counsel this witness stated that police met him at Kholighat and accused was with them.

13. PW4, Sub Inspector Brij Lal, PW5, HC Laiq Ram and PW6 Shankar Dass are formal witnesses.

14. Dr. Piyush Kapila entered the witness box as PW7 and stated that he had conducted the postmortem of the deceased and in his opinion the deceased had died as a result of gross spinal shock and due to oedema of cervical spinal cord leading to death. He also deposed that injuries stated by him were possible in case a person falls down after being pushed by another person. In his cross-examination by defence, PW7 admitted it to be correct that such like injuries could be sustained by a person if he falls under the influence of liquor.

15. Smt. Sheela wife of deceased entered the witness box as PW8 and deposed that on 19.11.2009 she was at her house and at around 5:45 p.m. her mother-in-law told her that deceased was beaten by accused, Krishan Lal. This witness further deposed that upon this she along with Palas Ram, her mother-in-law and Sanit went to the spot and when they reached the spot, her husband was crying and lying downside and his legs, hands and neck were not working. This witness further deposed that when she asked her husband as to what had happened, he told her that when he was walking on the passage without hurling abuses to anyone accused gave danda blows on his legs, arms and neck and then gave him a push. This witness further deposed that during night time they did not take him for providing medical care under the belief that he had not suffered any serious injury and in the morning they took him to IGMC, Shimla. In her cross examination this witness deposed that when her mother-in-law called her, she was in the kitchen which was outside the residential house and her son, daughter and another girl were with her. She further stated that initially Palas Ram came to know about the incident and he told her mother-in-law about the same who further told her about the said incident. This witness further deposed that her mother-in-law, after she came to know about the incident, came running to her and informed her about the same. She admitted it to be correct that any incident taking place near the house of accused Krishan Lal would have come in the notice of persons residing in the neighbourhood. She also stated that her husband was related to accused as a brother. She also admitted it to be correct that her husband used to work with the accused and accused had no enmity with her husband. Thereafter she self stated that accused had earlier also given beatings to her husband.

16. ASI Devi Singh entered the witness box as PW9 and deposed that on 21.11.2009 he had come to Police Station, Rampur and Desh Raj the then SHO sent him to IGMC Shimla in order to verify Rapat No. 23A, Ext. PW5/A. He further deposed that upon this he came to Shimla along with Constable Narender Kumar and recorded statement of Palas Ram, on the basis of which FIR was recorded.

17. Inspector Desh Raj entered the witness box as PW10 and deposed that on 21.11.2009 complainant had telephonically informed Police Station, Rampur that his brother had been taken to IGMC Shimla in an injured condition and he died in the hospital. Upon this Rapat No. 23A dated 21.11.2009 was registered and ASI Devi Singh was deputed to Shimla to verify the report. This witness further deposed that on 22.11.2009 he visited the spot in village Banoga at the instance of the wife of deceased, his mother and father. He also deposed that site plan was prepared. This witness further deposed that on 23.11.2009 he arrested the accused and on 26.11.2009 while in police custody, accused made a disclosure statement to the effect that he in fact had kept the danda with which deceased was beaten by him in his house and he could get demarcated that place. On the basis of disclosure statement which was made in the presence of witnesses Ram Singh and Karam Chand, recovery of danda was made by the side of the kitchen where the same had been kept along with stacked fire wood. This witness also stated that he recorded the statement of witnesses correctly as per their versions. In his cross examination this witness stated that as per investigation it was found that deceased had been taken to IGMC on 22.11.2009. He admitted it to be correct that as per case summary of the patient, Ext. DA, it was mentioned by Registrar, Department of Orthopedics, Shimla that patient was present on 20.11.2009 in casualty with history of “fall from height”. He further stated that he did not found any blood stains on the spot. He also deposed that complainant Palas Ram had told that there was no blood on the clothes which were worn by deceased and he had not seen the other clothes of the deceased. He also stated that nearby the house of accused there were houses of Padam Singh etc. He further stated that as per his investigation the alleged incident took place between 7/7:30 p.m on 19.11.2009. He further admitted it to be correct that in the month of November it is pitch dark by 7/7:30 p.m. He also stated that in site plan, Ext. PW10/A as well as in the marginal notes he had not shown/mentioned any source of light at the spot. However, he self stated that there was a bulb in the verandah of the house of accused from where light was coming. This witness further deposed that in his investigation it had come that on 19.11.2009 at about 4:00 p.m. deceased had consumed liquor in the Dera of Bablu Nepali. He also stated that it had come in the investigation that thereafter deceased also took liquor along with Jai Singh in the house of Man Singh. He further stated that it had come in the investigation that under the influence of liquor deceased was unable to move properly. This witness stated that accused was related to the deceased and it had come in his investigation that they had strained relations. He further stated that he did not obtain medical opinion from the doctor regarding the cause of death of the deceased by Danda, Ext. P4.

18. The so-called disclosure statement of accused is on record as Ext. PW3/A. Witnesses to this disclosure statement are Ram Singh and Karam Chand. It is mentioned in this disclosure statement that accused had hidden one danda on the night of 19.11.2009 outside the kitchen of his house which he can get demarcated. The recovery of danda on the basis of disclosure statement has been made vide recovery memo Ext. PW3/C. As already mentioned above, the so-called disclosure statement was made by accused on 26.11.2009 in the presence of Ram Singh and Karam Chand. Incidentally Karam Chand who entered the witness box as PW3 has not supported the case of the prosecution and he has denied that any such disclosure statement was made by accused in his presence in the police station. He has also denied that accused led the police to the place from where he got the danda recovered. The other witness to the said disclosure statement, namely, Ram Singh has not been examined by the prosecution. In fact this witness was given up by the prosecution on 18.1.2011.

19. It is a matter of record that when deceased was initially brought to and admitted in the causality department at IGMC Shimla on 20.11.2009, the reason as to how deceased had suffered said injuries disclosed to the doctors by complainant was that deceased in fact had fell down. It was only after the death of deceased that complainant introduced the story of deceased having been beaten with a danda by the accused in the evening hours of 19.11.2009. As per PW1 the reason as to why it was not initially disclosed to the doctors that the deceased was beaten by the accused was that deceased had restrained the complainant to disclose this fact to the doctors. However, it has come in the case of the prosecution that the complainant initially told the doctors that the injuries were suffered by deceased on account of fall because the complainant was perplexed when he made this statement to doctors. The postmortem report of the deceased is exhibited on record as Ext. PW7/D. A perusal of the postmortem report demonstrates that the cause of death which has been given in the said postmortem report is that the deceased died as a result of gross spinal shock and due to oedema of cervical spinal cord leading to death. Post mortem of the deceased was conducted by Dr. Piyush Kapila who entered the witness box as PW7. In his examination-in-chief this witness deposed that "the injuries stated above are possible in case a person is being pushed by another and he falls down." In his cross-examination this witness has stated that "it is correct to suggest that if a person under the influence of liquor falls and then sustains such injuries." There is no mention either in his statement as PW7 or in the postmortem report that either there were danda blow injuries on the body of the deceased or that the deceased had died as a result of danda blows. On the other hand this witness is very categorical when he states that the injuries found on the person of deceased can be sustained if a person falls down.

20. Therefore, now it is to be seen as to whether the prosecution has been able to prove on record that the death of the deceased took place on account of his being pushed down by the accused or not and whether it is borne out from the records of the case that the accused gave danda blows to the deceased resulting in his death. Prosecution has relied upon the testimony of complainant PW1 Palas Ram, PW2 Shyam Dassi and PW8 Sheela Devi, to substantiate and corroborate the factum of deceased having been beaten by a danda by the accused and thereafter accused pushing the deceased down side towards the fields.

21. As per PW1-Palas Ram on the fateful day he heard the cries of his brother at around 7:00 p.m. and thereafter he along with his mother came out of the house and saw the accused gave beating to the deceased with danda blows and when he asked the accused as to why he was beating his brother, accused pushed the deceased in the field and fled/went away. This witness further stated that thereafter he along with his mother went to the spot and found the deceased lying in an injured condition at the spot. PW2 Shyam Dassi stated that on the fateful day at around 7:00 p.m, she was boiling milk in the kitchen when she heard noise and heard accused hurling abuses to deceased. She further stated that on hearing the noise, she came out of the kitchen and saw the accused giving danda blows to her son. She further deposed that accused gave danda blows to her son and also pushed him as a result of which he fell down and thereafter she and her son Palas Ram went to the verandah of the house of accused and found the deceased lying in an injured condition. In her cross-examination this witness states that she first heard the abuses hurled by accused and on this she called her son Palas Ram and other family members. However, Palas Ram has nowhere stated that either he heard the accused hurling abuses on the deceased or he was called by her mother as she heard accused hurling abuses upon the deceased. According to Palas Ram upon hearing the cries of his brother he along with his mother came out of the house and saw the accused giving beatings to the deceased with danda. However, according to PW2, Palas Ram was called by her after she heard abuses being hurled by the accused upon the deceased. This witness also stated that Palas Ram came out of the house along with other family members whereas Palas Ram does not say so. PW8 Sheela Devi wife of deceased has deposed that on the fateful day at 5:45 p.m. her mother-in-law told her that accused was beating the deceased and thereafter she along with Palas Ram her mother-in-law and Sanit went to the spot and found her husband lying there who was crying. The statement of this witness is totally contradictory to the testimony of PW1 and PW2. As per PW1 and PW2 the incident took place at around 7:00 p.m. whereas as per PW8 the incident took place at around 5:45 p.m. Further as per PW1 it was he who heard the cries of deceased and thereafter he and his mother rushed to the spot whereas as per PW8 she along with Palas Ram, her mother-in-law and Sanit went to the spot.

22. In our considered view these are major contradictions in the statements of these three witnesses who are otherwise interested witnesses being close relatives of the deceased. These contradictions in the statements of these witnesses raise serious doubt about the trustworthiness and reliability of the testimonies of these witnesses. Another important aspect of the matter is that it has not come in the deposition of PW8 that she saw accused beating her husband. As per PW8 she was informed of this fact by her mother-in-law. The factum of accused giving danda blows to the deceased has come in the testimonies of PW1 and PW2. Incidentally in her cross-examination PW2 has stated that she could not say as to what was the length of the danda with which accused gave beatings to the deceased as she saw the occurrence from some distance as her eyesight was week. Further it has come in the testimonies of PW1 as well as in the testimony of PW2 that there were houses of other persons adjacent to the house of accused where the alleged incident took place. It has also come in the statement of these witnesses that the houses of other persons were within audible distance from the spot where the alleged incident took place. Surprisingly, no independent witness was examined by the prosecution to substantiate its case that on the fateful day that accused first gave danda blow to the deceased and thereafter he pushed the deceased.

23. It has come on record that on 19.11.2009 deceased was heavily drunk as he had consumed liquor firstly in the Dera of Bablu Nepali and thereafter in the house of Man Singh. It has also come on record especially in the statement of Investigating Officer that on account of being under the influence of liquor deceased was unable to move properly. In these circumstances keeping in view the fact that as per post mortem report death of deceased was not caused by danda blows, this possibility cannot be ruled out that the deceased died on account of his having fallen down under the influence of liquor. As we have already mentioned above, the recovery of the weapon of offence is highly doubtful as the witness in whose presence allegedly the disclosure statement was made and the danda was recovered has not supported the case of the prosecution. Not only this the version of PW1 as to why when the deceased was initially admitted at IGMC Shimla on 20.11.2009 it was not disclosed to the doctors that deceased had sustained injuries because he was given danda blows by the accused and thereafter he was pushed by accused also does not inspire confidence. It has also come on record that deceased was related to accused and he was not having any motive to do away with the deceased. It has come in the cross-examination of PW1 that the place of occurrence was about 100 feet from where he was standing. It has come in the testimony of Investigating Officer, PW10 that in the month of November it is pitch dark by 7/7:30 p.m. It has also come in the testimony of PW1 that the path where the alleged incident took place was about 2 to 2 ½ feet wide. According to PW1 and PW2 they identified accused giving danda blows to the deceased in the light of one bulb which was in the verandah of the accused. Cross-examination of Investigating Officer PW10 demonstrates that while he denied the fact that there was no source of light and he self stated that in the house of accused light was found in the verandah, however, he was confronted with the site plan Ext. PW10/A in which neither the source of light was shown nor was the same mentioned/reflected in the marginal notes. He admitted the suggestion that the verandah of the house of accused was glazed and there were windowpanes on the windows. He admitted the suggestion that outside the house no bulb or light was found.

24. In our considered view taking into consideration the inconsistencies and contradictions in the statements of prosecution witnesses, their testimonies neither seem cogent nor reliable nor trustworthy. The defence was able to impinge their credibility during the course of cross-examination. In our considered view the testimonies of prosecution witnesses do not prove beyond reasonable doubt that either accused gave danda blows to the deceased on the fateful evening or he pushed down the deceased as a result of which, Hari Singh later on died. At the most the material produced on record by the prosecution raises suspicion that accused might have hit the deceased with a danda or that he might have pushed the deceased down fields, however, in the absence of their being any cogent evidence on record to corroborate the said case of the prosecution, in our considered view this suspicion, no matter how so strong it is, cannot be made a substitute for proof.

25. We have also gone through the judgment passed by the learned trial court and a perusal of the same demonstrates that learned trial court after taking into consideration the entire evidence which was produced on record by the prosecution both ocular as well as documentary has come to the conclusion that on the basis of material produced on record by the prosecution it could not be said that the prosecution was able to prove its case against the accused beyond reasonable doubt. We concur with the findings so returned by the learned trial court. In our considered view also the material produced on record by the prosecution does not prove beyond reasonable doubt the guilt of the accused. Accordingly while upholding the judgment passed by the learned trial court we dismiss the present appeal being devoid of merit.

We place on record our appreciation for the assistance rendered by the learned Amicus Curiae in the adjudication of the appeal.

4. Brief facts necessary for the adjudication of the present cases are as under:

5. A notification was issued by the Government of Punjab under Section 4 of the Land Acquisition Act for acquisition of 12,396 Kanals and 1 Marla of land in Tika and Mauza

Mahal Banuri, Tika and Mauza Mahal Holta, Tika Bharmat Upperli and Jhalred, Mouza Banuri, Tehsil Palampur on 04.01.1966 for public purposes for setting up of a National Biological Research Institute at Palampur. This notification culminated into an award dated 8th July, 1966, which award was made by Shri Dalip Singh, I.C.S. Revenue Assistant Kangra at Dharmshala exercising the powers of Collector for Kangra District under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, acquiring land for setting up of National Biological Research Institute at Palampur, District Kangra. According to the petitioners, predecessors-in-interest of the private respondents had submitted their respective claims under Section 9 of the Land Acquisition Act and pursuant to the Notification of award dated 08.07.1966, a sum of Rs.21 lac was deposited as compensation amount with the Land Acquisition Collector, Kangra vide cheque No. 986659/009867 dated 08.07.1966 by the Sub Divisional Engineer, Palampur for the purpose of setting up of a National Biological Research Institute, Palampur. Land presently in occupation of the private respondents situated at Mohal Holta, Tehsil Palampur, District Kangra was part of Holta Tea Estate, which was acquired by means of the above mentioned award, compensation qua which was duly deposited by the petitioners. After re-organization of the State of Punjab, Kangra District was added to the State of Himachal Pradesh and compensation awarded to the owners and occupants of the part of land acquired by Revenue Assistant, Land Acquisition Collector, Kangra was duly deposited in treasury and all the owners and occupants received payments of their respective shares, where after all rights, title and interest which they were having in the Holta Tea Estate regarding the land in issue stood extinguished. As per the petitioners, payments were received by all the predecessors-in interest of the private respondents. As scheme for establishing National Biological Research Institute was later on dropped and thereafter in per the petitioners, the year 1978, part of the property was temporarily handed over to Regional Research Laboratory, Jammu, another constituent unit of CSIR for its research work etc. and the Laboratory was using only a part of the property acquired vide award dated 08.07.1966. As the petitioners wanted to establish a Laboratory with wider objectives and research programmes, accordingly in place of National Biological Research Institute, it established CSIR Complex at Palampur in the year 1983, which was subsequently renamed as Institute of Himalayan Bioresource Technology (IHBT), Palampur. According to the petitioners, private respondents were verbally instructed to vacate the land, actual physical possession of which had not been taken from the said private respondents in respect of houses, though actual possession of entire agricultural land both from the owners and occupants stood delivered to CSIR to the extent of 186.2 acres. Further, as per the petitioners, portions of acquired land were given by State of Himachal Pradesh to different bodies including Himachal Pradesh Krishi Vishwavidyalaya. As per the petitioners, as the private respondents did not vacate the land which was in their actual possession despite their having assured the petitioners to do so, petitioners instituted Civil Suits against them in the Court of Sub Judge 1st Class, Palampur. The suits so filed by the petitioners were ordered to be returned to the petitioners/plaintiffs under Order 7 Rule 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure by the Court of learned Sub Judge 1st Class, Palampur as, the Court of learned Sub Judge concluded that the said Court had no jurisdiction to try the case. Thereafter, petitioners filed applications under Section 16 of the Land Acquisition Act before Sub Divisional Collector, Palampur exercising the powers of Collector under the Land Acquisition Act for possession of land which was occupied by the private respondents by demolition of structures, if any, on the same. The applications so filed by the petitioners were rejected vide impugned orders including order dated 28.05.2007 passed by the Court of Collector, Palampur, District Kangra by holding as under:

> "From the above discussion, and perusal of the arguments put forth by the Counsel for the parties and record so placed on the file, the Court has come to the conclusion that the application has been moved by the party/applicant for taking over the possession after a long time of more than 30 years. The applicant was asked to produce evidence with regard to the actual possession by the defendant at the time of handing over the said possession of the ground as per letter and spirit of Section 16 of Land Acquisition Act, but in spite of giving of many opportunities to do so, the applicant failed to do so. No credible evidence whatsoever oral or written has been placed on record which can support their claim. It is therefore, clear that until and unless the defendants takes possession of the land after the acquisition, no title possess to it. In such a case, the person in possession can validly claim possessor title as against the title.

It was for the applicant to take over the actual possession at the time of handing over of possession by the acquiring authority and in case had their been some resistance to do, it would have been appropriate for the applicant party to move under Section 16 of Land Acquisition Act to obtain the actual possession on the ground at that point of time. Since that remedy has not been availed by the party at that point of time, therefore, this application is not maintainable under Section 16 of Land Acquisition Act, now and hence dismissed. File be consigned to the general Record room after the completion."

6. Feeling aggrieved by the said orders passed by Collector, Palampur, District Kangra vide which, the said authority has dismissed the applications filed by the petitioners under Section 16 of the Land Acquisition Act, the petitioners have filed these writ petitions.

7. Reply to the petition has been filed by the State and the replies filed by private respondents have been adopted by those private respondents who have not filed their independent replies to the petition.

8. Mr. K.D. Sood, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioners has argued that the impugned orders passed by Collector, Palampur were not sustainable in law because while passing the impugned orders, Collector, Palampur failed to exercise jurisdiction vested in him and he erred in holding that the property in issue was not vested in the petitioners and the application for possession was not maintainable after a lapse of more than 30 years. According to Mr. Sood, the record of the land acquisition proceedings demonstrated that actual physical possession of substantial portion of the property had been taken over by the petitioners and they had also set up Institute of Himalayan Bioresource Technology, Palampur on the said property and had further developed the land for research and development purposes as well as for socio-economic development of regional community through sustainable utilization of natural resources with special emphasis on tea, floriculture, bamboo, medicinal plants and aromatic crops. On these basis, it was argued by Mr. Sood that the inference drawn by the Collector to the effect that the possession of the acquired land had not been taken by the petitioners was totally unjustifiable. According to Mr. Sood, because actual possession of part of the property was not taken, the same was totally immaterial and the structures being occupied by the private respondents were liable to be demolished and actual possession of the property was liable to be delivered to the petitioners. According to Mr. Sood, the impugned orders besides being non-speaking and cryptic were otherwise also liable to be set aside because while passing the said orders, not only the Collector lost sight of the fact that it was his statutory duty to carry out the responsibilities enshrined upon him under Section 16 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, but even otherwise whatever little reasoning that could be made out from the said order demonstrated that the orders were perverse and erroneous. Mr. Sood argued that the Collector below dismissed the applications filed by the petitioners without appreciating that it was not the case of the petitioners that they were not occupying the land. Mr. Sood further contended that the findings returned by Collector to the effect that "until and unless the defendant takes possession of the land after acquisition, no title passes to it" was totally out of context because this was neither the issue involved in the case nor it was clear from the impugned order as to what the authority intended to convey by returning the said findings. On these basis, it was urged by Mr. Sood that the impugned orders be set aside and the petitioners be granted reliefs as prayed for.

9. Mr. Varun Chandel, learned Additional Advocate General, supported the orders passed by Collector and argued that the Collector rightly dismissed the applications filed by the petitioners under Section 16 of the Land Acquisition Act for want of evidence on the factum of taking over of the possession of the land referred to in the applications. It was further submitted by learned Additional Advocate General that it was for the petitioners to take over the actual possession of the land in issue at the time of handing over of the possession by the acquiring authority and because in the present case petitioners had failed to take the actual possession of the land at that point of time, the applications filed in this regard under Section 16 of the Land Acquisition Act were not maintainable and were rightly dismissed.

10. Mr. G.D. Verma, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the private respondents alongwith Mr. N.K. Sood and Mr. N.K. Thakur, learned Senior Counsel argued that neither there was any infirmity with the orders passed by Collector dismissing the applications of the petitioners filed under Section 16 of the Land Acquisition Act nor was there any merit in the present petitions and the same also deserved dismissal. It was argued by Mr. G.D. Verma, learned Senior Counsel that as far as the factual matrix of the case was concerned, there was no dispute. The factum of issuance of Notification under Section 4 of the Land Acquisition Act and the factum of the award having been announced on 08.07.1966 was not disputed by learned Senior Counsel. Mr. Verma submitted that the payment of compensation to the predecessors-in-interest of the private respondents out of the award money as well as the private respondents being in occupation of the land subject matter of acquisition award dated 08.07.1966 was an admitted position. According to Mr. Verma, the award which was passed as far back as in the year 1966 had in fact become un-executable and keeping in view the fact that despite the land having been acquired vide award dated 08.07.1966, the actual possession of the same remained initially with the predecessors-in-interest of the private respondents and thereafter with them, the petitioners had now no legal right to claim possession of the said land from the private respondents. It was further argued by Mr. Verma that the judgments passed by the Court of learned Sub Judge 1st Class, Palampur dismissing the suit for possession filed by the petitioners and returning their plaint under Order 7 Rule 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure had attained finality. According to Mr. Verma, the remedy available to the petitioners at that stage was to have had challenged the said judgments passed by the Court of learned Sub Judge 1st Class, Palampur rather than filing applications under Section 16 of the Land Acquisition Act before the Collector at a belated stage. It was further argued by Mr. Verma that there was neither any infirmity nor any perversity with the order that was passed by the Collector dismissing the applications filed by the petitioners under Section 16 of the Land Acquisition Act. Mr. Verma argued that neither the said orders were non speaking nor were they cryptic. According to Mr. Verma, learned Collector rightly dismissed the said applications by holding that the petitioners had no right to move such application at such a belated stage. It was further argued by Mr. Verma that keeping in view the fact that award passed by the Land Acquisition Officer had the force of decree and there was no specific provision for execution of the award passed by Land Acquisition Officer, then it was incumbent for the petitioners to have had got the said award executed within a period of three years. Mr. Verma further submitted that since the possession of the land in issue was never actually taken over by the petitioners, ownership rights never vested in them.

11. Mr. N.K. Sood, learned Senior Counsel while adopting the arguments of Mr. G.D. Verma, learned Senior Counsel, supplemented Mr. Verma by arguing that even otherwise in view of subsequent events, the petitions had been rendered infructuous. Mr. N.K. Sood submitted that it was an admitted case of the parties that despite the fact that the land subject matter of the present writ petitions was acquired by way of an award which was passed as far back as in the year 1966, the actual possession of the property which is being occupied by the private respondents was never taken by the petitioners from them. In this factual matrix, it was submitted by Mr. N.K. Sood that in view of the provisions of the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (hereinafter referred to as "the 2013 Act") which had come in force w.e.f. 01.01.2014, the petitions had been rendered infructuous. Mr. Sood placed reliance upon Sub-section(2) of Section 24 of the 2013 Act and argued that the said statutory provision explicitly provided by way of non-obstante clause that in case of land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, where an award under Section 11 has been made five years or more prior to the commencement of 2013 Act but physical possession of the land had not been taken or the compensation had not been paid, the said proceedings shall be deemed to have lapsed and the appropriate Government, if it so chooses, shall initiate the proceedings of such land acquisition afresh in accordance with the provisions of 2013 Act. On these basis, it was submitted by Mr. Sood that the present petitions had in fact been rendered infructuous and in case the petitioners were interested in the possession of the land which was in the occupation of the private respondents, then they will have to resort to the procedure prescribed in 2013 Act, which contemplated that the appropriate Government shall have to initiate proceedings afresh in accordance with the provisions of 2013 Act for acquisition of the land in issue.

12. Mr. N.K. Thakur, learned Senior Counsel while adopting the arguments of Mr. G.D. Verma and Mr. N.K. Sood, learned Senior counsel also argued that neither there was any infirmity with the orders passed by Collector, Palampur nor in view of subsequent development petitions in fact survived. Accordingly, it was submitted on behalf of the private respondents that the petitions be dismissed.

13. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and also gone through the records of the case.

14. The grievance which has been raised by the petitioners by way of present writ petitions inter alia is the rejection of the applications filed by them under Section 16 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 by Collector, Palampur. Applications were filed by the petitioners before Collector, Palampur praying therein that the land which stood acquired as far back as in the year 1966 and which was still in the occupation of the private respondents be got vacated from the said private respondents and be handed over to the petitioners. The applications so filed by the petitioners have been dismissed by Collector, Palampur vide orders dated 28.05.2007, 18.06.2007 & 16.11.2010, which orders have been assailed in all these petitions by the petitioners.

15. Section 16 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 provided as under:

> "16. Power to take possession. When the Collector has made an award under Section 11, he may take possession of the land, which shall thereupon vest absolutely in the Government, free from all encumbrances.

16. Under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, once the Collector made an award under Section 11 thereof, then he could take possession of the land and two consequences follow from this taking of possession, namely:

(i) Vesting of the land absolutely in the Government.

(ii) Such vesting is free from all encumbrances.

17. It is not disputed that until possession is taken by the Collector, the owner's title is not disturbed and there is no vesting of title in the Government notwithstanding that there has been an award. Where the property is in actual possession of a trespasser but in the legal possession of the true owner and the latter delivers possession, then such delivery will obviously be symbolic delivery of possession. Symbolic delivery of possession will be as effective as actual delivery for the purpose of Section 16 of the Act. Once the Land Acquisition Officer has taken symbolic delivery of possession, the State acquires along with it the right to evict the trespassers. It is settled law that taking of possession under Section 16 becomes complete as soon as the possession which the owner was capable of delivering was taken. It is not the spirit of Section 16 that Collector personally has to go to the land to proclaim that he has taken possession. It is enough that he authorizes someone in this regard.

18. A perusal of the averments made in the application which was filed by the petitioners under Section 16 of the Land Acquisition Act demonstrate that it was pleaded therein that after acquisition of land in issue by way of issuance of award, the compensation stood deposited by the petitioners and the same was given to the predecessors-in-interest of all the private respondents. It was mentioned therein that since the land in issue stood acquired and compensation stood paid, private respondents had no right to occupy the same and possession of the said land be taken from the said respondents by the Collector and the same be handed over to the applicant.

19. In the reply filed to the said application, the stand of the private respondents was that the factum of the land in issue having been acquired by way of an award was denied for want of knowledge and the factum of the predecessors-in-interest of the private respondents having received compensation in lieu of said acquisition was also denied for want of knowledge. The application was resisted on the grounds of limitation and mis-joinder of necessary parties etc.

20. A perusal of the orders passed by Collector demonstrates that the applications filed by the petitioners under Section 16 of the Land Acquisition Act were dismissed primarily on the ground that besides being belated the petitioners were asked to produce evidence with regard to actual possession of the defendant, but in spite of many opportunities having been granted to the petitioners in this regard, no credible evidence was placed on record by the petitioners in support of their claim.

21. Be that as it may, it is evident from the facts of the present petitions that the award under Section 11 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 was in fact passed on 08.07.1966 in respect of the land which is in possession of the private respondents and thus it is an undisputed fact that the award in issue was passed five years prior to the commencement of 2013 Act and possession of the land/houses/structures which are in occupation of the private respondents has not been taken over by the respondents. In fact, this factual position cannot be agitated by the petitioners whose edifice of filing the applications under Section 16 of the Land Acquisition Act before the Collector was that despite their being an award passed in their favour by the Collector and the compensation having been received by the predecessors-in-interest of the private respondents, possession thereof had not been vacated by the private respondents. Eight of these writ petitions were filed in the year 2008 and one writ petition was filed in the year 2011.

22. During the pendency of these writ petitions, the Parliament enacted Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013, which has come into force w.e.f. 01.01.2014. Section 24 of the said Act provides as under:

> "24. Land Acquisition process under Act No. 1 of 1894 shall be deemed to have lapsed in certain cases-(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, in any case of land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (1 of 1894)-
>
> (a) where no award under Section 11 of the said Land Acquisition Act has been made, then, all provisions of this act relating to the determination of compensation shall apply; or
>
> (b) where an award under said Section 11 has been made, then such proceedings shall continue under the provisions of the said Land Acquisition Act, as if the said Act has not been repealed.
>
> (2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1), in case of land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (1 of 1894), where an award under the said section 11 has been made five years or more prior to the commencement of this Act but the physical possession of the land has not been taken or the compensation has not been paid the said proceedings shall be deemed to have lapsed and the appropriate Government, if it so chooses, shall initiate the proceedings of such land acquisition afresh in accordance with the provisions of this Act:
> Provided that where an award has been made and compensation in respect of a majority of land holdings has not been deposited in the account of the beneficiaries, then, all beneficiaries specified in the notification for acquisition under Section 4 of the said Land Acquisition Act, shall be entitled to compensation in accordance with the provisions of this Act."

23. On the basis of the provisions in Sub-section (2) of Section 24, it was argued on behalf of the private respondents that the proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 culminating into award dated 08.07.1966 as far as they pertain to the land presently in possession of the private respondents are deemed to have lapsed and if the appropriate Government so chooses, it may initiate proceedings of such land acquisition afresh in accordance with the provisions of 2013 Act.

24. Undoubtedly, Sub-section (2) of Section 24 expressly provides with a non-obstante clause that where an award under Section 11 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 has been made five years or more prior to the commencement of 2013 Act but physical possession of the land has not been taken, then the land acquisition proceedings initiated under the old Act shall be deemed to have lapsed and appropriate Government, if it so chooses, shall initiate the proceedings of such land acquisition afresh in accordance with the provisions of 2013 Act. The factum of the award in issue having been made more than five years prior to coming into force of 2013 Act is not in dispute. Therefore, in my considered view, by virtue of Sub-section(2) of Section 24, the land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 culminating in award dated 08.07.1966 as far as the said award relates to the land which is still in physical possession of the present private respondents have lapsed by application of law, as one of the conditions in the said provisions is fulfilled in the present case.

25. In fact, this legal position is no more res integra and it has been settled in many pronouncements by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India in cases where factual position was akin to the facts of the present cases, i.e. where award had been passed under Section 11 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 more than 5 years prior to the coming into force of 2013 Act and possession of the land acquired had not been taken over.

26. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Velaxan Kumar Vs. Union of India and others (2015) 4 Supreme Court Cases 325 has held :

> "14. We have carefully examined the application filed by the appellant seeking for the beneficial provision of Section 24(2) of the Act of 2013 and the objections filed by the respondents to the same. After examining the facts and circumstances of the case, we are of the considered view that the award passed under Section 11 was passed on 03.04.2002 in respect of the disputed land of village-pansali, therefore, it is an undisputed fact that it was passed 5 years prior to the commencement of the Act of 2013 and the compensation for the acquisition of the appellant's land has not been paid to the appellant. Further, with respect to taking over of possession of the land by the respondents, it is clear from the facts and circumstances of the case that actual physical possession of the land in question has not been taken by the respondents. Even if, for the sake of argument it is accepted that possession of the land was taken by the respondents, it is clear that due procedure has not been followed by the Acquisition Authority by way of preparing proper 'Panchnama' in the presence of independent witnesses and the land-holders, and therefore it is contrary to the principles law laid down by this Court in the case of Sita Ram Bhandar Society, New Delhi v. Lt. Governor Govt. Of N.C.T. Delhi & Ors.8 , wherein, this Court held that when possession of a large tract of land is to be taken then it is permissible in law to take possession by a properly executed 'panchnama' attested by independent witnesses. This was further reiterated by this Court in its decisions in the case of Bhanda Development Authority, Raghubir Singh Sehrawat, Patasi Devi 8 (2009) 10 SCC 501referred to supra.
> 15. Further, in the case on hand it is clear from the photographs produced along with the affidavit in support of additional documents produced before us that the appellant is still in physical possession of his acquired land. Undisputedly, actual physical possession of the acquired land has not been taken over by the respondents as pleaded by them by following due process of law. Therefore, the acquisition proceedings of the land of the appellant are lapsed in view of Section 24(2) of the Act of 2013 as both the conditions under the said provision are fulfilled in the present case. This Court has rightly interpreted the said provision in its three

Judge Bench decision in the case of Pune Municipal Corporation referred to supra and the legal principle laid down with respect to the same in the above mentioned case was reiterated by this Court in the cases of Bharat Kumar (supra), Bimla Devi & Others v. State of Haryana & Others9 and Union of India & others v. Shiv Raj & Others10.

16. The relevant paras of the Pune Municipal Corporation (supra) are extracted hereunder:-

> "20…….it is clear that the award pertaining to the subject land has been made by the Special Land Acquisition Officer more than five years prior to the commencement of the 2013 Act. It is also admitted position that compensation so awarded has neither been paid to the landowners/persons interested nor deposited in the court. The deposit of compensation amount in the Governmenttreasury is of no avail and cannot be held to be equivalent to compensation paid to the landowners/persons interested. We have, therefore, no hesitation in holding that the subject land acquisition proceedings shall be deemed to have lapsed under Section 24(2) of the 2013 Act.
> 21. The argument on behalf of the Corporation that the subject land acquisition proceedings have been concluded in all respects under the 1894 Act and that they are not affected at all in view of Section 114(2) of the 2013 Act, has no merit at all, and is noted to be rejected. Section 114(1) of the 2013 Act repeals the 1894 Act. Sub-section (2) of Section 114, however, makes Section 6 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 applicable with regard to the effect of repeal but this is subject to the provisions in the 2013 Act. Under Section 24(2) land acquisition proceedings initiated under the 1894 Act, by legal fiction, are deemed to have lapsed where award has been made five years or more prior to the commencement of the 2013 Act and possession of the land is not taken or compensation has not been paid. The legal fiction under Section 24 (2) comes into operation as soon as conditions stated therein are satisfied. The applicability of Section 6 of the General Clauses Act being subject to Section 24(2), there is no merit in the contention of the Corporation."

17. On considering the facts and circumstances of the present case in the light of the legal principles laid down by this Court in the cases referred to supra, we are of the view that neither compensation has been paid by the respondents to the appellant for the said acquisition even though more than five years have elapsed from the date of Award when the Act of 2013 came into force w.e.f. 01.01.2014 nor physical possession of the land belonging to the appellant has been taken by the respondents. Therefore, the acquisition proceedings in respect of the appellant's land have lapsed in terms of Section 24(2) of the Act of 2013. In view of the law laid down by this Court in Pune Municipal Corporation's case and other cases referred to supra, we are of the opinion that the same are applicable to the fact situation on hand in respect of the land covered in this appeal for granting the relief as prayed by the appellant in the application.

18. In view of the above findings and reasons recorded by us with reference to the facts of the case and placing reliance upon the decisions of this Court referred to supra, the acquisition proceedings in respect of the appellant's land have lapsed. The aforesaid application is allowed in the above terms and consequently, the appeal is also allowed by quashing the acquisition proceeding notification in so far as the land of the appellant is concerned."

27. In The Working Friends Cooperative House Building Society Ltd. Vs. The State of Punjab & Ors. JT 2015(9) SC 357, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held:

"2. The question for consideration is whether the compulsory acquisition of the appellant's land under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 lapses in view of the provisions of Section 24(2) of The Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (for short 'the Act'). In our opinion, the question must be answered in the affirmative and it must be held that the compulsory acquisition of the appellant's land has lapsed.

13. The law on the subject is now no longer res integra. The leading judgment in respect of Section 24(2) of the Act was delivered in Pune Municipal Corporation. It was concluded in paragraph 20 of the aforesaid decision, that the Award had been made by the Land Acquisition Collector more than five years prior to the commencement of the Act and compensation had not been paid to the landowners/persons interested nor deposited in the Court. It was held that the deposit of compensation in the Government Treasury is of no avail. Consequently, there was no option but to hold that the land acquisition proceedings were deemed to have lapsed under Section 24(2) of the Act. Paragraph 20 reads as follows:- "From the above, it is clear that the award pertaining to the subject land has been made by the Special Land Acquisition Officer more than five years prior to the commencement of the 2013 Act. It is also admitted position that compensation so awarded has neither been paid to the landowners/persons interested nor deposited in the court. The deposit of compensation amount in the Government treasury is of no avail and cannot be held to be equivalent to compensation paid to the landowners/persons interested. We have, therefore, no hesitation in holding that the subject land acquisition proceedings shall be deemed to have lapsed under Section 24(2) of the 2013 Act."

14. Subsequently, this decision was followed in Union of India v. Shiv Raj.[2] It was held, after examining the Objects and Reasons for the Act that since the possession of the acquired land had not been taken and compensation had been deposited with the Revenue Department, it could not be termed as "deemed payment" of the compensation as held in Pune Municipal Corporation. Accordingly, the appeals filed by the Union of India were liable to be dismissed. In this context, it may be noted that reference was also made to two other decisions of this Court namely Bharat Kumar v. State of Haryana[3] and Bimla Devi v. State of Haryana[4] which were to the same effect.

15. The issue again came up for consideration in Sree Balaji Nagar Residential Association v. State of Tamil Nadu[5] and the decision rendered in Pune Municipal Corporation and Shiv Raj were followed. In that case, it was noted that there is a lack of clarity on the issue whether compensation has been paid for majority of the land holding under acquisition, but there was no dispute that possession of the land under consideration had not been taken by the State or any other authority. It was also noted that more than five years had elapsed since the making of the Award. On this basis, it was held that Section 24(2) of the Act was applicable and the land acquisition proceedings must be deemed to have lapsed.

16. Finally, in Karnail Kaur v. State of Punjab[6] the issue was once again examined, this time a little more elaborately but there was no deviation from any of the decisions rendered by this Court. The additional submission made in this case on behalf of the State of Punjab and negatived by this Court, related to The Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement (Amendment) Ordinance, 2014, whereby a second proviso was inserted in Section 24(2) of the Act. The Ordinance came into force with effect from 1st January, 2015 and it was held by this Court that the Ordinance had only prospective effect and was not retrospective. Therefore, the period of the grant of stay or injunction by any Court from taking possession of the acquired land would not be excluded retrospectively for computing the period of five years referred to in Section 24(2) of the Act. This issue does not arise in so far as the present appeal is concerned since no argument based on the Ordinance was raised and in any case the Ordinance has since lapsed. However, we are mentioning this only to highlight the fact that the interpretation of Section 24(2) of the Act has been considered by this Court from all possible angles.

17. The issue of retrospectivity of the Ordinance has also been considered in Radiance Fincap (P) Ltd. v. Union of India,[7] Arvind Bansal v. State of Haryana[8] and Rajiv Choudhrie HUF v. Union of India.

18. On the issue of retrospectivity, we may only mention the view taken by a Constitution Bench of this Court in Commissioner of Income Tax v. Vatika Township Pvt. Ltd.[10] It was held in paragraph 29 or the Report as follows:-

"The obvious basis of the principle against retrospectivity is the principle of "fairness" which must be the basis of every legal rule as was observed in L'Office Cherifien des Phosphates v. Yamashita-Shinnihon Steamship Co. Ltd. Thus, legislations which modified accrued rights or which impose obligations or impose new duties or attach a new disability have to be treated as prospective unless the legislative intent is clearly to give the enactment a retrospective effect; unless the legislation is for purpose of supplying an obvious omission in a former legislation or to explain a former legislation. We need not note the cornucopia of case law available on the subject because aforesaid legal position clearly emerges from the various decisions and this legal position was conceded by the counsel for the parties."

19. Applying the law laid down by the Constitution Bench, it must be held that the appellant had an accrued right which must be recognized by Section 24(2) of the Act. The Ordinance which purported to take away such an accrued right would have to be treated as prospective unless the legislative intent was clearly to give it retrospective effect. As mentioned above, this issue does not arise in the present case but is being mentioned only to buttress the conclusion arrived at by this Court in Karnail Kaur and subsequent decisions."

28. In Pawan Kumar Aggarwal Vs. State of Punjab & Ors. JT 2016(4) SC178, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held:

"1. Leave granted.

2. It is not in dispute that though an award was passed in respect of the land belonging to the appellant, the appellant has not been dispossessed and hence the appellant is entitled for the protection under Section 24(2) of the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013. In fact, we find that in respect of the same very acquisition Notification in a situation where the possession is still retained by the owner, this Court by Judgment dated 22.01.2015 in C.A.No.7424 of 2013 titled Karnail Kaur & Ors. Vs. State of Punjab & Ors. reported in 2015 (3) SCC 206 has quashed the Notification, therefore, this appeal is allowed. Proceedings for acquisition in respect of the land belonging to the appellant covered by this appeal stand quashed."

29. In D.D.A Vs. Raman Grover and Ors. JT 2016(5) SC 196, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held:

"1. Leave granted.

2. The appellant is before this Court, aggrieved by the Judgment of the High Court, whereby the High Court gave a declaration that the entire land acquisition proceedings have lapsed in view of the operation of Section 24 (2) of The Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013.

3. Sh. Amrendra Sharan, learned senior counsel appearing for Delhi Development Authority (DDA), on instruction, faily concedes that as far as 1100 sq. yards of land belonging to Respondent No. 1 is concerned, the possession has not been taken by DDA, though the award had been passed as far back as in 1986. In that view of the matter, Section 24(2) of the 2013 Act squarely applies in the case and the land acquisition proceedings in respect of the said extent of 1100 sq. yards belonging to Respondent No. 1 shall be deemed to have lapsed.

4. In that view of the matter, the appeal is dismissed."

30. In Shashi Gupta & Anr. Vs. State of Haryana & Ors. JT 2016(5) SC 196, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held:

"3. It was brought to the notice of the Court that in view of the operation of Section 24(2) of The Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (in short, "the 2013 Act"), the proceedings have lapsed and, therefore, on 05.05.2016, this Court passed the following order:-

"In answer to RTI application, the petitioners have been informed that though the Award has been passed on 16.07.2007, the petitioner has not received the compensation. It is also stated in the RTI reply that the possession could not be taken on account of stay of dispossession in CWP No. 18579 of 2006.

There will be a direction to respondent No. 1 to file affidavit on the following aspects:

i) When was the amount of compensation deposited with the Land Acquisition Collector?

ii) When was the stay of dispossession granted in CWP No. 18579/2006 and when was it vacated?

The Competent Officer of the State of Haryana shall file the reply on these two aspects on or before 11.05.2016. We make it clear that if reply as mentioned above is not filed, it will be taken that they have nothing to reply and that the special leave petitions are only to be allowed Post for Judgment/Order on 12.05.2016".

5. We are afraid, we cannot appreciate the above submission of the learned counsel for the State. On the admitted facts, the land acquisition proceedings have lapsed since there is no stay on any count operating in the matter of possession or acquisition of the lands of the appellants after 12.08.2008. The 2013 Act came into force on 01.01.2014. Therefore, five years prior to the coming into force of the 2013 Act, the appellats have not been dispossessed. It is also a fact that there is no payment of compensation in accordance with law as declared by this Court in Pune Municipal Corporation & Anr. V. Harakchand Misirimal Solanki & Ors. reported in (JT 2014(3) SC 283).

6. In view of the above admitted position, it is not necessary to remit the matters to the High Court. The land acquisition proceedings have lapsed in the facts of the present cases in view of the operation of Section 24(2) of the 2013 Act. It is declared so and the appeals are allowed. No costs."

31. In Delhi Development Authority Vs. Reena Suri and Ors. JT 2016(5) SC 291, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held:

"1. Leave granted.

2. All these appeals have been filed by the Delhi Development Authority, aggrieved by the Judgment of the High Court of Delhi. In the impugned Judgment, the High Court has taken the stand that the land acquisition initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, and culminating in passing of awards on different dates, has lapsed in view of Section 24 of The Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (in short, "2013 Act") in respect of the land covered by these appeals. Section 24 of the Act reads as follows :- "24. Land acquisition process under Act No. 1 of 1894 shall be deemed to have lapsed in certain cases - (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, in any case of land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894,(a) where no award under section 11 of the said Land Acquisition Act has been made, then, all provisions of this Act relating to the determination of compensation shall apply; or(b) where an award under said section 11 has been made, then such proceedings shall continue under the provisions of the said Land Acquisition Act, as if the said Act has not been repealed.(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1), in case of land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act. 1894, where an award under the said section 11 has been made five years or more prior to the commencement of this Act but the physical possession of the land has not been taken or the compensation has not been paid the said proceedings shall be deemed to have lapsed and the appropriate Government, if it so chooses, shall initiate the proceedings of such land acquisition afresh in accordance with the provisions of this Act: Provided that where an award has been made and compensation in respect of a majority of land holdings has not been deposited in the account of the beneficiaries, then, all beneficiaries specified in the notification for acquisition under section 4 of the said Land Acquisition Act, shall be entitled to compensation in accordance with the provisions of this Act"

3. It may be seen that under Section 24(2) of the Act, the proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 and culminating in award under Section 11 of the said Act would lapse in case the possession after passing of the award has not been taken within five years or more prior to the commencement of the 2013 Act (9 of 2014). This Act came into force on 01.01.2014. UnderSection 24 (2) of the 2013 Act, the proceedings would also lapse in case the compensation has not been paid to the owners of the land before 01.01.2014. However, it is made clear under Section 24(2) of the 2013 Act that despite such lapse, it will be open to the appropriate Government to initiate fresh proceedings for acquisition in accordance with the provisions of the 2013 Act.

4. Sh. Vishnu Saharya, learned counsel appearing for the appellant-Delhi Development Authority, has submitted that once an award has been passed, the property vests in the Government and, therefore, there is no lapse. We are afraid, the contentions raised by him cannot be appreciated.

5. Section 16 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 reads as follows :-"Power to take possession - When the Collector has made an award under Section 11, he may take possession of the land, which shall thereupon [vest absolutely in the [Government]], free from all encumbrances."

6. Under the above provision, once an award has been made by the Collector under Section 11 of the Act, 1894, the Collector has to take possession of the land and only thereupon, the land will vest in the Government free from all encumbrances. Therefore, passing of the award by itself will not enable the appellant to take a contention that the land has automatically vested with the Government on passing of the award.

7. It is not in dispute that in all these cases, the land has not been taken possession of by the Collector within five years or more prior to 01.01.2014 when the 2013 Act came into force.

8. In that view of the matter, there is no merit in these appeals. The appeals are, accordingly, dismissed. No costs."

32. In view of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the abovementioned judgments, no second view is possible in the facts and circumstances of the present cases save and except that keeping in view that during the pendency of the present petitions, Parliament has repealed the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 and in its place enacted the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013, which has come in force w.e.f. 01.01.2014, the provisions of Section 24(2) of the said Act comes to the rescue of private respondents. Though there appears to be merit in the contention of Mr. K.D. Sood, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioners that the orders passed by the Collector vide which the applications filed by the present petitioners under Section 16 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 were dismissed are cryptic, but in my considered view, no fruitful purpose will be served by interfering with the said orders passed by Collector in view of coming into force of the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 w.e.f. 01.1.2014 during the pendency of these writ petitions and the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in interpretation of Section 24(2) of the said Act in the abovementioned judgments.

33. In view of the discussion held above, I do not find any merit in the present writ petitions and the same are accordingly dismissed, so also the Miscellaneous application(s), if any. No order as to costs.

Constitution of India, 1950- Article 226- Son of the petitioner fainted due to electrocution- he was taken to hospital, where he succumbed to the injuries- interim compensation of Rs. 2 lacs awarded in favour of the petitioner. (Para-4 to 9)

Case referred:

Present:Ms. Rachna Sharma, Advocate, for the petitioner.

Leave granted. The application is disposed of.

CWP No. 2463/2016.

2. Issue notice. Mr. J.K. Verma, learned Deputy Advocate General, and Mr. Vivek Sharma, Advocate, waive notice on behalf of respondent No. 1 and respondents No. 2 to 5, respectively. Reply be filed within six weeks. List on 17th November, 2016.

CMP No. 7980/2016.

3. By the medium of this application, the applicant/petitioner has sought interim compensation.

4. The moot question is – whether interim compensation can be granted in writ proceedings, while exercising power under Article 226 of the Constitution of India?. The answer is in the affirmative for the following reasons.

5. To determine the issue, it is necessary to have a glance of brief facts of the case, which have been made the foundation for claiming the compensation in the main writ petition. It is averred in the writ petition that the son of the petitioner Akhil Sharma got fainted due to electrocution as the current suddenly pulled him and he sustained injuries on his body , was taken to Civil Hospital Indora and succumbed to the injury in the Hospital. The incident was stated to have been reported to the police and FIR No. 108 of 2016 came to be registered. The dead body was sent for autopsy. The doctor, who conducted the postmortem, opined that the cause of death was due to electric shock leading to fibrillation (very rapid irregular contractions of the muscle fiber of the heart resulting in a lack of synchronism between heartbeat and pulse) and sudden death. The father of the petitioner is stated to have approached the authorities concerned but in vain. Hence the present petition.

6. The documents, placed on the file, do disclose, prima facie, that it is a case where a Writ Court should intervene and come to the rescue of the victims in order to save them from destitution, vagaries and social evils and also provide them some sort of help at this stage.

7. The Apex Court in Civil Appeal No.11466 of 2014, titled as Raman vs. Uttar Haryana Bijli Vitran Nigam Ltd. & Ors., decided on 17th December, 2014, has laid down guidelines how to assess and grant compensation in such like cases. One of us (Justice Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice), the then Judge of Jammu and Kashmir High Court, has also dealt with such an issue in Chief Engineer and others vs. Mst. Zeba, reported in II (2005) ACC 705, in which case, compensation was granted in favour of the victims.

8. We have also dealt with the similar issue in a public interest litigation, being CWPIL No.7 of 2014, titled as Court on its own motion vs. State of Himachal Pradesh and others, decided on 25th June, 2014, wherein interim compensation to the tune of Rs.5.00 lacs, to each of the victims, was granted. It is apt to reproduce paragraphs 20 to 22 of the said order hereunder:

> "20. In order to achieve the purpose of grant of interim or final relief promptly and spurn any attempt at procrastination in view of the facts and circumstances of the case, which are crying for the same, the Courts should not succumb to niceties, technicalities and mystic maybe's.
>
> 21. We are of the considered view that the Writ Court can exercise powers in terms of the mandate of the Constitution read with the inherent powers and can grant interim relief, even though it is not specifically provided for.
>
> 22. We have laid our hands on a judgment which is delivered by one of us (Justice Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice) as a Judge of Jammu and Kashmir High Court, wherein interim compensation was granted in a First Civil Appeal, titled as Chief Engineer & Ors. versus Mst. Zeba, reported in II (2005) ACC 705. It is apt to reproduce paras 10 to 17 of the said judgment herein:
> "10. While going through the provisions of Section 151, C.P.C., this Court can exercise inherent powers in order to do justice in between the parties and can pass such orders which are warranted in the interests of justice.

11. Section 140 of Motor Vehicles Act mandates how to grant interim compensation. This remedy stands introduced in terms of the recommendations made by the Apex Court in the judgments reported in 1977 ACJ 134 (SC), 1980 ACJ 435 (SC) and 1981 ACJ 507 (SC). In terms of the said judgments the legislation was made. The aim and object of the said provision is to save the victims/sufferers from starvation, destitution and from other social evils. It is just to ameliorate the sufferings of the victims.

12. The Apex Court has passed a judgment reported in AIR 1996 SC 922, titled Shri Bodhisattwa Gautam v. Miss Subhra Chakraborty, wherein Their Lordships have granted interim compensation to the victims of a rape case. In terms of the said judgment the Court is not powerless to come to the rescue of victims and save them from social evils as discussed above. It is profitable to reproduce para-18 of the said judgment herein:

> "18. This decision recognizes the right of the victim for compensation by providing that it shall be awarded by the Court on conviction of the offender subject to the finalization of scheme by the Central Government. If the Court trying an offence of rape has jurisdiction to award the compensation at the final stage, there is no reason to deny to the Court the right to award interim compensation which should also be provided in the scheme. On the basis of principles set out in the aforesaid decision in Delhi Domestic Working Women's Forum, the jurisdiction to pay interim compensation shall be treated to be part of the overall jurisdiction of the Courts trying the offences of rape which, as pointed out above is an offence against basic human rights as also the Fundamental Right of Personal Liberty and Life."

13. The Apex Court has also held in the judgment reported in AIR 1986 SC 984, Smt. Savitri v. Govind Singh Rawat, that the Courts can grant interim maintenance in the proceedings under Section 488 (Section 125, Cr.P.C.), Cr.P.C. It is profitable to reproduce relevant portion of para-6 herein:

> ".....if a Civil Court can pass such interim orders on affidavits, there is no reason why a Magistrate should not rely on them for the purpose of issuing directions regarding payment of interim maintenance. The affidavit may be treated as supplying prima facie proof of the case of the applicant. If the allegations in the application or the affidavit are not true, it is always open to the person against whom such an order is made to show that the order is unsustainable. Having regard to the nature of the jurisdiction exercised by a Magistrate under Section 125 of the Code, we feel that the said provision should be interpreted as conferring power by necessary implication on the Magistrate to pass an order directing a person against whom an application is made under it to pay a reasonable sum by way of interim maintenance subject to the other conditions referred to the pending final disposal of the application. In taking this view we have also taken note of the provisions of Section 7(2)(a) of the Family Courts Act, 1984 (Act No. 66 of 1984) passed recently by Parliament proposing to transfer the jurisdiction exercisable by Magistrates under Section 125 of the Code to the Family Court constituted under the said Act."

14. While going through the said provisions of law and while keeping in view of the above discussion, I am of the considered view that Civil Court can exercise inherent powers and can grant interim compensation at any stage even though not provided by any other provision of law. It is profitable to reproduce relevant portion of para-4 of the judgment of Apex Court reported in AIR 1995 SC 350, State of Maharashtra and others v. Admane Anita Moti and Others.

> ".....Interim orders are granted by the Court as they are necessary to protect the interest of the petitioner till the rights are finally adjudicated upon.

Even where it is not provided in the statute this Court has held that the Courts have inherent power to grant it……"

15. It is also profitable to reproduce paras 9 & 10 of the Apex Court judgment reported in AIR 2004 SC 3992, Vareed Jacob v. Sosamma Geevarghese and Others, herein:

"9. In the case of M/s. Ram Chand and Sons Sugar Mills Pvt. Ltd. v. Kanhayalal Bhargava, reported in AIR 1966 SC 1899, it has been held by this Court that the inherent power of the Court under Section 151 C.P.C. is in addition to and complimentary to the powers expressly conferred under C.P.C., but that power will not be exercised in conflict with any of the powers expressly or by implication conferred by other provisions of C.P.C. If there is express provision covering a particular topic, then Section 151, C.P.C. cannot be applied. Therefore, Section 151, C.P.C. recognizes inherent power of the Court by virtue of its duty to do justice and which inherent power is in addition to and complimentary to powers conferred under C.P.C. expressly or by implication.

10. In the case of Jagjit Singh Khanna v. Rakhal Das Mullick, reported in AIR 1988 Cal. 95, it has been held that temporary injunction may be granted under Section 94(c) only if a case satisfies Order 39 Rule 1 and Rule 2. It is not correct to say that the Court has two powers, one to grant temporary injunction under Section 94 (c) and the other under Order 39 Rule 1 and Rule 2. That Section 94 (C), C.P.C. shows that the Court may grant a temporary injunction thereunder only if it is so prescribed by Rule 1 and Rule 2 of Order 39. The Court can also grant temporary injunction in exercise of its inherent powers under Section 151, but in that case, it does not grant temporary injunction under any of the powers conferred by C.P.C. but under powers inherent in the constitution of the Court, which is saved by Section 151, C.P.C."

16. In terms of the said judgments, the Civil Court can exercise inherent powers and grant interim compensation in order to do justice, save victims from social evils and just to ameliorate their sufferings.

17. Thus, I am of the considered view that Civil Court can grant interim compensation in the cases, where the claimants/plaintiffs have lost their bread earner, son or daughter due to the negligence of the defendant/s and even in the cases where the plaintiff has sustained injuries due to the negligence of the defendant/s which has rendered the plaintiff permanently disabled."

9. Keeping in view the discussion made hereinabove, we are of the considered view that the applicant/petitioner has carved out a case for grant of interim compensation. Accordingly, interim compensation to the tune of Rs.2 lacs, is awarded in favour of the applicant/petitioner. The respondents are directed to deposit the amount of Rs.2 lacs, within a period of six weeks from today. The application stands disposed of accordingly.

Date of decision: 22.9.2016

Indian Limitation Act, 1963- Section 12 (2)- It was held by Commissioner, Mandi that Limitation Act is not applicable to the proceedings for the appointment of Anganwari Worker/Helper- held, that provision of Limitation Act applies to the proceedings conducted in the Courts as understood in the strict sense of being part of the Judicial Branch of the State- the principles underlying the provisions of the Limitation Act may be applied to quasi-judicial tribunals so long as provision of Limitation Act are not specifically excluded- it was not pointed out that there was any clause of the scheme which expressly bars the applicability of the Limitation Act- provision of Section 12 excludes the time taken for getting the copy and if the copy is not supplied within the period of appeal, right of filing appeal cannot be lost- law does not compel one to do what cannot be possibly done - order of the Commissioner set aside.

(Para-2 to 8)

Case referred:

M.P. Steel Corporation vs. Commissioner of Central Excise (2015) 7 SCC 58

For the Petitioner:	Ms. Shalini Thakur, Advocate.
For the Respondents	Ms. Meenakshi Sharma, Additional Advocate General with Mr. J. S. Guleria, Assistant Advocate General, for respondents No. 1 to 3. None for respondent No.4.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Tarlok Singh Chauhan, Judge (Oral)

The moot question involved in this petition is whether the provisions of Section 12 (2) of the Limitation Act are applicable to the appeals filed under Clause 12 of the Scheme for the appointment of Anganwari Worker/Helper (for short Scheme).

2. The learned Commissioner, Mandi, vide impugned decision dated 18.9.2015 dismissed the appeal by holding that the provisions of the Limitation Act were not applicable to the proceedings carried out under the Scheme. It is apt to reproduce the relevant observation which reads thus:

> "…After perusal of the record and hearing both parties I come to the conclusion that Limitation Act is not applicable in these cases as also held by the Hon'ble High Court of H.P. Shimla in the CWP cited above, hence the appeal is dismissed being time barred as this court does not have the power to condone delay of even one day, as per the High Court's orders. The copy of this order be sent to the lower Court while returning the record of lower Court. The case file of this Court be consigned to GRR after due completion."

3. Sections 12 (2) and 29(2) of the Limitation Act, read thus:

> "12.(2): In computing the period of limitation for an appeal or an application for leave to appeal or for revision or for review of a judgment, the day on which the judgment complained of was pronounced and the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the decree, sentence or order appealed from or sought to be revised or reviewed shall be excluded."
> "29(2). Where by special or local law prescribes for any suit, appeal or application a period of limitation different from the period prescribed by the Schedule, the provisions of Section 3 shall apply as if such period were the period prescribed by the Schedule and for the purpose of determining any period of limitation prescribed for any suit, appeal or application by any special or local law, the provisions contained in Sections 4 to 24 (inclusive) shall apply only in so far as, and to the extent to which, they are not expressly excluded by such special or local law."

4. Adverting to the question as to whether the Limitation Act applies in respect of proceedings being prosecuted in Courts appropriate or to quasi judicial proceedings also, it would be noticed that the said question is no longer res integra in view of the judgment rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in M.P. Steel Corporation vs. Commissioner of Central Excise (2015) 7 SCC 58 wherein it was reiterated that the proceedings of the Limitation Act apply in respect of the proceedings being prosecuted in the Courts appropriate i.e. Courts as understood in the strict sense of being part of the Judicial Branch of the State.

5. However, it was clarified that the principles underlying the provisions of the Limitation Act may be applied to quasi-judicial tribunals so long as there is nothing in relevant statutory scheme that rules out or bars applicability of such principles. This in turn was based on the principles that the Courts always lean in favour of advancing the cause of justice where a clear case is made out for doing so, since justice and reason is at the heart of all legislation.

6. That apart, the respondents have failed to point out any clause in the Scheme which may bar the applicability of the principles of Limitation Act, more particularly, the provisions as contained in Section 12 (2) thereof. It is a settled legal position that the law does not compel the impossible. There is well known legal maxim "l*ex non cogit ad impossibilia"* which means the law cannot compel a man to do what he cannot possibly perform. There can be no dispute that the litigant can have no access or control to have the certified copy prepared, that too, within the statutory period prescribed for filing of the appeal. This virtually would be calling upon to a person to perform an act which is impossible for him.

7. Furthermore, there is really no answer to the question that in case the certified copy of the decision is not made available within the prescribed period of limitation for filing of the appeal, would it mean that the right of the aggrieved party to file an appeal is lost?. Obviously, that cannot be the intention of the law.

8. The maxim of law 'impotentia excusat legem' is intimately connected with another maxim of law 'lex non cogit ad impossibilia'. 'Impotentia execusat legem' is that when there is a necessary or invincible disability to perform the mandatory part of the law that impotentia excuses. The law does not compel one to do that which one cannot possibly perform. "Where the law creates a duty or charge, and the party is disabled to perform it, without any default in him, and has no remedy over it, there the law will in general excuse him". Therefore, when it appears that the performance of the formalities prescribed by a statute or Scheme etc. has been rendered impossible by circumstances over which the person interested has no control, the circumstances will be taken as a valid excuse.

9. For all the aforesaid reasons, I find that the impugned order dated 18.9.2015 passed by learned Commissioner, Mandi is not sustainable and the same is accordingly set-aside. The parties through their counsel are directed to appear before the Commissioner on 7.10.2016 and the learned Commissioner is requested to decide the case as expeditiously as possible and in no event later than 30th November, 2016.

10. With the aforesaid observations, the petition stands disposed of, so also the pending application(s) if any.

Mr.Shrawan Dogra, Advocate General with Mr.Rupinder Singh, Mr.Anup Rattan, Mr.Romesh Verma & Mr. Varun Chandel, Additional Advocate Generals and Mr. Kush Sharma, Deputy Advocate General, for respondents No. 2 to 7.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Sandeep Sharma,J.

By way of present writ petition filed under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, the petitioners have prayed for following main reliefs:-

"a) That a writ of certiorari may kindly be issued quashing and setting aside the decision of the respondent State Government to select the site of Modern Degree College, Sarahan at Village Tikker, out of land comprised in Khata Khatauni No. 30/42, plots 20, measuring 464.10 Bighas situated in Mohal Tikker, Tehsil Pachhad, District Sirmaur (H.P.) as per copy of Jamabandi for the year 2013-14.

b) That the writ of mandamus may be issued against the respondent State Government not to carry out any type of construction work at village Tikker for the construction of Govt. Modern Degree College, Sarahan including the construction of link road to the site.

c) That necessary directions may be issued against the respondents No. 2, 3, 5 to 7 directing them to select/approve or to examine the feasibility of land for the construction of Govt. Modern College, Sarahan at the following villages, which are situated near and around Sarahan, as per the latest Guidelines of the respondent State Government annexed at Annexure P-9:-

i) Bag-Pashog/Kawagdhar,

ii)Between village Bhellan & Nawal-Labhan,

iii) Barasra

iv) Kahan (New Site)

Or any other suitable place near to Sarahan, so that sufficient land is available as per requirement for the construction of Govt. Modern College, for the convenience of general public of Tehsil Pachhad, District Sirmaur (H.P.)

d) That the Writ of mandamus may be issued against the respondent State Govt. to take suitable action with the respondent No. 1 for obtaining no objection with regard to the land situated at village Kahan near to Petrol Pump which site was earlier selected for the construction of College.

2. Present petition has been filed as Public Interest Litigation (in short 'PIL') by petitioners specifically laying challenge to the decision of the respondents-State, wherein, it was decided to establish Govt. Degree College, Sarahan at village Tikker on the land comprised Khata Khatauni No. 30/42, plots 20, measuring 464.10 Bighas situated in Mohal Tikker, Hadbast No. 260, Tehsil Pachhad, District Sirmaur (H.P.)

3. Perusal of pleadings available on record suggests that earlier respondents-State had decided to construct Govt. Degree College at village Kahan, and the then Chief Minister, Himachal Pradesh had also laid foundation stone. Since, respondents-State changed its earlier decision of setting up Govt. Degree College at village Kahan, present petitioners filed writ petition in the shape of public interest litigation before this Court praying therein issuance of writ of mandamus against respondents-State not to construct Govt. Degree College, Sarahan at village Tikker. Petitioners also sought directions to the respondents-State to select/approve or to examine the feasibility of land for construction of aforesaid College at the villages which are situated near and around Sarahan, strictly in terms of Guidelines issued by respondents-State, so that College is constructed on sufficient land.

4. Close scrutiny of the pleadings on record suggests that earlier respondents-State had selected site for Govt. Degree College at village Kahan on the National Highway towards Nahan i.e. 1 kilometer from Sarahan. But, thereafter, respondents-State vide Notification dated 14.01.2014 decided to open nine (9) Government Colleges in different places in the State of Himachal Pradesh including Government Degree College, Sarahan, District Sirmaur at village Tikker. It also emerges from the record that some of the owners of the land, gifted 20 bighas of land comprising Khata Khatauni No. 30/42, plots 20, measuring 464.10 bighas situated in revenue village Tikker, Tehsil Pachhad, District Sirmaur (H.P.) as per the copy of jamabandi for the year 2013-14. On the basis of aforesaid gift deeds executed by the owners of the land of village Tikker, mutations No. 279 to 287 were attested by Assistant Collector, Pachhad in favour of Education Department. Subsequent to aforesaid development, Chief Minister of Himachal Pradesh laid foundation stone of aforesaid Government College, Sarahan at village Tikker, Tehsil Pachhad, District Sirmuar on 22.11.2015.

5. At this stage it would be relevant to refer para 1 of writ petition preferred by present petitioners:-

"1.That the petitioner No. 1 and 2 are the citizen of India and the petitioner No. 1 is a resident of village & Post Office Bag-Pashog, Tehsil Pachhad, District Simarur (H.P.) and petitioner No. 2 is a resident of village Rister-Panwa, Post Office Panwa, Tehsil Pachhad, District Sirmaur (H.P.). Both the petitioners are agriculturists. Since, there is involvement of local politics for opening of the Government College at Sarahan, the students of Tehsil Pachhad, particularly the girl students are suffering, morally, financially & educationally. It is a matter of grave concern that the site selected for the construction of Government Model College at village Tikker near Sarahan is against the legitimate expectation of the people of Tehsil Pachhad, District Sirmaur. The present land/site selected for the construction of Modern Govt. College is not as per the Guidelines of the State Government and the same is very steep gradient, the decision for selecting the land for the construction of the Modern college was only taken by respondent No. 8 and respondent No. 9 alongwtih few people of village Tikker alone and not with the consent of the general public of Tehsil Pachhad. There is apprehension of mishappenings with the students during their studies in future there at site. A huge amount of the State Government is being wasted unnecessary for the construction of 1 k.m. link road and for leveling of the site for college. Moreover, there is no chance at all to construct the play ground or stadium for sports at the present College site as required under the new/latest guidelines of the State Government. As the huge public amount is being wasted for nothing and there is another sufficient suitable land is available near to Sarahan where the Model College as per guidelines of the State Government can be established/constructed, in pursuance of the Judgment delivered by the Hon'ble High Court of Himachal Pradesh in CWP No. 1468 of 2013, titled as Dhrub Dev Sharma & others (De-notifying 08 Govt. Colleges) on 18th June, 2013, regarding opening of new Government Degree Colleges in the State to achieve the objectives of access, equity and quality in higher Education, therefore, the petitioners being resident of Tehsil Pachhad are entitled to file and maintain this writ petition in the interest of general public to save the public money being unnecessarily wasted on political considerations, in this Hon'ble Court which has jurisdiction to hear and adjudicate upon the matter."

6. Careful perusal of averments contained in para 1 of the petition suggests that petitioner No. 1 is resident of Village & Post Office Bag-Pashog, Tehsil Pachhad, District Sirmaur (H.P.) and petitioner No. 2 is resident of Village Rister-Panwa, Post Office Panwa, Tehsil Pachhad, District Sirmaur (H.P.). Petitioners have specifically stated that site selected for construction of Government Modern College at village Tikker near Sarahan is against the legitimate expectation of the people of Pachhad, District Sirmaur. As per petitioners, land/site selected for the construction of the College is not as per the Guidelines of the State Government. Petitioners have further stated that land selected for construction of college is steep gradient and decision for selecting the land for the construction of Modern College was only taken by respondents No. 8 and 9 alongwith few people of village Tikker and not with the consent of the general public of the Tehsil Pachhad. Similarly, petitioners expressed apprehension that there is no chance of constructing the playground or stadium for sports at the present College site as required under new/latest guidelines of the State Government. Petitioners further alleged that huge public money is being wasted for nothing and there is another sufficient suitable land available near to Sarahan, where the Modern Degree College can be opened that too in terms of guidelines issued by State Government. Petitioners also alleged that respondents-State has not followed the mandate of this Court passed vide judgment dated 18th June, 2013 in CWP No. 1468 of 2013, titled as "Dhrub Dev Sharma & others vs. State of Himachal Pradesh", wherein, guidelines were laid down with regard to opening of new Government Degree College in State.

7. If the averments contained in the writ petition are read in entirety, it can be safely concluded that petitioners have leveled serious allegations against various public representatives of the area that too without placing on record any material evidence to substantiate their claim with regard to misuse of power by persons, who allegedly persuaded respondents-State to change its decision to shift site of Modern Degree College from village Kahan to village Tikker, District Sirmaur, H.P.

8. Primarily, petitioners are aggrieved with the shifting of Modern Degree College, Sarahan from village Kahan to Tikker, but careful perusal of reply filed by respondents itself clearly suggests that land at village Kahan, where, earlier, College was proposed to be constructed could not be finalized because 2.43 hectares area (proposed site) was forest land. In this regard, it would be profitable to refer to para 4 of the reply filed by respondents No. 2, 3 and 7:-

"4.That the contents of this Para are admitted to the extent that State Govt. had selected the site for the Govt. Degree College Sarahan near to petrol pump at village Kahan. It is further submitted that there are 700 green trees standing on the site and said land was in the category of dense forest which attracts the provision for the Forest Conservation Act, 1980. The matter was taken up with the Govt. of India, Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate change Regional Office by the Principal, Govt. College, Sarahan but no approval was obtained. The GOI has raised many observations and work being delayed to construct the college building and students were suffering. Copy of observations made by FRI, Dehradun is submitted as Annexure R-3. It is further submitted that in the meantime, the land was offered by the local residents for construction of college building in favour of Education Department on 3.10.2015."

9. Perusal of aforesaid reply clearly suggests that respondents-State had earlier selected site for construction of Govt. Degree College, Sarahan near to petrol pump at village Kahan. But, since there were more than 700 green trees standing on the site and Govt. of India had raised many objections, decision was taken to construct Modern Degree College at village Tikker, that too, on the land donated by the people of the area. Further, perusal of Para 20 of aforesaid reply also suggests that Govt. of Himachal Pradesh proposed to open Govt. College at Sarahan and in this regard accorded administrative approval of Rs.17,87,35,000/- against which amount of Rs.2,77,00,000/- has been released to HPPWD, Rajgarh. It would be apt to reproduce below Paras 20 and 21 of the reply:-

"20.That in reply to this para, it is submitted that Govt. of Himachal Pradesh has opened Govt. College at Sarahan and administrative approval of RS. 17,87,35,000/- has been accorded by the Govt. against which Rs.2,77,00,000/- has been released to HPPWD, Rajgarh. Besides there is a provision of Rs. 12.00 crore under RUSA which is yet to be released. The remaining contents are wrong, hence denied.

21. That in reply to this para, it is submitted that 20 bighas of land has been donated by the owners of land and with the consent of co-owners, the separate Tatima of specific portion has been carved out. No co-owners objected the carving out of Tatima from the joint land."

10. Similarly, respondent No. 6 i.e. Sub Divisional Magistrate, Rajgarh has stated that they received letter No. GC/SRN-Bhawan/14-210, dated 21.10.2015, from Principal, Govt. Degree College, Sarahan, wherein it was mentioned that with respect to the land selected earlier at village Kahan for construction of Govt. Degree College, he has not received the approval from the Forest Department, therefore, the local residents of village Tikker donated 20 bighas of land comprised in Khata Khatauni No. 30/42 for the construction of Govt. Degree College, Sarahan. Accordingly, he requested for conducting joint inspection of the newly selected site so that issues related to land identification/transfer with respect to newly opened college are resolved to avoid delay in construction of the College at newly selected site at village Tikker. Reply filed by respondent No. 6 i.e. Sub Divisional Magistrate further reveals that 20 bighas of land comprised in Khata Khatauni No. 30/42 situated in Mauja Tikker was donated by 8 out of 64 co-sharers in favour of Department of Education, Govt. of H.P. and said land was mutated in favour of Education Department, Govt. of H.P.

11. Similarly, respondent No. 5 i.e. Superintending Engineer, 12th Circle, HPPWD, Nahan in his reply has categorically stated that at earlier site proposed for construction of Govt. Degree College, the land included 2.43 hectares area is forest land, which required forest clearance under Forest Right Act, 1980. Aforesaid Superintending Engineer has specifically stated in his reply that as per report of Forest Department there are 694 Chil trees (pinusroxburghai) standing over the site. He further stated that matter was referred to Forest Department by Education Department for obtaining No Objection Certificate ('NOC' for short) from Ministry of Environment and Forest, Govt. of India but same could not be arranged by the Education Department. Since, there was no NOC from Govt. of India, no architectural drawing could be prepared for construction of college at village Kahan, District Sirmaur.

12. Mr. Varun Thakur, learned counsel for the petitioners, vehemently argued that the action of respondents-State in constructing Govt. Degree College at village Tikker is in complete violation of guidelines/instructions issued in this regard by the Govt. of H.P. Pursuant to judgment passed by this Court in CWP No. 1468 of 2013 titled as "Dhrub Dev Sharma & others vs. State of H.P.”, he contended that aforesaid college is being constructed in complete violation of Rule in vogue and land at village Tikker is not at all suitable for construction of the College. Mr. Varun Thakur forcefully contended that no College can be constructed on the proposed site as it is steep gradient, but despite aforesaid, respondents-State by concealing material facts got the land transferred in the name of Education Department for construction of College. He further argued that respondents-State before taking any steps for construction of College at proposed site failed to take into confidence the residents of that area, as NOC whatsoever was never obtained from the concerned Gram Panchayat. Despite there being lot of resistance from the local residents, respondents are hell bent to construct college at village Tikker. Mr. Varun further argued that respondents of the area are not happy with the construction on the proposed site, which was otherwise not suitable for the construction of the same. During arguments, he invited the attention of this Court to various documents placed on record to suggest that there is lot of opposition from the residents of that area as well as of Panchayat. He also invited the attention of this Court to Annexure P-6 to demonstrate that earlier foundation stone was laid down by the then Chief Minister for construction of Degree College at village Kahan but now that decision has been changed solely at the instance of political bigwigs of the area for political gains. Accordingly, in view of above, he prayed for issuance of direction restraining respondents from raising any construction of college at village Tikker on the land allegedly gifted by few people.

13. Mr. Shrawan Dogra, learned Advocate General, appearing on behalf of respondents-State forcefully contended that present writ petition is not maintainable because petitioners have not been able to prove their locus to file the present petition. He strenuously argued that in garb of so called PIL, few interested people are trying to stall the construction of College at new site, which is admittedly being constructed for the benefit of public at large of the area. Mr. Dogra further contended that while making proposal for constructing Degree College at new proposed site, each and every instructions issued in this regard by the authorities concerned, have been duly complied with. During arguments having been made by him, he invited the attention of this Court to various documents annexed with the reply to demonstrate that at earlier site more than 700 Chil trees were standing and despite best efforts, no forest clearance could be procured from the competent authority. Similarly, Mr. Dogra further contended that respondents-State before issuing order of transfer of land in the name of Education Department actually obtained report from the revenue authority, wherein it was categorically informed that proposed land is suitable for construction of College and no trees exist there. While concluding his argument, Mr. Dogra forcefully contended that Degree College is being constructed solely in the interest of residents of the area and in this regard already huge amount has been spent by respondents-State and, as such, construction on the spot cannot be ordered to be stopped at the behest of some vested interests.

14. We have heard learned counsel for the parties and gone through the record of the case carefully.

15. Conjoint reading of aforesaid replies filed by respondents clearly suggests that earlier site selected for construction of Govt. Degree College at village Kahan could not be finalized solely for the reason that there were approximately 700 Chil trees standing on the land and no NOC could be procured from the Forest Department for utilizing the said land. This Court after perusing the reply filed by respondents is fully satisfied that Govt. Degree College could not be constructed at village Kahan in absence of NOC from the Ministry of Environment & Forest, Govt. of India.

16. On the other hand, respondents-State got considerable land from the private persons, who, on their own, donated considerable land for construction of Govt. Degree College at village Tikker. It also emerges from record that after selection of site at village Tikker, respondents have considerably worked on the new proposed site for construction of college and as such, this Court sees no reason, whatsoever, to interfere in the policy decision taken by the respondents-State to construct college at village Tikker.

17. Perusal of documents available on record itself suggests that matter with regard to opening of new Govt. College at Sarahan, Tehsil Pachhad, District Sirmaur is hanging fire since 8th October, 2007 and public of that area is deprived of the basic facility of college in the area on one pretext or other. Petitioners specifically stated in the petition that the site on which construction of college is proposed at village Tikker is not suitable, but in this regard nothing has been placed on record to demonstrate that the site on which, the college is now proposed to be constructed, is not suitable, rather careful perusal of the averments contained in the writ petition suggests that the petitioners while terming present site un-suitable for construction of college, have suggested their own villages for construction of the college. At this stage, it would be apt to reproduce prayer 'c' made in the writ petition:-

> "c*) That necessary directions may be issued against the respondents No. 2, 3, 5 to 7 directing them to select/approve or to examine the feasibility of land for the construction of Govt. Modern College, Sarahan at the following villages, which are situated near and around Sarahan, as per the latest Guidelines of the respondent State Government annexed at Annexure P-9:-*
> i) Bag-Pashog/Kawagdhar,
>
> ii)Between village Bhellan & Nawal-Labhan,
>
> iii) Barasra
>
> iv) Kahan (New Site)
> Or any other suitable place near to Sarahan, so that sufficient land is available as per requirement for the construction of Govt. Modern College, for the convenience of general public of Tehsil Pachhad, District Sirmaur (H.P.)

18. Perusal of aforesaid relief clause clearly suggests that petitioners have prayed that college may be opened at village Bag-Pashog/Kawagdhar, which is admittedly village of petitioner No. 1. Aforesaid prayer itself suggests that present writ petition has not been filed in public interest, rather in the garb of present PIL, petitioner No. 1 has proposed his own village for construction of the College. Since, it clearly stands proved on record that at earlier site at village 'Kahan' number of trees were standing and as per judgment passed by Hon'ble Apex Court in "Godavarman Thirumulpad vs. Union of India & Ors, 1997 (2) SCC 267" wherein it has been held that no forest land can be put to any non-forestory purpose, this Court sees no illegality and infirmity in the decision taken by the respondents-State where they proposed new site to construct Govt. College at village Tikker, that too, on the land donated by the people of that area.

19. In the present case, petitioners have leveled serious allegations with regard to irregularities committed by the respondents-State while proposing construction of Degree College at village Tikker instead of village Kahan but same appears to be ill-founded and without any basis because all the respondents have unequivocally stated in their reply that earlier site at village Kahan was not suitable for construction of Degree College since there are more than 700 Chil trees standing on that site and no forest clearance is accorded by the Ministry of Environment and Forest, Government of India.

20. At this stage, it is observed that such petitions, that too, in the name of PIL cannot be allowed to be used as a tool by some vested interests, who for some ulterior motive do not want the Govt. College to come up in that area. At the cost of repetition, it may be observed that proposal with regard to setting up of Degree College in the area is hanging fire since year, 2007 but till date no College could be set-up in that area. In the present case, though petitioners have claimed themselves to be `Pro Bono Publico' but no material, whatsoever, has been placed on record to suggest that present petition has been filed in the public interest, rather careful perusal of the averments contained in the writ petition clearly suggests that petitioners wanted this college to come up in their own village as clearly emerged from prayer (c) made in the writ petition.

21. This Court vide judgment in CWP No.9480 of 2014, titled: Vijay Kumar Gupta vs. State of Himachal Pradesh and Others, decided on 09.01.2015, has already issued the following guidelines as far as filing of PIL is concerned:-

> "29. From the aforesaid exposition of law, it can safely be concluded that the Court would allow litigation in public interest only if it is found:-
>
> (i) That the impugned action is violative of any of the rights enshrined in Part III of the Constitution of India or any other legal right and relief is sought for its enforcement;
>
> (ii) That the action complained of is palpably illegal or malafide and affects the group of persons who are not in a position to protect their own interest or on account of poverty, incapacity or ignorance;
>
> (iii) That the person or a group of persons were approaching the Court in public interest for redressal of public injury arising from the breach of public duty or from violation of some provision of the Constitutional law;
>
> (iv) That such person or group of persons is not a busy body or a meddlesome interloper and have not approached with mala fide intention of vindicating their personal vengeance or grievance;
>
> (v) That the process of public interest litigation was not being abused by politicians or other busy bodies for political or unrelated objective. Every default on the part of the State or Public Authority being not justiciable in such litigation;
>
> (vi) That the litigation initiated in public interest was such that if not remedied or prevented would weaken the faith of the common man in the institution of the judicial and the democratic set up of the country;
>
> (vii) That the State action was being tried to be covered under the carpet and intended to be thrown out on technicalities;
>
> (viii) Public interest litigation may be initiated either upon a petition filed or on the basis of a letter or other information received but upon satisfaction that the information laid before the Court was of such a nature which required examination;
>
> (ix) That the person approaching the Court has come with clean hands, clean heart and clean objectives;
>
> (x) That before taking any action in public interest the Court must be satisfied that its forum was not being misused by any unscrupulous litigant, politicians, busy body or persons of groups with mala fide objective or either for vindication of their personal grievance or by resorting to black-mailing or considerations extraneous to public interest."

In the present case there is no compliance whatsoever, of the guidelines, referred herein above, and, as such, present petition cannot be termed as PIL, in any manner, and the same deserves to be dismissed.

22. Though, by way of present petition, it has been claimed that the same has been filed in public interest but as clearly emerges from the record, as has been discussed hereinabove, there is no material, whatsoever available on record, which could persuade this Court to believe that the petitioners are `Pro Bono Publico' and petition is filed in public interest. Rather, careful perusal/analysis of the documents available on record suggests that it is a handy work of some vested interests, who certainly for extraneous reasons do not want the Govt. College to come up at village Tikker.

23. During arguments, this Court had an occasion to sift the entire documentary evidence made available on record as well as pleadings of the parties, perusal whereof clearly suggests that the College which is being sought to be shifted by invoking extra ordinary jurisdiction of this Court is in larger public interest. Careful reading of the specific reply given by the respondents-State to the averments made in the writ petition clearly depicts that the petitioners have not approached this Court with clean hands, rather attempt has been made to hoodwink the Court by concealing material facts solely with a view to obtain orders from the Court restraining the respondents from constructing Govt. Degree College at village Tikker. None of the averments, with regard to cutting of trees, steep gradients and misuse of power by authorities have been admitted by the respondents in their respective replies. To the contrary, the reply filed by the respondents, which is duly supported by an affidavit of responsible officer of the State, suggests that necessary precautions/measures have been taken by the Department to protect the ecology/environment before granting necessary permission for the construction of Degree College at village Tikker. Moreover, as has been noticed above, petitioners have not placed on record any document/material to show their locus to lay challenge to decision of Govt. to construct college at village Tikker, which is admittedly in the interest of public at large.

24. Hence in view of the facts and circumstances enumerated hereinabove, this Court has no hesitation to conclude that by no stretch of imagination present petition can be termed as PIL. Rather contents of the same appear to be frivolous, vexatious and far-far away from the correct position on the spot. This court as well as Hon'ble Apex Court have repeatedly expressed concern with regard to growing menace of so called PIL, whereby some vested interests by concealing material facts attempt to rope in the Courts in the name of public interest.

25. Hon'ble Apex Court expressing its serious concern over misuse of PIL has repeatedly observed that use of the PIL has to be done with care, caution and circumspection so that it is not misused by certain people having vested interest.

26. Hon'ble Apex Court in case Central Electricity Supply Utility of Odisha vs. Dhobei Sahoo and Others (2014)1 SCC 161, observed as under:

> "24. Ordinarily, after so stating we would have proceeded to scan the anatomy of the Act, the Rules, the concept of the Scheme under the Act and other facets but we have thought it imperative to revisit certain authorities pertaining to public interest litigation, its abuses and the way sometimes the courts perceive the entire spectrum. It is an ingenious and adroit innovation of the judge-made law within the constitutional parameters and serves as a weapon for certain purposes. It is regarded as a weapon to mitigate grievances of the poor and the marginalized sections of the society and to check the abuse of power at the hands of the Executive and further to see that the necessitous law and order situation, which is the duty of the State, is properly sustained, the people in impecuniosities do not die of hunger, the national economy is not jeopardized; the rule of law is not imperiled; human rights are not endangered, and probity, transparency and integrity in governance remain in a constant state of stability. The use of the said weapon has to be done with care, caution and circumspection. We have a reason to say so, as in the case at hand there has been a fallacious perception not only as regards the merits of the case but also there is an erroneous approach in issuance of direction pertaining to recovery of the sum from the holder of the post. We shall dwell upon the same at a later stage.
>
> 25. As advised at present, we may refer to certain authorities in the field in this regard. In Bandhua Mukti Morcha v. Union of India (1984) 3 SCC 161 Bhagwati, J., (as his Lordship then was) had observed thus: (SCC p.183, para 9)
>
> > "9. ….When the Court entertains public interest litigation, it does not do so in a caviling spirit or in a confrontational mood or with a view to tilting at executive authority or seeking to usurp it, but its attempt is only to ensure observance of social and economic rescue programme, legislative as well as executive, framed for the benefit of the have-nots and the handicapped and to protect them against violation of their basic human rights, which is also the constitutional obligation of the executive. The Court is thus merely assisting in the realization of the constitutional objectives."

"26. In Dr. D.C. Wadhwa and others v. State of Bihar (1987) 1 SCC 378 the Constitution Bench, while entertaining a petition under Article 32 of the Constitution on behalf of the petitioner therein, observed that it is the right of every citizen to insist that he should be governed by laws made in accordance with the Constitution and not laws made by the executive in violation of the constitutional provisions. It has also been stated therein that the rule of law constitutes the core of our Constitution and it is the essence of rule of law that the exercise of the power by the State whether it be the legislature or the executive or any other authority should be within the constitutional limitation and if any practice is adopted by the executive which is in flagrant violation of the constitutional limitations, a member of the public would have sufficient interest to challenge such practice and it would be the constitutional duty of the Court to entertain the writ petition.

27. In Neetu v. State of Punjab (2007) 10 SCC 614 the Court has opined that it is shocking to note that Courts are flooded with large number of so called public interest litigations where even a minuscule percentage can legitimately be called as public interest litigation. Commenting on entertaining public interest litigations without being careful of the parameters by the High Courts the learned Judges observed as follows: (SCC p. 617, para 5)

"5. `16....Though the parameters of public interest litigation have been indicated by this Court in large number of cases, yet unmindful of the real intentions and objectives, [High Courts] are entertaining such petitions and wasting valuable judicial time which, as noted above, could be otherwise utilized for disposal of genuine cases. (Ashok Kumar Pandey v. State of West Bengal (2004) 3 SCC 349, SCC p.358, para 16)"

Thereafter, giving a note on caution, the Court stated:

"6. `12. Public interest litigation is a weapon which has to be used with great care and circumspection and the judiciary has to be extremely careful to see that behind the beautiful veil of public interest an ugly private malice, vested interest and/or publicity seeking is not lurking. It is to be used as an effective weapon in the armoury of law for delivering social justice to the citizens." (B.Singh versus Union of India (2004)3 SCC 363, SCC p.372, para 12)"

27. Hon'ble Apex Court in State of Uttaranchal vs. Balwant Singh Chaufal and Others, (2010)3 SCC 402, while dealing with the issue of growing menace of Public Interest in the Country, observed as under:-

"143. Unfortunately, of late, it has been noticed that such an important jurisdiction which has been carefully carved out, created and nurtured with great care and caution by the courts, is being blatantly abused by filing some petitions with oblique motives. We think time has come when genuine and bona fide public interest must be encouraged whereas frivolous public interest litigation should be discouraged. In our considered opinion, we have to protect and preserve this important jurisdiction in the larger interest of the people of this country but we must take effective steps to prevent and cure its abuse on the basis of monetary and non- monetary directions by the courts.

144. In BALCO Employees' Union (Regd.) v. Union of India & Others (2002)2 SCC 333, this Court recognized that there have been, in recent times, increasing instances of abuse of public interest litigation. Accordingly, the court has devised a number of strategies to ensure that the attractive brand name of public interest litigation should not be allowed to be used for suspicious products of mischief. Firstly, the Supreme Court has limited standing in PIL to individuals "acting bonafide."

Secondly, the Supreme Court has sanctioned the imposition of "exemplary costs" as a deterrent against frivolous and vexatious public interest litigations. Thirdly, the Supreme Court has instructed the High Courts to be more selective in entertaining the public interest litigations.

153. In J. Jayalalitha v. Government of T.N. (1999) 1 SCC 53, this court laid down that public interest litigation can be filed by any person challenging the misuse or improper use of any public property including the political party in power for the reason that interest of individuals cannot be placed above or preferred to a larger public interest.

155. In Dattaraj Nathuji Thaware V. State of Maharashtra (2005) 1 SCC 590, this court expressed its anguish on misuse of the forum of the court under the garb of public interest litigation and observed (SCC p.595, para 12) that the "public interest litigation is a weapon which has to be used with great care and circumspection and the judiciary has to be extremely careful to see that behind the beautiful veil of public interest, an ugly private malice, vested interest and/or publicity seeking is not lurking. It is to be used as an effective weapon in the armoury of law for delivering social justice to the citizens. The court must not allow its process to be abused for oblique considerations...."

28. Perusal of the observations made hereinabove as well as law laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court and by this Court, PIL cannot be allowed to be used as a tool by irresponsible unscrupulous litigants to serve their vested interest in the garb of public interest.

29. In the present case, we are constrained to observe that no material whatsoever has been made available from where it could be inferred that the present petition has been filed in the Public Interest, rather, careful perusal of the pleadings on record persuaded this Court to draw a conclusion that the petitioners, with vested interests, have made an attempt by filing this frivolous petition to obtain illegal orders from the Court in the name of PIL. Moreover, careful perusal of the pleadings on record nowhere suggests that petitioners fulfill the criteria as has been identified/laid down by this Court in Vijay Kumar Gupta's case supra which can persuade this Court to consider the instant petition as a PIL.

30. As has been noticed above that respondents have already made considerable progress for constructing Govt. Degree College at village Tikker, which otherwise appears to be being constructed strictly in conformity with the Rules and guidelines issued by the competent authorities in that regard, petitioners cannot be allowed to make sheer abuse of the process of law by filing such frivolous petitions. It is seen that people of area are deprived of college, which would have been completed by now but for illegal/unjust approach adopted by certain people like petitioners, who without there being sufficient material on record resorted to legal proceedings, as in the instant case, to halt the developmental activities being taken up by the respondents-State, rather such practice deserves to be deprecated and such persons need to be dealt with sternly.

31. Moreover, it is a complete domain of the respondents-State to select site, if any, for construction of College keeping in view various factors in mind and as such this Court has very limited jurisdiction to interfere, especially, in policy decision taken by the respondents-State.

32. In this regard reliance is placed upon Maharashtra State Board of Secondary and Higher Secondary Education and Another vs. Paritosh Bhupeshkumar Sheth and Others and Alpana V.Mehta vs. Maharashtra State Board of Secondary Education and Another, (1984)4 SCC 27, wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court held:

"16. In our opinion, the aforesaid approach made by the High Court is wholly incorrect and fallacious. The Court cannot sit in judgment over the wisdom of the policy evolved by the Legislature and the subordinate regulation-making body. It may be a wise policy which will fully effectuate the purpose of the enactment or it may be lacking in effectiveness and hence calling for revision and improvement. But any drawbacks in the policy incorporated in a rule or regulation will not render it ultra vires and the Court cannot strike it down on the ground that, in its opinion, it is not a wise or prudent policy, but is even a foolish one, and that it will not really serve to effectuate the purposes of the Act. The Legislature and its delegate are the sole repositories of the power to decide what policy should be pursued in relation to matters covered by the Act and there is no scope for interference by the Court unless the particular provision impugned before it can be said to suffer from any legal infirmity, in the sense of its being wholly beyond the scope of the regulation-making power or its being inconsistent with any of the provisions of the parent enactment or in violation of any of the limitations imposed by the Constitution. None of these vitiating factors are shown to exist in the present case and hence there was no scope at all for the High Court to invalidate the provision contained in clause (3) of Regulation 104 as ultra vires on the grounds of its being in excess of the regulation-making power conferred on the Board. Equally untenable, in our opinion, is the next and last ground by the High Court for striking down clause (3) of Regulation 104 as unreasonable, namely, that it is in the nature of a bye-law and is ultra vires on the ground of its being an unreasonable provision. It is clear from the scheme of the Act and more particularly, Sections 18, 19 and 34 that the Legislature has laid down in broad terms its policy to provide for the establishment of a State Board and Divisional Boards to regulate matters pertaining to secondary and higher secondary education in the State and it has authorised the State Government in the first instance and subsequently the Board to enunciate the details for carrying into effect the purposes of the Act by framing regulations. It is a common legislative practice that the Legislature may choose to lay down only the general policy and leave to its delegate to make detailed provisions for carrying into effect the said policy and effectuate the purposes of the Statute by framing rules/regulations which are in the nature of subordinate legislation. Section 3(39) of the Bombay General Clauses Act, 1904, which defines the expression 'rule' states: Rule shall mean a rule made in exercise of the power under any enactment and shall include any regulation made under a rule or under any enactment." It is important to notice that a distinct power of making bye-laws has been conferred by the Act on the State Board under Section 38. The Legislature has thus maintained in the Statute in question a clear distinction between 'bye-laws' and 'regulations'. The bye-laws to be framed under Section 38 are to relate only to procedural matters concerning the holding of meetings of State Board, Divisional Boards and the Committee, the quorum required, etc. More important matters affecting the rights of parties and laying down the manner in which the provisions of the Act are to be carried into effect have been reserved to be provided for by regulations made under Section 36. The Legislature, while enacting Sections 36 and 38, must be assumed to have been fully aware of the niceties of the legal position governing the distinction between rules/regulations properly so called and bye-laws. When the statute contains a clear indication that the distinct regulation-making power conferred under Section 36 was not intended as a power merely to frame bye-laws, it is not open to the Court to ignore the same and treat the regulations made under Section 36 as mere bye-laws in order to bring them within the scope of justiciability by applying the test of reasonableness.

21. The legal position is now well-established that even a bye-law cannot be struck down by the Court on the ground of unreasonableness merely because the Court thinks that it goes further than "is necessary" or that it does not incorporate certain provisions which, in the opinion of the court, would have been fair and wholesome. The Court cannot say that a bye-law is unreasonable merely because the judges do not approve of it. Unless it can be said that a bye law is manifestly unjust, capricious, inequitable, or partial in its operation, it cannot be invalidated by the Court on the ground of unreasonableness. The responsible representative body entrusted with the power to make by laws must ordinarily be presumed to know what is necessary, reasonable, just and fair. In this connection we may usefully extract the following off-quoted observations of Lord Russell of Killowen in Kruse v. Johnson, (1898) 2 QB 91, 98, 99 (quoted in Trustees of the Port of Madras v. Adminchand Pyarelal, (1976)! SCR 721, 733) (SCC p.178, para 23):

> (1) "When the Court is called upon to consider the byelaws of public representative bodies clothed with the ample authority which I have described, accompanied by the checks and safeguards which I have mentioned, I think the consideration of such bye-laws ought to be approached from a different standpoint. They ought to be supported if possible. They ought to be, as has been said, 'benevolently interpreted' and credit ought to be given to those who have to administer them that they will be reasonably administered."
>
> "The learned Chief Justice said further that there may be cases in which it would be the duty of the court to condemn by-laws made under such authority as these were made (by a county council) as invalid because unreasonable. But unreasonable in what sense? If for instance, they were found to be partial and unequal in their operation as between different classes; if they were manifestly unjust; if they disclosed bad faith; if they involved such oppressive or gratuitous interference with the rights of those subject to them as could find no justification in the minds of reasonable men, the court might well say, 'Parliament never intended to give authority to make such rules; they are unreasonable and ultra vires.' But it is in this and this sense only, as I conceive, that the question of reasonableness or unreasonableness can properly be regarded. A bye-law is not unreasonable merely because particular judges may think that it goes further than is prudent or necessary or convenient or because it is not accompanied by an exception which some judges may think ought to be there'.
>
> " We may also refer with advantage to the well-known decision of the Privy Council in Slattery v. Naylor, (1988) 13 AC 446, where it has been laid down that when considering whether a bye-law is reasonable or not, the Court would need a strong case to be made against it and would decline to determine whether it would have been wiser or more prudent to make the bye-law less absolute or will it hold the bye-law to be unreasonable because considerations which the court would itself have regarded in framing such a bye-law have been over looked or reflected by its framers. The principles laid down as aforesaid in Kruse v. Johnson, (1898) 2 QB 91, 98, 99 and Stattery v. Naylor, (1988) 13 AC 446 have been cited with approval and applied by this Court in Trustees of the Port of Madras v. Aminchand Pyarelal & Ors.,(1976) 1 SCR 721, 733."

33. In Parisons Agrotech Private Limited and Another vs. Union of India and Others, (2015)9 SCC 657, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held:

> "14. No doubt, the writ court has adequate power of judicial review in respect of such decisions. However, once it is found that there is sufficient material for taking a particular policy decision, bringing it within the four corners of Article 14 of the Constitution, power of judicial review would not extend to determine the correctness of such a policy decision or to indulge into the exercise of finding out whether there could be more appropriate or better alternatives. Once we find that parameters of Article 14 are satisfied; there was due application of mind in arriving at the decision which is backed by cogent material; the decision is not arbitrary or irrational and; it is taken in public interest, the Court has to respect such a decision of the Executive as the policy making is the domain of the Executive and the decision in question has passed the test of the judicial review.

15. In Union of India v. Dinesh Engg. Corpn., (2001)8 SCC 491, this Court delineated the aforesaid principle of judicial review in the following manner: (SCC pp.498-99, para 12)

> "12……There is no doubt that this Court has held in more than one case that where the decision of the authority is in regard to the policy matter, this Court will not ordinarily interfere since these policy matters are taken based on expert knowledge of the persons concerned and courts are normally not equipped to question the correctness of a policy decision. But then this does not mean that the courts have to abdicate their right to scrutinize whether the policy in question is formulated keeping in mind all the relevant facts and the said policy can be held to be beyond the pale of discrimination or unreasonableness, bearing in mind the material on record. ….. Any decision be it a simple administrative decision or policy decision, if taken without considering the relevant facts, can only be termed as an arbitrary decision. If it is so, then be it a policy decision or otherwise, it will be violative of the mandate of Article 14 of the Constitution."

16. The power of the Court under writ jurisdiction has been discussed in Asif Hameed. v. State of J&K, 1989 Supp.(2) SCC 364: 1 SCEC 358 in paras 17 and 19, which read as under: (SCC pp. 373-74)

> "17. Before adverting to the controversy directly involved in these appeals we may have a fresh look on the inter se functioning of the three organs of democracy under our Constitution. Although the doctrine of separation of powers has not been recognised under the Constitution in its absolute rigidity but the Constitution makers have meticulously defined the functions of various organs of the State. Legislature, executive and judiciary have to function within their own spheres demarcated under the Constitution. No organ can usurp the functions assigned to another. The Constitution trusts to the judgment of these organs to function and exercise their discretion by strictly following the procedure prescribed therein. The functioning of democracy depends upon the strength and independence of each of its organs. Legislature and executive, the two facets of people's will, they have all the powers including that of finance. Judiciary has no power over sword or the purse nonetheless it has power to ensure that the aforesaid two main organs of State function within the constitutional limits. It is the sentinel of democracy. Judicial review is a powerful weapon to restrain unconstitutional exercise of power by the legislature and executive. The expanding horizon of judicial review has taken in its fold the concept of social and economic justice. While exercise of powers by the legislature and executive is subject to judicial restraint, the only check on our own exercise of power is the self-imposed discipline of judicial restraint.
> 19. When a State action is challenged, the function of the court is to examine the action in accordance with law and to determine whether the legislature or the executive has acted within the powers and functions assigned under the Constitution and if not, the court must strike down the action. While doing so the court must remain within its self-imposed limits. The court sits in judgment on the action of a coordinate branch of the government. While exercising power of judicial review of administrative action, the court is not an appellate authority. The Constitution does not permit the court to direct or advise the executive in matters of policy or to sermonize qua any matter which under the Constitution lies within the sphere of legislature or executive, provided these authorities do not transgress their constitutional limits or statutory powers."

17. The aforesaid doctrine of separation of power and limited scope of judicial review in policy matters is reiterated in State of Orissa v. Gopinath Dash, (2005) 13 SCC 495 : (SCC p.497, paras 5-7)

> "5. While exercising the power of judicial review of administrative action, the Court is not the Appellate Authority and the Constitution does not permit the Court to direct or advise the executive in the matter of policy or to sermonise qua any matter which under the Constitution lies within the sphere of the legislature or the executive, provided these authorities do not transgress their constitutional limits or statutory power. (See Asif Hameed v. State of J&K; 1989 Supp (2) SCC 364 and Shri Sitaram Sugar Co. Ltd. v. Union of India; (1990) 3 SCC 223). The scope of judicial enquiry is confined to the question whether the decision taken by the Government is against any statutory provisions or it violates the fundamental rights of the citizens or is opposed to the provisions of the Constitution. Thus, the position is that even if the decision taken by the Government does not appear to be agreeable to the Court, it cannot interfere.
>
> 6. The correctness of the reasons which prompted the Government in decision-making taking one course of action instead of another is not a matter of concern in judicial review and the Court is not the appropriate forum for such investigation.
>
> 7. The policy decision must be left to the Government as it alone can adopt which policy should be adopted after considering all the points from different angles. In the matter of policy decisions or exercise of discretion by the Government so long as the infringement of fundamental right is not shown the courts will have no occasion to interfere and the Court will not and should not substitute its own judgment for the judgment of the executive in such matters. In assessing the propriety of a decision of the Government the Court cannot interfere even if a second view is possible from that of the Government."

34. The Hon'ble Apex Court in Census Commissioner and Others vs. R.Krishnamurthy, (2015)2 SCC 796 held as under:

> "23. The centripodal question that emanates for consideration is whether the High Court could have issued such a mandamus commanding the appellant to carry out a census in a particular manner.
>
> 24. The High Court has tried to inject the concept of social justice to fructify its direction. It is evincible that the said direction has been issued without any deliberation and being oblivious of the principle that the courts on very rare occasion, in exercise of powers of judicial review, would interfere with a policy decision.
> 25. Interference with the policy decision and issue of a mandamus to frame a policy in a particular manner are absolutely different. The Act has conferred power on the Central Government to issue Notification regarding the manner in which the census has to be carried out and the Central Government has issued Notifications, and the competent authority has issued directions. It is not within the domain of the Court to legislate. The courts do interpret the law and in such interpretation certain creative process is involved. The courts have the jurisdiction to declare the law as unconstitutional. That too, where it is called for. The court may also fill up the gaps in certain spheres applying the doctrine of constitutional silence or abeyance. But, the courts are not to plunge into policy making by adding something to the policy by way of issuing a writ of mandamus. There the judicial restraint is called for remembering what we have stated in the beginning. The courts are required to understand the policy decisions framed by the Executive. If a policy decision or a Notification is arbitrary, it may invite the frown of Article 14 of the Constitution. But when the Notification was not under assail and the same is in consonance with the Act, it is really unfathomable how the High Court could issue directions as to the manner in which a census would be carried out by adding certain aspects. It is, in fact, issuance of a direction for framing a policy in a specific manner.

26. In this context, we may refer to a three-Judge Bench decision in Suresh Seth V. Commr., Indore Municipal Corporation, (2005)13 SCC 287, wherein a prayer was made before this Court to issue directions for appropriate amendment in the M.P. Municipal Corporation Act, 1956 so that a person may be debarred from simultaneously holding two elected offices, namely, that of a Member of the Legislative Assembly and also of a Mayor of a Municipal Corporation. Repelling the said submission, the Court held: (SCC pp.288-89, para 5)

> "In our opinion, this is a matter of policy for the elected representatives of people to decide and no direction in this regard can be issued by the Court. That apart this Court cannot issue any direction to the legislature to make any particular kind of enactment. Under our constitutional scheme Parliament and Legislative Assemblies exercise sovereign power to enact laws and no outside power or authority can issue a direction to enact a particular piece of legislation. In Supreme Court Employees' Welfare Assn. v. Union of India, (1989)4 SCC 187 (SCC para 51) it has been held that no court can direct a legislature to enact a particular law. Similarly, when an executive authority exercises a legislative power by way of a subordinate legislation pursuant to the delegated authority of a legislature, such executive authority cannot be asked to enact a law which it has been empowered to do under the delegated legislative authority. This view has been reiterated in state of J & K v A.R. Zakki,1992 Supp(1) SCC 548. In A.K. Roy v. Union of India, (1982)1 SCC 271it was held that no mandamus can be issued to enforce an Act which has been passed by the legislature."

35. Consequently, in view of the aforesaid discussion, we do not see any reason to invoke extra ordinary jurisdiction of this Court to issue writ of mandamus, commanding respondents to stop the construction of Govt. Degree College at village Tikker, District Sirmaur.

36. Viewed thus, the present petition is dismissed being devoid of any merit, alongwith pending application(s), if any.

37. Interim directions, if any, shall stand vacated.

Subject matter of this writ petition is show cause notice, dated 26th May, 2015 (Annexure P-4) issued by the Sub-Registrar (SDM), Sub Division Nahan, under H.P. Society Registration Act, District Sirmaur, H.P., while exercising powers under Sections 41 and 45 (3) of The Himachal Pradesh Societies Registration Act, 2006 (for short "the Act").

2. It is a moot question – whether the writ petition is maintainable?

3. The show-cause notice is not a final order. It is for the petitioner to show-cause and take all the grounds, which are available as weapons in his armoury.

4. This Court in CWP No. 1159 of 2014-F titled as Sandeep Sethi versus State of H.P. and others, decided on 10th March, 2014; CWP No. 3012 of 2015, titled as Micromax Informatics Ltd. versus State of H.P. and others, decided on 24th June, 2015; and CWP No. 4989 of 2014, titled as Partap Shukla versus State of H.P. and others, decided on 17th July, 2014, while relying upon the judgments rendered by the Apex Court in the cases titled as Union of India and Anr. vesus Kunisetty Satyanarayana, reported in 2007 AIR (SCW) 607, and Special Director and another versus Mohd. Ghulam Ghouse and another, reported in 2004 AIR(SCW) 416, has held that the show cause notice cannot be questioned by the medium of the writ petition and the writ petition is pre-mature.

5. In the case titled as M/s Indian Technomac Company Ltd. versus State of H.P. & others, being CWP No. 4779 of 2014, decided on 4th August, 2014, this Court has held that the writ petition is not maintainable when the alternative efficacious remedy is available to the petitioner.

6. While going through the mandate of the Act, it appears that the concerned authority has exercised the power in terms of Sections 41 and 45 (3) of the Act.

7. Having said so, the writ petition is not maintainable.

8. At this stage, Mr. Deepak Kaushal, learned counsel for the petitioner, stated at the Bar that he has moved an application before the competent authority for inclusion of some of the members of the society, but in view of the show cause notice, the concerned authority is not making the orders.

9. In the given circumstances, we deem it proper to dispose of this writ petition by directing the concerned authority to determine the show cause notice within two weeks after seeking reply from the petitioner and giving an opportunity of hearing to him.

10. It goes without saying that in case the decision goes against the petitioner, he is at liberty to challenge the same before the competent authority and the order be not implemented/ executed for a period of two weeks enabling the petitioner to seek appropriate remedy.

11. The writ petition is disposed of accordingly alongwith all pending applications.

Constitution of India, 1950- Article 226- Petitioners had invoked the jurisdiction of the Labour Court- they were ordered to be re-engaged without any monetary benefits – awards were made subject matter of writ petitions, letters patent appeals and special leave petitions, which were dismissed- a writ petition was filed to implement the award and to modify the same by granting full back wages and interest/emoluments @ 18% per annum from the date of retrenchment – held, that the award passed by Labour Court is to be executed as a decree of Civil Court- no writ petition can be filed for execution of the award- writ petitions held to be not maintainable.

(Para-3 to 6)

For the Petitioner(s): Mr.Naresh Kaul, Advocate.
For the Respondents: Mr.Shrawan Dogra, Advocate General, with M/s Romesh Verma & Anup Rattan, Addl.A.Gs., and J.K. Verma, Dy.A.G.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, C.J. (Oral)

All these writ petitions have been filed with following identical prayer:

"i) That the respondents may kindly be directed to implement the award dated 12.08.2013 (Annexure P-1) forthwith in its true letter and spirit, after the dismissal of CWP No.9576/2013 dated 08.01.2014 (Annexure P-2) and CWP No.4658/2014 dated 06.04.2015 (Annexure P-3) & also dismissal of LPA 4/2016 (Annexure P-4) on 02.01.2016, since the petitioner is out of job and regularly visiting the office of respondent No.2 for his re-engagement and the award has also attained the finality qua the respondents, further, the award dated 12.08.2013 (Annexure P-1) may kindly be modified after awarding full back wages alongwtih interest/emoluments & cost, in view of judgment passed by the Hon'ble Apex Court in Jasmer Singh's case (Annexure P-5) 2015(4) SCC 458, including the full back wages and interest/emoluments @ 18% per annum from the date of illegal retrenchment/termination alongwtih cost (Rs.25000/-) in view of the peculiar proved facts and circumstance of the present case, in the interest of law and justice."

2. Petitioners, in all the writ petitions, had invoked the jurisdiction of Labour Court for redressal of their grievances, awards were made and the petitioners were ordered to be re-engaged, without any monetary benefits, awards were subject matter of writ petitions, Letters Patent Appeals before this Court and Special Leave Petitions before the Apex Court, which, as per the learned counsel for the petitioners, came to be dismissed and the awards passed by the Labour Court have attained finality.

3. The moot question is - whether the petitioners can invoke writ jurisdiction under Articles 226 and 227 of the Constitution of India for the execution of an award passed by a Labour Court?

4. For that, we may make a reference to Section 11 of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, (for short, the Act), which deals with the procedure, powers and duties of the Authorities. Sub Sections (4), (8) and (9) of Section 11 of the Act provide that an award made by the Labour Court shall be executed in accordance with the procedure laid down for execution of orders and decree of a Civil Court under Order 21 of the Code of Civil Procedure. It is apt to reproduce sub sections (4), (8) and (9) of the Act hereunder:

> "(4) A conciliation officer may enforce the attendance of any person for the purpose of examination of such person or call for and inspect any document which he has ground for considering to be relevant to the industrial dispute or to be necessary for the purpose of verifying the implementation of any award or carrying out any other duty imposed on him under this Act, and for the aforesaid purposes, the conciliation officer shall have the same powers as are vested in a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908), in respect of enforcing the attendance of any person and examining him or of compelling the production of documents.
> (8) Every Labour Court, Tribunal or National Tribunal shall be deemed to be Civil Court for the purposes of sections 345, 346 and 348 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974).
> (9) Every award made, order issued or settlement arrived at by or before Labour Court or Tribunal or National Tribunal shall be executed in accordance with the procedure laid down for execution of orders and decree of a Civil Court under order 21 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908)."

5. Bare perusal of the above quoted provision does disclose that for execution of an award passed by a Labour Court, the mechanism contained in the Act itself has to be followed. Thus, the petitioners ought not to approach this Court under Articles 226 and 227 of the Constitution of India seeking execution of the award passed by the Labour Court, rather they should have resorted to execution proceedings, as provided under the Act.

6. It is apt to record herein that this Court in terms of order, dated 18th February, 2016, commanded the respondents to reinstate the petitioners, is a factor to be kept in mind.

7. Viewed thus, the writ petitions are not maintainable. Accordingly, we dispose of the writ petitions by directing the respondents to reinstate the petitioners, as directed by the Labour Court, within a period of four weeks from today. However, it is made clear that this order shall not be treated as precedent. Pending CMPs, if any, also stand disposed of.

PW-11/F recovered contraband was found to be poppy straw.

10. Prosecution examined PW-1 Yaseen Ali as independent witness who duly supported and corroborated prosecution story.

11. PW-6 HC Tapender Singh, PW-7 HC Kalyan Singh, PW-8 HC Sunil and PW-14 ASI Mohar Sing are spot official witnesses examined in the Court. All of them corroborated prosecution case with slight insignificant variations. PW-2 Nirmal Sharma corroborated the fact of providing weighing machine to police. PW-3 HHC Narayan Singh Incharge Malkhana proved deposit of case property with him and sending samples to State FSL, Junga for chemical analysis and filling column No. 12 of NCB Form.

12. PW-4 Constable Vipin Kumar proved depositing sample of recovered contraband in State FSL, Junga. PW-5 Constable Pardeep Kumar proved handing over of Special report to PW-13 HC Tejinder Singh, Reader to SDPO and PW-13 HC Tejinder Singh proved placing Special Report before SDPO and signing the same by SDPO.

13. PW-9 HC Rajesh Kumar proved registration of FIR Ex. 11/B on receiving Rukka Ex.PW-11/A. PW-10 Deepak Chauhan proved DDR entry with regard to departure of police party on 7.10.2013. PW-11 Inspector Bhisham Singh proved resealing of case property and filling remaining columns of NCB Form in triplicate.

14. In statement under Section 313 of the code of Criminal Procedure, only defence taken by appellant was that police apprehended one person namely Kapil on the spot but he was released and recovered contraband was wrongly planted upon him.

15. Brother of appellant DW-1 Suresh Pal was examined as defence witness. He stated that they were members of joint family. On 13.10.2013, one constable and one ASI of Himachal Police went their house in their village and demanded driving licence of his brother Satish Kumar from him and he handed over the same to them in presence of his neighbour Rajiv. He admitted that Shubhlesh Kumari was wife of appellant and her mobile bearing No. 90453-48619. He further admitted that on 07.10.2013, police informed Subhlesh Kumari on her mobile about arrest of appellant in present case. No other evidence was led by appellant.

16. Learned counsel for appellant referred statement of PW-1 Yaseen Ali and raised doubt on his impartiality for admitting his cordial relations with police officials and for not saying that he was called by police and therefore only inference of joining police party at his own as interest person could be drawn. It is urged that PW-1 admitted that there were Tea stall, cold drink shop, wine shop and Toll Tax at a some distance from barrier but no one from these shops or Tall Tax barrier was called for associating in investigation but person having cordial relations with police officials was associated. Submission of learned counsel was not sustainable for the reason that there was nothing on record to impeach impartiality of this witness. To have cordial relations with police officials could not be basis for rejecting testimony of witness and for drawing inference that witness was not an independent witness. There is no enmity of PW-1 with appellant and also there was no personal interest of PW-1 Yaseen Ali for seeking conviction of appellant in a false case. PW-14 Mohar Singh specifically stated that constable Tara Dutt, Musthak Ali and PW-1 Yaseen Ali were called on suspicion for condition of vehicle and gesture of appellant. Omission by PW-1 to mention this fact in his deposition in the court was a minor discrepancy. There was no suggestion put in his cross examination that he was not called or associated by police but he joined police and participated in process with intention to implicate appellant in a false case.

17. Counsel for appellant referred admission of PW-1 that Investigating Officer did not call any independent witness from adjacent shops. But from this admission inference cannot be drawn at any stretch of imagination that PW-1 was not an independent witness. This question was with respect to calling of independent witnesses from adjoining shops. When witness was available on the spot there was no occasion to call independent witnesses from adjoining shops or a barrier situated as some distance.

18. It was also pointed out on behalf of appellant that PW-1 stated that remaining quantity of 80 Kgs. was sealed whereas after taking out 10 samples of one Kg. each out of alleged total quantity of 100 Kg. remaining quantity could have been 90 Kgs. Therefore doubt on prosecution case was raised. It was a minor mistake based on wrong calculation because in Rukka Ex. PW-11/A, it was stated that 5 bags having 18 Kg. contraband in each were sealed and seized. PW-1 Yaseen Ali stated that 100 Kg. Poppy was found in 5 bags weighing 20 Kg. of poppy husk in each bag. He further stated that from every bag two samples of 1 Kgs each were taken out. Therefore, his statement that 5 bags containing 80 Kgs. poppy husk were sealed by police was only miscalculations having no bearing on genesis of prosecution case.

19. Counsel for appellant further pointed out statement of PW-1 wherein he stated that he did not remember that which document was prepared by IO first and one or two documents were signed by him after going through contents and he did not know what was NCB form. It was further argued that when this witness did not remember documents prepared in his presence and did not know about NCB form, then statement of this witness lost its relevancy and signature of PW-1 over NCB form are of no significance. PW-1 specifically admitted preparation of documents PW-1/A, PW-1/B, PW-1/C in his presence and admitted signatures on these documents. Therefore, not remembering documents prepared did not vitiate or render evidence of PW-2 unreliable and documents irrelevant. So far NCB form was concerned, the same was neither filled nor signed by PW-1. Hence, ignorance of PW-1 about NCB form was insignificant.

20. Non production of original seal by PW-1 in the court was argued to be fatal for prosecution case. Statement of this witness that he did not remember whether seal was of wood, iron or lead and seal impression affixed on samples and bags and also number of seal impression affixed on the same was also referred sufficient material for disbelieving prosecution case and it was contended that in absence of production of seal, it was not possible to compare seals affixed upon the contraband and samples which was fatal for prosecution case. Purpose of production of seal is to compare seal impression affixed on parcels of contraband at the time of recovery with case property produced in the court and also with parcels of samples sent to State FSL for chemical analysis. In absence of original seal, this comparison is possible with sample seal impression taken on clothes as well as on NCB form and it was done in present case with sample seal impression taken on cloth Ex. PW-14/B. Appellant failed to point out prejudice caused to him for non production of original seal in court.

21. Counsel for appellant also referred that PW-1 Yaseen Ali stated that police official informed him that these bags were recovered from the vehicle of appellant but he failed to notice next line in his statement wherein he specifically stated that search was conducted by police in his presence. Statement as a whole is to be read. Similarly another part of his statement was referred for disbelieving him in which he stated that it was correct that he put his signatures on documents on direction of police and one or two documents were singed by him after going through the contents and police officials did not explain contents of documents to him. This contention was also not sustainable because statement of PW-1 was to be considered as a whole and PW-1 did not dispute or deny contents of documents signed by him.

22. Non supply of documents in presence of PW-1 did not mean that documents were not supplied at all. Moreover even if it is considered that documents were not supplied, then also appellant has failed to point out document which was tempered by police and prejudiced caused to appellant.

23. Counsel for appellant referred statement of PW-1 in which he stated that he went back but police remained on spot for 3-4 hours and argued that after leaving spot, it was not possible for PW-1 to tell or notice time for which police remained on the spot. Counsel for appellant did not notice the fact that PW-1 was posted at Forest Check Post at Behral which was adjacent to police Naka. Therefore, it was possible for PW-1 to notice police party from the forest check post even after leaving spot also. There was no contradiction in his statement on this aspect.

23. It has been contended on behalf of appellant that bridging weighing machine from Hotel Grand Revera situated a distance of 4-5 Kms. from spot cast doubt on fairness of investigation as there were various Hotels, shops and factory near spot and also on the way from spot to Hotel Grand Revera wherefrom weighing machine could have been brought as PW-2 Nirmal Sharma stated that shop keepers in the way might be having such type of machines. In present case five huge plastic sacks containing total quantity of one quintal were found in the car of appellant. Perusal of Rukka PW-11/A reflected that PW-8 HC Sunil was sent for electronic weighing machine, from Hotel Grand Rivera in official vehicle in peculiar circumstances and also keeping in view the quantity of recovered contraband, to be weighed. Therefore there was nothing wrong in bringing electronic weighing machine having capacity to weigh recovered contraband, from a specific hotel which might be in knowledge of Investigating Officer. It was but natural to bring an instrument from a known place instead of making inquiry here and there for searching of weighting machine having capacity to weigh huge quantity of contraband.

24. PW-2 Nirmal Sharma stated that there were Hotel, shops and factory at Bata Mandi and such type of weighting machines might be available with them. This averment was not suggesting that even this witness was sure about the availability of such type of machines in other places. Possibility of such machines with other shop keepers does not render bringing weighing machine from Hotel Grand Revera suspicious. Appellant failed to point out how bringing of weighing machine from Hotel Grand Revera had prejudiced him. Appellant also referred that there was no mention of NCB form in copy of RC Ex. PW-3/B vide which samples were taken to State FSL Junga and also there was no mention of sending NCB forms with samples in Col. No. 6 to 8 in Malkhana Register No. 19. Further, there was no mention in Register No. 19 regarding deposit of case property in State SFL Junga. It was further argued that receipt of State FSL was also not produced in the Court and therefore, it was not possible to compare seals on sample parcels with seals affixed at the time of recovery of contraband. This plea of the appellant was also misconceived. Receipt of sample parcels in State FSL Junga was endorsed on left corner of road certificate itself indicating that sample parcels were received in State FSL Junga on 10.10.2013 NCB form was also sent in triplicate to State FSL and the same was evident from report of State FSL Ex. PW-11/F in which it was mentioned as under:-

"6: Parcel(s) articles received:	Five sealed cloth parcels alongwith docket, Xerox copies of FIR & Seizure memo; NCB forms in triplicate & sample seals of T&A (Total-08 leaves).
7: Description of the parcel:	Five sealed cloth parcels marked as SA-I, SB-I, SC-I, SD-I & SE-1, each bearing three seals of "T" &three seals of "A". The seals were found intact and tallied with specimen seals sent by the forwarding authority and seals impressions impressed on the form NCB-I. The parcels were kept in the safe custody of the Assistant Chemical Examiner till the report of the same was signed & dispatched for Laboratory examination & report.

25. It was pointed out that PW-6 Tapender Singh stated that they did not check any car thereafter but reason for not checking any vehicle after apprehending vehicle of appellant was not explained. There is nothing abnormal in it as it was not a regular check post but a 'naka' for detection for crime and after finding contraband in apprehended vehicle police party was involved in completing investigation and after completing cumbersome procedure and formalities related thereto police party left for police station.

26. Failure of PW-2 Nirmal Sharma stating exact name of police official who approached him requesting weighing machine was not fatal but natural in normal circumstances and indicated that witnesses was not tutored.

27. Plea of appellant that there is non compliance of Section 42(2) of NDPS Act, on the basis of departure report Ex. PW-10/A, is also not sustainable as PW-10 Deepak Chauhan clarified that meaning of 'Surag Burari' was 'detection of crime'. Detection of crime never means prior information of crime. On receiving specific information the police party would have departed for raiding and not for detection.

28. Two spare number plates bearing No. DL- 4 CR-7283 were also found in Indigo car. The said number was found to be actual registration number of apprehended car whereas, that car was being driven by appellant using a registration number of another vehicle. Said fact was proved by placing on record screening reports and NET details Ex. PW-14/F and Ex. PW 14/H. Non association of any witness with regard to visit of Investigation Officer to Delhi on the address given at the time of registration of Indio Car did not effect genesis of prosecution case.

29. Objection with regard to non deposit of driving licence in Malkhana was explained by Investigating Officer by stating that driving licence was in the case file.

30. Counsel for Appellant also pointed out discrepancies in taking photographs by PW-7 HC Kalyan Singh. Photographs and videography is a piece of evidence to corroborate prosecution story. Photographs proved on record definitely suggest that appellant, police party and independent witnesses PW-1 Yaseen Ali and Mustak were present on the spot. Failure to take photograph from particular angle might have been insignificant in case there were material contradictions and discrepancies in ocular version of witnesses. Prosecution case has been proved beyond reasonable doubt on the basis of ocular as well as documentary evidence. Therefore any lapse on the part of PW-7 in taking photographs from particular angle did not have effect on prosecution case. Even ignoring all photographs, there is sufficient material on record to prove the guilt of appellant.

31. No other point was urged. In view of above discussion, we are of considered view that prosecution has been able to establish the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt by leading clear, cogent, convincing and reliable evidence. Thus, in our considered view, findings returned by the trial Court are based on correct and complete appreciation of material on record, warranting no interference.

32. It is a fit case for invoking provisions of Section 60 of NDPS Act to conveyance used for transporting narcotic substance. Therefore, trial court is also directed to initiate proceedings under Section 60(3) of the NDPS Act for confiscation of apprehended Indigo car in accordance with law.

33. In view of the above discussion, appeal filed by appellant is dismissed being devoid of any merit and findings returned by trial court are affirmed and conviction and sentence is maintained.

34. Record of the case also be returned forthwith.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Vivek Singh Thakur,Judge.

State has preferred instant appeal against acquittal of respondents-accused vide judgment dated 12.07.2012 passed by learned Sessions Judge, Sirmaur, District Nanan H.P. in Sessions Trial No.57-ST/7 of 2011 in case FIR No.104/2011 dated 07.05.2011 registered under Sections 147,148,324,307,302, 201 read with Section 149 of the Indian Penal Code in Police Station Nahan, District Sirmaur, H.P. for setting aside the impugned judgment and to convict respondents-accused.

2. We have heard learned Deputy Advocate General for the appellant-State and counsel for respondents-accused and have also perused record of the case.

3. Prosecution case is that on 07.05.2011 at about 1.15 PM in Police Post Kala Amb an information was received from Poonam Nursing Home, Kala Amb that one boy named 'Sunil Kumar' was brought for treatment in case of fight. This information was recorded as report No. 8 of Daily Diary dated 07.05.2011. In pursuance to said report HC Ram Gopal went to Poonam Nursing Home and recorded statement of respondent No. 4 Sunil Kumar that Manu son of Sleem, Vishal and one another boy had assaulted him and his brother Anil on 07.05.2011 at about 12.30 PM in front of Gogia Sweet Shop Trilokpur road and one boy gave danda blow on his head and another boy hit him with stone and thereafter assailants fled from spot on Motor Cycle towards Trilokpur. On return HC Ram Gopal recorded this information in Daily Diary Report No. 12.

4. On that day i.e. 07.05.2011 ASI Bihari Lal was on patrolling duty. He was informed by Head Constable Rajeev Kumar on his mobile that in incident of fighting two persons were brought for treatment in Sneh Hospital Kala Amb and they were serious. On receiving this information, ASI Bihari Lal went to Sneh Hospital and recorded statement of PW-1 Manu Khan Ex. PW-1/A under Section 154 Cr.PC. In this statement PW-1 stated that respondents assaulted him and Banti @ Pankaj Sharma at about 4.30 PM near gate No. 2 of Ruchira Factory and assailants were armed with sticks, dandas and knives who beat them bitterly. Anil stabbed on leg of Banti @ Pankaj Sharma, Pardeep Kumar gave blow of rod on his head whereupon Banti @ Pankaj Sharma fell down. Thereafter assailants fled away in white colour car and on 2-3 Motor Cycles. He was brought to Hospital by his uncle in Bolero Jeep and Banti @ Pankaj Sharma was also brought to Hospital by some one else. Banti @ Pankaj Sharma was referred to PGI Chandigarh. He also gave details of series of incidents of quarrelling with respondents taking place since morning.

5. After recording statement Ex. PW-1/A, it was sent to Police Station as 'Rukka' and FIR Ex. PW-23/A was registered under Sections 147,148,149, 323, 394 and 307 of IPC. Bunti @ Pankaj Sharma was referred to PGI, Chandigarh where he was admitted at 9.15 PM but he succumbed to injuries at 3.15 AM on 08.05.2011 whereupon case was converted into Section 302 of the Indian Penal Code.

6. On completion of investigation, challan was presented in court and accused were charge sheeted under Sections 147,148, 324,307,302, 201 read with Section 149 of the Indian Penal Code. The prosecution examined 28 witnesses. Statement of respondents under Section 313 Cr.PC was recorded. No defence evidence was led.

7. PW-1 Manu Khan was injured and was the complainant in the present case. At the time of deposition in Court in his examination-in-chief, he stated about minor altercations taken place between him and respondents. However he desisted to support prosecution case by disowning contents of FIR Ex. PW-23/A. He was declared hostile witness on the request of learned Public Prosecutor. However nothing material in favour of prosecution could be elucidated during his cross-examination. He admitted his signatures on statement Ex. PW-1/A but stated that at the time of signing, he was in the Hospital and there were so many persons present alongwith police and the statement was already written by police on which he was made to sign. He further stated that his signatures on the said statement were taken after two days of the incident. He admitted injuries caused to him and Banti @ Pankaj near gate of Ruchira Factory. However he stated that assailants were muffled and their faces were not visible and therefore he could not identify them.

8. PW-2 Jahur Hussan, PW-3 Gurmeet Singh and PW-4 Goverdhan Singh were examined as witnesses to the incident but they did not lend any support to prosecution case. For resiling their statements recorded by police under Section 161 Cr.PC, they were declared hostile on the request of learned Public Prosecutor. PW-2 stated that he saw one injured person lying on the ground who was lifted by people and was taken to hospital. He also admitted visit of police on the spot and lifting blood stained earth and seizure of Motor Cycle but he denied to seen assailants.

9. PW-3 stated that he saw Shillu indulged in scuffle with two persons in front of his shop. He stated that respondent No. 4 Shillu was lying injured who was taken to hospital for treatment at about 12.30 PM but he denied having knowledge of scuffle taken place in the evening and about death of Banti @ Pankaj Sharma due to injures sustained in that scuffle.

10. PW-4 stated that police came to his shop and recorded his name and address but he did not know anything about the incident.

11. PW-11 Gian Chand deposed that when he reached near Ruchira Paper Mills at Trilokpur Kala Amb road, lot of people were gathered there and Manu Khan was lying injured on the road. He took Manu Khan from Sneh Hospital Kala Amb. In the meanwhile some other people also brought other injured in Sneh Hospital to whom people were calling Banti @ Pankaj Sharma. Banti @ Pankaj Sharma was referred to PGI Chandigarh and Manu Khan remained admitted in Sneh Hospital.

12. PW-14 also turned hostile and resiled from his statement recorded by police. He stated that on 07.05.2011 at about 12.00(noon) when he reached near Gogia Sweet Shop, he noticed respondent No. 4 Shillu @ Sunil Kumar lying on the road on opposite side of Gogia Sweet Shop. He further stated that he did not witness the fight. He was also subjected to cross-examination by learned Public Prosecutor but nothing in favour of prosecution could be extracted.

13. As per prosecution case, Pardeep Kumar and Deepak Pandey were also amongst the respondents-assailants. They were juvenile and were subjected to separate trial before the Juvenile Justice Board. PW-6 Surmukh Singh is uncle and PW-7 is father of Juvenile Pardeep Kumar. They were examined to prove production of iron rod by Juvenile Pardeep Kumar. Both of them turned hostile and stated that Pardeep Kumar was apprehended by police. Police called and advised them to produce iron rod stating that it was necessary in order to enlarge Pardeep Kumar on bail. Despite cross-examination by learned Public Prosecutor nothing material could be brought on record in favour of prosecution.

14. PW-8 Raj Kumar Mittal and PW-9 Dev Raj were examined to prove recovery of knife and danda at the instance of respondent Anil Kumar. PW-8 also turned hostile. He stated that ASI told him that knife and danda were recovered at the instance of Anil Kumar and ASI asked him to sign document Ex. PW-8/A but contents of said document were not read over to him before his signature. PW-9 Dev Raj supported prosecution case but during cross-examination, he admitted that he was posted as Home Guard in Police Post Kala Amb. He was also witness in case State versus Pardeep Kumar. His statement Ex. DA was recorded in that case before Juvenile Justice Board on 28.10.2011. He was confronted with that statement Ex. DA. There was difference of version in statement EX. DA and deposition made in court in present case. He explained that on 28.10.2011, before making statement in Juvenile Justice Board he was not read over statement under Section 161 Cr.PC whereas before deposing in present case, the statement under Section 161 Cr.PC was read over to him by ASI outside the Court. Therefore this witness cannot be relied upon to prove recovery of danda and knife at the instance of Anil Kumar.

15. PW-5 HHC Gobind Singh was witness to seizer of vehicle No. HR-02L-0041 vide Memo Ex. PW-5/A. PW-12 Daya Nand was witness to taking into possession of RC of Motor Cycle No. HR-54-9454 vide memo Ex. PW-12/A. PW-10 is Patwari who issued Tatima and Jamabandi of place of occurrence. From statements of these witnesses nothing incriminatory against respondents was brought on record.

16. PW-13 Dr. Ajay Goel medically examined respondent Sunil Kumar and PW-16 Dr. M.L. Gupta medically examined PW-1 Manu Khan and deceased Banti @ Pankaj Sharma. PW-15 Dr. Himanshu admitted Banti in PGI Chandigarh and proved his treatment and death in PGI Chandigarh.

17. PW-17 to PW-25, PW-27 and PW-28 were police officials who proved their role performed during investigation.

18. PW-26 Naresh Kumar Sharma, father of deceased Banti @ Pankaj Sharma was only witness who deposed against respondents by naming them in his statement as assailants claiming that their names were disclosed by his son in Sneh Hospital Kala Amb on the date of incident and which were also affirmed by PW-1 on the same day. As per him he had requested police to record statement of his son but the police told him that they had heard his statement. He further stated that he had requested the police to record his statement. On 20th August, 2011, Police came to his house and recorded his statement and also of his wife. During cross-examination he stated that statements of his brothers Nand Lal and Lalit were recorded by police. He further stated that after the incident he got himself transferred to Surla and he joined his duties after 15 days of death of his son but he did not visit police post to ascertain progress of the case but his uncle and brother were attending investigation and the police came to his house on 20th August, 2011 and he could not meet PW-28 Bihari Lal prior to 20.08.2011 as he was in shock due to murder of his son and he came to know from his brother Lalit that statement of Banti @ Pankaj Sharma was not recorded by police when he was alive, but he did not do anything after knowing the said fact. However in later part of his statement he admitted that on 14th June, 2011 he and his wife were party to a delegation of Gram Panchayat alongwith Pradhan and others who met the Superintendent of Police at Nahan and submitted representation Ex. D-2 which was signed by him and his wife alongwith others. He admitted that in the said representation Ex. D-2 it was not recorded that his son Banti @ Panjaj Sharma made a disclosure in Sneh Hospital to him naming assailants. He also admitted that he did not inform the Superintendent of Police that Banti @ Pankaj Sharma had made a statement to him in Sneh Hospital. He admitted that after representation Ex. D-2, PW-28 ASI Bihari Lal met him and inquired about his representation but he did not disclose this fact to said Investigation Officer at that time as stated by him in examination-in-chief regarding disclosure by his son Banti @ Pankaj Sharma.

19. It emerged from admissions of PW-26 during his cross-examination that after more than three months of the incident for the first time his statement under Section 161 Cr.PC was recorded on 20.08.2011 in which he claimed disclosure by his son about the names of assailants to him on 07.05.2011. After 07.05.2011 his brothers and uncle were monitoring investigation and also representation to the Superintendent of Police was submitted by him with delegation of Gram Panchayat but prior to 20th August, 2011 he never disclosed that deceased Banti @ Pankaj Sharma had informed him about assailants and PW-1 had also affirmed those names on that day.

20. PW-26 appeared to be designed and introduced in order to rope respondent somehow. He kept mum for three months despite the fact that his only son was murdered. There was no threat to him from any quarter. But suddenly after 3 months he came with plea that his son had disclosed names of assailants. In these circumstances claim of PW-26 Naresh Kumar Sharma was shrouded by suspicion and definitely was a result of afterthought. Therefore his statement is not trustworthy and confidence inspiring and thus cannot be made the basis to convict the respondents.

22. It is evident from aforesaid discussion that the evidence so adduced by the prosecution cannot be treated as cogent, reliable, credible and trustworthy to prove guilt of the respondents-accused beyond reasonable doubt for committing offences under Sections 147, 148, 324, 307,302, 201 read with Section 149 of the Indian Penal Code.

23. It is a settled principle of law that acquittal leads to presumption of innocence in favour of accused. To dislodge the same, onus heavily lies upon the prosecution. It cannot be said that learned trial court has not appreciated evidence correctly and completely and acquittal of accused has resulted into travesty of justice or has caused mis-carriage of justice. The respondents-accused have been acquitted by the trial Court. No case for interference is made out.

24. The present appeal, devoid of any merit, is dismissed, so also pending applications, if any. Bail bonds, if any, furnished by the accused are discharged. Records of the Court below be sent back forthwith.

(Para-10 to 32)

For the appellant. : Mr. V.S. Chauhan, Addl. Advocate General with Mr. Vikram Thakur, Dy. Advocate General.

For the respondents. : Mr. N.K. Thakur, Sr. Advocate with Ms. Jamuna Pathik, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Ajay Mohan Goel, J.

By way of this appeal, the State has challenged the judgment passed by the Court of learned Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court, Una in Sessions Trial No. 10/2008 dated 17.1.2009 vide which the learned trial court has acquitted the accused for commission of offence punishable under Section 307 read with Section 34 IPC.

2. The case of prosecution was that the complainant who is a resident of village Dharampur, Tehsil Haroli, District Una on 20.2.2008 at around 7:30 p.m. along with his son had gone to bring medicine for his ailing wife and when complainant along with his son reached a little ahead of his courtyard near the house of accused, accused Taro Devi, her son and daughter attacked him. Taro Devi's son gave a danda blow on his head, whereas accused Taro Devi and her daughter beat him with fist and kick blows. Son of the complainant rushed to his house and informed his mother about the said incident. Thereafter father as well as wife of the complainant reached the spot and rescued him (complainant) from the clutches of the accused, who ran away from the spot. The complainant was taken to Hospital at Haroli and matter was also reported to the police. Statement of complainant was recorded under Section 154 Cr.P.C., on the basis of which FIR Ext. PW7/C was recorded. During the course of investigation, spot map was prepared and blood stained T-shirt of the complainant as well as weapon of offence, 'Danda' were taken into possession vide recovery memos Ext. PW3/B and Ext. PW3/C. Dr. A.K. Sharma medically examined the complainant and issued MLC Ext. PW1/A and thereafter complainant was referred to R.H. Una for surgical opinion. At R.H. Una complainant was examined by Dr. Indu Bhardwaj who advised CT Scan for injuries suffered by him on his skull. Based on the report of CT Scan, Ext. PW2/A, Dr. Indu Bhardwaj found the injury suffered by the complainant to be dangerous to life. Accused Taro Devi and Chanchla Devi were arrested on 20.3.2008 and were subsequently released on bail on 31.3.2008. As accused Lekh Raj @ Laddi was a juvenile when the alleged incident took place, he was produced before the Juvenile Justice Board Una and was dealt with under the Juvenile Justice Act.

3. After completion of the investigation, challan was filed in the Court and as a prima facie case was found against the accused, they were charged for commission of offence punishable under Section 307 read with Section 34 IPC to which they pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

4. In order to prove its case the prosecution, in all, examined 11 witnesses. Two witnesses were also examined by the defence.

5. Learned trial court after taking into consideration the entire evidence produced on record by the prosecution concluded that there were number of discrepancies, contradictions and doubtful circumstances in the case of the prosecution which went to the root of the case and create doubt in the story as was propounded by the prosecution. Learned trial court did not found the testimony of the complainant to be cogent and reliable. Recovery of Danda Ext. P2 was also held by the learned trial court to be doubtful. Learned trial court also took note of the fact that the complainant had stated that he had made a handwritten complaint to the police but the so-called complaint was never produced on record. It further took note of the fact that after the occurrence of alleged incident neither the complainant nor his family members reported the matter to the Panchayat Pradhan etc. and in fact police reached the hospital on the basis of information received by it from the hospital about there being an injury case received at the hospital. Learned trial court further held that even the testimony of the wife of complainant Smt. Urmila Devi who entered the witness box as PW4 was not reliable. It also did not found the testimony of the minor son of complainant, who entered the witness box as PW11 to be trustworthy. It was further held by learned trial court on the basis of testimonies of the doctors as well as medical reports on record that the Court has not only to see the nature of injury but also the intention and motive of the accused and whether the injury was in fact inflicted by the accused with an intention and motive to kill the injured or not. Learned trial court went to hold that the said ingredients were missing in this case and simply because of enmity or hostile relations between the parties being neighbourers it could not be presumed that there was intention and motive of the accused to kill the complainant. Accordingly, on these basis it was held by learned trial court that when no independent witness had supported the case of the prosecution and on the other hand defence had examined two witnesses who seemed to be independent and the possibility of the occurrence having taken place in the manner as was alleged by the accused could not be ruled out, then the prosecution could not be said to have had proved its case against the accused beyond reasonable doubt. On these basis, learned trial court acquitted the accused for commission of offence punishable under Section 307 read with Section 34 IPC.

6. Mr. V.S. Chauhan, learned Additional Advocate General submitted that the judgment of acquittal passed by learned trial court was not sustainable in the eyes of law, as the findings returned by learned trial court were based on hypothetical reasoning, surmises and conjectures. It was further submitted by Mr. Chauhan that learned trial court discarded the testimony of prosecution witnesses on account of untenable reasons without appreciating that the prosecution witnesses had proved the case of the prosecution on all material points. It was further argued by Mr. Chauhan that the conclusion arrived at by learned trial court to the effect that there were material discrepancies and contradictions in the case of the prosecution was also totally ill-founded, as the learned trial court had erred in not appreciating the testimony of the complainant in its correct perspective. Mr. Chauhan submitted that the testimony of Rakesh Kumar which was duly corroborated by doctor and other prosecution witnesses including the son of complainant proved beyond reasonable doubt the guilt of the accused. It was further argued by Mr. Chauhan that learned trial court had erred in holding that the wife of the complainant had made improvements in her statements without appreciating that no improvements had been made in her testimony by the said witness. According to Mr. Chauhan, learned trial court otherwise also erred in placing undue reliance on the statement of DWs without appreciating that the statement of defence witnesses was neither cogent nor reliable. On these basis it was argued by Mr. Chauhan that the judgment passed by learned trial court was not sustainable in the eyes of law and accordingly the same be set aside. He further argued that accused be convicted for commission of offence for which they were charged.

7. Mr. N.K. Thakur, learned Senior Counsel for the respondents on the other hand argued that the judgment passed by learned trial court was neither perverse nor there was any infirmity in the findings returned by learned trial court while acquitting the respondents of the charges framed against them. It was submitted by Mr. Thakur that as the prosecution had miserably failed to prove its case against the accused beyond all reasonable doubt, the judgment of acquittal returned in their favour by learned trial court could not be faulted with. Mr. Thakur further argued that the evidence produced on record both ocular as well as documentary by the prosecution was totally unreliable and the same by no stretch of imagination proved the factum of accused having committed the offence for which they were charged. According to Mr. Thakur, accused were falsely implicated by the complainant and learned trial court on the basis of correct appreciation of the material on record produced by the prosecution acquitted them, as no case was actually made out against the accused. On these basis it was urged by Mr. Thakur that there was no merit in the appeal and the same be dismissed.

8. We have heard learned counsel for the parties and have also gone through the records of the case as well as judgment passed by the learned trial court.

9. Before proceeding further we will refer to the testimony of material prosecution witnesses in order to appreciate the contention of both the parties.

10. Dr. A.K. Sharma entered the witness box as PW1 and deposed that in the month of February, 2008 he was posted as Medical Officer at CHC Haroli and on 20.2.2008 he had examined Rakesh Kumar (complainant) at around 10:30 p.m. and on examination of the complainant he had found the following injuries on his person:-

1. Clean lacerated wound on left side parietal 2 inches x 1;2 cmx bone deep, margins were irregular and bleeding was present.
2. Clean lacerated wound on left side frontal region skull 3inch x ½ cm x bone depth margins were irregular, bleeding was present."

He further deposed that he had advised x-ray of the skull and after receipt of x-ray report, the same showed no evidence of fracture and he referred the matter for surgical opinion to RH Una. This witness further deposed that injuries on the person of complainant were possible by danda blows. In his cross-examination he stated that according to x-ray report injuries on the person of complainant were simple in nature. He further stated in his cross-examination that injuries on the person of complainant were possible if a person strikes against a hard surface like pillar etc.

11. Dr. Satvir Singh Consultant Radiologist, Satluj CT Scan and Diagnostic Centre, Nangal entered the witness box as PW2 and deposed that he conducted CT Scan of the complainant Rakesh Kumar on 4.3.2008 and observed an epidural haematoma measuring 7 mm in depth in the left parietal region and there was also a fracture on the left parietal bone. This witness further deposed that epidural haematoma has a possibility of increasing and in case it increases it can be dangerous to life. In his cross examination this witness stated that duration of injuries cannot be exactly predicted but the injury in issue was a fresh injury and the injury detected was of less than one week. He also admitted in his cross examination that injuries in issue were possible if a person strikes with a hard surface. It is pertinent to point out at this stage that the alleged incident took place on 20.2.2008, whereas CT Scan of the complainant was conducted by PW2 on 4.3.2008, i.e. after a period of 12 days from the date of incident.

12. The complainant entered the witness box as PW3 and deposed that on 20.2.2008 at around 7:30 p.m. he was going to the market along with his son to bring medicine for his wife when accused attacked him with danda due to enmity. This witness further deposed that as a result thereof he sustained injuries on the head as well as other parts of his body. He further stated that his father and wife Urmila Devi came to the spot and saved him from the clutches of accused persons who thereafter ran away from the spot. He further deposed that thereafter he was taken to hospital by his father at Haroli. He further deposed that from there he was referred to RH Una where x-ray and CT Scan of the complainant were conducted and he remained admitted in the hospital for about 15-20 days. In the cross examination this witness admitted it to be correct that accused Taro Devi had complained against him at police station Haroli and he was called by the police. He also admitted it to be correct that a compromise was effected between him and accused Taro Devi on the said complaint in the presence of Panchayat Members in the police station. He also admitted it to be correct that his house was adjoining to the village path towards north and the house of accused was towards south in front of his house. He also admitted it to be correct that there were 5-7 houses near his house and boundary wall had been erected by the accused persons towards the side of his house about two years back. He also admitted it to be correct that there were pillars supporting the verandah which had been white washed. Complainant further stated that he was given 5-7 blows of danda on his head. He also stated that he was given beatings by dandas blows on his body including the knee. He stated that all the three persons were having danda in their hands. He was confronted with the statement Ext. PW3/A and supplementary statement mark DA in which it was not so recorded that all the persons were having danda in their hands and they were given beatings with the said danda on his head as well as other parts of his body. He further stated in his cross examination that he did not raise any hue and cry. He also stated that he did not see whether neighbourers had gathered there or not. He stated that he was semi conscious when he was taken to hospital. He further stated that police station Haroli was on the way to Haroli hospital

13. Urmila Devi wife of complainant entered the witness box as PW4 and she also corroborated the case of the prosecution. This witness stated that on 20.2.2008 at around 7:30 p.m. her husband had gone with her son to bring some medicine for her when at a little distance from their house accused attacked him with dandas. This witness further deposed that her son came to her and told her that accused persons were beating the complainant with dandas. She further stated that on this she along with her father-in-law rushed to the spot and saw that the accused beating her husband with dandas. She further stated that they rescued her husband from the clutches of accused persons who ran away from the spot. She further deposed that thereafter her father-in-law took her husband to hospital Haroli. In her cross examination she stated that their house and the house of accused persons were opposite to each other and there was a Gali in between the two which was partly cemented and partly was paved with stones and mud. She further stated that her husband had raised cries 'bachao-bachao' and she and her father-in-law reached the complainant together. She further stated that when she reached the spot many persons from the locality had gathered there. She further stated that she was also hit with danda on her hips and had received injuries. She further stated that accused persons gave them beatings for about 5 minutes and thereafter they ran away. She stated that she had disclosed to the police that she was also beaten up by accused persons and had also received injuries while protecting her husband. She further stated that she told the police that her husband was beaten by all accused mercilessly with dandas. This witness was confronted with Mark DB wherein it was not so recorded.

14. PW5 Kishan Chand deposed that he was Ward Panch of Ward No.5 of Gram Panchayat Dharampur and was associated during the investigation of the case. This witness further deposed that police took into possession one danda Ext. P2 vide seizure memo Ext. PW3/C in his presence. In his cross-examination he stated that he was sitting in the house of Rakesh Kumar, who was inside the room and police brought the danda from outside. He further deposed that he cannot tell as to from where the police brought the danda. He admitted it to be correct that Lekh Raj alias Laddi was not present there nor he produced weapon of offence in question in his presence nor Ladi signed seizure memo in his presence.

15. HHC Sansar Chand entered the witness box as PW6 and deposed that he was posted at police station Haroli for the last 2 ½ years and on 20.2.2008 a telephonic information was received from CHC Haroli that an injured person was admitted in the hospital on which he along with Constable Tirath Ram went to CHC Haroli and got the injured medically examined. He further deposed that he recorded the statement of injured, Rakesh Kumar, and also obtained MLC Ext. PW1/A. He further deposed that doctor advised x-ray and radiological opinion. He further stated that till that time no cognizable offence appeared to have been made out so he accordingly informed in the police station regarding which report was prepared. In his cross examination this witness stated that injured did not give him any written complaint.

16. HC Ramesh Chand entered the witness box as PW7 and deposed that on 20.2.2008 he was posted as MHC and was acting as SHO PS Haroli. He further deposed the factum of entering report No. 28 in daily diary and recording of FIR Ext. PW7/C on 18.3.2008 which was in his own hand.

17. ASI Bakhtawar Singh entered the witness box as PW8 and deposed that he was handed over the investigation of the case on 18.3.2008 after registration of FIR. He further stated that on 19.3.2008 he went on the spot and on identification of the complainant he inspected the spot and prepared the spot map. He also stated that accused Lekh Raj alias Laddi produced one danda in presence of Hans Raj and Kishan Chand which was taken into possession vide seizure memo Ext. PW3/C.

18. SI Kapoor Chand entered the witness box as PW9 and stated that on 20.2.2008 information was received from CHC Haroli by MHC Ramesh Chand to the effect that an injured person had been admitted in the hospital. He further deposed that on receipt of this information HHC Sansar Chand and Constable Tirath Ram were sent to CHC Haroli who got the injured medically examined. He further stated that after the treatment of the injured final opinion of the doctor was obtained and on the basis of said final opinion FIR Ext. PW3/C was registered. In his cross examination this witness stated that he was not aware whether doctor had advised CT Scan of injured Rakesh Kumar or not. He further stated that he did not know that when doctor advised CT Scan in police cases then CT Scan was conducted at Dharamshala. He further stated that he did not collect the CT Scan report either from hospital or from Satluj CT Scan Centre, Nangal.

19. Dr. Indu Bhardwaj entered the witness box as PW10 and she stated that she was posted as Medical Officer in RH Una since March, 2006 and patient Rakesh Kumar was examined by her on 22.2.2008 as a referred case from CHC Haroli. This witness further stated that on examination it was found that patient had infected wound on his skull and was complaining of giddiness. She further deposed that head injury was suspected and the patient was advised CT Scan, however, due to shortage of money the patient could not get the CT Scan done immediately. She further deposed that complainant reported to her on 4.3.2008 with CT Scan and when she examined him she found that patient had a badly infected wound with swelling. She further stated that he had CT Scan with him which revealed fracture skull and head injury. She further deposed that complainant was admitted on 4.3.2008 and was discharged on 12.3.2008. She stated that she had given her final opinion on MLC Ext. PW1/A which was Ext. PW10/C. She further deposed that injuries observed by her were dangerous to life as there was a fracture in the skull. She further stated that she had seen danda and the injuries observed by her on the head of Rakesh Kumar can be caused by such danda. In her cross examination though she denied CT Scan was done free of cost at Kangra, however self stated that government charges were nominal obtained from the patient. She stated that she had not admitted the patient on 22.2.2008, as he had left the hospital by saying that he had no money for CT Scan and also had no attendant with him. She admitted it to be correct that she did not hand over the in-patient record Ext. PW10/B to the police. She admitted it to be correct that injury could be caused if a person strikes against the edges of the rectangle pillar. She also stated that injuries were also possible if a person falls on irregular, rough stony surface.

20. Minor son of the complainant Mani Ram entered the witness box as PW11. He stated that on 20.2.2008 he and his father were going to bring medicine for his mother and at around 7:30 p.m. when they reached near the house of accused, accused started beating his father with dandas and they gave danda blows on the head of his father. This witness further deposed that on seeing this he ran away from the spot and told the entire incident to his mother and grand father and thereafter his mother and grandfather went to the spot. In his cross examination he stated that the shop of Dr. Deep was situated at a distance from their house and his dispensary was situated near road which falls in village Dharampur. He further stated that there were only two shops and other shop of daily needs owned by Gurmeet. He admitted it to be correct that Atta Chakki of Gurmeet was also there. He stated that at the time of occurrence of alleged incident the lights were on and it was not pitch dark. He further deposed that all three accused were having dandas with them in their hands. He stated that he could not tell how many danda blows were given to his father. He stated that there was a distance of 10 feet between him and his father. He stated that he did not raise noise but his father raised noise by saying 'bachao-bachao'. He further stated that there were 10-12 persons who gathered from the Mohalla after the incident. He denied that he was deposing as directed by his parents. He stated that his mother was also slapped by Chanchla Devi. He further stated that this fact was told to him by his mother.

21. From the perusal of the testimony of prosecution witnesses there are some material factors which need to be highlighted.

22. Complainant in his testimony as PW3 has stated that when he was allegedly given beatings by the accused, he did not raise any hue and cry. PW11 Mani Ram son of the complainant has stated that when complainant was beaten up by the accused, his father raised noise by saying 'bachao-bachao'. PW11 further stated that when accused were beating his father he immediately rushed to his house from the spot and told the entire incident to his mother and grandfather who immediately rushed back where his father was beaten. PW4 Urmila Devi wife of the complainant has stated that on the fateful day when her husband and her son had gone to purchase medicine for her, her son came to her and told her that accused were giving danda beatings to her husband with danda blows and on this she and her father-in-law rushed to the spot and rescued the complainant from the clutches of accused. Incidentally, Hans Raj father of the complainant has not been examined by the prosecution. It has come in the testimony of the complainant that when he was being beaten up by the accused with dandas he sustained injuries as a result of the same and he was saved from the clutches of the accused by his father and his wife. He further deposed that when his father and wife came to the spot accused persons ran away from the spot. However, a perusal of the testimony of Urmila Devi demonstrates that she has stated that when she reached the spot along with her father-in-law in order to save her husband she was also beaten up by the accused with danda. This witness further deposed that in fact accused gave beatings to her also for about 5 minutes and thereafter they ran away.

23. As we have already discussed above the complainant has stated in his statement that when he was being beaten by the accused he did not raise any hue and cry, however, PW4 has stated that deceased was crying 'bachao-bachao'. PW3 and PW4 in their cross examinations have been confronted with their statements made to the police wherein it was not so recorded that accused persons were having danda in their hands and they had given beating to him on his head and on other parts of his body. This demonstrates that besides there being inconsistencies and contradictions in the testimonies of the above mentioned prosecution witnesses, the said witnesses have also made improvements in their statements with the passage of time. The factum of PW4 having received injuries or her being beaten up by the accused is not corroborated by any material on record. Said contradictions, inconsistencies and improvements in their statements raise doubt over the reliability and trustworthiness of the testimonies of these witnesses. This is more so keeping in view the fact that PW3 happens to be the complainant and PW4 happens to be his wife. Similarly, PW11 is also the son of the complainant and as per his version, after the accused started beating the complainant he ran to his house where he narrated the said incident to his mother and grandfather and thereafter he did not come back to the spot.

24. Another important aspect of the matter is the mode and manner in which the weapon of offence, i.e. 'danda' has been recovered by the police. PW8 ASI Bakhtawar Singh has deposed that Lekh Raj alias Laddi produced the danda in presence of Hans Raj and Kishan Chand which was taken into possession vide seizure memo Ext. PW3/C. A perusal of Ext. PW3/C demonstrates that it is mentioned therein that Lekh Raj produced the weapon of offence, i.e. the danda before the police with which he had caused injuries to the complainant. As per Ext. PW3/C the danda has been handed over by the accused to the police in the presence of Hans Raj and Kishan Chand. Whereas Hans Raj has not been examined by the prosecution, Kishan Chand who entered the witness box as PW5 has not corroborated the case of the prosecution. In his deposition this witness has stated that while he was sitting in the house of accused, police brought the danda from outside. He further stated that he could not tell from where police brought the danda and he admitted it to be correct that accused Lekh Raj was not present when the danda was brought by the police nor the accused was there in the room in which PW5 was sitting. He also stated that accused did not sign any seizure memo in his presence. The testimony of PW5 in fact shatters the entire case of the prosecution with regard to the alleged recovery of the danda in the mode and manner in which the prosecution wants us to believe. This casts a serious doubt over the truthfulness of the case of the prosecution and lends support to the contention of the accused that the accused have been falsely implicated in the case because of enmity.

25. Before proceeding further it is relevant to take note of the fact that defence has examined Ram Pal alias Bheema as DW1 and Smt. Asha Rani as DW2.

26. DW1 Ram Pal has stated that complainant and accused both are residents of his village and on 20.2.2008 at about 7:30- 7:45 p.m. he was coming from his fields and when he reached near the house of the parties he saw that Rakesh Kumar running out of the house of Taro and he also saw him falling down on the street. This witness stated that he went to the house of Taro Devi and asked her as to what had happened to which Taro Devi informed that Rakesh Kumar was trying to misbehave with her daughter with an intention to outrage her modesty. This witness further deposed that he advised Taro Devi to inform the Pardhan and thereafter he left to his house. In his cross examination this witness stated that he had not disclosed this fact earlier to anyone. He also denied the fact that he was deposing falsely in favour of the accused and he self stated that both the parties were related to him.

27. Asha Rani entered the witness box as DW2 and deposed that she was Pradhan of Gram Panchayat Dharampur since 2001 and complainant and accused were residents of her village and she had seen their houses. This witness further deposed that their houses are situated near to each other separated by street. She further deposed that on 20.2.2008 she was at her home and received a telephonic call from Chanchla Devi at about 8:00 p.m. who called her to her home and stated that Rakesh Kumar had entered into their house and was abusing them and then she went to the house of Up-Pardhan so that he may accompanied her. This witness further deposed that in the meantime Chanchlo reached there barefooted without having Dupatta and told that Rakesh Kumar had grappled her. She further stated that Chanchla was nervous and they offered her water. This witness further deposed that thereafter they visited the house of Chanchla Devi along with Up-Pardhan Shankar Dass and saw that articles like pitchers etc. lying scattered in the house of Taro Devi. This witness further deposed that thereafter they went to the house of Rakesh Kumar and snubbed him as to why he had gone to the house of Taro Devi under the influence of liquor. She further stated that at the relevant time family members of Rakesh Kumar, i.e. wife, father and mother were also there. Father of the complainant stated that since Rakesh Kumar was under the influence of liquor they will talk in the next day. She further stated that in the morning none came to them. This witness further deposed that complainant was a quarrelsome person who was in the habit of taking quarrels while drunk. She also stated that Taro Devi had already got a case registered against him which was subsequently compromised by the parties and copy of the compromise was placed on record as Ext. DW2/A. She further stated that said compromise was signed by her, Up Pardhan Shankar Dass and father and brother of Rakesh Kumar. In her cross examination this witness stated that compromise had taken place in police station, Haroli. She also stated that with regard to compromise a written complaint had been made by Taro Devi to the police. She feigned her ignorance to the effect as to whether the complainant had remained admitted in hospital or not. A perusal of the cross examination of this witness demonstrates that except the general suggestion that this witness was deposing falsely there are no specific suggestion or question put to this witness to the effect that on 20.2.2008 events did not take place as she had narrated and Chanchla Devi never visited her nor thereafter she went to the house of Rakesh Kumar. Not only this, the testimony of DW2 who otherwise is an independent witness is cogent, reliable and trustworthy. In the cross examination of this witness, the prosecution could not impinge the credibility of the said witness.

28. Therefore, in our considered view whereas on the one hand on the basis of evidence produced on record by the prosecution it cannot be said beyond reasonable doubt that in fact Rakesh Kumar was beaten up with danda blows by the accused in the mode and manner as has been put forth by the prosecution, on the other hand the deposition of DW2 seems to give credence to the contention of the accused that in fact Rakesh Kumar in drunken condition had entered her house and tried to molest her daughter and had hurt himself by falling down.

29. Now we will deal with the testimony of the doctors who have examined the complainant. It is an admitted case of the parties that the alleged incident took place on 20.2.2008 and the complaint was lodged on 18.3.2008. It is also a matter of record that after the alleged incident, the complainant did not report the matter either to Panchayat etc. or to the police. Police reached CHC Haroli on the basis of telephonic information received in this regard from CHC Haroli. At CHC Haroli the complainant was examined by Dr. A. K. Sharma who entered the witness box as PW1. This witness in his testimony has stated that he after examining the complainant advised x-ray and after receipt of x-ray report which showed no evidence of fracture he referred the matter to surgical opinion to RH Una. He further deposed that injuries on the body of injured were simple in nature and these injuries were possible by danda blows. In cross examination this witness deposed that injuries were possible if a person strikes against a hard surface like pillar etc. It is also borne out from the records of the case that the CT Scan of the complainant was done by PW2-Dr. Satvir Singh, Consultant Radiologist Satluj, CT Scan and Diagnostic Centre, Nangal. Dr. Satvir Singh entered the witness box as PW2 and deposed that he had conducted the CT Scan of Rakesh Kumar on 4.3.2008 and observed an epidural haematoma in the left parietal region and there was also fracture seen on the left parietal bone. Though this witness stated that epidural haematoma has a possibility of increasing and in case it increases it can be dangerous to life but he also stated that though duration of injury could not exactly be predicted but it was a fresh injury and the injury detected was less than of one week. Keeping in view the fact that the incident had taken place on 20.2.2008 and as per PW2 the injury which was found in CT Scan conducted on 4.3.2008 was not more than one week old, this inference cannot be drawn that the injury which was detected in the CT Scan was the one which the complainant allegedly suffered on 20.2.2008.

30. Now when we come to the testimony of PW10, Dr. Indu Bhardwaj, it has come in her statement that the complainant was examined by her initially on 22.2.2008 as a referred case from CHC Haroli. This witness further stated that she had advised the complainant CT Scan but due to shortage of money he did not get the said CT Scan done immediately. This witness further deposed that thereafter Rakesh Kumar reported to her on 4.3.2008 with CT Scan which was conducted by Dr. Satvir Singh, PW2, and he (Rakesh Kumar) was admitted on the same very day, i.e. 4.3.2008. Ext. PW1/A is the MLC of the complainant on which final opinion of PW10 was dated 18.3.2008 to the effect that injury suffered by the complainant was dangerous to life. In her cross examination this witness stated that the complainant was not operated upon but he was kept on conservative treatment. She also admitted it to be correct that she did not hand over in-patient record, Ext. PW10/B, to the police. She also admitted it to be correct that injuries observed on Rakesh Kumar can be caused if a person strikes against the edges of the rectangle pillar. She also admitted it to be correct that such injuries are possible if a person falls on irregular, rough stony surface.

31. As we have already discussed above, the prosecution has not been able to prove beyond all reasonable doubt that on the fateful day the complainant was actually given danda blows by the accused. It has come in the testimony of Dr. Satvir Singh, PW2, that the injury which was found in CT Scan was not more than one week old as from the date when the CT Scan was done. CT Scan was done on 4.3.2008. Alleged incident took place on 20.2.2008. The final medical opinion given by PW10, Dr. Indu Bhardwaj is also based on the said CT Scan which was dated 4.3.2008. In our considered view, the prosecution has not been able to prove beyond all reasonable doubt that the injury which was reflected in the CT Scan was done on 4.3.2008 was in fact the same which was allegedly received by the complainant on 20.2.2008. Our conclusion is strengthened by the fact that PW2 has stated that injury discovered in CT Scan conducted on 4.3.2008 was a fresh injury and was of less than one week, whereas the alleged incident had taken place about 13 days before the CT Scan was done. Therefore, on the basis of the discussion held above, in our considered view it cannot be said that the prosecution was able to prove its case against the accused beyond all reasonable doubt.

32. We have gone through the judgment passed by the learned trial court and a perusal of the same demonstrates that the entire evidence on record produced by the prosecution has been gone into by the learned trial court and after appreciation of the same learned trial court has returned the findings of acquittal in favour of the accused. We have also independently assessed the material on record produced by the prosecution and in our considered view also, the prosecution has not been able to prove the guilt of the accused beyond all reasonable doubt.

Therefore, while concurring with the judgment passed by the learned trial court vide which the accused have been acquitted for the commission of offence punishable under Section 307 IPC, we dismiss the present appeal being devoid of merit.

United India Insurance Co. Ltd. Versus Shila Datta & Ors., 2011 AIR SCW 6541
Josphine James versus United India Insurance Co. Ltd. & Anr., 2013 AIR SCW 6633

For the appellant(s): Mr. Aman Sood, Advocate.
For the respondents: Mr.H.C. Sharma, Advocate, for the claimants.
Mr.Raman Sethi, Advocate, for the owner.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice

The awards, impugned in these appeals, passed by Motor Accident Claims Tribunal-II, Shimla, (for short, the Tribunal), are the outcome of one accident caused by driver Sanjay Sahil, while driving Pick Up bearing registration No.HP-63-1907, rashly and negligently, on 18th January, 2008, at about 12.45 p.m. Therefore, all the three appeals are clubbed and are being disposed of by this common judgment.

2. Facts of the case, in brief, are that on 18th Janaury, 2008, the deceased (Kewal Ram, Gayaru Ram and Chet Ram) were traveling in the offending vehicle and when the said vehicle reached Manan, the vehicle met with an accident, as a result of which the deceased sustained multiple injuries and later on succumbed to the same.

3. The claimants/legal representatives of deceased Kewal Ram filed Claim Petition No.13-S/2 of 2008, titled Seema Devi and others vs. Sanjay Sahil and another, (subject matter of FAO No.473 of 2011), claiming compensation to the tune of Rs.15.00 lacs, as per the break-ups given in the claim petition.

4. The claimants/legal representatives of deceased Gayaru Ram invoked the jurisdiction of the Tribunal by filing Claim Petition No.12-S/2 of 2008, titled Surti Devi and others vs. Sanjay Sahil and another, whereby compensation to the tune of Rs.12.00 lacs was claimed, (subject matter of FAO No.474 of 2011).

5. The legal representatives of deceased Chet Ram filed claim petition No.14-S/2 of 2008, titled Leela Devi and others vs. Sanjay Sahil and another, before the Tribunal claiming compensation to the tune of Rs.14.00 lacs, as per the break-ups given in the claim petition, (subject matter of FAO No.352 of 2012).

6. The Tribunal, after appreciating the pleadings of the parties and the evidence adduced, allowed all the three claim petitions vide the awards impugned in the instant appeals and the insurer was saddled with the liability.

7. In claim petition No.13-S/2 of 2008, titled Seema Devi and others vs. Sanjay Sahil and another, (subject matter of FAO No.473 of 2011), the Tribunal awarded compensation in favour of the claimants to the tune of Rs.5,87,000/-, alongwith interest at the rate of 7.5% per annum. The Tribunal, vide award impugned in FAO No.474 of 2011, has awarded compensation to the tune of Rs.2,84,600/-, with interest at the rate of 7.5% per annum. In claim petition filed by the legal representatives of deceased Chet Ram (subject matter of FAO No.352 of 2012), the Tribunal has awarded compensation for a sum of Rs.3,93,000/- with interest at the rate of 7.5% per annum, in favour of the claimants.

8. Feeling aggrieved, the insurer has questioned the impugned awards only on the ground of adequacy of compensation.

9. The question is – whether the appeals are maintainable? The answer is in the negative for the following reasons:

10. In terms of the mandate of Sections 147 and 149 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (for short "MV Act") read with the terms and conditions contained in the insurance policy, the insurer has limited grounds available, but, it can contest the claim petition on other grounds provided permission in terms of Section 170 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (for short, MV Act) has been obtained.

11. It is apt to reproduce Section 170 of the MV Act herein:

> "170. Impleading insurer in certain cases. - Where in the course of any inquiry, the claims Tribunal is satisfied that -
>
> (a) there is collusion between the person making the claim and the person against whom the claim is made, or
>
> (b) the person against whom the claim is made has failed to contest the claim,
>
> it may, for reasons to be recorded in writing, direct that the insurer who may be liable in respect of such claim, shall be impleaded as a party to the proceeding and the insurer so impleaded shall thereupon have, without prejudice to the provisions contained in sub-section (2) of section 149, the right to contest the claim on all or any of the grounds that are available to the person against whom the claim has been made."

12. The insurer can seek permission to contest the claim petition on all grounds available to it and in case permission has not been sought and granted, it is precluded from questioning the award on adequacy of compensation or any other ground, which is not otherwise available to it.

13. This question arose before the Apex Court in the case titled as United India Insurance Co. Ltd. Versus Shila Datta & Ors., reported in 2011 AIR SCW 6541, and the matter was referred to the larger Bench.

14. The question again arose before the Apex Court in the case titled as Josphine James versus United India Insurance Co. Ltd. & Anr., reported in 2013 AIR SCW 6633. It is apt to reproduce paras 8, 17 and 18 of the judgment herein:

"8. Aggrieved by the impugned judgment and award passed by the High Court in MAC Appeal no. 433/2005 and the review petition, the present appeal is filed by the appellant urging certain grounds and assailing the impugned judgment in allowing the appeal of the Insurance Company without following the law laid down by this Court in Nicolletta Rohtagi's case and instead, placing reliance upon the Bhushan Sachdeva's case. Nicolletta Rohtagi's case was exhaustively discussed by a three judge bench in the case of United India Insurance Company Vs. Shila Datta, 2011 10 SCC 509. Though the Court has expressed its reservations against the correctness of the legal position in Nicolletta Rohtagi decision on various aspects, the same has been referred to higher bench and has not been overruled as yet. Hence, the ratio of Nicolletta Rohtagi's case will be still applicable in the present case. The appellant claimed that interference by the High Court with the quantum of compensation awarded by the Tribunal in favour of appellant and considerably reducing the same by modifying the judgment of the Tribunal is vitiated in law. Therefore, the impugned judgments and awards are liable to be set aside.

9. to 16. .....

17. The said order was reviewed by the High Court at the instance of the appellant in view of the aforesaid decision on the question of maintainability of the appeal of the Insurance Company. The High Court, in the review petition, has further reduced the compensation to Rs. 4,20,000/- from Rs. 6,75,000/- which was earlier awarded by it. This approach is contrary to the facts and law laid down by this Court. The High Court, in reducing the quantum of compensation under the heading of loss of dependency of the appellant, was required to follow the decision rendered by three judge Bench of this Court in Nicolletta Rohtagi case (2002) 7 SCC 456 : AIR 2002 SC 3350 : 2002 AIR SCW 3899, and earlier decisions wherein this Court after interpreting Section 170 (b) of the M. V. Act, has rightly held that in the absence of permission obtained by the Insurance Company from the Tribunal to avail the defence of the insured, it is not permitted to contest the case on merits. The aforesaid legal principle is applicable to the fact situation in view of the three judge bench decision referred to though the correctness of the aforesaid decision is referred to larger bench. This important aspect of the matter has been overlooked by the High Court while passing the impugned judgment and the said approach is contrary to law laid down by this Court.

18. In view of the aforesaid reasons, the Insurance Company is not entitled to file appeal questioning the quantum of compensation awarded in favour of the appellant for the reasons stated supra. In the absence of the same, the Insurance Company had only limited defence to contest in the proceedings as provided under Section 149 (2) of the M.V. Act. Therefore, the impugned judgment passed by the High Court on 13.1.2012 reducing the compensation to 4,20,000/- under the heading of loss of dependency by deducting 50% from the monthly income of the deceased of Rs. 5,000/- and applying 14 multiplier, is factually and legally incorrect. The High Court has erroneously arrived at this amount by applying the principle of law laid down in Sarla Verma v. Delhi Transport Corporation, 2009 6 SCC 121 instead of applying the principle laid down in Baby Radhika Gupta's case regarding the multiplier applied to the fact situation and also contrary to the law applicable regarding the maintainability of appeal of the Insurance Company on the question of quantum of compensation in the absence of permission to be obtained by it from the Tribunal under Section 170 (b) of the M.V. Act. In view of the aforesaid reason, the High Court should not have allowed the appeal of the Insurance Company as it has got limited defence as provided under section 149(2) of the M.V. Act. Therefore, the impugned judgment and award is vitiated in law and hence, is liable to be set aside by allowing the appeal of the appellant."

15. Thus, the insurer can question the adequacy of compensation only if it has sought permission under Section 170 of the MV Act.

16. In the present cases, it has to be seen whether the insurer has sought any such permission?

17. I have gone through the records, which do disclose that neither any such application was filed by the insurer nor such permission was granted. Learned counsel appearing on behalf of the insurer frankly conceded that no such permission was sought.

18. Having said so, the only ground of attack projected and urged is not available to the insurer.

19. Viewed thus, the impugned awards are upheld and the appeals are dismissed.

20. The Registry is directed to release the awarded amount in favour of the claimants strictly as per the terms and conditions contained in the impugned awards through payee's account cheque or by depositing the same in their respective bank accounts.

Decided on : 23.09.2016.

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988- Section 163-A- Income of the deceased was Rs. 3,300/- per month- 1/3rd amount was rightly deducted towards personal expenses of the deceased- multiplier of 15 is applicable- claimant is entitled to Rs. 2200 x 12 x 15 = Rs. 3,96,000/- under the head 'loss of dependency'- interest should be awarded as per prevailing rate, therefore, rate of interest reduced from 12% to 7.5% per annum from the date of filing of the claim petition till realization- claimants are entitled to Rs. 3,96,000/- + Rs. 25,000/- + Rs. 50,000/-+ Rs. 50,000/- + Rs. 30,000/- = Rs. 5,51,000/- along with interest at the rate of 7.5% per annum from the date of filing of the claim petition. The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice (oral)

Subject matter of this appeal is the award, dated 2nd November, 2010, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribnal, Chamba, Himachal Pradesh (for short "the Tribunal") in M.A.C. Petition No. 108 of 2009, titled as Smt. Veena Devi & others versus The Milestone Gears Private Limited & others, whereby compensation to the tune of Rs. 5,77,400/- with interest @ 12% per annum from the date of filing of the claim petition till its realization with costs to the tune of Rs. 10,000/- was awarded in favour of the claimants and the insurer came to be saddled with liability (for short "the impugned award").

2. The claimant, owner-insured and driver have not questioned the impugned award, on any count. Thus, it has attained finality, so far it relates to them.

3. The insurer has questioned the impugned award on the grounds taken in the memo of the appeal.

4. The questions to be determined in this appeal are as under:--

i) Whether the Tribunal has rightly saddled the insurer with liability?

ii) Whether the amount awarded is adequate or otherwise?

5. I have gone through the impugned award. It appears that the claimants have invoked jurisdiction of the Tribunal in terms of Section 163-A of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, for short 'MV Act'.

6. As per the 2nd Schedule appended with the MV Act, the income slab provided is Rs. 40,000/- per annum.

7. The claimants have averred in the claim petition that the income of the deceased was Rs. 3300/- per month. The Tribunal has rightly made discussion in para-9 of the impugned award.

8. Having said so, the claimants have rightly filed the claim petition under Section 163-A of the MV Act.

9. It is a beaten law of the land that in terms of Section 163-A of the MV Act, compensation is to be awarded "On The Structured Formula Basis". Further, Sub-Section (2) of Section 163-A of the MV Act provides that the claimants are not required to plead or establish the wrongful act or neglect or default of the owner of the vehicle.

10. Having said so, the Tribunal has rightly determined that the claimants are the victims of the vehicular accident. Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal on Issue No. 1 are upheld.

11. The Tribunal has determined the income of the deceased at Rs. 3300/- per month and deducted 1/3rd towards the personal expenses of the deceased, but has fallen in an error in applying the multiplier of '16'.

12. The multiplier of '15' is applicable in this case, in view of the 2nd Schedule appended to the Motor Vehicles Act read with the ratio laid down by the Apex Court in Sarla Verma (Smt.) and others versus Delhi Transport Corporation and another, reported in AIR 2009 SC 3104, upheld by a larger Bench of the Apex Court in a case titled as Reshma Kumari & others versus Madan Mohan and another, reported in 2013 AIR (SCW) 3120 read with the judgment rendered by the Apex Court in case titled as Munna Lal Jain & another versus Vipin Kumar Sharma & others, reported in 2015 AIR SCW 3105.

13. Thus, the claimants are held entitled to compensation to the tune of Rs. 2200 x 12 x 15 = Rs. 3,96,000/- under the head 'loss of dependency'.

14. The compensation awarded under other heads is just and appropriate, accordingly upheld.

15. It is a beaten law of the land that the rate of interest should be awarded as per the prevailing rates, in view of the judgments rendered by the Apex Court in cases titled as United India Insurance Co. Ltd. and others versus Patricia Jean Mahajan and others, reported in (2002) 6 SCC 281; Santosh Devi versus National Insurance Company Ltd. and others, reported in 2012 AIR SCW 2892; Amrit Bhanu Shali and others versus National Insurance Company Limited and others, reported in (2012) 11 SCC 738; Smt. Savita versus Binder Singh & others, reported in 2014 AIR SCW 2053; Kalpanaraj & others versus Tamil Nadu State Transport Corpn., reported in 2014 AIR SCW 2982; Amresh Kumari versus Niranjan Lal Jagdish Pd. Jain and others, reported in (2015) 4 SCC 433; and Mohinder Kaur and others versus Hira Nand Sindhi (Ghoriwala) and another, reported in (2015) 4 SCC 434, and discussed by this Court in a batch of FAOs, FAO No. 256 of 2010, titled as Oriental Insurance Company versus Smt. Indiro and others, being the lead case, decided on 19.06.2015.

16. Having said so, I deem it proper to reduce the rate of interest from 12% per annum to 7.5% per annum from the date of filing of the claim petition till its realization.

17. Viewed thus, the claimants are entitled to total compensation to the tune of Rs. 3,96,000/- + Rs. 25,000/- + Rs. 50,000/-+ Rs. 50,000/- + Rs. 30,000/- = 5,51,000/- with interest at the rate of 7.5% per annum from the date of filing of the claim petition till its realization.

18. The appellant-insurer has failed to prove that the driver was not having a valid and effective driving licence at the time of accident. Hence, it is held that the Tribunal has rightly made discussion in para-16 of the impugned award. Thus, the insurer has to satisfy the compensation.

19. At this stage, learned Counsel for the appellant stated at the Bar that the amount awarded by the Tribunal stands released and disbursed in favour of the claimants.

20. In the given circumstances and keeping in view the aim, object and purpose of granting compensation read with the fact that it will be painful to effect recovery from the claimants, at this stage, who are victims, as it will add to their injuries. Thus, I deem it proper to direct the insurer not to effect recovery.

21. The appeal is, disposed of, accordingly.

22. Send down the record after placing copy of the judgment on Tribunal's file.

(Para-4 to 15)

Case referred:
Grindlays Bank Ltd. Vs. Central Government Industrial Tribunal, AIR 1980 (SC) 2041

For the petitioners: Mr. Dinesh Bhanot, Advocate.
For the respondent: Mr. Jeet Ram Poswal, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Ajay Mohan Goel, J.:

By way of the present revision petition, the petitioners have prayed for setting aside of order dated 16.03.2007 passed by the Court of learned District Judge, Solan, Camp Court at Nalagarh, in Review Petition No. 48-NL/6 of 2006 in Civil Appeal No. 12/NL/13 of 2005/2003 titled Harpreet Singh and another Vs. Subhash Chand.

2. Brief facts necessary for the adjudication of the present revision petition are that respondent herein filed Civil Suit No. 250/1 of 1999 for permanent prohibitory injunction for restraining the petitioners herein from raising construction over the suit property measuring 209-25 Sq. Mtrs., comprised in Khasra No. 969/429, Khewat Khatauni No. 116/126 i.e. suit property, in the Court of learned Sub Judge Ist Class, Nalagarh, District Solan, which suit was decreed in favour of the plaintiff on 07.11.2002 therein i.e. present respondent in the following terms:-

> "In view of the above, the suit of the plaintiff is decreed for permanent prohibitory injunction from restraining the defendants from interfering with the suit land or wall constructed thereon with costs. Decree sheet be prepared accordingly and the file after its due completion be consigned to record room."

3. Feeling aggrieved by the judgment and decree so passed by the Court of learned Sub Judge Ist Class, Nalagarh, District Solan, present petitioners filed an appeal in the Court of learned District Judge, Solan, i.e. Civil Appeal No. 12/NL/13 of 2005/2003.

4. Vide judgment and decree dated 16.12.2005, learned Appellate Court while dismissing the appeal, partly modified the judgment and decree passed by the Court of learned Sub Judge Ist Class, Nalagarh, District Solan, in the following terms:-

> "10. Therefore, for the reasons enumerated above, the findings of the learned trial court are sustainable in law and on facts, but the judgment and decree require to be modified to the extent of incorporating the area of the suit land which hitherto is missing from it which is 173.99 square metres.
>
> Final Order:
>
> 11. In view of my above discussion and conclusions, the appeal is dismissed and the judgment and decree of the trial court are affirmed with modification that the suit of the respondent/plaintiff is decreed and the appellants/defendants are restrained from causing any interference in the suit land measuring 173.99 square metres comprised in Khasra No. 969/429, Khewat Khatauni No. 116/126 situated in the area of Nalagarh town. Parties are left to bear their own costs. Decree be drawn accordingly. The record of the trial court be sent back with a copy of this judgment. File be consigned to records after due completion."

5. Being dissatisfied with the judgment and decree so passed by learned Appellate Court, present petitioners filed a Regular Second Appeal in this Court i.e. RSA No. 102 of 2006, which was dismissed on 22.03.2006 in following terms:

> "The grievance of the appellant in this case is that though the learned first Appellate has modified the decree of the learned trial court, whereby he found the plaintiff to the owner in possession to the extent of 173.99 square metres comprised in Khasra No. 969/429, Khewat Khatauni No. 116/126 situate in the area of Nalagarh town. However, the learned first Appellate Court has not specified, that which part of Khasra No. 969/429 comprises 173.99 square metres is in the ownership and possession of the plaintiff.
>
> The remedy available with the appellants-defendants to file a review application before the learned first Appellate Court and not by way of this second appeal. This second appeal is mislaid and is dismissed.
>
> It is directed that if a review application is filed by the appellants, the first Appellate Court shall decide the same expeditiously within a period of fours weeks of filing of such review application and specify the area which is in possession of the plaintiff and defendants respectively in Khasra No. 969/429 Khewat Khatauni No. 116/126 measures 173.99 square metres. The appeal is disposed of in the terms indicated above."

6. Accordingly, petitioners filed a review petition before the Court of learned District Judge, Solan and prayed for the following relief in the review petition:-

> "It is, therefore, prayed that the impugned Judgment & Decree dated 07.11.2002, passed by the Ld. Trial Court in C. Suit No. 250/1 of 1999, may kindly be reversed and set aside and the suit of the respondent/plaintiff may kindly be dismissed with costs, by way of accepting this review petition in favour of the petitioners/ appellants/defendants and against the respondent/plaintiff with costs, after restoring the original appellate file and after requisition of the case of the Ld. Trial Court, in the interest of justice.

7. Learned Appellate Court vide order dated 16.03.2007 dismissed the review petition so filed by the present petitioners by holding that the grounds which were taken by the petitioners for review were in fact grounds challenging the judgment and decree passed by learned trial Court on merit and no ground in fact was taken in the review petition for reviewing of judgment and decree passed by learned Appellate Court. It was held by learned Appellate Court that there was no mention in the review petition that the judgment and decree passed by learned Appellate Court was suffering from any error apparent on the face of record and review was necessitated on account of discovery of new facts, on point of law as well as point of facts, subsequent amendment of law or judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court or on account of erroneous decision. Learned Appellate Court further held that whatsoever was stated in the grounds of review petition were averments against the judgment and decree passed by learned trial Court and not averments as to in what manner the judgment and decree passed by learned Appellate Court was wrong. Learned Appellate Court further held that the decree in favour of the plaintiff had been passed on the basis of the plaintiff having purchased 173.99 Sq. Mtrs. of land comprised in Khasra No. 969/429 which as per sale deed executed had earlier been represented by Khasra No. 311/131 Khata Khatauni No. 1 min/1 and accordingly, it was held by learned Appellate Court that even otherwise the judgment and decree passed by learned Appellate Court did not suffer from any of the defects on which review was maintainable. Accordingly, the review petition was dismissed.

8. Feeling aggrieved by the rejection of the said review petition by learned Appellate Court, petitioners challenged the same by way of present revision petition under Section 115 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

9. Mr. Dinesh Bhanot, learned counsel appearing for the petitioners, has argued that order passed by learned Appellate Court dated 16.03.2007, vide which, review petition of the present petitioners was dismissed, is erroneous and not sustainable in the eyes of law as while dismissing the review petition filed by the present petitioners, learned Appellate Court lost site of the directions issued by this Court in RSA No. 102 of 2006 vide order dated 22.03.2006. Mr. Bhanot argued that it was incumbent upon learned Appellate Court to have had specified the area which was in possession of the plaintiff and defendants respectively in Khasra No. 969/429, Khewat Khatauni No. 116/126 measuring 173.99 Sq. Mtrs. According to Mr. Bhanot, by not doing so, learned Appellate Court had misdirected itself and on this account alone, the order impugned was liable to be set aside. No other point was urged.

10. On the other hand, Mr. Jeet Ram Poswal, learned counsel for the respondent, argued that there was no merit in the contention of learned counsel for the petitioners in view of the fact that learned Appellate Court had rightly dismissed the review petition so filed by the petitioners because besides their being no merit in the same even otherwise the grounds on which the review petition was filed were not available to the petitioners to file and maintain a review petition under Section 114 of the Code of Civil Procedure. According to Mr. Poswal, learned Appellate Court rightly held that there was no mention in the entire review petition as to what was the error apparent with the judgment and decree passed by learned Appellate Court. On this ground, it was urged by Mr. Poswal that there was no merit in the present petition and the same be dismissed.

11. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and have also perused the records of the case as well as the order passed by learned Appellate Court.

12. A perusal of the grounds of the review petition filed by the present petitioners after the dismissal of their regular second appeal reveals that in the said review petition, petitioners challenged the judgment and decree passed by learned trial Court dated 07.11.2002 passed in Civil Suit No. 250/1 of 1999, which in fact had attained finality by subsequent adjudication upon the same by learned Appellate Court as well as by this Court in a Regular Second Appeal. Not only this, there was not even a whisper in the said review petition as to what was error apparent on the face of record as far as the judgment and decree passed by learned Appellate Court was concerned, nor was there any averment or prayer in the same for specifying the area which was in possession of the plaintiff and defendants respectively in Khasra No. 969/429, Khewat Khatauni No. 116/126 measuring 173.99 Sq. Mtrs.

13. In this view of the matter, in my considered view, the review petition so filed by the petitioners was rightly dismissed by learned Appellate Court by holding that besides challenging the judgment and decree passed by learned trial Court there were no averments made in the review petition as to on what grounds the review of the judgment and decree passed by learned Appellate Court in Civil Appeal No. 12/NL/ 13 of 2005/2003 dated 16.12.2005, was being called for by the petitioners. The findings returned by learned Appellate Court while dismissing the review petition to the effect that in the review petition none of the grounds contemplated in Section 114 of the Code of Civil Procedure were made out, can also not be faulted it. The findings so returned by learned Appellate Court are borne out from the averments which were made in the review petition.

14. Even otherwise, it is settled law that the principle enunciated in Section 114 of the Civil Procedure Code read with Order 47 speaks of error apparent on the face of record. In Grindlays Bank Ltd. Vs. Central Government Industrial Tribunal, AIR 1980 (SC) 2041, it was held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court that review cannot be made in a routine procedure unless the Court is satisfied that manifest error, apparent on the face of it, results in miscarriage of justice or results in undermining the soundness of that judgment. Thus, the scope of review is very limited when there is error apparent on the face of record.

15. Therefore, in my considered view, there is no infirmity with the order passed by learned Appellate Court in dismissing the review petition so filed by the petitioners and the order under challenge does not suffer from any jurisdictional error nor it can be said that learned Appellate Court either did not exercise jurisdiction vested in it or exercised jurisdiction vested in it with material irregularity.

16. Therefore, as there is no merit in the present petition, the same is dismissed with costs. Pending miscellaneous application(s), if any, also stand disposed of.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Sanjay Karol, J.

In this appeal filed under Section 374 Cr.P.C., convict Hem Raj has assailed judgment dated 10.02.2016, passed by Special Judge, Hamirpur, H.P., in Sessions Trial No.21 of 2014, titled as State of H.P. Versus Hem Raj, whereby he stands convicted for having committed offences punishable under the provisions of Section 4 of Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012 (hereinafter referred to as the POCSO Act) and Section 506 Part-II of the Indian Penal Code and sentenced to serve rigorous imprisonment for a period of seven years and to pay fine of Rs.20,000/- and in default thereof, further to undergo simple imprisonment for a period of one year for commission of offence punishable under the provisions of Section 4 of the POCSO Act. Also he was sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of one year for the commission of offence punishable under the provisions of Section 506 Part-II of the Indian Penal Code and to pay fine of Rs.5000/- and in default thereof, further to undergo one month simple imprisonment.

2. It is the case of prosecution that prosecutrix aged approximately ten years was subjected to sexual assault by the accused. Such act was committed by extending threats and with criminal intimidation. Last of such acts was committed on 22.06.2014 and the matter reported to the police on 13.07.2014, when FIR No.104/2014 (Ex.PW.20/A) came to be registered. With the completion of investigation, which prima facie revealed complicity of the accused in the alleged crime, Challan was presented in the Court for trial.

3. The accused was charged for having committed offences punishable under the provisions of Section 4 of POCSO Act and Sections 376(2)(i) and 506(2) of the Indian Penal Code, to which he did not plead guilty and claimed trial.

4. In order to establish its case, in all, prosecution examined as many as twenty two witnesses and statement of the accused under Section 313 of the Code of Criminal Procedure was also recorded, in which he took the plea of innocence and false implication. No evidence in defence was led.

5. Appreciating the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses, Trial Court convicted the accused of having committed offences punishable under the provisions of Section 4 of the POCSO Act and Section 506 Part-II of IPC and sentenced as aforesaid. Hence the present appeal by the convict.

6. Challenge is laid to the judgment passed by the trial Court, on the grounds that (a) testimony of the prosecutrix and her mother cannot be said to be inspiring in confidence or the witnesses reliable and trustworthy; (b) there is inordinate delay in lodging the FIR and also on this aspect, there is material contradiction with regard to the date of narration of the incident.

7. Having heard learned counsel for the parties as also perused the record, one finds that trial Court has clearly appreciated the material on record in its entirety and in consonance with the settled principles of law. There is neither any illegality nor any perversity therein, warranting interference by this Court. Also reasons assigned are based on clear, cogent, consistent and reliable piece of evidence.

8. Record reveals that with the registration of FIR dated 13.07.2014, prosecutrix was got medically examined from Dr.Sunita Galoda (PW.16), who issued MLC (Ex.PW.16/A). Clearly the doctor was of the opinion that prosecutrix was subjected to sexual assault. But by whom? That is the question for determination.

9. That prosecutrix was born on 02.08.2004, stands established through Birth Certificate (Ex.PW.18/B), issued under the Registration of Births and Deaths Act, 1969 as also Rules framed thereunder. Significantly, all throughout, age of the prosecutrix is disclosed to be ten years. Such fact also stands corroborated by the prosecutrix, her mother Promila Devi (PW.2) and HC Hem Raj (PW.18).

10. That prosecutrix was studying in Class 6th in Government Senior Secondary School, Mundkhar, District Hamirpur, stands established through the testimony of Hem Raj (PW.8).

11. One finds that statement of the prosecutrix, under Section 164 Cr.P.C. (Ex.PW.22/D), came to be recorded before the Judicial Magistrate, 1st Class, Court No.II, Hamirpur, wherein she disclosed that she would leave her house for school in the vehicle of Hem Raj, who before the school hours would take her alone in the vehicle towards Nehlvi side and after committing sexual assault drop her back to the school. On her crying, accused would gag her mouth. She was threatened and intimidated not to disclose the incident to anyone, lest she and her parents be killed with Darat. Lastly it was so done on 20th/21st June. Noticing red and white stains on her clothes, her mother made inquiries but on account of threats, initially she did not disclose the incident.

12. When examined in Court, one finds such version to have been clearly deposed. She is clear that she would travel to her school in a jeep driven by the accused, who would sexually assault her inside the vehicle. At that time she would be alone. Accused would drag her inside the vehicle and gag her mouth. Also she was threatened and intimidated not to disclose the incident either to her parents or the police, lest she and her parents would be killed with darat. Last of such act was done on 20/21.06.2014. Finding her clothes to be stained with red and white stains, on 22.06.2014, her mother made queries when out of fear she did not disclose the incident. However, on 07.07.2014, when her mother, with affection, inquired again, she divulged everything. Thereafter, matter came to be reported on 13.07.2014. Prior thereto, her mother repeatedly made inquiries for ascertaining as to whether she was telling the truth or not.

13. This witness has totally withstood the test of cross-examination. It cannot be said that her credit stands impeached. It is not a case of an isolated incident. Repeatedly, she was subjected to sexual assault over a period of time. Out of fear, she did not divulge the incident to anyone, till her mother affectionately made inquires, finding her clothes to be stained.

14. Her version stands materially corroborated by her mother Smt. Promila Devi (PW.2), who is also categorical that probably on 22.06.2014, while she was bathing the prosecutrix, she noticed tenderness and swelling on the private part and blood stains on the salwar worn by the prosecutrix. By taking her daughter into confidence, affectionately she inquired reasons thereof, and only on 07.07.2014, prosecutrix disclosed that accused used to take her towards village Nehli and sexually assault her. Prosecutrix also disclosed that accused had threatened to kill her and her parents with a Darat. When confronted accused denied having committed such an act. The incident also came to be narrated to the Pradhan, who advised to remain silent, as any disclosure of such fact would have brought insult to the family. On 12.07.2014, when her husband returned from Rampur, matter came to be reported to the police with the recording of her statement (Ex.PW.2/A). One finds that even her version is clear on the issue of sexual assault.

15. Pradhan Smt.Veena Devi (PW.4), corroborates version of the prosecutrix and her mother. Even she had made inquiries from accused Hem Raj, who denied the allegations. She is categorical that mother of the victim had informed her that she would verify the allegations and take action on the return of her husband.

16. Kamlesh Kumar (PW.3), father of the prosecutrix, simply states that on his return from Rampur to his village on 12.07.2014, his wife informed him that prosecutrix had been subjected to sexual assault by the accused on 20/21.06.2014.

17. Now significantly, in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., accused admits to have been called by Veena Devi, in connection with the allegations in issue when he had expressed his innocence and false implication.

18. At this juncture, it would be relevant to deal with the defence taken by the accused in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., which reads as under:-

> "In the month of January 2014 marriage of daughter of PW.2 Promila Devi named Santosh Kumari was fixed and PW.2 being my co-villager had demanded money from me i.e. Rs.50,000/- on credit basis. I and my father refused to advance loan to PW.2 Promila Devi and her husband PW.3 Kamlesh Kumar. On our refusal PW.2 and PW.3 got annoyed with us and the result is that I have been roped in a false case. PW.3 Kamlesh Kumar had threatened me to get my jeep impounded as I had not advanced loan to them. As a matter of fact the case has been lodged against me at the instance of one Budhi Singh and Mehar Singh, residents of our village. My father had purchased a piece of land from Harnam Singh for constructing a temple of Baba Bharbhag Singh. With the purchase of land and construction of temple, passage of tractor to their fields was blocked. Therefore, they got annoyed with us and father-in-law of PW.2 Promila Devi works in the fields of Budhi Singh and at the instance of Budhi Singh I have been implicated in this false case. Budhi Singh etc. had ganged against me."

19. Significantly the said defence cannot be said to have been probablized at all either through the testimony of prosecution witnesses or by examining any defence witness.

20. From the testimony of prosecutrix (PW.1) and Promila Devi (PW.2), unrebuttedly, and yes, it has come on record that prosecutrix was a student of 6th Class in Government Senior Secondary School, Mundkhar, Hamirpur. She used to travel to the school in a vehicle owned by accused Hem Raj. When one peruses the testimony of the prosecution witnesses, on the issue of sexual assault, one does not find any contradiction at all. On the question of sexual assault, threats and intimidation, version is clear and consistent.

21. Perusal of testimony of Promila Devi (PW.2) does reveal certain improvements to have been made in Court and that being with regard to her noticing tenderness on the private part of the prosecutrix and the Pradhan having advised the parties to remain silent, till things clear out. But then such fact in itself, in no manner, renders the genesis of the prosecution story to be doubtful. After all, medically prosecutrix was found to have been subjected to sexual assault and the Pradhan having been told by this witness that she would verify the allegations and take action on the return of her husband. Also accused admits to have been called by the Pradhan and inquiries made.

22. One cannot forget the fact that accused is a close relative of the prosecutrix.

23. The only noticeable and as argued, relevant contradiction is of the disclosure of exact date of the incident by the prosecutrix to her mother; by her mother to her father; and by her mother to the Pradhan.

24. Prosecutrix states that despite the fact that her mother made inquiries from her on 22.06.2014, she disclosed the incident only on 07.07.2014, whereas, according to Pradhan Veena Devi (PW.4), mother had told her that victim had narrated the incident to her on 20.06.2014. Further according to the mother, she disclosed the incident to her husband only on his return to the village on 12.07.2014, whereas, according to the husband, his wife had already disclosed the incident on 22.06.2014. Based on these contradictions, it is argued that there is inordinate delay in lodging the FIR, which came to be so done only on 13.07.2014.

25. Can it be said that the contradictions are material or the delay fatal? In the given facts and circumstances, no. Court is dealing with the witnesses, who hail from rural areas. Father of the prosecutrix is a small businessman doing business at a far-off place. Mother is a rustic villager. There is none else in the house except for one elder daughter. The accused is none else, but her close relative. The incident which the husband is talking about is not clearly that of sexual assault. After all, on 22.06.2014 itself, mother had found clothes of the prosecutrix to be stained with blood. Also statements of the witnesses came to be recorded in Court not immediately but after a period of 7/8 months. As such, some leeway is required to be given to the witnesses in not remembering the exact dates. This contradiction alone has not impeached the credit of the witnesses who with regard to the actual occurrence of the incident, are clear and consistent and their deposition reliable and trustworthy. Delay in lodging the FIR, in the given facts and circumstances, considering the nature of offence, cannot be said to be fatal. Uncontrovertedly, it has come on record that father of the prosecutrix returned only on 12.07.2014 and promptly, matter came to be reported to the police.

26. The Apex Court in Satpal Singh Versus State of Haryana, (2010) 8 SCC 714, held as under:-

> 14. In a rape case the prosecutrix remains worried about her future. She remains in traumatic state of mind. The family of the victim generally shows reluctance to go to the police station because of society's attitude towards such a woman. It casts doubts and shame upon her rather than comfort and sympathise with her. Family remains concern about its honour and reputation of the prosecutrix. After only having a cool thought is it possible for the family to lodge a complaint in sexual offences. Vide (Karnel Singh Vs. Stale of MP., 1995 AIR(SC) 2472; and {State of Punjab Vs. Gurmeet Singh & Ors., 1996 AIR(SC) 1393.

15. This Court has consistently highlighted the reasons, objects and means of prompt lodging of FIR. Delay in lodging FIR more often than not, results in embellishment and exaggeration, which is a creature of an afterthought. A delayed report not only gets bereft of the advantage of spontaneity, the danger of the introduction of a coloured version, an exaggerated account of the incident or a concocted story as a result of deliberations and consultations, also creeps in, casting a serious doubt on its veracity. Thus, FIR is to be filed more promptly and if there is any delay, the prosecution must furnish a satisfactory explanation for the same for the reason that in case the substratum of the evidence given by the complainant/informant is found to be unreliable, the prosecution case has to be rejected in its entirety. [Vide (State of Andhra Pradesh Vs. M. Madhusudhan Rao, (2008) 15 SCC 582].

16. However, no straight jacket formula can be laid down in this regard. In case of sexual offences, the criteria may be different altogether. As honour of the family is involved, its members have to decide whether to take the matter to the Court or not. In such a fact-situation, near relations of the prosecutrix may take time as to what course of action should be adopted. Thus, delay is bound to occur. This Court has always taken judicial notice of the fact that:

> "Ordinarily the family of the victim would not intend to get a stigma attached to the victim. Delay in lodging the First Information Report in a case of this nature is a normal phenomenon"".

[vide (Satyapal Vs. State of Haryana, 2009 AIR (SC) 2190].

17. In State of H.P. v. Prem Singh, (2009) 1 SCC 420, this Court considered the issue at length and observed as under: (SCC p. 421, para 6)

> "6. So far as the delay in lodging the FIR is concerned, the delay in a case of sexual assault, cannot be equated with the case involving other offences. There are several factors which weigh in the mind of the prosecutrix and her family members before coming to the police station to lodge a complaint. In a tradition-bound society prevalent in India, more particularly rural areas, it would be quite unsafe to throw out the prosecution case merely on the ground that there is some delay in lodging the FIR."

18. Thus, in view of the above, the delay in lodging the FIR in sexual offences has to be considered with a different yardstick. If the instant case is examined in the light of the aforesaid settled legal proposition, we are of the considered opinion that the delay in lodging the FIR has been satisfactorily explained."

27. Further the Apex Court in State of Uttar Pradesh Versus Manoj Kumar Pandey, (2009) 1 SCC 72, has held that:-

> "3.....Apart from that normal rule regarding the duty of the prosecution to explain the delay in lodging FIR and the lack of prejudice and/or prejudice caused because of such delayed lodging of FIR does not per se apply to cases of rape."

28. In State of Rajasthan Versus Roshan Khan and others, (2014) 2 SCC 476, Court has observed that complainant would not come forward to lodge a false report pertaining to the character and chastity of his daughter. As such, prosecution story on the ground of delay per se cannot be said to be false.

29. Testimonies of prosecution witnesses, more so that of minor cannot be said to be unbelievable. Witnesses are trustworthy, and in the opinion of the Court, have deposed truthfully. Safely it can be held that prosecution has discharged the initial burden of establishing its case and the statutory burden, so required by the accused under Section 30 of the POCSO Act. Ocular evidence stands materially corroborated by other evidence on record.

30. The ocular version as also documentary evidence clearly establishes complicity of the convict in the alleged crime. The testimonies of prosecution witnesses are totally reliable and their depositions believable. There are no major contradictions rendering their version to be unbelievable.

31. From the material placed on record, it stands clearly established by the prosecution witnesses, beyond reasonable doubt, that the convict is guilty of having committed the offences charged for. There is sufficient, clear, convincing, cogent and reliable piece of evidence on record to this effect. The guilt of the convict stands proved beyond reasonable doubt to the hilt. It cannot be said that convict is innocent or not guilty or that he has been falsely implicated or that his defence is probable or that the evidence led by the prosecution is inconsistent, unreliable, untrustworthy and unbelievable. It cannot be said that the version narrated by the witnesses in Court is in a parrot-like manner and hence is to be disbelieved.

32. Thus, from the material placed on record, it stands established by the prosecution, beyond reasonable doubt, by leading clear, cogent, convincing and reliable piece of evidence, that convict committed penetrative sexual assault on the child/prosecutrix and criminally intimidated her to do away with her life.

33. For all the aforesaid reasons, I find no reason to interfere with the judgment passed by the trial Court. The Court has fully appreciated the evidence placed on record by the parties. There is no illegality, irregularity, perversity in correct and complete appreciation of the material so placed on record by the parties. Findings cannot be said to be erroneous in any manner. Hence, the appeal is dismissed.

Records of the Court below be immediately sent back.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice. (Oral)

Subject matter of this appeal is award, dated 30th September, 2010, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal (I), Mandi (for short "the Tribunal") in Claim Petition No. 15 of 2009, titled as Geeta Devi and others versus Meera Devi and others, whereby compensation to the tune of ₹ 7,93,000/- with interest @ 9% per annum from the date of petition till its realization came to be awarded in favour of the claimants and against the insurer (for short "the impugned award").

2. The claimants and the legal representatives of owner/insured-cum-driver of the offending vehicle have not questioned the impugned award, thus, has attained finality so far it relates to them.

3. The insurer has questioned the impugned award on the grounds taken in the memo of appeal.

4. The claimants had invoked the jurisdiction of the Tribunal in terms of the mandate of Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (for short "MV Act") for grant of compensation, as per the break-ups given in the claim petition, was resisted by the respondents in the claim petition on the grounds taken in the respective memo of objections.

5. Following issues came to be framed by the Tribunal on 22nd May, 2009:

"1. Whether on 31.10.2008 at 9.00 P.M. near Shana Pangna the driver was driving the bus No. HP-65-7530 rashly and negligently and caused death of Sh. Harish Kumar? OPP

2. If issue No. 1 is proved, to what amount of compensation the petitioners are entitled to and from whom? OPP

3. Whether the driver of bus No. HP-65-7530 was not holding a valid and effective driving licence to drive the bus at the time of accident? OPR

4. Whether the accident has been caused due to rash and negligent driving of the driver of bus No. HP-65-7530 and Pick up Van as alleged? OPR

5. Relief."

6. The claimants have examined three witnesses and one of the claimants herself appeared in the witness box. One of the legal representatives of owner/insured-cum-driver has appeared in the witness box. The insurer has not led any evidence.

Issues No. 1 and 4:

7. There is no dispute viz-a-vis issues No. 1 and 4. Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issues No. 1 and 4 are upheld.

8. Before dealing with issue No. 2, I deem it proper to determine issue No. 3.

Issue No. 3:

9. Learned proxy counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant-insurer argued that the driver of the offending vehicle was not having a valid and effective driving licence to drive the same.

10. It was for the insurer to prove issue No. 3 by leading evidence, has not led any evidence, thus, has failed to discharge the onus. However, I have gone through the findings recorded by the Tribunal in para 22 of the impugned award. The Tribunal has rightly recorded the said findings and decided the issue against the insurer. Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issue no. 3 are upheld.

Issue No. 2:

11. The insurer cannot question the adequacy of compensation. In terms of the mandate of Sections 147 and 149 of the MV Act read with the terms and conditions contained in the insurance policy, the insurer has limited grounds available, but, it can contest the claim petition on other grounds provided permission in terms of Section 170 of the MV Act has been obtained.

12. The insurer can seek permission to contest the claim petition on all grounds available to it and in case permission has not been sought and granted, it is precluded from questioning the award on adequacy of compensation or any other ground, which is not otherwise available to it.

13. This question arose before the Apex Court in the case titled as United India Insurance co. Ltd. Versus Shila Datta & Ors., reported in 2011 AIR SCW 6541, and the matter was referred to the larger Bench.

14. The question again arose before the Apex Court in the case titled as Josphine James versus United India Insurance Co. Ltd. & Anr., reported in 2013 AIR SCW 6633. It is apt to reproduce paras 8, 17 and 18 of the judgment herein:

> "8. Aggrieved by the impugned judgment and award passed by the High Court in MAC Appeal no. 433/2005 and the review petition, the present appeal is filed by the appellant urging certain grounds and assailing the impugned judgment in allowing the appeal of the Insurance Company without following the law laid down by this Court in Nicolletta Rohtagi's case and instead, placing reliance upon the Bhushan Sachdeva's case. Nicolletta Rohtagi's case was exhaustively discussed by a three judge bench in the case of United India Insurance Company Vs. Shila Datta, 2011 10 SCC 509. Though the Court has expressed its reservations against the correctness of the legal position in Nicolletta Rohtagi decision on various aspects, the same has been referred to higher bench and has not been overruled as yet. Hence, the ratio of Nicolletta Rohtagi's case will be still applicable in the present case. The appellant claimed that interference by the High Court with the quantum of compensation awarded by the Tribunal in favour of appellant and considerably reducing the same by modifying the judgment of the Tribunal is vitiated in law. Therefore, the impugned judgments and awards are liable to be set aside.
> 17. The said order was reviewed by the High Court at the instance of the appellant in view of the aforesaid decision on the question of maintainability of the appeal of the Insurance Company. The High Court, in the review petition, has further reduced the compensation to Rs. 4,20,000/- from Rs. 6,75,000/- which was earlier awarded by it. This approach is contrary to the facts and law laid down by this Court. The High Court, in reducing the quantum of compensation under the heading of loss of dependency of the appellant, was required to follow the decision rendered by three judge Bench of this Court in Nicolletta Rohtagi case (2002) 7 SCC 456 : AIR 2002 SC 3350 : 2002 AIR SCW 3899, and earlier decisions wherein this Court after interpreting Section 170 (b) of the M. V. Act, has rightly held that in the absence of permission obtained by the Insurance Company from the Tribunal to avail the defence of the insured, it is not permitted to contest the case on merits. The aforesaid legal principle is applicable to the fact situation in view of the three judge bench decision referred to though the correctness of the aforesaid decision is referred to larger bench. This important aspect of the matter has been overlooked by the High Court while passing the impugned judgment and the said approach is contrary to law laid down by this Court.

18. In view of the aforesaid reasons, the Insurance Company is not entitled to file appeal questioning the quantum of compensation awarded in favour of the appellant for the reasons stated supra. In the absence of the same, the Insurance Company had only limited defence to contest in the proceedings as provided under Section 149 (2) of the M.V. Act. Therefore, the impugned judgment passed by the High Court on 13.1.2012 reducing the compensation to 4,20,000/- under the heading of loss of dependency by deducting 50% from the monthly income of the deceased of Rs. 5,000/- and applying 14 multiplier, is factually and legally incorrect. The High Court has erroneously arrived at this amount by applying the principle of law laid down in Sarla Verma v. Delhi Transport Corporation, 2009 6 SCC 121 instead of applying the principle laid down in Baby Radhika Gupta's case regarding the multiplier applied to the fact situation and also contrary to the law applicable regarding the maintainability of appeal of the Insurance Company on the question of quantum of compensation in the absence of permission to be obtained by it from the Tribunal under Section 170 (b) of the M.V. Act. In view of the aforesaid reason, the High Court should not have allowed the appeal of the Insurance Company as it has got limited defence as provided under section 149(2) of the M.V. Act. Therefore, the impugned judgment and award is vitiated in law and hence, is liable to be set aside by allowing the appeal of the appellant."

15. Thus, the insurer can question the adequacy of compensation only if it has sought permission under Section 170 of the MV Act.

16. In the present case, the application filed by the insurer under Section 170 of the MV Act was dismissed by the Tribunal vide order, dated 22nd May, 2009. Thus, the insurer is precluded from questioning the adequacy of compensation. Accordingly, the findings recorded by the Tribunal on issue No. 2 are upheld.

17. The only ground available to the insurer for questioning the impugned award was breach of the terms and conditions of the insurance policy, has not led any evidence, thus, has failed to do so.

18. However, the Tribunal has fallen in an error in awarding interest at the rate of 9% per annum, which was to be awarded as per the prevailing rates.

19. It is beaten law of the land that the rate of interest should be awarded as per the prevailing rates, in view of the judgments rendered by the Apex Court in cases titled as United India Insurance Co. Ltd. and others versus Patricia Jean Mahajan and others, reported in (2002) 6 SCC 281; Santosh Devi versus National Insurance Company Ltd. and others, reported in 2012 AIR SCW 2892; Amrit Bhanu Shali and others versus National Insurance Company Limited and others, reported in (2012) 11 SCC 738; Smt. Savita versus Binder Singh & others, reported in 2014 AIR SCW 2053; Kalpanaraj & others versus Tamil Nadu State Transport Corpn., reported in 2014 AIR SCW 2982; Amresh Kumari versus Niranjan Lal Jagdish Pd. Jain and others, reported in (2015) 4 SCC 433; and Mohinder Kaur and others versus Hira Nand Sindhi (Ghoriwala) and another, reported in (2015) 4 SCC 434, and discussed by this Court in a batch of FAOs, FAO No. 256 of 2010, titled as Oriental Insurance Company versus Smt. Gurudwara Sahib Vs. Gram Panchayat Village Sirthala, (2014) 1 SCC 669

For the appellant	Mr. Ankush Dass Sood, Senior Advocate with Ms. Shweta Joolka, Advocate.
For the respondents:	Mr. P.P. Chauhan, Advocate for respondents No. 1(a) to 1(e). Mr. Virender Verma, Addl. A.G for the respondent-State.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Dharam Chand Chaudhary, J.

Defendant Ishwar Dass is in second appeal before this Court, as learned lower appellate Court on reversal of judgment and decree dated 30th June, 2001, passed in Case No.09-01 of 1999-2001, has decreed the suit vide impugned judgment and decree dated 31st July, 2002 and held the Neem Dassi (since dead), the predecessor-in-interest of the respondents (hereinafter referred to as the plaintiffs) owner in possession of the suit land. As a consequence thereof, the defendant has also been restrained from causing any interference in the suit land.

2. It is seen that the subject matter of dispute is a parcel of land measuring 31-3 bighas entered in Khata Khatauni No.170/201, Kita 4, situate in revenue estate Phati Tawar, Kothi Kandi, Tehsil Nirmand, District Kullu. One Shri Luder Ram, husband of deceased plaintiff Neem Dassi, was owner of the suit land. She inherited the suit land on his death. On finding that the entries in revenue record qua possession of the suit land are in the name of her brother Rukam Ram (since dead). She made an application to Land Reforms Officer exercising the powers of Assistant Collector 1st Grade, Nirmand, registered as case No.2/98 with a prayer that the entries showing Rukam Ram as owner in possession of the suit land are wrong and that the same may be ordered to be corrected. The application was partly allowed vide order dated 6th May, 1998, Ext.PW-1/B, directing thereby the revenue staff to enter the suit land to the extent of 2/3rd in the name of said Neem Dassi and 1/3rd in that of defendant Ishwar Dass with further observations that since Shri Rukam Ram was never in possession of the suit land, therefore, Neem Dassi aforesaid may file a suit in a civil Court having jurisdiction over the matter to challenge the entries showing him in possession of the suit land to the extent of 1/3rd share also. This seems to have led in filing the present suit in the trial Court by the deceased plaintiff Smt. Neem Dassi with the following prayer:

> "That the plaintiff is in possession and cultivation of the land as comprised in Khata/Khatauni No.170/201 Kitas 4 measuring 31-8-0 bighas situate in Phati Tawar, Kothi Kandi, Tehsil Nirmand, District Kullu, HP with all right, title and interest and the entries in the revenue records (in column of possession in Jamabandi) showing the defendant in possession of 1/3rd share in the suit land are wrong, illegal and inoperative in law with consequential relief of perpetual injunction restraining the defendant from interfering with the peaceful possession and cultivations of the plaintiff (owner) over the suit land."

on the ground that late Shri Rukam Ram was never in possession of the suit land or any portion thereof and rather it is she who throughout remained in possession thereof openly, continuously and to the knowledge and notice of the defendant as well as other legal heirs of deceased Rukam Ram. They never objected to her possession over the suit land. On coming to know about wrong entries qua possession of the suit land in revenue record in the month of January, 1998, she made an application before the Assistant Collector 1st Grade, Nirmand with a prayer to order correction thereof. The defendant, according to the plaintiff, has no right, title or interest in the suit land.

3. The defendant in the written statement raised the preliminary objections qua maintainability of the suit, jurisdiction of the trial Court and also that in view of the protection of the provisions contained under HP Tenancy and Land Reforms Act, 1972, he can not be ejected from the suit land. The suit has also been sought to be dismissed on the ground that no cause of action exists in favour of the plaintiff and bad for want of proper valuation for the purposes of court fee and jurisdiction.

4. On merits, while submitting that the land was inherited by the plaintiff from her previous husband Luder Ram (now re-married to one Chet Ram), however, his father Rukam Ram remained cultivating the same throughout continuously and peacefully. It is for this reason the suit land was entered in his possession in the revenue record. The entries in the Jamabandi for the year 1993-94 have, therefore, been said to be correct, whereas, the order passed by Assistant Collector 1st Grade, Nirmand illegal, arbitrary, hence void ab initio. It is the defendant who allegedly is in possession of the suit land after the death of his father Rukam Ram. The plaintiff now started causing interference therein with the sole object to eject him forcibly from the suit land.

5. On such pleadings of the parties, learned trial Court has framed following issues:

1. Whether the plaintiff is entitled for the relief of declaration? OPP.

2. Whether the plaintiff is entitled to the relief of injunction? OPP.
3. Whether the suit is bad for non-joinder and mis-joinder of necessary parties? OPD.
4. Whether the plaintiff has no cause of action tot file the present suit? OPD.
5. Whether the suit is not properly valued for the court fees and jurisdiction, as alleged? OPD.
6. Whether the defendant has become owner by virtue of Section 104 of HP Land Reforms Act? OPD.
7. Relief.

6. The parties after having undergone the trial, learned trial Court on appreciation of the evidence available on record has held the defendant in possession of the suit land and having acquired title therein by virtue of the provisions contained under the HP Tenancy and Land Reforms Act and also that he has become owner of the suit land automatically under Section 104 of the Act ibid. It has further been observed that the present is a suit simplicitor for correction of revenue entries without seeking declaration to the effect that plaintiff is owner in possession thereof and as such the civil Court has no jurisdiction to try and entertain the same. The suit has also been held to be bad for non-joinder and mis-joinder of necessary parties, viz other legal heirs of deceased Rukam Ram.

7. As noticed supra, learned lower appellate Court has reversed the judgment and decree passed by learned trial Court and decreed the suit. The present appeal has been preferred on the grounds, inter alia, that the findings as recorded by learned lower appellate Court are based upon conjectures and surmises. The evidence as produced by the plaintiff herself before Assistant Collector 1st Grade that Shri Rukam Ram, father of the defendant was inducted by her as tenant to safeguard the suit property has not been appreciated at all and the lower appellate Court rather felled in error in not appreciating the order of Assistant Collector 1st Grade whereby the controversy qua the suit land was decided in the ratio of 2/3rd share and 1/3rd share between the plaintiff and defendant. The defendant allegedly claiming only his 1/3rd share in the suit land which is in his possession. The own evidence produced by the plaintiff that she tried to snatch the possession of the suit land to the extent of 1/3rd share from the defendant has been misread and misconstrued by learned lower appellate Court. Such evidence is the conclusive proof qua the defendant is in possession of 1/3rd share of the suit land. Learned lower appellate Court should have drawn an adverse inference against the plaintiff as she failed to step into witness box. However, it has not been done and the same resulted into miscarriage of justice to the defendant.

8. The plaintiff claims herself to be owner in possession of the suit land whereas the defendant is in possession thereof to the extent of 1/3rd share and as such has become owner under the provisions of HP Tenancy and Land Reforms Act. The civil Court has, therefore, no jurisdiction to try and entertain the controversy. The judgment and decree under challenge, therefore, is said to be nullity. The plaintiff having been convicted in a case registered against her vide FIR No.55 of 1994 also demonstrates that it is the defendant who was in possession of the suit land and not the plaintiff. Issue No.3 was decided in favour of the defendant and the lower appellate Court has not adverted to the findings arrived at on this issue. Therefore, it has been submitted that the case is required to be remanded to the lower appellate Court.

9. The appeal has been admitted on the following substantial questions of law:

1. Whether the first appellate Court could have decreed the suit only on the ground that the tenancy could not have been created by a real sister in favour of her brother?
2. Whether the judgment of the first appellate Court is result of misreading and misappreciation of the evidence on record?

3. Whether the admission made by brothers of the defendant could bind the defendant?

10. During the course of arguments, it transpired that suit land had come in the hands of deceased plaintiff Neem Dassi from her previous husband Ludar Ram. Admittedly, no issue was born to her from the lions of her previous husband and rather he died within 4-5 months of his marriage with deceased plaintiff Neem Dassi. Taking note of the provisions contained under Section 15(2) (b) of the Hindu Succession Act, the land inherited by a female Hindu from her husband or father-in-law on her death can only be inherited by the legal representatives of her husband and none else. On her death, the respondents born to her from the lions of Chet Ram, with whom she had solemnized marriage after the death of her previous husband Ludar Ram were substituted as her legal representatives, however, in view of the provisions contained under Section 15(2) (b) of the Hindu Succession Act, since they could have not inherit the suit land on her death, therefore, the following order came to be passed in this appeal on 8.5.2015:-

> "The record reveals that the suit land came in the hands of deceased Neem Dassi from her previous husband Luder Ram. Whether she has any issue born and alive from the lions of said Luder Ram, the record is silent. The present respondent Shesh Ram etc., are born to her from the lions of Chet Ram with whom she was settled, perhaps after the death of her previous husband Luder Ram. The land inherited from husband by a Hindu woman, in terms of Section 15(2) (b) of the Hindu Succession Act, can only be inherited by the legal heirs of her husband and her father-in-law and none else. It is also not known that her husband Luder Ram or her father-in-law had left behind any legal heir or not. The question on the death of said Smt. Neem Dassi, therefore, arises that the present respondents, who are born to her from the lions of Chet Ram can inherit the suit land or not. In order to decide this part of the matter effectively and judiciously, further arguments need to be heard. On the request of learned counsel on both sides, list on 27th May, 2015."

11. On the next date of hearing, learned counsel on both sides were in agreement that on re-marriage well before coming in force Hindu Succession Act, 1956, deceased plaintiff Neem Dassi had lost all her rights, title and interest in the suit land. Therefore, in the order passed on that day i.e. 27.5.2015, this Court has observed that the respondents, who were born to deceased plaintiff Neem Dassi from the lions of her second husband Chet Ram are not entitled to inherit the suit property, particularly, when on her re-marriage, she herself had lost all rights and interest therein. The order passed on that day reads as follows:-

> "In terms of the order passed on the previous date, heard for sometimes. As per the legal position, learned counsel on both sides are almost all in agreement that on re-marriage of Smt. Neem Dassi deceased respondent-plaintiff with Chet Ram, her rights and interests in the suit land stood forfeited and the land, as a matter of fact, should have been reverted back to the heirs of her previous husband Ludar Ram or the heirs of her father-in-law. It being so, no right to sue survives in favour of the respondents herein, who admittedly are born to deceased respondent Neem Dassi from the lions of Chet Ram with whom she had solemnized second marriage. They, however, have been brought on record of this appeal, consequent upon the order passed on 25.9.2013 in an application filed under Order 22 Rule 4 CPC during the pendency of this appeal. Learned counsel for the appellant intends to take appropriate steps and address this Court on the issue of their substitution also. List on 26th June, 2015, as prayed."

12. Consequent upon this order, application CMP No. 8073/2015 has been filed by the appellant-defendant for rejection of plaint with a further prayer to recall the order dated 25.9.2013 passed in CMP(M) Nos. 1413, 1414 and 1418 of 2013, whereby the respondents herein were ordered to be substituted as legal representatives of deceased plaintiff Neem Dassi.

13. The appeal when heard further on 3.11.2015, in view of this Court was considering an important and vital legal question that on solemnization of 2nd marriage well before coming in force the Hindu Succession Act, deceased plaintiff Neem Dassi could have still claim ownership in the suit land has necessitated to seek assistance from learned Additional Advocate General also. Therefore, following order came to be passed on that day:-

> "Heard further.
>
> In view of an important and vital legal question qua the competency of deceased plaintiff Smt. Neem Dassi, to claim the ownership of the suit land belonging to her previous husband Sh. Ludar Ram on solemnization of second marriage with one Chet Ram after his death involved for adjudication. It is felt necessary that learned Additional Advocate General also to assist this Court in the matter after obtaining instructions from the Collector, Kullu District at Kullu particularly as to whether the previous owner Sh. Ludar Ram or his father Kesu are survived by any legal heir(s) in terms of Section 15(2) of the Hindu Succession Act and if not, whether the suit land can be vested in the State Government and also as to why actually is in possession of the suit land on the spot at present, after verifying the factual position on the spot in this regard. The Collector to furnish the information as aforesaid by way of affidavit within a period of four weeks. The parties to the suit also to satisfy this Court as to on what basis they are claiming themselves to be owners or in possession of the suit land.
> An authenticated copy of this order be supplied to learned Additional Advocate General for compliance."

14. In terms of this order, the Deputy Commissioner, Kullu has filed the compliance report on his own affidavit, which reveals that the previous owner of the suit land was one Beli Ram. He had two sons, namely, Keshu and Kanshi Ram. Keshu was married to one Jeevan Dassi to whom Ludar Ram, previous husband of deceased plaintiff Neem Dassi was born. Keshu died earlier to his wife Smt. Jeevan Dassi. Said Smt. Jeevan Dassi came with her son Ludar Ram to Nirmand and started living there with his family. It is she who was owner in possession of the suit land. She gifted away the suit land to her son Ludar Ram in order to enable him to earn his livilhood. Mutation No. 702 was attested in the name of Ludar Ram aforesaid on 4.8.1937.

15. Ludar Ram later on was married to deceased plaintiff Neem Dassi. They did not have any issue and as such Ludar Ram died issueless somewhere in 1948. The land in Nirmand Tehsil passed into the ownership of his wife deceased plaintiff Neem Dassi. As per 'Shazra Nasab' prepared at the time of settlement operations (1955-1951), she was recorded as owner in possession of the suit land in the capacity of widow of Ludar Ram and by virtue of being in physical possession of the suit land. The land of Ludar Ram in Tehsil Rampur was recorded in the ownership of Amar Singh his cousin being the son of Kanshi Ram, Ludar Ram's uncle. The mutation in this regard was attested on 25.7.1948. Smt. Neem Dassi died in the year 2007 and her inheritance has now been passed to the respondents herein born to her from the lions of her husband Chet Ram and they are continuing as owner in possession of the suit land.

16. It Is thus seen that deceased plaintiff Neem Dassi was the wife of Ludar Ram, who was owner in possession of the suit land. In the pleadings of the parties, nothing has come on record as to when the marriage was solemnized and what is the date of death of Ludar Ram and also the date when Neem Dassi solemnized 2nd marriage with Chet Ram. The compliance report filed by the Deputy Commissioner, Kullu discussed in para supra, however, reveals that Ludar Ram died issueless in the year 1948. On his death, Neem Dassi aforesaid came to be recorded as owner in possession of the suit land. The compliance report makes reference to 'Shazra Nasab' prepared during the settlement operations carried out in the area in 1950-51 in this regard. The other property of deceased Ludar Ram in Rampur Tehsil was mutated in the name of his cousin Amar Singh on 25.7.1948. Deceased plaintiff Neem Dassi had rightly inherited the suit land on the death of Ludar Ram being his wife. Nothing has come on record qua her 2nd marriage with Chet Ram. PW-1 Sher Singh her son and attorney while in the witness box has stated in the very opening lines of his cross-examination that Neem Dassi was married to Ludar Ram 50-60 years ago, who died within 4-5 months of marriage with her. After his death she lived with one Govind for 4-5 months and it is thereafter she solemnized 2nd marriage with Chet Ram. Ludar Ram appears to have died somewhere in July, 1948 because mutation of inheritance qua his land in Rampur Tehsil as per the compliance report was attested on 25.7.1948. Therefore, taking into consideration the testimony of PW-1 Sher Singh, if after the death of Ludar Ram she lived with Govind for 4-5 months and thereafter solemnized 2nd marriage with Chet Ram, such marriage most probably had taken place in the year 1948 itself. Therefore, on her re-marriage she forfeited her right to the estate of her deceased husband under Section 2 of the Hindu Widow's Re-marriage Act, 1856 and as such, had lost all rights and interest in the suit land. On coming into force the Hindu Succession Act, 1956, the suit land was required to be recorded in the ownership and possession of the legal heirs of her previous husband Ludar Ram or that of her father-in-law as required under Section 15(2) (b) of the Act ibid.

17. The matter seems to be not agitated by anyone including Amar Singh, the cousin of Ludar Ram and it is for this reason, the deceased plaintiff continued to be recorded owner in possession of the suit land. The Apex Court in Velamuri Venkata Sivaprasad (Dead) by LRs V. Kothuri Venkateshwarlu (Dead) by LRs and others (2000) 2 Supreme Court Cases 139, a case having more or less similar facts has held as under:

> "12. Undisputably the Hindu Succession Act, 1956 in particular Section 14 has introduced far reaching changes having due regard to the role and place of womanhood in the country on the basis of the prevailing socio-economic perspective. It is now a well-settled principle of law that legislations having socio-economic perspective ought to be interpreted with widest possible connotation as otherwise, the intent of the legislature would stand frustrated. Recognition of Rights and protection thereof thus ought to be given its full play for which the particular legislation has been introduced in the Statute Book. Gender bias is being debated throughout the globe and the basic structure of the Constitution permeates equality of status and thus negates gender bias. Gender equality is one of the basic principles of our Constitution. The endeavour of the law court should thus be to give due weightage to the requirement of the Constitution in the matter of interpretation of statutes wherein specially the women folk would otherwise be involved. The legislation of 1956 therefore, ought to receive an interpretation which would be in consonance with the wishes and desires of framers of our Constitution....."
>
> 14. Having due regard to the language as above introduced by Section 14 question of attributing a different interpretation, apart from what has been given in Tulasamma's case, does not arise but needless however to note that in order to have the provision applicable there shall have to be some right existing and not de hors the same. In Raghubir's case (supra) the Shastric law has been taken recourse to in order to ascribe a pre-existing right so far as the widow is concerned by reason of the social and temporal relationship between the husband and the wife during the life time of the husband and the solemn obligation of the husband towards the wife. Hindu marriage is not a mere formality or a contract but has its due religious sanctity even in the present day society. Homam i.e. oblation to fire and Saptapadi (seven steps together) are being observed in order to have a holy union between the husband and the wife. In this context, the observations in the decision of Raghubir Singh's case seem to be apposite and in paragraph 14 of the Report, Dr. Anand, CJ observed:-
> > "According to the old Shastric Hindu law, marriage between two Hindus is a sacrament-a religious ceremony which results in a sacred and a holy union of man and wife by virtue of which the wife becomes a part and parcel of the body of the husband. She is, therefore, called ardhangani. It is on account of this status of a Hindu wife, under the Shastric Hindu law, that a husband was held to be under a personal obligation to maintain his wife and where he dies possessed of properties, then his widow was entitled as of right, to be maintained out of those properties. The right of a Hindu widow to be maintained out of the properties of her deceased husband is, thus a spiritual and moral right, which flows from the spiritual and temporal relationship of husband and wife, though the right is available only so long as the wife continues to remain chaste and does not remarry."

47. Incidentally, be it noted that the Succession Act of 1956 obviously is prospective in operation and in the event of a divestation prior to 1956, question of applicability of Section 14(1) would not arise since on the date when it applied, there was already a re-marriage disentitling the widow to inherit the property of the deceased husband. The Act of 1856 had its full play on the date of re-marriage itself, as such Succession Act could not confer the widow who has already re-married, any right in terms of Section 14(1) of the Act of 1956. The Succession Act has transformed a limited ownership to an absolute ownership but it cannot be made applicable in the event of there being a factum of pre divestation of estate as a limited owner. If there existed a limited estate or interest for the widow, it could become absolute but if she had no such limited estate or interest in lieu of her right of maintenance from out of deceased husband's estate, there would be no occasion to get such non-existing limited right converted into full ownership right.

18. This Court in Fate Ram and others V. Smt. Parvati Latest HLJ 2015 (HP) 816 while taking note of the law laid down by the Apex Court has also held as under:-

"15. It is crystal clear form the bare perusal of the Section ibid that the son or daughter begotten by the deceased female not through her husband, whose property was with her during her lifetime but from someone else, such son or daughter have no right to inherit such property on her death. Object of Section 15(2) is to ensure that the property left by a Hindu female does not loose its real source. If it was the property she had inherited from her parents, the same on her death should go to legal heirs of her father. In case the property was inherited by her from her husband or her father-in-law the same on her death shall devolve upon the heirs of the husband or her father-in-law i.e. the source from which the property was inherited by her. The Apex Court in (2009) 15 Supreme Court Cases 66 has held that when the property is devolved upon the deceased Hindu female from the parent's side, on her death, the same would go to her parents family and not to her husband's family. Similarly, in case where she had inherited some property from her husband or from her husband's family, on her death, the same would revert back to her husband's family and not to her own heirs. The Apex Court in Bhagat Ram (D) by L.Rs versus Teja Singh (D) by L.Rs., AIR 2002 Supreme Court (1) has held that the factum of a Hindu female originally had a limited right and later acquired full right, in any way would not alter the rules of Successions given in sub-Section (2) of Section 15 of the Act."

19. In the case in hand, the factum of re-marriage though has been established on record, however, not taken note of by both Courts below and even by the Assistant Collector 2nd Grade also who decided the application filed for correction of entries in the revenue record showing the appellant-defendant to be in possession of the suit land. As a matter of fact, the appellant-defendant and for that matter his predecessor-in-interest Rukam Ram could have not claimed any right, title or interest in the suit land on the alleged ground of tenancy because when the deceased plaintiff Neem Dassi itself had lost all right, title or interest in the suit land after her re-marriage, how she could have inducted the defendant or their father as tenant in the suit land. Therefore, neither the deceased plaintiff Neem Dassi could have claimed herself to be owner in possession of the suit land nor the defendant. She could have also not filed the suit for declaration and permanent prohibitory injunction. The suit land should have either been devolved upon heirs of her deceased husband Ludar Ram alone because Ludar Ram had died issueless or in the absence of his heirs, devolved upon the Himachal Pradesh Government by way of Escheat under Section 29 of the Hindu Succession Act. The provisions contained under the Hindu Succession Act has escaped the notice of revenue authorities while allowing to continue entries in the revenue record showing Neem Dassi and for that matter the defendant as co- owner in possession of the suit land. This aspect of the matter has also lost sight of the learned trial Court and also learned lower appellate Court.

20. Therefore, not only the claim as laid by the plaintiff in the suit is false but the claim of the defendant that he having been inducted as tenant over the suit land by deceased plaintiff Neem Dassi has became owner thereof is also false. Therefore, neither the successors (respondents herein) of deceased plaintiff Neem Dassi nor the defendant is entitled to claim any right, title or interest in the suit land. Therefore, the suit in all fairness and in the ends of justice was neither maintainable nor should have been entertained and the plaint rather should have been rejected. No doubt, in reply to the application, CMP No. 8073 of 2015, it is denied that the provisions contained under Section 2 of the Hindu Widow's Re-Marriage Act, 1856 were attracted in this case, however, merely for rejection because there is no explanation as to why such provisions are not applicable in this case. On the other hand, the stand of the respondents is that their mother Neem Dassi remained in possession of the suit land for a period of 50-55 years and thereafter, it is they who are in possession of the same. By making such submissions, the respondents have reiterated the plea of adverse possession raised in the plaint. However, in view of the judgment of the Apex Court in Gurudwara Sahib Vs. Gram Panchayat Village Sirthala, (2014) 1 SCC 669, the plea of adverse possession as raised in the plaint was not available to the plaintiff. Being so, the plaint is hereby ordered to be rejected and the application, CMP No. 8073 of 2015 allowed. Consequently, order dated 25.09.2013 passed in CMP(M) Nos. 1413 and 1414 of 2012, impleading the present respondents as legal representatives of deceased Neem Dssi for the purpose of this appeal is also recalled. Consequently, this appeal does not survive and as such, there is no occasion for this Court to enter upon the controversy on merits and adjudicate the question of law as formulated at the time of its admission.

21. In view of what has been said hereinabove, the plaint is ordered to be rejected. There shall be a direction to the District Collector, Kullu to examine the matter thoroughly in accordance with law. In the event of Ludar Ram is survived by any heir(s) as per provisions contained under the Hindu Succession Act, to ensure that the suit land is devolved upon such heir(s). In the event of any heir of Ludar Ram is not found to be available, the Collector shall take the possession of the suit land and also necessary steps in accordance with law to get the same devolved on the Government of Himachal Pradesh.

22. The appeal is accordingly disposed of, so also the pending application(s), if any. No orders so as to costs.

Decided on: 23.09.2016

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988- Section 166- Deceased was 30 years of age at the time of accident- he was earning Rs. 7,000/- per month as driver and was also being paid Rs.100/- per day as pocket/diet money- 1/4th amount was to be deducted towards personal expenses- it was held that claimant had suffered loss of dependency of Rs. 36,000/- per annum, which is reasonable- however, multiplier of 14 was wrongly applied as multiplier of 16 was to be applied- thus, claimants are entitled to Rs.36,000 x 16= Rs.5,76,000/- under the head 'loss of income/dependency', in addition to this, Rs.10,000/- each under the heads 'loss of consortium', 'loss of estate', 'loss of love and affection' and 'funeral expenses' also awarded- claimants are entitled to total compensation of Rs. 6,16,000/- -interest was wrongly awarded @ 8% per annum, whereas it should have been 7.5% per annum. The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice. (Oral)

Subject matter of this appeal is award, dated 12th September, 2011, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Shimla, Himachal Pradesh (for short "the Tribunal") in M.A.C. Petition No. 45-S/2 of 2008, titled as Smt. Keblu Devi and others versus Sh. Lagan Dass and others, whereby compensation to the tune of ₹ 5,04,000/- with interest @ 8% per annum from the date of the claim petition till its realization and costs assessed at ₹ 5,000/- came to be awarded in favour of the claimants and against the insurer (for short "the impugned award").

2. The insurer, owner-insured and the driver of the offending vehicle have not questioned the impugned award on any count, thus, has attained finality so far it relates to them.

3. The appellants-claimants have questioned the adequacy of compensation on the grounds taken in the memo of the appeal.

4. Thus, the only question to be determined in this appeal is – whether the amount awarded is inadequate? The answer is in the affirmative for the following reasons:

5. The insurer and the owner-insured of the offending vehicle have not questioned the impugned award, thus, the factum of insurance and liability is not in dispute.

6. Admittedly, the deceased was 30 years of age at the time of the accident. The appellants-claimants have specifically pleaded in the claim petition that the deceased was earning ₹ 7,000/- per month as driver and was also being paid ₹ 100/- per day as pocket/diet money. The Tribunal, after making assessment vide paras 18 to 21, came to be conclusion that the income of the deceased was not more than ₹ 4,000/- per month, deducted one fourth towards personal expenses of the deceased and held that the claimants have suffered loss of dependency to the tune of ₹ 36,000/- per annum, appears to be reasonable.

7. But, the Tribunal has fallen in an error in applying the multiplier of '14' as the multiplier of '16' was to be applied in view of the law laid down by the Apex Court in the case titled as Sarla Verma (Smt) and others versus Delhi Transport Corporation and another, reported in (2009) 6 Supreme Court Cases 121, which was upheld by a larger Bench of the Apex Court in Reshma Kumari & Ors. versus Madan Mohan & Anr., reported in 2013 AIR SCW 3120, read with the Second Schedule appended with the MV Act.

8. Thus, the claimants are held entitled to ₹ 36,000/- x 16 = ₹ 5,76,000/- under the head 'loss of income/dependency'.

9. The Tribunal has also erred in not awarding compensation under the other heads. Accordingly, the claimants are held entitled to ₹ 10,000/- each under the heads 'loss of consortium', 'loss of estate', 'loss of love and affection' and 'funeral expenses'.

10. Viewed thus, it is held that the claimants are entitled to compensation to the tune of ₹ 5,76,000/- + ₹ 10,000/- + ₹ 10,000/- + ₹ 10,000/- + ₹ 10,000/- = ₹ 6,16,000/-.

11. The Tribunal has also committed a legal mistake while awarding interest @ 8% per annum, which was to be awarded as per the prevailing rates.

12. It is a beaten law of the land that the rate of interest should be awarded as per the prevailing rates, in view of the judgments rendered by the Apex Court in cases titled as United India Insurance Co. Ltd. and others versus Patricia Jean Mahajan and others, reported in (2002) 6 SCC 281; Santosh Devi versus National Insurance Company Ltd. and others, reported in 2012 AIR SCW 2892; Amrit Bhanu Shali and others versus National Insurance Company Limited and others, reported in (2012) 11 SCC 738; Smt. Savita versus Binder Singh & others, reported in 2014 AIR SCW 2053; Kalpanaraj & others versus Tamil Nadu State Transport Corpn., reported in 2014 AIR SCW 2982; Amresh Kumari versus Niranjan Lal Jagdish Pd. Jain and others, reported in (2015) 4 SCC 433; and Mohinder Kaur and others versus Hira Nand Sindhi (Ghoriwala) and another, reported in (2015) 4 SCC 434, and discussed by this Court in a batch of FAOs, FAO No. 256 of 2010, titled as Oriental Insurance Company versus Smt. Indiro and others, being the lead case, decided on 19.06.2015.

13. Having said so, I deem it proper to reduce the rate of interest from 8% per annum to 7.5% per annum from the date of filing of the claim petition till its realization.

14. Having glance of the above discussions, the impugned award is modified, as indicated hereinabove.

15. The insurer is directed to deposit the enhanced awarded amount before the Registry within eight weeks. On deposition of the amount, the entire awarded amount be released in favour of the claimants strictly as per the terms and conditions contained in the impugned award after proper identification through payee's account cheque or by depositing the same in their respective bank accounts.

16. The appeal is disposed of accordingly.

17. Send down the record after placing copy of the judgment on Tribunal's file.

Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. .....Appellant

Versus

Usha Rani and others ..... Respondents

FAO No.91 of 2011
Date of decision: 23.09.2016

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988- Section 149- It was contended by insurer that vehicle bearing registration No. HR-38C-7858 was insured, and not the vehicle bearing registration No.HR-38D-7858- police record shows that FIR was registered against the driver of the truck bearing No.HR-38D-7858- no insurance policy of that vehicle was produced on record and the insurance policy of the vehicle bearing registration No. HR-38C-7858 was produced – hence, appeal allowed and right of recovery granted to the insurer. (Para-3 to 8)

For the appellant: Mr.Ashwani K. Sharma, Senior Advocate, with Mr.Ishan Thakur, Advocate.
For the respondents: Mr.Dinesh Sharma, Advocate, for respondents No.1 and 2.
Respondent No.3 is deleted.
Nemo for respondents No.4 and 5.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice (oral)

This appeal is directed against the award, dated 31st August, 2010, passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Fast Track Court, Solan, District Solan, H.P., (for short, "the Tribunal") in Claim Petition No.24/FTC/2 of 05/06, titled Guljari Lal (deceased) through LRs vs. Sardar Karamjeet Singh and others, whereby compensation to the tune of Rs.4,46,100/- came to be awarded in favour of the claimants and the insurer was saddled with the liability, (for short the "impugned award").

2. Feeling aggrieved, the insurer has challenged the impugned award on the ground that the Tribunal has wrongly fastened the liability on it.

3. On the last date of hearing, learned counsel for the appellant/insurer argued that the vehicle bearing No.HR-38C-7858 was insured, and not the vehicle having No.HR-38D-7858, as was pleaded by the claimants and held by the Tribunal.

4. To verify whether the vehicle having registration No.HR-38C-7858 or the vehicle with registration No.HR-38D-7858 was involved in the accident, this Court, on the last date of hearing, in order to secure presence of the owner and the driver i.e. respondents No.4 and 5, respectively, issued bailable warrants against them through Superintendent of Police concerned, which have been returned unexecuted with the report that the address was not correct. The Superintendent of Police, Ambala was also asked to direct the Station House Officer, Shehzadpur, where the FIR in regard to the accident was registered, to produce the copy of the case diary or shadow diary before this Court.

5. Today, Head Constable Rajinder Singh, Police Station, Shehzadpur, is present. He stated that in regard to the FIR No.58/2004, challan has already been presented before the court of competent jurisdiction for which reason he could not bring the case diary. He, however, made available photocopy of the shadow diary, made part of the file. On perusal, it transpires that FIR No.58 of 2004, was registered against the driver of truck bearing No.HR-38D-7858, namely, Gurbant Singh. Claimants have also pleaded in the claim petition that the offending truck involved in the accident was HR-38D-7858 and the Tribunal has also held that the offending vehicle was HR-38D-7858.

6. In the above backdrop, the learned counsel for the appellant/insurer argued that though the owner/insured is same, but the vehicle which was insured with the insurer was having No.HP-38C-7858 and that the offending vehicle having registration No.HP-38D-7858 was not insured with the appellant/insurer.

7. In the given circumstances, it cannot be held that the offending vehicle bearing No.HP-38D-7858 was insured for the reason that the insured has not appeared either before the Tribunal or before this Court and has not produced the insurance policy viz. a viz. vehicle bearing No.HR-38D-7858. The insurance policy on record is relating to vehicle bearing No.HR-38C-7858.

8. Having said so, the appeal is allowed, the insurer is directed to satisfy the award, with right of recovery from the owner. It is informed that the amount deposited before the Tribunal by the insurer has already been disbursed to the claimants. It being so, the insurer is at liberty to file execution petition. The owner is at liberty to defend the execution proceedings by placing on record the insurance policy of the offending vehicle bearing No.HR-38D-77858, if any.

9. The impugned award is modified, as indicated above and the appeal is disposed of.

Decided on : 23.09.2016.

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988- Section 149- It was for the insurer to plead and prove that driver did not possess any valid and effective driving licence at the time of accident or owner-insured has committed willful breach or the petition was bad for non-joinder of necessary parties- no evidence was led by the insurer- hence, insurer has failed to discharge the onus- Tribunal had rightly saddled the insurer with liability- appeal dismissed. (Para-10)

For the Appellant : Mr. Ashwani K. Sharma, Senior Advocate with Mr. Ishan Thakur, Advocate.
For the Respondents: Mr. R.L. Chaudhary, Advocate, for respondent No. 1.
Mr. G.R. Palsra, Advocate, for respondents no. 2 & 3.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice (oral)

Subject matter of this appeal is the award, dated 17th March, 2011, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal-II, Mandi, District Mandi H.P. (for short "the Tribunal") in M.A.C. Petition No. 53 of 2003, titled as Shri Anand Kumar versus Sh. Santosh Kumar & others, whereby compensation to the tune of Rs.1,32,783/- with interest @ 6% per annum from the date of filing of the claim petition till its realization was awarded in favour of the claimant and the insurer was saddled with liability (for short "the impugned award").

2. The claimant, owner-insured and driver have not questioned the impugned award on any count, thus, has attained finality so far it relates to them.

3. The insurer has questioned the impugned award on the following grounds:

"(i) Whether the driver was not having a valid and effective driving licence at the time of accident;

(ii) Whether the owner-insured has committed willful breach.

4. The claimant had invoked the jurisdiction of the Tribunal for grant of compensation to the tune of Rs. 4,00,000/- as per the break-ups given in the claim petition.

5. The respondents resisted and contested the claim petition by filing replies.

6. Following issues came to be framed by the Tribunal:

"1. Whether the petitioner sustained injuries due to the rash and negligent driving of Bus No. HP-33-2107 on 18.03.2003 at place Pirdi, being driven by respondent No. 2? ....OPP

2. If issue No. 1 is proved in affirmative to what amount of compensation, the petitioner is entitled and from whom? ..OPP

3. Whether respondent No. 2 was not having a valid and effective driving license at the time of accident? ...OPR-3

4. Whether the offending vehicle was being driven in contravention of the terms and conditions of the Insurance Police as well as provisions of Motor Vehicle Act, as alleged? ...OPR-3

5. Whether this petition is bad for non-joinder of necessary parties? ...OPR 1 & 2

6. Relief."

7. The parties led evidence. The Tribunal after scanning the evidence, oral as well as documentary, granted compensation to the tune of 1,32,783/- in favour of the claimant and saddled the insurer with liability.

Issue No. 1

8. There is no dispute qua findings recorded on issue No. 1. Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal on Issue No. 1 are upheld.

9. Before dealing with issue No. 2, I deem it proper to deal with Issues No. 3 to 5.

Issues No. 3 to 5.

10. It was for the insurer to plead and prove that the driver was not having a valid and effective driving licence at the time of accident or the owner-insured has committed willful breach, or the petition was bad for non-joinder of necessary parties, has not led any evidence, has failed to discharge the onus. Thus, the Tribunal has rightly recorded findings in paras 30 to 32 of the impugned award.

11. Learned Counsel for the appellant-insurer has argued that he has moved CMP No. 461 of 2011, for leading additional evidence.

12. The aim and object of granting compensation in terms of the mandate of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, is to grant compensation to the claimants, as early as possible, in order to save them from social evils.

13. More than 13 years have elapsed from the date of accident till today and the claimant is waiting for the compensation. Only on this ground, the application merits to be dismissed, is accordingly dismissed.

14. Viewed thus, the Tribunal has rightly saddled the insurer with liability.

Issue No. 2.

15. I have gone through the entire record. The Tribunal has awarded just and appropriate compensation, is accordingly upheld.

16. Having glance of the above discussion, the impugned award is to be upheld and the appeal merits to be dismissed. Accordingly, the impugned award is upheld and the appeal is dismissed.

17. The Registry is directed to release the entire amount in favour of the claimant, strictly in terms of conditions contained in the impugned award, through payees account cheque or by depositing it in his account.

18. Send down the record after placing copy of the judgment on Tribunal's file.

FAO No. 239 of 2011
Decided on : 23.09.2016.

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988- Section 173- Insurance Company has filed an appeal challenging the quantum of compensation- held, that insurer has limited grounds available to it unless permission is obtained under Section 170 of the Act- Insurer had not obtained such permission, therefore, appeal challenging the award on quantum of compensation is not maintainable. For the Appellant : Mr. Ajay Chandel, Advocate.
For the Respondents: Mr. Raman Sethi, Advocate, for respondent No. 1
Respondent No. 2 already ex-parte.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice (oral)

Subject matter of this appeal is the award dated 30th March, 2011, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal-II, Solan, District Solan, H.P. (hereinafter referred to as 'the Tribunal') in M.A.C. Petition No. 10-NL/2 of 2008, titled as Gurdeep Singh alias Bhag Singh versus M/s Shree Rama Steel Ltd., whereby compensation to the tune of Rs. 1,20,000/- with interest at the rate of 9% per annum from the date of filing of the claim petition, was granted in favour of the claimant and the insurer came to be saddled with liability (for short, "the impugned award").

2. The claimant and owner-insured have not questioned the impugned award, on any count. Thus, it has attained finality, so far it relates to them.

3. The appellant-insurer has questioned the impugned award on the ground of adequacy of compensation.

4. The question is – whether the appeal is maintainable? The answer is in the negative for the following reasons:

5. In terms of the mandate of Sections 147 and 149 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (for short "MV Act") read with the terms and conditions contained in the insurance policy, the insurer has limited grounds available, but, it can contest the claim petition on other grounds provided permission in terms of Section 170 of the MV Act has been obtained.

6. This question arose before the Apex Court in the case titled as United India Insurance co. Ltd. Versus Shila Datta & Ors., reported in 2011 AIR SCW 6541, and the matter was referred to the larger Bench.

7. The question again arose before the Apex Court in the case titled as Josphine James versus United India Insurance Co. Ltd. & Anr., reported in 2013 AIR SCW 6633. It is apt to reproduce paras 8, 17 and 18 of the judgment herein:

"8. Aggrieved by the impugned judgment and award passed by the High Court in MAC Appeal no. 433/2005 and the review petition, the present appeal is filed by the appellant urging certain grounds and assailing the impugned judgment in allowing the appeal of the Insurance Company without following the law laid down by this Court in Nicolletta Rohtagi's case and instead, placing reliance upon the Bhushan Sachdeva's case. Nicolletta Rohtagi's case was exhaustively discussed by a three judge bench in the case of United India Insurance Company Vs. Shila Datta, 2011 10 SCC 509. Though the Court has expressed its reservations against the correctness of the legal position in Nicolletta Rohtagi decision on various aspects, the same has been referred to higher bench and has not been overruled as yet. Hence, the ratio of Nicolletta Rohtagi's case will be still applicable in the present case. The appellant claimed that interference by the High Court with the quantum of compensation awarded by the Tribunal in favour of appellant and considerably reducing the same by modifying the judgment of the Tribunal is vitiated in law. Therefore, the impugned judgments and awards are liable to be set aside.

9. to 16. .....

17. The said order was reviewed by the High Court at the instance of the appellant in view of the aforesaid decision on the question of maintainability of the appeal of the Insurance Company. The High Court, in the review petition, has further reduced the compensation to Rs. 4,20,000/- from Rs. 6,75,000/- which was earlier awarded by it. This approach is contrary to the facts and law laid down by this Court. The High Court, in reducing the quantum of compensation under the heading of loss of dependency of the appellant, was required to follow the decision rendered by three judge Bench of this Court in Nicolletta Rohtagi case (2002) 7 SCC 456 : AIR 2002 SC 3350 : 2002 AIR SCW 3899, and earlier decisions wherein this Court after interpreting Section 170 (b) of the M. V. Act, has rightly held that in the absence of permission obtained by the Insurance Company from the Tribunal to avail the defence of the insured, it is not permitted to contest the case on merits. The aforesaid legal principle is applicable to the fact situation in view of the three judge bench decision referred to though the correctness of the aforesaid decision is referred to larger bench. This important aspect of the matter has been overlooked by the High Court while passing the impugned judgment and the said approach is contrary to law laid down by this Court.

18. In view of the aforesaid reasons, the Insurance Company is not entitled to file appeal questioning the quantum of compensation awarded in favour of the appellant for the reasons stated supra. In the absence of the same, the Insurance Company had only limited defence to contest in the proceedings as provided under Section 149 (2) of the M.V. Act. Therefore, the impugned judgment passed by the High Court on 13.1.2012 reducing the compensation to 4,20,000/- under the heading of loss of dependency by deducting 50% from the monthly income of the deceased of Rs. 5,000/- and applying 14 multiplier, is factually and legally incorrect. The High Court has erroneously arrived at this amount by applying the principle of law laid down in Sarla Verma v. Delhi Transport Corporation, 2009 6 SCC 121 instead of applying the principle laid down in Baby Radhika Gupta's case regarding the multiplier applied to the fact situation and also contrary to the law applicable regarding the maintainability of appeal of the Insurance Company on the question of quantum of compensation in the absence of permission to be obtained by it from the Tribunal under Section 170 (b) of the M.V. Act. In view of the aforesaid reason, the High Court should not have allowed the appeal of the Insurance Company as it has got limited defence as provided under section 149(2) of the M.V. Act. Therefore, the impugned judgment and award is vitiated in law and hence, is liable to be set aside by allowing the appeal of the appellant."

8. Thus, the insurer can question the adequacy of compensation only if it has sought permission under Section 170 of the MV Act.

9. In the present case, it has to be seen whether the insurer has sought any such permission?

10. I have gone through the record, which does disclose that neither any such application was filed by the insurer nor such permission was granted.

11. Having said so, the only ground of attack projected and urged is not available to the insurer. However, I have gone through the record. The claimant has become the victim of the motor vehicular accident, was admitted in the Civil Hospital, Nalagarh, was referred to PGI, Chandigarh and has placed on record OPD slips Ext. PW-3/B to PW-3/D. The amount of compensation appears to be too meager. But, unfortunately, the claimant has not questioned the same, is reluctantly upheld.

12. Viewed thus, the impugned award is upheld and the appeal is dismissed.

13. The Registry is directed to release the awarded amount in favour of the claimant-injured, strictly as per the terms and conditions contained in the impugned award through payee's account cheque or by depositing the same in his bank account.

14. Send down the record after placing copy of the judgment on Tribunal's file.

For the Respondents: Mr. L.S. Mehta, Advocate, for respondent No. 1.
Mr. Dinesh Thakur, Advocate, for respondents no. 2 & 3.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice (oral)

Subject matter of this appeal is the award, dated 4th April, 2011, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal-II, Mandi, District Mandi H.P. (Camp at Karsog) (for short "the Tribunal") in M.A.C. Petition No. 27 of 2006, titled as Ramesh Kumar @ Naresh Kumar versus Smt. Kamla Devi & others, whereby compensation to the tune of Rs.1,10,576/- with interest @ 6% per annum from the date of filing of the claim petition till its realization was awarded in favour of the claimant and the insurer was saddled with liability (for short "the impugned award").

2. The claimant, owner-insured and driver have not questioned the impugned award on any count, thus, has attained finality so far it relates to them.

3. The insurer has questioned the impugned award on the grounds taken in the memo of appeal.

4. The only question to be determined in this appeal is-whether the driver was having a valid and effective driving licence.

5. Admittedly, the driver was driving jeep No. HP-01A-3635, the unladen weight of which is 1720 kilograms, as per the Registration Certificate Mark-A thus falls within the definition of 'light motor vehicle' in terms of Section 2(21) of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, for short 'the MV Act'.

6. A Division Bench of the High Court of Jammu and Kashmir at Srinagar, of which I (Justice Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice) was a member, in a case titled as National Insurance Co. Ltd. versus Muhammad Sidiq Kuchey & ors., being LPA No. 180 of 2002, decided on 27th September, 2007, has discussed this issue and held that a driver having licence to drive "LMV" requires no "PSV" endorsement. It is apt to reproduce the relevant portion of the judgment herein:

> "The question now arises as to whether the driver who possessed driving licence for driving abovementioned vehicles, could he drive a passenger vehicle? The answer, I find, in the judgment passed by this court in case titled National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Irfan Sidiq Bhat, 2004 (II) SLJ 623, wherein it is held that Light Motor Vehicle includes transport vehicle and transport vehicle includes public service vehicle and public service vehicle includes any motor vehicle used or deemed to be used for carriage of passengers. Further held, that the authorization of having PSV endorsement in terms of Rule 41 (a) of the Rules is not required in the given circumstances. It is profitable to reproduce paras 13 and 17 of the judgment hereunder:-
>
> > "13. A combined reading of the above provisions leaves no room for doubt that by virtue of licence, about which there is no dispute, both Showkat Ahamd and Zahoor Ahmad were competent in terms of section 3 of the Motor Vehicles Act to drive a public service vehicle without any PSV endorsement and express authorization in terms of rule 4(1)(a) of the State Rules. In other words, the requirement of the State Rules stood satisfied.
> >
> > .....
> >
> > 17. In the case of Mohammad Aslam Khan (CIMA no. 87 of 2002) Peerzada Noor-ud-Din appearing as witness on behalf of Regional Transport Officer did say on recall for further examination that PSV endorsement on the licence of Zahoor Ahmad was fake. In our opinion, the fact that the PSV endorsement on the licence was fake is not at all material, for, even if the claim is considered on the premise that there was no PSV endorsement on the licence, for the reasons stated above, it would not materially affect the claim. By virtue of "C to E" licence Showkat Ahmad was competent to drive a passenger vehicle. In fact, there is no separate definition of passenger vehicle or passenger service vehicle in the Motor Vehicles Act. They come within the ambit of public service vehicle under section 2(35). A holder of driving licence with respect to "light Motor Vehicle" is thus competent to drive any motor vehicle used or adapted to be used for carriage of passengers i.e. a public service vehicle."
>
> In the given circumstances of the case PSV endorsement was not required at all."

7. The mandate of Sections 2 and 3 of the MV Act came up for consideration before the Apex Court in a case titled as Chairman, Rajasthan State Road Transport Corporation &

ors. versus Smt. Santosh & Ors., reported in 2013 AIR SCW 2791, and after examining the various provisions of the MV Act held that Section 3 of the Act casts an obligation on the driver to hold an effective driving licence for the type of vehicle, which he intends to drive. It is apt to reproduce paras 19 and 23 of the judgment herein:

> "19. Section 2(2) of the Act defines articulated vehicle which means a motor vehicle to which a semi-trailer is attached; Section 2(34) defines public place; Section 2(44) defines 'tractor' as a motor vehicle which is not itself constructed to carry any load; Section 2(46) defines `trailer' which means any vehicle, other than a semi- trailer and a side-car, drawn or intended to be drawn by a motor vehicle. Section 3 of the Act provides for necessity for driving license; Section 5 provides for responsibility of owners of the vehicle for contravention of Sections 3 and 4; Section 6 provides for restrictions on the holding of driving license; Section 56 provides for compulsion for having certificate of fitness for transport vehicles; Section 59 empowers the State to fix the age limit of the vehicles; Section 66 provides for necessity for permits to ply any vehicle for any commercial purpose; Section 67 empowers the State to control road transport; Section 112 provides for limits of speed; Sections 133 and 134 imposes a duty on the owners and the drivers of the vehicles in case of accident and injury to a person; Section 146 provides that no person shall use any vehicle at a public place unless the vehicle is insured. Section 10 of the Act enables the Central Government to prescribe forms of driving licenses for various categories of vehicles mentioned in sub-section (2) of the said Section. The definition clause in Section 2 of the Act defines various categories of vehicles which are covered in broad types mentioned in sub-section (2) of Section 10. They are 'goods carriage', 'heavy goods vehicle', 'heavy passenger motor vehicle', 'invalid carriage', 'light motor vehicle', 'maxi-cab', 'medium goods vehicle', 'medium passenger motor vehicle', 'motor-cab', 'motorcycle', 'omnibus', 'private service vehicle', 'semi- trailer', 'tourist vehicle', 'tractor', 'trailer' and 'transport vehicle'."

8. The Apex Court in another case titled as National Insurance Company Ltd. versus Annappa Irappa Nesaria & Ors., reported in 2008 AIR SCW 906, has also discussed the purpose of amendments, which were made in the year 1994 and the definitions of 'light motor vehicle', 'medium goods vehicle' and the necessity of having a driving licence. It is apt to reproduce paras 8, 14 and 16 of the judgment herein:

> "8. Mr. S.N. Bhat, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the respondents, on the other hand, submitted that the contention raised herein by the appellant has neither been raised before the Tribunal nor before the High Court. In any event, it was urged, that keeping in view the definition of the 'light motor vehicle' as contained in Section 2(21) of the Motor vehicles Act, 1988 ('Act' for short), a light goods carriage would come within the purview thereof.
>
> A 'light goods carriage' having not been defined in the Act, the definition of the 'light motor vehicle' clearly indicates that it takes within its umbrage, both a transport vehicle and a non-transport vehicle.

12. .....

13. .....

14. Rule 14 prescribes for filing of an application in Form 4, for a licence to drive a motor vehicle, categorizing the same in nine types of vehicles.

Clause (e) provides for 'Transport vehicle' which has been substituted by G.S.R. 221(E) with effect from 28.3.2001. Before the amendment in 2001, the entries medium goods vehicle and heavy goods vehicle existed which have been substituted by transport vehicle. As noticed hereinbefore, Light Motor Vehicles also found place therein.

15. .....

16. From what has been noticed hereinbefore, it is evident that 'transport vehicle' has now been substituted for 'medium goods vehicle' and 'heavy goods vehicle'. The light motor vehicle continued, at the relevant point of time, to cover both, 'light passenger carriage vehicle' and 'light goods carriage vehicle'.

A driver who had a valid licence to drive a light motor vehicle, therefore, was authorised to drive a light goods vehicle as well."

9. The Apex Court in the latest judgment in the case titled as Kulwant Singh & Ors. versus Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., reported in JT 2014 (12) SC 110, held that PSV endorsement is not required.

10. The same principle has been laid down by this Court in a series of cases.

11. Viewed thus, the Tribunal has rightly saddled the insurer with liability.

12. I have gone through the entire record. It appears that the compensation amount is meager. But, the claimant has not questioned the same. Accordingly, the same is reluctantly upheld.

13. Having glance of the above discussions, the impugned award is to be upheld and the appeal merits to be dismissed. Accordingly, the impugned award is upheld and the appeal is dismissed.

14. The Registry is directed to release the entire amount in favour of the claimant, strictly in terms of conditions contained in the impugned award, through payees account cheque or by depositing it in his account.

15. Send down the record after placing copy of the judgment on Tribunal's file.

For the respondents: Mr. B.N. Sharma, Advocate, for respondents No. 1 to 4.
Mr. G.C. Gupta, Senior Advocate, with Ms. Meera Devi, Advocate, for respondent No. 5.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice. (Oral)

This appeal is directed against award, dated 25th March, 2011, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Kinnaur Civil Division at Rampur Bushahr, H.P. (for short "the Tribunal") in MAC Petition No. 58 of 2007, titled as Smt Mangla Devi and others versus Sh. Pyar Chand and another, whereby compensation to the tune of ₹ 5,26,500/- with interest @ 7.5% per annum from the date of petition till its realization came to be awarded in favour of the claimants and owner-insured of the offending vehicle came to be saddled with liability (for short "the impugned award").

2. The claimants and the insurer of the offending vehicle have not questioned the impugned award, thus, has attained finality so far it relates to them.

3. The appellant-owner-insured has questioned the impugned award on the grounds taken in the memo of appeal.

4. In order to determine this appeal, it is necessary to give a brief resume of the case, the womb of which has given birth to the instant appeal:

5. The claimants had invoked the jurisdiction of the Tribunal in terms of the mandate of Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (for short "MV Act") for grant of compensation, as per the break-ups given in the claim petition, was resisted by the respondents in the claim petition on the grounds taken in the respective memo of objections.

6. Following issues came to be framed by the Tribunal on 22nd May, 2009:

"1. Whether on 16.5.2007 at 5.30 P.M. at Ganvi, the driver was driving Mahindra Pick up bearing No. HP-66-714 in rash and negligent manner and caused death of Balwant Singh? OPP

2. If issue No. 1 is proved, to what amount of compensation the petitioners are entitled to and from whom? OPP

3. Whether the driver of vehicle in question was not holding a valid and effective driving license at the time of the accident within the knowledge of insured, if so its effect? OPR

4. Whether the vehicle in question was being plied in violation of policy conditions i.e. without registration-cum-fitness certificate at the time of accident, if so its effect? OPR

5. Whether the deceased was travelling in the vehicle in question as gratuitous passenger at the time of accident? OPR

5A. Whether there was no privity of contract between respondents No. 1 and 2 insured and the insurer as alleged? OPR-2

6. Relief."

7. Parties have led the evidence.

8. The Tribunal, after scanning the evidence, oral as well as documentary, held that the claimants have proved that the driver, namely Shri Jitender alias Pappu, had driven Mahindra Pick Up, bearing registration No. HP-66-0714, rashly and negligently, on 16th May, 2007, near place Ganvi, Police Station Jhakri and caused the accident in which deceased-Balwant Singh sustained injuries and succumbed to the injuries. The driver of the offending vehicle also died in the accident.

9. I have gone through the findings recorded and perused the record and am of the considered view that the Tribunal has rightly recorded the findings.

10. Learned proxy counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant-owner-insured argued that the deceased was also negligent as he was not supposed to travel in the goods vehicles. Further argued that the appellant-owner-insured had strictly instructed the driver of the offending vehicle not to allow any person to travel in the vehicle.

11. The argument is not tenable for the reason that a passenger cannot be said to be negligent until the act of the passenger has not contributed towards the cause of the accident. Moreover, if the said argument is taken into consideration, it is admission on the part of the appellant-owner-insured that the deceased was travelling in the offending vehicle as gratuitous passenger. Having said so, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issue No. 1 are upheld.

12. Before dealing with issue No. 2, I deem it proper to determine issues No. 3 to 5A.

Issue No. 3:

13. It was for the insurer to plead and prove that the driver of the offending vehicle was not having a valid and effective driving licence to drive the same and the said fact was within the knowledge of the owner-insured. There is no proof on the file except mere statement of RW-2, Shri Mohinder Sharma to this effect.

14. However, I have gone through the record. The driving licence of the driver of the offending vehicle is on the record as Ex. R3, the perusal of which does disclose that the driver was having a valid and effective driving licence to drive the offending vehicle. Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issue No. 3 are upheld.

Issue No. 4:

15. It was for the insurer to plead and prove that the offending vehicle was being plied in violation of policy conditions without registration-cum-fitness certificate at the time of the accident, has not led any evidence to this effect, thus, has failed to discharge the onus. Even otherwise, the relevant documents are on the record, which are valid and effective. Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issue No. 4 are upheld.

Issue No. 5:

16. The claimants have specifically pleaded in para 10 of the claim petition that the deceased was traveling in the ill fated vehicle and was going from Ganvi to Rampur. The appellant-owner-insured, in his reply, has specifically replied to para 10 of the claim petition as under:

> "Para 10 of the petition is denied for want of knowledge. It is further submitted that the replying respondent has specifically instructed his driver not to allow any person to travel in the vehicle of the respondent."

17. I have gone through the discussion made by the Tribunal in paras 9 to 13 of the impugned award and am of the considered view that the Tribunal has rightly recorded the findings and held that the deceased was travelling as a gratuitous passenger in the offending vehicle. Having said so, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issue No. 5 are upheld.

Issue No. 5A:

18. It was for the insurer to prove that there was no privity of contract between the insurer and the appellant-owner-insured, has failed to do so. Even otherwise, the findings recorded by the Tribunal on this issue are not in dispute. Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issues No. 5A are upheld.

Issue No. 2:

19. Learned proxy counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant-owner-insured argued that the amount awarded is excessive.

20. The claimants have specifically averred in the claim petition that the deceased was a contractor and horticulturist by profession and his monthly income was ₹ 10,000/- per month at the time of the accident. The Tribunal, after scanning the evidence, and exercising guess work, held that the income of the deceased was 4,200/- per month. While deducting one third towards his personal expenses, the Tribunal has held that the claimants have suffered loss of dependency to the tune of ₹ 2,800/- per month, which is not legally correct for the reason that the claimants were four in number and one fourth was to be deducted in view of the ratio laid down by the Apex Court in para 30 of the judgment rendered in the case titled as Sarla Verma (Smt) and others versus Delhi Transport Corporation and another, reported in (2009) 6 Supreme Court Cases 121. But, unfortunately, the claimants have not questioned the same, is reluctantly upheld.

21. The age of the deceased was 30 years at the time of the accident. The Tribunal has rightly applied the multiplier of '15' and has awarded compensation to the tune of ₹ 5,04,000/- under the head 'loss of dependency'. The Tribunal has also awarded ₹ 2500/- under the head 'funeral expenses', ₹ 10,000/- under the head 'conventional amount' and ₹ 10,000/- under the head 'loss of consortium', which is also maintained.

22. Having said so, the impugned award needs no interference.

23. Viewed thus, the impugned award is upheld and the appeal is dismissed.

24. The appellant-owner-insured is directed to deposit the awarded amount before the Tribunal within eight weeks. On deposition, the same be released in favour of the claimants strictly as per the terms and conditions contained in the impugned award through payee's account cheque or by depositing the same in their respective bank accounts.

25. Send down the record after placing copy of the judgment on the Tribunal's file.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice, (Oral)

This appeal is directed against the judgment and award dated 30.7.2010, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal-II Una, H.P., in MACP No.09/2008, titled Smt. Raksha Devi and others versus Sh. Rakesh Kumar and others, for short "the Tribunal", whereby compensation to the tune of Rs.3,43,500/- alongwith interest @ 9% with fee of learned counsel to the tune of Rs.1,000/- came to be awarded in favour of the claimants and insurer was saddled with the liability with right of recovery from the owner/insured, hereinafter referred to as "the impugned award", for short.

2. The only question to be determined in this appeal is-whether the Tribunal has rightly granted the right of recovery to the insurer. The answer is in negative for the following reasons.

3. Following issues were framed by the Tribunal.

"(i) Whether deceased Kashmir Singh had died on 3.1.08 at about 6.35 P.M. Near Amb-Una main road in between village Bhera and Dussara because of the rash and negligent driving of respondent No.2 ?OPP

(ii) If issue No. 1 is proved in affirmative as to what amount of compensation the petitioners are entitled to and from whom? OPP.

(iii) Whether the respondent No. 2 was not holding a valid and an effective driving licence as alleged. If so, its effect thereto? OPR.

(iv) Whether the vehicle in question was being used in violation of the expressed terms and conditions of the insurance policy as alleged. If so, its effect thereto? OPR.

(v) Relief."

4. The offending vehicle was a tractor-trolley and the driver was having licence to drive Light Motor Vehicle. The Tribunal has held that the driver was not having a valid driving licence. It is apt to reproduce para 25 of the impugned award herein.

> "25.Section 2 (26) of the Act defines the word 'motor car'. The tractor does not fall within the definition of a 'motor car'. This clearly indicates that the respondent No. 2 was not having a valid driving licence to drive the tractor trolley. Otherwise too, the same was not being used for agricultural purposes or any purpose subservient to agriculture at the material time. Therefore, it can be safely said that neither the respondent No. 2 was holding a valid and effective licence to drive the tractor trolley nor the same was being used in consonance with the terms and conditions of the insurance policy. In view of these reasons, the insurance company (respondent No.3) is not liable to indemnify the owner/insured(respondent No.1) (The Oriental Insurance Company Limited-Appellant versus Vidya Devi and others-Respondents, 2009 (1) Shim.LC 99. relied upon)."

5. The learned Tribunal has lost sight of Section 2 (21) of the Motor Vehicles Act, for short "the Act", which reads as under:

> "2 (21) "light motor vehicle" means a transport vehicle or omnibus the gross vehicle weight of either of which or a motor car or tractor or road-roller the unladen weight of any of which, does not exceed 2 [7500] kilograms;"

6. Thus, it does include tractor.

7. This Court in FAO No. 187 of 2010, titled as Baldev Singh versus Jagdish Chand & another, decided on 8th April, 2016, has held that tractor falls within the definition of 'light motor vehicle'.

8. The same principle has been laid down by this Court in the cases titled as Oriental Insurance Company versus Gulam Mohammad (since deceased) & others, reported in Latest HLJ 2014 (HP) 244; Joginder Singh @ Pamma versus Vikram @ Vickey and others, reported in Latest HLJ 2014 (HP) Suppl. 292; and Oriental Insurance Company versus Sudesh Kumari and others, reported in 2014 (2) Shim. LC 918.

9. The Punjab and Haryana High Court in FAO No. 5114 of 2009 titled, The New India Assurance Company Limited vs. Mahender Singh decided 26.10.2009 held that the driver, who was driving a tractor, was holding a licence to drive car, jeep and motor cycle only, is also competent to drive tractor and the Insurance company was held liable to pay the compensation.

10. The claimants examined three witnesses, including claimant No. 1. The insured and the insurer have not examined any witness. Only driver has stepped into the witness-box as RW-1. Thus, the insurer has failed to discharge the onus viz-a-viz issues No. 3 and 5. Having said so, the insurer has failed to prove that the owner has committed willful breach and is entitled to seek exoneration. Even otherwise, as held hereinabove, the driver was having a valid and effective driving licence to drive the offending vehicle. Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal, in para 25 of the impugned award are set aside and the insurer is saddled with the liability.

11. The Tribunal has awarded interest @9% per annum. However, interest was to be awarded at rate of 7.5% per annum, for the following reasons.

12. It is a beaten law of the land that the rate of interest should be awarded as per the prevailing rates, in view of the judgments rendered by the Apex Court in cases titled as United India Insurance Co. Ltd. and others versus Patricia Jean Mahajan and others, reported in (2002) 6 SCC 281; Satosh Devi versus National Insurance Company Ltd. and others, reported in 2012 AIR SCW 2892; Amrit Bhanu Shali and others versus National Insurance Company Limited and others reported in (2012) 11 SCC 738; Smt. Savita versus Binder Singh & others, reported in 2014, AIR SCW 2053; Kalpanaraj & others versus Tamil Nadu State Transport Corpn., reported in 2014 AIR SCW 2982; Amresh Kumari versus Niranjan Lal Jagdish Pd. Jain and others, reported in (2015) 4 SCC 433, and Mohinder Kaur and others versus Hira Nand Sindhi (Ghoriwala) and another, reported in (2015) 4 SCC 434, and discussed by this Court in a batch of FAOs, FAO No. 256 of 2010, titled as Oriental Insurance Company versus Smt. Indiro and others, being the lead case, decided on 19.06.2015.

13. Accordingly, interest @7.5% per annum is awarded from the date of claim petition till realization of the amount.

14. Viewed thus, the appeal is allowed and impugned award is modified, as indicated hereinabove.

15. The insurer is directed to deposit the amount, within six weeks from today before this Registry. On deposit, the entire amount be released to the claimants, strictly, in terms of the conditions contained in the impugned award, through payees' cheque account or by depositing the same in their bank accounts. The statutory amount deposited by the appellant be released in favour of the claimants as costs of this appeal.

16. Send down the record forthwith, after placing a copy of this judgment.

Sadhu Singh .....Appellant

Versus

Sh. Chander Dev & others .....Respondents

FAO No. 247 of 2011
Decided on : 23.09.2016.

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988- Section 149- Tribunal held that owners had not obtained fitness certificate at the time of accident- photostat copies of registration certificate and fitness certificate filed which shows that owner had all the documents- insurer was rightly held liable to pay the compensation. (Para-12)

For the Appellant : Ms. Archana Dutt, Advocate.
For the Respondents: Mr. Anuj Nag, Advocate, for respondent No. 1.
Nemo for respondent No. 2.
Mr. Ashwani Sharma, Senior Advocate with Mr. Ishan Thakur, Advocate, for respondent No. 3.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice (oral)

The appellant-owner-insured has questioned the award, dated 31.03.2011, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal (I) Kangra at Dharamshala (for short "the Tribunal") in M.A.C.T.R.B.T. No. 90-I/II-2010/2007, titled as Chander Dev versus Sh. Sadhu Singh & others, whereby compensation to the tune of Rs.4,09,400/- with interest @ 9% per annum from the date of filing of the claim petition till its realization and costs to the tune of Rs. 2,000/- was awarded in favour of the claimant and the insurer was directed to satisfy the award at the first instance with right of recovery (for short "the impugned award").

2. The insurer, the driver and the claimant have not questioned the impugned award on any count, thus, has attained finality so far it relates to them.

3. The owner-insured has questioned the impugned award on the ground that the Tribunal has fallen in an error in granting right of recovery to the insurer.

4. The ground is tenable for the following reasons.

6. The claimant had invoked the jurisdiction of the Tribunal for grant of compensation to the tune of Rs. 10,00,000/- as per the break-ups given in the claim petition.

7. The claim petition was resisted by the respondents on the grounds taken in their memo of replies.

8. Following issues came to be framed by the Tribunal:

"1. Whether Chander Dev suffered injuries on his person as a result of rash and negligent driving of respondent No. 2, on 10.12.2006?...OPP

2. If issue No. 1 is proved to what compensation the petitioner is entitled and from whom? ...OPP

3. Whether the petition is bad for non-joinder of owner, driver and insurer of car No. PB-08AB-7260 and motor cycle No. HP-38A-7458? ...OPR

4. Whether the respondent No. 2 was not having valid and effective driving licence at the time of accident? ...OPR-3

5. Whether accident is result of rash and negligent driving of car No. PB-08AB-7260 and driving of motor cycle No. HP-38A-7458? ...OPR

6. Relief."

9. The claimants examined Head Constable, Sushil Kumar (PW-1), Sh. Surinder Singh (PW-2) and Dr. G.D. Gupta (PW-3). Claimant also appeared himself in the witness box as PW-4. On the other hand, insurer has examined Sukhwinder Paul Singh as RW-1 and driver appeared in the witness box as RW-2.

Issue No. 1.

10. While going through the statement of PW-1, Head Constable Sushil Kumar, one comes to an inescapable conclusion that the accident was the outcome of the rash and negligent driving of driver, namely, Charanjeet Singh, in which the claimant sustained injuries. The Tribunal has decided this issue in favour of the claimant. The findings returned by the Tribunal on Issue No. 1 have attained finality, thus the same are upheld.

11. Before dealing with issue No. 2, I deem it proper to deal with issues No. 3 to 5.

Issues No. 3 to 5.

12. It was also for the insurer to plead and prove that the insured-owner has committed willful breach. The Tribunal in para-17 of the impugned award has discussed that the owner had not obtained Fitness Certificate at the time of accident. The appellant has filed CMP No. 479 of 2011, for taking on record the photostat copies of the Registration Certificate and Fitness Certificate which do disclose that the owner-insured was having all the documents.

13. The insurer has not led any evidence, thus has failed to discharge the onus.

14. Viewed thus, it is held that the insurer has to satisfy the liability.

Issue No. 2.

15. I have gone through the entire record. The Tribunal has awarded the just and appropriate compensation, is accordingly upheld.

16. The statutory amount of Rs. 25,000/- deposited by the insured-owner, is awarded as costs in favour of the claimant.

17. The insurer is directed to deposit the award amount alongwith interest, if not already deposited, within a period of eight weeks from today before the Registry.

18. If the insurer-appellant has deposited the award amount before the Tribunal or the Registry, the same be released in favour of the claimant, strictly in terms of conditions contained in the impugned award, through payees' account cheque or by depositing the same in his account.

19. Accordingly, the impugned award is modified and the appeal is allowed, as indicated above. Pending application stands disposed of.

20. Send down the record after placing a copy of the judgment on the Tribunal's file.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, C.J. (Oral)

LPA No.260 of 2011

This appeal is directed against the judgment, dated 21st February, 2011, passed by a learned Single Judge of this Court in CWP(T) No.7877 of 2008, titled Inder Singh Rahal vs. State of H.P. and others, whereby the writ petition came to be dismissed, (for short, the impugned judgment).

2. The precise case of the writ petitioner/appellant herein was that he was entitled to promotion prior to the promotion of Ram Dass and Mohinder Kumar, but the respondents-State had not considered the case of the writ petitioner/appellant and granted him promotion. The writ Court, in terms of paragraph 11 of the impugned judgment, examined the case of the writ petitioner and rejected his claim in paragraph 14 of the impugned judgment. The foundation of the impugned judgment was made on the ground that the writ petitioner had not sought quashment of orders whereby Ram Dass and Mohinder Kumar were promoted.

3. It was for the writ petitioner to plead and show that he was entitled for promotion before Ram Dass and Mohinder Kumar, in which he has failed. Had he been able to make out a case for his promotion prior to Ram Dass and Mohinder Kumar, in that eventuality he was to seek quashment of the orders whereby these two persons stood promoted prior to the writ petitioner, which the writ petitioner has not done.

4. Having said so, there is no merit in the instant appeal and the same is dismissed. Consequently, the impugned judgment is upheld.

CWP No.379 of 2012

5. By the medium of instant petition, the petitioner has sought for the following main relief:

> "(i) That the impugned orders dated 26.6.1998 contained in Annexure P-4 is illegal, arbitrary and unconstitutional and may kindly be quashed and set aside. The petitioners may be held entitled to notional promotion or proforma promotion from that date when Respondent No.5 was promoted."

6. From the perusal of Annexure P-4, it transpires that the said order was made by the respondents-State on 26th September, 1998. The petitioner did not challenge the said order Annexure P-4 right from 1998 till 29th November, 2011 when the instant writ petition was filed.

7. It is beaten law of land that delay takes away the settings of law. A person who does not seek relief within the time frame, his petition has to be dismissed only on the grounds of delay and laches, waiver and acquiescence, otherwise, it would amount to gross misuse of jurisdiction.

8. The Apex Court in a case titled as R & M Trust versus Koramangala Residents Vigilance Group and others, (2005) 3 SCC 91, held that delay is a very important factor while exercising extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution; delay defeats equity and it cannot be brushed aside without any plausible explanation.

9. The same principle has been laid down by the Apex Court in cases titled as S.D.O. Grid Corporation of Orissa Ltd. and others versus Timudu Oram, 2005 AIR(SCW) 3715; Srinivasa Bhat (Dead) by L.Rs. & Ors. versus A. Sarvothama Kini (Dead) by L.Rs. & Ors., 2010 AIR(SC) 2106; and Bhakra Beas Management Board versus Kirshan Kumar Vij & Anr., 2010 AIR(SC) 3342.

10. In another case titled as State of Jammu & Kashmir versus R.K. Zalpuri and others, 2015 9 JT 214, the Apex Court held that a Writ Court while deciding a writ petition, is required to remain alive to the nature of the claim and the unexplained delay on the part of the writ petitioner. It is apt to reproduce paras 26 to 28 of the judgment herein:

> "26. In the case at hand, the employee was dismissed from service in the year 1999, but he chose not to avail any departmental remedy. He woke up from his slumber to knock at the doors of the High Court after a lapse of five years. The staleness of the claim remained stale and it could not have been allowed to rise like a phoenix by the writ court.
>
> 27. The grievance agitated by the respondent did not deserve to be addressed on merits, for doctrine of delay and laches had already visited his claim like the chill of death which does not spare anyone even the one who fosters the idea and nurtures the attitude that he can sleep to avoid death and eventually proclaim "Deo gratias" 'thanks to God'.
> 28.Another aspect needs to be stated. A writ court while deciding a writ petition is required to remain alive to the nature of the claim and the unexplained delay on the part of the writ petitioner. Stale claims are not to be adjudicated unless noninterference would cause grave injustice. The present case, need less to emphasise, did not justify adjudication. It deserved to be thrown overboard at the very threshold, for the writ petitioner had accepted the order of dismissal for half a decade and cultivated the feeling that he could freeze time and forever remain in the realm of constant present."

11. Following the law pronounced by the Apex Court, this Court has also laid down similar principles in LPA No.317 of 2010, titled Sanatan Dharam Adarsh Sanskrit College and Others Vs. Ramesh Chander Ladohia and Others, decided on 25th May, 2016.

12. Applying the test to the instant case, the petitioner is also caught by delay, laches, waiver and acquiescence.

13. Having said so, the writ petition deserves to be dismissed and the same is dismissed accordingly, alongwith pending CMPs, if any.

3. Learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner has argued that the petitioner is innocent and is falsely implicated in this case and he may be released on bail. He has further argued that even the quantity of 104 grams shows that it was little more than 100 grams. The petitioner is a student and he may be released on bail under the above mentioned circumstances.

4. Learned Additional Advocate General has argued that the petitioner has committed serious crime and, in fact, he is spoiling his as well as the lives of other students and the manner in which the crime has been committed makes it a fit case where the judicial discretion is not required to be exercised in favour of the petitioner.

5. To appreciate the arguments of the learned counsel for the parties, I have gone through the police file and relevant record carefully.

6. Taking into consideration the over all aspects of the case and without discussing them at this stage, this Court finds that the petitioner is permanent resident of District Mandi, Himachal Pradesh and there are no chances of the petitioner to tamper with the prosecution evidence and flee from justice. The interest of justice demands that judicial discretion to admit the petitioner on bail is required to be exercised in favour of the petitioner. So, it is ordered that the petitioner be released on bail, on furnishing personal bond to the sum of `50,000/- (rupees fifty thousand only) with one surety in the like amount to the satisfaction of learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Mandi. (Para-5 to 14)

Cases referred:

Ram Kishan Vs. Tarun Bajaj and others 2014 AIR SCW 1218
Union of India and another vs. Narendra Singh, (2008) 2, SCC 750

For the Petitioner : Ms. Archana Dutt, Advocate.
For the Respondents : Mr. Ashok Sharma, Assistant Solicitor General of India, with Mr. Adarsh Sharma, Advocate,

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Tarlok Singh Chauhan, Judge.

The petitioner has filed this Contempt Petition under Section12 of the Contempt of Courts Act (for short 'Act') alleging therein that the respondents have deliberately and intentionally disobeyed the judgment passed by this Court on 27.3.2008 in CWP No. 780 of 2004 and thereby made themselves liable for being punished and prosecuted under the Act.

2. It is averred that the petitioner while working as a Senior Telecom Officer Assistant (General) was wrongly denied her promotion to the post of Junior Telecom Officer (for short 'JTO') against the 15% quota provided for the departmental candidates through a competitive examination. The petitioner filed CWP No. 780 of 2004, which was allowed by this Court vide judgment dated 27.3.2008 and the respondents were directed to consider her case for promotion to the aforesaid post from the due date against 19 available vacancies till the year 1999 within a period of six weeks.

3. It is not in dispute that not only the review, but the LPA No. 65 of 2008 and SLP (C) No.15390 of 2015 assailing the aforesaid order have all been dismissed, meaning thereby that the judgment rendered by this Court in CWP No. 780 of 2004 has attained finality. The grievance of the petitioner is that despite the judgment having been attained finality, the respondents have failed to implement the same, thereby making themselves liable for being dealt with under the Act.

4. The respondents have filed their reply wherein at the outset they have tendered unconditional apology. However, on merits, it has been averred that not only the judgment passed by this Court has been implemented in its letter and spirit, rather the petitioner has wrongly been promoted from anterior date and that apart, due to inadvertence on the part of the department has also been paid the excess amount of Rs.2,26,856/-. This position is contested by the petitioner by filing rejoinder wherein it is alleged that the A.G.M.(Admn.) of the department had ordered the grant of all benefits to the petitioner w.e.f. 2.9.2002 and the same being a conscious decision, therefore, the respondents at this stage cannot take u-turn and deny the benefits or else that would aggravate the contempt already committed.

We have heard learned counsel for the parties and also gone through the records of the case carefully and meticulously.

5. It is not in dispute that the Senior Telecom Officer Assistant (General) is the feeder category for promotion to the post of JTO and the services are regulated by the Rules called "The Junior Telecom Officers Recruitment Rules, 1956". In terms thereof, 50% vacancies of the posts of Junior Telecom Officers are required to be filled up by way of direct recruitment, whereas the remaining 50% by way of departmental promotion/transfer of vacancies. As regards, the bifurcation of 50% quota for the departmental promotion, 15% posts of these are to be filled up by promotion of departmental candidates, through a competitive examination.

6. It is further not in dispute that even as per the judgment rendered by this Court, the case of the petitioner was required to be considered against 15% quota against 19 available vacancies till the year 1999. However, it is the specific case of the respondents that instead of considering the case of the petitioner under 15% quota, they erroneously considered her case under 35% quota and thereby the petitioner has not only been promoted from anterior date, but has also erroneously been paid an excess amount of Rs.2,26,856/- as would be evident from para-2 of the reply, which reads thus:

> "2. That it is humbly submitted that the judgment passed by this Hon'ble Court has been implemented in letter and spirit. However, due to inadvertence, the petitioner was granted the consequential benefits w.e.f. 22.9.2002 by taking Shri Inder Singh Bhandari as the last person promoted under 15% quota whereas the said Sh. Inder Singh Bhandari was from 35% quota. When the mistake came to the notice of the department that the case of the petitioner was required to be considered under 15% quota as per the judgment dated 27.3.2008 and the claim of the petitioner was against 15% quota, under that quota Shri Kuldeep Singh (Benchmark) was promoted as JTO on 27.11.2003 as the last candidate against 15% quota against the vacancies upto 1999 on merits, as such, the case of the petitioner was required to be considered from the said date. Not only this, the petitioner due to the wrong date of promotion was granted the benefit of E-2 (SDE) Sub Divisional Engineer under EPP (Executive Promotion Policy) which has been granted to her w.e.f. 1.1.2007 wrongly vide letter dated 3.3.2015 and subsequently, on the basis of mistake the petitioner was entitled to E-3 i.e. Sr. SDE Grade but the same is pending due to the fact that the date of the promotion of the petitioner is required to be changed from 2.9.2002 to 27.11.2003. As such, the other benefits can be allowed only after necessary correction in view of the proposed changed date of promotion i.e. 27.11.2003. It is further submitted that the department was contesting the matter before this Hon'ble court and after the disposal of the matter the judgment rendered by the Hon'ble Single Judge has been implemented in letter and spirit. The petitioner was granted the arrears amounting to Rs.9,96,342/- however, due to inadvertence referred earlier an amount of Rs.2,26,856/- (calculated from 2.9.2002 to March 2016) in excess was paid to the petitioner which is liable to be recovered from the petitioner.

7. It would be observed that there is virtually no denial or rebuttal to the contention raised by the respondents. The petitioner did not dispute that Inder Singh Bhandari in fact belong to 35% quota and only claimed that he was junior to the petitioner. That apart, the petitioner further did not dispute that she had erroneously been promoted from anterior date and would only rely upon and harp around the decision taken by the A.G.M.(Admn.) and claimed that the respondents are now trying to sit over the judgment passed by this Court and affirmed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court. It is apt to reproduce para-2 of the rejoinder, which reads thus:

"2. That the contents of this para is denied. It is humbly submitted that while passing the judgment, the Hon'ble Court was pleased to grant promotion to the petitioner to the post of Junior Telecom Officer (JTO) from the due date against 19 vacancies available till the year 1999 within a period of six weeks alongwith all consequential benefits. It is humbly submitted that despite the fact that the benefit was to be granted w.e.f. 1999, but the respondents calculated the benefit to the petitioners w.e.f. 2.9.2002 as has been granted to Sh. Inder Singh Bhandari who was junior to the petitioner and all the arrears and further benefits was also granted to the petitioner and this fixation and promotion w.e.f. 2.9.2002 was also accepted by the petitioner.

That vide order dated 01.08.2014, the A.G.M. (Admn.) has issued a letter and in which it has been mentioned that all the benefits to the petitioner may be granted w.e.f. 2.9.2002 and even benefit of promotion and seniority to 6 non-petitioner was also fixed. Copy of order dated 01.08.2014 is placed on record as Annexure C-8 for the kind perusal of this Hon'ble Court. Now, the respondents of their own has sit over the judgment of this Hon'ble Court which was affirmed by the Hon'ble Apex Court and has taken a decision to grant the benefit to the petitioner w.e.f. 27.11.2003 as the last candidate against 15% quota was granted, this action of the respondent is highly contemptuous and required to be dealt under the Contempt of Courts Act. It is submitted that a conscious was taken by the Corporation Office (Personnel)II) Section, New Delhi, whereby they have taken a decision to include the name of the petitioner Smt. Bhadra Sheela (JTO) in the All India Eligibility List alongwith 1999 recruitees in compliance of the judgment of this Hon'ble Court. Copy of the decision taken by the Corporate Office dated 12.06.2015 is annexed herewith as Annexure C-9. Thereafter in pursuance to the decision, the name of the petitioner was included in the All India Eligibility List which HR No. 199002179. Copy of letter dated 16.06.2015 is annexed as Annexure C-10.

That even the department has taken a decision to grant E-1,E-2 and E-3 promotion to the petitioner as per the judgment of the Hon'ble High Court. It is further submitted that in the earlier contempt petition which was rendered infructuous only when the A.G.M.(Admn.) had filed an affidavit before this Hon'ble Court by stating that all the benefits as per the judgment has been granted to the applicant. Copy of the letters which was furnished by the respondent before the Hon'ble Court is annexed as Annexure C-11. It is important to mention here that all the benefits was granted to the petitioner after approval was taken from the Corporate Office, New Delhi and now taking U-Turn by the A.G.M. (Admn.) at Shimla is more contemptuous and are required to be dealt with under the Act."

8. It is more than settled that while dealing with the contempt petitions, the Courts are not required to travel beyond the four corners of order, which is alleged to have been disobeyed or disregarded deliberately and willfully. In this connection, it shall be apposite to make a fruitful recapitulation of the judgment rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Ram Kishan Vs. Tarun Bajaj and others 2014 AIR SCW 1218, wherein it was held that:-

"9. Contempt jurisdiction conferred onto the law courts power to punish an offender for his willful disobedience/contumacious conduct or obstruction to the majesty of law, for the reason that respect and authority commanded by the courts of law are the greatest guarantee to an ordinary citizens that his rights shall be protected and the entire democratic fabric of the society will crumble down if the respect of the judiciary is undermined. Undoubtedly, the contempt jurisdiction is a powerful weapon in the hands of the courts of law but that by itself operates as a string of caution and unless, thus, otherwise satisfied beyond reasonable doubt, it would neither fair nor reasonable for the law courts to exercise jurisdiction under the Act. The proceedings are quasi- criminal in nature, and therefore, standard of proof required in these proceedings is beyond all reasonable doubt. It would rather be hazardous to impose sentence for contempt on the authorities in exercise of contempt jurisdiction on mere probabilities. (Vide: V.G. Nigam & Ors. v. Kedar Nath Gupta & Anr., AIR 1992 SC 2153; Chhotu Ram v. Urvashi Gulati & Anr., AIR 2001 SC 3468; Anil Ratan Sarkar & Ors. v. Hirak Ghosh & Ors., AIR 2002 SC 1405; Bank of Baroda v. Sadruddin Hasan Daya & Anr., AIR 2004 SC 942; Sahdeo alias Sahdeo Singh v. State of U.P. & Ors., (2010) 3 SCC 705; and National Fertilizers Ltd. v. Tuncay Alankus & Anr., AIR 2013 SC 1299).

10. Thus, in order to punish a contemnor, it has to be established that disobedience of the order is wilful. The word wilful introduces a mental element and hence, requires looking into the mind of person/contemnor by gauging his actions, which is an indication of ones state of mind. Wilful means knowingly intentional, conscious, calculated and deliberate with full knowledge of consequences flowing therefrom. It excludes casual, accidental, bonafide or unintentional acts or genuine inability. Wilful acts does not encompass involuntarily or negligent actions. The act has to be done with a bad purpose or without justifiable excuse or stubbornly, obstinately or perversely. Wilful act is to be distinguished from an act done carelessly, thoughtlessly, heedlessly or inadvertently. It does not include any act done negligently or involuntarily. The deliberate conduct of a person means that he knows what he is doing and intends to do the same. Therefore, there has to be a calculated action with evil motive on his part. Even if there is a disobedience of an order, but such disobedience is the result of some compelling circumstances under which it was not possible for the contemnor to comply with the order, the contemnor cannot be punished. Committal or sequestration will not be ordered unless contempt involves a degree of default or misconduct. (Vide: S. Sundaram Pillai, etc. v. V.R. Pattabiraman; AIR 1985 SC 582; Rakapalli Raja Rama Gopala Rao v. Naragani Govinda Sehararao & Anr., AIR 1989 SC 2185; Niaz Mohammad & Ors. etc.etc. v. State of Haryana & Ors., AIR 1995 SC 308; Chordia Automobiles v. S. Moosa, AIR 2000 SC 1880; M/s. Ashok Paper Kamgar Union & Ors. v. Dharam Godha & Ors., AIR 2004 SC 105; State of Orissa & Ors. v. Md. Illiyas, AIR 2006 SC 258; and Uniworth Textiles Ltd. v. CCE, Raipur, (2013) 9 SCC 753).

11. In Lt. Col. K.D. Gupta v. Union of India & Anr., AIR 1989 SC 2071,this Court dealt with a case wherein direction was issued to the Union of India to pay the amount of Rs.4 lakhs to the applicant therein and release him from defence service. The said amount was paid to the applicant after deducting the income tax payable on the said amount. While dealing with the contempt application, this Court held that withholding the amount cannot be held to be either malafide or was there any scope to impute that the respondents intended to violate the direction of this Court.*

12. In Mrityunjoy Das & Anr. v. Sayed Hasibur Rahaman & Ors., AIR 2001 SC 1293, the Court while dealing with the issue whether a doubt persisted as to the applicability of the order of this Court to complainants held that it would not give rise to a contempt petition. The court was dealing with a case wherein the statutory authorities had come to the conclusion that the order of this court was not applicable to the said complainants while dealing with the case under the provision of West Bengal Land Reforms Act, 1955.*

13. It is well settled principle of law that if two interpretations are possible, and if the action is not contumacious, a contempt proceeding would not be maintainable. The effect and purport of the order is to be taken into consideration and the same must be read in its entirety. Therefore, the element of willingness is an indispensable requirement to bring home the charge within the meaning of the Act. (See: Sushila Raje Holkar v. Anil Kak (Retd.), AIR 2008 (Supp-2) SC 1837; and Three Cheers Entertainment Pvt. Ltd. & Ors. v. C.E.S.C. Ltd., AIR 2009 SC 735): (2008 AIR SCW 7951)."*

9. While it is duty of the Court to punish a person who tries to obstruct the course of justice or brings to disrepute the institution of judiciary. However, this power has to be exercised not casually or lightly, but with great care and circumspection. Contempt proceedings serve a dual purpose of vindication of the public interest by punishment of the contumacious conduct and coercion to compel the contemnor to do what the law requires of him.

10. A question whether there is contempt of Court or not is a serious one. The Court is both the accuser as well as the judge of the accusation. It behoves the Court to act with as great circumspection as possible making all allowances for errors of judgment and difficulties arising from inveterate practices in Courts and tribunals. It is only when a clear case of contumacious conduct not explainable otherwise, arises that the contemnor must be punished. Punishment under the law of Contempt is called for when the lapse is deliberate and in disregard of one's duty and in defiance of authority.

11. Adverting to the facts, it would be noticed that the specific case of the respondents is that while implementing the judgment passed by this Court, they committed a mistake and if that be so, it is always open to the respondents to rectify and correct the same.

12. Similar issue came up before the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Union of India and another vs. Narendra Singh, (2008) 2, SCC 750, wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that the mistake of the department in promoting a person though he was not eligible and qualified, was correctable and it was further observed that mistakes are mistakes and they can always be corrected by following due process of law and that the employer cannot be prevented from applying the rules rightly and in correcting the mistake. It is apt to reproduce the observations as contained in paras 32 and 33, which reads thus:-

"32. It is true that the mistake was of the Department and the respondent was promoted though he was not eligible and qualified. But, we cannot countenance the submission of the respondent that the mistake cannot be corrected. Mistakes are mistakes and they can always be corrected by following due process of law. In Indian Council of Agricultural Research & Anr. v. T.K. Suryanarayan & Ors., (1997) 6 SCC 766, it was held that if erroneous promotion is given by wrongly interpreting the rules, the employer cannot be prevented from applying the rules rightly and in correcting the mistake. It may cause hardship to the employees but a court of law cannot ignore Statutory Rules.

33. As observed by us, Statutory Rules provide for passing of Departmental Examination and the Authorities were right in not relaxing the said condition and no fault can be found with the Authorities in insisting for the requirement of law. In the circumstances, the action of the Authorities of correcting the mistake cannot be faulted."

13. The aforesaid exposition of law makes it evidently clear that if the benefit has been awarded to an employee, which was not available to him and had been granted due to mistake of the employer, the same could be rectified after such mistake came to light and could be corrected at any time. In the realm of service matter, the employer can review any fault committed by him/them and this right to review one's own decision on account of mistake or fault is not foreclosed under law.

14. The petitioner was required to prove and establish on record not only her entitlement to the promotion from anterior date but also prove her entitlement to the excess amount paid to her and having failed to do so, we have no hesitation in observing that the petitioner has misused the process of the Court by initiating the instant proceedings so as to pressurize the respondents under the threat of contempt and to grant her what she otherwise is neither legally nor legitimately entitled to.

15. The weapon of contempt is not to be used in abundance or misused. Normally, it cannot be used for implementation of an order for which alternative remedy in law is provided for.

16. In view of the above discussion, we find no merit in this contempt petition and the same is accordingly dismissed.

For the Petitioner(s) : Mr.Rajiv Jiwan, Advocate.
For the Respondent(s): Mr.Surjeet Bhadu and Ms.Aashima Sharma, Advocates.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Tarlok Singh Chauhan, Judge.

Since common question of law and fact arise for consideration in these petitions, therefore, they were heard together and are being disposed of by way of this judgment.

2. As the petitioner does not dispute the entitlement of the respondent(s) (hereinafter referred to as the assessee) to the refund of excise duty, but has only contested the mode and manner of such refund, therefore, the seminal issue in all these petitions is whether the rebate claims of the assessee (s) were to be allowed in cash or sanctioned by way of re-credit.

3. However, before answering the question, brief facts as necessary for the disposal of these petitions may be noticed.

4. All the assessee(s) are engaged in the manufacture and export of cotton yarn and woven fabrics, both for domestic market as well as for export and excise duty leviable thereon was 16%. By a notification No.29/2004-CE dated 09.07.2004, the assessee(s) were granted relief in excise duty payable inasmuch as they were required to pay the duty at the rate of 4% on cotton yarn/fabrics and 8% on blended yarn/fabrics.

5. By another notification of the same date bearing No.30/2004-CE, the assessee(s) were granted total exemption from payment of duty on the products manufactured by them subject to the condition that no credit is taken on the inputs consumed in the manufacture of the final product. The assessee(s) started clearing the goods for export on payment of duty on export under claim for rebate. As per the declarations the assessee (s) had not availed Cenvat Credit on the inputs use.

6. The Assistant Commissioner, Central Excise, sanctioned the rebate claim in cash.

7. Aggrieved by the said order, the petitioner filed an appeal before the Commissioner (Appeals) which was allowed by holding that the adjudicating authority had erroneously allowed the rebate claim in cash and the same was required to be sanctioned by way of re-credit into their Cenvat Credit Account.

8. The petitioner filed revision petition against the order of Appellate Authority and the revisional Authority vide its order dated 03.02.2010 set aside the order passed by the appellate authority and upheld the order passed by the Assistant Commissioner and the same has not been impugned before us in these petitions.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioner has vehemently argued that the impugned orders are patently illegal and erroneous as the revisional authority had itself on an earlier occasion passed an order in another revision petition holding the assessee therein to be entitled to the rebate by way of re-credit into their Cenvat Credit Account instead of sanctioning the same in cash. Not only this, the said order has been upheld by the learned Division Bench of the Punjab and Haryana High Court at Chandigarh in CWP No.2235/2007 titled 'M/S Nahar Industrial Enterprises Ltd. versus The Union of India and another', decided on 11.09.2008 (Annexure P-7). It is further averred that the revisional authority has failed to take into consideration the various provisions of the Act, Rules and Instructions issued from time to time and has further erred in passing two contradictory orders.

10. On the other hand, learned counsel for the assessee(s) would argue that the orders passed by the revisional authority call for no interference as the same have been passed in conformity with the law.

We have heard the learned counsel for the parties and gone through the records of the case.

11. At the outset, it may be noticed that the Central Board of Excise and Customs (for short 'Board') has issued Circular No.687 dated 03.01.2003 wherein it has been clarified that the duty paid through the actual credit or deemed credit account on the goods exported must be refunded in cash.

12. It shall be apt to reproduce the relevant circular which reads thus:-

*"Circular: 687/3/2003-CX. Dated 03-Jan-2003

Rebate of duty paid from Cenvat credit account for exported goods to be refunded in cash

Circular No.687/3/2003-CX., dated 3-1-2003

F.No.267/57/2002-CX-8

Government of India

Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue)

Central Board of Excise & Customs, New Delhi

Subject: Payment of rebate amount of the duty paid from Cenvat credit account in cash-Regarding

I am directed to draw your attention to Board's Circular No.21/89-CX. 6, dated 11-5-89 issued from F.No.210/21/87-CX.6, Circular No.153/64/95-CX., dated 12-10-95 issued from F.No.209/47/95-CX. 6 and Circular No.262/96/96-CX., dated 6-11-96 issued from F.No.209/36/96-CX. 6 [1996 (88) E.L.T.T39] wherein it has been, inter alia, clarified that rebate could be sanctioned in cash in respect of the duty payment made through credit accounts of Modvat scheme on inputs or capital goods or deemed credit account. Subsequently, Board has been receiving representations from trade to say that the rebate is not being granted in cash.

2. The matter has been examined by the Board. It is the view that there is no discretion with the sanctioning authority to give the refund of the duty paid on goods exported through credit accounts. It is therefore clarified that the duty paid through the actual credit or deemed credit account on the goods exported must be refunded in cash.

3. Field formations may please be informed suitably.

4. Receipt of the same may be acknowledged.

5. Hindi version will follow."

13. Adverting to the contentions of the learned counsel for the petitioner whereby he has vehemently argued that the instant cases are covered by the judgment in M/S Nahar Industrial Enterprises (supra), suffice it to say that we have gone through the said judgment and find that the same is clearly distinguishable because therein the admitted case of the parties was that the assessee had paid lesser duty on the domestic product and higher duty on the export product, therefore, the Circular No.687 was inapplicable to the case. It was in this background that the Court then made the following order while dismissing the petition of the assessee.

"After giving our anxious consideration to the entire matter, we are of the opinion that this writ petition must fail. It would be noticed that there is no dispute regarding entitlement of the petitioner for refund, it is only the mode thereof which is the matter of contention. While the petitioner asserts that it is entitled to claim the entire refund in cash, it is the case of the respondents that the petitioner is entitled to cash refund only of the portion deposited by it by actual credit and for the remaining portion, refund by way of credit is appropriate. The first reliance of the petitioner is on the above quoted circular No.687. A reading of the same makes it clear that it did not deal with the distinction between the duty paid and duty payable. In our opinion, the said circular only laid down that the duty paid and payable would be refundable in cash. In the present case, as noticed above, the petitioner paid lesser duty on the domestic product and higher duty on the export product which was admittedly not payable. This circular can, thus, be of no avail to the petitioner."

14. Indisputably, this is not the fact situation obtaining in these cases as there was no dispute about the nature, quality, quantity, value, duty paid character, actual export of the goods and such claims of the assessee(s) having been verified within the time. Even the declaration filed by the assessee(s) to the effect that the value i.e. assessable value declared in ARE-I on which duty had been paid is the transaction value determined under Section 4 and the Range Officer had also verified the same and it is only thereafter that the rebate of duty mentioned in ARE-I was held admissible to the assessee(s). Once the assessee(s) are held entitled to the rebate, then obviously, in terms of Circular No.687, there was no discretion available with the sanctioning authority to give refund of duty paid on goods exported, save and except, in cash and the same could not have been paid by way of credit in the Cenvat Credit Account.

15. It is more than settled that the circulars issued by the Board are binding on the department and the department cannot be permitted to urge that the circulars issued by the Board are not binding on it. This has so been held in a series of decisions of the Hon'ble Supreme Court and reference in this regard can conveniently be made to Navnit Lal C. Javeri v. K.K.Sen AIR 1965 SC 1375, Ellerman Lines Ltd. v. CIT (1972) 4 SCC 474, K.P. Varghese v. ITO (1981) 4 SCC 173, Union of India v. Azadi Bachao Andolan (2004) 10 SCC 1, CCE v. Usha Martin Industries (1997) 7 SCC 47, Ranadey Micronutrients v. CCE (1996) 10 SCC 387, CCE v. Jayant Dalal (P) Ltd. (1997) 10 SCC 402, CCE v. Kores (India) Ltd. (1997) 10 SCC 338, Paper Products Ltd. v. CCE (1999) 7 SCC 84 and Dabur India Ltd. v. CCE (2004) 13 SCC 107.

16. In Commissioner of Customs versus Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. (2004) 3 SCC 488, the Hon'ble Supreme Court after examining the entire case law culled out the following principles: (SCC p.497, para 12)

> "(1) Although a circular is not binding on a court or an assessee, it is not open to the Revenue to raise a contention that is contrary to a binding circular by the Board. When a circular remains in operation, the Revenue is bound by it and cannot be allowed to plead that it is not valid nor that it is contrary to the terms of the statue.
>
> (2) Despite the decision of this Court, the Department cannot be permitted to take a stand contrary to the instructions issued by the Board.
>
> (3) A show-cause notice and demand contrary to the existing circulars of the Board are ab initio bad.
>
> (4) It is not open to the Revenue to advance an argument or file an appeal contrary to the circulars."

17. Similar reiteration of law can be found in a latter judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Union of India and others versus Arviva Industries India Limited and others (2014) 3 SCC 159.

18. In view of the aforesaid exposition of law, it is evidently clear that the circular issued by the Board cannot be assailed by the petitioner herein. Further, there can be no dispute that in terms of the said circular, there was no discretion vested with the sanctioning authority to give the refund of the duty on goods exported through credit accounts, rather the duty paid through actual credit or deemed credit account on the goods exported has to be refunded only in cash.

19. That being the legal position, we do not find any merit in these petitions and the same are accordingly dismissed, leaving the parties to bear their costs. Pending applications, if any, also stand disposed of. The Registry is directed to place a copy of this judgment on the files of connected matters.

For the Respondents	Mr. Ajay Sharma, Advocate, for respondents No.1 to 3. Mr. Amit Jamwal, Advocate, for respondents No.5 to 8.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Sanjay Karol, Judge

Defendants' application, so filed under Order 8 Rule 1A(3) of the Code of Civil Procedure, for placing on record original Will of deceased Jindu Ram, by leading evidence, came to be allowed by the trial Court vide order dated 19.3.2016, passed by Civil Judge (Senior Division), Court No.1, Hamirpur, Himachal Pradesh, in CMA No.49/16 in CS No.38/11, titled as Mansha Devi and others v. Kiran Bala and others, subject matter of challenge by the plaintiffs (petitioners herein) in the present petition, filed under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

2. Trial Court found the document necessary for adjudication of the controversy in issue between the parties. Despite delay, the application stands allowed to avoid multiplicity of litigation between the parties.

3. Plaintiffs, as indigent, filed a suit for possession of the land in question. It is not in dispute that they are claiming succession to the property originally owned by deceased Jindu Ram.

4. In the written statement, as is evident from Para-10, defendants refuted the plaintiffs' claim, on the strength of Will executed by the original owner in their favour.

5. Issues framed by the trial Court do pertain to the proprietary rights of the parties.

6. In the application dated 20.2.2016, it stands pleaded, though not substantiated, that there had been inadvertent and bonafide mistake on their part in not placing the document on record.

7. Relevant provision of the statute reads as under:

> Order 8 Rule 1A(3)
>
> "1A. Duty of defendant to produce documents upon which relief is claimed or relied upon by him.
>
> (3) A document which ought to be produced in Court by the defendant under this rule, but, is not so produced shall not, without the leave of the Court, be received in evidence on his behalf at the hearing of the suit."

8. Evidently, before the document is produced and received in evidence, leave of the Court is absolutely necessary. Now, what are the parameters, which the court is required to consider, while granting leave, is well settled. Intent in procrastinating the proceedings; deliberate delay; irrelevant documents/evidence; are some of the factors to be weighed in mind while deciding the application.

9. In the instant case, both the parties are claiming right over the property, originally belonging to deceased Jindu Ram. Whether he had bequeathed the property in favour of some of the defendants or as to whether succession opened up with his death, are issues which necessarily require consideration for complete adjudication of the controversy inter se the Parties.

10. It is in this backdrop, no fault can be found with the impugned order. It cannot be said that the Court below committed any error of jurisdiction. It was within the power of the Court to have allowed the application. It cannot be said that the Court overstepped or failed to exercise jurisdiction so vested in it. It also cannot be said that the order is illegal or improper. Mistake in not promptly placing on record the document has been held to be bonafide and inadvertent. Simply because another view is possible, this in itself would not be a reason sufficient to hold the order perverse.

11. One cannot shut eyes to the fact that parties hail from rural background and are not well conversant with the procedures of law. They only go by the advice of the counsel, who in fact was duty bound to have apprised the parties of their rights and adopted the procedure required to be followed.

12. By not allowing the document to be taken on record, serious prejudice would be caused to the defendants. In fact comparative mischief and inconvenience would lie in favour of the defendants/ applicants and not otherwise. After trial, arguments have to be concluded by the parties.

13. Mr. G.D. Verma, learned Senior Advocate, assisted by Mr. B.C. Verma, Advocate, refers to various judicial pronouncements.

14. Reliance upon a decision rendered by a Coordinate Bench of this Court in CMPMO No.363 of 2015, titled as Nirmal Singh v. Manohar Lal and others, decided on 8.4.2016, is misconceived, for it having been based on given facts and circumstances. What primarily weighed with the Court was irrelevancy of the document sought to be placed on record.

15. In State of Karnataka & another v. K.C. Subramanya & others, (2014) 13 SCC 468, the apex Court was dealing with the provisions under Order 41 Rule 27 of the Code of Civil Procedure and not the ones in question. In any event, the decision is distinguishable on facts and as such not applicable. To similar effect is the decision rendered by the apex Court in Union of India v. Ibrahim Uddin and another, (2012) 8 SCC 148, and Jagdish Chand v. Ambika Devi and others, 2014(2) Shim.LC 774.

16. In Madan Mohan Aggarwal v. Smt. Mansa Devi and others, 1985(2) PLR 206, the Court was dealing with a case where additional evidence came to be taken on record after the hearing in the suit stood concluded, but no judgment was pronounced. To similar effect is the decision rendered in Sat Pal v. Ram Kumar and others, 1992 PLJ 5, and Soma Devi v. Guin Devi, AIR 2003 HP 158.

17. The parameters, which are required to be considered by the Court, for exercising its jurisdiction under sub-rule (3) Rule 1A of Order 8 of the Code of Civil Procedure are different than the ones laid down under Order 41 Rule 27 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

18. For all the aforesaid reasons, present petition, devoid of merit, is dismissed.

19. Any observation made hereinabove shall have no bearing whatsoever on the merits of the main case. Parties, through their learned counsel, are directed to appear before the Court below on 24.10.2016. Trial is expedited and except for official witnesses, parties shall produce their evidence, if so required and desired, at their own risk and responsibility.

Petition stands disposed of, so also pending application(s), if any.

RSA No. 243 of 2006

Specific Relief Act, 1963- Section 38- Plaintiffs filed a civil suit seeking permanent prohibitory and mandatory injunction pleading that they are son and daughter of defendant No. 1- suit land is ancestral in nature- defendant No. 1 threatened to alienate the suit land and to raise construction on the same- defendants denied the claim of the plaintiffs – the suit was decreed by the trial Court- an appeal was preferred, which was dismissed- a second appeal was preferred, which was allowed and the case was remanded to the Appellate Court- the District Judge allowed the appeal- held, in second appeal that as per the record defendant No. 1 is recorded to be father of the plaintiffs- there is no evidence of divorce and the plaintiffs are to be presumed to be the legitimate children of defendant No. 1- the nature of the suit land was proved to be ancestral- injunction can be granted against the manager in case of waste or ouster – there is nothing on record to show that sale is to be made for legal necessity – defendant No. 1 has disowned the plaintiffs and will oust them from the ancestral land as well- the Appellate Court had wrongly allowed the appeal- appeal allowed judgment and decree passed by the Appellate Court set aside and that passed by trial Court restored. (Para-8 to 20)

Cases referred:
Sunil Kumar and another vs. ram Parkash and others, AIR 1988 Supreme Court 576
Sheela Devi and others vs. Lal Chand and another, (2006) 8 Supreme Court Cases 581
Suresh Chand vs. Siri Chand Jai, 2000 Law Suit (Del) 913

For the appellants: Mr. N.S. Chandel, Advocate.
For the respondent: Mr. Anand Sharma, Advocate.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Chander Bhusan Barowalia, Judge.

The present regular second appeal is maintained by the appellants/plaintiffs (hereinafter referred to as "the plaintiffs") assailing the judgment and decree passed by the learned District Judge, Chamba, in Civil Appeal No. 56 of 2004, dated 28.02.2006, whereby the learned District Judge, Chamba has set aside the judgment and decree dated 24.05.2004, passed by learned Civil Judge (Senior Division) Chamba, in Civil Suit No. 217 of 2001.

2. Brief facts giving rise to the present appeal are that the plaintiffs filed a suit for permanent prohibitory and mandatory injunction restraining the defendants/ respondents (hereinafter referred to as "the defendants") from raising any construction or disposing of land comprised in Khata/Khatauni No. 169/223, Khasra No. 7964/1, 7967, 7969, 7970 to 7978, 7989 and 7990, Kita 14, measuring 929 square yards, 2 square feet, situated in Chamba Shehar 1st, Pargana Panjla, Tehsil and District Chamba, H.P. (hereinafter referred to as "the suit land/property"). A simultaneous prayer for mandatory injunction was also made, in case any construction is raised during the pendency of the suit. As per the plaintiffs, they are son and daughter of defendant No. 1 (Shri Ishwari Parshad) and the suit property is alleged to be ancestral property. It is further averred that plaintiffs are joint ownesr-in-possession of the property in dispute. Defendant No. 1, who is father of the appellants, to deprive the plaintiffs their shares, threatened to sell the suit land and also started raising construction without keeping any share for the plaintiffs intact.

3. The suit of the plaintiffs was contested by the defendants and they have raised preliminary objections, viz., maintainability, locus standi and estoppel. On merits, the defendants have denied the relationship of son and daughter with the plaintiffs and it is further contended that their mother had left defendant No. 1 about 40 years back and was living with her parents. As per the defendants, the plaintiffs were born in the house of their maternal grand father. Therefore, the defendants have denied that defendant No. 1 is the father of the plaintiffs, so the plaintiffs are not entitled for any share from the ancestral property.

4. The learned Trial Court on 28.11.2002 framed the following issues for determination and adjudication:

> "1. Whether the plaintiffs are entitled to the relief of permanent prohibitory injunction, as prayed for? OPP.
>
> 2. Whether the plaintiffs are also entitled to the relief of mandatory injunction in the alternative? OPP.
>
> 3. Whether the suit is not maintainable in the present form? OPD.
>
> 4. Whether the plaintiff has no locus standi to file the present suit? OPD.
>
> 5. Whether the plaintiff has no cause of action? OPD.
>
> 6. Whether the plaintiffs are estopped from filing the present suit by their act and conduct? OPD.
> 7. Relief."

After deciding issue No. 1 in favour of the plaintiffs, issue No. 2 against the plaintiffs and issues No. 3 to 6 against the defendants, the suit of the plaintiffs was decreed for permanent prohibitory injunction and mandatory injunction was declined. The defendants preferred an appeal before the learned District Judge, Chamba and it is worthwhile to mention that earlier the appeal was dismissed by the learned District Judge, Chamba, and thereafter in the regular second appeal No. 288 of 2005, decided on 10.11.2005, whereby the case was remanded back to the Court of learned District Judge, Chamba, for the reason that Shri Ishwari Parshad, present respondent No. 1 herein, resiled from the admission made by Mr. H.N. Sharma, in the appeal before the learned District Judge, Chamba, the District Judge, Chamba, allowed the appeal vide judgment and decree under challenge. Present regular second appeal, was admitted on the following substantial questions of law:

> "1. Whether the observation by the first appellant court that the appellants do not appear to be the son and daughter of respondent Ishwari Parshad, is contrary to the evidence on record and perverse?
>
> 2. Whether the findings of the first appellant Court that even if the appellants be assumed to be the son and daughter of Ishwari Parshad, they have no right to seek the decree, restraining him from alienating that portion of the suit property which is admittedly the ancestral property, is against the law?"

5. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and gone through the record in detail.

6. The learned counsel for the appellants has argued that it is amply proved on record by PWs 5, 6, 7, 8 and Ex. PW-8/A that the plaintiffs are the son and daughter of respondent No. 1. He has further argued that the best case of the defendants would be that the mother of the plaintiffs has left defendant No. 1 (Shri Ishwari Parshad) and she lived in her father's house. The house of the father of wife of defendant No. 1 and the house of defendant No. 1 were adjoining/nearby. He has further argued that there is no allegation to the effect that the mother of the plaintiffs has any relation with any other person in the world and no divorce ever took place, therefore, the findings of the learned Lower Appellate Court are required to be corrected and the judgment and decree passed by the learned Lower Appellate court are required to be set aside and that of the learned Trial Court are required to be restored.

7. On the other hand, the learned counsel for the respondents has argued that the mother of the plaintiffs left defendant No. 1 39-40 years ago and there is no relationship of husband and wife and, in fact, defendant No. 1 has brought another lady as his wife from whom another son was born. He has further argued that the plaintiffs are not the son and daughter of defendant No. 1 as their mother left defendant No. 1 approximately 39-40 years ago then the filing of the suit. Further the learned counsel for the respondents has argued that no injunction can be granted against the 'Karta' of the family on the behest of one coparcener. To support his arguments he has relied upon the following decisions:

"1. Sunil Kumar and another vs. Ram Parkash and others, AIR 1988 Supreme Court 576;

2. Suresh Chand Jain vs. Siri Chand Jai, 2000 Law Suit (Del) 913; &

3. Sheela Devi and others vs. Lal Chand and another, (2006) 8 Supreme Court Cases 581.

8. PW-1, Shri Rishi Kesh, has deposed that Gian Devi was the wife of defendant No. 1 and the plaintiffs were son and daughter of Gian Devi. Shri Bhagat Ram (PW-4) has stated that defendant No. 1 is his brother-in-law (Jeeja) and he has three sons and one daughter, including the plaintiffs. Shri Prakash (PW-5) Superintendent, Boys School, Chamba, has deposed that as per the admission form, which is available in the school, Kuldeep Kumar is recorded to be the son of Shri Ishwari Parshad, and the certificate qua this effect is Ex. PW-5/A. Shri Parmesh Puri (PW-5) has also deposed that name of the father of the plaintiff is Ishwari Parshad and it is also recorded in the voters' list, certificate whereof is Ex. PW-6/A. Ms. Nisha Kumari (PW-7) produced the records from Senior Secondary Government School, Chamba. She has deposed that Chanchal Kumari is daughter of Ishwari Parshad and as per admission form No. 5095, she took admission on 10th April, 1976. Shri Om Parkash (PW-8) has produced the record from the Education Department. He has deposed that as per the Identity Card, Ex. PW-8/A, defendant No. 1 (Ishwari Parshad) is the father of the plaintiffs. Likewise, Shri Lakshmidhar (PW-9) certified that defendant No. 1 is the father of the plaintiffs. Therefore, there is ample evidence on record that defendant No. 1 is the father of the plaintiffs. Defendant No. 1 has also admitted that he never divorced Smt. Gian Dei. Therefore, it can safely be held that the plaintiffs are the son and daughter of defendant No. 1. Nothing from the record is emanating that defendant No. 1 divorced Smt. Gian Dei and also there is nothing on record which establishes that Smt. Gian Dei was leading immoral life. In the absence of any evidence to the contrary it cannot be held that during the subsistence of marriage the mother of the plaintiffs took divorce with defendant No. 1.

9. Now coming to the suit property, as per the plaintiffs, the nature of the property is ancestral property, however, the defendants allege it as self acquired property of defendant No. 1. Thus, as per the contentions of the defendants, the suit is not maintainable, as the suit property is self acquired property. Conversely, the plaintiffs have produced documents, Ex. PA to Ex. PH, and as per these documents, earlier the suit land was recorded to be owned by the father of the defendant No. 1 and the land was succeeded by the defendants from their father. As per the statement of DW-1 (defendant No. 1), some part of the suit land is ancestral and some part is his self acquired property. He has further unequivocally deposed that he cannot distinguish between the lands which is ancestral and which is self acquired. Entries, qua the revenue record was never ever challenged by him. He has admitted that Smt. Gian Dei was his wife. No record relating to the self acquired property has been produced by the defendants. Moreover, during the arguments before the learned Trial Court, the learned counsel for the defendants has admitted that marriage between Smt. Gian Dei and defendant No. 1 was never dissolved and plaintiffs were born during the subsistence of the said marriage. Nothing is emanating from the record that the suit land is self acquired. However, the available evidence goes to establish that the suit land is ancestral and no partition ever took place. Moreover, defendant No. 1 has himself admitted that suit land is ancestral land. However, in order to fill the lacuna he has further stated some part of the suit land is self acquired property. The available evidence goes to establish that the suit land is ancestral property and during the subsistence of marriage between defendant No. 1 and Smt. Gian Dei the plaintiffs were born. Therefore, the plaintiffs being son and daughter of defendant No. 1 are entitled to have share in the suit property. Defendant No. 1 has no authority to raise construction thereon for his exclusive use or to dispose of the same, without getting the suit land partitioned.

10. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Sunil Kumar and another vs. ram Parkash and others, AiR 1988 Supreme Court 576, has held as under:

"9. It has, however, been submitted on behalf of the appellant that the High court should have held that in appropriate cases where there are acts of waste, a suit for permanent injunction may be brought against the Karta of the joint Hindu family to restrain him from alienating the property of the joint Hindu family. This question is not required to be considered as we have already held that the instant suit for injunction as framed is not maintainable. We, of course, make it clear that in case of waste or ouster an injunction may be granted against the Manager of the joint Hindu family at the instance of the coparcener. But nonetheless a blanket injunction restraining permanently from alienating the property of the joint Hindu family even in the case of legal necessity, cannot be granted. It further appears that the defendant No. 1, Ram Parkash entered into the agreement of sale stating that he is the owner of the suit property. The plaintiff-appellants claim the suit property as ancestral property and they as coparceners of joint Hindu Mitakshara family have equal shares with their father in the suit property. The question whether the suit property is the self-acquired property of the father of it is the ancestral property has to be decided before granting any relief. The suit being one for permanent injunction, this question cannot be gone into and decided. It is also pertinent to note in this connection that the case of specific performance of agreement of sale bearing suit No. 570 of 1978 had already been decreed on 11th May, 1981 by the Sub Judge, 1st Class, Kaithal."

11. From the above, it is clear that the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that in case of waste or ouster, an injunction may be granted against the Manager of the joint Hindu family at the instance of the coparcener. In the present case, the specific stand of defendant No. 1 is that the plaintiffs are his son and daughter. This shows that defendant No. 1 want to oust them for the reason that he married another lady without divorcing the mother of plaintiffs No. 1 and 2. The mother of plaintiffs No. 1 and 2 kept on residing in the house of her parents till death and the maternal grant father of the plaintiffs has admitted them in the 8th standard. However, before that it recorded in the school record that it is defendant No. 1 who is their father.

12. Interestingly, defendant No. 1, who was a prudent person and capable to marry another lady during the lifetime of his wife has nowhere stated that he was not having any access to the mother of the plaintiffs. He has nowhere stated that with whom the mother of the plaintiffs had any relations. It has clearly come on record that the houses of maternal grand father of the plaintiffs and defendant were adjoining. In these circumstances, the stand taken by defendant No. 1, shows that he, in order to out the plaintiffs from the suit land, is going to sell the ancestral land.

13. It has come on record that plaintiffs are the son and daughter of defendant No. 1. It is very strange that defendant No. 1 in spite of rearing his son and daughter has left them at the mercy of his father-in-law, that is, the maternal grant father of the plaintiffs. He has left their mother, who is no more in this world, as she died in the year 2003.

14. True it is that defendant No. 1 married another child from his second wife, but that does not mean that defendant No. 1 has occasion to make the plaintiffs orphan when he was the father of the plaintiffs. Therefore, from the ratio of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the judgment (supra) it is clear that an injunction can be granted in such like cases.

15. The Hon'ble Supreme court in Sheela Devi and others vs. Lal Chand and another, (2006) 8 Supreme Court Cases 581, has held as under:

"12. The principle of law applicable in this case is that so long a property remains in the hands of a single person, the same was to be treated as a separate property, and thus such a person would be entitled to dispose of the coparcenary property as the same were his separate property, but, if a son is subsequently born to him or adopted by him, the alienation whether it is by way of sale, mortgage or gift, will nevertheless stand, for a son cannot object to alienations so made by his father before he was born or begotten (See C. Krishna Prasad v. CIT, (1097) 1 SCC 160). But once a son is born, it becomes a coparcenary property and he would acquire an interest therein."

16. The ratio of the above judgment is not applicable to the facts of the present case, as in the present case, yet the alienation has not taken place, therefore, they have every right to maintain the present suit.

17. The Hon'ble High Court of Delhi in Suresh Chand vs. Siri Chand Jai, 2000 Law Suit (Del) 913, has held as under:

"6. Considering the appellant's case at its highest that only for the purposes of appreciating the arguments and deciding this appeal and not accepting the same to be correct that the suit property is a Joint Hindu Family Property even in that case we are of the view that such a suit for injunction by a son against his father restraining him from alienating the property alleged to be belonging to the Joint Hindu Family will not be maintainable. We are fortified in views of the ratio of decision of the Supreme Court in Sunil Kumar and another v. Ram Parkash and others, AiR 1988 SC 576. It was held that such a suit will not be maintainable because the co-parcener has got the remedy of challenging the sale and getting it set aside in a suit subsequent to the completion of the sale. The Supreme court further held that a coparcener cannot interfere in the acts of management of the karta. A father apart from being a karta in addition to the power of management has also power of alienation, transfer, sell of mortgage ancestral property to discharge his antecedent debt. The Court observed:

"It is true that a coparcener takes birth an interest in the ancestral property, but he is not entitled to separate possession of the coparcenary estate. His rights are not independent of the control of the karta. It would be for the karta to consider the actual pressure on the joint family estate. It would be for him to foresee the danger to be averted. And it would be for him to examine as to how best the joint family estate could be beneficially put into use to subserve the interests of the family. A coparcener cannot interfere in these acts of management. Apart from that a father – karta in addition to the aforesaid powers of alienation has also the special power to sell or mortgage ancestral property to discharge his antecedent debt which is not tainted with immorality. If there is no such need or benefit, the purchaser fakes risk and the right had interest of coparcener will remain unimpaired in the alienated property. No doubt the law confers a right on the coparcener to challenge the alienation made by karta, but that right is not inclusive of the right to obstruct alienation. Nor the right to obstruct alienation could be considered as incidental to the right to challenge the alienation. These are two distinct rights. One is the right to claim a share in the joint family estate free from unnecessary and unwanted encumbrance. The other is a right to interfere with the act of management of the joint family affairs. The coparcener cannot claim the latter right and indeed, he is not entitled for it. Therefore, he cannot move the Court to grant relief by injunction restraining the karta from alienating the coparcenary property.""

18. The law has been settled by the Hon'ble Supreme Court and by the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi. It is clear that injunction can be granted to a coparcener in the following eventualities:

1. If the actions of the Karta/Manager in dealing with the property, that is to change its nature and to alienate it in any manner, is without any legal necessity or betterment;
2. If the action of the Karta/Manager is mala fide and with a view to oust the coparcener from the share in the coparcenary property;

3. If the Karta/Manager is acting in a manner in derogation to the interest of the coparcenary property;
4. If the Karta/Manager with mala fide intentions do some act to debar some coparceners and give undue advantage to other coparceners permanently in the coparcenary property; and
5. Karta/Manager with his acts take away all the rights of the coparceners in coparcenary property.

In the present case, all the above ingredients are in favour of the appellant, as Karta/Manager, who is the father of the plaintiffs is denying:

(a) the relationship of the plaintiffs as his son and daughter knowing fully well that they are his son and daughter, which the plaintiffs have to prove and they have proved conclusively by leading cogent evidence and producing witnesses and record, as discussed above;

(b) the Karta/Manager/defendant No. 1 in order to give benefit to the heirs from his second marriage, though solemnized during the lifetime of his first wife without divorcing the first wife, who was the mother of the plaintiffs, by his acts is debarring the plaintiffs from their shares in the coparcenary property; and

(c) the Karta/Manager/defendant No. 1 with mala fide intentions, in order to oust the plaintiffs from their share in the coparcenary property, is going to change the nature of the suit land and alienate the same.

There is nothing on record to conclude that sale, if any, is to be made by the father for any leal necessity, but the evidence on record shows that defendant No. 1, who is disowning the plaintiffs, as his son and daughter, is going to oust them from the property, even if, they are proved to be his son and daughter, for the reason that he has married another lady during the lifetime of the mother of the plaintiffs without divorcing their mother, who was residing in the parental house, that is, the maternal grand father's house of the plaintiffs, which is adjoining the house of defendant No. 1. Under these circumstances, when the act of defendant No. 1 will result into an ouster of the plaintiffs, as has been held hereinabove, applying the law as enumerated above 1 to 5, injunction is required to be granted. There is nothing on record emanating on behalf of the defendant that there is any legal necessity for disposing of the property, but his only case is that the plaintiffs are not the son and daughter of defendant No. 1. In these circumstances, as there is no legal necessity, the judgments, as cited by the learned counsel for the appellants are not of any help to the appellants. Therefore, substantial question of law No. 1 is answered holding that plaintiffs are son and daughter of defendant No. 1 and the observations made by the learned Lower Appellate Court that the plaintiffs do not appear to be the son and daughter of defendant No. 1 are highly contrary to the factual position and the same are perverse. The substantial question of law No. 2 is answered holding that since defendant No. 1 has not pleaded any legal necessity for alienating the suit land, nor any legal necessity to change the nature of the suit land is there, it is held that the learned Lower Appellate Court has committed grave illegality in reversing the findings recorded by the learned Trial Court, especially when the act of defendant No. 1 was to oust the plaintiffs from the shares in the coparcenary property, which they had acquired being born out of the wedlock of defendant No. 1 and Smt. Gian Dei (mother of the plaintiffs), to whom admittedly defendant No. 1 has left, in order to marry second lady without divorcing Gian Dei, mother of the plaintiffs, and sent her to her parental house with the minors (the plaintiffs).

19. The net result of the above discussion is that the findings recorded by the learned Lower Appellate Court are perverse, without appreciating the evidence to its right perspective and the same are not sustainable in the eyes of law.

20. In view of the above, the appeal is allowed and the judgment and decree passed by the learned Lower Appellate Court is set aside and the judgment and decree of the learned Trial Court is restored. Accordingly, the suit of the plaintiffs is decreed in terms of the decree passed by the learned Trial Court.

21. Accordingly, the appeal stands disposed of, as also pending applications, if any. No costs.

State of H.P. and others. ...Respondents

CWP No. 3832 of 2015
Judgment Reserved on: 20.9.2016
Date of decision: 27.9.2016

Constitution of India, 1950- Article 226- Petitioner made an application for grant of land to enable him to carry out the vocation of carpenter – such application was sent for investigation to Tehsilar who submitted his report and recommended sanction of one marla of land- Deputy Commissioner recommended the case to the Divisional Commissioner, Mandi for grant of lease- objections were raised by Local residents for the grant of lease – a civil suit was filed, which was dismissed and thereafter the land was allotted on 10 years lease basis to the petitioner- a writ petition was filed against the petitioner on the ground that he had encroached upon the government land- writ petition was disposed of with a direction to pass appropriate order within 6 weeks- before action could be taken, the petitioner filed a writ petition – held, that the petitioner was a party to the earlier writ petition- he has not assailed the order passed in the previous writ petition- an order of ejectment has been passed by the Competent Authority and allowing the prayer of the petitioner would render the proceedings pending before the Competent Authority as infrucutous – the petition has been filed to scuttle the legitimate proceedings – hence, the same dismissed. (Para-6 to 8)

For the Petitioner: Mr.Sanjeev Bhushan, Senior Advocate with Ms.Abhilasha Kaundal, Advocate, for the petitioner.

For the Respondents: Mr. Shrawan Dogra, Advocate General, with Mr.Anup Rattan and Mr.Romesh Verma, Additional Advocate Generals, and Mr.J.K. Verma, Deputy Advocate General.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Tarlok Singh Chauhan J.

This case has a chequered history. In 1995, the petitioner made an application to the Deputy Commissioner for grant of land so as to enable him to carry on his vocation of carpenter. Such application was got investigated from the Tehsildar, Badsar, who submitted his report and recommended sanction of one marla of land over Khasra No. 337/1 in Village Jamli, Badsar in favour of the petitioner. On the basis of the report, the Deputy Commissioner recommended the case of the petitioner to the Divisional Commissioner, Mandi for grant of aforesaid land to the petitioner on 99 years lease.

2. However, before the Divisional Commissioner could take any decision on the basis of the recommendations, some of the inhabitants of the area raised objection against the grant of lease and filed a Civil Suit in the Court of Sub Judge 1st Class, Badar, which was eventually dismissed on 17.1.2002 and it is thereafter the Collector Hamirpur allotted the aforesaid land on 10 years lease to the petitioner on 16.6.2002.

3. Thereafter, in the year 2015, some of the inhabitants of the area filed CWP No. 2367 of 2015 against the petitioner on the ground that he had encroached upon the government land and such proceedings were stated to be pending before the Assistant Collector 2nd Grade, Dhatwal. On 10.8.2015, this Court disposed of the writ petition with a direction to the Assistant Collector 2nd Grade, Dhatwal to pass appropriate orders within six weeks after affording an opportunity of hearing to both the parties.

4. However, before any decision could have been taken in the above referred proceedings, the petitioner approached this Court by filing the instant writ petition, claiming therein the following substantive reliefs:-

> "i) That respondents may be directed to consider the case of the petitioner for lease of Khasra No. 337/1 measuring 1 marla on the basis of recommendations made vide annexure P-1, with further directions to the respondents to allow the petitioner to continue in possession of said land.
> ii) In the alternative it is prayed that direction may very kindly be given to the respondent to grant this small piece of land to the petitioner being a landless person and a houseless person, so that he may live with dignity."

5. The respondents have contested the petition by filing reply, wherein it has been averred that the petitioner has encroached upon the government land comprised in Khasra No. 1072/832/1 measuring 0-00-38 hectares situated in village Jamli and in addition to this land he had also encroached the land which was leased out to him by respondent No. 3 vide order dated 16.6.2002. It is averred that the lease granted by the Collector was subject to the condition that the petitioner could raise kachha shed over the same, but the petitioner has violated the terms of the lease by raising pucca shed and even the lease period had expired. It is further averred that in compliance to the directions passed by this Court in CWP No. 2367 of 2015 (supra) the Assistant collector 2nd Grade has already passed ejectment orders and the same has been placed on record as Annexure R-1. On the basis of such pleadings the respondents have prayed for the dismissal of the instant petition.

We have heard learned counsel for the parties and have also gone through the records of the case.

6. At the outset, it may be observed that we had a complete loss to understand as to how the instant petition is maintainable, more particularly in teeth of the directions already passed by this Court on 10.8.2015 in CWP No. 2367 of 2015, which reads thus:-

> "5. In the given circumstances, we deem it proper to dispose of this writ petition with a direction to Assistant Collector, IInd Grade, Dhatwal, to pass appropriate orders, after hearing both the parties, within six weeks."

7. It is not in dispute that the petitioner was a party to the aforesaid writ petition and therefore, was aware of these directions, yet without assailing the aforesaid order petitioner wants this Court to direct the respondents to consider his case for lease of land in dispute and permit him to continue in possession. This virtually amounts to asking this Court to sit in judgment over its earlier orders passed in CWP No. 2367 of 2015, which obviously is not permissible under law.

8. That apart, as per the directions of this Court the Assistant Collector 2nd Grade was directed to decide the lis in a time bound manner and the same has now culminated in ejectment orders being passed against the petitioner and the said order, as informed by the petitioner, has been assailed before the appellate authority. Therefore, acceding to the prayer of the petitioner at this stage would virtually render the proceeding pending before the competent authority as redundant and infructuous, which again is not permissible under law.

9. For all the above stated reasons, we are of the firm view that not only is the present petition devoid of any merit, but is a clever attempt to stultify the proceedings pending before the competent authority. The petitioner cannot by resorting to the extra ordinary jurisdiction of this Court stifle and scuttle the legitimate proceedings and thereby thwart the final result of the pending action before the competent authority. To say the least, the petitioner has abused the process of law and in normal circumstances, a petition of this nature would have invited heavy costs, however, taking into consideration the fact that the petitioner is a poor person, we refrain from doing so.

10. The writ petition is accordingly dismissed, so also the pending application(s), if any.

However, before parting it needs to be clarified that the authorities shall decide the matter uninfluenced by any observations made and findings if any recorded in this judgment. Costs easy.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, C.J.

This Letters Patent Appeal is directed against the judgment and order, dated 22nd June, 2007, passed by a learned Single Judge of this Court in CWP No.29 of 2004, titled Gian Chand Sharma vs. State of H.P. and others, whereby the writ petition filed by the petitioner/appellant herein came to be dismissed, and against the order, dated 30th June, 2010, passed in Civil Review No.50 of 2008, titled Gian Chand vs. State of H.P. and others, which was also dismissed by the learned Single Judge.

2. From the perusal of the facts of the case, it appears that Thakur Dayal, predecessor-in-interest of respondents No.4 and 5 (Roshan Lal and Jagdish Chand, respectively), filed appeal under Section 30(3) of the Himachal Pradesh Holdings (Consolidation and Prevention of Fragmentation) Act, 1971, (for short, the Act), before the Settlement Officer against the order of the Consolidation Officer, Hamirpur, dated 24th June, 1991. The said appeal was allowed by the Settlement Officer, vide order, dated 1st June, 1995. Feeling aggrieved, the petitioner/appellant filed revision petition before the Director of Consolidation of Holdings, which came to be dismissed vide order dated 17th October, 2002, constraining the petitioner to file writ petition, being CWP No.450 of 2003, titled Gian Chand Sharma vs. State of H.P. and others, before this Court, which was also dismissed vide order dated 30th July, 2003, on the ground that the petitioner had not annexed the copies of the orders passed by the Consolidation Officer and the Settlement Officer.

3. Thereafter, the petitioner again filed CWP No.29 of 2004 on 4th January, 2004, out of which the instant Letters Patent Appeal arises. The petitioner, by the medium of the writ petition, prayed for quashment of the orders, dated 1st June, 1995 and 17th October, 2002, passed by the Settlement Officer and the Director, Consolidation of Holdings, respectively. It was also prayed that action be drawn against the defaulting officers, on the grounds taken in the memo of writ petition.

4. The writ petition was resisted by the respondents by filing replies and the petitioner chose not to file any rejoinder. Thus, the averments contained in the replies, filed by the respondents, have remained un-rebutted.

5. Respondents No.1 and 3, in paragraphs 4 and 5 of their joint reply, have given details as to what were the facts and reasons, which were made the basis by the Settlement Officer in passing the order. It is apt to reproduce paragraphs 4 and 5 of the said reply hereunder:

> "Para No.4. Denied. That from the perusal of the record and order passed by the Settlement Officer, Consolidation of Holdings, Hamirpur dated 1.6.1995, it transpires that Khasra Number 107(Old) falls in the center of the land of respondents No.4 and 5. Thus, the Settlement Officer (consolidation of Holdings) has rightly allotted Khasra number 107(old) to Shri Thakur Dyal, predecessor in interest of Shri Roshan Lal and Jagdish Chand, present respondents No.4 and 5 respectively by consolidating it as per the provisions of the Consolidation scheme and as such no illegality or impropriety has been done to the present petitioner. Hence, this contention of petitioner is wrong and baseless.
>
> Para No.5. Denied. That there is no mention of any kind of orchard or residential house of the present petitioner in the old Khasra Number 107 in the order of the Consolidation Officer. Moreover, the process of 'Kayami abadi was competed in the year 1984 on the aforesaid land of village in question and type of this land has been classified as 'Khadetar'. From the perusal of the Annexure P-2 it is clear that in the year 1989-90, the land of Khasra Number 107(old) has been classified as 'Khadetar'. Moreover, the Settlement Officer (Consolidation of Holdings) has applied his judicious mind while deciding the appeal under Section 30(3) of the H.P. Holdings (Consolidation and Prevention of Fragmentation) Act, 1971 by taking back the excess of 0-4 Marla land from the present petitioner and making good the deficiency of Shri Thakur Dyal, predecessor in interest of Shri Roshan Lal. Moreover, Khasra Number 107 (old) falls in the Center of Khasra Number 108 and 869/116(old), which were possessed and already stood allotted to the predecessor in interest of Respondent Nos.4 and 5. Hence, the contentions raised by the petitioner in this para are vehemently denied."

6. Respondents No.4 and 5 (Roshan Lal and Jagdish Chand, respectively), in their joint reply to the writ petition, have specifically averred that the land was allotted in favour of the writ petitioner/appellant as per his suitability from the land of his brother Sita Ram, who was having excess land in his possession. It was further averred that the petitioner has not arrayed said Sita Ram as party in the writ petition.

7. From the discussion made hereinabove, it becomes clear that the order, dated 1st June, 1995, passed by the Settlement Officer, is based on the record as well as factual position existing on the spot. The Writ Court, after examining the pleadings of the parties, has rightly held that the Settlement Officer and the Director have committed no jurisdictional error or procedural irregularity.

8. The orders made by the revenue officers cannot be set aside in writ proceedings unless it is pleaded and shown that the revenue officers have committed any jurisdictional error or procedural mistake.

9. While going through the orders made by the Settlement Officer and the Director, one comes to inescapable conclusion that the orders were made by the revenue authorities keeping in view the revenue record, the factual position existing on the spot read with the law occupying the field.

10. It is settled principle of law that question of fact cannot be gone into in writ proceedings.

11. The apex Court, in case titled Bhuvnesh Kumar Dwivedi versus M/s. Hindalco Industries Ltd., reported in 2014 AIR SCW 3157, held that question of fact cannot be interfered with by the Writ Court. It is apt to reproduce paragraph 18 of the said judgment herein.

"18. A careful reading of the judgments reveals that the High Court can interfere with an Order of the Tribunal only on the procedural level and in cases, where the decision of the lower courts has been arrived at in gross violation of the legal principles. The High Court shall interfere with factual aspect placed before the Labour Courts only when it is convinced that the Labour Court has made patent mistakes in admitting evidence illegally or have made grave errors in law in coming to the conclusion on facts. The High Court granting contrary relief under Articles 226 and 227 of the Constitution amounts to exceeding its jurisdiction conferred upon it. Therefore, we accordingly answer the point No. 1 in favour of the appellant"

12. This Court in a series of cases, being CWP No. 4622 of 2013, titled as M/s Himachal Futuristic Communications Ltd. vs. State of H.P. and another; LPA No. 23 of 2006, titled as Ajmer Singh versus State of H.P. and others, decided on 21st August, 2014; LPA No. 125 of 2014, titled as M/s. Delux Enterprises versus H.P. State Electricity Board Ltd. & others, decided on 21st October, 2014; and LPA No.143 of 2015, titled Gurcharan Singh (deceaed) through his LRs vs. State of H.P. and others, decided on 15th December, 2015, while relying upon the latest decision of the Apex Court in Bhuvnesh Kumar Dwivedi versus M/s Hindalco Industries Ltd., reported in 2014 AIR SCW 3157, has held that question of fact cannot be interfered with by the Writ Court. However, such findings can be questioned if it is shown that the Tribunal/Court has erroneously refused to admit admissible and material evidence or has erroneously admitted inadmissible evidence which has influenced the impugned findings.

13. This Court has in LPA No.485 of 2012, titled as Arpana Kumari vs. State of H.P. and others, decided on 11.08.2014, has held that orders passed by the Revenue

Authorities cannot be challenged in a writ petition unless the orders are made without jurisdiction or are passed in breach of mandatory provisions of law or have caused miscarriage of justice. It is apt to reproduce paragraphs 3 and 4 of the said judgment hereunder:

> "3. The Writ Court after examining all the orders and the averments contained in the writ petition came to the conclusion that the orders made were legal one and had been passed by the competent Authorities while exercising the jurisdiction vested with them. While going through the impugned judgment, it also came to our notice that when the Writ Court was about to dismiss the writ petition, learned counsel for the writ petitioner-appellant sought permission to withdraw the writ petition with liberty to file a civil suit, which prayer was declined by the Writ Court.
> 4. The orders, impugned in the writ petition, have been passed by the Authorities under the provisions of H.P. Tenancy and Land Reforms Act, 1972, cannot be made subject matter of the writ petition unless the orders are made without jurisdiction or having been passed in breach of the mandatory provisions of law or have caused miscarriage of justice. In the instant case, the Authorities below have recorded a finding of fact that the writ petitioner/appellant has violated the provisions of the H.P. Tenancy and Land Reforms Act, 1972. Thus, the writ petition was not maintainable."

14. It is not the case of the writ petitioner that inadmissible evidence was recorded and on the basis of such evidence, the orders were passed by the revenue authorities.

15. From the record of the writ petition, it also transpires that the petitioner, earlier also, had filed a writ petition (CWP No.450 of 2003), challenging the orders of the Settlement Officer and the Director, came to be dismissed vide order dated 30th July, 2003. It is apt to reproduce operative portion of the order, dated 30th July, 2003, hereunder:

> "Though the petitioner has assailed the orders of the Consolidation Officer as well as Settlement Officer (Consolidation of Holdings) passed in appeal, the copies of such orders have not been annexed with the present writ petition. In the absence of the copies of the orders, correctness or otherwise of the impugned orders cannot be gone into and on this short ground alone the present writ petition is liable to be dismissed and is accordingly dismissed."

16. From the above, it is clear that the earlier writ petition filed by the petitioner was dismissed on the ground that the petitioner had not annexed the orders impugned in the said writ petition. While dismissing the writ petition, no liberty was provided to the petitioner to file fresh writ petition for the same cause of action. The petitioner has not questioned the order, dated 30th July, 2003 passed in CWP No.450 of 2003. Thus, the second writ petition filed by the petitioner/appellant herein on the same cause of action was not maintainable. Perhaps, the said fact was not brought to the notice of the learned Single Judge.

17. Having said so, there is no merit in the appeal filed by the appellant and the same is dismissed. Consequently, the judgment and the order passed by the learned Single Judge, dismissing the writ petition and the review petition, are upheld.

For the respondents:	Mr. Varun Rana, Advocate, for respondents No. 1 and 2. Nemo for respondents No. 3 and 5. Mr. D.N. Sharma, Advocate, vice Mr. R.S. Chandel, Advocate, for respondent No. 4.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice.

This reference has been made by a learned Single Judge of this Court on noticing the conflicting judgments made by this Court. The matter was put up on administrative side before the Chief Justice and was ordered to be listed before the Division Bench. This is how the instant reference came up for consideration before this Court.

2. The learned Single Judge, vide order, dated 21st July, 2016, while recording the reasons as to why reference was required, has referred the following questions for adjudication by the larger Bench:

> "(i) Whether the claim petition under Section 163-A of the Motor Vehicles Act (for short the 'Act') was maintainable since according to the claimants themselves, income of the deceased was ₹ 6,000/- per month, i.e. ₹ 72,000/- per annum which is in excess of the upper limit of income i.e. ₹ 40,000/- provided under second schedule of the Act? and
> (ii) Whether the claimants, after pleading an income more than what is prescribed in the second schedule, can abandon a part of their claim and restrict the same to ₹ 40,000/- per annum or less so as to bring inconformity with the schedule?"

3. Before we deal with the questions (supra) and determine the reference, it is profitable to give a brief history as to how compensation was granted to the persons, who sustained injuries in the vehicular accidents or to the legal representatives of the persons, who sustained injuries and succumbed to the said injuries, as per the mandate of Law of Torts.

4. In earlier days, a suit was to be filed by an aggrieved person for grant of compensation and with the development of law, different legislation was made in order to provide speedy and better remedies enabling the aggrieved person to have compensation as early as possible.

5. The Apex Court in the case titled as Syad Akbar versus State of Karnataka, reported in (1980) 1 Supreme Court Cases 30, has dealt with the issue.

6. The Motor Vehicles Act came into force in the year 1939. Section 110 of the said Act provided for grant of compensation. The claim petition was to be filed by the injured-claimant or the legal representatives of the deceased, which was to be tried by the Tribunal headed by a District Judge. Thereafter, an amendment was made in the year 1982 and Section 92A was introduced in order to grant immediate relief by way of an interim award.

7. Thereafter, the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (for short "MV Act) came into force with effect from 1st July, 1989, replacing the Motor Vehicles Act, 1939. In the year 1994, the MV Act has gone through sea change with sole aim and object to provide speedy and effective relief to the victims, the details of which are given as under:

8. Chapter X of the MV Act, consisting of Sections 140 to 144, provides how to grant compensation 'On The Principle Of No Fault'.

9. Chapter XI of the MV Act mandates for insurance of the motor vehicles against third party risks. It contains Sections 145 to 164. Section 158 (6) provides that as soon as any information regarding any accident involving death or bodily injury to any person is recorded or report under this section is completed by a police officer, it is the duty of the officer in-charge of the police station to forward a copy of the same to the Claims Tribunal having jurisdiction. Chapter XI also contains Section 163-A which provides for compensation 'On Structured Formula Basis'.

10. Chapter XII of the MV Act contains Sections 165 to 176. Section 166 (4) mandates the Claims Tribunal to treat the police report relating to vehicular accidents forwarded to it under Section 158 (6) as an application for compensation under this Act. Section 167 provides an option to the claimants, who also have remedy available under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923 (for short "WC Act"). They can claim compensation either under the MV Act or WC Act.

11. The Apex Court has discussed the said provisions of law in a judgment rendered in the case titled as Jai Prakash versus National Insurance Company Limited and others, reported in (2010) 2 Supreme Court Cases 607. It is apt to reproduce paras 9, 11, 12 and 20 to 22 of the judgment herein:

> "9.The Legislature tried to reduce the period of pendency of claim cases and quicken the process of determination of compensation by making two significant changes in the Act, by Amendment Act 54 of 1994, making it mandatory for registration of a motor accident claim within one month of receipt of first information of the accident, without the claimants having to file a claim petition. Sub-section (6) of Section 158 of the Act provides:
> > "158. (6) As soon as any information regarding any accident involving death or bodily injury to any person is recorded or report under this section is completed by a police officer, the officer-in-charge of the police station shall forward a copy of the same within thirty days from the date of recording of information or, as the case may be, on completion of such report to the Claims Tribunal having jurisdiction and a copy thereof to the concerned insurer, and where a copy is made available to the owner, he shall also within thirty days of receipt of such report, forward the same to such Claims Tribunal and insurer."
>
> Sub-section (4) of Section 166 of the Act reads thus:
>
> > "166. (4) The Claims Tribunal shall treat any report of accidents forwarded to it under Sub-section (6) of Section 158 as an application for compensation under this Act."
>
> 10. .....
>
> 11. This Court in General Insurance Council v. State of A.P., 2007 12 SCC 354, emphasised the need for implementing the aforesaid provisions. This Court directed: (SCC p. 358, para 10)
>
> > "10. It is, therefore, directed that all the State Governments and the Union Territories shall instruct, ...all police officers concerned about the need to comply with the requirement of Section 158(6) keeping in view the requirement indicated in Rule 150 and in Form 54, Central Motor Vehicles Rules, 1989. Periodical checking shall be done by the Inspector General of Police concerned to ensure that the requirements are being complied with. In case there is non-compliance, appropriate action shall be taken against the erring officials. The Department of Road Transport and Highways shall make periodical verification to ensure that action is being taken and in case of any deviation immediately bring the same to the notice of the State Governments / Union Territories concerned so that necessary action can be taken against the officials concerned."

12. But unfortunately neither the police nor the Motor Accidents Claims Tribunals have made any effort to implement these mandatory provisions of the Act. If these provisions are faithfully and effectively implemented, it will be possible for the victims of accident and/or their families to get compensation, in a span of few months. There is, therefore, an urgent need for the concerned police authorities and Tribunals to follow the mandate of these provisions.

xxx xxx xxx

20. The Registrar General of each High Court is directed to instruct all Claims Tribunals in his State to register the reports of accidents received under Section 158(6) of the Act as applications for compensation under Section 166(4) of the Act and deal with them without waiting for the filing of claim applications by the injured or by the family of the deceased. The Registrar General shall ensure that necessary Registers, forms and other support is extended to the Tribunal to give effect to Section 166(4) of the Act.

21. For complying with Section 166(4) of the Act, the jurisdictional Motor Accident Claims Tribunals shall initiate the following steps:

(a) The Tribunal shall maintain an Institution Register for recording the AIRs which are received from the Station House Officers of the Police Stations and register them as miscellaneous petitions. If any private claim petitions are directly filed with reference to an AIR, they should also be recorded in the Register.

(b) The Tribunal shall list the AIRs as miscellaneous petitions. It shall fix a date for preliminary hearing so as to enable the police to notify such date to the victim (family of victim in the event of death) and the owner, driver and insurer of the vehicle involved in the accident. Once the claimant/s appear, the miscellaneous application shall be converted to claim petition. Where a claimant/s file the claim petition even before the receipt of the AIR by the Tribunal, the AIR may be tagged to the claim petition.

(c) The Tribunal shall enquire and satisfy itself that the AIR relates to a real accident and is not the result of any collusion and fabrication of an accident (by any 'Police Officer - Advocate -Doctor' nexus, which has come to light in several cases).

(d) The Tribunal shall by a summary enquiry ascertain the dependent family members/legal heirs. The jurisdictional police shall also enquire and submit the names of the dependent legal heirs.

(e) The Tribunal shall categories the claim cases registered, into those where the insurer disputes liability and those where the insurer does not dispute the liability.

(f) Wherever the insurer does not dispute the liability under the policy, the Tribunal shall make an endeavour to determine the compensation amount by a summary enquiry or refer the matter to the Lok Adalat for settlement, so as to dispose of the claim petition itself, within a time frame not exceeding six months from the date of registration of the claim petition.

(g) The insurance companies shall be directed to deposit the admitted amount or the amount determined, with the claims tribunals within 30 days of determination. The Tribunals should ensure that the compensation amount is kept in Fixed deposit and disbursed as per the directions contained in General Manager, KSRTC v. Susamma Thomas, 1994 2 SCC 176.

(h) As the proceedings initiated in pursuance of Section 158(6) and 166(4) of the Act, are different in nature from an application by the victim/s under Section 166(1) of the Act, Section 170 will not apply. The insurers will therefore be entitled to assist the Tribunal (either independently or with the owners of the vehicles) to verify the correctness in regard to the accident, injuries, age, income and dependents of the deceased victim and in determining the quantum of compensation.

22. The aforesaid directions to the Tribunals are without prejudice to the discretion of each Tribunal to follow such summary procedure as it deems fit as provided under Section 169 of the Act. Many Tribunals instead of holding an inquiry into the claim by following suitable summary procedure, as mandated by Section 168 and 169 of the Act, tend to conduct motor accident cases like regular civil suits. This should be avoided. The Tribunal shall take an active role in deciding and expeditious disposal of the applications for compensation and make effective use of Section 165 of the Evidence Act, 1872, to determine the just compensation."

12. The Apex Court in the case titled as Puttamma and others versus K.L. Narayana Reddy and another, reported in 2014 AIR SCW 165, has also laid down the same ratio.

13. The question is – Once the jurisdiction of the Claims Tribunal has been invoked and during the trial, evidence comes on record to the effect that the accident was outcome of rash and negligent act and income of the victim was more than ₹ 40,000/- per annum, whether the petition under Section 163-A of the MV Act can be dismissed? The answer is in the negative for the following reasons:

14. While going through the scheme, aim, object and mandate of Sections 158 (6) and 166 (4) of the MV Act and the ratio laid down by the Apex Court, it can be safely held that a claim petition under Sections 163-A or 166 of the MV Act cannot be dismissed on flimsy grounds and petition under Section 140 of the MV Act can be filed only under Section 166 of the MV Act, is based 'On The Principle Of No Fault' and is an interim measure.

15. The Second Schedule appended with the MV Act provides the income slab. Thus, petition under Section 163-A of the MV Act can be maintained in case the income of the victim of a vehicular accident is less than ₹ 40,000/- per annum.

16. In the case titled as National Insurance Company Ltd. versus Sinitha & Ors., reported in 2012 AIR SCW 10, the Apex Court held that in the claim petitions filed under Section 163-A of the MV Act, the claimants are not required to prove the wrongful act or neglect or default of the offending vehicle. It is apt to reproduce para 15 of the judgment herein:

"15. The heading of Section 163A also needs a special mention. It reads, "Special Provisions as to Payment of Compensation on Structured Formula Basis". It is abundantly clear that Section 163A, introduced a different scheme for expeditious determination of accident claims. Expeditious determination would have reference to a provision wherein litigation was hitherto before (before the insertion of Section 163A of the Act) being long drawn. The only such situation (before the insertion of Section 163A of the Act) wherein the litigation was long drawn was under Chapter XII of the Act. Since the provisions under Chapter XII are structured under the "fault" liability principle, its alternative would also inferentially be founded under the same principle. Section 163A of the Act, catered to shortening the length of litigation, by introducing a scheme regulated by a pre-structured formula to evaluate compensation. It provided for some short-cuts, as for instance, only proof of age and income, need to be established by the claimant to determine the compensation in case of death. There is also not much discretion in the determination of other damages, the limits whereof are also provided for. All in all, one cannot lose sight of the fact, that claims made under Section 163A can result in substantial compensation. When taken together the liability may be huge. It is difficult to accept, that the legislature would fasten such a prodigious liability under the "no-fault" liability principle, without reference to the "fault" grounds.

When compensation is high, it is legitimate that the insurance company is not fastened with liability when the offending vehicle suffered a "fault" ("wrongful act", "neglect", or "defect") under a valid Act only policy. Even the instant process of reasoning, leads to the inference, that Section 163A of the Act is founded under the "fault" liability principle."

17. The mandate of Section 163-A of the MV Act is to provide compensation 'On Structured Formula Basis' finally and is not an interim measure. Once it is granted, the victims cannot file claim petition under Section 166 of the MV Act for grant of enhanced compensation. But, in case the Claims Tribunal comes to the conclusion that the income of the victim is more than ₹ 40,000/- per annum, it is not supposed to dismiss the claim petition. If the claim petition is dismissed on this ground then the aim, purpose and object of Sections 158 (6), 163-A and 166 (4) of the MV Act would be defeated.

18. The Apex Court in the case titled as Deepal Girishbhai Soni and others versus United India Insurance Co. Ltd., Baroda, reported in (2004) 5 Supreme Court Cases 385, has dealt with the issue and held that claimants can file petition either under Section 163-A or Section 166 of the MV Act, is an option, rather, an election/exception. It is worthwhile to reproduce paras 52 and 57 of the judgment herein:

"52. It may be true that Section 163-B provides for an option to a claimant to either go for a claim under Section 140 or Section 163-A of the Act, as the case may be, but the same was inserted ex-abundanti cautela so as to remove any misconception in the mind of the parties to the lis having regard to the fact that both relate to the claim on the basis of no-fault liability. Having regard to the fact that Section 166 of the Act provides for a complete machinery for laying a claim on fault liability, the question of giving an option to the claimant to pursue their claims either under Section 163-A or Section 166 does not arise. If the submission of the learned Counsel is accepted the same would lead to an incongruity.

xxx xxx xxx

57. We, therefore, are of the opinion that remedy for payment of compensation both under Sections 163-A and 166 being final and independent of each other as statutorily provided, a claimant cannot pursue his remedies thereunder simultaneously. One, thus, must opt/elect to go either for a proceeding under Section 163-A or under Section 166 of the Act, but not under both."

19. In the case titled as Surinder Kumar Arora & another versus Dr. Manoj Bisla & others, reported in 2012 AIR SCW 2241, it has been held that the claimant has option to seek compensation either under Section 166 or under Section 163-A of the Act. It is apt to reproduce para 9 of the judgment herein:

"9.Admittedly, the petition filed by the claimants was under Section 166 of the Act and not under Section 163-A of the Act. This is not in dispute. Therefore, it was the entire responsibility of the parents of the deceased to have established that respondent No.1 drew the vehicle in a rash and negligent manner which resulted in the fatal accident. Maybe, in order to help respondent No.1, the claimants had not taken up that plea before the Tribunal. Therefore, High Court was justified in sustaining the judgment and order passed by the Tribunal. We make it clear that if for any reason, the claimants had filed the petition under Section 163-A of the Act, then the dicta of this Court in the case of Kaushnuma Begum (Smt.) & Ors. (AIR 2001 SC 485 : 2001 AIR SCW 85) (supra) would have come to the assistance of the claimants."

20. The Apex Court in another case tilted as Reshma Kumari & Ors. versus Madan Mohan & Anr., reported in 2013 AIR SCW 3120, has laid down the same principle.

21. In the case titled as United India Insurance Company Ltd. versus Sunil Kumar & Anr., reported in 2013 AIR SCW 6694, the Apex Court, while discussing the judgments in Deepal Girishbai Soni's and Sinitha's cases (supra), has referred the matter to the larger Bench. It is apt to reproduce para 5 of the judgment herein:

> "5. We find difficult to accept the reasoning expressed by the Two-Judge Bench in Sinitha's case. In our view, the principle laid down in Hansrajbhai V. Kodala's case has not been properly appreciated or applied by the Bench. In fact, another Division Bench of this Court vide its order dated 19.4.2002 had doubted the correctness of the judgment in Hansrajbhai V. Kodala's case and referred the matter to a Three- Judge Bench to examine the question whether claimant could pursue the remedies simultaneously under Sections 166 and 163-A of the Act. The Three- Judge Bench of this Court in Deepal Girishbhai Soni & Ors. v. United India Insurance Co. Ltd., Baroda, 2004 5 SCC 385 made a detailed analysis of the scope of Sections 166 and 163-A and held that the remedy for payment of compensation both under Sections 163-A and 166 being final and independent of each other, as statutorily provided, a claimant cannot pursue his remedies thereunder simultaneously. The Court also extensively examined the scope of Section 163-A and held that Section 163-A was introduced in the Act by way of a social security scheme and is a Code by itself. The Court also held that Section 140 of the Act deals with interim compensation but by inserting Section 163-A, the Parliament intended to provide for making of an award consisting of a pre-determined sum without insisting on a long- drawn trial or without proof of negligence in causing the accident. The Court noticed that Section 163-A was inserted making a deviation from the common law liability under the Law of Torts and also in derogation of the provisions of the Fatal Accidents Act. The Three-Judge Bench also held that Section 163-A has an overriding effect and provides for special provisions as to payment of compensation on structured formula basis. Sub- section (1) of Section 163-A contains a non-obstante clause, in terms whereof the owner of the motor vehicle or the authorized insurer is liable to pay, in the case of death or permanent disablement due to accident arising out of the use of motor vehicle, compensation, as indicated in the Second Schedule, to the legal heirs or the victim, as the case may be. The Court also held that the scheme of the provisions of Section 163-A and Section 166 are distinct and separate in nature. In Section 163-A, the expression "notwithstanding anything contained in this Act or in any other law for the time being in force" has been used, which goes to show that the Parliament intended to insert a non-obstante clause of wide nature which would mean that the provisions of Section 163-A would apply despite the contrary provisions existing in the said Act or any other law for the time being in force. Section 163-A of the Act covers cases where even negligence is on the part of the victim. It is by way of an exception to Section 166 and the concept of social justice has been duly taken care of.
> The above-mentioned Three-Judge Bench judgment was not placed before the learned Judges who decided the Sinitha's case."

22. The larger Bench has not yet decided the said reference and is still on the dockets of the Apex Court. But in para 5 of the said judgment, quoted hereinabove, it has specifically been held that filing a claim petition under Section 163-A of the MV Act is an exception to Section 166 of the MV Act.

23. At the cost of repetition, the Claims Tribunals have powers under Section 166 (4) of the MV Act read with Section 158 (6) of the MV Act and the Motor Vehicles Rules to treat any petition either under Section 163-A or Section 166 of the MV Act. The scope, aim, object and reasonable logic behind such legislation nowhere empowers the Claims Tribunals to dismiss a claim petition filed by the victim on the ground of income slab, who has chosen to file the same under Section 163-A of the MV Act with a hope that he will get compensation as early as possible.

The Claims Tribunals have the power to treat the same under Section 166 of the MV Act so as to redress the grievances of the victims. If the claim petition is dismissed on such grounds, that will defeat the purpose of the Act and will amount to succumbing to the technicalities.

24. While going through the aim and object of the MV Act, one comes to an inescapable conclusion that the wisdom of the Legislature was to provide compensation to the victims as early as possible and that is why amendments were made from time to time with a sole object that the claimants do not suffer and fall prey to social evils.

25. The Apex Court and other High Courts have held that the Courts should not succumb to the procedural wrangles and tangles, hypertechnicalities and mystic maybes and that should not be a ground to dismiss the claim petition and to defeat the rights of the claimants.

26. The same principle has been laid down by the Apex Court in the cases titled as N.K.V. Bros (P.) Ltd. Versus M. Karumai Ammal and others etc., reported in AIR 1980 Supreme Court 1354; Sohan Lal Passi versus P. Sesh Reddy and others, reported in AIR 1996 Supreme Court 2627; and Dulcina Fernandes and others versus Joaquim Xavier Cruz and another, reported in (2013) 10 Supreme Court Cases 646; and by this Court in FAO No. 339 & 340 of 2008, titled as NIC versus Parwati & others; FAO No. 172 of 2006, titled as Oriental Insurance Company versus Shakuntla Devi & others; FAO No. 396 of 2012, titled as Asha & others versus Moti Ram & others; FAO No. 4248 of 2013, titled as Magni Devi & others versus Suneel Kumar & others, decided on 13.03.2015; FAO No. 17 of 2008, titled as United India Insurance Company Limited versus Smt. Brijbala & others, decided on 20.03.2015; and FAO No. 186 of 2008, titled as Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. versus Shri Kishan Chand & others, decided on 01.05.2015.

27. The Apex Court in a latest judgment rendered in the case titled as Smt. Savita versus Bindar Singh & others, reported in 2014 AIR SCW 2053, has held that the niceties or technicalities have no role to play. It is worthwhile to reproduce para 6 of the judgment herein:

> "6. After considering the decisions of this Court in Santosh Devi (supra), AIR 2012 SC 2185 : 2012 AIR SCW 2892, as well as Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54, we are of the opinion that it is the duty of the Court to fix a just compensation. At the time of fixing such compensation, the court should not succumb to the niceties or technicalities to grant just compensation in favour of the claimant. It is the duty of the court to equate, as far as possible, the misery on account of the accident with the compensation so that the injured or the dependants should not face the vagaries of life on account of discontinuance of the income earned by the victim. Therefore, it will be the bounden duty of the Tribunal to award just, equitable, fair and reasonable compensation judging the situation prevailing at that point of time with reference to the settled principles on assessment of damages. In doing so, the Tribunal can also ignore the claim made by the claimant in the application for compensation with the prime object to assess the award based on the principle that the award should be just, equitable, fair and reasonable compensation."

28. The Apex Court in another case titled as Ningamma & another versus United India Insurance Co. Ltd., reported in 2009 AIR SCW 4916, held that it is the bounden duty of the Court to award just compensation in favour of the claimants to which they are entitled to, irrespective of the fact whether any plea in that behalf was raised by the claimants or not. It is profitable to reproduce para 25 of the judgment herein:

> "25. Undoubtedly, Section 166 of the MVA deals with "Just Compensation" and even if in the pleadings no specific claim was made under section 166 of the MVA, in our considered opinion a party should not be deprived from getting "Just Compensation" in case the claimant is able to make out a case under any provision of law. Needless to say, the MVA is beneficial and welfare legislation. In fact, the Court is duty bound and entitled to award "Just Compensation" irrespective of the fact whether any plea in that behalf was raised by the claimant or not. However, whether or not the claimants would be governed with the terms and conditions of the insurance policy and whether or not the provisions of Section 147 of the MVA would be applicable in the present case and also whether or not there was rash and negligent driving on the part of the deceased, are essentially a matter of fact which was required to be considered and answered at least by the High Court."

29. In Sinitha's case (supra), the Apex Court has held that it is open to the owner or the insurer to defeat a claim under Section 163-A of the MV Act by pleading and establishing through cogent evidence a wrongful act or neglect or default.

30. Sub-section (2) of Section 163-A of the MV Act provides that the claimant is not required to plead or establish the wrongful act or neglect or default of the owner of the vehicle. Perhaps that was the reason that the Apex Court in Sunil Kumar's case (supra) made a reference to the larger Bench, which is yet to be decided. So, we refrain from making discussion and return findings.

31. The Apex Court in the case titled as United India Insurance Co. Ltd. Versus Shila Datta & Ors., reported in 2011 AIR SCW 6541, has made discussions about the aim and object of the legislation and has also provided what is the procedure to be followed by the Claims Tribunals while determining the claim petitions. Five points were framed for determination in the said reference and points No. (iii) to (v) were further referred to a larger Bench. It is not known whether said reference has been answered. However, we have laid our hands on order, dated 12th November, 2013, in terms of which the appeal, which had given birth to the said reference, has been dismissed.

32. It is also worthwhile to record herein that in Sunil Kumar's case (supra), points No. (iii) to (v) framed in Shila Datta's case (supra) have also been referred to a larger Bench. Meaning thereby, the reference is yet to be answered. But, the findings in para 5 of the judgment in Shila Datta's case (supra) were not the subject matter of the reference and have attained finality. It is profitable to reproduce para 5 of the judgment in Shila Datta's case (supra) herein:

"5. A claim petition for compensation in regard to a motor accident (filed by the injured or in case of death, by the dependant family members) before the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal constituted under section 165 of the Act is neither a suit nor an adversarial lis in the traditional sense. It is a proceedings in terms of and regulated by the provisions of Chapter XII of the Act which is a complete Code in itself. We may in this context refer to the following significant aspects in regard to the Tribunals and determination of compensation by Tribunals:

(i) A proceeding for award of compensation in regard to a motor accident before the Tribunal can be initiated either on an application for compensation made by the persons aggrieved (claimants) under section 166(1) or section 163A of the Act or suo motu by the Tribunal, by treating any report of accident (forwarded to the tribunal under section 158(6) of the Act as an application for compensation under section 166 (4) of the Act.

(ii) The rules of pleadings do not strictly apply as the claimant is required to make an application in a form prescribed under the Act. In fact, there is no pleading where the proceedings are suo motu initiated by the Tribunal.

(iii) In a proceeding initiated suo motu by the tribunal, the owner and driver are the respondents. The insurer is not a respondent, but a noticee under section 149(2) of the Act. Where a claim petition is filed by the injured or by the legal representatives of a person dying in a motor accident, the driver and owner have to be impleaded as respondents. The claimants need not implead the insurer as a party. But they have the choice of impleading the insurer also as a party respondent. When it is not impleaded as a party, the Tribunal is required to issue a notice under section 149(2) of the Act. If the insurer is impleaded as a party, it is issued as a regular notice of the proceedings.

(iv) The words 'receipt of an application for compensation' in section 168 refer not only to an application filed by the claimants claiming compensation but also to a suo motu registration of an application for compensation under section 166(4) of the Act on the basis of a report of an accident under section 158(6) of the Act.

(v) Though the tribunal adjudicates on a claim and determines the compensation, it does not do so as in an adversarial litigation. On receipt of an application (either from the applicant or suo motu registration), the Tribunal gives notice to the insurer under section 149(2) of the Act, gives an opportunity of being heard to the parties to the claim petition as also the insurer, holds an inquiry into the claim and makes an award determining the amount of compensation which appears to it to be just. (Vide Section 168 of the Act).

(vi) The Tribunal is required to follow such summary procedure as it thinks fit. It may choose one or more persons possessing special knowledge of and matters relevant to inquiry, to the assist it in holding the enquiry (vide section 169 of the Act).

(vii) The award of the Tribunal should specify the person/s to whom compensation should be paid. It should also specify the amount which shall be paid by the insurer or owner or driver of the vehicle involved in the accident or by all or any of them. (Vide section 168 of the Act).

(viii) The Tribunal should deliver copies of the award to the parties concerned within 15 days from the date of the award. (Vide section 168 (2) of the Act).

We have referred to the aforesaid provisions to show that an award by the tribunal cannot be seen as an adversarial adjudication between the litigating parties to a dispute, but a statutory determination of compensation on the occurrence of an accident, after due enquiry, in accordance with the statute."

33. This Court also in the case titled as Smt. Asha & others versus Sh. Moti Ram & others, reported in Latest HLJ 2014 (HP) 595, while relying upon the various pronouncements made by the Apex Court, has held that granting of compensation is just to ameliorate the woes of the victims of the vehicular accidents and the hypertechnicalities, mystic maybes and procedural wrangles and tangles cannot be made a ground to defeat the social purpose of granting compensation.

34. In the case titled as United India Insurance Company Limited versus Smt. Samitra Devi & others, reported in Latest HLJ 2015 (HP) 85, this Court held that claim petitions cannot be scuttled away enroute on the ground that the claimants have not claimed the amount to which they are entitled to. Further held that the Claims Tribunal is within its powers to grant compensation more than what is claimed and the Appellate Court has the same powers even if the claimants have not filed appeal or cross-objections. It would be profitable to reproduce paras 27, 28 and 31 of the judgment herein:

"27. The Tribunal has also fallen in error in making such a finding. It is beaten law of land that compensation should be just and proper and claim petition cannot be scuttled away enroute on the ground that the claimants have not claimed the amount to which they are entitled to.

28. I believe that the Tribunal has lost sight of the mandate of Section 158 (6) of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (hereinafter referred to as "the MV Act") read with Section 166 (4) of the MV Act.

29. .....

30. .....

31. My this view is fortified by the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Nagappa versus Gurudayal Singh and others, reported in AIR 2003 Supreme Court 674. It is apt to reproduce paras 7, 9 and 10 of the judgment herein:

"7. Firstly, under the provisions of Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, (hereinafter referred to as "the MV Act") there is no restriction that compensation could be awarded only up to the amount claimed by the claimant. In an appropriate case where from the evidence brought on record if Tribunal/Court considers that claimant is entitled to get more compensation than claimed, the Tribunal may pass such award. Only embargo is – it should be 'Just' compensation, that is to say, it should be neither arbitrary, fanciful nor unjustifiable from the evidence. This would be clear by reference to the relevant provisions of the M.V. Act. Section 166 provides that an application for compensation arising out of an accident involving the death of or bodily injury to, persons arising out of the use of motor vehicles, or damages to any property of a third party so arising, or both, could be made (a) by the person who has sustained the injury; or (b) by the owner of the property; (c) where death has resulted from the accident, by all or any of the legal representatives of the deceased; or (d) by any agent duly authorised by the person injured or all or any of the legal representatives of the deceased, as the case may be. Under the proviso to sub-section (1), all the legal representatives of the deceased who have not joined as the claimants are to be impleaded as respondents to the application for compensation. Other important part of the said Section is sub-section (4) which provides that "the Claims Tribunal shall treat any report of accidents forwarded to it under sub-section (6) of Section 158 as an application for compensation under this Act." Hence, Claims Tribunal in appropriate case can treat the report forwarded to it as an application for compensation even though no such claim is made or no specified amount is claimed.

8. .....

9. It appears that due importance is not given to sub-section (4) of Section 166 which provides that the Tribunal shall treat any report of the accidents forwarded to it under sub-section (6) of Section 158, as an application for compensation under this Act.

10. Thereafter, Section 168 empowers the Claims Tribunal to "make an award determining the amount of compensation which appears to it to be just". Therefore, only requirement for determining the compensation is that it must be 'just'. There is no other limitation or restriction on its power for awarding just compensation."

35. The same principle has been laid down in the cases titled as Smt. Shrestha Devi and others versus Kishori Lal and others, being FAO No. 465 of 2009, decided on 1st July, 2016; and Dinesh Kumar versus Puran Singh and others, being FAO (MVA) No. 189 of 2011, decided on 5th August, 2016.

36. The proceedings instituted under Sections 163-A or 166 of the MV Act are to be taken to the logical end by following a summary procedure as per the mandate of MV Act read with the Motor Vehicle Rules.

37. The Apex Court in the case titled as Malati Sardar versus National Insurance Company Ltd. and others, reported in AIR 2016 Supreme Court 247, has held that the award passed in a claim petition cannot be set aside on account of lack of territorial jurisdiction unless it has caused prejudice because that will amount to defeat the aim, object and purpose of the MV Act. The ratio of the said judgment is that the Claims Tribunals/Courts shall reach the victims as early as possible and grant compensation to which they are entitled to as per the norms applicable. It is apt to reproduce para 14 of the judgment herein:

"14. The provision in question, in the present case, is a benevolent provision for the victims of accidents of negligent driving. The provision for territorial jurisdiction has to be interpreted consistent with the object of facilitating remedies for the victims of accidents. Hyper technical approach in such matters can hardly be appreciated. There is no bar to a claim petition being filed at a place where the insurance company, which is the main contesting parties in such cases, has its business. In such cases, there is no prejudice to any party. There is no failure of justice. Moreover, in view of categorical decision of this Court in Mantoo Sarkar,(AIR 2009 SC 1022) supra, contrary view taken by the High Court cannot be sustained. The High Court failed to notice the provision of Section 21 CPC."

38. The Claims Tribunals have the power, as discussed hereinabove, to treat the claim petition under Section 163-A or Section 166 of the MV Act, but that power can be exercised before final award is made. After passing such order, the Claims Tribunals have to provide opportunities to the parties to plead their case and take all defences available, so that no prejudice is caused to the parties, in order to ensure that the grievance of the claimants is redressed, which is the aim and object of granting compensation.

39. If a claim petition filed under Section 163-A of the MV Act is dismissed on account of income slab or on the ground of rash and negligent element involved, the claimants can file a fresh claim petition under Section 166 of the MV Act and can take all such grounds, but that would be against the concept of granting compensation and would defeat the very purpose. It would really be a travesty of justice to constrain the claimant(s) to file fresh claim petition under Section 166 of the MV Act for the reason that the claim petition can be filed at any time as the rigour of delay stands taken away by the amendment made in the year 1994 and Section 166 (3) of the MV Act stands deleted.

40. The Apex Court in the case titled as Dhannalal versus D.P. Vijayvargiya and others, reported in AIR 1996 Supreme Court 2155, has discussed the purpose of amendment made in the year 1994 deleting sub-section (3) of Section 166 of the MV Act and taking away the rigour of limitation. The ratio of the said judgment and the purpose of deletion of sub-section (3) of Section 166 of the MV Act is aimed at to provide compensation to the victims of the vehicular accident at any time in order to achieve the purpose of granting compensation in terms of the mandate of the MV Act.

41. In the given circumstances, it can be safely held that there is no legal impediment in treating the claim petition under Section 166 of the MV Act, which has been filed under Section 163-A of the MV Act and granting compensation.

42. If a claim petition filed for grant of compensation under Section 163-A of the MV Act is granted, the claimants are precluded from filing fresh claim petition under Section 166 of the MV Act for enhanced compensation because the award made under Section 163-A of the MV Act is final and operates as Res Judicata and Estoppel.

43. The Apex Court in Deepal Girishbhai Soni's case (supra) has also held that the proceedings under Section 163-A of the MV Act are aimed at to provide speedy and quick relief to the claimants and the award made is a final award. It would be profitable to reproduce paras 41 to 43 of the judgment herein:

"41. Section 140 of the Act dealt with interim compensation but by inserting Section 163-A, the Parliament intended to provide for making of an award consisting of a pre-determined sum without insisting on a long-drawn trial or without proof of negligence in causing the accident. The Amendment was thus a deviation from the common law liability under the law of torts and was also in derogation of the provisions of the Fatal Accidents Act. The Act and the Rules framed by the State in no uncertain terms suggest that a new device was sought to be evolved so as to grant a quick and efficacious relief to the victims falling within the specified category. The heirs of the deceased or the victim in terms of the said provisions were assured of a speedy and effective remedy which was not available to the claimants under Section. 166 of the Act.

42. Chapter XI was, thus, enacted for grant of immediate relief to a section of people whose annual income is not more than Rs. 40,000/- having regard to the fact that in terms of Section 163-A of the Act read with the Second Schedule appended thereto, compensation is to be paid on a structured formula not only having regard to the age of the victim and his income, but also the other factors relevant therefor. An award made thereunder, therefore, shall be in full and final settlement of the claim as would appear from the different columns contained in the Second Schedule appended to the Act. The same is not interim in nature. The note appended to column 1 which deals with fatal accidents makes the position furthermore clear stating that from the total amount of compensation one-third thereof is to be reduced in consideration of the expenses which the victim would have incurred towards maintaining himself had he been alive. This together with the other heads of compensation as contained in column Nos. 2 to 6 thereof leaves no manner of doubt that the Parliament intended to lay a comprehensive scheme for the purpose of grant of adequate compensation to a section of victims who would require the amount of compensation without fighting any protracted litigation for proving that the accident occurred owing to negligence on the part of the driver of the Motor Vehicle or any other fault arising out of use of a Motor Vehicle.

43. The submission of learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellants to the effect that Sections 140 and 163-A provide for similar scheme cannot be accepted for more than one reason. Payment of the amount in terms of Section 140 of the Act is ad hoc in nature. A claim made thereunder, as has been noticed hereinbefore, is in addition to any other claim which may be made under any other law for the time being in force. Section 163-A of the Act does not contain any such provision."

44. The appeal under Section 173 of the MV Act is alike the appeal under Section 96 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (for short, "CPC"). Therefore, the Court is under obligation to decide all factual and legal issues arising in a case.

45. The Apex Court in U.P.S.R.T.C. vs. Km. Mamta and others, reported in AIR 2016 Supreme Court 948, held that remedy under Section 173 of the MV Act and the first appeal under Section 96 CPC are alike and, therefore, the High Court has to decide all issues arising in the case. It is profitable to reproduce paragraph 24 of the said judgment hereunder:

"24. An appeal under Section 173 of the M.V. Act is essentially in the nature of first appeal alike Section 96 of the Code and, therefore, the High Court is equally under legal obligation to decide all issues arising in the case both on facts and law after appreciating the entire evidence."

46. Keeping in view the above discussion, it is not mandatory to file claim petition by the claimants because even a police report can be treated as a claim petition.

47. Having glance of the above discussions, the judgments made by this Court in the case titled as New India Assurance Company Ltd. versus Chanchal Devi & ors., reported in Latest HLJ 2014 (HP) 250, and FAO No. 394 of 2007, titled as Oriental Insurance Company Ltd. versus Meena & ors., decided on 11th July, 2014, are in accordance with the judgments made by the Apex Court (supra), and the judgments in the cases titled as Sudhir Mahajan versus United India Insurance Company Ltd. & anr., reported in 2007 (2) Shim.LC 305; Shanti Devi & anr. versus National Insurance Company & ors, reported in 2008 (2) Shim.LC 125; Satya Devi versus Bakshi Ram & ors., reported in 2009 (2) Shim.LC 381; and New India Assurance Company versus Smt. Veena Devi & ors., reported in Latest HLJ 2009 (HP) 770, are not in tune with the ratio laid down by the judgments made by the Apex Court, as discussed hereinabove, and are also not in accordance with the aim and object of the said Legislation.

48. The protection provided under Section 163-A of the MV Act is to the victims whose income slab is up to ₹ 40,000/- per annum and that remedy is not available to the victims whose income slab is more than ₹ 40,000/- per annum. If the Claims Tribunal comes to the conclusion that the income slab of the victim is more than ₹ 40,000/-, the remedy under Section 163-A of the MV Act cannot be pressed into service, but, as discussed hereinabove, it can be treated as claim petition under Section 166 of the MV Act by providing opportunity to the claimants to prove rash and negligent element, which is sine quo non for determining the claim petition under Section 166 of the MV Act and opportunity is also required to be provided to the respondents to raise all defences available to them in terms of the mandate of the MV Act.

49. The claimants cannot be permitted to abandon a part of their claim and restrict the same to ₹ 40000/- per annum in order to avail the remedy under Section 163-A of the MV Act. That is not the aim, object and scope of the Legislation. If that would have been so, then there was no need to prescribe the income slab and in case the claimants are allowed to do so, it will amount to re-writing the provisions of Section 163-A of the MV Act.

50. Having said so, the claimants/victims cannot be permitted to abandon a part of their claim and restrict the same to ₹ 40,000/- per annum in order to maintain the claim petition under Section 163-A of the MV Act.

51. It is worthwhile to record herein that the Division Bench of this Court in the case titled as Sukhwant Kaur and others versus Sher Singh and another, reported in 2008 (3) Shim.LC 93, has held that claim petition under Section 163-A of the MV Act was not maintainable in view of the fact that the income of the deceased was more than ₹ 40,000/- per annum (para 3); and the claim petition was treated under Section 166 of the MV Act in terms of para 4 of the judgment, but was dismissed on the ground that negligence was not proved.

52. Thus, it cannot be said that the judgment in Chanchal Devi's case (supra) is in conflict with the judgment in Sukhwant Kaur's case (supra).

53. The reference is answered accordingly.

54. Whether the appeal in hand be sent to the learned Single Judge for determination is also a moot question. The claimants have already suffered because of the procedure adopted, is travesty of justice and judicial process. So, we deem it proper to determine the appeal also.

55. The claim petition was filed under Section 163-A of the MV Act for grant of compensation, as per the break-ups given in the claim petition, on the grounds taken therein.

56. The respondents in the claim petition resisted the same on the grounds taken in the respective memo of objections.

57. Following issues came to be framed by the Tribunal on 26th October, 2007:

> "1. Whether the deceased Girdhari Lal died in an accident as a result of rash and negligent driving of Bus No. HP-09 A -0698 by the respondent No. 2 and on account of rash and negligent act of respondent No. 3, as alleged? OPP
>
> 2. If issue No. 1 is proved in affirmative, whether the petitioners are entitled for compensation, if so to what amount and from whom? OPP
>
> 3. Whether there has been breach of specific terms and conditions of the Insurance Policy because the respondent No. 1 has sold the vehicle to one Sh. Surat Ram, as alleged? OPR-4
>
> 4. Whether the driver of the vehicle i.e. respondent No. 2 was not holding any valid and effective driving licence at the time of the accident? OPR-4
>
> 5. Whether the vehicle was not holding fitness certificate at the time of the accident, if so its effect? OPR-4
>
> 6. Whether the vehicle was not having required route permit and there is a violation of the Policy and statute, as alleged? OPR-4
> 7. Relief."

58. The claimants have examined three witnesses and one of the claimants has himself stepped into the witness box. It is apt to record herein that the respondents, including the insurer, have not led any evidence. Thus, they have failed to prove the defences taken by them and issues No. 3 to 6 came to be decided against the insurer.

59. The claimants, owner-insured, driver and conductor of the offending vehicle have not questioned the impugned award on any count, thus, has attained finality so far it relates to them.

60. The appellant-insurer has questioned the impugned award mainly on the ground that the claim petition was not maintainable for the reason that the monthly income of the deceased was alleged to be ₹ 6,000/- per month, i.e. ₹ 72,000/- per annum.

61. This ground is not available to the insurer for the reason that, as discussed hereinabove, the claim petition cannot be dismissed on that ground and it can be treated as claim petition under Section 166 of the MV Act. Though, the claimants have averred that the income of the deceased was ₹ 6,000/- per month, but, the Tribunal has held that the income of the deceased was ₹ 3300/- per month. Thus, his income was not more than ₹ 40,000/- per annum, and the claim petition under Section 163-A of the MV Act was maintainable.

62. Even otherwise, if we treat the claim petition under Section 166 of the MV Act, rash and negligent driving of the offending vehicle by its driver has been proved, which is sine quo non for maintaining the claim petition and granting compensation under the said Section. In para 24 of the claim petition, it has specifically been averred that the deceased was travelling on the roof top of the bus and was hit on head by an over hanging branch of tree, which factum has not been denied by the driver and conductor of the bus. Allowing a person to travel on the roof of the bus, on the face of it, is an act of negligence and rashness of the driver.

63. In a case titled as N.K.V. Bros. (P.) Ltd. versus M. Karumani Ammal and others, reported in AIR 1980 Supreme Court 1354, a bus hit an over-hanging high tension wire resulting in 26 casualties. The Apex Court upheld the findings recorded by the Tribunal and the High Court that the accident had taken place due to the rashness and negligence of the driver of the bus despite the fact that the driver earned acquittal in the criminal case on the score that the tragedy that happened was an act of God.

64. The Apex Court in the case titled as Shivaji Dayanu Patil and another versus Vatschala Uttam More, reported in 1991 ACJ 777, has interpreted the words and expression 'use of motor vehicle' and held that these have a wide connotation. It is apt to reproduce paras 35 and 36 of the judgment herein:

> "35. In the same case, Windeyer, J. has observed as under :
>
> "The words 'injury by or arising out of the use of the vehicle' postulate a causal relationship between the use of the vehicle and the injury. 'Caused by' connotes a 'direct' or 'Proximate' relationship of cause and effect. 'Arising out of' extends this to a result that is less immediate; but it still carries a sense of consequence."
>
> 36. This would show that as compared to the expression 'caused by', the expression 'arising out of' has a wider connotation. The expression 'caused by' was used in sections 95(1)(b)(i) and (ii) and 96(2)(b)(ii) of the Act. In section 92-A, Parliament, however, chose to use the expression 'arising out of' which indicates that for the purpose of awarding compensation under section 92-A, the causal relationship between the use of the motor vehicle and the accident resulting in death or permanent disablement is not required to be direct and proximate and it can be less immediate. This would imply that accident should be,connected with the use of the motor vehicle but the said connection need not be direct and immediate. This construction of the expression "arising out of the use of a motor vehicle" in section 92-A enlarges the field of protection made available to the victims of an accident and is in consonance with the beneficial object underlying the enactment."

65. While going through the judgment (supra), one comes to an inescapable conclusion how the accident and injury/death have relationship with use of motor vehicle.

66. In the case titled as New India Assurance Co. Ltd. versus Shanti Bai (Smt) and others, reported in (1995) 2 Supreme Court Cases 539, the deceased was travelling on the roof top of the bus, met with an accident, claim petition was filed, was granted by the Claims Tribunal, awarded compensation in favour of the claimants and saddled the insurer, owner-insured and driver of the bus with liability. The said decision was upheld by the High Court, was again assailed by the insurer before the Apex Court. The Apex Court upheld the award but saddled the insurer with liability limited to ₹ 15,000/- in terms of the insurance policy.

67. It is apt to record herein that the said judgment has been upheld by Constitutional Bench of the Apex Court in the case titled as New India Assurance Co. Ltd. versus C.M. Jaya and others, reported in (2002) 2 Supreme Court Cases 278.

68. The Full Bench of the High Court of Karnataka at Bangalore in the case titled as North East Karnataka Road Trans. Corpn. versus Vijayalaxmi and others, reported in 2012 ACJ 1968, held that no contributory negligence or fixed percentage of contribution could be attributed to a passenger merely because he was travelling on roof of the bus. It has further been held that travelling on the roof of the bus is a negligent act.

69. This Court in FAO No. 44 of 2010, titled as Himachal Road Transport Corporation & Anr. versus Kamlesh Kumari and others, decided on 8th April, 2016, held that allowing a person to travel on the roof of a bus in itself amounts to negligence on the part of the driver and the conductor of the bus.

70. Applying the test to the instant case, the deceased, while travelling on the roof of the bus, was hit by an over hanging branch of a tree, due to which he fell down, sustained injuries and succumbed to the injuries. Thus, it can be safely said that it was an act of negligence on the part of the driver and conductor of the bus.

71. If the claim petition is treated under Section 163-A, the income of the deceased is less than ₹ 40,000/- per annum and if it is treated under Section 166 of the MV Act, the rash and negligent driving of the offending vehicle has also been proved, is maintainable on both counts.

72. The purpose behind filing of the claim petition by the claimants was that they will be able to get the compensation as early as possible, but, unfortunately, the deceased has died on 7th October, 2003, the claim petition was filed on 5th December, 2003, about thirteen years has elapsed and the claimants have yet to reap the fruits, is a terrible commentary on the process and speaks how the insurer is contesting the claim petition.

73. The purpose of Section 163-A of the MV Act is just to give a speedy compensation to the victims of the vehicular accidents, which has been thrown to winds. So, we deem it proper to saddle the insurer with costs.

74. The adequacy of compensation is not in dispute. However, we have gone through the impugned award read with the record and are of the considered view that the amount awarded is rather inadequate, but, as the claimants have not questioned the same, is reluctantly upheld.

75. The factum of insurance is also not in dispute. Thus, the Tribunal has rightly saddled the insurer with liability.

76. Having said so, the impugned award merits to be upheld. Accordingly, the impugned award is upheld and the appeal is dismissed with costs quantified at ₹ 10,000/- payable to the claimants.

77. The insurer is directed to deposit the costs before the Registry of this Court within four weeks. On deposition of the costs, the awarded amount alongwith costs be released in favour of the claimants strictly as per the terms and conditions contained in the impugned award through payees' account cheque or by depositing the same in their respective bank accounts.

78. Send down the records after placing a copy of the judgment on the Tribunal's file.

(Para-10 to 46)

For the appellant: Mr. V.S. Chauhan, Addl. Advocate General, Mr. Vikram Thakur and Mr. Puneet Rajta, Deputy Advocate Generals.

For the respondents: Mr. Satyen Vaidya, Senior Advocate as Amicus Curiae.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Ajay Mohan Goel, J.:

By way of this appeal, State has challenged the judgment passed by the Court of learned Additional Sessions Judge, Ghumarwin, in Sessions Trial No. 8/7 of 2012 dated 20.06.2013, vide which, learned trial Court acquitted the accused for commission of offences punishable under Sections 326, 307, 504 and 506 read with Section 34 of Indian Penal Code.

2. The case of the prosecution was that on 11.07.2011 at around 8.45 P.M. PW-4 Karun Sharma, a student of Shiva College of Engineering alongwith his friends Pankaj, Rakib, Arush and Ravi etc. were present at Gurudwara Chowk at Bilaspur and Karun Sharma called Arun Soni, who at the relevant time was present in his shop to inquire as to why he was calling a girl who was known to Karun Sharma. Further as per prosecution, initially Arun Soni abused Karun Sharma on mobile and thereafter, he came out of his shop with a cutter in his hand and ran towards Karun Sharma and stabbed him in his abdomen, as a result of which, Karun Sharma received injury in his abdomen and blood also oozed out. Karun Sharma was immediately taken to the Police Station by his friends on motor cycle, however, at the gate they were advised to take the injured to the hospital first. Accordingly, Karun Sharma was taken to Regional Hospital, Bilaspur, for treatment on the motor cycle. He made a statement in the hospital and on the basis of the same, FIR was registered at Police Station, Sadar. Medical examination of Karun Sharma was conducted by PW-3 Dr. Ankur Dharmani. According to him, there was a stab transverse injury approximately 5 cm above umbilicus, 10 cm in length and entered into the peritoneum cavity. On palpation of the wound, there seemed tear of the left lobe of the liver and fresh blood was coming from peritoneum. Patient was referred to referred to IGMC, Shimla, for further treatment and nature of injury was stated to be grievous and dangerous to life. Investigation was carried by the police.

3. After completion of the investigation, challan was presented in the Court and as a prima facie case was found against the accused persons, accordingly, they were charged for commission of offences punishable under Sections 326, 307, 504 and 506 read with Section 34 of Indian Penal Code, to which they pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

4. Learned trial Court on the basis of material produced before it by the prosecution both ocular as well as documentary came to the conclusion that neither any recovery was effected pursuant to the statement made by the accused nor the version of the prosecution as projected before the Court was reliable and prosecution in fact had failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt that the accused in furtherance of their common intention had caused grievous hurt to the complainant with a paper cutter with intent/knowledge that it would cause his death and had given provocation to him to break public peace and had also criminally intimidated him to do away with his life. Accordingly, learned trial Court acquitted the accused for commission of offences alleged against them.

5. Mr. V.S. Chauhan, learned Additional Advocate General, has vehemently argued that the judgment of acquittal passed by learned trial Court was not sustainable in law. It was argued by Mr. Chauhan that learned trial Court had erred in giving undue importance to minor contradictions which appeared in the statements of prosecution witnesses without appreciating the examination-in-chief of the injured/ complainant i.e. PW-4. It was further contended by Mr. Chauhan that learned trial Court had erred in not relying upon the testimonies of other key witnesses i.e. PW-1 Pankaj Thakur and PW-5 Arush Kalyan, who had categorically proved beyond reasonable doubt that it were the accused who had committed offences for which they were tried. According to Mr. Chauhan, testimony of PW-1 and PW-5 read with that of complainant proved the case of the prosecution beyond reasonable doubt and nailed the guilt of the accused, however, cogent and reliable testimony of these witnesses had been brushed aside by learned trial Court in a cursory manner. Mr. Chauhan further argued that undue importance was given to the factum of PW-2, PW-7 and PW-12 having turned hostile without appreciating that from the other material produced on record by prosecution its case stood proved against the accused. Mr. Chauhan further argued that even the statement of Dr. Ankur Dharmani had been totally misread and misappreciated by learned trial Court. On these basis, it was urged by Mr. Chauhan that judgment of acquittal passed by learned trial Court was not sustainable in the eyes of law and the same be set aside and the accused be convicted for commission of offences they were charged for.

6. On the other hand, Mr. Satyen Vaidya, learned Senior Advocate, who has assisted this Court as Amicus Curiae, argued that judgment of acquittal passed by learned trial Court cannot be faulted with because it cannot be said that on the basis of material produced on record both ocular as well as documentary by the prosecution it had proved its case against the accused beyond reasonable doubt. Mr. Vaidya argued that learned trial Court in fact had taken into consideration the entire evidence produced on record by the prosecution and after a careful perusal of the same, it had rightly come to the conclusion that the prosecution had not been able to prove its case against the accused beyond reasonable doubt. Mr. Vaidya submitted that not only the version as was putforth by the prosecution was not reliable, there were too many inconsistencies and contradictions in the statements of prosecution witnesses which shrouded the case of the prosecution with suspicion. He further argued that genesis of the case of the prosecution was that the complainant questioned the accused on mobile as to why he was time and again calling a girl known to him and the said girl i.e. PW-2 when she entered the witness box denied the factum of being acquainted with the complainant. This witness also denied that the accused used to call her. It was further submitted by Mr. Vaidya that another important aspect of the matter which shrouded the case of the prosecution with suspicion was that as per PW-6, complainant was referred to IGMC, Shimla and it was the case of the prosecution that from Bilaspur the complainant was in fact taken to IGMC, Shimla, however, the prosecution did not place on record any evidence with regard to the treatment undergone by the complainant at IGMC, Shimla, which tantamount to concealing material evidence from the Court. On these basis, it was submitted by Mr. Satyen Vaidya, learned Amicus Curiae, that keeping in view the fact that the respondents were having benefit of acquittal in their favour and the material produced on record by the prosecution did not prove their guilt beyond reasonable doubt, the judgment passed by learned trial Court should not be interfered with.

7. We have heard learned Additional Advocate General and learned Amicus Curiae and have also gone through the records of the case as well as the judgment passed by learned trial Court.

He further stated that the possibility of sustaining injury as mentioned in MLC Ext. PW3/D cannot be ruled out from a sharp edged weapon if concealed in the loin area by a person. He further deposed that as a case was made out under Section 326 and 307 I.P.C., he sent a Rukka through Constable Ram Pal on the basis of which, FIR was lodged. He also stated that thereafter he proceeded to the spot of the incident. He further stated that no witness was found at the spot and no evidence was found. In his cross-examination, this witness deposed that first information about the occurrence was received in the Police Station at around 8.45 P.M. and at that relevant time he was present in the Police Station. He further deposed that he did not visit the spot immediately but visited the same after going to the hospital. He further stated that he did not inquire about the occurrence from HC Parkash Chand. He admitted it to be correct that when he visited the spot he did not find any blood at the spot. He further admitted that Karun did not disclose to him about the cause of quarrel and the weapon with which the alleged injury was caused. He further stated that he met the complainant at the Police Station for about two minutes. He admitted it to be correct that on the day of the occurrence he did not carry out any search in the shop as well as house of the accused. He further stated that the complainant was referred in his presence to IGMC, Shimla and he did not collect any treatment, case summary or record from IGMC, Shimla.

23. ASI Ajeet Singh entered the witness box as PW-16 and he stated that he was posted as Investigating Officer in Police Station Sadar, Bilaspur. On 19.07.2011 accused Arun Soni produced one paper cutter before him. He further stated that paper cutter was got identified by him from the complainant. As per him, he did not identify the said cutter. In his cross-examination, he stated that he went alongwith cutter to the house of the complainant. He further stated that he had prepared recovery memo qua taking into possession of the cutter but said recovery memo was not in the case file. He further stated that the complainant did not disclose to him about the colour and size of the weapon of offence used, however, he stated that the weapon used was of bigger size.

24. SI Hoshiar Singh entered the witness box as PW-17. He stated that in the year 2011 he was Incharge Police Post City Bilaspur and on 11.07.2011 vide rapat Ext. PW17/A Dy.S.P. Head Quarter informed him that a quarrel had taken place at Gurudwara Chowk and thereafter, he proceeded to the spot. He further stated that SI Paras Ram and other police officials of Police Station, Sadar, were already there. This witness further stated that the accused was not found on the spot and no witness was present. He stated that he raided the house of the accused during night but they were not found. He also stated that he prepared spot map Ext. PW17/B at the instance of Manoj Kumar, Arush and Varun. He further stated that he recorded their statements also. This witness further deposed that on 01.08.2011 accused Arun Soni produced one cutter before him in the presence of witnesses Ravi Kumar and Parkash Chand. He further stated that the complainant was also present. He prepared Khaka Ext. PW17/C and got it signed from the witnesses, accused and complainant. He further stated that before this also, accused Arun Soni had produced one cutter before ASI Ajeet Kumar which was not identified by the complainant. In his cross-examination, this witness stated that patrolling of the bazaar was done during night time. Gurudwara Chowk/Roura Sector was divided in two beats for the purpose of patrolling. This witness further stated that he cannot say who was deputed on that night for patrolling at Gurudwara Chowk. He admitted it to be correct that none of the official of patrolling party informed him about the incident. He further stated that he reached at the spot at 10.30 P.M. He further stated that he had not called Varun, Manoj and Ayush on that night and they came on the spot on the next morning at 9.30 A.M. He further stated that he did not find any blood or blood stains at the spot. He further stated that Fard regarding showing cutter by ASI Ajeet Singh to complainant was not on the case file. He also stated that when on the next day, he visited the spot, shops were open and he inquired from the shop of Anshul Food and Varinder Singh in the morning about the occurrence but they stated that the occurrence was not seen by them. He also stated that none of the shopkeepers disclosed to him about the incident. He also stated that he had not mentioned the distance of the shop of Arun Soni in the site plan from Point-A, however, as per him, distance was approximately 15 meters. He also stated that during the course of investigation he had not taken the mobile of Karun through which he talked to Neena. He further stated that mobile of Karun was badly damaged by his father.

25. Defence has examined Rishi Sharma as DW-1 and this witness deposed that he runs a mobile shop at Gurudwara at Bilaspur, knew Karun Sharma, Pankaj and Ravi and on 11.07.2011, at around 4.00 P.M., he met Ravi, Pankaj and Karun at Radha Rani Parking where they stopped him and told him that why he used to be with the company of accused. This witness further deposed that on this he told Karun that they were his friends. Complainant told him that he should not be with them in the evening. This witness further stated that when he objected to this, Karun put his hand on his neck and also showed him 'Khukhari' which was hidden by him under his shirt in the loins. He stated that 'Khukhari' was without cover. This witness further stated that in the evening he went to the shop of the accused. Gaurav alongwith one customer was also in the shop. He further stated that he was talking with Arun Soni and Ajay Soni was showing mobile to the customers and his friend purchased one battery from the shop. As per him, he heard loud voice from outside and went outside the shop. He found Karun shouting loudly on his mobile and was abusing someone. He further stated that Karun thereafter got entangled with bullock while he was talking on his mobile fell down unmindful of the presence of bullock on the spot. He further stated that he did not see any quarrel having taken place between Karun and accused persons.

26. These are the material witnesses on whose testimonies prosecution had relied upon to prove its case against the accused.

27. Before proceedings further, it is relevant to take note of the fact that as per the prosecution, genesis of the dispute was the factum of accused calling Neena who was known to the complainant and as per prosecution, quarrel took place when Karun asked the accused as to why they were calling Neena who in turn came out of the shop and stabbed the complainant. Thus, the motive behind stabbing of the complainant by the accused was the quarrel which took place on account of the complainant confronting the accused as to why they were unnecessarily calling Neena.

28. Neena Panwar denied having any acquaintance with the complainant or the accused. This witness was subjected to cross-examination by the defence and in the said cross-examination, she denied that SIM bearing No. 98164-40054 had been taken by her from Ajay Soni or that she was either acquainted with the complainant and used to talk with him on mobile. In her cross-examination by the defence, this witness admitted it to be correct that she had never disclosed to Karun that Ajay Soni used to tease her.

29. Therefore, according to us, keeping in view the fact that PW-2 Neena Panwar has not supported the case of prosecution, the genesis of the case of the prosecution and the reason and motive as to why the alleged incident took place becomes highly doubtful.

30. Now comes the issue of injury having been suffered by the complainant. According to the prosecution, the injury which was suffered by the complainant was grievous injury and was dangerous to life. The case so putforth by the prosecution was based on the testimony of PW-3 Dr. Ankur Dharmani, who had examined the complainant on 11.07.2011 at around 9.05 P.M. at R.H. Bilaspur. MLC of the complainant is on record as Ext. PW3/D. A perusal of the same demonstrates that PW-3 had referred the complainant to IGMC, Shimla. It is a matter of record that no evidence has been produced on record by the prosecution as to whether or not the complainant in fact was admitted in IGMC, Shimla, and what was the treatment he underwent at IGMC, Shimla, though it had come in the prosecution evidence that the complainant after being referred to IGMC, Shimla, remained admitted there. However, what was the nature of the injury with which he was admitted at IGMC, Shimla and what was the treatment etc. given to him, has not come on record. PW-3 in his cross-examination admitted that the possibility of injury which was found on the body of the complainant being sustained if a sharp edged weapon is concealed in the loin area by a person could not be ruled out. He also admitted it to be correct that the said injury can be caused by a fall on sharp edged weapon lying on the floor. This witness was recalled for examination when he was shown weapon of offence i.e. paper cutter Ext. P-1. In his cross-examination, this witness admitted it to be correct that 2 cms wide wound could not be caused by Ext.P-1 and he also admitted it to be correct that final opinion could have been given by him about the injury after going through the treatment record of IGMC, Shimla, regarding use of Ext. P-1. Thus, it is apparent from the testimony of PW-3 that he clarified that he could not say without going through the treatment record of the complainant pertaining to IGMC, Shimla, as to whether the injury suffered by the complainant was on account of paper cutter Ext. P-1 or not. Besides this, he also admitted it to be correct that 2 cms. wide wound could not be caused by Ext. P-1. He also admitted the suggestion that the injury suffered by the complainant could have been suffered if a weapon was concealed by a person in his loin. When we take the testimony of PW-3 in totality, the only conclusion which can be drawn is this that neither the prosecution was able to prove beyond reasonable doubt that the injury on the body of the complainant was caused by the use of paper cutter Ext. P-1 nor there was any material on record to substantiate as to what was the nature of the said injury because PW-3 stated that he could have give his final opinion regarding the use of paper cutter only after going through the treatment record of IGMC, Shimla, which record was never placed before the Court.

31. This brings us to the most important aspect of the matter as to whether the prosecution was able to prove beyond reasonable doubt that on the fateful day accused Arun Soni had in fact stabbed the complainant with paper knife Ext. P-1 or not.

32. Before proceeding further, it is relevant to take note of the fact that it has unambiguously come in the testimony of PW-15 ASI Narain Singh and PW-7 SI Hoshiar Singh, who had visited the spot, that no blood was found at the spot, though it is the case of the prosecution that after receiving the injury the complainant was bleeding profusely. It has also come in the testimony of PW-15 ASI Narain Singh that complainant had not disclosed to him the cause of quarrel and the weapon with which the alleged injury was caused. This witness has also admitted it to be correct that he had not collected any treatment, case summary on record from IGMC, Shimla, pertaining to the complainant.

33. Complainant in his testimony stated that on the fateful day at around 8.30 P.M. he had come to Gurudwara Chowk alongwith Pankaj, Rakib, Arush and Ravi, were there. Pankaj Thakur entered the witness box as PW-1 and he stated that on 11.07.2011 he had gone to Gurudwara Chowk with Karun, complainant and while Karun was talking on his mobile and had gone little ahead and he was standing at a short distance away from him, accused who were talking from their shop with Karun, came out and hurled a blow with something in his stomach. Arush Kalyan, who entered the witness box as PW-5, stated that on the fateful day at 8.30 P.M. he alongwith his friend Rakib were standing near Gurudwara and Manoj and Karun were standing at the other side and were talking with each other and Karun was talking on his mobile with someone and accused Arun came outside from his shop and he caught hold of Karun and attacked him with paper cutter. Ravi Chandel entered the witness box as PW-7 and according to him, on 11.07.2011 at around 8.30 P.M. while he was going to his house after closing his shop and when reached near Gurudwara Chowk, he met Manoj Kumar. He further stated that Rakib was also standing nearby. PW-7 was talking with Manoj and though, he did not see anyone attacking Karun, however Karun had sustained injury in his stomach. He further stated that Arun Soni was on the spot and Karun disclosed to him that he was attacked by Arun Soni with cutter. Rakib has not been examined by the prosecution. Manoj Kumar entered the witness box as PW-12 and he stated that on the fateful day he was going from his shop to bazaar and when he reached near Gurudwara Chowk, he stopped on seeing Ravi Chandel and others. As per him, Rakib, Karun and 2-3 others were present and while he was talking with Ravi, suddenly Karun fell down at the spot where one bullock was on the road. He further stated that Karun stood up and said that he wanted to go to the hospital and further stated that he was given beatings by Arun soni with cutter. Incidentally, Ravi Candel and Manoj Kumar were declared as hostile witnesses.

34. It is a matter of record that all the above mentioned persons were acquainted with each other and were friends.

35. As per PW-1 Pankaj Thakur, he alongwith Karun had gone to Gurudwara Chowk and Karun was hurled a blow with something in his stomach by Ajay Soni.

36. As per PW-4 Karun Sharma, Arun came out of his shop and caught hold of him and attacked him with paper cutter.

37. Further, as per PW-5 Arush Kalyan, Manoj and Karun were standing in a side and were talking with each other, when accused Arun came out of his shop, he caught hold of Karun and attacked him with paper cutter.

38. PW-4 has not stated that he was talking with Manoj. As per PW-1, Karun was with him and this witness also not stated that when the complainant was attacked he was talking with Manoj.

39. Whereas, PW-1 Pankaj stated that after the complainant was stabbed by the accused, he picked him up, the version of the complainant is to the effect that it was Manoj who picked him up. Besides this, whereas the factum of meeting Rishi during day time has been admitted by the complainant, the same has been denied by Pankaj.

40. Now, when we come to the testimony of PW-7 Ravi Chandel, according to him, Manoj Kumar was talking with him. He further stated that he did not see anyone attacking Karun and it was Karun who disclosed to him that he was attacked by Arun Soni. PW-12 Manoj Kumar who otherwise also has not supported the case of the prosecution, has introduced a total new story about Karun falling down at the spot where one bullock was on the road. He also stated that he did not see Arun Soni attacking Karun with cutter.

41. In our considered view, these are material inconsistencies and contradictions in the testimonies of prosecution witnesses, which shroud the case of the prosecution with suspicion. Not only this, it also creates doubt over the trustworthiness and truthfulness of the said witnesses, who otherwise are also interested witnesses being close friends of the complainant.

42. These were the material witnesses on whose testimony the entire case of the prosecution hinged. However, as we have already mentioned above besides there being inconsistencies and contradictions in their statements, their testimonies neither inspire any confidence nor they seem to be truthful. Therefore, the only conclusion which can be drawn from the statements of the said witnesses is that it cannot be said that the prosecution was able to prove beyond reasonable doubt that the complainant was stabbed with a paper cutter by accused Arun Soni.

43. One more aspect of the matter is the mode and manner of the recovery of the alleged weapon of offence Ext. P-1. PW-17 SI Hoshiar Singh stated that on 01.8.2011 accused produced one cutter before him in the presence of witnesses Ravi and Parkash Chand and complainant was also present there. This witness stated that he prepared Khaka Ext. PW17/C which was signed by the witnesses, accused as well as complainant. While as per PW-17 when the paper cutter was produced before him by accused Arun Soni, the same was done in the presence of complainant, however, PW-7 Ravi Chandel (who as per PW-17 was one of the witnesses in whose presence the cutter was given to him by the accused) stated in his testimony that the complainant was not present there at the relevant time. In his cross-examination, he again reiterated this fact that when the cutter was produced by accused Arun Soni, Karun was not present in the Police Post. Incidentally, the other witness to the said recovery is HC Parkash Cahnd i.e. a police official. In his cross-examination, PW-8 HC Parkash Chand stated that he did not insist upon the Investigating Officer to associate any independent witness at the time of recovery of cutter Ext. P-1. Be that as it may, as we have already taken note of the fact that PW-3 Dr. Ankur Dharmani on his re-examination on 17.12.2012 had stated that 2 cms wide wound (on the body of the complainant) could not be caused by Ext. P-1. Further, in our considered view, the evidence produced on record by prosecution as to how Ext.P-1 was recovered does not inspire confidence at all. Whereas, as per PW-17, paper cutter was handed over to him by the accused in the presence of complainant. PW-7 has denied the presence of complainant in the Police Post at that relevant time. Even otherwise witness to the said recovery, PW-8 in his cross-examination has admitted that he did not ask the Investigating Officer to associate any independent witness at the time of the said recovery of the weapon of offence.

44. Therefore, in our considered view, it is evident from the material which has been placed on record by the prosecution that the prosecution has miserably failed to prove beyond reasonable doubt that the accused in fact had stabbed the complainant with a paper cutter in the evening of 11.07.2011 and had caused him grievous injury which was dangerous to life.

45. We have carefully gone through the judgment passed by learned trial Court and perusal of the same reveals that all these aspects of the matter has been examined and after carefully examining the entire material produced by the prosecution, learned trial Court has returned the findings of acquittal in favour of the accused. According to us also, from the material on record produced by the prosecution both ocular as well as documentary, it has not been able to prove the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt.

46. It is settled law that in exceptional circumstances, the Appellate Court for compelling reasons can reverse a judgment of acquittal passed by the trial Court if the findings so recorded by the Court are perverse. However, it is also settled law that an acquittal by Court below bolsters presumption of innocence in favour of the accused and, therefore, judgment of acquittal should be reversed only in exceptional circumstances. We do not find that there is either any exceptional circumstance in the present case or the findings recorded by the trial Court are perverse so as to compel us to interfere with the judgment of acquittal returned by the trial Court.

47. Therefore, keeping in view the fact that the accused have already been acquitted by learned trial Court and according to us, there is neither any perversity nor any infirmity with the findings returned in this regard by learned trial Court, the appeal being devoid of any merit is dismissed. Bail bonds, if any, furnished by the accused are discharged.

48. We place on record our appreciation for the assistance rendered to the Court by learned Amicus Curiae.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Tarlok Singh Chauhan J.

This writ petition has been filed for grant of following substantive reliefs:-

"(i) That writ of mandamus may kindly be issued, directing the respondents to grant Freedom Fighter's Pension as per the scheme to the petitioner being widow of late Shri Dhani Ram (Freedom Fighter) from the due date i.e. w.e.f. 04.04.1974 with all consequential benefits in light of the ratio laid down by the Hon'ble apex Court in (2014) 10 SCC 352 titled as Union of India & another Vs. Jai Kishun Singh."

2. The facts in brief as set out in the petition are that the husband of petitioner Sh. Dhani Ram served in the Dogra Regiment as Sepoy against enrolment No. 8210 till 13.7.1946, when on account of reduction of Indian Army on demobilization, he was released from service. During his service, Sh. Dhani Ram participated in World War 2nd by joining Indian Army from 1939-1945 and was awarded Pacific Star, Defence Medal and War Medal. That apart, all the similarly situated persons, like the petitioner were declared freedom fighters of the Nation.

3. On 1.8.1973 the State of Himachal Pradesh issued a letter to award Tamrapatras to the freedom fighters of District Bilaspur, Mandi, Hamirpur and Kullu and in the said list Sh. Dhani Ram's named figured at Sr. No. 37 alongside one another freedom fighter Lashkari Ram whose name appeared at Sr. No. 12. On 15.8.1973 the Tamrapatra was awarded to Sh. Dhani Ram. The status of Sh. Dhani Ram being freedom fighter was acknowledged by the Deputy Commissioner, Bilaspur, when he issued an identity card in his favour vide Annexure P-4.

4. Sh.Dhani Ram continued to pursue his request for grant of freedom fighter pension, however, before the same could be granted he unfortunately died on 2.5.2010 and it is his widow who thereafter has been pursuing the claim. It is also claimed that the aforesaid Sh. Lashkari Ram who had also been serving with Sh. Dhani Ram in Dogra Regiment against Enrolment No. 9010222 as Lance Naik was awarded pension w.e.f. 4.4.1974 being freedom fighter, whereas the same has been illegally denied to Sh. Dhani Ram (now to his widow).

5. The Deputy Commissioner (respondent No. 4) filed his reply, wherein it was averred that Sh. Dhani Ram served as Sepoy in Dogra Regiment during the British Empire and he was discharged from service on 13th July, 1946 on deduction of Indian Army on demobilization. Thereafter Sh. Dhani Ram never approached the replying respondent for complying his case for benefit of Freedom Fighter. As regards the issuance of Identity Card, it is claimed that the same was issued in his name on the basis of "Citizen" awarded by the government of Himachal Pradesh on 15.8.1972. It is thereafter averred that in the year 2014, one e-mail request from the petitioner was received and the matter was thereafter sent to respondent No. 5 and till date neither the procedural formalities have been completed nor has the petitioner submitted any application in the prescribed proforma to the replying respondent. However, the respondent has admitted that Sh. Lashkari Ram was declared as freedom fighter on his application as per scheme vide letter No. 17-B-1095/73-FF dated 9.8.1973 by the State Government as per pre-requisite verification and documents submitted by him to the government of Himachal Pradesh.

6. The Chief Secretary, Government of Himachal Pradesh (respondent No. 3) has filed his separate reply, wherein it is admitted that Sh. Dhani Ram served in Dogra Regiment of the British Army for the time claimed in the petition. However, it is claimed that the husband of the petitioner has never submitted any application to the competent authority for grant of Freedom Fighter Pension. It is also averred that though the petitioner had submitted an application 18.2.2015 for grant of Freedom Fighter Pension to her under the Government of India Scheme, however on scrutiny it was found that the petitioner had not made available a certificate of Indian National Army along with her application, showing that her late husband had served in Indian National Army and the same is still awaited from her, despite request.

7. The Union of India (respondent No. 1) in its reply submitted that since no pension under the Swatantrata Sainik Samman Pension Scheme, 1980 had been granted to the petitioner's husband in his life time, therefore, as per the revised guidelines issued on 6th August, 2014, the claim of the petitioner is unsustainable and cannot be granted. These guidelines are clarificatory in nature and have been issued in order to make effective implementation of the scheme in the changing times and reliance has been placed on para 1.5 of the revised guidelines issued under letter F.No. 45/03/2014-FF (P) dated 6th August, 2014 which read as under:-

> "No pension shall be sanctioned in the name of the freedom fighter after his/her death even if his/her matter was under examination. This also entails that no lifetime arrears or dependent pension shall be sanction to his/her spouse/daughter after the death of the freedom fighter."

I have heard learned counsel for the parties and have also gone through the records of the case.

8. At the outset, it may be noticed that none of the respondents have disputed the contention of the petitioner that her late husband, Sh. Dhani Ram and Sh. Lashkari Ram were both serving in Dogra Regiment. Her husband was posted as Sepoy, whereas Sh.Lashkari Ram was a Lance Naik. It is further not in dispute that both these persons were awarded Tamrapatra by the Government of Himachal Pradesh. It is further not in dispute that names of both Sh.Lashkari Ram and late Sh.Dhani Ram appeared in the list of freedom fighters issued vide letter dated 1.8.1973 at Sr. No. 12 and 37, respectively. Yet again there is no dispute that Sh.Lashkari Ram was declared as freedom fighter, whereas the husband of the petitioner late Sh.Dhani Ram was not granted the pension for the ostensible reason that he had not submitted the requisite documents.

9. Now the question in this background that arises for consideration is whether the State after itself acknowledging Sh.Dhani Ram to be a freedom fighter, can still deny the freedom fighter pension, only on the ground that the application submitted by him was not on the prescribed proforma. A perusal of Tamrapatra clearly goes to show that the same had been awarded to Sh.Dhani Ram for his memorably contribution to the Nation in the war of impendence and the same reads thus:-

> "स्वतंत्रता के पचचीसवें वर्ष के अवसर पर स्वतंत्रता संग्राम में स्मरणीय योगदान के लिए राष्ट्र की ओर से प्रधान मंत्री श्रीमती इंदिरा गांधी ने यह ताम्रपत्र भेंट किया"

10. That apart, it would be noticed that the Deputy Commissioner, Bilaspur himself had issued Identity Card of a Freedom Fighter to Sh.Dhani Ram, which clearly mentions that "this card has been issued to the above on account of his sacrifice for the freedom of the country." Therefore, can the respondents in teeth of such documents refuse to acknowledge the prime sacrifice of Sh.Dhani Ram by taking shelter and recourse to technicalities?

11. This Court cannot be oblivious to the fact that here is a widow of 82 years, who has been driven from pillar to post for the legitimate pension, which she is entitled to. I observe so because admittedly the colleague of the petitioner, Sh.Lashkari Ram, who too was working in the Dogra Regiment and whose services too like the husband of the petitioner came to be released on deduction of Indian Army on demobilization on 13.7.1946 had been given Tamrapatra had thereafter been granted pension, then why the same without any rhyme and reason has been denied for the petitioner?

12. To hold that the petitioner is not entitled to freedom fighter pension would otherwise amount to invidious discrimination. The guarantee of equal protection embraces the entire realm of State action and once such an individual discrimination is made out, it would not lie in the mouth of the respondents that they should still be permitted to protect such discrimination, more particularly, when it is proved on record that the petitioner viz-a-viz similarly situated persons, who have been granted pension has alone been denied the same.

13. Indisputably, the Scheme for granting freedom fighters'

Pension was introduced in the year 1972 on the occasion of Silver Jubilee of National Independence. The freedom fighters' pension scheme was introduced with an ultimate object of providing grant of pension to the living freedom fighters and their families and to the families of martyrs, who had participated in the freedom struggle without any expectation of grant of any scheme at that relevant point of time. The object of the scheme is not only to honour but also to mitigate the sufferings of the persons who had scarified their all for the sake of country, hence a liberal and not a technical approach is required to be followed at the time of considering the case of a person seeking pension under such scheme. Once, it is evident on the basis of the material available on record that the claimant of pension had suffered incarceration for the cause of the Country, a presumption has to be drawn in his favour, until the same is rebutted by cogent, reasonable and reliable material evidence.

14. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Gurdial Singh vs. Union of India and others (2001) 8 SCC 8, laid down the object of the scheme in the following terms:

> "The scheme was introduced with the object of providing grant of pension to living freedom fighters and their families and to the families of martyrs. It has to be kept in mind that millions of masses of this country had participated in the freedom struggle without any expectation of grant of any scheme at the relevant time. It has also to be kept in mind that in the partition of the country most of citizens who suffered imprisonment were handicapped to get the relevant record from the jails where they had suffered imprisonment. The problem of getting the record from the foreign country is very cumbersome and expensive. Keeping in mind the object of the scheme, the concerned authorities are required that in appreciating the scheme for the benefit of freedom fighters a rationale and not a technical approach is required to be adopted. It has also to be kept in mind that the claimants of the scheme are supposed to be such persons who had given the best part of their life for the country. This Court in Mukand Lal Bhandari case observed (SCC pp.7-8, para 9)
>
> > "The object in making the said relaxation was not to reward or compensate the sacrifices made in the freedom struggle. The object was to honour and where it was necessary, also to mitigate the sufferings of those who had given their all for the country in the hour of its need. In fact, many of those who do not have sufficient income to maintain themselves refuse to take benefit of it, since they consider it as an affront to the sense of patriotism with which they plunged in the Freedom Struggle. The spirit of the Scheme being both to assist and honour the needy and acknowledge the valuable sacrifices made, it would be contrary to its spirit to convert it into some kind of a programme of compensation. Yet that may be the result if the benefit is directed to be given retrospectively whatever the date the application is made. The scheme should retain its high objective with which it was motivated. It should not further be forgotten that now its benefit is made available irrespective of the income limit. Secondly, and this is equally important to note, since we are by this decision making the benefit of the scheme available irrespective of the date on which the application is made, it would not be advisable to extend the benefit retrospectively. Lastly, the pension under the present Scheme is not the only benefit made available to the freedom fighters or their dependents. The preference in employment, allotment of accommodation and in admission to schools and colleges of their kith and kin etc., are also the other benefits which have been made available to them for quite sometime now."
> The Court categorically mentioned that the pension under the scheme should be made payable from the date on which the application is made whether it is accompanied by necessary proof of eligibility or not".

The standard of proof required to establish a case is not such standard which is required in a criminal case or in a case adjudicated upon rival contentions or evidence of a party. This position has been made clear when one reads paragraph-7 of the judgment from Gurdial Singh's case (supra) which provides:

> "7. The standard of proof required in such cases is not such standard which is required in a criminal case or in a case adjudicated upon rival contentions or evidence of the parties. As the object of the scheme is to honour and to mitigate the sufferings of those who had given their all for the country, a liberal and not a technical approach is required to be followed while determining the merits of the case of a person seeking pension under the scheme. It should not be forgotten that the persons intended to be covered by scheme have suffered for the country about half a century back and had not expected to be rewarded for the imprisonment suffered by them. Once the country has decided to honour such freedom fighters, the bureaucrats entrusted with the job of examining the cases of such freedom fighters are expected to keep in mind the purpose and object of the scheme. The case of the claimants under this scheme is required to be determined on the basis of the probabilities and not on the touch-stone of the test of 'beyond reasonable doubt'. Once on the basis of the evidence it is probabilised that the claimant had suffered imprisonment for the cause of the country and during the freedom struggle, a presumption is required to be drawn in his favour unless the same is rebutted by cogent, reasonable and reliable evidence."

15. In State of Orissa vs. Choudhuri Nayak (2010) 8 SCC 796, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that no genuine Freedom Fighter should be denied pension.

16. Learned Assistant Solicitor General of India has vehemently argued that this Court cannot sit in judgment over the decision taken by the competent authority and would rely upon the judgment rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of Maharashtra and others Vs. Raghunath Gajanan Waingankar (2004) 6 SCC 584, Mahender Singh Vs. Union of India (2010) 12 SCC 675 and Union of India and another Vs. Jai Kishun Singh (2014) 10 SCC 352.

17. Obviously, there can be no dispute regarding the preposition laid down in the aforesaid cases, more particularly, when the same under Article 141 of the Constitution are binding on this Court, but these judgments would apply only in case there is any decision taken by the respondents. Here this Court is dealing with a case wherein the respondents are yet to take a decision. It is thus clear that the respondents have pre-judged the issue, by claiming that the petitioner is not entitled to the pension, though in the same breath they would claim that the petitioner has not even submitted any documents. Notably, the respondents herein are none other, but the functionaries of the State and Central Government, who are under an obligation to conduct themselves with high probity and expected candour, but unfortunately the conduct of the respondents fall short of this expectation.

18. Adverting to the defence raised by respondent No. 1, whereby it is taken shelter under the guidelines issued on 6th August, 2014, I have no hesitation to hold that the same are bad in law. After all a person's claim can deemed to be dismissed only because of procedural delays. That apart, the guidelines are even otherwise not in tune with the avowed object of the scheme, as extracted in para 13 (supra), coupled with the observations made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Gurdial Singh's case (supra). Moreover, once there is no dispute that the Swatantrata Sainik Samman Pension Scheme, 1980 has itself not been withdrawn, then obviously the same cannot indirectly be held to have become non-operative by issuance of revised guidelines or else the scheme would be deemed to have become redundant and otiose.

19. That apart, it is not in dispute that the guidelines issued subsequently by respondents in the year 2014 are only in furtherance of the scheme and therefore, once the scheme still exists, such guidelines cannot override the scheme.

Respecting and rewarding is probably the least one can do for the freedom fighters of this country.

20. In light of the aforesaid discussion, though it is proved on record that the husband of the petitioner was freedom fighter and therefore, entitled for grant of freedom fighter pension. However, as there is nothing on record to show that the petitioner or for that matter late Sh. Dhani Ram had ever applied for grant of such pension on the prescribed performa, I feel that the ends of justice would be subserved in case the following directions are passed:

(i) That the petitioner shall within a period of four weeks from passing of this judgment submit an application to the competent authority on the prescribed proforma for grant of freedom fighter pension.

(ii) The respondents thereafter shall within a period of eight weeks from receipt of such application grant pension to the petitioner from the due date i.e. w.e.f. 4.4.1974.

(iii) On failure to release pension within eight weeks aforesaid, the respondents shall be liable to pay 9% interest on the said pension w.e.f. due date.

The petition is disposed of in the aforesaid terms, so also the pending application(s), if any, leaving the parties to bear their costs.

For the Appellant	:	Mr. Surinder Saklani, Advocate.
For the Respondent	:	Mr. V.S. Chauhan, Additional Advocate General and Mr. Vikram Thakur, Deputy Advocate General.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Sanjay Karol, Judge

Dead body of Sarwan Singh (deceased) was recovered on 15.6.2009 from the dry well owned by certain private persons. On 19.6.2009, member of the family of the deceased lodged a missing report, without raising any finger of suspicion against any one. Since investigation did not reveal involvement of any person in the crime, as such, untraced report was filed in Court.

2. Hence, during the course of investigation of another crime, in relation to which FIR stood registered at Police Station, Nalagarh, present accused Jitender Kumar and his co-accused Taranjit Singh, on 18.6.2010, while in custody, made a confessional statement of having murdered the deceased with swords and thereafter dumped the body in the well. Such information came to be passed on to Police Station, Una, having jurisdiction of the place from where initially the dead body was recovered and also accused ordinarily reside. Accused came to be arrested by the police officials of Una and during their custody, made disclosure statements, leading to discovery of the purse of the deceased and weapon of offence, i.e. swords, so concealed by them.

3. Investigation revealed dual motive of crime: (a) perhaps involvement of the deceased with the sister of accused Jitender Kumar, (b) dispute pertaining to money inter se the deceased and the accused, more specifically Jitender Kumar.

4. With the completion of investigation, challan came to be presented in the Court and accused Taranjit Singh stands charged for having committed offences punishable under the provisions of Sections 302 & 201, both read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code and Section 25 of the Arms Act, 1959; and accused Jatinder Kumar stands charged for having committed offences under Sections 302 of the Indian Penal Code and 25 of the Arms Act, 1959.

5. It is a matter of record that during trial, accused Taranjit Singh was declared as a proclaimed offender and as such, trial qua him was segregated. Lateron, after his arrest, he participated in the proceedings and separate trial conducted qua him. It is a matter of record that based on similar, but separate, evidence led by the prosecution, both the accused stand convicted.

6. Vide judgment dated 31.8.2012, passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Una, Himachal Pradesh, in Sessions Case No.11/VII/2011 (Sessions Trial No.8 of 2011), titled as State of Himachal Pradesh v. Jitender Kumar and another, accused Jitender Kumar stands convicted for having committed offences punishable under the provisions of Section 302 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code, and sentenced to undergo imprisonment for life and pay fine of Rs.20,000/-, and in default thereof to further undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of one year. However, he stands acquitted of the offence charged for under Section 25 of the Arms Act.

7. It is also a matter of record that both the accused have preferred separate appeals, which are being disposed of vide separate judgments. Noticeably, State has not preferred any appeal against the judgment of acquittal of the accused of offence under Section 25 of the Arms Act.

8. Trial Court framed the following points for consideration and answered Point No.1 in the affirmative, but expressed its doubts with regard to Point No.2:

1. Whether the prosecution has proved beyond all shadow of doubts that prior to the morning of 15.6.2009 in the area of village Raipur Sahoran within the jurisdiction of Police Station, Una, accused Jitender in furtherance of common intention of co-accused Taranjit @ Badal (proclaimed offender) had committed the murder of Sarwan Singh by intentionally or knowingly causing his death?
2. Whether the prosecution has also proved that accused Jitender was in possession of sword, prohibited arm?

9. While convicting the accused in relation to the charge of murder, trial Court culled out the following circumstances:

"a) Ante mortem injuries on the person of the deceased.

b) Presence of blood stains on the edge of the well and roof of the tube well.

c) Accused Jitender was in custody in case FIR No.78/2010 of P.S. Nalagarh along with his co-accused Taranjit @ Badal and during interrogation co-accused Taranjit divulged that he alongwith accused Jitender committed the murder of a sikh gentleman in the area of District Una and threw the dead body in a well in Santoshgarh area.

d) Connection of the deceased with accused Jitender over money and photo of sister of accused Jitender on the mobile handset of deceased and that deceased had left with cash to the house of accused on receipt of telephonic call and missing report of the deceased had been made at Police Station, Ajnala.

e) Identification of the place of occurrence by the accused.

f) the sword has been recovered at the instance of accused Jatinder and purse and sword had been recovered at the instance of co-accused Taranjit @ Badal."

10. Additionally, learned Additional Advocate General has pressed the following circumstances:

(a) motive of crime,

(b) after receiving call from accused Jatinder, deceased left his house with certain amount of cash but never returned, and

(c) deceased was lastly seen in the company of the accused.

11. Admittedly there is no eye-witness to the alleged incident in relation to which accused stands convicted. Prosecution case primarily rests upon circumstantial evidence. The law on circumstantial evidence is now very well settled. To base a conviction on circumstantial evidence, prosecution must establish all the pieces of incriminating circumstances by reliable and clinching evidence and the circumstances so proved must form such a chain of events, as would permit no conclusion other than the one of guilt of the accused. Circumstances to be proved have to be beyond reasonable doubt and not based on principle of preponderance of probability. Suspicion, howsoever, grave, cannot be a substitute for a proof and courts should take utmost precaution in finding an accused guilty only on the basis of the circumstantial evidence.

12. In Bodhraj alias Bodha & others vs. State of Jammu and Kashmir, (2002) 8 SCC 45, Hon'ble the Supreme Court of India held that:-

"9. Before analysing factual aspects it may be stated that for a crime to be proved it is not necessary that the crime must be seen to have been committed and must, in all circumstances be proved by direct ocular evidence by examining before the Court those persons who had seen its commission. The offence can be proved by circumstantial evidence also. The principal fact or factum probandum may be proved indirectly by means of certain inferences drawn from factum probans, that is, the evidentiary facts. To put it differently circumstantial evidence is not direct to the point in issue but consists of evidence of various other facts which are so closely associated with the fact in issue that taken together they form a chain of circumstances from which the existence of the principal fact can be legally inferred or presumed. ....."

10. .....In Bhagat Ram v. State of Punjab [AIR 1954 SC 621], it was laid down that where the case depends upon the conclusion drawn from circumstances the cumulative effect of the circumstances must be such as to negative the innocence of the accused and bring the offences home beyond any reasonable doubt." (Emphasis supplied)

13. Also it is a settled proposition of law that when there is no direct evidence of crime, guilt of the accused can be proved by circumstantial evidence, but then the circumstances from which conclusion of guilt is to be drawn, should be fully proved and such circumstances must be conclusive in nature, to fully connect the accused with crime. All the links in the chain of circumstances, must be established beyond reasonable doubt, and the proved circumstances should be consistent only with the hypothesis of guilt of the accused, being totally inconsistent with his innocence. While appreciating the circumstantial evidence, Court must adopt a very cautious approach and great caution must be taken to evaluate the circumstantial evidence. [See: Pudhu Raja and another Versus State Represented by Inspector of Police, (2012) 11 SCC 196; Madhu Versus State of Kerala, (2012) 2 SCC 399; Dilip Singh Moti Singh versus State of Gujarat, (2010) 15 SCC 622; Ramreddy Rajesh Khanna Reddy v. State of A.P., (2006) 10 SCC 172; Trimukh Maroti Kiran versus State of Maharashtra, (2006) 10 SCC 681; Mulakh Raj and others Versus Satish Kumar and others, (1992) 3 SCC 43; Ashok Kumar Chatterjee vs. State of M.P., 1989 Supp. (1) SCC 560; Balwinder Singh vs. State of Punjab, (1987) 1 SCC 1; State of U.P. vs. Sukhbasi, 1985 Supp. SCC 79; Sharad Birdhichand Sarda Versus State of Maharashtra, (1984) 4 SCC 116; Earabhadrappa vs. State of Karnataka, (1983) 2 SCC 330; Hukam Singh vs. State of Rajasthan, (1977) 2 SCC 99; and Eradu vs. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1956 SC 316]

14. In Sujit Biswas vs. State of Assam, (2013) 12 SCC 406, Hon'ble the Supreme Court of India held that:-

"13. Suspicion, however grave it may be, cannot take the place of proof, and there is a large difference between something that "may be" proved, and something that "will be proved". In a criminal trial, suspicion no matter how strong, cannot and must not be permitted to take place of proof. This is for the reason that the mental distance between "may be" and "must be" is quite large, and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions. In a criminal case, the court has a duty to ensure that mere conjectures or suspicion do not take the place of legal proof. The large distance between "may be" true and "must be" true, must be covered by way of clear, cogent and unimpeachable evidence produced by the prosecution, before an accused is condemned as a convict, and the basic and golden rule must be applied. In such cases, while keeping in mind the distance between "may be" true and "must be" true, the court must maintain the vital distance between mere conjectures and sure conclusions to be arrived at, on the touchstone of dispassionate judicial scrutiny, based upon a complete and comprehensive appreciation of all features of the case, as well as the quality and credibility of the evidence brought on record. The court must ensure, that miscarriage of justice is avoided, and if the facts and circumstances of a case so demand, then the benefit of doubt must be given to the accused, keeping in mind that a reasonable doubt is not an imaginary, trivial or a merely probable doubt, but a fair doubt that is based upon reason and common sense. [Vide: Hanumant Govind Nargundkar vs. State of M.P., AIR 1952 SC 343; State through CBI v. Mahender Singh Dahiya, (2011) 3 SCC 109: AIR 2011 SC 1017; and Ramesh Harijan vs. State of U.P., (2012) 5 SCC 777].

14. In Kali Ram vs. State of Himachal Pradesh, (1973) 2 SCC 808: AIR 1973 SC 2773, this Court observed as under:

> "25. Another golden thread which runs through the web of the administration of justice in criminal cases is that if two views are possible on the evidence adduced in the case one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other to his innocence, the view which is favourable to the accused should be adopted. This principle has a special relevance in cases where in the guilt of the accused is sought to be established by circumstantial evidence.""

15. Relying upon its earlier decision in Hanumant Govind Nargundkar v. State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1952 SC 343, Hon'ble the Supreme Court of India in Dharam Deo Yadav v. State of Uttar Pradesh, (2014) 5 SCC 509, again reiterated that:

> "15. .... Each and every incriminating circumstance must be clearly established by reliable and clinching evidence and the circumstances so proved must form a chain of events from which the only irresistible conclusion about the guilt of the accused can be safely drawn and no other hypothesis against the guilt is possible. Even when there is no eye-witness to support the criminal charge, but prosecution has been able to establish the chain of circumstances which is complete leading to inference of guilt of accused and circumstances taken collectively are incapable of explanation on any reasonable hypothesis save of guilt sought to be proved, the accused may be convicted on the basis of such circumstantial evidence."

16. Keeping in view the aforesaid principles, we now proceed to discuss the evidence on record.

17. Insofar as identity of the deceased is concerned, there is no dispute. In any event, it stands established through the testimony of Bittu Singh (PW-2) and Bhagwan Singh (PW-3), both relatives of the deceased.

18. That dead body of the deceased was recovered from the well in village Raipur Sahoran stands established on record. Ram Kumar (not examined) saw stains of blood on the edge of the well and informed Pradhan Harpal Singh (PW-5), who visited the spot and after seeing the dead body inside the well, which was dry, informed the police, when police official Sewa Singh (PW-22) reached the spot and, in turn, informed SHO Dharam Chand (PW-21) about the same. After reaching the spot, Dharam Chand got the dead body taken out from the well, prepared inquest report (Ex.PW-1/B), took into possession mobile cover (Ex.P-10), blood stained clothes, i.e. Patka & Parna (Ex.P-8), shoes (Ex.P-9), plucker (Ex.P-11), vide memos (Ex.PW-5/B & 5/C). He sent Rukka (Ex. PW-21/B) to the Police Station, on the basis of which FIR No.224/09, dated 15.6.2009 (Ex.PW-24/D), for commission of offence under Section 302 of the Indian Penal Code, came to be registered at Police Station, Sadar (Una), District Una, Himachal Pradesh.

19. It has come on record through the testimony of ASI Sewa Singh (PW-22) that the spot, from where the dead body was recovered, was got demarcated from the revenue official, who issued relevant documents (Ex.PW-6/B & 6/C), which reveal that the land was owned by one Kishan Devi and possessed by tenants.

20. At this juncture, it be only observed that prosecution has not ruled out the possibility of involvement of these persons or that of Ram Kumar, who first spotted the dead body, in the crime.

21. It is also a matter of record that with the recovery of dead body, FIR came to be registered and untraced report filed in Court. Such fact is evident from the testimony of Amit Sharma (PW-24),

22. Prosecution wants the Court to believe that after a period of one year, while the accused were being interrogated, in connection with another FIR No.78/2010, so registered at Police Station, Nalagarh, co-accused Taranjit Singh made a disclosure statement that he alongwith accused Jatinder @ Jyoti had murdered the deceased and thereafter thrown his dead body in the dry well.

23. To establish such circumstance, our attention is invited to the testimonies of Inspector Prem Lal (PW-19) and Inspector Om Parkash (PW-23).

24. Law on disclosure/confessional statement is now well settled. Sections 25, 26 and 27 of the Indian Evidence Act read as under:

> "25. Confession to police officer not to be proved.
>
> No confession made to a police officer, shall be proved as against a person accused of any offence.
>
> 26. Confession by accused while in custody of police not to be proved against him.
>
> No confession made by any person whilst he is in the custody of a police officer, unless it be made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate, shall be proved as against such person.
>
> 27. How much of information received from accused may be proved.
> Provided that, when any fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence, in the custody of a police officer, so much of such information, whether it amounts to a confession or not, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, may be proved."

25. It be observed the principle of law as laid down in Pulukuri Kottaya and others v. Emperor, AIR (34) 1947 Privy Council 67, which is reproduced herein under, has been consistently followed by Hon'ble the Supreme Court of India.

> "[10] ... ... On normal principles of construction their Lordships think that the proviso to S. 26, added by S. 27, should not be held to nullify the substance of the section. In their Lordships' view it is fallacious to treat the "fact discovered" within the section as equivalent to the object produced; the fact discovered embraces the place from which the object is produced and the knowledge of the accused as to this, and the information given must relate distinctly to this fact. Information as to past user, or the past history, of the object produced is not related to its discovery in the setting in which it is discovered. Information supplied by a person in custody that "I will produce a knife concealed in the roof of my house" does not lead to the discovery of a knife; knives were discovered many years ago. It leads to the discovery of the fact that a knife is concealed in the house of the informant to his knowledge, and if the knife is proved to have been used in the commission of the offence, the fact discovered is very relevant. But if to the statement the words be added "with which I stabbed A" these words are inadmissible since they do not relate to the discovery of the knife in the house of the informant." (Emphasis supplied)

26. In Bodhraj alias Bodha & others vs. State of Jammu and Kashmir, (2002) 8 SCC 45, Hon'ble Supreme Court of India, held as under:-

> "18. Emphasis was laid as a circumstance on recovery of weapon of assault, on the basis of information given by the accused while in custody. The question is whether the evidence relating to recovery is sufficient to fasten guilt on the accused. Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (in short 'the Evidence Act') is by way of proviso to Sections 25 to 26 and a statement even by way of confession made in police custody which distinctly relates to the fact discovered is admissible in evidence against the accused. This position was succinctly dealt with by this Court in Delhi Admn. vs. Bal Krishan, (1972) 4 SCC 659: AIR 1972 SC 3 and Mohd. Inayatullah vs. State of Maharashtra, (1976) 1 SCC 828: AIR 1976 SC 483. The words "so much of such information" as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, are very important and the whole force of the section concentrates on them. Clearly the extent of the information admissible must depend on the exact nature of the fact discovered to which such information is required to relate. The ban as imposed by the preceding sections was presumably inspired by the fear of the Legislature that a person under police influence might be induced to confess by the exercise of undue pressure. If all that is required to lift the ban be the inclusion in the confession of information relating to an object subsequently produced, it seems reasonable to suppose that the persuasive powers of the police will prove equal to the occasion, and that in practice the ban will lose its effect. The object of the provision i.e. Section 27 was to provide for the admission of evidence which but for the existence of the section could not in consequences of the preceding sections, be admitted in evidence. It would appear that under Section 27 as it stands in order to render the evidence leading to discovery of any fact admissible, the information must come from any accused in custody of the police. The requirement of police custody is productive of extremely anomalous results and may lead to the exclusion of much valuable evidence in cases where a person, who is subsequently taken into custody and becomes an accused, after committing a crime meets a police officer or voluntarily goes to him or to the police station and states the circumstances of the crime which lead to the discovery of the dead body, weapon or any other material fact, in consequence of the information thus received from him. This information which is otherwise admissible becomes inadmissible under Section 27 if the information did not come from a person in the custody of a police officer or did come from a person not in the custody of a police officer. The statement which is admissible under Section 27 is the one which is the information leading to discovery. Thus, what is admissible being the information, the same has to be proved and not the opinion formed on it by the police officer. In other words, the exact information given by the accused while in custody which led to recovery of the articles has to be proved. It is, therefore, necessary for the benefit of both the accused and prosecution that information given should be recorded and proved and if not so recorded, the exact information must be adduced through evidence. The basic idea embedded in Section 27 of the Evidence Act is the doctrine of confirmation by subsequent events. The doctrine is founded on the principle that if any fact is discovered as a search made on the strength of any information obtained from a prisoner, such a discovery is a guarantee that the information supplied by the prisoner is true. The information might be confessional or non-inculpatory in nature but if it results in discovery of a fact, it becomes a reliable information. It is now well settled that recovery of an object is not discovery of fact envisaged in the section. Decision of Privy Council in Pulukuri Kotayya v. Emperor (AIR 1947 PC 67), is the most quoted authority for supporting the interpretation that the "fact discovered" envisaged in the section embraces the place from which the object was produced, the knowledge of the accused as to it, but the information given must relate distinctly to that effect. [See: State of Maharashtra v. Danu Gopinath Shinde, (2000) 6 SCC 269]. No doubt, the information permitted to be admitted in evidence is confined to that portion of the information which "distinctly relates to the fact thereby discovered". But the information to get admissibility need not be so truncated as to make it insensible or incomprehensible. The extent of information admitted should be consistent with understandability. Mere statement that the accused led the police and the witnesses to the place where he had concealed the articles is not indicative of the information given." (Emphasis supplied)

27. In Harivadan Babubhai Patel vs. State of Gujarat, (2013) 7 SCC 45, Hon'ble Supreme Court of India, held that:-

"17. In this context, we may usefully refer to A.N. Venkatesh and another v. State of Karnataka [(2005) 7 SCC 714] wherein it has been ruled that:

"By virtue of Section 8 of the Evidence Act, the conduct of the accused person is relevant, if such conduct influences or is influenced by any fact in issue or relevant fact. The evidence of the circumstance, simpliciter, that the accused pointed out to the police officer the place where the dead body of the kidnapped boy was found … would be admissible as conduct under Section 8 irrespective of the fact whether the statement made by the accused contemporaneously with or antecedent to such conduct falls within the purview of Section 27 of the Evidence Act or not. …"

In the said decision, reliance was placed on the principle laid down in Prakash Chand v. State (Delhi Admin) [(1979) 3 SCC 90: AIR 1979 SC 400]. It is worth noting that in the said case, there was material on record that the accused had taken the Investigating Officer to the spot and pointed out the place where the dead body was buried and this Court treated the same as admissible piece of evidence under Section 8 as the conduct of the accused.

18. In State of Maharashtra v. Damu [(2000) 6 SCC 269], it has been held as follows: -

"35. … It is now well settled that recovery of an object is not discovery of a fact as envisaged in Section 27 of the Evidence Act, 1872. The decision of the Privy Council in Pulukuri Kottaya v. King Emperor [AIR 1947 PC 67] is the most quoted authority for supporting the interpretation that the "fact discovered" envisaged in the section embraces the place from which the object was produced, the knowledge of the accused as to it, but the information given must relate distinctly to that effect."

19. The same principle has been laid down in State of Maharashtra v. Suresh [(2000) 1 SCC 471], State of Punjab v. Gurnam Kaur and others [(2009) 11 SCC 225], Aftab Ahmad Anasari v. State of Uttaranchal [(2010) 2 SCC 583], Bhagwan Dass v. State (NCT) of Delhi [(2011) 6 SCC 396: AIR 2011 SC 1863], Manu Sharma v. State [(2010) 6 SCC 1: AIR 2010 SC 2352] and Rumi Bora Dutta v. State of Assam [(2013) 7 SCC 417]."

28. As such confessional statement made to the police officials cannot be used against the accused, in view of the aforesaid statement of law.

29. That apart, we find the version of the witnesses to be unbelievable and unworthy of credence. There are material contradictions on the issue. Whereas, Inspector Prem Lal states that it was accused Taranjit Singh, who had "divulged that he and Sh. Jatinder Kumar had murdered a sikh person about an year ago in District Una and threw the dead body of that person in a well in Santoshgarh area", Inspector Om Parkash states that "a telephonic information was given by me to the SHO, Police Station, Una. Rapat No.44, the copy of which is Ext. PW-23/A, to that effect was entered in Police Station, Una".

30. Now, we find the confessional statements to have been made by both the accused, naming the deceased, to Om Parkash, but however such version is self-contradictory, for in the cross-examination part of his testimony, the witness admits that "I do not record any statement of the accused in FIR No.78/10 of PS, Nalagarh. The statements of the accused were recorded by the Investigating Officer of the said case". Further, Inspector Om Parkash wants the Court to believe that he sent the information on phone, whereas according to Inspector Prem Lal, it was he who had telephonically furnished such information. Now significantly, no independent person was associated by the police at the time of such disclosure/ confessional statement. Also, such statement was not reduced into writing. It has nowhere come on record that both the accused were under police custody in relation to the case registered at Police Station, Nalagarh.

31. Hence, we do not find this circumstance to have been established, much less beyond reasonable doubt.

32. At this juncture, it be only observed that prosecution has miserably failed to establish the motive of crime. Conjoint reading of testimonies of Bittu Singh (PW-2) and Bhagwan Singh (PW-3) reveals that after receiving call from accused Jitender @ Jyoti, deceased, by taking Rs.50,000/Rs.60,000/- in cash, left the house. This was on 14.6.2009. Apparently, there was some business transaction between the accused and the deceased. Also, co-accused Taranjit Singh owed money to the deceased. Further, photograph of sister of accused Jatinder was found on the mobile of the deceased. Significantly, both these witnesses admit that missing report dated 19.6.2009 (Ex.PW-12/B) came to be lodged by their father at Police Station, Ajnala. Now this missing report does not, even remotely, suggest complicity of the accused. In fact, it does not even name any one or point out finger of suspicion against anyone, much less the deceased, of having murdered the deceased. Missing report came to be recorded subsequent to the recovery of the dead body. Further, Bittu Singh admits that he had never seen accused Taranjit Singh with the deceased. Business dealings were only between accused Jyoti and the deceased. He does try to explain that on telephone co-accused Taranjit Singh used to have conversation with the deceased, but then there is no record establishing such fact. Even the mobile phone of the deceased or the accused has not been placed on record.

33. Significantly, the witnesses want the Court to believe that immediately after lodging of the missing report, family of the deceased visited the houses and questioned both the accused, to whom they failed to give any satisfactory reply. Obviously, they are telling lies, for the missing report came to be lodged on 19.6.2009 and dead body so recovered on 15.6.2009 came to be identified on 22.6.2010. Also, no finger of suspicion was raised by them.

34. On the very same issue, our attention is invited to the testimony of police official SI Harjit Singh (PW-13), according to whom, during investigation accused Jitender confessed of having murdered the deceased for the reason that he was in debt to him and that his sister's photograph was found on the mobile phone of the deceased. Again, this is a confessional statement before a police official, which also never came to be reduced into writing, hence, cannot be read in evidence, for being absolutely uninspiring in confidence.

35. Hence, the motive of crime cannot be said to have been established on record.

36. Our attention is invited to the disclosure statements made by accused Taranjit Singh (Ex.PW-7/A) in the presence of Jarnail Singh (PW-7) and Dharam Singh (not examined) as also Ex. PW-18/A made by accused Jitender Kumar in the presence of HC Albel Singh (PW-18) and independent witness Amrik Singh. The former pertains to the concealment of purse of the deceased and the latter about the concealment of sword, with which deceased was murdered. Purse (Ex.P-12) came to be recovered pursuant to disclosure statement (Ex.PW-7/A) in the presence of the very same witnesses and the sword came to be recovered pursuant to disclosure statement (Ex.PW-18/A) in the presence of Ravinder Kumar (PW-8). We do not find even this circumstance to have been established beyond reasonable doubt, for we find presence of Jarnail

Singh on the spot to be doubtful. He is not a resident of the area. If the police had associated the Pradhan during investigation, why would an unknown person be associated in recording statements of the accused, against whom, originally, no finger of suspicion came to be pointed out by anyone. Significantly, independent witness Amrik Singh was given up by the prosecution.

37. Recovery of purse is also uninspiring in confidence, for none has been able to establish that the purse actually belonged to the deceased. Also, recovery came to be effected from an open public place, i.e. Railway bridge, which is accessible by general public. Also, such kind of purses are easily available in the market.

38. Dr. Ravinder Mohan (PW-1), who conducted postmortem, found the following injuries on the body of the deceased:

"1. Lacerated wound on left upper part of forehead 2cm x 1.5 cm.

2. Lacerated wound 2.5 cm x 1 cm on lateral angle of right eye.

3. Lacerated wound on right side of face and right ear pinna.

4. Abraded wound on tip of right shoulder, multiple abrasion on right gluteus region superiorly, multiple abrasions on both knee joints anteriorly.

5. Big incised (slit) wound on left side of neck which was gaping starting from near angle of muddle tapering upto mid line anteriorly on neck. Internal carotid and other blood vessel, muscles of neck are cut in this area cleanly and are visible through the wound. The wound was 12 cm in length and 5 cm in width.

6. There was visible/fracture of frontal bone left side.

7. Fracture humerus right upper end and fracture pelvis right iliac crest."

39. According to the doctor, Injury No.5 could have been caused with weapon (Ex.P-1 or P-2). But significantly, there is no scientific evidence linking the weapon of offence to the accused. Neither traces of blood nor fingerprints were found.

40. Findings on circumstance (a), as culled out by the trial Court, in the affirmative, that the deceased had died due to injuries inflicted with swords (Ex.P-1 & P-2) cannot be said to have been borne out from the record. Evidence of the doctor is only suggestive in nature. There is no link evidence corroborating such fact.

41. While returning findings on circumstance (c), trial Court erred in ignoring the statutory provisions, apart from the fact that the relevant FIR so registered at Police Station, Nalagarh, was never proved on record. Also, there is nothing on record to establish that either of the accused, at the time of making confession, was either in detention or police custody.

42. While dealing with circumstance (e), trial Court itself found the prosecution not to have established the factum of destruction of evidence or sword (Ex.P-1), a prohibited arm, to have been carried without licence.

43. Trial Court, in the absence of any evidence, presumed that the deceased was called by the accused on telephone. The Court lost sight of the fact that none of the relatives of the deceased, so examined in Court, were privy to such conversation. Also where did the money came from and to whom it was handed over has not come on record. Money has not been recovered by the police. Further, Court presumed the common intention of both the accused in killing the deceased. There is nothing on record to establish that the deceased was lastly seen in the company of the accused.

44. From the material placed on record, prosecution has failed to establish that the accused is guilty of having committed the offence, he has been charged with. The circumstances cannot be said to have been proved by unbroken chain of unimpeachable testimony of the prosecution witnesses. The guilt of the accused does not stand proved beyond reasonable doubt to the hilt. The chain of events does not stand conclusively established, leading only to one conclusion, i.e. guilt of the accused.

45. Thus, findings of conviction and sentence, returned by the Court below, cannot be said to be on the basis of any clear, cogent, convincing, legal and material piece of evidence, leading to an irresistible conclusion of guilt of the accused. It cannot be said that prosecution has been able to prove its case that the accused in furtherance of the common intention of his co-accused Taranjit Singh @ Badal, committed murder of Sarwan Singh and also possessed sword, which is a prohibited arm, without licence.

46. Hence, for all the aforesaid reasons, the appeal is allowed and the judgment of conviction and sentence, dated 31.8.2012, passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Una, Himachal Pradesh, in Sessions Case No.11/VII/2011 (Sessions Trial No.8 of 2011), titled as State of Himachal Pradesh v. Jitender Kumar and another, is set aside and the accused is acquitted of the charged offences. He be released from jail, if not required in any other case. Amount of fine, if deposited by the accused, be refunded to him accordingly. Release warrants be immediately prepared.

Appeal stands disposed of, so also pending application(s), if any.

Harivadan Babubhai Patel vs. State of Gujarat, (2013) 7 SCC 45

For the Appellant	:	Mr. Chander Shekhar Sharma, Advocate.
For the Respondent	:	Mr. V.S. Chauhan, Additional Advocate General and Mr. Vikram Thakur, Deputy Advocate General.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Sanjay Karol, Judge

Dead body of Sarwan Singh (deceased) was recovered on 15.6.2009 from the dry well owned by certain private persons. On 19.6.2009, member of the family of the deceased lodged a missing report, without raising any finger of suspicion against any one. Since investigation did not reveal involvement of any person in the crime, as such, untraced report was filed in Court.

2. Hence, during the course of investigation of another crime, in relation to which FIR stood registered at Police Station, Nalagarh, present accused Taranjit Singh and his co-accused Jatinder Kumar, on 18.6.2010, while in custody, made a confessional statement of having murdered the deceased with swords and thereafter dumped the body in the well. Such information came to be passed on to Police Station, Una, having jurisdiction of the place from where initially the dead body was recovered and also accused ordinarily reside. Accused came to be arrested by the police officials of Una and during their custody, made disclosure statements, leading to discovery of the purse of the deceased and weapon of offence, i.e. swords, so concealed by them.

3. Investigation revealed dual motive of crime: (a) perhaps involvement of the deceased with the sister of accused Jatinder Kumar, (b) dispute pertaining to money inter se the deceased and the accused, more specifically Jatinder Kumar.

4. With the completion of investigation, challan came to be presented in the Court and accused Taranjit Singh stands charged for having committed offences punishable under the provisions of Sections 302 & 201, both read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code and Section 25 of the Arms Act, 1959; and accused Jatinder Kumar stands charged for having committed offences under Sections 302 of the Indian Penal Code and 25 of the Arms Act, 1959.

5. It is a matter of record that during trial, accused Taranjit Singh was declared as a proclaimed offender and as such, trial qua him was segregated. Lateron, after his arrest, he participated in the proceedings and separate trial conducted qua him. It is a matter of record that based on similar, but separate, evidence led by the prosecution, both the accused stand convicted.

6. Vide judgment dated 28.9.2015, passed by Additional Sessions Judge-I, Una, Himachal Pradesh, in Sessions Case No.11/11, titled as State of Himachal Pradesh v. Taranjit Singh, accused Taranjit Singh stands convicted for having committed offences punishable under the provisions of Section 302 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code, and sentenced to undergo imprisonment for life and pay fine of Rs.25,000/-, and in default thereof to further undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of one year. However, he stands acquitted of the offences charged for under Sections 201 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code and 25 of the Arms Act.

7. It is also a matter of record that both the accused have preferred separate appeals, which are being disposed of vide separate judgments. Noticeably, State has not preferred any appeal against the judgment of acquittal of the accused of offences under Sections 201 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code and 25 of the Arms Act.

8. Trial Court framed the following points for consideration and answered Point No.1 in the affirmative, but expressed its doubts with regard to Point No.2:

> 8. Whether the prosecution has proved beyond all reasonable doubt that prior to the morning of 15.6.2009 in the area of Raipur Sahoran within the jurisdiction of Police Station, Una, accused Taranjit @ Badal in furtherance of common intention with his co-accused Jatinder had committed the murder of Sarwan Singh?
>
> 9. Whether the prosecution has also proved beyond reasonable doubt that accused Taranjit was in possession of sword, prohibited arm and in furtherance of common intention with his co-accused Taranjit had tried to cause disappearance of evidence?

9. While convicting the accused in relation to the charge of murder, trial Court culled out the following circumstances:

> "a) Ante mortem injuries on the person of the deceased.
>
> g) Presence of blood stains on the edge of the well and roof of the tube well.
>
> h) Accused Taranjit was in custody in case FIR No.78/2010 of P.s. Nalagarh along with his co-accused Jitender alias Jyoti and during interrogation accused Taranjit disclosed that he alongwith his co-accused Jitender committed the murder of a sikh gentleman in the area of District Una and threw the dead body in a well in Santoshgarh area.
>
> i) Identification of the place of occurrence by the accused.
>
> j) Small sword has been recovered at the instance of co-accused Jatinder and purse and sword had been recovered t the instance of accused Taranjit @ Badal."

10. Additionally, learned Additional Advocate General has pressed the following circumstances:

(d) motive of crime,

(e) after receiving call from accused Jatinder, deceased left his house with certain amount of cash but never returned, and

(f) deceased was lastly seen in the company of the accused.

11. Admittedly there is no eye-witness to the alleged incident in relation to which accused stands convicted. Prosecution case primarily rests upon circumstantial evidence. The law on circumstantial evidence is now very well settled. To base a conviction on circumstantial evidence, prosecution must establish all the pieces of incriminating circumstances by reliable and clinching evidence and the circumstances so proved must form such a chain of events, as would permit no conclusion other than the one of guilt of the accused. Circumstances to be proved have to be beyond reasonable doubt and not based on principle of preponderance of probability. Suspicion, howsoever, grave, cannot be a substitute for a proof and courts should take utmost precaution in finding an accused guilty only on the basis of the circumstantial evidence.

12. In Bodhraj alias Bodha & others vs. State of Jammu and Kashmir, (2002) 8 SCC 45, Hon'ble the Supreme Court of India held that:-

> "9. Before analysing factual aspects it may be stated that for a crime to be proved it is not necessary that the crime must be seen to have been committed and must, in all circumstances be proved by direct ocular evidence by examining before the Court those persons who had seen its commission. The offence can be proved by circumstantial evidence also. The principal fact or factum probandum may be proved indirectly by means of certain inferences drawn from factum probans, that is, the evidentiary facts. To put it differently circumstantial evidence is not direct to the point in issue but consists of evidence of various other facts which are so closely associated with the fact in issue that taken together they form a chain of circumstances from which the existence of the principal fact can be legally inferred or presumed. ....."
> 10. .....In Bhagat Ram v. State of Punjab [AIR 1954 SC 621], it was laid down that where the case depends upon the conclusion drawn from circumstances the cumulative effect of the circumstances must be such as to negative the innocence of the accused and bring the offences home beyond any reasonable doubt." (Emphasis supplied)

13. Also it is a settled proposition of law that when there is no direct evidence of crime, guilt of the accused can be proved by circumstantial evidence, but then the circumstances from which conclusion of guilt is to be drawn, should be fully proved and such circumstances must be conclusive in nature, to fully connect the accused with crime. All the links in the chain of circumstances, must be established beyond reasonable doubt, and the proved circumstances should be consistent only with the hypothesis of guilt of the accused, being totally inconsistent with his innocence. While appreciating the circumstantial evidence, Court must adopt a very cautious approach and great caution must be taken to evaluate the circumstantial evidence. [See: Pudhu Raja and another Versus State Represented by Inspector of Police, (2012) 11 SCC 196; Madhu Versus State of Kerala, (2012) 2 SCC 399; Dilip Singh Moti Singh versus State of Gujarat, (2010) 15 SCC 622; Ramreddy Rajesh Khanna Reddy v. State of A.P., (2006) 10 SCC 172; Trimukh Maroti Kiran versus State of Maharashtra, (2006) 10 SCC 681; Mulakh Raj and others Versus Satish Kumar and others, (1992) 3 SCC 43; Ashok Kumar Chatterjee vs. State of M.P., 1989 Supp. (1) SCC 560; Balwinder Singh vs. State of Punjab, (1987) 1 SCC 1; State of U.P. vs. Sukhbasi, 1985 Supp. SCC 79; Sharad Birdhichand Sarda Versus State of Maharashtra, (1984) 4 SCC 116; Earabhadrappa vs. State of Karnataka, (1983) 2 SCC 330; Hukam Singh vs. State of Rajasthan, (1977) 2 SCC 99; and Eradu vs. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1956 SC 316]

14. In Sujit Biswas vs. State of Assam, (2013) 12 SCC 406, Hon'ble the Supreme Court of India held that:-

> "13. Suspicion, however grave it may be, cannot take the place of proof, and there is a large difference between something that "may be" proved, and something that "will be proved". In a criminal trial, suspicion no matter how strong, cannot and must not be permitted to take place of proof. This is for the reason that the mental distance between "may be" and "must be" is quite large, and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions. In a criminal case, the court has a duty to ensure that mere conjectures or suspicion do not take the place of legal proof. The large distance between "may be" true and "must be" true, must be covered by way of clear, cogent and unimpeachable evidence produced by the prosecution, before an accused is condemned as a convict, and the basic and golden rule must be applied. In such cases, while keeping in mind the distance between "may be" true and "must be" true, the court must maintain the vital distance between mere conjectures and sure conclusions to be arrived at, on the touchstone of dispassionate judicial scrutiny, based upon a complete and comprehensive appreciation of all features of the case, as well as the quality and credibility of the evidence brought on record. The court must ensure, that miscarriage of justice is avoided, and if the facts and circumstances of a case so demand, then the benefit of doubt must be given to the accused, keeping in mind that a reasonable doubt is not an imaginary, trivial or a merely probable doubt, but a fair doubt that is based upon reason and common sense. [Vide: Hanumant Govind Nargundkar vs. State of M.P., AIR 1952 SC 343; State through CBI v. Mahender Singh Dahiya, (2011) 3 SCC 109: AIR 2011 SC 1017; and Ramesh Harijan vs. State of U.P., (2012) 5 SCC 777].
>
> 14. In Kali Ram vs. State of Himachal Pradesh, (1973) 2 SCC 808: AIR 1973 SC 2773, this Court observed as under:
> > "25. Another golden thread which runs through the web of the administration of justice in criminal cases is that if two views are possible on the evidence adduced in the case one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other to his innocence, the view which is favourable to the accused should be adopted. This principle has a special relevance in cases where in the guilt of the accused is sought to be established by circumstantial evidence.""

15. Relying upon its earlier decision in Hanumant Govind Nargundkar v. State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1952 SC 343, Hon'ble the Supreme Court of India in Dharam Deo Yadav v. State of Uttar Pradesh, (2014) 5 SCC 509, again reiterated that:

> "15. .... Each and every incriminating circumstance must be clearly established by reliable and clinching evidence and the circumstances so proved must form a chain of events from which the only irresistible conclusion about the guilt of the accused can be safely drawn and no other hypothesis against the guilt is possible. Even when there is no eye-witness to support the criminal charge, but prosecution has been able to establish the chain of circumstances which is complete leading to inference of guilt of accused and circumstances taken collectively are incapable of explanation on any reasonable hypothesis save of guilt sought to be proved, the accused may be convicted on the basis of such circumstantial evidence."

16. Keeping in view the aforesaid principles, we now proceed to discuss the evidence on record.

17. Insofar as identity of the deceased is concerned, there is no dispute. In any event, it stands established through the testimony of Bittu Singh (PW-1) and Bhagwan Singh (PW-3), both relatives of the deceased.

18. That dead body of the deceased was recovered from the well in village Raipur Sahoran stands established on record. Ram Kumar (not examined) saw stains of blood on the edge of the well and informed Pradhan Harpal Singh (PW-23), who visited the spot and after seeing the dead body inside the well, which was dry, informed the police, when police official Sewa Singh (PW-18) reached the spot and, in turn, informed SHO Dharam Chand (PW-17) about the same. After reaching the spot, Dharam Chand got the dead body taken out from the well, prepared inquest report (Ex.PW-1/B), took into possession mobile cover (Ex.P-10), blood stained clothes, i.e. Patka & Parna (Ex.P-8), shoes (Ex.P-9), plucker (Ex.P-11), vide memo (Ex.PW-5/B). He sent Rukka (Ex. PW-21/B) to the Police Station, on the basis of which FIR No.224/09, dated 15.6.2009 (Ex.PW-24/D), for commission of offence under Section 302 of the Indian Penal Code, came to be registered at Police Station, Sadar (Una), District Una, Himachal Pradesh.

19. It has come on record through the testimony of ASI Sewa Singh (PW-18) that the spot, from where the dead body was recovered, was got demarcated from the revenue official, who issued relevant documents (Ex.PW-6/B & 6/C), which reveal that the land was owned by one Kishan Devi and possessed by tenants.

20. At this juncture, it be only observed that prosecution has not ruled out the possibility of involvement of these persons or that of Ram Kumar, who first spotted the dead body, in the crime.

21. It is also a matter of record that with the recovery of dead body, FIR came to be registered and untraced report filed in Court. Such fact is evident from the testimony of Amit Sharma (PW-20),

22. Prosecution wants the Court to believe that after a period of one year, while the accused were being interrogated, in connection with another FIR No.78/2010, so registered at Police Station, Nalagarh, accused Taranjit Singh made a disclosure statement that he alongwith co-accused Jatinder @ Jyoti had murdered the deceased and thereafter thrown his dead body in the dry well.

23. To establish such circumstance, our attention is invited to the testimonies of Inspector Prem Lal (PW-16) and Inspector Om Parkash (PW-19).

24. Law on disclosure/confessional statement is now well settled. Sections 25, 26 and 27 of the Indian Evidence Act read as under:

> "25. Confession to police officer not to be proved.
>
> No confession made to a police officer, shall be proved as against a person accused of any offence.
>
> 26. Confession by accused while in custody of police not to be proved against him.
>
> No confession made by any person whilst he is in the custody of a police officer, unless it be made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate, shall be proved as against such person.
>
> 27. How much of information received from accused may be proved.
> Provided that, when any fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence, in the custody of a police officer, so much of such information, whether it amounts to a confession or not, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, may be proved."

25. It be observed the principle of law as laid down in Pulukuri Kottaya and others v. Emperor, AIR (34) 1947 Privy Council 67, which is reproduced herein under, has been consistently followed by Hon'ble the Supreme Court of India.

> "[10] ... ... On normal principles of construction their Lordships think that the proviso to S. 26, added by S. 27, should not be held to nullify the substance of the section. In their Lordships' view it is fallacious to treat the "fact discovered" within the section as equivalent to the object produced; the fact discovered embraces the place from which the object is produced and the knowledge of the accused as to this, and the information given must relate distinctly to this fact. Information as to past user, or the past history, of the object produced is not related to its discovery in the setting in which it is discovered. Information supplied by a person in custody that "I will produce a knife concealed in the roof of my house" does not lead to the discovery of a knife; knives were discovered many years ago. It leads to the discovery of the fact that a knife is concealed in the house of the informant to his knowledge, and if the knife is proved to have been used in the commission of the offence, the fact discovered is very relevant. But if to the statement the words be added "with which I stabbed A" these words are inadmissible since they do not relate to the discovery of the knife in the house of the informant." (Emphasis supplied)

26. In Bodhraj alias Bodha & others vs. State of Jammu and Kashmir, (2002) 8 SCC 45, Hon'ble Supreme Court of India, held as under:-

> "18. Emphasis was laid as a circumstance on recovery of weapon of assault, on the basis of information given by the accused while in custody. The question is whether the evidence relating to recovery is sufficient to fasten guilt on the accused. Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (in short 'the Evidence Act') is by way of proviso to Sections 25 to 26 and a statement even by way of confession made in police custody which distinctly relates to the fact discovered is admissible in evidence against the accused. This position was succinctly dealt with by this Court in Delhi Admn. vs. Bal Krishan, (1972) 4 SCC 659: AIR 1972 SC 3 and Mohd. Inayatullah vs. State of Maharashtra, (1976) 1 SCC 828: AIR 1976 SC 483. The words "so much of such information" as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, are very important and the whole force of the section concentrates on them. Clearly the extent of the information admissible must depend on the exact nature of the fact discovered to which such information is required to relate. The ban as imposed by the preceding sections was presumably inspired by the fear of the Legislature that a person under police influence might be induced to confess by the exercise of undue pressure. If all that is required to lift the ban be the inclusion in the confession of information relating to an object subsequently produced, it seems reasonable to suppose that the persuasive powers of the police will prove equal to the occasion, and that in practice the ban will lose its effect. The object of the provision i.e. Section 27 was to provide for the admission of evidence which but for the existence of the section could not in consequences of the preceding sections, be admitted in evidence. It would appear that under Section 27 as it stands in order to render the evidence leading to discovery of any fact admissible, the information must come from any accused in custody of the police. The requirement of police custody is productive of extremely anomalous results and may lead to the exclusion of much valuable evidence in cases where a person, who is subsequently taken into custody and becomes an accused, after committing a crime meets a police officer or voluntarily goes to him or to the police station and states the circumstances of the crime which lead to the discovery of the dead body, weapon or any other material fact, in consequence of the information thus received from him. This information which is otherwise admissible becomes inadmissible under Section

27 if the information did not come from a person in the custody of a police officer or did come from a person not in the custody of a police officer. The statement which is admissible under Section 27 is the one which is the information leading to discovery. Thus, what is admissible being the information, the same has to be proved and not the opinion formed on it by the police officer. In other words, the exact information given by the accused while in custody which led to recovery of the articles has to be proved. It is, therefore, necessary for the benefit of both the accused and prosecution that information given should be recorded and proved and if not so recorded, the exact information must be adduced through evidence. The basic idea embedded in Section 27 of the Evidence Act is the doctrine of confirmation by subsequent events. The doctrine is founded on the principle that if any fact is discovered as a search made on the strength of any information obtained from a prisoner, such a discovery is a guarantee that the information supplied by the prisoner is true. The information might be confessional or non-inculpatory in nature but if it results in discovery of a fact, it becomes a reliable information. It is now well settled that recovery of an object is not discovery of fact envisaged in the section. Decision of Privy Council in Pulukuri Kotayya v. Emperor (AIR 1947 PC 67), is the most quoted authority for supporting the interpretation that the "fact discovered" envisaged in the section embraces the place from which the object was produced, the knowledge of the accused as to it, but the information given must relate distinctly to that effect. [See: State of Maharashtra v. Danu Gopinath Shinde, (2000) 6 SCC 269]. No doubt, the information permitted to be admitted in evidence is confined to that portion of the information which "distinctly relates to the fact thereby discovered". But the information to get admissibility need not be so truncated as to make it insensible or incomprehensible. The extent of information admitted should be consistent with understandability. Mere statement that the accused led the police and the witnesses to the place where he had concealed the articles is not indicative of the information given." (Emphasis supplied)

27. In Harivadan Babubhai Patel vs. State of Gujarat, (2013) 7 SCC 45, Hon'ble Supreme Court of India, held that:-

"17. In this context, we may usefully refer to A.N. Venkatesh and another v. State of Karnataka [(2005) 7 SCC 714] wherein it has been ruled that:

> "By virtue of Section 8 of the Evidence Act, the conduct of the accused person is relevant, if such conduct influences or is influenced by any fact in issue or relevant fact. The evidence of the circumstance, simpliciter, that the accused pointed out to the police officer the place where the dead body of the kidnapped boy was found … would be admissible as conduct under Section 8 irrespective of the fact whether the statement made by the accused contemporaneously with or antecedent to such conduct falls within the purview of Section 27 of the Evidence Act or not. …"

In the said decision, reliance was placed on the principle laid down in Prakash Chand v. State (Delhi Admin) [(1979) 3 SCC 90: AIR 1979 SC 400]. It is worth noting that in the said case, there was material on record that the accused had taken the Investigating Officer to the spot and pointed out the place where the dead body was buried and this Court treated the same as admissible piece of evidence under Section 8 as the conduct of the accused.

18. In State of Maharashtra v. Damu [(2000) 6 SCC 269], it has been held as follows: -

> "35. … It is now well settled that recovery of an object is not discovery of a fact as envisaged in Section 27 of the Evidence Act, 1872. The decision > of the Privy Council in Pulukuri Kottaya v. King Emperor [AIR 1947 PC 67] is the most quoted authority for supporting the interpretation that the "fact discovered" envisaged in the section embraces the place from which the object was produced, the knowledge of the accused as to it, but the information given must relate distinctly to that effect."

>
> 19. The same principle has been laid down in State of Maharashtra v. Suresh [(2000) 1 SCC 471], State of Punjab v. Gurnam Kaur and others [(2009) 11 SCC 225], Aftab Ahmad Anasari v. State of Uttaranchal [(2010) 2 SCC 583], Bhagwan Dass v. State (NCT) of Delhi [(2011) 6 SCC 396: AIR 2011 SC 1863], Manu Sharma v. State [(2010) 6 SCC 1: AIR 2010 SC 2352] and Rumi Bora Dutta v. State of Assam [(2013) 7 SCC 417]."

28. As such confessional statement made to the police officials cannot be used against the accused, in view of the aforesaid statement of law.

29. That apart, we find the version of the witnesses to be unbelievable and unworthy of credence. There are material contradictions on the issue. Whereas, Inspector Prem Lal states that it was accused Taranjit Singh, who had disclosed "to me" that "he alongwith co-accused Jyoti @Jatinder about a year back near Mehatpur Distirct Una had murdered one Sikh with 'Kirpan' and had thrown his dead body in the dry well and further that the name of the victim was known to aforesaid co-accused", Inspector Om Parkash states that "I had lodged rapat Ext. PW-23/A with regard to information sent to PS, Sadar, Una".

30. Now, we find the confessional statements to have been made by both the accused, naming the deceased, to Om Parkash, but however such version is self-contradictory, for in the cross-examination part of his testimony, the witness admits that "no statement of accused during interrogation was recorded by me but was disclosed to me by investigating officer concerned". Further, Inspector Om Parkash wants the Court to believe that he sent the information on phone, whereas according to Inspector Prem Lal, it was he who had telephonically furnished such information. Now significantly, no independent person was associated by the police at the time of such disclosure/ confessional statement. Also, such statement was not reduced into writing. It has nowhere come on record that both the accused were under police custody in relation to the case registered at Police Station, Nalagarh.

31. Hence, we do not find this circumstance to have been established, much less beyond reasonable doubt.

32. At this juncture, it be only observed that prosecution has miserably failed to establish the motive of crime. Conjoint reading of testimonies of Bittu Singh (PW-1) and Bhagwan Singh (PW-3) reveals that after receiving call from accused Jyoti, deceased, by taking Rs.50,000/Rs.60,000/- in cash, left the house. This was on 14.6.2009. Apparently, there was some business transaction between the accused and the deceased. Also, accused Taranjit Singh owed money to the deceased. Further, photograph of sister of accused Jatinder was found on the mobile of the deceased. Significantly, both these witnesses admit that missing report dated 19.6.2009 (Ex.PW-12/B) came to be lodged by their father at Police Station, Ajnala. Now this missing report does not, even remotely, suggest complicity of the accused. In fact, it does not even name any one or point out finger of suspicion against anyone, much less the deceased, of having murdered the deceased. Missing report came to be recorded subsequent to the recovery of the dead body. Further, Bittu Singh admits that he had never seen accused Taranjit Singh with the deceased. Business dealings were only between accused Jyoti and the deceased. He does try to explain that on telephone Taranjit Singh used to have conversation with the deceased, but then there is no record establishing such fact. Even the mobile phone of the deceased or the accused has not been placed on record.

33. Significantly, the witnesses want the Court to believe that immediately after lodging of the missing report, family of the deceased visited the houses and questioned both the accused, to whom they failed to give any satisfactory reply. Obviously, they are telling lies, for the missing report came to be lodged on 19.6.2009 and dead body so recovered on 15.6.2009 came to be identified on 22.6.2010. Also, no finger of suspicion was raised by them.

34. On the very same issue, our attention is invited to the testimony of police official SI Harjit Singh (PW-10), according to whom, during investigation accused Jatinder confessed of having murdered the deceased for the reason that he was in debt to him and that his sister's photograph was found on the mobile phone of the deceased. Again, this is a confessional statement before a police official, which also never came to be reduced into writing, hence, cannot be read in evidence, for being absolutely uninspiring in confidence.

35. Hence, the motive of crime cannot be said to have been established on record.

36. Our attention is invited to the disclosure statements made by accused Taranjit Singh (Ex.PW-7/A) in the presence of Dharam Pal (PW-4) as also Ex. PW-18/A made in the presence of HC Albel Singh (PW-15) and independent witness Amrik Singh. The former pertains to the concealment of purse of the deceased and the latter about the concealment of sword, with which deceased was murdered. Purse (Ex.P-12) came to be recovered pursuant to disclosure statement (Ex.PW-7/A) in the presence of the very same witnesses and the sword came to be recovered pursuant to disclosure statement (Ex.PW-18/A) in the presence of Ravinder Kumar (PW-5). We do not find even this circumstance to have been established beyond reasonable doubt, for we find presence of Dharam Pal on the spot to be doubtful. He is not a resident of the area. If the police had associated the Pradhan during investigation, why would an unknown person be associated in recording statements of the accused, against whom, originally, no finger of suspicion came to be pointed out by anyone. Significantly, independent witness Amrik Singh was given up by the prosecution on 12.5.2015, whereafter only statement of police official HC Albel Singh (PW-15) came to be recorded, with regard to the disclosure statement.

37. Recovery of purse is also uninspiring in confidence, for none has been able to establish that the purse actually belonged to the deceased. Also, recovery came to be effected from an open public place, i.e. Railway bridge, which is accessible by general public. Also, such kind of purses are easily available in the market.

38. Dr. Ravinder Mohan (PW-21), who conducted postmortem, found the following injuries on the body of the deceased:

> "1. Lacerated wound on left upper part of forehead 2cm x 1.5 cm.
>
> 2. Lacerated wound 2.5 cm x 1 cm on lateral angle of right eye.
>
> 10. Lacerated wound on right side of face and right ear pinna.
>
> 11. Abraded wound on tip of right shoulder, multiple abrasion on right gluteus region superiorly, multiple abrasions on both knee joints anteriorly.
>
> 12. Big incised (slit) wound on left side of neck which was gaping starting from near angle of muddle tapering upto mid line anteriorly on neck. Internal carotid and other blood vessel, muscles of neck are cut in this area cleanly and are visible through the wound. The wound was 12 cm in length and 5 cm in width.
>
> 13. There was visible/fracture of frontal bone left side.

39. According to the doctor, Injury No.5 could have been caused with weapon (Ex.P-1 or P-2). But significantly, there is no scientific evidence linking the weapon of offence to the accused. Neither traces of blood nor fingerprints were found.

40. Findings on circumstance (a), as culled out by the trial Court, in the affirmative, that the deceased had died due to injuries inflicted with swords (Ex.P-1 & P-2) cannot be said to have been borne out from the record. Evidence of the doctor is only suggestive in nature. There is no link evidence corroborating such fact.

41. While returning findings on circumstance (c), trial Court erred in ignoring the statutory provisions, apart from the fact that the relevant FIR so registered at Police Station, Nalagarh, was never proved on record. Also, there is nothing on record to establish that either of the accused, at the time of making confession, was either in detention or police custody.

42. While dealing with circumstance (e), trial Court itself found the prosecution not to have established the factum of destruction of evidence or sword (Ex.P-1), a prohibited arm, to have been carried without licence.

43. Trial Court, in the absence of any evidence, presumed that the deceased was called by the accused on telephone. The Court lost sight of the fact that none of the relatives of the deceased, so examined in Court, were privy to such conversation. Also where did the money came from and to whom it was handed over has not come on record. Money has not been recovered by the police. Further, Court presumed the common intention of both the accused in killing the deceased. There is nothing on record to establish that the deceased was lastly seen in the company of the accused.

44. From the material placed on record, prosecution has failed to establish that the accused is guilty of having committed the offence, he has been charged with. The circumstances cannot be said to have been proved by unbroken chain of unimpeachable testimony of the prosecution witnesses. The guilt of the accused does not stand proved beyond reasonable doubt to the hilt. The chain of events does not stand conclusively established, leading only to one conclusion, i.e. guilt of the accused.

45. Thus, findings of conviction and sentence, returned by the Court below, cannot be said to be on the basis of any clear, cogent, convincing, legal and material piece of evidence, leading to an irresistible conclusion of guilt of the accused. It cannot be said that prosecution has been able to prove its case that the accused in furtherance of the common intention of his co-accused Jatinder Kumar @ Jyoti, committed murder of Sarwan Singh, caused disappearance of evidence and also possessed sword, which is a prohibited arm, without licence.

46. Hence, for all the aforesaid reasons, the appeal is allowed and the judgment of conviction and sentence, dated 28.9.2015, passed by Additional Sessions Judge-I, Una, Himachal Pradesh, in Sessions Case No.11/11, titled as State of Himachal Pradesh v. Taranjit Singh is set aside and the accused is acquitted of the charged offences. He be released from jail, if not required in any other case. Amount of fine, if deposited by the accused, be refunded to him accordingly. Release warrants be immediately prepared.

Appeal stands disposed of, so also pending application(s), if any.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice, (Oral)

Both these appeals are outcome of judgment and award dated 28.4.2012, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal (I) Mandi, H.P., for short "the Tribunal", in Claim Petition No. 48 of 2009, titled Smt. Dhani Devi and others versus Sh. Narender Bhardwaj and others, , whereby compensation to the tune of Rs.5,62,600/- alongwith interest @ 7.5% came to be awarded in favour of the claimants and insurer was saddled with the liability, hereinafter referred to as "the impugned award", for short.

2. The claimants have questioned the impugned award by the medium of FAO No. 125 of 2013, on the ground of adequacy of compensation and the insurer has questioned the same by the medium of FAO No. 386 of 2012, on the ground that the Tribunal has fallen in an error in saddling it with the liability.

3. Following points arise for consideration in these appeals.

(i) Whether the insurer came to be rightly saddled with the liability?

(ii) Whether the amount awarded is inadequate?

4. The answer is in negative for the following reasons.

5. While going through the record, one comes to an inescapable conclusion that the insurer has already satisfied the own damage vehicle claim which is also admitted by the learned counsel for the appellant in FAO No. 386 of 2012. Thus, the insurer cannot take "U" turn at this stage.

6. The factum of insurance is admitted. Thus, the Tribunal has rightly saddled the insurer with the liability, needs no interference.

7. I have gone through the assessment made by the Tribunal right from paras 21 to 25 of the impugned award. I am of the considered view that the amount awarded is not inadequate rather excessive but keeping in view the facts and circumstances of the case, it cannot be said to be excessive rather adequate.

8. I have gone through the entire record. The Tribunal has rightly made the assessment, while keeping in view of the 2nd Schedule attached to the Act, read with Sarla Verma and others versus Delhi Transport Corporation and another reported in AIR 2009 SC 3104 and upheld in Reshma Kumari and others versus Madan Mohan and another, reported in 2013 AIR SCW 3120.

9. Viewed thus, the impugned award is maintained and both the appeals are dismissed.

10. Registry is directed to release the amount in favour of the claimants, strictly, in terms of the conditions contained in the impugned award, through payees' cheque account or by depositing the same in their bank accounts.

11. Send down the record forthwith, after placing a copy of this judgment.

FAO (MVA) No. 92 of 2012.
Date of decision: 30th September, 2016.

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988- Section 149- The driving licence shows that driver was competent to drive light motor vehicles- offending vehicle was Mahindra Pick-up jeep, which falls within the definition of 'light motor vehicle' -endorsement of PSV is not required and the driver had a valid driving licence – insurance was not disputed and the insurer was rightly saddled with liability.

(Para- 8 to 12)

Case referred:
Kulwant Singh and others vs. Oriental Insurance Company Limited, (2015) 2 Supreme Court Cases 186

For the appellants: Mr.J.L. Bhardwaj, Advocate.
For the respondents: Mr.H.S. Rangra, Advocate, for respondents No.1 to 4.
Mr. Lalit K. Sharma, Advocate, for respondent No.5.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice, (Oral)

This appeal is directed against the judgment and award dated 2.12.2011, made by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal (II) Mandi, H.P., for short "the Tribunal", in Claim Petition No. 40 of 2007, titled Smt. Parvati Kumari and others versus Chet Ram and others, whereby compensation to the tune of Rs.13,16,833.48, alongwith interest @ 7.5% came to be awarded in favour of the claimants and insured/owner was saddled with the liability, hereinafter referred to as "the impugned award", for short.

2. The insurer and the claimants have not questioned the impugned award on any ground. Thus, the same has attained the finality so far as it relates to them.

3. Owner and driver have questioned the impugned award on the ground that the Tribunal has fallen in an error in saddling them with the liability and exonerating the insurer from the liability.

4. The only question to be determined in this appeal is-whether the Tribunal has rightly exonerated the insurer from the liability? The answer is in negative for the following reasons.

5. The claimant invoked the jurisdiction of the Tribunal for the grant of compensation, as per the break-ups given in the claim petition, was resisted by the respondents and following issues came to be framed.

(i) Whether the deceased Parkash Chand died due to rash and negligent driving of vehicle no. HP-34-B-0289 by driver Chet Ram? OPP

(ii) If issue No. 1 is proved in affirmative, whether the petitioners are entitled for compensation, if so to what amount and from whom? OPP

(iii) Whether the vehicle in question was being driven in violation of the terms and conditions of the insurance Policy? OPR-3.

(iv) Whether the driver of the vehicle is in question was not holding a valid and effective driving license at the time of accident? OPR-3.

(v) Relief.

6. The Tribunal, after scanning the evidence, has rightly decided issues No. (i) and (ii) in favour of the claimants and against the owner and driver. The issues No. (iii) and (iv) were decided in favour of the insurer on the ground that the driver was not having a valid and effective driving licence. No other breach was pleaded and proved.

7. Thus, the only question to be determined is whether the findings returned by the Tribunal on issues No. (iii) and (iv) are legally correct.

8. The driving licence is on the record as Ext. RW1/A which does disclose that the driver was competent to driver light motor vehicle. The offending vehicle was Mahindera Pick-up Jeep which falls within the definition of light motor vehicle.

9. This Court in series of cases i.e. FAO No.320 of 2008, titled Dalip Kumar and another vs. New India Assurance Company Ltd. & another, decided on 6th June, 2014, FAO No.306 of 2012, titled Prem Singh and others vs. Dev Raj and others, decided on 18th July, 2014 and FAO No.54 of 2012, titled Mahesh Kumar and another vs. Smt.Priaro Devi and Others, decided on 25th July, 2014, has discussed the issue and held that the driver having driving licence to drive Light Motor Vehicle is not required to have endorsement of "PSV" i.e. public service vehicle. Further held that Tempo Trax is a Light Motor Vehicle.

10. The Apex Court in latest decision, in Kulwant Singh and others vs. Oriental Insurance Company Limited, (2015) 2 Supreme Court Cases 186, has held that the driver who is having valid and effective driving licence to drive a Light Motor Vehicle is not required to have endorsement to drive a light commercial vehicle. It is apt to reproduce paragraphs No.10 and 11 hereunder:

> "10. In S. Iyyapan (supra), the question was whether the driver who had a licence to drive 'light motor vehicle' could drive 'light motor vehicle' used as a commercial vehicle, without obtaining endorsement to drive a commercial vehicle. It was held that in such a case, the Insurance Company could not disown its liability. It was observed :
> "18. In the instant case, admittedly the driver was holding a valid driving licence to drive light motor vehicle. There is no dispute that the motor vehicle in question, by which accident took place, was Mahindra Maxi Cab. Merely because the driver did not get any endorsement in the driving licence to drive Mahindra Maxi Cab, which is a light motor vehicle, the High Court has committed grave error of law in holding that the insurer is not liable to pay compensation because the driver was not holding the licence to drive the commercial vehicle. The impugned judgment (Civil Misc. Appeal No.1016 of 2002, order dated 31.10.2008 (Mad) is, therefore, liable to be set aside."

No contrary view has been brought to our notice.

11. Accordingly, we are of the view that there was no breach of any condition of insurance policy, in the present case, entitling the Insurance Company to recovery rights."

11. Having said so, the driver was having a valid and effective driving licence and the Tribunal has wrongly decided issue No. (iv) in favour of the insurer. Thus the findings recorded on issue No. (iv) are set aside and it is held that the driver was having a valid and effective driving licence and issue is decided in favour of the insured/owner and against the insurer.

Issue No.(iii).

12. It was for the insurer to prove that the owner has committed willful breach in terms of the mandate of Sections 147 and 149 of the Motor Vehicles Act, for short "the Act", has not proved that the owner has committed any breach. The only ground urged was that the driver was not having a valid and effective driving licence, stands already overruled. Accordingly, the Tribunal has wrongly decided issue No. (iii). Having said so, the findings retuned by the Tribunal on issues No. (iii) are set aside and issue is decided against the insurer and in favour of the claimants.

13. The factum of insurance is admitted. Thus, the insurer has to satisfy the award.

14. Viewed thus, the appeal is allowed, the impugned award is modified and the insurer is directed to satisfy the award.

15. The insurer is directed to deposit the amount within eight weeks in the Registry. Registry, on deposit, is directed to release the amount in favour of the claimants, strictly, in terms of the conditions contained in the impugned award, through payees' cheque account or by depositing the same in their bank accounts. Sharma, Advocate, within one week.

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988- Section 157- It was contended that owner insured had sold the vehicle – the risk was not covered and there was breach of the terms and conditions of the policy- held, that mere transfer of a vehicle cannot absolve the insurer from third party liability and the insurer has to satisfy the award – in these circumstances, the insurance company was rightly saddled with liability. (Para-7 to 17)

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988- Section 166- The age of the deceased was 31 years at the time of the accident- multiplier of '15' was applicable – the claimants are entitled to the compensation of Rs.2500 x 12 x 1= Rs.4,50,000/- under the head 'loss of dependency'- claimants are also entitled to Rs.10,000/- each under the heads ' loss of love and affection', 'loss of consortium' , 'loss of estate' and 'funeral expenses' – claimants are thus entitled to Rs.4,50,000 +40,000= 4,90,000/- with interest. (Para- 21 to 24)

Motor Vehicles Act, 1988- Section 166- The claimant has undergone pain and suffering and will have to undergo the same throughout the life- he remained under treatment for about one year and suffered 10% permanent disability- thus, the claimant is entitled to Rs. 50,000/- under the head 'pain and suffering' – the Tribunal had awarded Rs. 20,000/- under the head 'loss of enjoyment of life', which is too meager – the amount enhanced to Rs. 50,000/- - claimant held entitled to Rs. 1,90,029/- along with interest @ 7.5% per annum from the date of filing of the claim petition till realization. The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice (oral)

All these appeals and cross-objections are outcome of a motor vehicular accident, which was allegedly caused by driver, namely, Gaitri Datt, while driving vehicle i.e. bus bearing registration No. HP-33-2861, rashly and negligently, on 15.08.2006, at about 8.30 a.m., near Village Kawalkot (Malramaslt) on Ratti Leda Road, District Mandi, in which, so many persons sustained injuries and one person succumbed to the injuries.

2. The claimants in Claim Petitions No. 117, 105 of 2006, 100 & 140 of 2009, subject matters of FAOs No. 325, 326 of 2009, 154 & 156 of 2012, respectively, filed claim petitions before the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Mandi, District Mandi, H.P. and the claimants in Claim Petitions No. 51, 52, 53, 54 of 2008, subject matters of FAOs No. 391, 388, 389 & 390 of 2012, respectively, filed claim petitions before Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Bilaspur, District Bilaspur, H.P., for short 'the Tribunals' and compensation, as per the details given in the respective awards, came to be awarded in favour of the claimants, for short the 'impugned awards'.

3. The insured-owner and driver have not questioned the impugned awards, on any count, thus have attained finality, so far the same relate to them.

4. The claimants have not questioned the impugned awards, except in Claim Petition No. 100 of 2009, subject matter of FAO No. 154 of 2012 and Claim Petition No. 140 of 2009, subject matter of FAO No. 156 of 2012. They have questioned the impugned awards on the grounds of adequacy of compensation, by the medium of Cross Objections No. 479 of 2012 and 413 of 2012, filed in said appeals.

5. The claimants in other appeals, have not questioned the impugned awards, on any ground, thus have attained finality, so far the same relate to them.

6. Thus, I deem it proper to determine all the appeals and the cross-objections by this common judgment for the reason that the same are outcome of the same accident and the questions involved are similar.

7. The insurer has questioned the impugned awards on the grounds that the insured-owner had sold the offending vehicle, the risk was not covered, thus there was breach of the insurance policy. It has also questioned the impugned award passed in Claim Petition No. 105 of 2006, subject matter of 326 of 2009, on the ground of adequacy of compensation.

8. The following questions are to be determined in these appeals:

(i) Whether the Tribunals have rightly saddled the insurer with liability?

(ii) Whether the amount awarded in claim petitions No. 105/2006, 100/2009 & 140 of 2009, subject matters of FAOs No. 326 of 2009, 154 and 156 of 2012, is adequate or otherwise?

9. Learned Counsel for the insurer argued that the offending vehicle was transferred and the registered owner had no right to obtain insurance policy.

10. While going through the evidence led by the parties and the documents placed on record, one comes to an inescapable conclusion that the registered owner had obtained insurance policy. The evidence also discloses that the vehicle was sold.

11. In the given circumstances, it was for the insurer to follow the mandate of Section 157 of the Motor Vehicles Act, for short 'the MV Act'.

12. Section 157 of the Act reads as under:

"Transfer of certificate of insurance.

(1) Where a person in whose favour the certificate of insurance has been issued in accordance with the provisions of this Chapter transfers to another person the ownership of the motor vehicle in respect of which such insurance was taken together with the policy of insurance relating thereto, the certificate of insurance and the policy described in the certificate shall be deemed to have been transferred in favour of the person to whom the motor vehicle is transferred with effect from the date of its transfer.

[Explanation.—For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that such deemed transfer shall include transfer of rights and liabilities of the said certificate of insurance and policy of insurance.]

(2) The transferee shall apply within fourteen days from the date of transfer in the prescribed form to the insurer for making necessary changes in regard to the fact of transfer in the certificate of insurance and the policy described in the certificate in his favour and the insurer shall make the necessary changes in the certificate and the policy of insurance in regard to the transfer of insurance."

13. While going through the aforesaid provision, one comes to an inescapable conclusion that the insurer has to follow the mandate of the MV Act and mere transfer of a vehicle cannot absolve the insurer from third party liability and the insurer has to satisfy the award.

14. My this view is fortified by the Apex Court Judgment in case titled as G. Govindan versus New India Assurance Company Ltd. and others, reported in AIR 1999 SC 1398. It is apt to reproduce paras-10, 13 & 15 of the aforesaid judgment herein:

" 10. This Court in the said judgment held that the provisions under the new Act and the old Act are substantially the same in relation to liability in regard to third party. This Court also recognised the view taken in the separate judgment in Kondaiah's case that the transferee-insured could not be said to be a third party qua the vehicle in question. In other words, a victim or the legal representatives of the victim cannot be denied the compensation by the insurer on the ground that the policy was not transferred in the name of the transferee.

11. .....

12. .....

13. In our opinion that both under the old Act and under the new Act the Legislature was anxious to protect the third party (victim) interest. It appears that what was implicit in the provisions of the old Act is now made explicit, presumably in view of the conflicting decisions on this aspect among the various High Courts.

14. .....

15. As between the two conflicting views of the Full Bench judgments noticed above, we prefer to approve the ratio laid down by the Andhra Pradesh High Court in Kondaiah's case (AIR 1986 Andh Pra 62) as it advances the object of the Legislature to protect the third party interest. We hasten to add that the third party here will not include a transferee whose transferor has not followed procedure for transfer of policy. In other words in accord with the well-settled rule of interpretation of statutes we are inclined to hold that the view taken by the Andhra Pradesh High Court in Kondaiah's case is preferable to the contrary views taken by the Karnataka and Delhi High Courts (supra) even assuming that two views are possible on the interpretation of relevant sections as it promotes the object of the Legislature in protecting the third party (victim) interest. The ratio laid down in the judgment of Karnataka and Delhi High Courts (AIR 1990 Kant 166 (FB) and AIR 1989 Delhi 88) (FB) (supra) differing from Andhra Pradesh High Court is not the correct one."

15. The Apex Court in case titled as Rikhi Ram and another versus Smt. Sukhrania and others, reported in AIR 2003 SC 1446 held that in absence of intimation of transfer to Insurance Company, the liability of Insurance Company does not cease. It is apt to reproduce paras 5, 6 & 7 of the judgment, supra, herein:-

"5. The aforesaid provision shows that it was intended to cover two legal objectives. Firstly, that no one who was not a party to a contract would bring an action on a contract; and secondly, that a person who has no interest in the subject matter of an insurance can claim the benefit of an insurance. Thus, once the vehicle is insured, the owner as well as any other person can use the vehicle with the consent of the owner. Section 94 does not provide that any person who will use the vehicle shall insure the vehicle in respect of his separate use.

6. On an analysis of Ss. 94 and 95, we further find that there are two third parties when a vehicle is transferred by the owner to a purchaser. The purchaser is one of the third parties to the contract and other third party is for whose benefit the vehicle was insured. So far, the transferee who is the third party in the contract, cannot get any personal benefit under the policy unless there is a compliance of the provisions of the Act. However, so far as third party injured or victim is concerned, he can enforce liability undertaken by the insurer.

7. For the aforesaid reasons, we hold that whenever a vehicle which is covered by the insurance policy is transferred to a transferee, the liability of insurer does not ceases so far as the third party/victim is concerned, even if the owner or purchaser does not give any intimation as required under the provisions of the Act."

16. The Apex Court in latest judgment titled as United India Insurance Co. Ltd., Shimla versus Tilak Singh and others, reported in (2006) 4 SCC 404 has held the same principle. It is apt to reproduce paras- 12 & 13 of the said judgment herein:

"12. In Rikhi Ram v. Sukhrania [(2003) 3 SCC 97 : 2003 SCC (Cri) 735] a Bench of three learned Judges of this Court had occasion to consider Section 103-A of the 1939

Act. This Court reaffirmed the decision in G. Govindan case and added that the liability of an insurer does not cease even if the owner or purchaser fails to give intimation of transfer to the Insurance Company, as the purpose of the legislation was to protect the rights and interests of the third party.

13. Thus, in our view, the situation in law which arises from the failure of the transferor to notify the insurer of the fact of transfer of ownership of the insured vehicle is no different, whether under Section 103-A of the 1939 Act or under Section 157 of the 1988 Act insofar as the liability towards a third party is concerned. Thus, whether the old Act applies to the facts before us, or the new Act applies, as far as the deceased third party was concerned, the result would not be different. Hence, the contention of the appellant on the second issue must fail, either way, making a decision on the first contention unnecessary, for deciding the second issue. However, it may be necessary to decide which Act applies for deciding the third contention. In our view, it is not the transfer of the vehicle but the accident which furnishes the cause of action for the application before the Tribunal. Undoubtedly, the accident took place after the 1988 Act had come into force. Hence it is the 1988 Act which would govern the situation."

17. Having said so, the Tribunal has rightly saddled the insurance company with the liability.

18. Learned Counsel for the insurer further argued that the amount awarded in Claim Petition No. 105 of 2006, subject matter of FAO No. 326 of 2009, is excessive.

19. The Tribunal has rightly assessed the income of the deceased at Rs. 2500/- per month.

20. From the perusal of the impugned award, I am of the considered view that the Tribunal has fallen in an error in applying the multiplier of '17'.

21. Admittedly, the age of the deceased was 31 years at the time of accident. The multiplier of '15' was applicable in this case, in view of the 2nd Schedule appended to the MV Act read with the ratio laid down by the Apex Court in Sarla Verma (Smt.) and others versus Delhi Transport Corporation and another, reported in AIR 2009 SC 3104, upheld by a larger Bench of the Apex Court in a case titled as Reshma Kumari & others versus Madan Mohan and another, reported in 2013 AIR (SCW) 3120 read with the judgment rendered by the Apex Court in case titled as Munna Lal Jain & another versus Vipin Kumar Sharma & others, reported in 2015 AIR SCW 3105.

22. Accordingly, it is held that the claimants are entitled to compensation to the tune of Rs. 2500 x 12 x 15 = Rs.4,50,000/- under the head 'loss of dependency'.

23. The claimants are also entitled to compensation to the tune of a sum of Rs.10,000/- each, under the heads 'loss of love and affection', 'loss of consortium', 'loss of estate' and 'funeral expenses', is accordingly granted.

24. Viewed thus, the claimants are held entitled to total compensation to the tune of Rs.4,50,000/- + 40,000/- = Rs. 4,90,000/- with interest as awarded by the Tribunal from the date of filing of the claim petition till its realization.

25. The amount awarded in Claim Petition No. 100 of 2009, subject matter of FAO No. 154 of 2012, is meager, for the following reasons.

26. The Apex Court in R.D. Hattangadi versus M/s Pest Control (India) Pvt. Ltd. & others, reported in AIR 1995 SC 755, Arvind Kumar Mishra versus New India Assurance Co. Ltd. & another, 2010 AIR SCW 6085, Ramchandrappa versus The Manager, Royal Sundaram Aliance Insurance Company Limited, 2011 AIR SCW 4787 and Kavita versus Deepak and others, 2012 AIR SCW 4771, has clearly laid down the principles as to how compensation has to be awarded in cases where the claimants have suffered permanent disability and how the assessment is to be made.

27. The Apex Court in its latest decision in Jakir Hussein vs. Sabir and others, (2015) 7 SCC 252, while discussing its earlier pronouncements, observed that in injury cases, the compensation would include not only the actual expenses incurred, but the compensation has to be assessed keeping in view the struggle which the injured has to face throughout his life due to the permanent disability and the amount likely to be incurred for future medical treatment, loss of amenities of life, pain and suffering to undergo for the whole life etc. It is apt to reproduce paragraphs 11 and 18 of the said decision hereunder:

> "11. With regard to the pain, suffering and trauma which have been caused to the appellant due to his crushed hand, it is contended that the compensation awarded by the Tribunal was meagre and insufficient. It is not in dispute that the appellant had remained in the hospital for a period of over three months. It is not possible for the courts to make a precise assessment of the pain and trauma suffered by a person whose arm got crushed and has suffered permanent disability due to the accident that occurred. The appellant will have to struggle and face different challenges as being handicapped permanently. Therefore, in all such cases, the Tribunals and the courts should make a broad estimate for the purpose of determining the amount of just and reasonable compensation under pecuniary loss. Admittedly, at the time of accident, the appellant was a young man of 33 years. For the rest of his life, the appellant will suffer from the trauma of not being able to do his normal work of his job as a driver. Therefore, it is submitted that to meet the ends of justice it would be just and proper to award him a sum of Rs.1,50,000/- towards pain, suffering and trauma caused to him and a further amount of Rs.1,50,000/- for the loss of amenities and enjoyment of life.
> 18. Further, we refer to the case of Rekha Jain & Anr. v. National Insurance Co. Ltd., 2013 8 SCC 389 wherein this Court examined catena of cases and principles to be borne in mind while granting compensation under the heads of (i) pain, suffering and (ii) loss of amenities and so on. Therefore, as per the principles laid down in the case of Rekha Jain & Anr. and considering the suffering undergone by the appellant herein, and it will persist in future also and therefore, we are of the view to grant Rs.1,50,000/- towards the pain, suffering and trauma which will be undergone by the appellant throughout his life. Further, as he is not in a position to move freely, we additionally award Rs.1,50,000/- towards loss of amenities & enjoyment of life and happiness."

28. The claim of the claimant for enhancement has to be tested in view of the principles laid down by the Apex Court in the decisions, supra.

29. The Tribunal has fallen in an error in awarding compensation to the tune of Rs. 2,000/- under the head 'pain and sufferings'.

30. The claimant-injured has undergone pain and sufferings and has to undergo the same throughout the life. He remained under treatment for about one year, has suffered 10% permanent disability, in terms of Disability Certificates Ext. PW-2/A and Ext. PW-3/A. In view of the above, the claimant-injured is held entitled to Rs. 50,000/- under the head 'pain and sufferings'.

31. The Tribunal has awarded Rs. 20,000/- under the head 'loss of enjoyment of life', which is too meager.

32. It appears that because of the said injury, the claimant-injured is deprived of the amenities of life, as the injury has shattered his physical frame and affected his charm of enjoyment of life. The claimant-injured is held entitled to Rs. 50,000/- under the head 'loss of enjoyment of life.'

33. The amount awarded under the other heads is maintained.

34. Viewed thus, the claimant-injured is held entitled to compensation to the tune of Rs.1,90,029/- with interest at the rate of 7.5% per annum from the date of filing of the claim petition till its realization. Accordingly, Cross Objections No. 479 of 2012 are allowed.

35. In Claim Petition No. 140 of 2009, subject matter of FAO No. 156 of 2012, the Tribunal has awarded compensation to the tune of Rs.10,000/- under the head 'pain and suffering' and Rs.40,000/- under the head 'loss of enjoyment of life', which is too meager.

36. The claimant-injured has suffered permanent disability to the extent of 20%, in terms of Disability Certificate Ext. PW-2/A, which has affected her earning capacity.

37. In view of the ratio laid by the Apex Court in the judgments, supra, the claimant-injured is held entitled to Rs.50,000/- under the head 'pain and sufferings' and Rs.50,000/- under the head 'loss of enjoyment of life.'

38. The compensation amount awarded under the other heads is maintained.

39. Viewed thus, the claimant-injured is held entitled to compensation to the tune of Rs. 1,24,919/- with interest at the rate of 7.5% per annum from the date of filing of the claim petition. Accordingly, Cross Objections No. 413 of 2012 are allowed.

40. Having said so, all the appeals except FAO No. 326 of 2009, are dismissed.

41. The impugned award passed in Claim Petition No. 105 of 2006, subject matter of FAO No. 326 of 2009, is modified, as indicated above.

42. The amount awarded in Claim Petitions No. 100 & 140 of 2009, subject matter of FAOs No. 154 & 156 of 2012, is enhanced, as indicated above. Accordingly, the impugned awards passed in the said claim petitions, are modified.

43. The insurer is directed to deposit the enhanced amount in FAOs No. 154 & 156 of 2012, within a period of six weeks from today. On deposit, the Registry is directed to release same in favour of the claimants, strictly in terms of the conditions contained in the impugned awards, through payees' account cheque or by depositing the same in their accounts.

44. The excess amount, if any, deposited in FAO No. 326 of 2009, be refunded to the insurer through payees' account cheque or by depositing the same in its account.

45. Accordingly, the appeals and cross objections are disposed of.

46. Send down the record after placing a copy of the judgment on each of the Tribunals' file.

For the appellant:	Mr.G.C. Gupta, Sr. Advocate with Ms. Meera Devi, Advocate.
For the respondents:	Mr.Tek Chand Sharma, Advocate, for respondent No.1. Respondent No.2 ex parte.

The following judgment of the Court was delivered:

Mansoor Ahmad Mir, Chief Justice.

This appeal is directed against the judgment and award dated 8.6.2011, passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Shimla, H.P. hereinafter referred to as "the Tribunal", for short, in MAC Petition No.22-S/2 of 2011/05, titled Sh. Parveen versus Sh. Anup Thakur and another, whereby compensation to the tune of Rs.4,90,000/- alongwith interest @ 8% per annum with costs assessed at Rs.5,000/- came to be awarded in favour of the claimant and insurer was saddled with the liability, for short "the impugned award", on the grounds taken in the memo of appeal.

2. Claimant and owner-cum-driver have not questioned the impugned award on any ground, thus it has attained the finality, so far as it relates to them.

3. The insurer has questioned the impugned award on the grounds taken in the memo of appeal.

4. The claimant, by the medium of claim petition, under Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, for short "the Act" had invoked the jurisdiction of the Tribunal for the grant of compensation to the tune of Rs.19,24,950/-, as per the break-ups given in the claim petition, on account of the injuries suffered by him in a motor vehicle accident occurred on 30.7.2004, which was caused by Anup Thakur-respondent No. 1 in the claim petition, while driving vehicle No. HP-01-8456, rashly and negligently. In the said accident, right arm of the claimant had been crushed. He was taken to District Hospital Solan for immediate medical aid, was referred to IGMC Shimla and remained admitted there up to 3.8.2004. On the same date, i.e., on 3.8.2004, he was referred to PGI Chandigarh, and discharged on 11.8.2004. The petitioner is stated to have spent Rs.1,00,000/- on his medical treatment.

5. The claim petition was resisted by the respondents by the medium of the replies and following issues came to be framed:

(i) Whether the petitioner sustained injuries in a vehicular accident involving vehicle No. HP-01-8456 caused due to rash and negligent driving by respondent No.1? OPP.

(ii) If issue No. (i) is proved, to what amount of compensation the petitioner is entitled to and from whom? OPP

(iii) Whether the vehicle in question was being driven in violation of terms and conditions of insurance policy? OPR-2.

(iv) Whether the driver of the vehicle was not holding valid and effective driving licence? OPR-2.

(v) Relief.

6. The claimant led evidence and has examined Dr Ravinder Mokta as PW1, Sh. Bhim Chand Sharma, PW2, Shri Sandeep Kumar PW4 and claimant himself has stepped into the witness-box as PW3.

7. The Tribunal, after scanning the evidence, made the award dated 4.9.2008 in MAC Petition No. 118/S/2 of 2005, whereby compensation to the tune of Rs.4,90,000/- came to be awarded in favour of the claimant and insurer was saddled with the liability.

8. The appellant/insurer invoked the jurisdiction of this Court, by filing petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India, which was registered as CMPMO No. 227 of 2009. The said petition was allowed vide judgment and order dated 9.3.2011, and following directions were passed.

> "13. Consequently, the award is set aside and the matter is remanded to the learned Tribunal. The learned Tribunal shall decide the application filed by the insurance Company under Section 170 of the Act at the first instance. Thereafter, it shall give only one opportunity to the claimant to produce the Doctor since in this case the claimant had already taken a number of opportunities and had also taken dasti summons to produce the doctor. No application for examination of the doctor on commission shall be entertained and it shall be the responsibility of the claimant to serve and produce the doctor who issued the disability certificate. Only one opportunity in this behalf shall be given and in case the claimant fails to produce the doctor, the evidence of the claimant shall be closed. In case the doctor is examined, an opportunity to rebut the evidence shall be given to the respondents and to the insurance Company if it is permitted to contest the claim on al grounds."

9. After remand, the claimant examined PW5 Rattan Chand, who produced the record relating to the disability certificate and PW6 Dr. B.K. Arya, Medical Specialist has proved the disability certificate Ext. PW1/A.

10. Thereafter, the learned Tribunal has passed the award dated 8.6.2011, granted the compensation as referred to supra, subject matter of the present appeal.

11. The learned counsel for the appellant argued that the Tribunal has fallen in an error in not allowing the appellant to lead evidence and prayed for the remand. The argument though is forceful and attractive, but is devoid of any force, for the following reasons.

12. This Court vide judgment dated 9th March, 2011, referred to supra had directed the Tribunal to examine the application under Section 170 of the Act filed by the insurer which was granted vide order dated 18.4.2011. Thus, the appellant/insurer was permitted to contest the claim petition on all grounds available to it, had neither led any evidence before the Tribunal at the first instance nor after remand.

13. The insurer had to discharge the onus on issues No. (iii) and (iv), has failed to discharge the same at the first instance. In terms of the earlier award, both the issues were decided against the insurer and also came to be decided against the insurer in terms of the impugned award, subject matter of this appeal. Both these issues relate to the terms and conditions of the insurance policy read with the mandate of Sections 147 and 149 of the Act, the defences available to the insurer. The insurer was to lead evidence, as per the mandate of Section 170 of the Act on all other grounds which were available to it.

14. The learned counsel for the appellant/insurer has not disputed the following.

(i) Factum of accident,

(ii) Rashness and negligence of the driver,

(iii) Disability suffered by the claimant.

15. This Court can examine the case at this stage and hear the parties on all grounds which are available, in terms of the mandate given under Section 170 of the Act.

16. Admittedly, there is no dispute viz-a-viz issue No. (i). Accordingly, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issue No. (i) are upheld.

17. Before I determine issue No. (ii), I deem it proper to determine issue No. (iii) & (iv). I have examined the pleadings, evidence and gone through the record. The insured has obtained insurance of the vehicle, in terms of the mandate of the Act, in order to protect the interest of the driver, third party and himself. The record does disclose that the insured/owner had obtained all the required documents as per the mandate of the Act.

18. While going through the entire record as it is, one comes to an inescapable conclusion that the insured has not committed any willful breach, in terms of the mandate of the Sections 147 and 149 of the Act, not to speak of violating the terms and conditions of the insurance policy.

19. The question of remand on the ground that the insurer has not been allowed the opportunity to lead evidence, cross-examine witnesses and medical certificate, does not arise as it will amount to dragging the claimant again to the protracted litigation which is against the aim and object of granting the compensation. The claimant has suffered permanent disability of 50% and is not in a position to work as driver, as discussed by the Tribunal. Having said so, the findings returned by the Tribunal on issue No. (iii) are upheld.

Issue No.(iv).

20. It was for the insurer to prove that the driver was not having a valid and effective driving licence, has not led any evidence. The driving licence Mark-R-1 is on record which does disclose that the driver was having a valid and effective driving licence. It will be a futile exercise to ask the Tribunal to provide one opportunity to the appellant to lead evidence because the driving licence is on the record which is valid and effective one.

21. The apex Court in case titled Rakesh Kumar & Etc. v. United India Insurance Company Ltd. and others. Etc. Etc., reported in JT 2016 (6) SC 504, has held that once the license was proved and marked in evidence without any objection by the Insurance Company, it has no right to raise any objection about its admissibility at a later stage. It is apt to reproduce paras 21 and 22 of the said judgment herein.

> "21. In the light of foregoing reasons, we are of the considered opinion that the High court was not right in reversing the finding of the Tribunal. Indeed, the High Court should have taken note of these reasons which, in our view, were germane for deciding the issue of liability of the Insurance Company arising out of the accident.
> 22. We, therefore, find no good ground to concur with the finding of the High Court. Thus while reversing the finding, we hold that the driver of the offending vehicle was holding a valid driving license (Exhibit-R1) at the time of accident and since the Insurance Company failed to prove otherwise, it was liable to pay the compensation awarded by the Tribunal and enhanced by the High Court."

22. The Tribunal has rightly recorded the findings on issue No. (iv), are accordingly, upheld.

Issue No.(ii).

23. The claimant has proved that he was admitted in the hospital, i.e., in IGMC Shimla from 30.7.2004 upto 3.8.2004 and after 3.8.2004 till 11.8.2004 at PGI Chandigarh and has suffered 50% permanent disability. The Tribunal, after exercising guess work and assessment, has awarded compensation as follows:

(i) Rs.11000/- under the head "medical expenses."

(ii) Rs.3,000/- under the head "travel expenses."

(iii) Rs.10,000/- under the head "attendant charges"

(iv) Rs.25,000/- on account of lay-off,

(v) Rs.25,000/- under the head "mental and physical pain", and

(vi) Rs.4,16,000/- under the head loss of future income, loss of amenities of life, loss of expectation of life, etc.= Total Rs.4,90,000/- along with costs assessed at Rs.5,000/-.

24. The amount awarded by the Tribunal is meager. Virtually, the claimant has lost his right arm and is not in a position to work as driver in future, as discussed by the Tribunal in para 21 of the impugned award. The medical certificate issued by Dr. B.K. Arya is on record. The Tribunal has recorded the statement of the expert in para 17 of the award. It is apt to reproduce statement of PW6 Dr.B.K. Arya herein.

> "The petitioner Parveen Kumar had been examined by me as a member of the Medical Board. He was found to have suffered crush injury right forearm with ankylosis elbow at 90 degree with claw hand with non functional limb with disuse atrophy and disability thereof of permanent character was 50% in relation to whole body. Dr. Ramesh Chauhan, Orthopedic surgeon had also been present and he had also examined petitioner Parveen Kumar. Disability certificate, copy Ext. PW-1/A had been signed by Dr. Ramesh Chauhan and myself. The Medical Superintendent had also signed the disability certificate. I have brought the original record of this disability certificate.
> Cross-examnation by Sh. Vipul Prabhakar, Advocate, on behalf of the respondent No.2.
> I had not medically treated this patient at any stage"

25. It is beaten law of land that the compensation is to be awarded in an injury case under pecuniary and non-pecuniary heads by making guess work.

26. My this view is fortified by the judgments made by the Apex Court in the cases titled as R.D. Hattangadi versus M/s Pest Control (India) Pvt. Ltd. & others, reported in AIR 1995 SC 755, Arvind Kumar Mishra versus New India Assurance Co. Ltd. & another, reported in 2010 AIR SCW 6085, Ramchandrappa versus The Manager, Royal Sundaram Aliance Insurance Company Limited, reported in 2011 AIR SCW 4787, and Kavita versus Deepak and others, reported in 2012 AIR SCW 4771.

27. This Court has also laid down the same principle in a series of cases.

28. The age of the claimant was 24 years at the time of the accident. The multiplier applicable is "16" in view of the 2nd Schedule attached to the Act, read with Sarla Verma and others versus Delhi Transport Corporation and another reported in AIR 2009 SC 3104 and upheld in Reshma Kumari and others versus Madan Mohan and another, reported in 2013 AIR SCW 3120.

29. The appellant/insurer has, in fact, not cross-examined the doctor. The disability certificate stands proved. The permanent disability has affected the profession of the claimant as driver totally for the reason that he is not in a position to work as driver in future. The tribunal has assessed the income of the claimant at Rs.4,000/- per month though it is meager but claimant has not questioned the same, is reluctantly upheld.

30. Thus, the claimant has lost source of income to the tune of Rs.4,000/- per month. Though he has suffered 50% disability but it has permanently affected his earning capacity. Having said so, the claimant has lost source of dependency to the tune of Rs.4000/- x16x12= Rs.7,68,000/-.

31. The Apex Court in its latest decision in Jakir Hussein vs. Sabir and others, (2015) 7 SCC 252, while discussing its earlier pronouncements, observed that in injury cases, the compensation would include not only the actual expenses incurred, but the compensation has to be assessed keeping in view the struggle which the injured has to face throughout his life due to the permanent disability and the amount likely to be incurred for future medical treatment, loss of amenities of life, pain and suffering to undergo for the entire life etc. It is apt to reproduce paragraphs 11 and 18 of the said decision hereunder:

> "11. With regard to the pain, suffering and trauma which have been caused to the appellant due to his crushed hand, it is contended that the compensation awarded by the Tribunal was meagre and insufficient. It is not in dispute that the appellant had remained in the hospital for a period of over three months. It is not possible for the courts to make a precise assessment of the pain and trauma suffered by a person whose arm got crushed and has suffered permanent disability due to the accident that occurred. The appellant will have to struggle and face different challenges as being handicapped permanently. Therefore, in all such cases, the Tribunals and the courts should make a broad estimate for the purpose of determining the amount of just and reasonable compensation under pecuniary loss. Admittedly, at the time of accident, the appellant was a young man of 33 years. For the rest of his life, the appellant will suffer from the trauma of not being able to do his normal work of his job as a driver. Therefore, it is submitted that to meet the ends of justice it would be just and proper to award him a sum of Rs.1,50,000/- towards pain, suffering and trauma caused to him and a further amount of Rs.1,50,000/- for the loss of amenities and enjoyment of life.
> ....
> 18. Further, we refer to the case of Rekha Jain & Anr. v. National Insurance Co. Ltd., 2013 8 SCC 389 wherein this Court examined catena of cases and principles to be borne in mind while granting compensation under the heads of (i) pain, suffering and (ii) loss of amenities and so on. Therefore, as per the principles laid down in the case of Rekha Jain & Anr. and considering the suffering undergone by the appellant herein, and it will persist in future also and therefore, we are of the view to grant Rs.1,50,000/- towards the pain, suffering and trauma which will be undergone by the appellant throughout his life. Further, as he is not in a position to move freely, we additionally award Rs.1,50,000/- towards loss of amenities & enjoyment of life and happiness."

32. In view of the ratio laid down by the apex Court in the judgment, supra, I am of the considered view that the claimant-injured is entitled to compensation to the tune of Rs.1,50,000/- under the head 'pain and sufferings' and Rs.1,50,000/- under the head 'loss of amenities of life'.

33. The question is-whether this Court can enhance compensation? The answer is in affirmative for the following reasons.

34. Keeping in view the object of granting of compensation and the legislature's wisdom read with the amendment made in the MV Act in the year 1994, it is for the Tribunal or the Appellate Court to assess the just compensation and is within its power to grant the compensation more than what is claimed and can enhance the same.

35. This Court in a case titled as United India Insurance Company Ltd. versus Smt. Kulwant Kaur, reported in Latest HLJ 2014 (HP) 174, held that the Tribunal as well as the Appellate Court is/are within the jurisdiction to enhance the compensation and grant more than what is claimed.

36. The same view was taken by the Apex Court in the case of Nagappa versus Gurudayal Singh and others, reported in AIR 2003 Supreme Court 674. It is apt to reproduce paras 7, 9 and 10 of the judgment herein:

"7. Firstly, under the provisions of Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, (hereinafter referred to as "the MV Act") there is no restriction that compensation could be awarded only up to the amount claimed by the claimant. In an appropriate case where from the evidence brought on record if Tribunal/Court considers that claimant is entitled to get more compensation than claimed, the Tribunal may pass such award. Only embargo is – it should be 'Just' compensation, that is to say, it should be neither arbitrary, fanciful nor unjustifiable from the evidence. This would be clear by reference to the relevant provisions of the M.V. Act. Section 166 provides that an application for compensation arising out of an accident involving the death of or bodily injury to, persons arising out of the use of motor vehicles, or damages to any property of a third party so arising, or both, could be made (a) by the person who has sustained the injury; or (b) by the owner of the property; (c) where death has resulted from the accident, by all or any of the legal representatives of the deceased; or (d) by any agent duly authorised by the person injured or all or any of the legal representatives of the deceased, as the case may be. Under the proviso to sub-section (1), all the legal representatives of the deceased who have not joined as the claimants are to be impleaded as respondents to the application for compensation. Other important part of the said Section is sub-section (4) which provides that "the Claims Tribunal shall treat any report of accidents forwarded to it under sub-section (6) of Section 158 as an application for compensation under this Act." Hence, Claims Tribunal in appropriate case can treat the report forwarded to it as an application for compensation even though no such claim is made or no specified amount is claimed.

8. .....

9. It appears that due importance is not given to sub-section (4) of Section 166 which provides that the Tribunal shall treat any report of the accidents forwarded to it under sub-section (6) of Section 158, as an application for compensation under this Act.

10. Thereafter, Section 168 empowers the Claims Tribunal to "make an award determining the amount of compensation which appears to it to be just". Therefore, only requirement for determining the compensation is that it must be 'just'. There is no other limitation or restriction on its power for awarding just compensation."

37. In the case titled as State of Haryana and another versus Jasbir Kaur and others, reported in AIR 2003 Supreme Court 3696, the Apex Court has discussed the expression 'just'. It is apt to reproduce para 7 of the judgment herein:

"7. It has to be kept in view that the Tribunal constituted under the Act as provided in S. 168 is required to make an award determining the amount of compensation which is to be in the real sense "damages" which in turn appears to it to be 'just and reasonable'. It has to be borne in mind that compensation for loss of limbs or life can hardly be weighed in golden scales. But at the same time it has to be borne in mind that the compensation is not expected to be a windfall for the victim. Statutory provisions clearly indicate the compensation must be "just" and it cannot be a bonanza; nor a source of profit; but the same should not be a pittance. The Courts and Tribunals have a duty to weigh the various factors and quantify the amount of compensation, which should be just. What would be "just" compensation is a vexed question. There can be no golden rule applicable to all cases for measuring the value of human life or a limb. Measure of damages cannot be arrived at by precise mathematical calculations. It would depend upon the particular facts and circumstances, and attending peculiar or special features, if any. Every method or mode adopted for assessing compensation has to be considered in the background of "just" compensation which is the pivotal consideration. Though by use of the expression "which appears to it to be just" a wide discretion is vested on the Tribunal, the determination has to be rational, to be done by a judicious approach and not the outcome of whims, wild guesses and arbitrariness. The expression "just" denotes equitability, fairness and reasonableness, and non-arbitrary. If it is not so it cannot be just. (See Helen C. Rebello v. Maharashtra State Road Transport Corporation (AIR 1998 SC 3191)."

38. The same view has been taken by the Apex Court in a case titled as The Divisional Controller, K.S.R.T.C. versus Mahadeva Shetty and another, reported in AIR 2003 Supreme Court 4172.

39. The Apex Court in a case titled as A.P.S.R.T.C. & another versus M. Ramadevi & others, reported in 2008 AIR SCW 1213, held that the Appellate Court was within its jurisdiction and powers in enhancing the compensation despite the fact that the claimants had not questioned the adequacy of the compensation.

40. The Apex Court in the case titled as Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. versus Mohd. Nasir & Anr., reported in 2009 AIR SCW 3717, laid down the same principle while discussing, in para 27 of the judgment, the ratio laid down in the judgments rendered in the cases titled as Nagappa v. Gurudayal Singh & Ors, (2003) 2 SCC 274; Devki Nandan Bangur and Ors. versus State of Haryana and Ors. 1995 ACJ 1288; Syed Basheer Ahmed & Ors. versus Mohd. Jameel & Anr., (2009) 2 SCC 225; National Insurance Co. Ltd. versus Laxmi Narain Dhut, (2007) 3 SCC 700; Punjab State Electricity Board Ltd. versus Zora Singh and Others (2005) 6 SCC 776; A.P. SRTC versus STAT and State of Haryana & Ors. versus Shakuntla Devi, 2008 (13) SCALE 621.

41. The amount awarded under four heads, i.e.,Rs.11000/- under the head "medical expenses" Rs.10,000/- under the head "attendant charges", Rs. 3000/- under the head "travel expenses" and Rs.25,000/- on account of lay-off, is maintained.

42. Viewed thus, the claimant is awarded compensation to the tune of Rs.7,68,000/-,+ Rs.1,50,000/-+Rs.1,50,000/-+ Rs.11000/-+ Rs.10,000/- + Rs.25,000/-+Rs.3000/-= Total Rs.11,17,000/-.

43. The Tribunal has awarded interest @ 8% per annum. However, interest was to be awarded at rate of 7.5% per annum, for the following reasons.

44. It is a beaten law of the land that the rate of interest should be awarded as per the prevailing rates, in view of the judgments rendered by the Apex Court in cases titled as United India Insurance Co. Ltd. and others versus Patricia Jean Mahajan and others, reported in (2002) 6 SCC 281; Satosh Devi versus National Insurance Company Ltd. and others, reported in 2012 AIR SCW 2892; Amrit Bhanu Shali and others versus National Insurance Company Limited and others reported in (2012) 11 SCC 738; Smt. Savita versus Binder Singh & others, reported in 2014, AIR SCW 2053; Kalpanaraj & others versus Tamil Nadu State Transport Corpn., reported in 2014 AIR SCW 2982; Amresh Kumari versus Niranjan Lal Jagdish Pd. Jain and others, reported in (2015) 4 SCC 433, and Mohinder Kaur and others versus Hira Nand Sindhi (Ghoriwala) and another, reported in (2015) 4 SCC 434, and discussed by this Court in a batch of FAOs, FAO No. 256 of 2010, titled as Oriental Insurance Company versus Smt. Indiro and others, being the lead case, decided on 19.06.2015.

45. Accordingly, interest @7.5% per annum is awarded from the date of claim petition till realization of the amount.

46. The insurer is directed to deposit the enhanced amount alongwith interest @ 7.5% per annum, within eight weeks from today in the Registry. The Registry, on deposit, is directed to release the amount in favour of the claimant, strictly in terms of the conditions contained in the impugned award, through payees' cheque account, or by depositing the same in his bank account, after proper verification.

47. The amount already deposited by the insurer in the Registry, be released in favour of the claimant, forthwith, strictly in terms of the conditions contained in the impugned award, through payees' cheque account, or by depositing the same in his bank account, after proper verification.

48. Viewed thus, the appeal is disposed of along with pending applications, compensation is enhanced and the impugned award is modified as indicated hereinabove.

49. Send down the record forthwith, after placing a copy of this judgment.

10. Court heard learned Advocate appearing on behalf of parties and Court also perused entire record carefuly.

11. Following points arise for determination in civil revision petition:-

1. Whether revision petition filed by revisionists widow of deceased Achhar Singh and minor sons of deceased Achhar Singh is liable to be accepted as mentioned in memorandum of grounds of revision petition?

2. Relief.

Findings upon point No.1 with reasons

12. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of revisionists that proposed amendment could not be filed before commencement of trial because copy of agreement dated 31.3.2008 was found on 22.9.2014 after death of Achhar Singh in a box and keeping in view the fact that revisionists are widow and minors sons and are rustic villagers and on this ground proposed amendment be allowed in the ends of justice is accepted for the reasons hereinafter mentioned. It is proved on record that proposed amendment application is filed by widow who is rustic villager and minors namely Master Pankaj aged 9 years, Master Neeraj aged 7 years and Master Harpreet aged 5 years. It is well settled law that Courts are under legal obligation to protect the interest of minors. Court is of the opinion that Court can take judicial notice of subsequent events in civil suit. Tracing of copy of agreement of sale dated 31.3.2008 qua 0-5 biswas of land on 22.9.2014 is a subsequent event. It is well settled law that Court can take judicial notice of subsequent event in civil judicial proceedings.

13. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of non-revisionists that proposed amendment is contradictory to original plaint and same should not be allowed is rejected being devoid of any force for the reasons hereinafter mentioned. In present case it is proved on record that alleged general power of attorney in favour of co-defendant No.2 who is real sister of co-defendant No.1 was executed on 31.3.2008 and proposed agreement of sale was also executed on 31.3.2008 between deceased Achhar Singh and Gurvinder Singh. Court has carefully perused the contents of agreement dated 31.3.2008 executed between deceased Achhar Singh and co-defendant No. 1 Gurvinder Singh. There is recital in agreement dated 31.3.2008 that deceased Achhar Singh agreed to alienate five biswas of land in favour of Gurvinder Singh in consideration amount of Rs.225000/- (Rupees two lacs twenty five thousand) on 31.3.2008. There is document on record that similarly on 31.3.2008 general power of attorney was executed in favour of co-defendant No.2 who is real sister of co-defendant No.1. It is proved on record that co-defendants Nos. 1 and 2 are real brother and sister. It is proved on record that thereafter co-defendant No. 2 who is real sister of co-defendant No. 1 has executed sale deed on the basis of general power of attorney in favour of her brother i.e. co-defendant No.1 in consideration amount of Rs. three lacs relating to 19 biswas of land and sale deed executed by co-defendant No.2 in favour of co-defendant No.1 is in dispute in present civil suit.

14. In present case one fact is proved that Smt. Jasbir Kaur who is real sister of co-defendant No.1 Gurvinder Singh has executed sale deed in favour of her brother on the basis of general power of attorney. It is also proved on record that no consideratiopn amount of sale was paid before Sub Registrar and there is recital in sale deed that vendor has received full and final consideration amount of Rs.three lacs from vendee. In present case no receipt of consideration amount signed by Achhar Singh placed on record. Court is of the opinion that proposed amendment is not destructive to original pleadings and in view of issues framed by learned Trial Court. Court is of the opinion that proposed amendment is subsequent event and is essential in order to avoid multiplicity of judicial proceedings inter se parties. Court is of the opinion that opportunity would be granted to defendants to file amended written statement by learned Trial Court and due opportunities would be granted to defendants to adduce rebuttal evidence in accordance with law. It is well settled law that Court can take judicial notice of subsequent events. See AIR 1973 SC 171 title M/s M.Laxmi & Company vs. Dr.Anant R.Deshpande and another. See AIR 2001 SC 699 title Ragu Thilak D. John vs. S.Rayappan and others. AIR 2002 SC 1148 title Fritiz T.M. Clement vs. Sudhakaran. See AIR 1983 SC 43 title Harcharan vs. State of Haryana. 15. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of non-revisionists that proposed amendment application is filed when case was listed for final arguments at belated stage and on this ground revision petition be dismissed is rejected being devoid of any force for reasons hereinafter mentioned. It is proved on record that co-revisionists No. 2 to 4 namely Master Pankaj aged 9 years, Master Neeraj aged 7 years and Master Harpreet aged 5 years are minors and it is well settled law that law of limitation is not applicable on minors and it is well settled law that law of limitation remains in abeyance upon minors. In view of the fact that co-revisionist No. 1 is widow of deceased Acchar Singh plaintiff and is rustic villager and in view of the fact that co-revisionists Nos. 2 to 4 namely Master Pankaj aged 9 years, Master Neeraj aged 7 years and Master Harpreet aged 5 years are minors it is not expedient in the ends of justice to decline the proposed amendment filed by minors simply on ground that proposed amendment was filed when civil suit was listed for final arguments.

16. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of non-revisionists that proposed amendment filed on the basis of photostate agreement dated 31.3.2008 and photostate document is not primary document and on this ground revision petition be dismissed is also rejected being devoid of any force for the reasons hereinafter mentioned. Hon'ble H.P. High Court in civil revision No. 178 of 2014 decided on 24.2.2015 held that it would be open to the revisionists to move the learned Trial Court to avail all remedies as available to them under the provisions of Code of Civil Procedure. Hon'ble H.P. High Court permitted the revisionists to avail all remedies available to them under Code of Civil Procedure. Remedy under Order VI Rule 17 CPC is available to revisionists under the Code of Civil Procedure. Even as per amended provisions of Order VI Rule 17 CPC amendment can be allowed after commencement of trial if Court comes to conclusion that inspite of due diligence the party could not raise the matter before commencement of trial. In present case revisionists could not raise the matter before commencement of trial because before commencement of trial revisionists namely Saroj Devi and minors namely Master Pankaj aged 9 years, Master Neeraj aged 7 years and Master Harpreet aged 5 years were not party in civil suit No. 113/1 of 2008 and revisionists were impleaded as co-party in civil suit after death of Achhar Singh who died on 11.4.2014. It is held that right to file application for amendment is accrued to revisionists when revisionists were impleaded as co-party on 27.5.2015 by learned Trial Court under Order XXII Rule 3 CPC. Revisionists filed application on 24.3.2015. It is held that no prejudice would be caused to defendants if proposed amendment is allowed and it is held that due opportunity would be granted to defendants to file amended written statement and to adduce rebuttal evidence. It is held that defendants could be compensated with costs for filing proposed amendment at the stage of arguments. In view of above stated facts it is held that proposed amendment is necessary for the purpose of determining the real question in controversy between the parties.

17. Submission of learned Advocate appearing on behalf of non-revisionists that Hon'ble High Court rejected civil revision No. 178 of 2014 on 24.2.2015 relating to secondary evidence qua agreement dated 31.3.2008 and on this ground present revision petition be also dismissed is rejected being devoid of any force for the reasons hereinafter mentioned. It is held that Hon'ble High Court has rejected civil revision No. 178 of 2014 but specifically mentioned in order passed in CR No. 178 of 2014 that revisionists would be at liberty to avail all other remedies available to them under the provisions of Code of Civil Procedure. Hence it is held that Hon'ble High Court of H.P. had given liberty to revisionists to file another application before learned Trial Court under Code of Civil Procedure 1908. In view of the fact that Hon'ble High Court of H.P. vide order dated 24.2.2015 permitted the revisionists to file another application under the Code of Civil Procedure 1908. It is held that subsequent application filed under Order VI Rule 17 CPC is not barred in view of order passed in Civil revision No. 178 of 2014 by H.P. High Court. It is held that application filed under Section 65 of Indian Evidence Act 1872 and application filed under Order VI Rule 17 CPC are two distinct applications. Point No.1 is answered in affirmative.

Point No. 2 (Relief)

18. In view of findings upon point No.1 civil revision petition is allowed. Order of learned Trial Court dated 27.3.2015 is set aside. Proposed application filed under Order VI Rule 17 CPC is allowed in order to avoid multiplicity of judicial proceedings inter se parties and in view of the fact that co-revisionist Saroj Devi is illiterate rustic villager and is widow and in view of the fact that other co-revisionists Nos. 2 to 4 namely Master Pankaj aged 9 years, Master Neeraj aged 7 years and Master Harpreet aged 5 years are minors. As application filed at belated stage when civil suit was listed for arguments costs to the tune of Rs.3000/- (Rupees three thousand) is also imposed.
